who Elliot's allegations were intended to fit. In the appeal concerning the College of Communication Arts seat, Hagle was found guilty by the commission of violating two regulations in his campaign, ASMSU Election Regulation 6.4.0.5 and MSU ordinance

Hagle was challenged by Bradley Eft, another candidate for the seat, because of a banner promoting the slate Hagle with hung from the fifth floor windows of Wilson Hall.

The election regulation Hagle allegedly violated, 31.00, states in part, "It shall be unlawful for any person to attach any sign or poster to any University property other than a bulletin board. . .

In his defense, Hagle contended that he could not find an official definition of a bulletin board in the MSU student handbook. He added that he did not willingly intend to violate 31.00.

Hagle also said he had tried to contact the Elections Commission on the validity of the banner and pointed out that banners are often hung in the same manner during football season.

Wright, the College of Business winner, was declared invalid because her financial statement was handed in late. Kathy Leonard, who finished second in that race, was invalidated for the same reason.

"Most of the people that spoke during the public hearing were against waivers being granted," he said. "Except, of course, the land developers and their realtors. But later in the meeting, both sides acknowledged the fact that there is not enough parking space available

Waivers have been granted in the past in attempts to discourage further development of parking areas around each establishment. The planning commission prefers to encourage municipal parking. The problem is that the parking situation is tight now and the proposed new restaurants, offices and the License Bureau would put additional stress on the parking system.

"These waivers present a real dilemma," said Bob Wilcox, general manager of East Lansing Jacobson's stores. "We do not wish to interfere with good business but we are fearful that the waivers would only compound the parking problem.

Wilcox said he does not want the city government to stop further development by refusing to grant the waivers.

"We plan to press forward and work with the planning commission and the city council to see if additional space could be acquired," he said.

He added that the cost of surface property is expensive and, because of this, upward development of parking space

In its decision, the commission said Wright was bound to turn in a statement by a form she signed in February which stated she understood the ASMSU elections

The commission also invalidated Wendy Bush, the victor in the University College race. Bush turned in her statement an hour and a half late, but the commission turned down her appeal on the grounds that extenuating circumstances did not keep her from turning it in.

An appeal by Elliot Nadel, candidate in the College of Business, against individuals involved in the Counterforce slate organization, was postponed until Monday because Nadel was celebrating the Passover holi-

Nixed reform bill will be redrafted

By JOANNA FIRESTONE

LANSING (UPI) - Key Democratic lawmakers announced plans Thursday to redraft into separate bills the sweeping 1975 political reform measure recently declared unconstitutional by the state Supreme

But they said they won't have time to get the laws enacted before this fall's election.

The plans were detailed in a letter from House Speaker Bobby D. Crim, D-Davison, and Senate Majority Leader William B. Fitzgerald, D-Detroit, to 27 organizations which were interested in the orginal bill.

Atty. General Frank J. Kelley said Wednesday a 1974 campaign reform law -- replaced by the stronger, 1975 version before it became effective — was wiped off the books when the Michigan Supreme Court ruled the tougher law unconstitutional.

When the high court ruled the stronger law unconstitutional, there was speculation the 1974 law which never became effective would be geared up.
But Kelley said that since the earlier law was usurped by another statute before it was functional, it too was knocked out by the Supreme Court ruling.

His decision means that this year's campaigns will be conducted under old, loophole-ridden statutes that were powerless to prevent conflicts of interest, slush funds, secret contributions and questionable

s in the process of replacing all old fluorescent light tubes with a new type of tube that produces "slightly less light" but conserves quite a bit of energy.

Jim Sneathen, maintenance engineer at the MSU Physical Plant, said the new tubes will reduce electric lighting demand by about six watts per bulb, meaning a savings of 12 to 15 per cent of the current electricity expenditure.

The difference in lighting is very small." Sneathen said. "For instance, I have them in my office and I can't tell the difference.

Before the new fluorescent tubes were installed, the University tested them with a light meter. "They are well within federal energy regulations," Speathen said.

niversity Physical Plant wo began installation of the new tubes about one year ago and have now replaced about 15 per cent of the old ones.

Sneathen said the average life of a fluorescent light tube is four to five years and that the University usually replaces 20 per cent of the bulbs each year.

Plans indicate that the new tubes will be in all University buildings, residence halls and facilities in three years. Once the replacement is complete, MSU will conserve nearly 2,000 tons of coal per year. The University makes its own electricity from

The new bulbs cost about 30 cents more than the old-style bulbs because they contain a more expensive mixture of gases, Sneathen said, but the energy savings will make up for the added cost during the first third of the tube's life.

Students appear to be receptive to the idea of a new light bulb that will save the University energy and eventually money. Karen Green, 407 S. Hubbard Hall, said she definitely approves of the new tube. She said that though the overhead light in her room is usually on for only six hours a day, it does get turned on and off frequently.

Sheathen said the life of any light bulb depends on its operating hours and turning them on and off frequently shortens their

Another student, George Stewart, 511 S. Case Hall, said that the fluorescent overhead light in his room "gives off too much light" so he never uses it. Stewart said that he would be "in favor of anything that's going to save energy.'

Stewart's complaint of the brightness of the fluorescent light is one echoed by many other students on campus.

"Many offices now have twice as much light as is considered essential for proper working conditions," Sneathen said. Therefor the lowered light levels should pose no problem, he said.

Immunization, job bills signed

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Ford signed a $1.94 billion bill Thursday to carry out a nationwide swine flu immunization program and to finance various job programs.

The immunization program was launched on the recommendation of medical experts to protect Americans against a swine-type strain of virus believed responsible for a half million deaths in the United States during 1918-19.

Tacked onto the $135 million appropriation bill for the vaccine by Congress was $1.2 billion for public service jobs designed to keep the present level of 315,000 persons employed in special programs by state and local governments through next January.

The measure also included the $528.4 million Ford requested to provide 888,000 jobs for young people this summer: $55.9 million for 15,000 jobs for elderly persons and $23 million for summer recreation and community programs.

Stone, who is reported to have contributed $2 million to Nixon's 1972 reelection bid, wrote a "personal contract" for Chapin, who now works for Stone Enterprises.

Ecologists win power plant fight

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Environmentalists have won their 12-year battle against the proposed $3.5 billion Kaiparowits power plant which they contended would produce smog over the Grand Canyon and four other national parks. Two of the three utilities planning the facility on the shores of Lake Powell along the Utah-Arizona line announced Wednesday they were giving up, at least for now.

The third firm said it would look for new partners and possibly build a smaller version.

Southern California Edison, the chief partner, and San Diego Gas & Electric Co. said they were withdrawing their applications to build the plant because of rising costs and uncertainties' caused by the filing of one environmental lawsuit and the threat of others.

Dissident Soviets punished

MOSCOW (AP) — A 35-year-old Russian human rights activist was sentenced to five years' exile from Moscow to slandering the Soviet state and another political rebel got 21/2 years at hard labor, while Nobel Peace Prize winner Andrei D. Sakharov and his wife got retaliatory beatings by police, dissident sources reported Thursday. The exile sentence for Andrei Tverdokhlebov, the secretary of the Soviet branch of Amnesty International, amounts to two years because of time already spent in jail. His sentence and the labor term for Crimean Tatar nationalist Mustafa Djemilev, 32, were the second and third verdicts against Soviet dissidents in two days.

Reporting to Western newsmen outside the Moscow courtroom, Tverdokhlebov's mother said, "I'm glad he's not in prison. I don't think it's a light sentence because I don't think he's guilty.

Sakharov and his wife, Yelena, were detained briefly Wednesday after, the Soviet news agency Tass said, they each struck two policemen.

Rhodesia clash leaves 8 dead

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Security forces have killed eight more guerillas over the past four days in white-ruled Rhodesia's growing border war with black nationalist guerillas, officials said Thursday.

Three other guerillas were killed by a comrade who later surrendered, and two persons who broke the curfew along Rhodesia's embattled border with Mazambique were shot to death. This brings the death total of guerillas to 1,171 since fighting began in 1972.

Black nationalists have vowed to bring majority rule to Rhodesia, where 274,000 whites rule 5.7 million blacks. Prime Minister Ian Smith has rejected proposals for black majority rule within two years.

Meanwhile, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger plans to meet with leaders of black rebel movements from South Africa, Rhodesia and Namibia during a two-week trip to Africa, Rep. Charles Digg, D-Mich., said Wednesday.

Kissinger has expressed support for an evolution towards black majority rule in southern Africa and plans a major speech during his African trip outlining U.S. policy toward

The new rules apparently make use of a passenger profile chart that is designed to alert airline personnel to passengers whose baggage may be suspi cious. Passengers with checked baggage selected as suspicious will be required to furnish identification and may be required to open their luggage for inspection by airline personnel.

The FAA estimates no more than 2 per cent of the 500,000 pieces of luggage checked by airlines daily will be considered suspect under the guidelines. A spokesman for United Airlines. the nation's largest domestic airline, said United estimated no more than one per cent of its 80,000 daily passengers may be required to furnish identification or open their luggage.

Parameds not needed

All the sirens screaming on television, all the TV lives being saved by skilled TV paramedics, all the applications pouring into paramedic training schools - it's paramedic madness and it's the latest thing.

According to some people, notably those who run such services or schools for the paramedics' training, every town needs a paramedic service with specially trained ambulance attendants and elaborate lifesaving devices in their emergency vehicles.

East Lansing is one town presently up for grabs by the paramedic pushers. The city council is currently considering a proposal from a Lansing ambulance service to offer full-time paramedic ambulance service to the city, including MSU.

Officials such as the fire chief and city manager should be able to decide soon whether the service is needed at this time, and their answer should be no.

Victims would have to pay at least $55 for their ride to the hospital unless covered by Medicare or workman's compensation. In addition, the service would cost the city more money because of training fees and the purchasing of additional and larger equipment. These purchases would send off a chain of heavy city spending, as larger emergency vehicles would need larger accommodations (e.g., a new fire station).

Annually, only two of every 1,000 emergency runs require paramedic service, and that small number could be served by the Lansing units.

Considering the ensuing costs. infrequency of need and proximity of existing services, the city of East Lansing would be foolish to spend $30,000 on paramedic ser-

Council trivializes academic discussion

The announcement that only two colleges have chosen their student-representatives for next year's Academic Council may be a disappointment, but it is certainly no surprise.

This small amount of interest is due - in large part - to the apathy of the student community, but part of the blame must be laid at the feet of the council itself. The inaction which has often characterized the council often alienates qualified students from seeking a position on it.

The results of the council are paltry when one considers the important matters of academic concern that are discussed. And discussed and discussed and dis-

The council's fall term was absorbed with deciding whether or not professors should be required to inform students ahead of time of days when class was canceled. (A common courtesy most professors extend already.)

Students should seek a place upon the Academic Council, but they must realize that it will not be a platform for University change until it is itself transformed from the inside.

Now I have heard everything. Just because Robert Perrin and a few people have decided they don't like the Spartan caricature that represents the University, it is going to be redesigned. The reason for such a change has been stated as, The grizzled caricature does not create a positive image for MSU, and especially in light of current athletic problems." First of all, it is not the symbol of a university that creates an image. Instead, it is the actions of the university. Second, tradition is also a image. and the "Grizzled Spartan" was part of MSU's for quite a few years before we had to worry about beautifying tarnished images.

What I am trying to say is that dministrators such as Perrin should not be so quick to decide what is good for the University. Rather, they should realize that their preferences may not coincide with those of the people they are serving — students. Now I realize this is not the most crucial of questions facing the University, but I also feel this is an issue that students should be allowed to decide.

VIEWPOINT: KAREN ANN

Issues of policy in Quinlan case

Michael Macksood's April 12 Viewpoint column on the Karen Ann Quinlan case serves to further inform and stimulate us regarding some very important private and public choices. I agree with Macksood's analysis on major points and demure on ome minor, but important, ones.

I agree that the heart of the matter is personhood." Joseph Quinlan has insisted all along that the person Karen (she who planned for the future, related to her parents, had a self-concept, etc.) is effectively dead. What remains hooked to the respirator is a subhuman being which (sic) should be allowed to die. prohibition against killing should be slavishly applied in a such case is surely open to

I agree also that the "Harvard Brain Death Criteria" are of little value in cases of this sort. Recent legislation based on such "definitions" is useful in meeting a limited range of problems thrust on us by advances in medical technology. However, it does not suffice in this or many other instances where "heroic measures" may be withheld or discontinued.

I cannot agree, however, that physicians have "skill and equipment" which make them peculiarly able "to determine if the 'person' has died." It is a mistake to suppose that a decision about "personhood" is a peculiarly medical determination. That the first Quinlan decision seemed to suggest this was perhaps its chief shortcoming. Hopefully, graduates of our medical school will be both superbly skilled diagnosticiantherapists and thoughtful, sensitive human beings. It is the latter set of attributes which equip one to make wise decisions about quality of life and competing values.

Lastly, when Macksood makes a distinction between respect for the per and respect for the body, he assume radical duality of body and psyche or in which I cannot share. The being persons include body, even if we share. decide that certain functions of the cortex are essential for a finding d

Warmth, humor and love are the keynotes of The Okemos Barn Theatre production of William Inge's "Bus Stop." Directed with a sure and even hand by Martin Schulamn, "Bus Stop" is a perfect example of good community theatre.

"Bus Stop" is the story of what happens to eight people delayed on their bus by a snowstorm. They are forced to spend the night at a small cafe, and from there the emotions begin to grow. The central characters are a nightclub performer - a not too bright, but sweet girl - named Cherie and Bo Decker, a bold cowboy who pursues her in hopes of marriage. The late Marilyn Monroe and Don Murray were the ill-matched couple in the movie of the same name.

The others include the cafe owner, Grace; the waitress, a fresh-face girl named Elma; the sheriff, Will Masters; the alcohol-soaked professor, Dr. Ger ald Lyman; the driver, Carl and the cowboy's friend, Virgil. All are intertwined in finding the basic human requirements of love and comfort wherever they can. Some find it with each other, others don't. In the end, some very definite conclusions are reached.

fresh and eager as the brainy Elma. Couf is a good actress with a fine talent for character roles.

Janet Lockwood, though initially stiff, finished with a nice, portrayal of Grace Hoyland. Lockwood was particularly careful and memorable with the small movements she used to reinforce her character. Keith Williams is marvelously strong and noble-hearted as the gallant Sheriff Will. A great actor who only gets better, Williams provides great enjoy-ment with his role. Stan Ellis as Dr. Lyman is delightfully egotistical. A cautious but talented actor, Ellis brings much understanding to his role of the not-too-sober professor.

Last, but certainly not least, Dave Milstein turns in a refreshingly natural portrayal as Carl, the driver.

"Bus Stop" is blessed by naturally intelligent direction provided by Martin Schulamn. He has a good eye for blocking and a perceptive feel for the way people really react.

'Who's Happy Now'

"Who's Happy Now" is the current production by the Boarshead Players of Lansing. It is a wonderful play, bright, mercurial and sensitive. It is well acted, well staged and sensitively directed.

Operating on a flashback technique, the play opens with a young man seating his mother in the audience and telling her and the audience about the play - a play that he has written and which is the story of their intimate family life.

"Who's Happy Now" is writ-ten by Oliver Hailey, who is a script consultant for the hit TV show, "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman." Hailey shows us a slice of small town life in Sunray, Texas. It is all appropriately prosaic, simplistic and touched with day to-day humor. But beneath the surface, passion flows deeply. It flows between butcher Horse Hallen and his wife, Mary; it flows between Horse and Faye Pre cious, the waitress at the cafe. But most of all, it flows from Richard Hallen, who watches and observes the deeply felt emotions among the members of his intimate circle. He sees, watches and understands - he. who only wants to see everyone happy. In the end it is his sensitive, romantic vision that

Musical ensemble chosen to sing, dance in Romania

By LAURIE SCATTERDAY State News Staff Writer

Romania anyone? The Lan-'Swingers," a musical ensemble made up of 25 students from Lansing Community College and MSU, will fly off to the land of Dracula this summer.

It began as a semi-professional commercial endeavor, but due to the heavy emphasis in career training at the college, Thompson said that affiliating the group with the college would be "natural."

The 16-voice vocal ensemble consists of four altos, four sopranos, four basses and four tenors, and rehearses one evening a week under the direction of Thompson as a regular one credit course.

Another evening each week is devoted to dance instruction

Children born between 1947 and 1962 — those responsible for declining SAT scores in the last 12 years and anticipated declines in the near future generally tend to be in family configurations that are less conducive to good intellectual performance, Zajonc said.

While only 25 per cent of all children took SATs, the testing group is from a population that generally come from larger, more closely-spaced families, and so fewer in proportion are first borns.

30 to 50 per cent of the drop can Zajonc said the family config-

Zajonc said the downward trend should continue until about 1980. At that time, the computer model projects that scores will begin to increase again as children from better configured families are tested.

"There are factors other than family configuration that play an important role in SAT scores, but so far, no other factor mentioned — such as TV or loss of interest in verbal skills — enjoyed any kind of evidence," Zajonc said.

Craft show includes work of MSU senior

Set your exposure, focus in on the subject, adjust the light and there you have it: Ted Loomis, MSU senior, partici-pating in a multi-faceted craft show planned for this weekend.

The craft show, to be held at the Glass Design Studio, 517 W. Grand River Ave., will include 30 photos of Taiwan which Loomis took while in the Air Force from 1969-1970. Also featured in the show will be Vince Castaldi, custom furni-ture designer; Eileen Mc-Collough, stained glass worker; and Louise McCagg, artist and sculptress.

Loomis first became interested in photography at the age of 15. From there, he eventually worked on the St. John, Mich, newspaper in the sports photography department. Last year, Loomis won first prize in the second annual Michigan Print competition with his entry of a time-elapsed ex-posure of Old Faithful, the famous geyser in Yellowstone National Park.

Loomis said that though he sometimes wanders around campus looking for subjects, he rarely depends on University events for picture material. "Besides," he added, "there are too many people roaming around with cameras on cam-

Ah, the travails of college studentism. It isn't easy finding a way to avoid classes. At Calvin College in Grand Rapids, students disassembled a portion of their room to allow for the admittance of 1 (one) Volkswagen automobile. It obviously will be a tremendous conversation piece-if people can fit in the room to converse. In Paris, these college and iniversity students turned their attention to a timehonored class-missing tradition -streetfighting. Tens of thou-sands of students in several cities protested government plans for college reforms. Police responded with tear gas after students pelted them with rocks. That routine, of course, is another time-honored tradi-

James Cooke, health administrator, said the arbitration agreement forms for hospitals and for private doctors are the result of a new state law, P.A.

Briefly, the agreement binds the hospital and patient to the decision of a three-man panel consisting of a lawyer, a doctor and a layman, in case it is needed. The patient and the hospital, or their lawyers, choose the panel from the list given by the American Arbitra-

TED PETOK PRESENTS HIS NEW CARTOON CRU NCH BIRD II

Senior Dick Callow, a varsity performer at Eastern Michigan University before transferring to MSU in the fall of 1974, possesses a fine serve and volley and is one of the anchormen on the Spartan men's tennis team. Callow played even .500 tennis last season winning eight of 16 matches. The 5-foot-10 Detroit product is currently playing at the sixth position for MSU in singles competition and occupies the second doubles slot with junior Tom Gudelsky.

Pitchers face tough weekend

By EDWARD L. RONDERS State News Sports Writer

He's in front of the man

His main concern is his batterymate 60 feet 6 inches directly in front of him. But he can't allow that distance to impede communications be tween himself and his partner.

The "he" is Spartan catcher Rick Seid.

The Oak Park senior will have the best view of the young Spartan pitching corps as MSU begins the Big Ten season this weekend. Seid and his mates play at Iowa today and at Minnesota tomorrow.

With a 5-12-1 record, resulting criticism has been aimed at the Spartan hurlers.

And Seid is in perhaps one of the best positions to analyze the staff's early season per-

Lacing his spikes in the dugout Wednesday afternoon, Seid hesitated, then said, "I wish I could explain why our pitchers haven't done better.

Netters

It's truly hard to put your finger on it, honest.

When we were in Florida the guys had a lack of control. Then we come back up north and they gain control of their pitches but start getting hit all over the place," he said. "It's truly frustrating."

Slipping on his right shoe, Seid responded with a new thought: "Wait, perhaps the reason the staff hasn't settled down yet is because we don't have a dynamic pitcher. I'm thinking of George Mahan last year. He'd go out there, even if challenge the hitters. More or less like saying, 'okay asshole, here's the ball, now try to hit

He added, "But, you've got to remember, each pitcher is a different individual. Each react in their own way. Mahan pitched better when you got him mad. Others guys need to have their confidence given a boost. It just depends on the Reviewing some of the current staff, Seid offered, "Nothing riles Chuck Baker. He's smooth off and on the field. Nothing bothers him He's got the tools and the demeanor. Jim Kniivila hasn't reached the form he had last year. But he'll get there. Rick Moore had a

"We're in for a tough weekend." Drobac said. "but they're all tough and that's what makes it fun. We've got to get tougher in these couple of matches or we're in trouble."

Concerning a new format introduced this year in the Big Ten, Drobac said he prefers it to the old setup.

"We're playing the doubles matches first and then the singles this year," Drobac said. The old way, a team could have the match sewn up before we even got to the doubles. The new way, there'll be more interest and competition."

The new format brought varied responses from the players but all were willing to give it a try.

LIBERTARIAN THEORY PRESENTED

End to foreign aid favored

By TERRY PRZYBYLISKI True or false: In the long history of American presidential politics, a woman running on a national party ticket has received a vote in the nation's Electoral College.

The answer: true. It happened only once - four years ago. when Theodora Nathan and her running-mate John Hospers. presidential candidates for the fledgling Libertarian party, re-ceived one vote from a Virginia elector, Roger MacBride.

"If you're ever on a TV game show, that might be useful to remember," quipped Peter Bergland, the Libertarian party's 1976 vice presidential candidate, who spoke Wednesday night to a group of about 40 students in the Erickson Hall

Bergland, an attorney and part-time law professor from Newport Beach, Calif., and his presidential running-mate, former Virginia elector Roger MacBride, are currently touring the nation, spreading the message of the still relatively unknown Libertarian party. Founded in 1972, the Libertarian Party is the fastest-growing political party in America, according to Bergland.

The main theme of the Libertarian philosophy, which, Bergland says "sprang up at about the time of the American Revolution," is that individual rights are increasingly falling victim to governmental intru-

"What we are basically trying to do is get you to challenge the legitimacy of government coercion," Bergland explained.

"The proper function of government is to assist the individual in preserving his or her rights," he said, criticizing the fact that many government officials have actively engaged in violating individual rights. He advocated ending all gov-ernment surveillance of private citizens and abolishing all "vicbid drug use, gambling and unconventional sex practices.

Bergland proposed a nonin terventionist foreign policy, which would include such measures as abolishing foreign aid, doing away with protective tariffs and ending all travel restrictions for private citizens.

He also urged a return to a free market economy, which would feature a reduction in all taxes, an end to the minimum wage and abolition of restrictive import and export quotas.

"Traditional politicians all believe that the American people are a bunch of animals - weak, stupid, helpless and incompe tent to run their own lives," he

Bergland cited Vietnam, Watergate, abuses by the CIA and the FBI and the economic difficulties of New York City as a few results of traditional politics

"We Libertarians believe that each individual is compe-tent to run his or her own life,"

"If you're tired of having your life run by bureaucrats, you've got to send them a message," Bergland declared. "If you vote for any traditional Republican or Democratic politician, you'll throw away your vote. You'll be telling them that you approve of what government has been doing for the last 40 or 50 years."

The Libertarian party stands for the advocacy of individual liberty, he added

"The Libertarian party does not stand anywhere on the traditional political spectrum of left to right, liberal to conservative, Republican or Democrat. Bergland said. "We want to present the voters with an alternative — and we are the only alternative."

The party is currently colsignatures to place Bergland and MacBride on the Michigan ballot this fall. They have about 13,000 signatures. but they hope to have 25,000 by the end of the month, he said.

Ford campaign aide found dead near car

By WIRE SERVICES

BELMONT, Mich. — John R. Stiles, 59, President Ford's campaign manager in his first bid for elective office and currently a special adviser to the President's election campaign, was found dead Thurs-day morning beside his wrecked car, Kent County sheriff's deputies said.

Stiles was identified by per-sonal effects found on his body, deputies said. Authorities said he was alone in the car.

Deputies said Stiles' car apparently struck a metal post, went out of control and plunged 12 feet off the opposite side of the road, overturning into a shallow stream. The accident is

Since serving as campaign manager when Ford first ran for Congress from Grand Rapids in 1948. Stiles had worked on behalf of GOP candidates in several states.
Stiles was coauthor with

Ford of the book, "Portrait of An Assassin," following the Warren Commission's probe of the Kennedy assassination.

Funeral arrangements were pending.
