A showdown occurred between East Lansing residents favoring a halt in development of the Remy-Chandler drain basin and adamant city council members at Tuesday night's city council meeting.

Reagan win in Michigan not expected

By JEFF MERRELL
State News Staff Writer

Ronald Reagan campaign leaders said Wednesday they do not expect to beat President Ford in his native Michigan, but strong support for the Reagan camp from former supporters of Democratic Alabama Gov. George Wallace has Ford campaigners running hard.

Republican presidential frontrunner Reagan picked up big victories in Texas and Indiana in the past week, showing substantial support from Democrats who supported Wallace in his bid four years ago. Wallace is currently running fourth behind Democratic leader Jimmy Carter.

Ford campaign leaders said this support has the "potential" to be a big factor in the state's primary, and it may lead to a UAW movement to embarrass Ford in his home state.

Charlie Black, Midwest coordinator for Citizens for Reagan, said Wednesday he was "encouraged by our victory in Indiana" but it would be "exceedingly difficult" to beat Ford in Michigan's May 18 primary.

Black said the impact of a favorite son candidate can be large, especially if he happens to be an incumbent President.

But he also conceded that "anything is possible."

State Sen. Jack Welborn, R-Kalamazoo, state coordinator of the Reagan campaign, said, "I'll be very happy with 20 to 25 percent in Ford's home state."

Welborn also emphasized that Reagan was attracting a lot of former Wallace supporters in this state.

"The contact I am receiving from individuals indicates that there are a substantial number of people who voted for Wallace who will come to the Reagan camp," Welborn said. "I encourage them."

Welborn said that in 1972 he voted for Wallace in the Michigan presidential primary and that he personally agrees with many of Wallace's stands.

"He's (Reagan) talking about the same things that Wallace was talking about four years ago," he said.

Black said it was important that Reagan past midnight, is that no building permits will be granted in East Lansing's portion of the drainage basin, permits granted since April 1 where excavation has not begun will be rescinded and the city attorney will look into the legal possibility of imposing a building injunction in the entire basin.

The city owns 2.5 square miles of the 27-square-mile basin which lies north of the city — the only direction the city can expand. Because of the shifting soils and high water table in the area, homeowners say that further development will add to the rate of water runoff and compound present flooding problems.

The confrontation at the city council meeting centered on the recent granting of building permits in the Beechtree subdivision — lying in the Remy-Chandler basin — while a building moratorium ordinance is being drawn up by Dennis McGinty, the city attorney.

Anne DeRose, chairperson of the Committee for Community Action, stated in a letter read to the council that city officials have granted building permits to developers despite the council's instructions that the granting of permits be held up pending the formulation of criteria of the temporary building moratorium ordinance.

McGinty recommended in a proposed moratorium on April 19 that the building official shall not issue building or grading permits if the construction would adversely affect the drainage problem. Developers claiming an undue hardship because of the more stringent permit regulation could be granted a variance by the building official or the Building Board of Appeals.

Councilmember John Czarnecki said city officials are not meeting secretly with developers and the council has not instructed building officials to stop the granting of permits.

Czarnecki said he did not want a moratorium implemented because of the variance procedures, but favored a blanket halt to building until a study of the problem comes up with a definitive solution.

Judy Martens of the committee said no definition exists for what constitutes undue hardship and that public hardship should be weighed against the private hardship. She also mentioned discrepancies in the measurement of property size by different agencies analyzing the drainage problem.

"What we do with the undeveloped land is crucial for the future," Martens said. "We don't want to prohibit developers, but regulate how the land is used."

Councilmember Mary Sharp, who along with councilmember John Polonsky dissented from the rest of the council on the motions to halt building permits, asked Martens if her group thought it was the first to bring up this topic.

"Judging from the lack of response from the council, we feel like we're the first," Martens replied.

Polonsky said the city has been developing a master plan for the past 15 years and that one remedy measure — a culvert installed at Abbott Road — has alleviated a flooding problem at the Villa Montee Apartments.

The debate continued among the councilmembers regarding the question of rescinding building permits.

"Rescinding permits already granted may be shaky legally and I'm torn about entering litigation to enforce the motion," Czarnecki said.

McGinty declined to make a statement on the motion's legality.

Councilmember Larry Owen said he wanted to stop the granting of permits immediately because the status quo must be maintained pending the receipt of the moratorium ordinance.

"I do not want to see a flood of permits granted under the wire," Owen said. A memorandum from Bob Jipson, director of the Building and Zoning Dept., to the city manager lists 21 building permits granted in the Remy-Chandler district between April 1 and April 23.

Mayor George Griffiths attributed the large number of permits to the impending moratorium and said an extremely large project, granted a permit April 28, could be stopped since foundation excavation has not yet begun.

"It is unreasonable to rescind the permits retroactively back to April 1," Sharp said. "We are not dealing straight with the developers. There is no clear and present danger or widespread destruction of large numbers of houses. It is not like smallpox has settled on the area."

"It is foolish if we play Indian-giver," Polonsky said. "It is poor policy for the city to act like this."

Griffiths mentioned a court order that could restrict buildings in the entire watershed because other municipalities will add to the runoff into the drainage basin. However, he said the city cannot control the development in other areas.

McGinty said the city can ask a circuit court to order a basinwide building restriction if a sufficient hazard to the public can be proven.

Czarnecki said each permit should be reviewed and not be granted until it can be proven that the additional development will not increase the rate of drainage runoff.

"The water is going to have to be held back for a period of time in retention basins," Czarnecki said. Martens said standing ponds of water in everyone's back yard will constitute a health hazard and will be dangerous for children in the area.

However, Czarnecki said "drainage ponds are going to be a way of life for a long time" and denied they will be hazardous to the health of the communities.

In other council activities, the property which is now occupied by an abandoned Citgo filling station was sought after for a multitude of reasons, ranging from a plant store art gallery to a space rental for a wholesale flower sale.

Motions were passed giving the East Lansing Sculpture Project the option of locating its Bicentennial sculptures on either the Citgo station property or the park land to the east of it but not the property on the corner of Albert Street and Abbott Road since that is private. The sculpture project plans to install 14 large sculptures on various sites to remain between July 4 and October

Sluggish drain system upsets area residents

By STEVE ORR
State News Staff Writer

When rain falls on the northern reaches of East Lansing, it eventually finds its way into the Remy-Chandler drain. The rapidity, or lack thereof, with which water gurgles into Remy-Chandler has been a controversy for a number of years.

The drain originally was constructed in the early 1900s, to serve what was then primarily an agricultural area. In 1958 and 1959, 2.5 square miles of the 27-square-mile area served by Remy-Chandler was annexed to the city of East Lansing and city hall inherited a share of the Remy-Chandler problem.

The basic problem is that the drain just doesn't drain water fast enough. A major reason is the age of the drain system and the fact that development in the area has outstripped improvements in the drain.

Another cause is the area's water table, or the level up to which underground water saturates the soil. If the water table is high, as it is in the Remy-Chandler area, then standing water had difficulty soaking in. This standing water is supposed to be drained off, but Remy-Chandler can not handle the flow during heavy rains.

Compounding the problem is the fact that north is the only direction in which East Lansing can expand. Development means more cement into which water can not soak and it means more residents who complain about standing water and flooding.

Over the years, some improvements have been made on the drain, but all agree not nearly enough has been done. In the early 1970s, the city and the Inter-County Drain Board—composed of drain commissioners from Ingham, Clinton and Eaton counties—began forcing developers to add retention basins serving newly constructed homes and developments. It was hoped the basins would function as places where standing water could stand without causing residents any grief. Residents have complained, however, that the basins have been constructed in the wrong places—parking lots, playgrounds, backyards.

Last year, the inter-county board announced a moratorium on construction of all but single-family homes in the Remy-Chandler area. The board, however, lacked the power to enforce the moratorium. It had asked governmental units involved in the Remy-Chandler area—East Lansing, Lansing, and Bath and DeWitt townships—to cooperate. The action Tuesday night by the East Lansing City Council followed the board's precedent, though its moratorium is not along the lines suggested by the board.

Severe rain storms last year brought to a head the complaints of people living in the area, including those living in the East Lansing subdivision of Beechtree. They complained of flooding and standing water that made the neighborhood unlivable at times.

The next step in the debate is the issuance of a report by a local engineering firm on what to do with the Remy-Chandler drain. The inter-county board commissioned Capitol Consultants Inc. of Lansing to conduct the study, which is scheduled for completion in July. East Lansing and Lansing have pledged interest in carefully studying the survey's recommendations, but the several townships in the drain area apparently have not. One reason for this may be money. Those who live in the drain area would have to foot at least part of the bill for drain improvements.

Udall to bring campaign to Lansing, campus today

Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., will swing his presidential campaign onto the MSU campus tonight for a rally at the sports arena in the Men's IM Building.

Udall is scheduled to arrive about 8:30 p.m., though there will be live music at the rally beginning at 8:15. The rally is cosponsored by ASMSU Great Issues and the Udall for President campaign organization in Michigan.

The candidate's MSU swing is part of a five-hour visit to the Lansing area. Udall is scheduled to hold a 4 p.m. press conference at Capital City Airport, followed by personal interviews, the rally and then a motorcade to Flint.

The State News incorrectly stated that Udall's rally was Wednesday in the headline on Wednesday's front page article about the Udall visit.

STIGMA stages march to Capitol

By KAT BROWN
State News Staff Writer

Students to the state Capitol Wednesday morning from all over Michigan joined with a resolution that was sent to the Michigan State Senate and House of Representatives supporting the rights of handicappers and the elderly public transportation be accessible to all members of the public.

The resolution, sponsored by Sen. Jondahl, D-East Lansing, and Rep. Osterbacher, D-Grand Rapids, was sent to a public hearing held in Lansing, D.C. Wednesday between the Michigan Transportation and the Urban Transportation Assn. The Dept. of Transportation is holding hearings to whether existing federal regulations that state and federal funded bus be accessible should be optional or mandatory.

Sawisch, Chairperson of Student Total Integration through Greater Access and Accessibility (STIGMA), said about three months ago a group of students got together and decided it was time to do something for themselves. They started at that meeting led to the

One of STIGMA's biggest complaints is that handicappers have been hidden from the public with segregated schools and out-of-the-way entrances to buildings. STIGMA is stressing integrated buses and schools, not just equal facilities.

"Today they (the public) are going to see us," Sawisch said.

Soon the crowd was about 60 people strong and with police blocking West Circle Drive, the group followed the path ramps to the Administration Building. Chanting "public means all people," the crowd booted MSU buses passing by and students who did not honor the boycott.

Leaders of the march were on the steps of the building asking those entering and leaving the building to use the ramp, saying that the "steps are not public" because they do not serve everyone.

Sawisch said for seven years Biggie Munn would not provide accessibility to the

Moore acquitted of charges

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Gov. Arch A. Moore Jr. and a former aide were acquitted by a federal jury Wednesday of extortion charges.

The seven-woman, five-man jury deliberated slightly more than seven hours before finding Moore and former aide William H. Loy innocent of charges of extorting a $25,000 campaign contribution from Theodore R. Price, former president of Diversified Mountaineer Corp., in 1972. The maximum penalty for a conviction would have been 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Moore and Loy had maintained their innocence throughout the trial. Prosecutors had accused the pair of extorting money from Price in exchange for the bank charter.

Means wounded in quarrel

WAGNER, S.D. (UPI) — Russell Means, American Indian Movement (AIM) leader, and another AIM member were shot and wounded early Wednesday in a quarrel on the Yankton Sioux reservation.

Atty. Gen. William Lankow said authorities were seeking James Weddell, Michael Weston, Russell Turner and Terry Provost in connection with the incident. No charges have been filed. He said that Weddell and Weston fled. No charges have been filed against them.

Means and Thomas underwent surgery at Sacred Heart Hospital in nearby Yankton and both were listed in satisfactory condition.

Weston and Weddell were charged in the Indian occupation last July of a pork plant in Wagner. Weddell, charged with assault and burglary, escaped and has remained at large. Weston was free on bond following his conviction on burglary charges in the incident.

Grain company fined $500,000

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Continental Grain Co. has been fined $500,000 for shortweighing grain at one of its elevators, and representatives of the firm who pleaded no contest to a federal indictment said they would pay immediately.

It was the latest development in a two-year federal crackdown on shortweighing, misgrading and other corruption in the grain export trade. More corporate indictments are expected.

The company said in a statement that the difference would amount to about 100,000 bushels per year.

Agriculture Dept. records indicated that Continental accumulated excess inventories worth $16.9 million at its elevators over a five-year period.

Since the investigation began two years ago, 48 persons and six companies have been indicted on such charges as bribery, theft and income tax evasion. There have been 51 convictions.

Italian lira plunges to new low

ROME (UPI) — The Italian lira plunged to an all-time low against the U.S. dollar again Wednesday, emphasizing uncertainty over the nation's political situation and coming elections that could result in big Communist gains.

The lira's plunge came against the background of additional economic indicators showing a growing balance of payments deficit and sharply rising inflation.

The nation's political leaders, meanwhile, worked on candidate lists for the June 20 parliamentary elections that could give the Communist party its first share in government power, and possibly cabinet seats, since 1947.

Mao reported in frail health

HONG KONG (AP) — China's Mao Tse-tung is frail and in poor health as the result of a reported stroke suffered some time ago but is not senile, New Zealand Prime Minister Robert D. Muldoon said Wednesday after a visit to Peking.

Muldoon spent 10 minutes with Mao last Friday, far less time than the 82-year-old Chinese Communist party chairman usually spends with foreign dignitaries. Muldoon said he believed this was because of Mao's health.

A number of foreign visitors to China in the past year have reported Mao to be frail and sometimes having trouble speaking but with an active and alert mind. U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said after his October 1975 visit that he saw no signs of senility.

SALT talks take month recess

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union agreed Wednesday to recess their stalled Strategic Arms Limitation (SALT) talks for four weeks.

The closed discussions reportedly have been deadlocked since they resumed Jan. 28. Soviet sources in Moscow have hinted the Kremlin is holding back until the U.S. presidential elections are completed.

The Soviet Union has not replied to a U.S. proposal submitted last February. The Soviet agency Tass recently accused the U.S. of seeking unilateral advantages by insisting on developing its new Cruise missile — a rocket that can fly under radar and take a meandering course.

Sources close to the SALT negotiations hinted U.S. delegate U. Alexis Johnson sought the recess to return to Washington for consultations.

A U.S. announcement said Johnson, his Soviet counterpart Vladimir Semenov and their aides met for 65 minutes at the U.S. mission, agreed on the recess and decided to resume their discussions on June 2.

'Dirty' FBI tactics disclosed

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI headquarters approved more than 2,300 actions in a "rough, tough and dirty" campaign to disrupt and discredit U.S. organizations ranging from the Black Panthers to Antioch College, according to a new report on the bureau's Cointelpro program.

The report, released Wednesday by the Senate Intelligence Committee, said many of the actions approved during a 15-year period ending in 1971 "may have violated specific criminal statutes," while others "involved risk of serious bodily injury or death to the targets."

Committee chairperson Frank Church coupled release of the report with a renewed call for creation of a congressional panel to oversee intelligence operations and a special prosecutor to investigate possible criminal charges against officials involved in intelligence abuses.

The 77-page report outlined Cointelpro operations against "a staggering range of targets," beginning in 1956 with the Communist Party U.S.A. and ending in 1971 with "students demonstrating against anything."

FBI use of "dangerous, degrading or blatantly unconstitutional techniques... appears to have become less restrained with each subsequent program," the report said.

Most Cointelpro tactics described in the report, such as mailing anonymous letters that accused spouses of infidelity or encouraging warfare between rival groups, have been previously reported.

The report quoted internal Justice Dept. documents as stating that Cointelpro activities may have violated the civil rights statute as well as federal laws against mail fraud and extortion.

Although FBI witnesses testified that Cointelpro was intended to protect the national security and prevent violence, the report said that "the unexpressed major premise of much of Cointelpro is that the bureau has a role in maintaining the existing social order and... combating those who threaten that order."

As an example, the report quoted FBI memos showing that two students who participated in a free-speech demonstration were made Cointelpro targets because of their "obvious disregard for decency and established morality."

According to the report, more than half the Cointelpro operations approved during its 15-year history were directed at the Communist party. By the early 1960s, Cointelpro operations had expanded to include the prevention of Communist infiltration of mass organizations ranging from the NAACP to a local scout troop.

The most limited of the Cointelpro programs was directed at the Socialist Workers party from 1961 to 1969, according to the report. "The bureau has conceded that the SWP has never been engaged in organizational violence, nor has it taken any criminal steps toward overthrowing the country," the report said.

FBI officials were quoted in the report as saying the most successful Cointelpro program was against the Ku Klux Klan. The report said Cointelpro "used comparatively few techniques that carried a risk of serious physical, emotional or economic damage to the targets" in dealing with the Klan.

But it added that the Cointelpro program aimed at what the FBI considered "Black Nationalist" groups, ranging from the Black

Panthers to the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, "such techniques extensively."

At least four assaults — two of them against women — and broken marriages were reported to have resulted from Cointelpro tactics aimed at black groups, the report said.

According to the report, the least successful Cointelpro program was one directed against the New Left after student riots in the Democratic Society to "all of Antioch College," a liberal arts school in Ohio, became targets of Cointelpro, the report said.

The report said there was documentary evidence that "various attorneys general, advisers to presidents, members of the Appropriations Subcommittee and... the Cabinet" were told of Cointelpro operations against the Communist party and the Klan.

Reagan overtakes Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — Trailing in committed delegates and battered by four successive primary defeats, President Ford sought Wednesday to find an election strategy that can throttle Ronald Reagan and save Ford the Republican nomination.

A chorus of congressional and staff advisers told Ford he must emphasize Administration accomplishments more and quit being diverted by Reagan's attacks on such issues as the Panama Canal.

Senate GOP leaders Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and Robert P. Griffin of Michigan said Ford was advised to change his strategy.

Griffin said Ford has "found himself on the defensive a great deal. I don't think he should be using so much of his time answering Mr. Reagan."

A hallmark of Ford's campaigning has been question-and-answer sessions with large groups of citizens. The questions often have obviously been inspired by Reagan campaign statements.

Ford is expected to rely more on set speeches where he can better control the topics raised. The President told reporters

Wednesday he believes his winning issues are peace and foreign policy, economic recovery and restoration of trust and confidence in the presidency and executive branch of government.

Aside from issues, a major logistical problem facing the Ford campaign is what to do about Democratic voters crossing party lines to vote for Reagan in GOP primaries.

With the fading of Wallace's campaign, numbers of conservative Democrats who backed the Alabama governor apparently are now switching to Reagan.

The California is welcoming their support, noting that Republican nominee must attract support outside the primary party to win the November election.

The Michigan primary weeks permit such cross-voting, prompting Griffin to say the Ford campaign has "a lot of work to do" in the home state.

Wallace was popular in Michigan voting four years ago. Griffin said this time "there be a lot of temptation Democrats to get into Republican primary."

Democratic national chairman Robert Strauss said a string of primary defeats Ford means the President lost control of his party and country.

He said he was confident Democratic nominee would be determined before the convention begins July 12 that the Republicans are heading toward "a narrow filled room."

He envisioned a scenario with Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller at the shots on who is named by the Republicans.

Kissinger will propose resources bank to UN

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger warned industrial nations Wednesday about falling into "competitive sentimentalism" in dealing with economic problems of poor countries.

Kissinger told ministers from Europe, Japan and Canada at a luncheon that industrialized nations must not try to outbid each other with programs that have not been fully thought through.

U.S. officials say Kissinger today will propose to the UN Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) the creation of a multibillion-dollar international resources bank to channel private investment funds to developing countries.

Various nations condemned Chile's military government as fascist and oppressive Wednesday as politics overshadowed economic concerns at the opening of the UNCTAD meeting.

Five speakers objected to the role of Abelardo Silva, a Geneva-based Chilean diplomat, in formally opening the meeting as representative of the country that was host to the last UNCTAD meeting four years ago.

Plans for a walkout among the nearly 3,000 delegates and observers from 124 countries apparently fell through.

United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, UNCTAD Secretary-General Gamani Corea of Sri Lanka and President Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya urged far-reaching reforms to give the world's poor majority a better deal in trade, aid and technology.

If UNCTAD failed to act in Nairobi, Corea said, political crisis could boil up in the Third World and involve the rich Western powers as well.

Two Arabs gunned in West Bank riot

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli troops shot and wounded two Arabs in West Jordan Wednesday as Palestinian demonstrations erupted against Israeli occupation of the war-conquered territory on the Jewish state's 28th independence day.

The military command said soldiers' gunfire hit rioters in the West Bank town of Nablus, where the casbah market quarter has been sealed off for nine days to curb sporadic unrest.

Security forces dispersed small crowds of rioting Palestinians in Ramallah and Jenin, and kept the town of Tulkarm under curfew for the third day after troops clashed with stone-throwing students, an army spokesman said.

West Bank Arabs reported disturbances at the El-Amari refugee camp near Ramallah.

The unrest came in the midst of tight Israeli security in the occupied territories and on the borders for the independence holiday, a favorite guerilla target.

Residents of the Nablus casbah, the town's market section, have been confined by steel riot gates and kept under curfew since incidents of rock throwing and streetfights.

Library system stable despite budget cutbacks

By MICHAEL SAVEL
State News Staff Writer

MSU budget cutbacks have a toll on most students and departments, the library system, including the independent residential college libraries, is holding the storm and remains in stable condition.

The residential colleges operate on a university allocated budget, and the dean's offices of the colleges distribute the funds out University supervision. James Lyman Briggs colleges allocate several hundred dollars each to their library funds, and Justin Morrill puts in a lot of money from its overall budget. They all rely heavily on donations and contributions for survival.

Lyman Briggs we have over 3,000 books, including a great science fiction collection," Tom Halfacer, head librarian, said. "So far our funds are adequate, and we really help out with book donations."

James Madison College $300 was allocated to the library budget last spring, Robert Banks, dean of the college, said the library was adequately serving the needs of Madison students.

We allocate as much as we can out of our budget and so far students have no major complaints," he said. "Our remodeling program is continuing, and gradually we are adding more books and quite a few new ones."

Justin Morrill College whatever is left of the general budget goes into the library. Eldredge, library adviser, said that there have been sufficient funds available and he wants no connections with the University library system.

"We usually have some money for the library fund, and students have been donating quite a few books," he said. "Although we are open to everyone, we serve mainly the residents of Phillips-Snyder and people in Justin Morrill. We have never sought to be part of the University system."

This year the main library received a budget increase, but purchases of periodicals are still being cut back.

"This year our budget is better than last year, but because of rising costs, foreign periodical subscriptions are being cut down," said Henry Koch, associate director of the University library system. "We got as much as we could have hoped for, and things look favorable for now."

He said that there are no plans to reopen the Wilson Library, but the library's other subsidiary in Conrad Hall will remain open.

"The budget had to be cut, and Wilson was not being used enough," Koch said. "As far as I know there are no plans to close the Conrad library."

"I know the state welfare roles are increasing, and the tax base is decreasing, so I hope we will remain on a stable budget and not face any major cutbacks like so many other departments have," he said.

board to study lettuce boycott May meeting

There has been a year since the student boycotts of non-United Farm Workers lettuce. The MSU Board of Trustees will review at its May meeting the current policy which it adopted in response to student support of the boycotts.

The policy dictates that MSU is to purchase only UFW lettuce and grapes grown in the Southwest but continue using Michigan products when available.

The board's guidelines resulted from overwhelming student support for the purchase of UFW lettuce rather than that produced by the Teamsters Union. Last year a referendum held by the Residence Assn. in dormitories showed that 75 percent of the students voting approved an boycott of non-UFW lettuce and grapes.

Though the board's action calls for quarterly reviews of the policy, it has not been reconsidered for a year. Robert Perrin, vice president for University and external relations, said the policy has not been reviewed because of the political applications taking place in California.

But the board of trustees plans to review practical problems and complaints or support for the policy at its May 21 meeting, Perrin said. He stressed that the meeting will not be a public hearing, but the board will consider all criticism and suggestions submitted in writing.

Anyone wishing to address the board on current lettuce and grapes purchase may submit suggestions in writing to Bill Ballard, secretary of the board, by May 14.

Indian community changes and on unlimited fishing

LANSING (UPI) — Bay Mills Indians for years have advanced legal arguments to support their claim to unlimited commercial fishing rights now are taking a new emphasis comes from Albert B. LeBlanc, a member of the Bay Mills community near Sault Ste. Marie who set the current treaty battle before the Supreme Court by defying state regulations in 1971.

LeBlanc says members of his community did enact and enforce conservation measures as stringent as those of the state of Natural Resources, even if unlimited fishing rights were granted.

The emotional argument from opponents that Lakes fish resources is false, LeBlanc said.

get-rich-quick attitude is totally alien to the Indian way of thinking," he said in summarizing the current status of the court fight in which Indians have the right to fish under federal laws signed in 1854.

The implications of these treaty rights are rather clear, though they are not nearly as serious to the Great Lakes fishery as is claimed by the state and various other sources," he said.

These doomsday arguments contain a lot of superficial emotional appeal, but have little merit when examined in the light of the facts.

LeBlanc said the Bay Mills Conservation Society, written by Indians, will continue in along with federal regulations.

Federal, state funds may be denied to Tri-County planning commission

By NANCY ROBERTS
State News Staff Writer

The Tri-County Regional Planning Commission (TCRPC) has been notified by federal and state agencies that it may lose up to $800,000 in regional planning grant funds if open membership on the commission is not allowed.

East Lansing has long expressed the desire to become a voting, dues-paying member of the TCRPC. The commission has discussed the issue and decided that East Lansing can and will become a full participating member.

But the TCRPC has not yet decided what the voting structure will be. Thus, East Lansing's membership has not become official. Local officials have until May 15 to reach a compromise on the membership issue or funds will be cut off as of June 30.

The current voting structure, proposed at the April 28 meeting of the TCRPC, suggests that Clinton, Eaton and Ingham counties and the city of Lansing have a total of five votes each. The cities within the counties would divide the votes among themselves and their county board.

The proposal reads three votes each for Clinton and Eaton county boards and one vote for Ingham County board. The remaining votes would be divided among the cities within each county. The proposal has each city allowed one vote, except for East Lansing, which would be allowed two.

Ingham County Commissioner and TCRPC member John Veenstra said the Ingham County board members were not satisfied with one vote.

"Ingham must have a majority," he said. "We should have at least three votes to be equal."

The TCRPC is a commission that plans transportation, water quality, housing and land use programs. Local governments are kept qualified for state and federal funds through the TCRPC.

If funds are cut, TCRPC activities would cease and many important programs would lose their funding.

The Capital Area Transit Authority (CATA) is one such program that would either cease to operate or suffer a service cut on one or two profit-making routes. CATA has requested $1,045,145 in operating funds for the 1977 fiscal year.

The TCRPC presently has a $704,000 grant from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to develop a pollution cleanup and management plan. If any governmental unit pulls out of the TCRPC, the EPA will allow 45 days to settle the problems.

A termination or suspension order will follow if the problems are not settled to the EPA's satisfaction.

Housing funds amounting to $1,239,000 and planning funds of $80,000 will be furnished by the Dept. of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) if a regional housing plan is adopted. But HUD will not supply these funds if the open membership issue is not settled.

Veenstra said the TCRPC staff is concerned about their jobs.

"They are working on a phone campaign to urge the existence of a TCRPC."

CRACKDOWN AFFECTS 5 CAR RENTAL FIRMS Kelley orders clearer advertising

By RALPH FRAMMOLINO
State News Staff Writer

Michigan Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley ordered five car rental firms Wednesday to make obvious in their Michigan advertising their discriminatory practices against young adults.

Kelley told the Hertz, Avis, National, Budget and Sears car rental agencies they will have to tell people under 25 years of age of the discriminatory practices used against them when advertising in Michigan. He specified credit requirements and age minimums that the firms do not reveal in advertising.

"While these requirements may not be illegal," Kelley said, "it is deceptive not to list them in the advertisements."

Kelley added that the firms' discrimination is "outrageous" and that "Michigan decided four years ago that 18-to-21-year-olds were responsible adults," but car rental firms apparently "don't like the law and have decided not to follow it."

Kelley's warning to the firms is a possible prelude to a suit for deceptive advertising practices if the agencies in Michigan do not obey his order.

Homing in on the companies by name, Kelley said the firms' advertising does not disclose that:

- Hertz will rent only to people 25 and over unless those over 21 years of age can show credit-card status.
- Avis will not rent to people under 21 years of age unless credit-card status is proven, advance credit status is provided or a $100 deposit is paid.
- National, in Lansing, will rent only to people 25 years of age or older who pay cash or charge the rental. In Detroit, the minimum rental age is 18 on a cash basis. A $75 deposit is required if a "good credit rating" is not proven.
- In this area, Sears will rent only to those 25 years of age or older unless those 21 and up have a revolving Sears credit card. The car must be used for business.
- Budget will not rent to anyone under 25 unless the renter has a credit card. The person under 25 must also have lived, worked and have had a listed phone number for at least one year in the city the car is being rented from.

The manager of the Sears rent-a-car agency at the Frandor Shopping Plaza, 3131 E. Michigan Ave., said that he does not rent to people between 18 and 21. He declined to

Student loans revised; increased funds for fall

By RALPH FRAMMOLINO
State News Staff Writer

The State Board of Education approved Guaranteed Student Loan (GSL) revisions Wednesday, allowing college undergraduates to borrow up to $2,500 at a time but raising the fees on a GSL 100 per cent by July 1.

The Board also approved emergency rules for a second loan program slated to start this fall and decided how to divide $1.9 million in federal funds for state scholarship programs.

The GSL revisions, getting the nod at the board's monthly meeting, allow college undergraduates to borrow $2,500 at a time under the program — an increase of $1,000 over the previous ceiling. The approval also allows undergraduates to borrow $7,500 totally.

Graduates can borrow $2,500 as they have in the past. They can get up to $10,000 worth of loans.

Students in the GSL program, however, will now have to pay a "student fee" of one per cent of the total loan value. This is a 100 per cent increase over the former 1/2 per cent assessment. Students are charged the fee for the loan when a request for a loan is granted.

Ron Jursa, director of Student Financial Assistance Services, said the reason for the fee increase was a greater number of students who refuse to pay back the loans. He added the percentage of nonrecoverable loans has risen from 6 to 8.5 in the last year.

Though the loans are usually granted by private concerns, the state will reimburse them and assume collection responsibilities if a student fails to pay on time. In turn, the federal government loans the state 80 per cent of the loan. If the loan is not eventually recovered, the state must write it off as a loss.

Jursa also said changes in the GSL program are due to take effect around July 1, making the increased funding available to students by at least next fall.

Emergency rules approved Tuesday night set up a new second loan program in Michigan which is slated to start in September. This program would make a possible $12 million available to students who cannot get funds under the GSL program. Dept. of Education officials expect 10,000 students to take advantage of the new operation, giving loans up to $2,500 to graduate students and $1,500 to undergraduates.

The board also decided to divide $1.9 million in federal funds for scholarships — sending $1.3 million into a competitive scholarship program and $600,000 for the tuition grant program. The federal funds have to be matched equally by the state.

All students are eligible for competitive scholarship money while only those who attend private institutions can receive funds from the tuition grant program.

State program to explore cause of baby crib death

LANSING (UPI) — The state has launched a program aimed at identifying the yet undetermined cause of crib death, which will claim an estimated 10,000 babies nationwide in 1976.

Male babies account for 60 per cent of the deaths and there appears to be a greater risk among black children.

In most cases, the child dies unobserved in his sleep.

A new state law provides for autopsies to be performed on children under age two who die mysteriously or from what appears to be crib death.

The act is aimed at pinpointing the cause of death — be it crib death or another factor — as well as in building a databank on crib death which could eventually lead researchers to identify its cause.

Sponsors of the legislation hope it will help parents avoid blaming themselves for the tragic death of their baby.

County medical examiners have always had the right to call for an autopsy, but the new law allows the parents to ask for one at state expense when examiners fail to do so.

The cost of the autopsy is picked up by the state when the parents request it.

The state paid for 130 autopsies last year. Of those, crib death accounted for three-fourths of the deaths. State health officials say they do not know how many others were performed at county or private expense.

In the past, reporting of crib deaths has been imprecise because many doctors are apparently reluctant to list it as the cause of death, especially when an autopsy was not performed. The new law will encourage parents to request an autopsy, and encourage doctors to report the cause of death.

Thief steals prof's study

DETROIT (UPI) — Oakland University Prof. Robert Morgart got his stolen car back, but police say his treasured three-and-a-half-year research study on career education "is probably sitting in a garbage can somewhere."

The 32-year-old scholar, whose study explored ways to "fit jobs to people, not people to jobs," offered a "no questions asked" reward Tuesday for return of the two bags of data.

Not only was his research gone when police found the car, so were a quantity of luggage, clothing and a $400 set of golf clubs.

Morgart said the value of those belongings was insignificant compared with the papers which he said "aren't worth anything to anyone but me — and all the schoolchildren in Wayne and Oakland counties."

"If they're never recovered, my last three and a half years are all down the drain," he said. "I could start over, but I'd have to start with just pieces."

The professor used the research for his doctoral dissertation. He left the data in his car for a trip to Washington last weekend to seek funding for the project. The car was stolen during the week, however, as it sat outside the home of a friend on the city's west side.

"We have no way of knowing who stole the car and I wouldn't want to speculate on what we could do to find the papers," a police spokesperson said. "We'll keep looking, but there's no telling where the stuff might be. It is probably sitting in a garbage can somewhere."

Justice for juveniles

"Justice" in Michigan for the youthful offender runs on the mandates of 37-year-old legislation which still boldly scolds youngsters for such heinous crimes as running away from home.

State lawmakers must take responsibility—now—to reform a legal system which is appallingly inconsistent, ineffective and intolerable.

Rep. H. Lynn Jondahl, D-East Lansing, introduced legislation in January which would upgrade and update the state's ancient juvenile code.

Now the Michigan Probate Judges Assn. Juvenile Affairs Committee, an opponent of Jondahl's bill (HB 4704), has initiated its own counter-measure, HB 6304, sponsored by Dennis O. Cawthorne, R-Manistee.

A dangerous result of this action is the emergence of watered-down, do-nothing legislation with the two bills currently undergoing compromise in a subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee.

At the crux of the issue is the call in HB 4704 for the abolition of the controversial "status offenses" which give juvenile court judges jurisdiction over supposedly delinquent acts, such as running away, truancy and curfew violations.

Jondahl's bill eliminates the jurisdiction of the courts in these matters and forces a reliance on the existence and continued expansion of community halfway houses and runaway coalitions.

These counseling centers offer personal and professional help rather than adding on to whatever emotional tension already exists by forcing a disturbed youth to go before a judge.

Jondahl's bill also calls for due process, clearer guidelines in court procedure and the right to an attorney for youth. Currently Michigan's juvenile code has failed to bring uniform methods of justice to the counties. A different system seemingly exists in each district.

The House compromise, expected to be presented within two months, must be a highly usable, corrective and responsible package.

County aid to clean up

The Finance Committee of the Ingham County Board of Commissioners recently approved a local grant of $800,000 to accompany a federal grant of the same sum for the Lake Lansing restoration project.

This decision by the committee is the culmination of six years of lobbying by the commissioners to get the needed funds to bring their restoration plan to fulfillment.

Despite the problems the county will face in locating the sources from which this money will come, which is indeed a problem, we believe that the committee's decision to grant the money is a positive step in the right direction.

Up until now the Lake Lansing project has met with little opposition from residents throughout the county, which strongly suggests that they are clearly in favor of the project and aware of its concomitant recreational advantages.

We commend the commissioners for making a decision well in tune with the public sentiment, a decision that should result in beneficial dividends to the rest of the community.

The merits of infiltration

The Church Committee report deserves to be taken very seriously. It would appear to establish beyond serious question that the Executive has coasted along giving very little thought to questions of law, let alone the constitutionality, when dealing with intelligence activities and domestic security. Moreover, it is plain that every President from Roosevelt on has used the intelligence resources of the government for the purpose of accumulating data politically useful to the President. Not even the noble Eisenhower is excepted in the new catalogue.

So what should we do about it? The committee makes a number of recommendations, some of them appealing. On the whole, it seeks to establish formal lines of responsibility, the broaching of which would detonate fuses somewhere along the circuit, alerting the congressional monitors to the fact of ill-doing. For instance, it is proposed that one or more congressional committees should regularly review the question of whether the Executive is submitting to the indicated procedures before authorizing telephone surveillance, or mail checks, or the accumulation of dossiers. It all sounds rather smooth and orderly; so what are the objections?

The trouble with investigations of this nature is that not very much tends to be done to give the point of view of the officials being investigated. Every now and then you get a situation which is simply inexplicable and indefensible, e.g. the attempt to induce the suicide of Martin Luther King. But there are others....

The Committee cites one of many examples of what it clearly considers an obvious wrongdoing. The decision was apparently taken to penetrate the Ku Klux Klan. STOP. Is this a correct decision? It is true the KKK was branded as a subversive organization by the attorney general in one of those lists that was so popular years ago. It would appear to be an organization historically devoted to depriving American citizens of their rights.

So the FBI penetrated the Klan, and in one particular chapter of the Klan, an agent of the FBI, posing as a member, forced himself, in the interests of credibility, to participate in the beating of some of the Klan's victims. This is a very high penalty to pay for the reward of authenticity. But it did happen, the report records, that some time later the Klan murdered a civil rights worker, and a planted FBI Klansman appeared as a witness -- and achieved a conviction for murder.

Here is an example of one of the dilemmas of a free society. Should an FBI agent engage in such activity? Or are we better off leaving the Klan -- and, indeed, other organizations disposed to terrorism -- free to do their dirty work without covert interference? What, if any, are the responsibilities of such organizations as the CIA, the FBI and the Secret Service when up against such organizations as the Black Panthers, the Weathermen, the Symbionese Liberation Front?

It is a historical fact that there was a huge outcry against the FBI for having failed to pick up Lee Harvey Oswald when Kennedy came to town. I do not readily see how, under the prospective rules, any of these agencies would even have known about the existence of Lee Harvey Oswald, let alone that he should be invited to remain out of shooting range of American Presidents. John Wilkes Booth would have been dismissed, by such investigators as commend themselves to the Church Committee, as an alcoholic romantic actor whose privacy we have no business interfering with. Leon Czolgosz would not have been noticed, nor, I should think, Arthur Bremer.

What is missing from the Church report is what the logicians call an "a posteriori" look at the problem -- i.e., a look at reasons from the facts on back to theory. The facts during the late 60s was that the United States government was fulfilling its primary responsibility to people. There were tens of thousands of explosions; there were buildings being blown up; there were thousands of persons advocating civil disobedience; the civil rights of establishment dissenters violated; hijackings every day; Soviet money promoting internal division, military and diplomatic setbacks.

It will require the integration of the conditions in a doctrine of self-defense free society, rather than mere abstract affirmation, in order to convince us that the Church Committee has done a complete job. But certainly it has shown us, already, that the FBI and the CIA appear to be as any other bureaucratic agency, Parkinsonian excesses, and the presumptive right of the American citizens to privacy.

LETTERS To the Editor

Horse ripoff

We would like to inform the MSU population of a ripoff. On Easter Sunday, three of us went horseback riding at the Crazy "C" riding stables in Mason, Mich. After paying $4.50 an hour each to ride, the ranch attendant gave us three horses according to our riding experience.

The horses were walked for about 300 yards and when we reached the top of a hill, they all stopped. We tried everything possible to make the horses move, but they wouldn't budge. After 20 minutes, they finally turned around and headed back toward the stable.

When we arrived at the stable, we asked the manager for a partial refund, because our horses came back a half hour early and because of the situation. He would not give us back our money or a rain check. He told us that it was our fault that the horses wouldn't move.

Since we are not expert riders, we suggest that unless you are an expert rider and have taken lessons in riding you shouldn't waste your time and money at this stable. Or else, when asked to pay, say "neigh."

I'm a 25-year-old man in prison in Ohio.

I am writing you this letter as an agent of appeal for correspondence. I would like to receive more letters than the very few I receive each month from guys and girls around my age. Life in a place like this is pretty rough, and letters sincerely written could ease a lot of burdens.

I hope someone will respond to my request for communication. I will answer any and all letters I do receive most respectfully.

I wish to thank you in advance.

Abuse by law

Given the capacity for better judgment, does the possession of power lessen a man's discretion? Probably.

If you dress a man up in a pretty blue uniform and give him a red, white and blue chariot, does he gain a distorted sense of his function? I would say so.

Though distasteful experiences with law enforcement officials are not unique, they are nevertheless frustrating and disturbing. Victimless crimes occur every day and they range over a variety of acts, from fellatio to jaywalking.

The incredible aspect of all this is that few people have not committed some such illegal act. Actions which would make anyone vulnerable to the exercise of state-granted authority -- authority possessed by an individual whose power is held because he had an inclination to be in such a position -- are done by us all.

Beware, you are not exempt from abuse. As long as a law is on the books, regardless of the social atmosphere, it can be used against you.

If you annoy someone, or if he is in a nasty mood and he is in a position to do you harm, you better believe that he can get your ass. And you are defenseless.

Registration

In reply to Guil Northrup, aide to Greg Pincumbe for county commission, I would like to correct a few apparent misconceptions about Mark Grebner and ASMSU.

Mark believed he had done what was necessary to renew his status as a deputy registrar -- I was at the meeting with him when the deputies were sworn in, and he took the oath with everyone else.

He neglected to sign an application, however, and this is the source of trouble.

The people whose registrations Mark took did register in good faith and their applications are legal, whether the East Lansing City Clerk accepts them now or later in face of a court order.

This past voter registration drive was not inept, in fact it went pretty well. We canvassed most doors two and three times.

In regard to the Dorm Council members, they may not only be nonpolitical, they may also be ineligible to register voters, unable to donate that much time, in addition to having no experience at voter registration.

Finally, if Greg Pincumbe is interested in furthering voter registration, why didn't he canvass with us this spring and give me ideas on organization?

Let me add that voter registration is comprehensive and reliable, and those who canvassed for it this term are not anyone's "cronies."

HHH

Say it isn't so, Hubert! You can't quit now! Hubert Humphrey has submitted to the pressures of the presidential nomination and to Jimmy Carter. Granted that Carter won the Pennsylvania primary, but again the vote was split sufficiently to indicate a non-first ballot winner in New York City this July.

Humphrey threw in the towel instead of trying to build continuing media and public support for his own bandwagon effect for the nomination.

People were beginning to get excited over the thought of a "non-primary" candidate and now the force of an ensuing sweep-like effect for Humphrey has died.

Humphrey should have played the silence game. Giving a definite negative answer as to joining the 1976 presidential race can only give a negative feeling to his supporters.

Humphrey still remains available for the nomination. All negative attitudes can only contribute to a negative atmosphere and that is the last thing that Humphrey wishes.

Silence has always indicated approval (just ask Sir Thomas More), and in this case, silence is golden.

"mistake" was to "have engaged in unfounded speculation about two members of Sen. Jackson's staff." And he adds gratuitously, "I made no charge against anybody, and even though I made a private discussion."

Other words, he had smeared a couple of people, one of whom, Dorothy Fosdick, known since childhood, but it didn't because he had done it behind closed doors. He goes on to say, in effect, that if he was wrong about those two — and he admits that he was — he was right to be alarmed, in private of course, about

Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, the minority leader, a man who would praise Genghis Khan as an enlightened urbanologist if the price was right, praised Rockefeller for his "courage."

Actually, Rockefeller had been stonewalling for a week, and it was only after the Senate's Democratic leaders, who do not like to have the club littered with Red charges against members in an election year, insisted that Rockefeller booked time for his act of contrition.

When word first filtered up from Georgia that Rockefeller had fingered Fosdick, a hardliner's hardliner, and Richard Perle, a notorious anti-Soviet militant, the reaction was one of hilarity.

The general feeling was that if those two are pinkos, the jig is up and we'd better break out the hammer and sickle along Pennsylvania Avenue. But Jackson was not amused and dispatched a series of sulfurous telegrams to the vice president, who hung tough until the authorities cornered him.

The trouble is, of course, that the vice president, whatever the motives for his sneak attack, really believes the Russians are coming. We the People

Michigan has its own S.W.A.T. squadron

Lieutenant Mike Anderson of the Michigan State Police Emergency Service Team trains at Grayling, Michigan, last summer with a rifle equipped with a starlight scope.

By JIM RYAN

The Emergency Services Division of the Michigan State Police is located in a low-slung pre-fab building behind the massive State Police Headquarters on Harrison Road in East Lansing.

LT. Michael Anderson's office in the rear of the pre-fab is just inside the doorway beyond the coffee machine. Not an idyllic location for the man in charge of the best-trained police officers in the state.

The tall, lean 34-year-old lieutenant is the commander of the Michigan State Police Emergency Service Teams (ESTs). Comprised of 25 specially selected and trained sergeants and troopers, the ESTs are Michigan's answer to the Special Weapons and Tactics (S.W.A.T.) Teams now a part of most major city police departments and popularized by the ABC-TV show "S.W.A.T."

"But that is a poor representation," Anderson claims. "We don't agree with their tactics and we sure as hell don't work like they do. Anyway, that's television."

Anderson, who has a bachelor's degree in criminal justice from MSU, said the idea for the teams grew out of state police experiences during the Detroit riots of 1967 and 1968. The department recognized a need for special training to deal with snipers and situations of "urban warfare." The project was finally approved on an experimental basis early in 1974.

Anderson received a $34,000 federal grant and began asking for volunteers. He selected 25 men and took them to Camp Grayling — the Michigan National Guard military reservation near Grayling, Mich. From April 29 to June 7, 1974, the men trained, learning how to handle barricaded gunmen and snipers and negotiate for hostages.

The men became familiar with tactics, procedures and weapons. Professional boxers were brought in to instruct the men in hand-to-hand combat, and Michigan National Guard rangers demonstrated rappelling (moving up or down the side of a building with a rope). Team members were also trained to deal with security, special arrests and chemical and nuclear spills.

the system stands now, the grievance could be filed under either the Code of Teaching Responsibility or the Graduate Student Rights and Responsibility.

"I think there is reason to look at the judicial system to rid it of overlapping," said Erwin Bettinghaus, Chairman of the Dept. of Communication and Standing committee designated member.

Louis Hekhuis, associate dean and director of student governance, contends that there must be a better way of coordinating and defining the judicial system.

"Review is long overdue. Students and faculty reviewing with recommendation for improvement has been needed for some time," Hekhuis said.

Two team members who have been with the EST since its beginning are Bob Moylan, 32, and Tom Pagel, 27.

Moylan, an army veteran who has been on force six years, said he volunteered because he thought the experience would make him a better officer.

"You can't beat the ESTs when it comes to training. It makes my whole job a lot safer," he said. "You're working with people you know. You know the way they think, and vice versa."

Pagel, a four-year veteran of the state police, received his bachelor of arts degree in criminal justice at MSU.

"Cops are weird people — you've got to be a little strange to become one," he said. "When people see an accident or a shooting or something big happening, they scatter to the four winds. They're scared and that's natural."

"But cops, they race each other to see who's first on the scene. They go out of their way to be where the action is, and that's their job," he said.

Pagel said he likes working with the team, because it puts him where the action is.

"With the team, you know that if something big goes down in the state, you're going to be in on it," he said.

Experiences with labor disputes and strikes have been more intense than any campus disturbance they have seen, Pagel and Moylan said.

"College kids are nothing compared to the people we faced at Dow Chemical in Midland and places up north," Pagel said. "Those guys were workers who were fighting for what they thought of as their livelihoods. They were tough."

Both view the possibility of death with detachment, saying it is a part of their job. "This training gives me more confidence," Moylan said. "Knowing what I know now has really made me question some of the things I've done in the past."

Pagel spoke with disdain about the television show "S.W.A.T."

"They kill at least three people per program," he said. "What worries me is some guy is going to get scared and stubborn someday because that show has convinced him we're going to blow him away as soon as we get a good shot at him."

When a barricaded gunman, sniper or hostage situation does occur, a call is sent to the six team members in the immediate vicinity. The call usually receives top priority. The first man on the scene analyzes it and usually takes command.

Anderson stresses that preparation is more important than speed.

Every team member carries a shotgun, a scoped 30.06 rifle, and an Armatite AR-15 automatic rifle in their patrol car. The decision on which weapon to use is made at the scene and depends on variables such as building structure, terrain and innocents in the area, but use of the weapons is considered a last resort.

Anderson notes with pride that the EST teams have made 30 calls since being activated in June 1974 and they have yet to fire a shot.

He concedes, though, that they have not come up against anyone who was deliberately shooting at them. Most calls have concerned people who are psychologically upset and firing aimlessly.

"But we're going to go out on a call one day, and we're going to be a little too relaxed, a little too salty, thinking it's just another 'mental' or the like," he said. "And we're going to get zapped. It's going to hit us pretty hard."

Television has made special police teams so popular that suspects recognize the ESTs.

"There was this guy up north," Anderson said. "He was holed up in his house with a deer rifle, shooting up everything. We showed up there, deployed ourselves, and this joker steps right out on the front porch with the rifle on his hip and shouts, 'I know who you guys are, you're S.W.A.T.'"

"We held our fire and he gave up soon afterwards," he said.

The ESTs are no longer on an experimental footing. They are now an integral part of the state police. Anderson says the unit costs only $1,000 a year to operate because team members get no additional pay for their EST duty.

Steering Committee recommends review of MSU judicial process

BY SUZIE ROLLINS

State News Staff Writer
Merry Mason and Owen Marshall were among those who would agree that the MSU judicial system is suffering from internal tensions.

MSU judicial system provides a forum for deciding whether or not a violation has been violated and, if it has, action should be taken. MSU does not have a single unified judicial system. There are undergraduate judicial structure, a graduate judicial structure and a number of judicial bodies with specialized jurisdictions.

Because MSU has so many different jurisdictions, it creates a conflict for students which judicial system they should turn their grievance to. Due to this problem the Steering Committee of the Academic Council has passed a resolution to recommend to the council that an ad hoc committee be established to review the whole MSU judicial system.

"There is extreme fragmentation between the colleges. Penalties for the same offense may be different," Bea Lin, undergraduate representative of the Steering Committee, said. "There are some colleges that have inactive committees serving the judiciary."

Another area of concern is dealing with the conflicts that arise when a student wishes to register a complaint against a graduate assistant. The graduate assistant may be placed in double jeopardy, according to Ray German, president of the Council of Graduate Students (COGS), because, as the system stands now, the grievance could be filed under either the Code of Teaching Responsibility or the Graduate Student Rights and Responsibility.

"I think there is reason to look at the judicial system to rid it of overlapping," said Erwin Bettinghaus, Chairman of the Dept. of Communication and Standing committee designated member.

Louis Hekhuis, associate dean and director of student governance, contends that there must be a better way of coordinating and defining the judicial system.

"Review is long overdue. Students and faculty reviewing with recommendation for improvement has been needed for some time," Hekhuis said.

'Up With People' to make 'U' appearance

By PATRICIA La CROIX
State News Staff Writer

"Up with people, you meet them wherever you go; up with people, they're the best kind of folks I know..."

The singing group that made "Up With People" big tours America and the world "breaking down societies' barriers of age, race and class," promoter Pete Howard said.

"It's a show of good will and brotherhood," he said. "Kind of like the Peace Corps."

The "Up With People" organization is usually composed of three touring groups, but during the Bicentennial year, the operation is expanding to include nine performing groups, two of which will be appearing in East Lansing and Lansing this weekend. Campus appearances will follow.

On Tuesday the two groups will appear in concerts at the same time — 6:30 p.m. — in Brody and McDonel halls. On May 13, the two groups will perform together in a show at the Lansing Civic Center at 7:30 p.m. The show lasts approximately two hours.

Howard said the nine special Bicentennial groups will stay in the United States the entire year to "help America celebrate the Bicentennial."

The performers are mainly between the ages of 18 and 25. For the most part, they became interested in performing with the "Up With People" after they saw the group's performance.

Howard said audience members who are interested in participating in the group are always invited to come and talk to the cast members directly after each appearance.

"At that time, appointments are set up," Howard said.

"We stress personality, personal motivation and enthusiasm," he said, pointing out that singing and dancing ability is not a prerequisite for touring with the group.

A five-to-six-week period is allowed for training the performers. In this training session in Arizona, the singers learn the songs and dance steps that will be performed throughout the year.

In addition to learning performing skills, the people are also exposed to techniques of lighting, sound and direction.

Each performer tours with the group for one year. During this year, the singers may earn up to 24 college credits through the University of Arizona. Professors from this university travel with the group, offering classes in such things as public relations and architecture.

"Besides this, the performers learn all the songs in the various different languages that they perform them in," Howard said. "They learn the customs of the different countries from the ground up. It's a real cultural exchange."

Living arrangements for the travelers are provided by families in the various countries who volunteer.

"Our past year was exciting," Howard said. "It was the first year that we appeared behind the Iron Curtain, in Yugoslavia by request of their government."

"We are invited to come year again and we will Poland in addition."

Other appearances by group include halftime at Super Bowl, where "Up With People" performed. The group also appeared at the Kentucky Derby.

DOES OFFER ESCAPIST ENTERTAINMENT

'It's Alive' pushes no lofty themes

Every so often a film appears that will enormously change society, somehow altering the collective conscience of man.

"It's Alive" is not such a film.

Despite some pretensions on the part of director Larry Cohen, "It's Alive," the story of a baby that should have been aborted but wasn't, has no lofty themes to push upon society. What it has to offer, however, is something that many will think is better — simple escapist entertainment.

"It's Alive" chronicles the bizarre tale of a baby who by a capricious whim of nature is born a vicious blood-sucking animal.

What starts out to be somewhat of a documentary on childbirth suddenly turns into a Dracula of the diaper set.

Immediately upon being thrust from his mother's womb, the precocious baby, whom no one ever bothers to name, attacks and kills all five of the medical team in the delivery room. He or she (it never was clarified) spares his mom — good kid — and escapes into the night, presumably to satiate his or her blood lust.

The parents, aptly played by John Ryan and Sharon Farrel, are confronted with a unique problem: their child, not more than an hour old and already a mass murderer rivaling the likes of Charles Manson, has become the subject of a massive Los Angeles infant hunt.

What follows is a taut, but unrealistic thriller, styled somewhat like a TV motion picture. The resentful child tears the jugular veins out of victim after victim while all of the city lives in fear. In two separate scenes, presumably of some symbolic significance, the baby kills one of his victims in a Carnation milk truck and another in kindergarten class.

The scientific world seeks to study this natural anomaly and many speculate that the child is the result of either radiation damage or mutation incurred during by faulty contraceptives.

The film's flaw is that at times it takes itself a little too seriously, attempting to discuss the problems of pollution, raising children, the use of potentially dangerous contraceptives and the indifference of the media to individual privacy.

"It's Alive" becomes belabored and tedious. But for the most part, this strange saga of a rebellious child is distractingly entertaining.

The film was distributed by Warner Brothers in 1974, but only made it big on the European circuit. It will be shown Friday at midnight in Conrad Auditorium and Saturday at midnight in Wilson Auditorium by RHA films.

Freshman No. 1 singles player Debbie Mascarin returns a volley from CMU opponent Wanda Murphy. Mascarin won 6-3, 6-1, helping the Spartans to a 9-0 win over the Chippewas. Mascarin also played on the No. 1 doubles team, which won 6-4, 6-2.

MSU netmen set last dual meets

By TOM SHANAHAN
State News Staff Writer
OSU and Indiana stand between the MSU men's tennis team and its bid to get a top draw in the Big Ten championships. To achieve that goal the Spartans need to continue their hot streak against the Buckeyes Friday and Indiana Saturday.

Though coach Stan Drobac continues to be pleased with the team's progress, he does not yet feel the team has reached a peak. "The name of the game is to improve," Drobac said. "If we have a good weekend we'll be in good shape for the Big Ten."

OSU will provide the netmen with some tough competition that features Francisco Gonzalez at No. 1 singles. Gonzalez is the defending Big Ten singles champion.

"We'll have our hands full with Ohio State," sophomore Kevin McNulty said. "They are a really tough team and are expected to finish first or second in the Big Ten, but we should be able to beat Indiana."

McNulty is just one of several Spartans whom Drobac has been praising. The MSU sophomore currently boasts a record of 10-2 at No. 4 singles. McNulty also teams with senior Larry Stark at No. 2 doubles where they have a 3-3 mark.

McNulty attributes the improved play of the team to the past week's action. "Having all those matches in succession has us playing at our best," he said. "The southern trip this year was also valuable because we played a match every day."

For the weekend, Drobac plans a line-up of Tom Gudelsky at No. 1 singles, Stark at No. 2, Rick Zabor at No. 3, McNulty at No. 4, Dick Callow at No. 5 and Lee Woyahn at No. 6. Drobac's most recent change in the order was to move Stark to No. 2 for last Monday's Western Michigan match. Stark responded with a win of 6-2, 6-4 to improve his overall record to 9-3.

Drobac's doubles line-up will be Gudelsky and Zabor at No. 1, Stark and McNulty at No. 2 and Callow with Woyahn at No. 3. "Our doubles teams still need work," Drobac said, "but if we can play good tennis this weekend I'll be happy. This is our last two matches and if we can end up with a winning season it will be a real accomplishment. The kids have played great."

For the Spartans to get the winning season Drobac is hoping for the team will need at least a split in the two matches. MSU is currently 7-5.

A strong weekend performance is also needed for the netmen to get a good draw for the Big Ten meet, especially since Illinois was able to upset Michigan last Monday. Drobac said that the upset makes the Big Ten "a wide-open affair." "It's getting interesting now," he said. "If we have a good draw the Big Ten will be a tough meet."

In last Monday's action MSU easily topped Western Michigan 6-3. Winners for the Spartans were Stark (6-2, 6-4), McNulty (6-3, 6-3), Callow (6-3, 6-0) and Woyahn (6-1, 6-4). Doubles winners were Stark and McNulty (6-4, 6-2) and Callow with Woyahn (6-3, 6-1).

Belle Isle bicycle marathon set for weekend of May 1

Is there anyone out there who would like to go to Belle Isle with his bike on May 15 for $8 and peddle his face off?

The May 15 Belle Isle bicycle marathon will be a chance for biking enthusiasts to compete with other bike nuts across the state on a five-mile course for a possible 200 miles in 24 hours.

John Stein of McDonel Hall is coordinating MSU's participation in the event. All those interested in going on the trip to Detroit should pick up their applications from a representative in the residence halls, or from any bike shop in East Lansing.

The fee, $3 if paid before the Friday deadline and $4 if late, includes admission to the race and food and beverages. An additional $5 includes transportation to the race. The $5 should be paid to Stein by Friday night.

MSU is trying to capture an award for the marathon. Last year the MSU contingent to the race won second place in the largest group participation category. This year Stein wants to take first.

Other categories of awards include male and female riders, oldest rider, group appearance and performance.

The race itself is not a strictly timed event. Contestants are expected to ride 25 miles in three hours, 50 miles in six hours, 100 miles in 10 hours or 200 miles in 24 hours. The 24-hour duration of the event, although there will be no recognition for anything over 200 miles.

Women netters clobber CMU

Central Michigan was literally blown off the courts Tuesday as the MSU women's tennis team clobbered the Chippewas 9-0 on MSU's wind-whipped home courts.

The No. 1 player, Spartan freshman Debbie Mascarin, bested Wanda Murphy in two straight matches, 6-3, 6-1.

Diane Selke, playing in the No. 2 spot, beat Toni Surges in one of the more exciting matches of the day, 6-1, 2-6, 7-6.

No. 3 Mary Hicks put down her opponent, 6-4, 6-1, while teammate Jeanie Vogel won 6-1, 6-0.

No. 5 and No. 6 players, Mike Kruger and Kathy Salvatore, both freshmen, beat their CMU opponents 6-3, 6-3 and 6-2, 6-1 respectively.

Coach Elaine Hatton was pleased with the team's performance, saying "the team has improved since fall."

Hatton also cautioned that the doubles need improving. However, two weeks ago, two of MSU's doubles teams took first and second in the Western Illinois Collegiate tournament and Tuesday all three of the Spartan doubles teams beat their CMU opponents.

Mascarin and Selke beat Murphy and Mary Ann Chapman, 6-4, 6-2, in No. 1 doubles action.

Hicks and Kruger beat Surges and Janelle Pohlman 6-1, 7-5, while No. 3 doubles team, Vogel and Selke, downed Sue Stulgros and Jenny Crawford in three matches, 6-3, 0-6 and 6-4.

The Spartans had barely beaten CMU last fall, getting by 5-4, so Hatton felt the team has progressed since then.

"I'm just delighted with the way the team has played and improved this season," said Hatton, commenting on the young team.

ASMSU ballot results yield only 3 certified candidates

MICKI MAYNARD
News Staff Writer

More than a month after the ASMSU Board Room is another matter. Outgoing President Brian Raymond said he did not plan to schedule a regular meeting next week.

The Engineering, Human Ecology and Business College seats were the only races in the election in which the winners were not affected by appeals or recounts.

Three more seats are due to become certified at 5 p.m. Monday. These are Social Science (Donald Breckle), Agriculture and Natural Sciences (Scott Belanger) and College of Arts and Letters (Alisa Spalko).

Those races are being certified a week later because of recounts in those colleges. Four other ASMSU board seats, including the presidency, are currently tied up in appeals before the All-University Student Judiciary (AUSJ).

Newly elected President Michael Lenz is involved in the Nadel vs. All-University Elections Commission case that went before AUSJ Wednesday. Elliot Nadel, candidate in the College of Business, had appealed the Counterforce slate of candidates, including Lenz, to the Elections Commission and lost his appeal. He then took his case one step higher to the AUSJ.

When asked when he thought he would be certified as president Lenz sighed, and replied, "Probably a year from next Thursday."

Neil Ruggles, the winner in the College of Natural Science, is also a member of Counterforce and will not be seated until Nadel's action reaches a conclusion.

Two other winners are also before the AUSJ, hoping that their invalidations by the Elections Commission will be overturned.

Kathy Wright, winner of the College of Education seat, and Wendy Bush, University college, were both invalidated because they turned in late financial statements.

State workers still refused bargaining

SING (UPI) — A second attempt to approve a national amendment granting collective bargaining rights to employees fell six votes short of passage in the state House today.

The amendment received 68 votes. It needed 74, or two thirds of House membership, to be put before the voters on the next ballot.

Related move, the House delayed action on a second amendment which would grant bargaining rights to police officers only.

Amendments have now been defeated twice and under rules can only be considered once more.

IRS to explore Gulf donations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The special Watergate prosecutor's office has expanded its investigation of alleged illegal corporate contributions to include possible criminal prosecutions of those who accepted the money.

Special Prosecutor Charles Ruff was granted permission to turn over evidence from a grand jury investigation for the scrutiny of Internal Revenue Service agents.

The grand jury has been hearing evidence on the dispersal of $5.4 million to political candidates by former Gulf Oil Corp. lobbyist Claude C. Wild and possibly other allegedly illegal corporate contributions.

Court papers on file in U.S. District Court showed Wednesday that IRS agents may now examine grand jury evidence "to assist the grand jury and the Internal Revenue Service in the investigation of possible criminal tax violation."

A delegation was sent to ask President Wharton to speak to the group. Davis said they met with Wharton and Robert Perin, vice president of university relations, and were told what has been done in the past for handicapped and what is planned in the future.

The president wishes us well and good luck," Davis told the crowd. "He's got appointments today."

The group then started the approximately four mile trek to the Capitol chanting slogans and picking up more handicapped persons and supporters all the way.

Following a preplanned accessible route, the marchers reached the corner of Abbott Road and Grand River Avenue where police were waiting to escort them down the right lane of Michigan Avenue all the way to the Capitol.

It was a very orderly procession and the marchers thanked the East Lansing and Lansing police forces for their help between more chanting. Every CATA bus that passed the group brought catcalls and booing from the marchers.

Davis provided a tour of Lansing's businesses, pointing out the few that were accessible to handicapped. When passing an inaccessible church, one marcher called out, "Can't even get in to see God."

About two hours after leaving East Lansing, the marchers reached the Capitol and assembled in front of the building. Jeff Peters, an MSU handicapped person who has worked with the Vocational Rehabilitation Services, began the speeches commending everyone for their support.

HIGHWAY SAFETY GRANTS FUNDS MSU to offer cycle class

15,000 expected to bike for Diabetes Assn. drive

On Saturday, an anticipated 15,000 riders throughout central Michigan will participate in the diabetes bike-a-thon. In East Lansing, seven to eight hundred cyclists are expected to pedal to raise money for research.

The funds raised in the bike-a-thon will be used to help support the Diabetes Assn.'s program for diabetes, including a special summer camp and research.

Diabetes, which is the third leading cause of death, produces many serious complications and is a major factor in causing heart attacks, strokes and kidney failure.

The eight-mile course will cut through East Lansing and then completely circle the MSU campus. Check points to record rider mileage will be located at Kellogg Center, St. Thomas Aquinas School, East Fee Hall and Y-10 near Farm Lane.

Starting at 9 a.m., a total of eight bike-a-thon rides will take place in central Michigan. The pedaling is scheduled to last until 4 p.m.

The local sponsor, Seven Eleven, will provide a soft drink with potato chips for those who have accumulated at least 25 cents per mile in pledges. Vince Bonnick of Phi Gamma Delta is the coordinator of the event.

Largest snail dies in England

BRIGHTON, England (AP) — Geronimo, reported in Britain to be the world's largest known land snail, died Tuesday at the age of six.

Geronimo, a giant West African snail, measured 11 1/2 inches when fully extended, and weighed one pound 4 1/2 ounces. He died at the home of his owner, Chris Hudson, 20, who had reared Geronimo from birth.

Hudson, who has been breeding and rearing snails since he was a schoolboy, appeared on British television with Geronimo, whose big trick was to slither up to a glass of milk and drink from it.

Death was from natural causes, a veterinarian said.

The high population of motorcycles on Michigan streets has led the Michigan Dept. of Highway Safety to grant $7,700 of its federal highway safety funds to MSU for a motorcycle workshop this summer.

The workshop, which will begin this August, is not open to the general public, but is intended for high school driver education teachers throughout the state.

"Motorcycles have become quite popular in Michigan and we saw the need here to prepare instructors with the proper instructions. This is our first step towards an effective motorcycle safety program," Sheridan Rhodes of the Highway Safety Dept. said.

Rhodes said an estimated 310,000 motorcycles were registered and licensed in Michigan last year and he expects that number to increase.

The workshop will be divided into two classes, each a week long. One class will be held in the Saginaw area and the other in Kalamazoo.

"These two areas have been chosen because the interest in motorcycles is greater there," Rhodes said. "If the workshop is successful this year, the program might be extended throughout the state."

The workshop will be taught by Donald Smith, associate professor in the MSU Highway Traffic Safety Center, and an assistant not yet named. Each class will accommodate 20 students. Tuition for the workshop is free and college credit is offered.

"It's very hard to tie this education program into how many lives will be saved or how many accidents will be prevented. Accident figures of motorcycles indicate a definite need for training throughout the state," Rhodes said.

According to the latest figures of the Michigan Dept. of Highway Safety, 139 fatal motorcycle accidents occurred throughout the state in the first 10 months of 1975.

The motorcycle workshop program is being directed towards driver education teachers because new riders have been unable to receive safe and proper instructions from their high school programs.

The workshop will initially teach the fundamentals of motorcycle riding. The classes are expected to draw instructors who know either very little about motorcycles or have never ridden one.

In the past, MSU has offered similar workshops but they were not as comprehensive or complete as the upcoming summer workshop is expected to be. The workshop has 40 openings which will be filled on a first-come first-serve basis.

New egg mold cubes ovoids

LONDON (AP) — At last, the square egg.

It doesn't come that way, of course: the hen lays it normally. You have to hardboil it and shell it, then put it in a special box, apply a gentle pressure with a screw top and freeze it for 20 minutes.

Then it comes out cube-shaped. Ideal for making sandwiches, and it won't slide off the salad plate, say the manufacturers of the box (Goldenlay), who are Britain's biggest egg distributors.

The special box was shown at the European poultry fair Wednesday and the first man who saw it bought 200, said the manufacturers.

In Wednesday's edition of the State News a painting appeared on page five accompanying a story on the Student Exhibition in Kresge Art Gallery.

Though the State News was unable to find the artist's identification Wednesday, the paper has since learned that the painting, entitled Alkyoneus, was done by Linda A. Witkowski, 565 East McDonnell Hall.

Issuing press 'gag' orders spurs creation of publishers' committee

NEW YORK, (AP) — The American Newspaper Publishers Assn. (ANPA), announced Wednesday the formation of a committee to meet with the judiciary and the legal profession on the issue of gag orders on the press.

ANPA Chairperson Harold W. Anderson of the Omaha World-Herald said Ashton Phelps, a lawyer who is president and publisher of Times-Picayune and State-Item in New Orleans, would head the panel. The other members have not been decided.

"We are not appointing a committee to negotiate away First Amendment rights," Anderson said later.

Orders issued by judges limiting what participants say about court cases and what newspapers can print about them are called gag orders. The frequency with which they are issued by judges has increased in recent years.

Anderson said the purpose of the new committee was to talk collectively with judges and lawyers to circumvent litigation as a means of accommodation between the press and the bar.

He said he was "hopeful" of the committee's chance of success.

The panelists were Joe R. Seacrest, chairman of Journal-

Star Printing Co., Inc., of New York; Dale R. Spence of the University of Missouri School of Journalism, and Harold W. Anderson of the University of Missouri School of Law School.

Seacrest, whose newspaper is involved in a gag order now before the Supreme Court for review, questioned the use of courts to "isolate, control and sterilize the public's access to an impartial jury."

"A prior restraint is more than censorship by government. Here it is the judiciary rather than the executive branch," he said.

Seacrest described himself as a moderate on the issue, and he subscribed to the rights of the accused but favored leaving it to editors, judges, to protect those voluntarily.

Bill to ban dart guns signed by Milliken

Gov. Milliken signed a bill into law Wednesday that will ban the sale or distribution of electric dart guns in Michigan. He also signed a resolution designating May 9 through 16 "Non-Smoker's Week."

Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City, who sponsored the electric dart gun ban, was present at the signing along with two Garden City police officers who suggested the ban idea to him last year.

"What I feel is so great about this, Governor, is that Michigan is the first state to recognize the danger of this gun," Keith said as Milliken penned his name.

The measure, which will take effect July 1, allows only the state police to supervise laboratory tests on the gun. Keith said one such gun, called the Taser, is impractical for police work. The Taser uses two prongs that can be shot up to 18 feet and shocks the victim with 50,000 volts of electricity.

After signing the non-smoker's week resolution, Milliken called on mutual consideration to cut down friction between smokers and nonsmokers.

ers when a cigaret buff lights up.

"We must protect ourselves from all forms of pollution," Milliken said. He added that the rights of both groups should not be infringed upon.

Prof honored by women faculty

Dorothy R. Ross, professor and coordinator of Adult Career Counseling at the MSU Counseling Center, was presented Tuesday night with the Faculty Women's Assn. (FWA) first distinguished faculty award.

"We looked for a member of the organization who served the students and the University as a faculty person and at the same time was active in FWA affairs," FWA president Chris Blume said.

The 1950 alumna joined the staff as the University's youngest undergraduate at 16, with majors in chemistry and mathematics.

Ross was instrumental in laying the groundwork for the Honors College, established in 1956.

She was also a major force in creating the Alumni distinguished Scholarships for Undergraduates and the Alumni Distinguished Faculty Award.

Before women's studies came a prominent alumna was already conducting research regarding the female perspective. In 1963, she published "The Story of the Top of the Cent of the Women at MSU." The study examined the goals and directions of the one per cent of MSU women from 1958-62. The study observed in the study predictive of the changes in the last 10 years.

Win unlikely continue drawing support from outside the Republican party, as party members compose only 18 per cent of the voters in the country.

"I'm sure Reagan will continue his campaign across party lines," Black said.

Peter Fletcher, state campaign chairman for Ford, said the crossover support Reagan is receiving from former Wallace sympathizers could be a strong factor in the Michigan primary.

Democrats who supported Wallace four years ago have crossed over to vote in the Republican side of both the Texas and Indiana primaries. That crossover has been cited as important in Reagan's victories in both those states, and will most likely occur in Michigan, Fletcher said.

He also said that Wallace supporters in the UAW may create a "strange bedfellows" combination with Reagan.

"There has been talk that the UAW would like to embarrass the President in his state," he said.

Fletcher added that the de-emphasizing of the Indiana win by Reagan campaign leaders is probably intentional.

"I think they're playing adroit politics," he said.

Fletcher said that the recent Reagan victories could lead to more Ford appearances in the state. He is currently scheduled for one.

Art Cullers, state campaign coordinator for Wallace, admitted that the Reagan campaign has taken some supporters out of the Wallace camp.

"If we lose votes we'll lose them to Reagan, and I'd rather lose them to Reagan," he said, but added that there is a "difference between those who worked for him (in 1972) and those who voted for him."

Cullers said he still thought Wallace has a good chance of gaining the Democratic nomination, but the Michigan and Maryland (May 18) primaries are very important.

The receiver that matches the square waves of the finest amplifiers.

Quality oriented designers and engineers know that square wave response is profoundly useful in predicting musical results.

The new Harman/Kardon 430 displays square wave response that is indistinguishable from the finest power amplifiers. A listening test will reveal that the 430, in all but absolute power levels, is the sonic equivalent of fine individual component systems.
