in rape experiences

By ANNE STUART
State News Staff Writer
"I felt an incredible sense of panic at the feeling that this man could do anything with my body that he wanted. Luckily, one of the robbers was in a hurry, so I wasn't raped. It was horrible. I have had nightmares that the man would come back and successfully rape me."

A former Wayne State University student described a robbery and near-assault incident that occurred while she was sharing an apartment in Detroit with two other students. She was one of several women who shared personal experiences of rape, battery and abuse at the Raped and Battered Women's Speak-Out sponsored by the Lansing Feminist Women's Coalition Saturday at the Lansing Civic Center.

About 100 women attended the five-hour conference. No men were admitted, "due to the highly personal nature of the speak-out."

When asked whether the attendance limitation was a discriminatory action, Speak-Out Co-ordinator Diane Walenga replied that she saw it as "a separation, a kind of caucus."

"We are willing to deal with men at any time, but at this critical embryonic stage, we want to show compassion and sensitivity to the women who are giving so much of themselves (by speaking out). Our first concern is for the rape victims. I see it as a matter of respect."

"Out of the speak-out, we hope for women to realize that rapes are not isolated incidents, to learn self-defense techniques and to realize what individuals and the community can do," said Loree Skidmore, a rape counselor for the Open Door Crisis Center in Lansing.

About 10 women stepped to the microphone in the civic center's Prudden Hall to relate personal incidents of rape and battery. A few were tearful, a few nervous, but most were angry. All spoke of the guilt and shame and fear they felt following the experiences.

The Wayne State student concluded her robbery story with the comment that she "has to survey every man, every acquaintance, and view them with suspicion."

Another woman described her immediate reaction to waking up while being raped by a vague acquaintance at a party. "I was horrified, I felt really sick. I couldn't even look at him. I hated him. I was really confused, I felt rage, guilt and shame."

She went on to describe a series of incidents that occurred while she was living on the north side of Lansing.

"We had men several times coming to the door and asking if there were any men at home. One of the women told them her husband was home but sleeping in the bedroom and we thought we'd better be careful. We called the police and found out they were looking for a man who had raped several women within a three-to-four block radius of our house."

"I got in touch with my rage," she concluded. "I asked myself, 'Who the hell is he to do this?' " The audience nodded affirmatively and gave her a round of applause.

Several stories dealt with child molestation and abuse. One girl tearfully related being stripped and molested by neighborhood boys when she was eight years old and being afraid to tell her mother. Another spoke of an elderly piano teacher who fondled her during lessons. A third described how her younger brother was molested by a schoolteacher and was threatened with being sent to the principal if he didn't obey.

One woman told in a low voice about a policeman uncle who "had me and my cousin sucking his penis before we were ten. In my early teen years, he French-kissed me in front of my aunt and grandmother. The only reason they didn't know about it is because they didn't want to deal with it. If a man ever tried to abuse any child I ever knew, I'd kill him."

She also received a burst of applause. The Speak-Out was concluded with a brief presentation by Marilyn Frye, assistant professor of philosophy on the politics of rape, such as the restrictions and limitations placed on women due to the threat of rape, such as curfews and traveling alone.

"An act of rape is an act failing to regard the full personhood," said Frye. "An act of rape tells you you aren't a person."

After the speak-out, women were free to participate in any of ten workshops including those dealing with politics of rape, legal problems of battered women, remedies to child abuse, support groups for single mothers and lesbianism as an alternative lifestyle.

Joan Nelson, an instructor in self-defense, taught several women some basic street defense, including Karate kicks and punches. She will be offering a ten-week class in self defense in the fall at the Self Help Center in downtown Lansing.

Out of one of the workshops a permanent committee was formed to set up some ideas about rape awareness and prevention in the Lansing area.

Leading nations discuss economy in 2-day summit

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — President Ford told the leaders of six other industrial powers Sunday that much of the world's future depends on their cooperation and urged them to "shape the future rather than reacting to it."

"The complexity of our nations' economies, individually and collectively, means that we as leaders cannot afford to allow major difficulties to arise and then, by dramatic meetings, attempt to resolve them," Ford said.

Ford's appeal for cooperation came at the opening of a two-day economic summit here of the United States, West Germany, Japan, Britain, Italy, France and Canada.

The President hopes to win agreement from the other industrial powers on a go-slow approach to economic growth in years ahead.

Ford said in his opening statement that the common interests of the seven nations are "far more significant than the differences which arise among us from time to time."

"Much of the world's future depends on our constructive cooperation," he said. Such improved cooperation "can contribute to the well-being of our citizens and to a more secure and prosperous world," he said.

He warned against expecting dramatic results from the Puerto Rican summit, which is a followup to the first world economic summit conference, held in Rambouillet, France last November.

He said such meetings "are part of an essential and continuing effort by the leaders of key industrialized democracies to address common problems and to improve mutual understanding."

Ford called the summit to discuss a common approach by the world's major industrial powers to problems of recovering from recession and to negotiations later this year with poor nations.

But an administration official said the agenda was left purposefully "loose" so a broad range of subjects could be discussed.

Sources have said topics certainly would include the special problems of Italy and Britain, with the United States urging in particular that they take stronger steps to slow the high inflation rates that are making the lira and the pound sterling lose value.

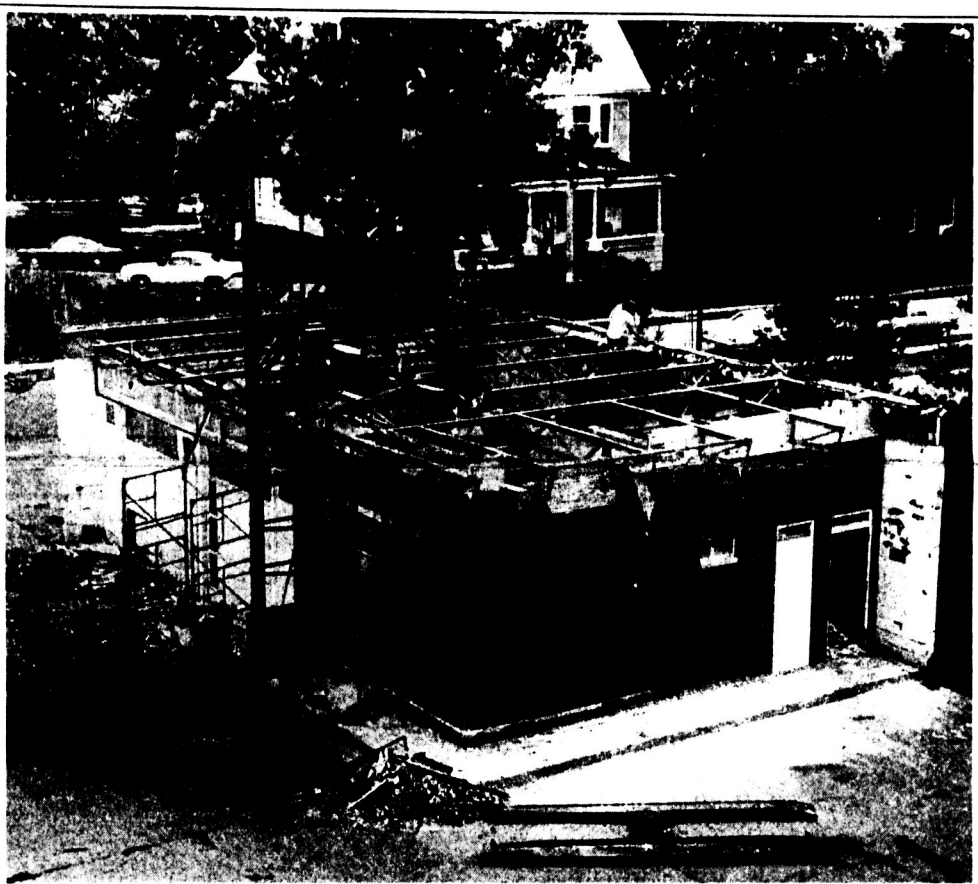

Administration officials said leaders of the seven nations likely will endorse an agreement worked out this past week among the 24 members of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development. It provides for moderate growth rates and emphasizes restraining inflation rather than promoting full employment.

The abandoned Citgo gas station on Albert and M.A.C. avenues is almost gone but the structure of the valuable tract of land in the heart of East Lansing's commercial district is still up in the air.

The East Lansing City Council agreed to tear down the building, but the council is divided as to whether the land, which is owned by the city, will be sold to a commercial developer or retained by the city and made into a park. Exactly when the council will decide what to do with the land is also up in the air.

Decision may aid control of porno

By CHRIS PARKS

LANSING (UPI) — A U.S. Supreme Court decision upholding Detroit's right to control X-rated movie houses should aid other Michigan cities in preventing the display of sex strips.

House Judiciary Chairperson Paul A. Rosenbaum, D-Battle Creek, said the high court decision upholding Detroit's anti-pornography ordinance "will have a tremendous effect outstate."

The court, on a 5-4 vote, upheld a local regulation preventing adult theaters from locating less than 1,000 feet from any two other regulated places, such as pool halls, topless bars and adult bookstores.

The case was brought by two theaters which argued the ordinance was an unconstitutional prior restraint on communication.

Rosenbaum is the author of a bill pending in the state House which would prohibit the dissemination and display of pornographic materials to children. He said he expects the House to act on the controversial measure before the summer recess early in July.

Rosenbaum also has in the works bills governing dissemination and display of smut to adults.

The Battle Creek lawmaker said he was pleased with the high court ruling, but said it will have no direct bearing on his proposals.

Rosenbaum said the Supreme Court decision will actually have a greater impact outstate, if smaller cities and towns choose to develop ordinances modeled after Detroit's now affirmed ordinance.

That, he said, is because the ordinance is more effective in preventing pornography strips than it is in eliminating them once they are established.

In many outstate cities, Rosenbaum said, there still is a chance to halt sex strips before they get started.

Rosenbaum said ordinances like Detroit's will "provide an effective way for city fathers in a lot of cities throughout the state to limit the number of these places springing up."

Rosenbaum said he expects such ordinances now will be rapidly drafted and approved in many towns and said it is "incumbent on city commissions" to do so.

He said the Detroit ordinance also prevented adult movie theaters and bookstores from being located within 800 feet of residential areas. That portion of the ordinance was not considered by the high court, however.

William Davis of the Michigan Municipal League said the Supreme Court decision will make it possible for cities which have

State legislature stalled as budget battle rages

LANSING (UPI) — Long sessions are expected in both houses of the legislature this week as the 1976 Battle of the Budget goes down to the wire.

Lawmakers anxious to return to their districts in time to campaign for the August primary would like to call it quits by the end of this week, but Capitol observers say a return to Lansing for at least part of next week is likely.

It is still not clear whether legislative leaders will be able to produce a 1976-77 budget before they recess, though they are under heavy pressure to do so. At present, next year's budget is in the hands of conference committees which are charged with resolving differences between House and Senate budget bills.

Even more critical is that the legislature approve the state's "fifth quarter" budget this week. Those budget bills must be signed by Gov. Milliken by July 1.

The fifth quarter refers to the extra three months — July, August and September — added onto the current fiscal year as a money saving device.

The House and Senate, in addition to dealing with fiscal matters, will take up several other major bills.

The House is expected to work on bills to lower the level of PBB allowed in food and raise money for a Detroit-area transportation system.

PBB — the highly toxic chemical ac-cently mixed with cattle feed in 1973 — could be a time-consuming topic for debate. Legislation pending in the House would drastically lower the level of PBB allowed in food sold in the state. Gov. Milliken is expected to make a compromise proposal on PBB.

House members will consider a Senate-passed bill imposing $4 license plate fee in the seven county metropolitan area. This fee is designed to raise part of the local matching funds needed to attract $680 million federal grant for bus and rail transportation in and around Detroit.

Backers of the bill say it must be passed before the recess, but it faces stiff opposition from the highway lobby.

Two bills which passed the House last week are expected to be big items in the Senate this week.

One is an open meetings bill, which requires public bodies to conduct most of their business in public. The measure provides several exceptions to the openness requirement, including contract talks, discussions with attorneys and disciplinary proceedings.

It is considerably stricter than a similar measure which passed the Senate earlier this year, however.

The other bill would provide help for the victims of crimes. Awards of up to $15,000 would be authorized as reimbursement for medical expenses and lost income.

Milliken to veto and legislation; changes needed

DEARBORN (UPI)—Gov. Milliken says he will veto legislation to sell tax reverted land in northern Michigan unless dramatic changes are made in the measure before it is put on his desk.

The concept of selling small portions of state land and insuring that the money from the sale is used to purchase additional lands of some merit," Milliken said in remarks prepared for delivery to the annual meeting of the Michigan United Conservation Clubs Thursday.

"But this bill is unacceptable,"

In order to receive his support, the governor said, the measure be tightly drafted so that lands could be sold and insured orderly development of a state land policy."

The bill, in its present form "does not meet these tests and flies in the face of government's responsibility to protect the public interest," the governor said.

"Again, I emphasize, if that bill comes to (continued on page 10)

Carswell arrested in Florida

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Former federal judge G. Harold Carswell has denied any wrongdoing in an incident in which plainclothes vice police charged him with misdemeanor battery, a prosecutor says.

Carswell, 56, whose nomination to the Supreme Court was rejected in 1970, remained hospitalized Sunday and reportedly would see only close family members.

State Atty. Harry Morrison said Carswell "categorically denied any wrong-doing" after his arrest Thursday in a wooded area north of Tallahassee.

"He said, 'I'd rather be dead than in the clutches of vice officers under such circumstances. I may just kill myself. This is not true. You've got it all wrong,'" Morrison said.

Morrison said the incident started in the vestibule of a men's room at a Tallahassee shopping mall, where merchants had complained of homosexuals.

"He and the policeman first came face-to-face there and they talked for some while," Morrison said.

Carswell and the policeman, George Greene, then drove to the woods in Carswell's car, Morrison said. "During that time they were in the car, passes were made to the officer," Morrison said. Carswell touched Greene in the car, Morrison said, refusing to elaborate.

Reagan closing in on Ford

(AP) — Ronald Reagan cut President Ford's lead to a slim 25 delegates over the weekend as the race for the Republican presidential nomination headed for a convention showdown with 182 uncommitted delegates holding the key.

The tally as of Sunday stood at 1,001 delegates for Ford and 976 for Reagan, according to an Associated Press delegate poll. With only 98 delegates left to be chosen and 1,130 needed for the nomination, the outcome apparently rests with the 182 still undecided delegates.

Ford went into the weekend 56 delegates ahead of Reagan, 984 for the President to 928 for Reagan.

Belgium express train derails

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Seven cars of a special express train carrying Dutch and British holidaymakers from Amsterdam to Paris derailed Sunday in southern Belgium, killing 10 passengers and injuring 30, railway officials said.

Most of the casualties were believed to be Dutch. The derailment occurred as the 12-car train neared the station at Neufvilles, between Jurbise and Soignies, about halfway between Brussels and the French border.

The train, which originated in Amsterdam, had stopped in Brussels about a half hour earlier.

Rescuers cut through the mangled cars to pull out the victims. The injured were taken to nearby hospitals and the dead were placed in a chapel at a girls' school in Neufvilles.

Railwaymen narrowly averted a worse tragedy by stopping the speeding Paris-to-Brussels Trans-European Express heading in the opposite direction in the same area.

Japanese landslides claim 27

TOKYO (AP) — Hundreds of police and rescuers dug through the mud looking for victims of landslides and floods in western Japan that killed at least 27 persons, officials said.

The landslides, triggered by up to 33 1/2 inches of rain in the past three days, left eight persons missing and 22 injured, officials said. Most of the damage was in the state of Kagoshima in southwestern Kyushu, the largest of Japan's four main islands.

No total damage estimate was available, but officials said damage to roads and other government property alone was more than $80 million.

Police said the rain touched off nearly 500 landslides, washed out 33 bridges and damaged or flooded more than 3,000 homes.

Japan National Railway said its tracks were damaged in 58 places in western Japan.

Pope pleased with election

VATICAN CITY (AP) — In his first public comment on the outcome of last week's Italian national elections, Pope Paul VI said Sunday he was happy for the "positive orientation" of the vote.

While saying he was alien to any form of mixing in the "management of public business," the Pope said he was compelled to offer a reflection on the June 20-21 elections, in which the Communists made substantial gains but the Church-backed Christian Democrats remained Italy's largest party.

This reflection, the Pope said, "is that we see faith ripen in so many expressions of the popular conscience, the positive orientation toward that common good that in these recent times was inclined to seek the common good through a negative orientation of protest, of subversion, of egotistic democracy."

Police halt Indian protest

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Sources said police broke up a silent procession of 100 antigovernment protesters wearing black arm bands Saturday on the first anniversary of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's emergency rule.

An opposition member of Parliament said about 400 persons were arrested in the old part of Delhi, but there was no way to confirm the report.

A newsletter called True News, which the opposition distributed, claimed police had stepped up arrests of political opponents of the Gandhi regime in recent weeks in an effort to prevent anti-emergency demonstrations.

Court backs black enrollment

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court opened the doors of all-white private schools to blacks, but there is some question as to whether many will step in.

In a 7-2 decision, the court held that commercially operated private schools, if nonreligious, must admit blacks. Justice Potter Stewart's opinion rested on a Reconstruction era civil rights law giving "all persons" the right to make and enforce contracts.

Hundreds of private schools have cropped up in the South in recent years as a result of federal court orders desegregating the region's public school systems. Many of the private schools banned blacks.

Most nondenominational private schools contacted by UPI — in the South as well as the North — said they already have a policy of nondiscrimination and many had some black students. They said the stiff tuition most charge apparently deters a larger black enrollment.

Earl Edwards, executive director of the Mississippi Private School Assn., said "there's been very little interest in blacks to attend our schools" though some have "completely open admission policies."

"I don't think the decision is going to change it in any practical way," Edwards said. "Legally it will change the situation, but whether it will increase the attendance of blacks to these schools, I doubt it."

The ruling stemmed from a suit by black parents against two private schools in Northern Virginia—Bobbie's School in Arlington and Fairfax-Brewster School in Fairfax — which had rejected their children as applicants.

The decision affirmed a ruling by the U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals which approved $5,500 in damages against the two schools.

Justices Byron White and William Rehnquist noted in dissent that the law has been on the books since 1870 and is just now being construed.

PILOT FEARED DEAD IN JET BLAST

Attack forces airport shutdown

BEIRUT (AP) — A Boeing 707 passenger jet was blasted by artillery and burned to a black skeleton Sunday during bombardment of Beirut airport. The airport immediately closed indefinitely.

The four-engine Middle East Airlines jet had arrived from Amman with a three-man Lebanese crew but no passengers, the airline said.

It was parked about 300 yards from the main terminal building and about 100 yards from two Saudi air force C130s, one of which landed an hour before the attack in the midst of savage fighting in the Lebanese civil war.

An airline spokesperson said the first officer and flight engineer were seriously injured and the pilot missing and believed killed.

A leftist radio broadcast monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus, said the pilot was "burned to death." It described the injured engineer as an American but did not identify him.

Half a dozen shells fell in and around the airport on the southern edge of Beirut in Moslem-held territory, witnesses said. One shell that an army officer said was from a 155mm howitzer opened a 30-foot gap in the roof of the terminal building.

The terminal was crowded with hundreds of would-be passengers trying to flee the civil war but none were reported injured. One Middle East employee was hit by flying debris and wounded. He was being led away for first aid with blood running down his body.

Middle East Airlines, the only carrier serving war-torn Beirut airport, diverted all incoming planes.

Officials of the airline said no decision had been reached yet on whether or when flights would resume.

The airport was open long enough for President Ford's new envoy to Lebanon, Talcott W. Seelye, 54, to arrive by a regularly scheduled flight Saturday. He succeeds Ambassador Francis E. Meloy, slain on June 15 along with the embassy economic counselor, Robert O. Waring.

A Syrian air force jet was partially burned several months ago after a rocket hit set it afire as it prepared to take Lebanese Premier Rashid Karami to Damascus along with other Moslem leaders.

The latest closure again left Beirut cut off from the outside world, with telegraph and telephone connections down and only a dangerous road trip to Damascus left as a way out of the embattled Lebanese capital.

The Moslem-held radio reported shells came from right-wing Christian cannons. There was no immediate reply from the Christian leadership.

The right-wing Christian Phalangist militia, the biggest on the Christian side, warned Friday it would close the airport by "whatever means we judge appropriate" unless a special committee was formed to ensure no arms would be imported for leftists through the airport.

The airport shelling came as fierce battles raged across southeastern Beirut for a sixth straight day despite hopes of a cease-fire raised by Libyan Premier Abdel Salem Jalloud.

Heavy artillery, rockets and machine guns roared around Palestinian refugee camps and along a two-mile line dividing the capital into hostile Moslem and Christian sectors.

"The last 24 hours were one of the worst periods of the entire civil war," a high security official said.

His estimates, put together from piecemeal reports and hospital admissions, were that more than 200 were killed and 300 wounded.

Bodies were rotting in the sun along slopes leading down from the refugee camps because repeated Christian assaults prevented Palestinian ambulances from reaching them.

The Christian-held "Amchit" radio reported that rightist militiamen repulsed a Palestinian-leftist attempt to penetrate Beirut harbor, the adjacent Martyrs Square and the Bab Idriss quarter, a once-busy thoroughfare.

It also reported "violent clashes" in the mountain towns of Kakhalehand Arayia and said dozens of attackers were killed.

Abu Ayad, commander of Palestinian forces, was quoted as saying his guerillas and leftist Lebanese Moslem allies accepted a Jalloud truce deal in long meetings Saturday night.

Jalloud said he was in contact with high Christian leaders to get their accord and halt the bloody struggle for the camps dominating approaches to the mountains and rightist-held eastern Beirut.

In Belgrade, Syrian President Hafez Assad and President Tito of Yugoslavia issued a communique Sunday after Assad's two-day visit, calling for an immediate end to the war in Lebanon.

Scientists delay landing of Martian space probe

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Turned back by dangerous craters, knobs and pitted terrain, scientists on Sunday delayed the scheduled July 4 Bicentennial landing of Viking 1 on the Martian surface, possibly for several weeks.

A search began for alternative landing sites.

Viking Project Manager James Martin said recent pictures of the primary landing site showed the area to "have too many unknowns and it could be too hazardous" to risk a landing without first investigating alternative sites.

From the beginning, scientists at Jet Propulsion Laboratory stressed there would be flexibility in choosing a landing date. They said the Bicentennial touchdown target was set because of a fortunate conjunction between celestial circumstances and earthly considerations.

Martin said he was told by his superiors in Washington not to endanger the landing by trying to get there on July 4.

The alternative area that now most interests scientists is a river basin about 18 miles northwest of the original landing site, still within the general touchdown region of Chryse.

The alternative site is called Chryse Phoenicia.

The next crucial decision will be made on Wednesday, when scientists will judge from the newest pictures whether a landing is feasible. If so, the touchdown could take place as early as July 8.

Salute '76: action-packed festivity

By CAROL LEIGH HUTTON
State News Staff Writer

From the ping of plucked dulcimers along the river to the rousing flow of notes from Doc Severinsen's horn, Salute '76 was action, sound and celebration-packed as thousands crowded the MSU campus Saturday for the Michigan 4-H Bicentennial festivities.

Colorful red, white and blue flag strings protected MSU's courtyard and lawns from the plogging of the many 4-H youngsters and leaders trooping from one exhibit to the next. The campus was busier than it has been in some time.

The Spartan Stadium was the center of Salute '76, housing many of the day's exhibits, from candlemaking to leather tooling and numerous other crafts.

One table in the northeast end of the stadium supplied fresh-cut flowers and demonstrated the making of corsages and boutonnieres that the learners were allowed to keep and wear.

4-H'ers from every county in Michigan participated in various forms of the salute, some manning the many booths and others taking part in shows and presentations.

Outside the stadium, on the north lawn, 4-H boys and girls presented a Bicentennial fashion show with outfits depicting the various stages of fashion development since colonial days.

Included in the fashion show was a dance revue featuring dances from the past like the Salty Dog Rag, the jitterbug, the quick paced polka and the good old American square dance.

Red and white checked skirts and ruffled white petticoats circled and sashayed to the barks of the caller as the audience clapped in time.

Not very far from the fashion and dance revue was another of the day's most popular events, the Strawberry Social. Baskets of fresh, plump strawberries tempted and attracted passers-by to sample the juicy fruits, either in a sundae or a soda. If long lines tell the story, people found the fruits hard to resist.

In a smart planning maneuver, the Hospitality Booth was located right next to the Strawberry Social and so attracted much of the overflow.

The stadium was not the only area of activity, as the celebration spread to many other parts of campus. The Pavilion on Shaw Lane was the site of a horse show and between performances spectators roamed the stalls petting the resting animals.

Meanwhile, out on Shaw Lane a parade gathered to march down Stadium Road. A 10-foot-tall Uncle Sam, in bright red and white striped pants that towered endlessly in the sunlight, led the ensemble, followed by an old wooden-wheeled cart pulled by two cows, Yankee and Doodle.

A troop of flag carriers benefited from a stiff breeze that made the flags brightly visible and the First Colonial Fife and Drum Corps of Michigan contributed the audio effect of the short but impressive parade.

A series of old fashioned carts drawn by pairs of matched, fully-dressed horses brought up the rear of the parade, which received a police escort onto the stadium grounds.

The undisputed highlight of the Bicentennial Salute was the afternoon concert held in the Spartan Stadium and featuring trumpeteer Doc Severinsen.

Known nationally for his position of musical director of the "Tonight Show," Severinsen brought with him his background group called The New Generation Brass and six singers known as Today's Children.

Before Severinsen and his show came out to perform, the audience was treated to some original colonial pieces by the First Colonial Fife and Drum Corps as well as a presentation by the 4-H band.

Next, a series of international dances were performed depicting some of the traditions of other nations. An Afro-American Dance group, the Pashami Dancers, displayed old African folk dances that told a story. The beat of the bongo drums induced the audience to clap in rhythm.

But the audience was really waiting for Doc and they showed it with enthusiastic rounds of applause as he stepped out on the platform leading across the turf to the stage.

Living up to his reputation as an incredible dresser, Severinsen walked out in a beige suit with sparkled swirls of assorted colors on the jacket front and back and red satin stripes down

ASMSU PLANS TO TRY IT AGAIN

Computer dating to return

By JANET R. OLSEN
State News Staff Writer

Be ready to get out your soft lead pencils and grab those questionnaires. Computer dating may once again hit East Lansing.

"We have been approached by Interpersonal Research, a computer date match service in Indiana," Jim Haischer, ASMSU comptroller, said. "They said other universities had tried the program a second time and had done well with it."

Computer dating was first offered by ASMSU in the fall of 1975. On Oct. 20, 1975, about 15,000 applications for the dating service were distributed all over campus and by the next day were gone.

The program, in which ASMSU had invested $1,870, was headed by then-ASMSU

Asst. Comptroller Ken Rosenbaum. Students paid $3.50 each to sign up for a date or $2.75 each for students within a group of six or more.

"Last year, we came out about $2,000 ahead and there were 4,154 students participating," Haischer said. "This year there would be a bigger number—maybe more freshmen would get involved."

Haischer said the proposed program for fall term would have better timing and be executed earlier in the term.

"First of all, we would have to find people interested in it and capable of running it," he said. "We think that MSU students would want to do it again. If students are interested, they can phone myself or the ASMSU president's office to let us know how they feel."

Haischer said the program would be about the same as last year with no big changes in the format or questionnaires.

Last year, many area businesses participated in the program by eliminating the cover charge or offering lower-priced drinks to couples participating in the computer-dating service. Haischer said many businesses would probably be interested in doing this again.

"However, the extent of local business involvement would depend on the individual who runs the program," he said.

Haischer encouraged anyone interested in running the program to talk over the possibility with him.

Haischer said that he and Steve Danzig, representative of Interpersonal Research, have thrown around a lot of wild ideas and possibilities for the promotion of the return of computer-dating.

"We could throw a big dance or maybe have a Halloween special to kick it off," he said. "We are also looking into staging half time activities at football games to promote it."

Would Haischer himself consider running the proposed upcoming computer dating program?

"Oh, no, I have too many things to do as it is."

Correction

The wrong office telephone number of Congressman Bob D. East Lansing, was listed in Friday's edition of the News. The number is 517.

The number was intended for individuals interested in testing in hearings to determine opinion on the subject of war waste dumping in the Peninsula. Interested individuals should contact the office by July 1.

Drug center seeking training volunteers

The Drug Education Center (DEC) is seeking volunteers to complete a 90-hour training program and eventually work one four-hour shift each week in the crisis center.

DEC offers counseling, crisis intervention and a free medical clinic among a wide range of services.

The training program lasts several weeks and consists of sitting in with regular volunteers at the crisis center, seminars in active listening technique and participation in several rap sessions.

A selection meeting for anyone interested is being held Wednesday, at 7 p.m. in 834 Union. No special qualifications are necessary.

In a smart planning maneuver, the Hospitality Booth was located right next to the Strawberry Social and so attracted much of the overflow.

Technology must be confirmed by performance.

Here are the judgments of the most respected critics and reviewers on the BOSE 901

"I urge that you listen for yourself. I think you will have to agree that Bose has, in a single giant step, produced one of the finest speaker systems ever made."
AMERICAN RECORD GUIDE

"... If your response to it is like ours, you'll be reluctant to turn it off and go to bed."
Norman Eisenberg,
HIGH FIDELITY

"... I must say that I have never heard a speaker system in my own home which could surpass, or even equal, the Bose 901 for overall 'realism' of sound."
Hirsch-Houk Laboratories
STEREO REVIEW

"The Bose have replaced forever our bulky studio speakers with compact, handsome units. The only trouble is -- our studio is beginning to look like a living room!"
DOWNBEAT

"To hear a thunderous "low C" organ pedal ... or a clean, weighty impact of a bass drum is truly impressive ... There is no doubt that the much abused and overworked term "break-through" applies to the Bose 901 and its bold new concepts."
Bert Whyte
AUDIO

"But these speakers provide a quality which is not to be matched."
STEREO & HI FI TIMES

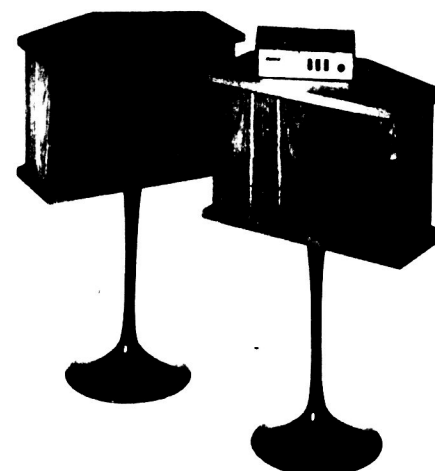

"The 901 is very possibly the only speaker to date to actually pour forth in true concert hall fashion."
HI-FI BUYER'S GUIDE

"After a time trial measured in months rather than weeks, this one can definitely proclaim Bose is best, big or small, high or low."

Emission problem demands time

After years of complaining about particle emissions from an MSU smokestack and the appearance of an agreement between MSU and the state agency, the Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission (MAPCC) has lost its patience and voted to issue a formal complaint.

It could not have come at a worse time.

MSU's financial problems are common knowledge and both plans which the MAPCC has suggested to remedy the problem would only further strain an already tight budget.

The first would require that MSU return to burning natural gas rather than coal. This was done on a partial basis from 1970 to 1974. However, the high costs of natural gas forced the University to return to burning coal. This same financial problem faces the University today if it returns to natural gas.

The second plan calls for the installation of electrostatic precipitators in the offending smokestack. This would solve the problem, but would require an $8 million expenditure.

Though MSU will appeal the MAPCC decision, the problem of providing adequate funds still looms large if the appeal should be rejected.

The only possible source of funds — the Capital Outlay Committee of the state legislature — is itself besieged with requests for funds. The fiscal situation of the state is also no secret, and it is unlikely that so large a request will be granted to MSU at this time.

Against this backdrop, it seems the MAPCC had little on its mind when it issued its complaint but air. The commission ignored the complex realities of the MSU financial situation in favor of placing immediate pressure for the resolution of its concern.

But if the commission succeeds in taking care of its concern, it can only do so at the expense of another, perhaps more important, program. This past year, MSU has attempted to keep drastic budget reductions away from academic and vital service areas. If the MAPCC decision stands, it will threaten those areas which stand at the core of our University.

And there is nothing in MSU's past history which would demonstrate its disconcert for pollution. The offending smokestack more than complied with existing air pollution standards when it was constructed. Also, the University has made attempts to burn less coal, but the price of natural gas prevented the success of this experiment.

It is regrettable that the existing MSU budget does not allow for immediate relief of this serious problem, but it does not. The MAPCC would be well advised to realize this and give MSU a two-to-three year moratorium to enable them to come up with the funds to comply with this order.

This year, no money can be pulled out of the air to meet new expenses. It must come out of the existing budget and the existing programs. The solution to the smokestack problem is not for the MAPCC to demand its pound of flesh, but for it to assist MSU in working out a plan which will do the most it can within its limited budget.

'Moon' report

Speaking of "Moonies" ... my girlfriend and I, both former MSU students, have moved to California, to seek our fame and fortune. On a recent sojourn to San Francisco, we ran into some young people in Sausalito that were selling their "Creative Community Project" and a "weekend experience." We listened to their pitch and even boarded their bus to see pictures of their perfect haven.

It was only after we got back to San Diego and saw the Parade Magazine articles of May 30 and received some State News clippings from a concerned friend that we realized what we had encountered. Those brightly smiling salespeople were Moon followers. One of the guys — about 19 or 20 years old — mentioned that he was a former U. S. student and grew up in Okemos. I regret that I didn't catch his name as I am sure his parents must be worried sick about him. We did get an address: Creative Community Project, 2269 Washington St., San Francisco, California, and a phone (567-7488), which may be helpful to people interested in finding lost friends.

I have a tendency to agree with the general consensus that Moon is dangerous to kids who are unsure and insecure. The boy from Okemos looked really spunky (personal opinion). He said everyone works together at a carpet-cleaning business, selling flowers, selling weekend trips and/or working at the "project" up the coast. One of the other guys was a New Zealander — had been an M.D. in New Zealand and has given it up to join the "project."

I would like to congratulate myself on not being duped into that "weekend experience" — but many more intelligent than I have fallen victim to these people. I only hope that Moon is soon exposed for the hypocrite that he is. I shuddered when I realized what I'd managed to brush up against on a bright sunny day in the Bay area.

Not God: Darwin

I would like to add a few thoughts to your science vs. religion discussion, especially directed towards the recent accusation of Ceryl Fischer (April 9) that evolutionists use "tyranny" to intimidate non-believers. I find this statement ironic, since history shows that the greatest examples of mental and physical tyranny are inflicted by religious zealots against those who do not accept the god or gods of the zealots.

Science is theologically neutral; the theory of evolution should offer no threat to any religious group, and many evolutionists are also very religious. Evolution, after all, is really just a method of creation — and anyone who understands it will see that it is indeed a beautiful and wondrous natural process.

Those who would teach the Biblical account of creation, along with the evolutionary theory supported by the majority of scientists, seem to forget that the Hebrew tribal account in Genesis is only one of many religious, cultural, or philosophical ideas on creation, and if we are to teach one then we would be logically required to present them all. There are also those who try to give the Genesis account a scientific standing, but I have read many articles and books by creationists, and have come to the conclusion that they never understood evolution (or scientific method) in the first place.

Ceryl Fischer's attempt to disprove evolution by the law of thermodynamics is a case in point; by using the "randomization" idea, we could assume that the majority of known chemical reactions would never take place, and the majority of birds would never find their nests!

I believe that the evolutionary theory may be of great importance to the survival of the human race. While the Biblical account of our origins is often used to point up Man's separation from other life forms, and the human right to dominate the natural world, evolution shows us our humble origins, and our ultimate dependence on the same ecological systems.

I think that even if the great weight of scientific evidence did not support evolution (which it does), I would still be an Evolutionist — the "religion" of survival.

Remind them

Michigan politicians are doing their utmost to outdo Indira Gandhi, Park Chung Hee, et al. Never mind the democratic process of free exchange of ideas and the freedom of the ballot. What to them is more important is the size of the voting machine and an opportunity to restrict the ballot to the parties of the status quo, mainly to the Democratic and the Republican parties, the Siamese twins that are completely devoid of any real issues and solutions to the many problems besetting the people of the state and the nation.

Yet, their shenanigans would bar some of the minority parties, one of which does have solutions to our problems, from the ballot. History proves that new ideas and solutions come from minority groups, that the old become unresponsive to the needs of the majority of the people, that they become corrupt and reactionary, serving only the interests of the ruling classes and the status quo.

The Socialist Labor Party is today that minority party with new ideas and solutions, with a program for industrial form of government, a form of government based upon industrial representation, fully compatible with our highly industrialized country.

Peaceful solutions to our problems require and demand freedom of the ballot as well as the freedom of speech and the press.

On this Bicentennial of the American Revolution, the politicians would do well to keep this in mind, but they have to be reminded.

Never broken

I am writing this in regard to the viewpoint written by David Morris appearing in the May 26 State News.

I cannot speak on his interpretation of Ayn Rand, but his misunderstanding of Christianity is apparent. First of all, I would like to submit that the atrocities which he spoke of as being committed in the name of Christianity, were in fact committed in the name of religion. There is a difference.

His contention that Christianity lacks "one shred of rational, demonstrable proof" reveals his ignorance. Webster's dictionary defines proof as: "evidence, etc. that establishes the truth of something." I would merely refer Mr. Morris to books such as, "Who Moved The Stone?" by F. Morrison, "Evidence That Demands A Verdict" by J. McDowell, and infinitum. Time and time again people have set out to write books disproving Christianity, only to become convinced of its truth in the process.

In conclusion I would like to close with a quote from John S. Copley, better known as Lord Lyndhurst. He is recognized as being one of the greatest legal minds in British history and held in one lifetime the highest offices which a judge in Great Britain could ever have conferred on him. He writes, "I know pretty well what evidence is; and I tell you, such evidence as that for the Resurrection has never broken down yet."

Lost contact

I'm a white male presently doing time at the London, Ohio, Correctional Institution, and during the time I have been here I have lost all contact with the outside world. I am writing to you with hopes that you will put my ad in the university newspaper for correspondence and friendship with someone. At the present time I have no one to write to and I am hoping that through you and my letter, someone will write to me.

I would like to take this time to thank you in advance for any and all the consideration you can give me concerning this matter.

VIEWPOINT: BICENTENNIAL

July 4 is a time for involvement

By MARY ANN KOPYDLOWSKI

On July 4, 1976, Gerald Ford and Queen Elizabeth will be in Philadelphia to preside over the "official" celebration of the Bicentennial of the U.S.

At the same time people from across the country will come together in Philadelphia to demonstrate that "after 200 years we are still fighting for our freedom." These people, from Los Angeles to New York City, from the Deep South and the great Plains, representing trade unions, churches, Black, Latin, Asian, and Native American organizations, women's unions, schools, professional groups, and a broad spectrum of progressive political organizations will make up the July 4th Coalition (over 100 organizations will be represented).

Members of the coalition will march together through the streets of Philadelphia with the action beginning at 10:30 a.m. The march will proceed to a mass rally at Fairmont Park from 2 to 5 p.m. A program of over 30 speakers and entertainers will be presented. Speakers include Juan Mari Bras, leader of the Puerto Rican Socialist Party; Rev. Ralph Abernathy; Clyde Bellecourt of the American Indian Movement; Karen DeCrow of the National Organization of Women; anti-war activist Dave Dellinger; Ed Sadowski of the United Steelworkers Union and many others.

The July 4th Coalition has a valid permit from the City of Philadelphia to march and rally. The coalition people are not gathering to disrupt the government sponsored activities or to instigate violence (as some of the corporate media have portrayed by citing the request of Philadelphia Mayor Frank Rizzo, for 15,000 troops to "protect" people from "terrorists").

Gerald Ford has labeled the Bicentennial an historic occasion and calls for national unity. The people of the July 4th Coalition agree with these two concepts. However, they realize that one must look at the true history of the people in order to gain a clearer understanding of where we are at today.

It is a history of slavery and the contributions that black people have made to this country during their struggles for a more human way of life.

It is the history of Native Americans' 484 years of fighting for their land and sovereignty, their lives, and the protection of the natural resources of this earth.

It is the history of workers and their struggle for social security, the eight-hour day and unionization. It is the history of their many victories and of the brutal repression which sought to defeat their movement.

It is the history of women's struggles for suffrage and equal rights and against pervasive sexism.

It is the history of a world that has refused to bow to the foreign policy of this country and has outlawed its imperialist policies — and defeated them in most of the world.

Ford would say this historic event is a celebration of freedom, progress and democracy that emphasizes how the U.S. government has defended these ideals here and abroad. He will speak of a country of people who experience independence and justice as they live satisfactory and happy lives under U.S. government policies. In effect, Ford is not recognizing the injustices of the past, and more vitally, he is denying that they exist today.

The people of the July 4th Coalition simply cannot agree with Ford's hypocritical analysis. Millions of people are out of work; racism is rampant; social services are continually being cut back; tens of thousands of workers face increased speed-

Coalition people call for is one in that can win for the people rightfully theirs.

The type of massive and militant that opposed the aggression in Laos was a beginning. Now the kind of needed is one that will mutually support many separate struggles of the people exist today. These daily struggles — whether on the production line, at up and safety hazards of the job; students face constant tuition hikes; repression, frame-ups, and police brutality are on the rise; the U.S. continues to practice expansion and imperialism throughout the world (Angola, Chile, Brazil . . .); multinational corporations in South Africa perpetuate this imperialism; direct colonial domination continues over Puerto Rico, Native Americans, and the Panama Canal Zone . . .

These realities make it clear that the government of this country has failed the people and in effect has turned its back on the Declaration of Independence.

As Ford calls for a day of national unity, the people of the coalition do so, too — but not behind his policies or those followed by the U.S. government for most of the past 200 years. The unity that the July 4th university, or in the community, are really all one in the same and must be recognized as such.

Support is needed, physically and spiritually, for those who are a part of the July 4th Coalition and their basic demand for jobs and a decent standard of living, full democracy and equality, and for Bicentennial without colonies — freedom for all oppressed nations.

If you are interested in becoming a part of this peoples' demonstration, you may call the following numbers for more details and information on rides: Wounded Knee Support Committee, 332-3141 and the July 4th Coalition, (313) 963-0843. Salute '76 was the site of many interesting activities and demonstrations, among them weaving the chair (above). One of the most popular events of the day was the pigeon race (right). Sported white and blue streamers, the pigeons were released from the starting point and raced to the finish. But the highlight of the salute was the concert given by "Tonight Show" star Doc Severinsen and his band.

There were men, women and children of all ages taking part in Saturday's 4-H Bicentennial celebrations and numerous keepsakes from T-shirts and frisbees to Bicentennial balloons (above). An auction conducted in Jenison Fieldhouse beside the Country Market attracted a large number of curious onlookers and prospective buyers to both the morning and the afternoon

Tigers nip Boston, 4-2, without designated hitter

Detroit Tiger manager Ralph Houk's pen ran dry, but thankfully his bullpen didn't Sunday as the Bengals moved into fourth place in the American League East with a 4-2, 11-inning triumph over Boston.

Houk had accidentally written in the names of both Rusty Staub and Alex Johnson as designated hitter on the lineup card prior to the game. Because of Houk's error, Johnson was forced to sit out the game and as a result the Tigers were without a designated hitter for the first time in three years.

The move nearly proved fatal for Detroit as relief ace John Hiller was lifted in favor of a pinch hitter in the 10th inning with the bases loaded. Chuck Scrivener came to the plate for Hiller and hit into an inning-ending double play to spoil a potential Detroit rally.

But Steve Grilli came out of the pen, the bullpen that is, to stymie the defending American League Champions over the last two innings to claim his second win of the season.

The Tigers broke ahead of Boston in the top half of the 11th when Tom Veryzer was safe on a fielder's choice with the bases loaded. Danny Meyer then followed with a single to add an insurance run which gave the Tigers their third victory in four games with the Red Sox this weekend.

Though Grilli pitched hitless ball over two innings while striking out three, his rookie counterpart Frank MacCormack didn't fare as well. MacCormack failed for the fourth consecutive time to gain his first Major League win as he was plagued with wildness walking six Boston batters.

Detroit battled back from an early 1-0 deficit to tie the contest in the third inning and then went ahead in the fourth when first baseman Jason Thompson hit his 10th home run of the year.

The Red Sox came back to tie the score off Hiller in the seventh, sending the game into extra innings and setting the stage for Grilli's appearance.

The Tigers return home when they face the division-leading New York Yankees in a nationally televised Monday night contest. Rookie sensation Mark Fidrych will get the call for Ralph Houk's outfit. He will be opposed by Doyle Alexander, whom the Yankees recently acquired in a trade with Baltimore.

Oakland Athletics star Joe Rudi dons his uniform Sunday while talking with Associated Press Sports Editor Jack Stevenson prior to the A's contest against Minnesota.

Oakland owner Charley Finley relented and allowed Rudi, Vida Blue and Rollie Fingers to play Sunday, thus averting a threatened strike by Oakland players.

Charley Finley relents, player strike is averted

Oakland Athletics' owner Charley Finley gave in to pressure of a possible player strike Sunday and allowed three players he had sold June 14 to be restored to active duty with the Oakland baseball team.

The Oakland team had voted Sunday to strike if Finley did not restore Vida Blue, Rollie Fingers and Joe Rudi to active duty. Finley had sold Blue to the New York Yankees, and Rudi and Fingers to the Boston Red Sox prior to the June 15 trading deadline for a total of $3.5 million.

Finley gave in to the players' ultimatum five minutes before Oakland's game against Minnesota Sunday, thus averting the possibility of baseball's first player strike in more than 60 years.

Finley had been directed by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn to restore the trio to active status following Kuhn's voiding the sale for what he termed the best interests of baseball.

Finley, in turn, filed a $10 million lawsuit against Kuhn, the Yankees and the Red Sox on Friday.

I.M. Notes

Applications are being accepted through Tuesday for entries in the student-faculty singles tennis tournament. Competition begins Thursday, July 1. Each contestant is required to bring one new can of tennis balls to his match.

Team entries for Co-Ree one pitch competition will be accepted until noon today. Team members are reminded to pick up their schedules from 4 to 6 p.m. today.

The IM office will begin accepting entries for its July 17 golf tournament which is open to students and faculty. The deadline for entering is noon Wednesday, July 14. Green fees can be paid at the IM office from 8 a.m. to noon and 1 and 5 p.m. The fee is $3.25 for students and $4 for faculty and staff. Those with MSU golf season passes will not have to pay additional green fees.

Relief pitcher Mike Marshall receives a southern welcome from new teammate Jim Wynn (left) and Atlanta mascot Chief Noc-A-Homa. Marshall, who won the Cy Young award two years ago, was dealt from the Los Angeles Dodgers to the Atlanta Braves

Ali, Inoki will split $9 million for 'Super fight of the century'

By LEON DANIEL

TOKYO, June 26 (UPI)—Heavyweight Boxing Champion Muhammad Ali and a pelican-jawed Japanese wrestler expect to split $9 million for avoiding each other to a dull draw Saturday, in what easily could be forgotten as one of history's greatest ring ripoffs.

The biggest cut—$6 million—goes to Ali for flicking a couple of nondamaging left jabs toward Antonio Inoki and absorbing a lot of ineffectual kicks delivered by the challenger to the champion's shins and posterior.

Inoki's effort over the 15 soporific three-minute rounds consisted mainly of moving in a crablike fashion around the ring on his bottom and lashing out with his feet.

"We want our money back," shouted fans, some of whom had shelled out the yen equivalent of $1,000 to be on hand at ringside for the bizarre bout billed by canny promoters as "the super fight of the century."

Told in his dressing room that some of the fans had been disappointed, Ali replied "That's because nobody got hurt. He's too smart and I'm too smart. You just saw me make $6 million."

The champ acknowledged that he vented his punches—both left jabs—during the entire bout.

"I couldn't box because he was on the floor," Ali explained why he failed to take the offensive.

"He kept his distance," Ali explained. "He was so fast."

Ali himself occasionally resorted to kicking, but unlike his champ delivered his kicks from a standing position.

Referee Gene LeBell, a Hollywood stunt man, scored the fight 71-71 and the two Japanese judges scored it 72-68 for Ali.

Ali, who wore four-ounce gloves, frequently taunted Inoki, fought bare knuckled. At one point the champ turned his back to the challenger and yelled "Inoki can't wrestle."

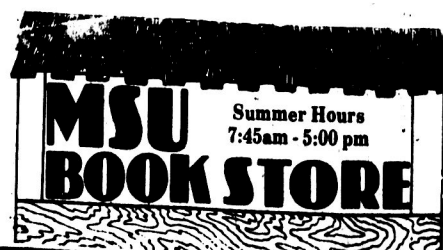

Inoki, who rose to fame in professional wrestling, which theatrical in Japan as it is in the United States, said in his dressing room that he would have won if the special rules had not been used.

"I have no regrets about the draw," said the hulking Japanese wrestler.

BAIL MEASURE TO BE CONSIDERED Legislature may delay hearings

SING (UPI) — Senate Chairperson Basil W. D-Highland Park, says on a proposed constitutional amendment denying serious crimes may not be held before the summer legislative recess.

In a letter to judiciary committee members Friday, Brown said the House-passed measure will be considered "in the normal course of business."

"My intentions are simply to take care of our committee business in the same fashion we have in the past, by attaching priorities as we see fit to attach them," Brown said, noting that 190 pieces of legislation now are up for committee consideration. Brown said he is "philosophically opposed" to the resolution, sponsored by Rep. Paul Rosenbaum, D-Battle Creek. While he had agreed to hold hearings, sponsors have not asked him to expedite the measure, he said.

Judiciary Committee meetings have been or probably will be, canceled by day-long Senate sessions on the eve of the recess. Senate leaders have indicated they will adjourn from July 2 to mid-September.

The bail measure must be approved by Sept. 3 in order to go on the November election ballot.

Washington story claims

DETROIT (UPI) — President Lyndon B. Johnson asked the FBI in 1967 to investigate possible CIA involvement in the assassination of John F. Kennedy, the Detroit News said in a copyrighted story Sunday.

A report from the News Washington bureau said Johnson aide W. Marvin Watson asked assistant FBI Director Cartha D. DeLoach on April 3, 1967, to study any possible CIA role in an assassination conspiracy.

The News said Johnson's suspicions were mentioned in portions omitted from a special Senate committee's report on U.S. intelligence agency matters relating to the 1963 assassination. That report was released Wednesday.

The extent of domestic agency involvement in any conspiracy was not revealed. But the News said the CIA held up release of the committee report until it successfully pressured committee Chairperson Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, to delete a section.

That section, the newspaper said, dealt with secret CIA recordings of two telephone conversations between assassin Lee Harvey Oswald and the Cuban and Soviet embassies in Mexico City up to a month before Kennedy's death.

A spokesman for Sen. Schweiker, R-Pa., said several "very intrusive" details were out of the public eye.

Last winter Delaney testified before the committee that Johnson indicated a moment that he was convinced that there was a connection with the assassination.

But Schweiker, according to the News, said the committee was never sure if Johnson was trying to blame the CIA for Kennedy's death.

Finks flock to Texas festival

FINK, Tex. (AP) — Finks from all over are gathered here to make their most serious assault yet on the Guinness Book of Records.

There will be jumping Finks, spitting Finks, rocking Finks and Finks crowding into a "regulation" two-hole outhouse as the Fink Bicentennial Olympics head toward Saturday's closing ceremonies.

The big event is outhouse stuffing. A record in that category does not exist, but John Raven of Temple, Tex., has submitted one for verification.

Raven said he stuffed 16 adults and an unnamed black poodle into what he called a "regulation" two-hole outhouse. Raven will be the outhouse on a trip to Fink, to give Finks a chance to beat what may be a record.

Fogo stick jumping is also a popular event. Finks go after five hours and 40 minutes.

Gov. to veto legislation

my desk, it will be vetoed."

The proposal, which is being pushed by Upper Peninsula lawmakers, has already cleared the Senate and is pending in the House.

It would require that land which has reverted to the state for nonpayment of taxes be sold if the Dept. of Commerce and Natural Resources Commission determine it is desirable for industrial or agricultural development.

The sales would require the approval of the legislature and would be limited to about 16,000 acres in the U.P. and 15,800 acres in the northern Lower Peninsula.

"Because we have no other option under present law, we continue to approach the and other similar issues on a catch-as-can, one-at-a-time basis," Milliken said.

The governor said the legislature has been "shortsighted" in failing to enact land use plan.

"I have been meeting with legislative leaders over the past several weeks and continue to hope that this vital legislation will be passed this year," the governor said.

Milliken also urged quick action on bills regulate sand dune mining, preserve lands and earmark oil and gas royalties from wells on state lands for use conservation programs.
