Carter: election a mandate for change

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter said Thursday night that the narrow margin of his victory will not stay him from "moving aggressively to carry out my campaign commitments" and he said there is a strong possibility he will seek a 5 percent increase for average wage earners if the economy does not perk up by inauguration day.

At his first nationally televised news conference, from the chilly platform of his home-town railroad depot, Carter said the fact that President Ford came close to winning Tuesday's presidential election does not mean that he must adjust his plans for change in a new administration.

"I wish we could have carried all 50 states, but since I didn't, I hope to demonstrate even before my inauguration my complete commitment to being president of all the American people," he said. Carter appeared with Sen. Walter F. Mondale, but the vice president-elect was the silent partner in the first major pronouncements of the administration-to-be. Carter did all the talking.

Among his major points:

- There will be "substantial continuity" in American foreign policy, toward U.S. allies and also toward potential adversaries.
- He will not name members of his Cabinet before December, and will choose them for merit, after personal interviews, and in "a careful, very slow and very methodical process." He said he will try to achieve geographical and other balance in his Cabinet.

• He is concerned about a possible increase in the price of imported oil, but can do nothing about it except say so. Carter said he doesn't want to mislead people into thinking that he can influence U.S. policy or decisions until Jan. 20, when he will take office.

• He acknowledged the difficulty of achieving his stated goals. But he said he believes he can, with a Democratic Congress, fulfill the promises he made, among them an overhaul of the government, welfare and tax reform, and a new, comprehensive energy policy.

Once again, Carter thanked Ford for the President's offer of cooperation and support in the transition to the new Democratic administration. He said he hopes to meet with Ford and the President's top advisers for a briefing on foreign policy questions. Carter said that if the current economic slowdown persists, he may act soon after assuming office to seek a new tax cut.

"I think this could be a strong possibility if there is no change in the rate of growth of the economy and if economic indicators should show a negative aspect. That is a possibility, one we will assess continually."

He said such a cut would be designed to increase the purchasing power of the average American family, and would be oriented toward lower income taxpayers.

Lawrence Klein, a University of Pennsylvania economist who is a top Carter adviser on the economy, has recommended to Carter a $10 to $15 billion tax cut or a quick increase in federal spending to stimulate the economy at the start of the new administration.

Carter said the news conference would be the first of many. "I hope that I can have at least two full-scale press conferences a month when I am President . . ." he said.

He began the conference by thanking his supporters and by saying: "No matter how anyone may have voted on Tuesday, for me or for President Ford or others, I deeply need the support of all the American people as we approach the time for a new administration next January."

In addition to thanking the defeated Ford for offering support, Carter added a word of thanks to Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller. He said he will take full advantage of their promised cooperation to smooth the transition between Republican and Democratic administrations.

Carter said the three percentage points in the popular vote and the majority of the electoral votes that made him President-elect provide a mandate adequate to the tasks he has set himself. "We had a clear majority of the total electorate . . ." he noted.

He said that with the election verdict, and with a Democratic Congress, the new administration will keep its campaign promises. But, he added, "I don't underestimate the difficulty."

HEW team of scientists will conduct PBB tests

By SUE STEWARD

State News Staff Writers

A task force of 35 scientists funded by the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare Thursday began examining 1,100 state residents in Grand Rapids believed to be exposed to PBB, a toxic chemical accidentally released into Michigan livestock feed in 1973.

Dr. Irving Selikoff, task force leader, said the team will try to determine if PBB — short for polybrominated biphenyl, a toxic fire retardant — had harmful effects on humans.

At a press conference in Grand Rapids on Wednesday Selikoff, a toxicologist from Mt. Sinai School of Medicine in New York, said he was apprehensive about eating meat tainted by PBB and he advised mothers not to breastfeed their children, since traces of PBB have been found in 85 per cent of Michigan mothers tested.

But the State Dept. of Public Health said Thursday that it will stand by a recommendation made last month that it was safe for Michigan mothers not living on contaminated farms to continue to breastfeed their children if they choose to.

"I can't comment on Dr. Selikoff's statements because I didn't hear them," a Dept. of Public Health spokesperson said. "But we made our decision based on day-long discussions with top experts and I could guess he was speaking from his own personal opinion."

The 35 scientists will run extensive tests on the residents at Grand Rapids' Kent Community Hospital, Selikoff said. The tests are expected to take from three to four hours for adults, and include detailed questioning for unusual symptoms, complete physical examinations, blood counts, urinalysis, X-rays and heart tests.

The scientists will conduct the tests over a six-day period and spend a three-month period analyzing the results.

Selikoff said the public will be informed of any serious symptoms found by the tests.

The study is being funded by a grant from HEW. It will mark the second federally funded program studying the effects of PBB on humans.

The State Dept. of Public Health has already conducted a number of studies on the effects of PBB on humans and animals.

The results of tests released last month by the department showed that 67 of 92 Michigan mothers tested this summer showed traces of PBB in their breast milk.

PBB was accidentally mixed with livestock feed in 1973, resulting in the destruction and disposal of over 30,000 head of livestock and about 1.5 million chickens. But the State Dept. of Public Health has said that it has not yet found harmful effects of the substance on humans.

Arriving in Michigan to begin the tests, Selikoff said, "We are prepared, and indeed, hope, to find no ill-health effects whatever resulting from PBB consumption. On the other hand, we feel it is essential that firm facts be obtained as quickly and as accurately as possible to clarify the situation one way or another."

Drug experiment plans dropped by court judge

BOSTON (AP) — A Massachusetts judge who said he wanted to sniff cocaine before deciding a case involving the drug has dropped his plans because the proposal "has taken on the dimensions of a circus act."

Judge Elwood McKenney issued a statement today in Roxbury District Court saying, "I feel that it will be impossible for the result to be meaningful, and I am, therefore, canceling the experiment."

He added his decision in the cocaine possession case against Richard Miller would be handed down in the near future.

McKenney said last week he would not rule on the case until he had tried the drug. Lawyers for the defendant argued the charges be dismissed on the grounds cocaine is a "harmless, nonaddictive recreational drug."

James Lawson, one of the lawyers representing Miller, had arranged for Richard Resnick, associate professor of New York Medical College and a director of the school's Division of Drug Abuse, Research and Treatment, to perform the experiment.

President-elect Jimmy Carter and his vice president-elect Walter Mondale, were at Carter's home in Plains, Ga., Thursday to discuss their administration plans and to meet with the press.

Officials call for E.L. housing, not improvements in landscape

By MICHAEL TANIMURA
State News Staff Writer

The apparent disregard of East Lansing's housing problems on the part of the city staff was attacked by two members of the city planning commission.

In assailing the staff's recommendations for the dispersal of federal Community Development (CD) monies, commissioners Darnell Dudley and Terry Linger joined City Planning Director Scott Radway in calling for more attention and concern to be directed toward East Lansing's housing emergency.

When reviewing the first proposed project description — urban landscape improvement of Grand River Avenue — at Wednesday night's meeting, Dudley said, "The city shouldn't be buying trees, curbs and other things with the money; it should be providing housing."

Linger said he agreed with Dudley's statement and recommended the city use the CD funding to buy land and provide for the development of much-needed housing.

East Lansing is expected to receive $602,000 from the Dept. of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for use in CD approved projects during the 1977 fiscal year.

Radway said the past planning commission and city council had felt that East Lansing did not really deserve the funding, and so spent the bulk of it on short-term projects such as improving recreational areas and planting trees.

Metro Squad releases drug bust data

By KAT BROWN and
SEAN HICKEY

The Tri-County Metro Narcotics Squad confiscated $847,353 in drugs from January 1975 to October 1976, according to figures released by the squad's Board of Control Thursday.

This figure, arrest statistics and other information regarding the operation of the Metro Squad covering this time period were released in response to a written request by the State News.

Over the two-year span, 879.3 grams of heroin worth $101,119 was seized, which accounted for 13 per cent of the street value of the squad's total haul. The marijuana confiscated, which constituted 40 per cent of the total, was 1,085 pounds worth $347,200. The proportion of marijuana to heroin seized was 3.4 to 1.

In determining the dollar figures at street value, the control board priced heroin at $115 per gram and marijuana at $20 per ounce.

The other drugs seized by the squad and priced by the board included: 120 barbiturates, worth $90; 2,463 doses of LSD, worth $2,463; 8,435 hits of Phencyclidine (PCP), worth $8,435; 9,356 grams of hashish, worth $46,780; 547 grams of cocaine, worth $58,765; 153,755 hits of Methamphetamine (speed), worth $115,316; 219,152 hits of amphetamines, worth $164,364; and 3,764 other "dangerous drugs", worth $2,822.

Not included in the totals are drugs seized during a September raid in which 11 Lansing area people were arrested and $279,887 worth of heroin and cocaine seized. These arrests resulted from an investigation by the DEA with help from the Metro Squad. The DEA is holding this evidence pending court action.

Over the same time period the board of control's report listed 603 arrests made by the Metro Squad during its operations. Of these arrests, 372 were for hard drugs, 151 for marijuana and 80 for nondrug-related crimes.

Out of the 603 arrests made for hard drugs by the squad, 177 were for heroin, which constitutes 29 per cent of the total. Marijuana arrests make up 25 per cent of the total and nondrug-related arrests, which include misdemeanors and felonies, accounted for 13 per cent of the total.

The report did not give conviction records as requested by the State News nor did the Board of Control release specific information concerning past raids such as the quantity and quality of the drugs seized.

Bill Oberlin, from the Drug Education Center (DEC), said figures from the United States Drug Enforcement Administration are exaggerated.

"Police figures are many times biased," he added.

Oberlin could not give an estimate for the street value of heroin because he said DEC handles only about 20 calls per month from students about heroin problems. But other sources contacted revealed conflicting reports.

Ben Parker, director of the New Birth Center where methadone treatment is administered, said a gram of heroin is worth anywhere from $45 to $85 depending on the quality. But a Lansing area drug dealer, who asked to remain anonymous, said a gram of street quality heroin costs about $70, while better quality heroin ranges from $90 to $110.

In their report covering the past two years, one uniformed officer of the Lansing Police Dept. was shot in the left leg on Aug. 30, 1976 while executing a search warrant.

However, William Cochran, director of the Metro Squad, said in an earlier interview that in 1971 his partner was shot in the face during a raid and survived. Cochran added that the suspect was subsequently killed.

The board's report stated that all personnel working with the Metro Squad are subject to the rules and regulations of their respective police agencies as well as policies and procedures set forth by these agencies. In addition, the control board has the authority "to establish other policies or procedures as the need might arise."

The State News also requested information as to whether the public or press could attend the Board of Control's monthly meetings. The board responded that these meetings involve discussion of confidential investigations and an opportunity for members of the squad to report on work currently in progress.

Iraq traded bases for planes

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iraq agreed two and a half months ago to give the Soviet Union air and naval bases in Iraq in exchange for $4 billion worth of advanced warplanes, warships, tanks and missiles, the weekly magazine Events reported Thursday.

The Arab weekly, which publishes an English-language edition in London and an Arabic edition in Beirut, said Iraq was replacing Syria as the Soviet Union's chief Arab ally.

"Obviously, the Soviets are aiming through this protocol to upstage Iran as the leading military power in the Persian gulf," Events said. "They are counting on strong nationalist feelings along the Arab shores of the gulf to forestall any permanent American military presence in its waters and traditional Arab rivalry with Iran to prevent joining of forces against the Soviet presence."

No confirmation was available for the report, which said the secret agreement was signed last Aug. 17.

Moslem youths sentenced to death

MANILA, The Philippines (AP) — Three Moslem youths have been sentenced to death for their part in an airplane hijacking in which 13 persons were killed last spring, the military said Thursday.

The three were convicted of air piracy, multiple murder and illegal possession of firearms and explosives. They are to be executed by a firing squad, the military said.

Six hijackers described as Moslem separatists seized a Philippine Airlines BAC111 jetliner en route to Manila from Davao, 550 miles to the south, last May 21. The plane was diverted to Zamboanga, 240 miles east of Davao.

Ten passengers and three hijackers were killed when government troops stormed the plane. The twin-engine jet was gutted by fire in the gun battle.

Quakes rumble through valley

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A swarm of mild earthquakes that rumbled through the Imperial Valley area of Southern California with jolts as large as 4.9 on the Richter scale continued Thursday with occasional small shudders.

The main flurry of about 60 quakes, which caused little damage, rolled across the irrigated farmland between 9:45 p.m. Wednesday and about 6 a.m. Thursday.

Radioactive bar stolen from car

MILTON, Mass. (AP) — A bar of radioactive material was missing Thursday from a stolen car found stripped and abandoned in a wooded area here, police said.

Police had described the missing material as dangerous and warned nearby residents of the situation. But investigators from the state Office of Radiation Control at the scene said the material was not as dangerous as was initially suspected.

About 30 policemen searched the area near where the car was stolen for what police described as a three-inch square of Cobalt 57.

"We're concerned someone will see a package, not knowing what it is — and that could be fatal," said a policeman at the scene.

Former MYSE chairperson dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Gustave L. Levy, former chairperson of the New York Stock Exchange and senior partner of the billion-dollar investment firm of Goldman, Sachs and Co., is dead at 66.

Levy died Wednesday night at Mount Sinai Hospital, where he had been hospitalized since suffering a stroke Oct.

Levy had been a member of Goldman, Sachs since 1933. He became a partner in 1945 and senior partner in 1969. The company has assets of $1.2 billion.

At the time of his death, he headed an eight-member management committee directing the operation of the firm.

Young, governor comment on Carter

DETROIT (UPI) — Coleman A. Young, Detroit's first black mayor, said the election of Jimmy Carter as a president who promises to address unemployment as his top priority will usher in a new era of prosperity in the city and country as well.

"I had a big personal stake in the outcome of this presidential election," Young said Wednesday after Carter defeated President Ford in Tuesday's balloting.

Gov. Milliken, whose efforts helped put Michigan in President Ford's column Tuesday, has sent congratulations to President-elect Jimmy Carter.

In a terse radiogram message to Carter's home town of Plains, Georgia, Milliken said, "My congratulations on your election victory. Although Michigan stood with her native son, all of us are now looking forward to working with you during the next four years."

UAW hurrying to settle strikes

DETROIT (UPI) — United Auto Workers negotiators were busy on two labor fronts Thursday — trying to settle a day-old walkout by 14,000 Ford of Canada workers and avoid a strike by 118,000 Chrysler Corp. workers on Friday.

In both instances, UAW officials were publicly optimistic. But they will have to make a decision by the end of the day whether a marathon, all-night meeting will be worthwhile to avoid a Chrysler strike on both sides of the border.

"We're making some progress," UAW Vice President Douglas A. Fraser, head of the union bargaining team at Chrysler, told reporters late Wednesday.

Romney calls for 'own answers'

DETROIT (UPI) — George Romney, former Michigan governor and Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, says officials in the Detroit area should develop their own solutions to problems — rather than turn to the federal government for answers.

Romney, who spoke Wednesday night at Wayne State University during a lecture series, advocated a regional government similar to one now pending before the state legislature.

1977 CAR COSTS CONTRIBUTE TO HIKE

Wholesale prices jump sharp

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices jumped sharply in October for the second straight month because of the biggest rise in industrial prices in a year, the Labor Dept. reported Thursday.

Higher costs for 1977 model cars, fuel and lumber products led a six-tenths of 1 per cent increase in the wholesale price index, a forerunner of prices consumers will eventually pay. A decline in farm prices kept the overall index from rising more sharply.

Though the October increase was smaller than September's nine-tenths per cent spurt, the report indicated continuing strong inflationary pressures on the economy.

President-elect Jimmy Carter has agreed with President Ford that inflation will be a serious concern next year and will probably be in the range of 6 per cent for the year.

During the presidential campaign, Carter said the government should play a more active role in getting private industry to restrain price increases.

Inflation at the wholesale level has increased at a 5.8 per cent annual rate over the past three months. For the past 12 months, prices rose 3.5 per cent the smallest year-to-year change since November 1971.

While the drop in farm prices is good news for grocery shoppers, the industrial price trend is a more disturbing sign for the economy.

Economists follow movements in industrial prices — which make up more than 70 per cent of the wholesale price index — more carefully than farm prices because industrial price changes are likely to have a prolonged impact on the overall price level. Food prices, even after adjustment for seasonal influences, fluctuate from month to month.

Industrial prices have risen steadily for the past months, increasing by tenths per cent in June, tenths in July and nine-tenths in September per cent last month. October rise was the steepest monthly increase since October when they rose cent.

Farm prices fell 1.2 per cent in October following a cent rise in September. Over the past three months, farm prices have fallen a per cent annual rate. Industrial prices climbed 11 per cent annual rate.

PLANE LANDS IN VIENNA

Polish airliner hijacked

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — A young Pole being deported from Denmark wielded dummy weapons made of bread colored with shoe polish to hijack a Polish airliner Thursday and force it to land in Vienna, officials said.

Police armed with machine guns ringed the plane of Poland's LOT airline as it landed at Vienna's Schwechat Airport, but the hijacker immediately surrendered and was taken into custody.

Police identified the man as Andrzej Jaroslaw Karasinski, 20, who they said had been ordered deported back to Poland after serving a four-month prison term in Denmark for burglary, theft and forgery.

The incident marked the second hijacking within a week involving an airliner of one of the Eastern European Communist countries. A Czechoslovak plane was hijacked to Munich last Friday.

Authorities said Thursday's hijacking occurred while the Polish airliner, a Soviet-made TU134 carrying 29 passengers, was flying over Polish territory on a flight from Copenhagen to Warsaw.

A passenger who had sat next to the hijacker said Karasinski brandished what appeared to be a hand grenade and a pistol as he quietly handed a stewardess a written note threatening to blow up the plane unless it was diverted to Vienna.

When the plane landed at the Austrian capital, passengers said, Karasinski quickly got up from his seat, grabbed his suitcase, nodded politely and said goodbye to fellow passengers, then left the plane and immediately surrendered to waiting police.

Police said it was found that the hand grenade and pistol were made of partially chewed rye bread colored with shoe polish.

In Copenhagen, Karasinski had been escorted to a liner by two Danish officers. But the bread "ons" did not register on metal detectors and were found in a search he boarded the plane. Austrian authorities to comment on whether Karasinski would be sent to Poland or tried on charges in Austria.

Gang planned revenge according to Japanese

TOKYO (AP) — China's ousted and disgraced "Gang of Four" had planned to set up a rival Communist party in the northeast industrial region after their coup attempt failed and from there counterattack Peking, a Japanese report said early Thursday.

Kyodo news service quoted informed Western sources in Peking as saying the four radical leaders — including the late Chairman Mao Tse-tung's widow Chiang Ching — intended to flee to Shenyang, formerly Mukden, Manchuria, about 400 miles northeast of Peking.

Kyodo's Peking correspondent said the sources, presumably diplomats, elaborated on Chinese official accounts by Shanghai wall posters the planned flight to Shenyang from Peking airport.

Peking's official media reported the four were to stage a coup against successor, Hua Kuo-feng, current whereabouts been disclosed.

Kyodo quoted the sources as saying that once the "Gang of Four" had established a second party headquarters in Shenyang, they would publicize false charges against the Peking leadership and then counterattack.

State News survey reveals viewpoints on election results

A survey taken by the State News Thursday showed that surprise was not one of the bigger elements involved in the outcome of the presidential race. Elation over the fact that Jimmy Carter will soon inhabit the White House and disappointment over the fact that President Ford will not prove to be the sentiments of those surveyed.

Colleen McClatchey, senior and Ford supporter, said she was not at all happy with the election outcome.

"It was a close race," she said, "and that's about the only concession for Ford supporters."

Milton Taylor, MSU professor of economics, viewed the outcome from a different standpoint.

"I think one of the happiest things about the presidential race is that Mondale will be vice president," Taylor said, adding that Mondale had been his hope for the presidency. "I think this may spring him into the presidency in the future as it has in the past in the cases of Nixon and Johnson."

"I don't know what effects Jimmy Carter will have on the issues," Harold Spaeth, MSU professor of political science, said. "I would guess he will be good for the future of the Supreme Court in that there will be a return to more liberal justices since Nixon and Ford."

Spaeth added that Senate seat winner Don Riegle will have a long way to go to fill the shoes of retiring Sen. Phil Hart.

Michael Dunning, freshman, said he was not surprised by Riegle's victory.

"There was a lot of shit said about Riegle by Esch but I thought Riegle would pull it off anyway," he said.

Sophomore Mark Navarre disagreed, saying the Senate results were disappointing. He said that opponent Marv Esch should have been elected since "he could have done a much better job."

Some of the people surveyed said they were influenced by the tactics used in the Carr-Taylor race.

"It was hard to judge who was telling the truth," Carole Rankin, sophomore, said. "Both proved the other one a liar so many times. I just wish I could have found out what the truth was."

Timothy Williams, junior, said he was glad Carr won the race, adding that mud-slinging is to be expected during campaigns.

"I'm not saying it's right or wrong," he said. "You have to make yourself look better than the other guy."

One student said she was turned off by the whole Carr-Taylor race and did not want to vote for either of them because of this.

Of all the proposals on the ballot, the passage of Proposal A sparked the most interest of those surveyed.

Fisheries and wildlife professor Howard Johnson said he was especially pleased with the proposal's victory.

"It is an intelligent move to not waste resources and energy within the state," he said.

Kirk Zell, junior, was not happy with the proposal's passage.

"I don't think that is the way to get at the polluters," he said.

Rankin said she was for the proposal and voted for it, but "now that it passed I am having second thoughts about it."

"I thought it would lose," she said.

One student, when asked for a reaction to the presidential election outcome, told the State News: "I don't know who won. I'm sorry."

Bicycles laws explained; officials say strict enforcement beginning

By JOE SCALES
State News Staff Writer

The bicyclist pedaling his way to a safer environment, the automobile is looked upon as a hulking mass of machinery waiting for an opportunity to mow any unprotected bicycle that gets in its way.

To the motorist, the bicycle is like some metal mosquito, zinging in and out of traffic and keeping the driver's braking foot in constant action.

The Dept. of Public Safety (DPS) and the East Lansing Police Dept., the bicyclist-lawyer conflict is one that too often has a serious ending.

In order to control the recent increase of accidents on the MSU campus and in Lansing, both police departments said they have started to strictly enforce the new bicycle ordinances and will continue to do so in the future.

East Lansing has also enacted several ordinances. Sgt. Greg McDonald of the East Lansing Police Dept. said. He said "we were made" to stop the bike accidents "which" occurring there.

The new ordinances went into effect last Monday and require bicyclists to operate under more stringent regulations. Bicyclists in East Lansing are now required to have their bikes, have pedal reflectors, tire sidewall reflectors or spoke reflectors if riding at night, and also to stop themselves if caught, violating the laws.

To help prevent thefts, bicyclists in East Lansing are now required to lock their bikes if they are parked or left unattended in public places and must not park bikes in areas designated for motor vehicle use.

McDonald said the East Lansing Police will be impounding and ticketing any bikes violating the new ordinance.

Major Adam Zutaut of the DPS said the Lansing police have given bicyclists twice as many tickets for traffic violations this year than for the same time last year.

Most of the tickets were given for running traffic controls, such as running red lights or signal lights. By law, bicyclists on the road are subject to the same regulations as automobiles.

Under the MSU bicycle ordinance it is unlawful for bicyclists to ride more than abreast on the road or to ride on the road when there are bike paths available. The MSU ordinance also says bicyclists are not to ride on pedestrian paths "unless walking the bike."

Where bicycle paths cross pedestrian paths, the bicyclist is required to yield to pedestrians.

Zutaut said the bicycle accident rate has increased this year and he attributed the accidents to "general carelessness" and "irresponsibility" on the part of bicyclists.

"They are ignorant of the law," he said. "They haven't taken upon themselves the responsibility to learn. I don't want to give the message that it's always the bicyclist's fault, but we don't have as many situations where the motorist is as irresponsible of the rights as are the bicyclists."

Most of these accidents between bicycles are caused by bicycles running out into the path of cars," Zutaut said. "You have the problem with bicycles running into cars and even other bicycles."

DPS Traffic Bureau said that from July 1 and Sept. 30 there have been a total of 30 bicycle accidents. Of these, 11 for the same time last year.

Of the 11 accidents, 11 involved a personal injury from a bicycle-car accident on a street compared to one of the same type for the same time last year.

The remainder of accidents either did not involve an injury in a car-bike accident or involved bicycles and other vehicles, pedestrians or curbs.

Zutaut said that in the past the DPS did not enforce the ordinances strictly, instead relying on warnings and educational programs to curb accidents.

This year, however, the DPS will be enforcing the regulations because, according to Zutaut, "we have found that the educational and warnings route has not worked."

CARTER AIDE, MSU PROFESSOR DEBATE

Adviser favors employment bill

By LAURIE SCATTERDAY
State News Staff Writer

The merits of the Humphrey-Hawkins full employment bill and the likely effects of the presidential election on U.S. employment policy were the focus of a debate Thursday between an MSU professor and an economic adviser to president-elect Jimmy Carter.

More than 300 faculty, students, and leaders of labor, management and government met at Kellogg Center to begin a two-day Anniversary Symposium of the MSU School of Labor and Industrial Relations.

The program began with a debate on the topic, "Should the government guarantee full employment?" Charles C. Killingsworth, MSU distinguished professor of economics, and labor and industrial relations and Michael L. Wachter, an economic adviser to president-elect Jimmy Carter and University of Pennsylvania professor of economics, exchanged their views on the subject.

Wachter said he fears the Humphrey-Hawkins Bill could cause inflation of 15 percent or more. Earlier this year he said that the bill could be "an albatross" for Carter, who endorsed the bill in principle.

Killingsworth is an advocate of public service employment and said there does not have to be a trade-off between inflation and unemployment.

Scott George, graduate student in the School of Labor and Industrial Relations, said the debate between Killingsworth and Wachter was "definitely the highlight of the program this far."

Killingsworth is a well-known author and an arbitrator of national reputation, presently serving as chairperson of the National Council on Employment Policy.

Wachter has served as consultant to the National Commission for Manpower Policy, the Congressional Budget Office, the Cost of Living Council and as a member of the Brookings Panel on Economic Activity.

President Wharton commended the School of Labor and Industrial Relations for its achievements since the establishment of the center in 1956.

"Today is important in the history of MSU," Wharton said. "We are here to celebrate and salute the anniversary of a school that is looked at as one of the most progressive innovations on campus."

Jack Stieber, director of the School of Labor and Industrial Relations, said that it first began as the Labor and Industrial Relations Center to serve the people in MSU's.

Former MSU president John A. Hannah was slated to speak at the conference but his duties at the United Nations as director of the World Food Program required him to remain in New York City.

Thomas H. Patten, professor in the School of Labor and Industrial Relations, chaired the selection committee to grant the Outstanding Alumni Award.

Patten presented the award to Marilyn Crane Morrish, who received the Master of Labor and Industrial Relations degree with distinction in 1969. While on campus she was a graduate assistant and recipient of the David F. Williams Fellowship, sponsored by Council Seven of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

Morrish is presently employed in a line management position as assistant administrator of the Oakland Kaiser-Permanente Medical Center and is responsible for administering a $10 million budget.

"This career progress perhaps represents the first time a member of the alumni of our school has made the transition from work as a specialist in personnel and labor relations into a line position in a major hospital," Patten said.

Today's symposium program will include a speech from John T. Dunlop, former U.S. Secretary of Labor and Lamont University Professor at Harvard University.

Also included in today's program is a 2 p.m. session on "Collective Bargaining in Professional Sports." Speakers include Mike Marshall, Atlanta Braves pitcher; Ted Bond, president of the Cleveland Indians; Edward R. Garvey, executive director of the National Football League Players Assn.; and Sargent Karch, executive director of the Management Council of the National Football League.

YEAR'S PLANS TO BE MADE SALT sets meet here

By GEORGIE HANSHEW
State News Staff Writer

Students Associated for Lower Tuition (SALT), a statewide organization of colleges and universities, will hold its first meeting of the year Sunday at MSU. Representatives from about 20 colleges are expected to gather in the ASMSU board room in 328 Student Services Bldg. from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.

SALT recently helped organize and carry out a boycott of classes and a rally at the state Capitol, in which almost 1,000 Michigan students participated, to protest tuition hikes.

The rally, SALT Director Nancy Christianson said, "was extremely successful."

She said one of its most important achievements was that it showed other students "that you're not alone in the struggle." Talking to Michigan legislators after the rally, Christianson said she learned that "all of them were somewhat impressed with the turnout."

Sunday's meeting is designed to set a course for SALT's activities for the year, said Ted Gadawski, a member of SALT and legislative liaison for Wayne State University's student government.

"We are going to be discussing the key directions that SALT is going to want to take this year," Gadawski said.

Another important issue to be discussed, he said, is "the necessity for involvement of the member schools."

Christianson said she hopes that SALT can help the student governments of the member colleges to organize a fight against "upcoming tuition increases."

She said she would like to see a lobbying effort by members of SALT in the state legislature. Gov. Milliken is expected to "chop down" legislative appropriations for higher education, Christianson said, and strong support among the legislators is going to be needed in order to override this expected veto.

ASMSU President Michael Lenz said that Sunday's meeting would be a good time to start planning another protest against tuition hikes for the spring, when the legislature will start working on a budget for the next fiscal year.

"Any student who wants to attend and put forth their opinions is welcome (at the meeting)," Christianson said.

WMSN's FM move remains constrained

By JONICIPRIANO
State News Staff Writer

The possibility of MSU's campuswide station, WMSN, going FM in the future is being blocked by political and economic factors.

John Nagy, special programs director for WMSN, said even though the idea of going FM has been in the minds of WMSN personnel for over 14 years, the prospects for turning campus radio into stereo FM, to be tuned in by all of East Lansing, are still pretty dim.

Part of the stall lies in the fact that the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) license, if obtained, would have to be held by the MSU Board of Trustees.

"The trustees would have very little to gain from this, except for some popularity with the students and plenty of extra responsibility from the federal agencies to contend with," Nagy said.

In addition, the board of trustees would have no desire to alienate local media which do a lot of public relation "freebies" for MSU, Nagy said.

Another problem exists in the fact that the educational band (from which the FCC allows educational channels to broadcast) is at the bottom of the FM dial and this is right next to WJIM, Channel Six, Nagy said.

Carl Onker, engineer for WJIM, said WMSN, if it became an FM station, would have trouble with many irate area viewers who could no longer tune in Channel Six on their televisions.

"We get some interference from WKAR right now," Onker said. "A 10-watt noncommercial FM station like WMSN would block out Channel Six for a lot of viewers."

The University of Michigan's campus station, WCBN, went FM a few years ago. The station is currently in court due to causing interference with Channel Six.

"We're having the same problem right now with Channel Six that MSU would have if you went FM," Jim Paffenbarger, chief engineer of WCBN, said.

The FCC is looking over a proposal which would allow 10-watt noncommercial stations to use commercial bands, Paffenbarger said, and this would probably be MSU's only chance of obtaining an FM frequency.

"We're also having a hassle with Eastern Michigan University's FM station," Paffenbarger said. "They want to increase their power and, in order to do that, they want to change frequency locations, moving us down the band and moving down themselves. This would only bring us even closer to Channel Six."

One possibility that might allow all three schools to enjoy FM stations without interfering with WJIM is to construct a television transmitter, Paffenbarger said. This

Campaign literature filed like junk mail

When candidates or their workers go door to door and find someone not home they usually stuff the campaign material under the door mat. Cliff Taylor, who was out stumping last weekend, arrived at one house where the mat had quite a bit of literature stuffed underneath.

Taylor told another campaign worker, "You really know a voter is apathetic when there is a Humphrey-Muskie leaflet still under the doormat." Yes, Taylor left more.

On another note, some members of the Student Advisory Group to the President decided to put labels on a Proposal C pamphlet ASMSU was mailing to the parents of MSU students. Only one administrator joined in and helped stick on the mailing labels. Later, Roger Wilkinson, vice president of business and finance, said he was actually the vice president of labels, when someone asked him his title.

'Hot line' temperature cools

Believe it or not, the State News "Hot line" has been closer to being lukewarm lately because of a surprising new answering service.

Recently a staff member decided to call the newsroom using the "Newsline." Ma Bell interrupted and said, "This is a recording: the number you have dialed is no longer in service."

Apparently the wrong number has been published several times, which has resulted in a very few news tips.

For the record, the correct "Newsline" number is: 353-3382.

Hold Carter to claims

It sometimes seems that politics in our system is not the art of accomplishing, but rather the art of running for office. Accomplishment, it seems, only matters in the light of the benefit it gives the campaigner.

The length and virulence of this year's campaign seems to support this.

However, anyone can see the tension between facing problems squarely and facing those same problems with the securing of an office as the end in mind.

Our founding fathers agonized over what to do about this tension in the office of president: How long a term should the president serve? Should there be a prohibition against re-election to the office?

These same questions have returned to us of late simply because we fear that our candidates are forever running and never getting anything accomplished. It is from this skeptical position that Jimmy Carter's election and his future actions must be judged.

If Carter is really concerned with restoring trust, his first actions should be towards solving those problems he raised so effectively as campaign issues.

One way in which the American press and public can help the Carter administration is not to forget that long list of promises:

- Carter has promised to reform the tax structure, which he often referred to as a "disgrace" to the human race.

- Carter has promised to restructure the government, making it more accessible and more efficient.

- He has promised a balanced budget by the end of his first term.

- He hopes to achieve that balanced budget, and has promised such, by putting our people back to work. Whether this means specifically the passage of the Humphrey-Hawkins bill, a substitute, or some other measure, it is clear that jobs should be high in Carter priorities.

- Carter has promised a comprehensive, national health care plan. It should not be blindly supposed, as Carter himself has pointed out, that all of these promises will be immediately acted upon; but Carter indicated in various interviews his dedication to keeping his promises as a contract with the people.

Jimmy Carter ran on trust, and his election indicates, in part, that he was believed when he said that he was the man who could bring us together and solve those problems which afflict us.

Too often in the past the shopping list of problems has created an even longer list of rhetorical phrases. Carter's claim is that he has a list of solutions, and we should hold him to that claim.

Smith muddles talks

The saga of Zimbabwe's struggle for independence continues with another tortuous turn. Prime Minister Ian Smith of Zimbabwe (the black nationalists' preferred term for Rhodesia) left Geneva Wednesday during negotiations with African black nationalists over transferring power of the white-minority regime to the black majority.

His departure occurred after failing to reach agreement with the African leaders on when the transfer would occur. With this action, Smith has shown that it was necessary for Zimbabwe's blacks to continue guerilla warfare in order to protect themselves.

With recent developments throughout Southern Africa, it was not surprising that Smith accepted Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's proposal for black majority rule in Zimbabwe. But ever since Zimbabwe's secession from Britain in 1965 — even with Smith's acceptance — he has never given the country's 6.4 million blacks reason to trust him. And guerilla warfare has been the only avenue open to speed up the process of independence for the blacks of Zimbabwe.

The talks between the black and white delegations, which began Oct. 21 and are chaired by Britain's ambassador to the United Nations, focused on the date for independence because it was seen as the least controversial aspect of continued negotiating.

If Smith cannot even deal with this issue, it is frightening to imagine how he will deal with more complicated negotiations, in particular, the setup of the interim government, which was disrupted when Kissinger first made his proposal.

Originally, the changeover to majority rule would be composed of a Council of State and a Council of Ministers. The ministers would be responsible for the day-to-day operation of the government and would consist of a black majority to be headed by a black. But the Council of State, which would be responsible for legislation, drafting a new constitution and holding the nation's actual power, would be equally composed of blacks and whites but headed by a white.

The interim government will surely be one of the primary disputes if it has a chance to be brought up. In addition, Smith has been indefinite on whether he will accept the principle of one-person, one-vote.

Robert Mugabe, the most militant of the black nationalists, said there would be "wanton killing" by guerillas. In order to deter such action, it is imperative that a workable solution be arrived at to prevent the further bloodying of African soil.

VIEWPOINT: PLP

SLP misrepresented

By RICHARD J. WHITNEY

This viewpoint is written in response to the viewpoint that appeared in the Nov. issue of the State News, entitled "Ruling Class Guarantees," by Paul J. Kuipers, the piece contains a glaring misrepresentation of the program of the Socialist Labor party (SLP).

The SLP has never been so "naive" as to think "that it is possible to 'elect' socialism." Socialism is democratic ownership and control of the means of production. This entails the abolition of the state, its coercive authority supplanted by the economic self-authority of the democratically organized workers. That is why we have unequivocally and consistently upheld the position that socialist industrial unions must be the means by which socialism must be achieved.

There are only two reasons why we exist as a political organization. The first is because the political sphere is the arena for discussion of social issues; it is therefore the logical place in which to agitate for the economic solution. Secondly, the electoral process can act as a gauge of support, necessary to effectively and legitimately make the transition to socialism. Socialism cannot exist until a majority of workers for it, anyway.

As for the question of violence, we are not pacifists. If the majority of workers in this country desire socialism, they have the revolutionary right to abolish capitalism. Should the capitalists attempt to use power, they must be dealt with in whatever fashion is necessary.

Unlike the PLP, however, we are preoccupied with violence as a dogmatically asserted that it is a revolutionary necessity. Historically speaking, such a position tends to stress military action without bothering to promote the organizing of the workers for self-management. Instead of a social revolution, the SLP is merely a revolt; instead of socialism, it is a new ruling class who happen to call themselves "communists."

This same ignorance of the essence of socialism is evident in Kuipers' "solid" Karl Marx had a reason for insisting the Rules of the First International in the phrase, "...the emancipation of working classes must be conquered by working classes themselves..." It is a contradiction to expect working self-authority to be the result of obedience to an external authority, even so "communist leadership."

The only result of such a course would be a society of "associations of free equal producers," as Marx advocated would rather be the same result characterized every nation in which Leninist group has come to power: economic policy-making power in the hands of a Leninist ruling-class elite, the continued exploitation of workers under the system and even fewer civil liberties are enjoyed in the United States.

Whitney is a junior majoring in telecommunications, and a member of the SLP.

Letter policy

The Opinion Page welcomes all Readers should follow a few rules to that as many letters as possible appear.

All letters should be typed on both sides and triple-spaced. Letters must be signed, and include local address, faculty or staff standing — if any — phone number.

Letters should be 25 lines or less and be edited for conciseness to fit more on the page.

No unsigned letters will be accepted. Names are withheld from publication for good cause.

MSU crime

According to a recent FBI crime report, MSU ranked No. 1 of a sampled 138 universities in the United States. In the State News of Oct. 29, MSU spokespeople reacted to this report. The entire article consisted of their criticism of the report and their excuses for MSU's top-ranking in the collegiate crime race. Admittedly, some were valid points concerning the report's methodologies and relative accuracy.

However, an earlier State News article this fall revealed that the vast majority of the DPS's time was spent on traffic and parking control. This emphasis precluded

Service bracelet

Today I am returning the bracelet awarded to me for 15 years of service as a clerical-technical employee of the MSU Library. I have been employed at the level of VII for 10 years with no unsatisfactory service rating. I have been reclassified to a library clerk III, which is at the rate schedule of a VI on the old scale. On May 3 Richard Chapin presented awards to Ruth Biscard, Fleta Gacki, Mirdza Kuze and me for our service to the MSU Library. This service totals 75 years.

This week Fleta, Mirdza and I were given another expression of how you feel about career employees of the library — we were all downgraded as our jobs were reclassified according to your recommendations. A survey of other Library employees who hold awards for 15 years or more of continuous service reveals that all who received notice of classification are now at a lower rate schedule than before.

I think this may be of public interest to the board of trustees and the campus community.

Helmets

After a recent Spartan football practice, I asked one of the players why the team's helmets had the respective players' numbers on them instead of the traditional Spartan head. He replied, "It (the change) was coach Rogers' idea... personally I prefer the head, also."

Everyone that I've asked also prefers the Spartan symbol. I mean, anyone who can't tell who they are trying to identify on the field by looking at either sleeve or the front or back of the jersey shouldn't be at the game anyway! I realize that our new head mentor must be given freedom to handle the system, however, changes such as this have no bearing on the past, but could lead to further crowd dissatisfaction (I mean, no matter what happens, MSU will always be the Spartans). We respect ya, coach Rogers, but let's show everyone who we are... the proud and mighty Spartans of MSU.

Traffic

Too often pedestrians walk directly in front of the cyclist's path, forcing a quick speed reduction, or if that's not possible, a swerve to the right, into the curb or to the left — possibly into the grill of an automobile.

Sometimes this is attributable to lack of courtesy, and other times it may just be the result of the pedestrian being attentive only to the roar of a V-8.

It's appalling the disrespect shown by my fellow cyclists to 1) other cyclists 2) pedestrians and 3) motorists. Every day I see pedestrians flinch, dodge and then glower at cyclists who whiz past them on the sidewalks just inches away. Every day I see cyclists disregarding the light and plowing their way through the throng crossing Farm Lane at the river. And every day I see cyclists heading the wrong way on one-way streets.

These are dangerous and flagrant violations of the traffic code.

So I'm appealing to my fellow cyclists to show some respect to others and to the law. If the situation continues to worsen, we will no longer be the "free-wheelers" we are now.

An unnatural, sinful act—death

WASHINGTON — October-November is the season of the harvest and nature's most psychedelic colors. It is also the season of ghosts, of Halloween and of skeletons doing the dance macabre in the night, one of the periods of the year when we observe the Cult of the Dead. For this is the time of Veterans' Day when wreaths are laid at tombs where the soldiers stand guard and where flags and flowers are put on graves less grand.

Nothing in this world or the next would seem to be more settled, less changeable than the rituals and practices of death, but it's not so. Our attitudes and behavior have changed fairly frequently through the centuries and may be about to change again. Our dying and our deaths are expressions of our life and our living, and the outward signs are that we'd like to make some changes if we only knew what and how.

We're at something of a crossroads as to how to dispose of our bodies. Cremation or burial or some form of preservation? In much of Western Europe, it appears, cremation and the rapid nullification of any public expression of memory of the dead is on the ascendancy. This isn't, of course, true of the state's official observance, like the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, but the outward signs of mourning so universal in the 19th century have vanished on both sides of the Atlantic. Black bunting is now seen only, and even rarely, at the church where the funeral services take place; the black arm bands for the men and the mourning clothes for women are unheard of. Restrictions of activities for a period after a death are now confined to the official Cult of the Dead, the keeping of flags at half mast, the cancellation of parties and other activities which might be deemed inappropriately gay.

In the last four or five decades it has become increasingly unseemly for private people to show what's now considered excessive grief. He who wails too long the loss of his beloved is liable to find himself face to face with psychiatry. Death is bad and it's banished. It's been pointed out that whereas the Victorians did their best to suppress sex in all its manifestations, they reveled in death. Prolonged mourning, visiting graves and such is a very 19th century activity. In fact, it wasn't until the 17th century that the common run of people had individualized graves for their bereaved kin to visit. Prior to that most people were buried in a common field next to the church around which galleries were constructed. The bones from these common graves would sometimes come to the surface, as in Hamlet's "Alas! poor Yorick."

or sometimes they would be dug up and used to decorate the galleries. This was the original charnel house and, far from terrifying and disgusting our ancestors, there was a good deal of socializing and carrying on in such places, until in 1231 the Church Council of Rouen forbade the practice. Evidently people weren't as respectful of authority as they might have been because two centuries later the forces of law and order were still issuing decrees against gambling and merrymaking in the cemeteries.

By the 19th century all that had changed, and we had highly individualized mortuary art in which the simple headstone had given way to the declaratory figures of angels and such. Now that's gone. Death has become a secret subject; too awful and taboo to speak of to children. The act of dying is done in such privacy that many hospitals discourage the presence of relatives or friends, a practice that would have been appalling and incomprehensible to people 100 years ago.

There are probably millions of us who have seen other people mate but have never seen another human die. An absolute reversal of the past, of the Victorian death scene with the children and grandchildren and great grandchildren around the bed with minister and friends of the family in attendance. We, on the other hand, can't teach our children about sex young enough, but never is death mentioned. Death is looked on as such an unnatural, sinful act that even the most ardent advocates of capital punishment can't be heard talking in favor of public execution. You would imagine that if execution is a deterrent to crime, televising our electrocutions and our gas chamber dramas would teach the lesson even more vividly. But the mere suggestions of such an idea make most people gag.

Our ancestors, who went with the flow of life somewhat more harmoniously than we, weren't disturbed at seeing the hangman do his job in the public squares and market-places. Death wasn't as horrible or as wrong and therefore probably not as fascinating. The 16th century had grotesque death fantasies, the dancing skeletons and the dramatic depictions of decomposition, the vividly rich ghoulish style. The 19th century saw the death romanticism of the lovers who lived to die sweet deaths in each other's arms. Beautiful tubercular deaths were quite the rage.

Our passion now is for hidden, mysterious deaths. We can't get enough of the lonely deaths of movie stars and pop singers. Marilyn Monroe and Janis Joplin. They always die offstage, but if we don't permit ourselves to see them commit suicide or allow death in our homes, we'll watch it for hours when it comes in the form of violence. It's almost as if it had to shoot its way into our conscious recognition with magnum force.

More and more, those of us who can face our own mortality, don't wish to perish out of sight and out of sync. So there is now talk not only of natural childbirth at home but natural death at home as well. There is even discussion of motels for the dying, or mortels, as you might call them, where we might escape the lonely and hidden death of the hospital to depart this earth with our friends and relatives nearby. Requiessat in pace.

Debates helped Carter more, poll says

NEW YORK (AP) — The televised debates between Gerald R. Ford and Jimmy Carter benefited Carter more than the President, according to a new Associated Press survey of voters on election day found that Carter's position on abortion and did not wipe out concerns about his position on issues.

The survey also found that the debates exerted less influence on Ford voters, but they also helped expand supporters' knowledge about his stands on issues.

The AP survey was conducted on Nov. 2 at 100 scientifically selected precincts across the country, ranging from several in New York City to those in remote rural areas. In a unique cooperative effort, reporters from AP member newspapers and broadcast stations joined AP staffers and stringers to do the interviewing.

Asked how much influence the debate had on their decision who to vote for, 44 per cent of the Carter supporters said the portions of the debates they watched had a "great deal" or "some" influence on their decision.

By contrast, only 36 per cent of the Ford voters said the debates they watched had swayed their decision to that degree.

Overall, agreement with the candidate on the issues was the reason cited most by all the voters in their decision who to vote for. And the poll found that they knew far more about the candidates when they voted than they had in May.

Each of the 2,487 voters interviewed by the AP survey was asked where the candidate they voted for stood on four major issues — government-guaranteed jobs, an anti-abortion amendment, more money for national defense and national health insurance.

On all four issues, more supporters of each man named his position correctly than named it incorrectly.

The margins were as large as the 70 per cent to 18 per cent edge by which Carter voters said he supports comprehensive national health insurance and the 70 per cent to 23 per cent bulge by which Ford backers said he opposes the federal government guaranteeing jobs for all those who want them.

When broken down into those who watched the debates and those who did not, Carter voters who watched the debates were from five to nine points more likely to name his position correctly than those who did not watch the debates.

Ford backers who watched the debates were even more well versed — naming the President's position correctly more often by a 9- to 13-point margin over those who did not.

These findings do not prove the debates were the source of the information on the candidates. For one thing, those who watched the debates tended to be the better educated voters who are expected to have a better idea of candidates' positions. But education cannot account for all of the variation found by the survey, leaving the debates as a major factor.

But the survey also found that Carter is still viewed as fuzzy on the issues.

About one out of five of his own supporters agreed that "it's hard to know where he stands on the issues" and 35 per cent more said there was no difference between Carter and Ford on that trait.

WOODCOCK TAGGED FOR HEW POST

Capitol predicts Carter's Cabinet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It didn't take long after Jimmy Carter was sworn up the presidency for the capital to begin armchair guessing on who will be in the new Cabinet.

The game played, essentially, in the dark. Carter and his aides have given no clues who will be selected.

Hamilton Jordan, Carter's campaign manager, once said in an interview that the Carter administration will be led by the top by persons not known nationally. If well-known names are named, he said, the Carter drive will have failed.

Nevertheless, familiar Democrats from past administrations are in the first wave of speculation.

Watson, an Atlanta attorney who has been working since Carter's transition plans, said in an interview last week that "personally choose his Cabinet secretaries and some of the agency heads."

There are about 200 "key policy positions in the administration" to be filled, and Watson said a substantial number of would be "selected in a collaborative way between the President and the Cabinet."

He indicated an early selection will be a director for the Office of Management and Budget. Very soon after his inauguration Carter will face major economic decisions in connection with the fiscal 1978 budget, which Congress begins considering early in the year. His staff already is working on budget proposals.

Ford will submit a budget proposal, but Carter will be free to recommend his own modifications.

As to the Cabinet, here is some of the early speculation:

- Secretary of state — Maybe Zbigniew Brzezinski, Carter's foreign affairs adviser for the campaign and an expert on communism, or James Schlesinger, dismissed by Ford as defense secretary and one of those with whom Carter has conferred. Perhaps someone whose ideas were shaped under previous Democratic administrations, like George Ball, Cyrus Vance or Paul Warnke.

- Defense secretary — AFL-CIO President George Meany, according to aides, would be pleased to see Schlesinger get this job back. Others have suggested perhaps Vance, a former Army secretary, or Harold Brown, former Air Force secretary.

- Labor secretary — Meany thinks an "obvious" choice would be John Dunlop, who resigned from that post nearly a year ago after President Ford vetoed a construction industry picketing bill he had promised Dunlop he would sign. Other labor sources considered Dunlop a likely choice.

- Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare — Those same labor sources predicted Carter would tap United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock, who is known to be interested.

- Agriculture secretary — P.R. "Bobby" Smith, who managed Carter's farm policy campaign; Reps. Bob Bergland, D-Minn., or Neal Smith, D-Iowa.

- Attorney general — Judge Griffin B. Bell of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. Robert M. Morgenthau Jr., son of the late U.S. Treasury secretary and a former U.S. attorney in New York City, is another possibility.

Students cheer Carter victory

ATHENS (UPI) — Hundreds of Greek Cypriot students left their classes Thursday and staged noisy demonstrations to celebrate Jimmy Carter's presidential victory in the United States.

Students gathered outside the U.S. Embassy chanting slogans such as "Carter save us — Carter's victory our hope." They also carried a coffin through the streets with a sign that read "Kissinger you are dead" in reference to the U.S. policy of state.

The high school demonstrators, 2,500 by police estimate, moved peacefully after delivering the United Nations resolutions on Cyprus.

The U.N. passed a resolution last November calling for removal of all foreign troops and immediate negotiations settlement of the Mediterranean island.

Carter's victory raised hopes among Greek Cypriots that his administration will exert stronger pressure on Turkey to withdraw from the northern half of the island and on the 200,000 Greek Cypriot refugees — one-third of the island — to return to their homes.

Most Greek Cypriots blamed President Ford and Kissinger for the 1974 invasion and continuing occupation of the north of the island by the Turks.

Cypriot Archbishop Makarios sent a message to Carter on Wednesday, saying his victory "has been hailed with joy and expectations by the Greek Cypriot people."

At the same time, student demonstrators attempted to set fire to the U.S. Embassy in a violent anti-American demonstration. The protest was sparked by a Ford-Kissinger decision to grant $1 billion in military aid.

President will get pension, protection

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford will leave the White House on Jan. 20 with an annual government pension of more than $90,000 and an additional $96,000 a year for staff and office expenses.

He also will have round-the-clock Secret Service protection for the rest of his life.

The President will receive $63,000 annually as a former chief executive and about $30,500 from other government service. The second figure is compiled on the basis of his 24 years as a Congressman and two years of service in the Navy.

As a former President, Ford will be given furnished and equipped office space in a federal building, probably in the Washington area since he is expected to move back to his home in nearby Alexandria, Va.

He will have franking privileges. Salaries for his staff will be paid from the expenses. By law, he can pay up to $44,600 to one staffer. A past president is paid the same salary as a cabinet member.

Official proposes detergent ban

By NANCY JARVIS
State News Staff Writer

Steps toward a statewide ban on household detergents containing more than .5 per cent phosphorus by weight are currently underway at the Michigan Dept. of Natural Resources (DNR).

The ban has been proposed by Howard Tanner, director of the DNR, in an effort to protect the quality of Michigan's lakes and streams. Phosphorus is harmful to these waters, Tanner said, because it causes excessive growth of algae which in turn creates oxygendeficient conditions. These conditions have been detected in Lake Superior near Marquette and Munising, in Lake Michigan's Green Bay and in Lake Huron's Saginaw Bay.

"It has been well established that phosphorus is an essential nutrient which promotes growth of algae, weeds and other aquatic plants," Tanner said. "Both state and federal environmental protection programs already require that phosphorus removal facilities be added to municipal sewage-treatment plants across the nation to eliminate the phosphorus polluting problem."

However, Tanner said such facilities are not being installed quickly enough to halt the degrading process. And Russell Train, head of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, said that even after phosphorus removal facilities are installed, the effects are not considered adequate enough.

The DNR has two alternatives to implement a phosphorus reduction ban. First, it could pass new legislation at the state level, or it could implement an administrative rule change which was provided for in the 1971 Public Act that limited the detergent phosphorus content to 8.7 per cent by weight.

Mike Stiffler, sanitary engineer for the DNR, said the DNR is looking for ways to control and reduce phosphorus by "reasonable means."

"It would be difficult to control the use of fertilizers on farms," he said. "So we are working at sewage-treatment plants and detergents."

The Natural Resource Commission (NRC) has stressed that it wants as much public input as possible before making a decision on the proposal.

Public hearings have been scheduled throughout the state, with one at the Lansing Civic Center at 10 a.m. Dec. 8. Letters and personal comments will be accepted until Dec. 22.

After the scheduled public hearings, a final recommendation from the water resource commission will be delivered to the Natural Resource Commission. The commission will then either pass or reject the proposal. If it is passed, the legislature will consider it, and if that result is positive, an administrative rule would be implemented.

Stiffler said if all goes according to plan, the ban would take effect July 1, 1977. He said this date allows "enough lead time" for the necessary steps.

"We do not want a hard pinch on manufacturing," he said. He added that there are not many detergent manufacturers in Michigan, but the Soap and Detergent Assn. from New York and Washington, D.C., have already been lobbying here.

Indiana, Illinois and Akron, Ohio, already have phosphate bans. A ban in Minnesota, to be effective Jan. 1, is currently being contested.

Phosphorus finds its way into lakes and streams via sewers and overland into rivers from improperly disposed of detergents.

FOOD FOR

GOURMET FOOD FROM ALL OF CHINA

At Imperial Gardens, 2080 Gr. River, Okemos, the "real thing" is the only dish served. The chefs, originally from Hong Kong, prepare three styles of Chinese cuisine: the famous Peking duck from the north, the szechuan style, featuring highly peppered food, and cantonese style, lightly flavored dishes. The specialty at Imperial Gardens is the spicy szechuan style dishes such as chicken with peanuts, governors shimp or shredded beef. For those who prefer a lighter flavor, try the Family delight chicken, shrimp, lobster, crab, and chinese vegetables. Of course there's always chop suey, chow mein or egg foo yong.

Another specialty here are the delicious tropical fruit drinks: frozen daquiris, punches, and other concoctions. Draft beer and wine are also available.

Businessmen lunches are offered on weekdays at special prices. A large variety of weekend specials are offered at considerably lower price than those on the menu. Group dinners for a number of people are also available. With these specials, and the wide price range, dinner tonight at Imperial Gardens is definitely affordable.

And if you're short of time, call first, and your dinner can be ready to carry out.

IS THERE LIFE AFTER COLLEGE?

It depends on what "life" means....
For most of us, life is a good job, a good wife, a good house, a good car.

For some (and perhaps for you) this is not enough. The "good life" somehow is not enough. Life must mean something different: the attempt to live in union with God, to serve others, to give as totally and as generously as you can.

The Paulists offer a way of life which can satisfy young men who seek more than the "good life." As a small community of Catholic priests, we have worked for over a century throughout the United States and Canada—from Manhattan to Toronto, from Greensboro to Houston, from Los Angeles to Fairbanks. Our mission? To speak the message of Jesus Christ to this modern world; to communicate His shattering love and overwhelming forgiveness in a time and world where He so often seems absent.

To do so, we are actively involved in parish work, preaching, adult education, campus ministry, publishing and mass communications. We are missionaries; we are bridge-builders. We seek to serve the Gospel in ever new ways.

The Paulist life is not an easy one. But one who dares will find rewards beyond expectation, satisfactions beyond dreams. But not complete satisfaction, for we are constantly searching to make the Gospel real to more people in today's world.

Don't let your idealism die. Discover what our community can mean to you.

ABOUT THESE PRESENTATIONS

Pioneer's "98 Years of Audio" briefly traces the history of sound reproduction from early Edison phonographs through the first stereo units and into quadraphonic.

Leonard Feldman is one of the best-known authorities in the audio industry. As contributing editor of Audio magazine, he regularly reports on current happenings and future trends in this rapidly-changing field.
In his seminars he will discuss the hows and whys of selecting stereo components.

Yamaha's "Learn to Listen" is an exciting, informative multi-media presentation that starts with the basics of high fidelity and moves into the most sophisticated audio component systems available. You'll find it fascinating, whether you're an audiophile or just enjoy fine music and want to get started in stereo.

Victor Brocner is vice president of engineering for Avid Speaker Corporation. He also is a charter member of the Audio Hall of Fame (along with Saul Marantz, Avery Fisher, and John Koss). He will discuss "Loudspeaker Design: Mystery, Art, or Engineering."

Paul Miller is advertising and product manager of Maxell Corporation. He will provide instruction in exactly what happens when tape meets recording head and how it can be controlled. Title of his program is "How to Make Better Recordings."

Existentialism rules 'The Infernal Machine'

By PETER J. VACCARO
State News Reviewer
The Arena Theatre is currently playing Jean Cocteau's

1934 drama, "The Infernal Machine."
Cocteau's play is a curiosity of sorts — one of those clever adaptations from Greek tragedy that sprang with such frequency from the pens of the French moderns.

Cocteau, along with his contemporaries Sartre, Camus, Anouilh and Giraudoux, had found in Greek myth vehicles for theatrical expression of the existential thought that so dominated a war-torn Europe.

The Oedipus myth, source for Cocteau's drama, offers a world in which man is caught up in the "infernal machine" of fate, from which there is no way out. We all know the story. We know that horrible things are going to happen, and that no one can stop them from happening. And so much for theme.

The Arena Theatre production, under the direction of Farley Richmond, treats Cocteau's play very much as an historical curiosity. Costumes are 1930-modern. Sets are 1930-free-form. They all function well enough, and seem appropriate enough.

But the idea of the production lags with the idea of the play. For whatever theatricality there is, and for whatever spectacle, we are aware primarily of existential thought on stage, and thought does not by itself make for brilliant theatre. The production is long and tiring, and the audience feels a bit more taught than delighted.

Carolyn Fry, the production's Jocasta, is a spirited actress. She moves well and is gifted with a lovely, resonant voice. If her stage diction is a little out of keeping with the untrained voices of others in the company, it is welcome for its quality. There may be some problem in believing her age — she is, after all, her husband's mother — but I suppose we might as well suspend disbelief and say it's a built-in problem, not only of the play, but of Arena Theatre closeness.

Stephen Jones, as the Oedipus of the production, is seen in his first major role in arena theatre. His young Oedipus is charming in its innocence and naivete. Though he lacks the control that comes with experience and stronger direction, particularly in so mannered a performance, he struggles valiantly with a role that would challenge a far more experienced actor.

"The Infernal Machine" continues in the Arena Theatre the University Auditorium through Saturday. Curtain 8:15 p.m.

'GONE WITH THE WIND' TO DEBUT ON TV

Scarlett flirts, dances through epic

By KATHY ESSELMAN
State News Reviewer
The South will rise again Sunday.

"Gone With the Wind" leaves the big screen for the small one this weekend — a proper celebration for Jimmy Carter's victory.

Love, life, sex and spectacle — "Gone With the Wind" is the film that won eight Oscars and the hearts of generations of teen-age girls.

Never before and never again did a film extravaganza use a large canvas so successfully. Racial and sexual attitudes may look bizarre, but remember, the film was produced in 1939, before Women's Lib, before WWII and before the civil rights movement.

The film stars Clark Gable, Vivien Leigh and a cast of thousands (who narrowly preserved their lives during the overly realistic burning of Atlanta). The Clark Gable mystique remains intact, as does the siren image of pre-war Southern society.

Victor Fleming won an Oscar for acting as field marshal of this undertaking, which staged the war and the intimate scenes with equal finesse. He replaced George Cukor on the project. To do it for his friend Gable, he had to leave "The Wizard of Oz," not a bad pair of pictures to do back-to-back.

The first part of the film is being broadcast Sunday on NBC from 8 to 11 p.m. and it will conclude on Monday from 8 to 11 p.m.

"Gone With the Wind" runs three hours and 42 minutes in the final version. Therefore, NBC is adding almost three hours of station breaks and commercial messages, in hopes of amortizing its investment and justifying the $5,000,000 spent to buy this classic for television.

If you have a touch of romance in your soul or wish to remember what it was like when the world was a simpler place and people ate popcorn and cried real tears over celluloid stardust, watch it and weep.

After all, it is always worth waiting for the classic line. (Producer David O. Selznick had to pay $500 to get past the censor: "Frankly, my dear, I don't give a damn.")

NOW protests film on rape

ST. CLAIR SHORES (UPI) — Members of the National Organization for Women (NOW) are at odds with city officials in this Detroit suburb over the showing of a film on rape.

They say the film, "How to Say No to a Rapist and Survive," gives women bad advice and treats a serious subject as a joke.

"We hate this film," NOW member Doris Little said on Wednesday. "We believe rapists love it."

The movie is a 50-minute film of a talk given last year to a group of New York state college students by lecturer Frederick Storaska. It was purchased two months ago for $750 by police and is being shown to groups girl. "He doesn't have a single degree and he's never done any scientific studies on rape," O'Rourke-Athens said.

Marilyn O'Rourke-Athens, a NOW member, says Storaska is a "profiteer and a showman." Storaska, in the film, says he committed himself to combating sexual assault while a student at North Carolina State University after witnessing an attempted gang rape of a teen-age and individuals as part of the department's crime-prevention program.

The feminists' objections to the film center on Storaska's tone during his lecture and his advice to women threatened by rape.

Storaska tells members of his audience not to scream or struggle when they are attacked because such a response often ends in beating or death. His advice is to feign cooperation with the rapists until a good opportunity presents itself to disable the attacker and flee.

"Anyone who follows Storaska's advice to submit without a struggle will get raped," said Little.

"Immediate resistance is the key to avoiding rape, unless the attacker has a lethal weapon like a gun or a knife," she said. City and public officials are not impressed by NOW's argument.

"Who the hell's an expert?" City Manager Donald Harm asked. "Some of these experts have let some pretty rotten people back on the street."

"They (NOW members) simply have no case," said Harm. "They're playing the same game as always — looking for publicity."

He said the film was shown to 40 female city employees before it was purchased and that all thought it was beneficial.

"We won't stop fighting this film," said Carol King, another NOW member who threatened the organization may take the issue to court to have further showings of the film stopped.

FM move blocked by political problems

would transfer Channel Six to an educational channel and viewers could pick up Channel Six on that. Of course, this would cost money and also deprive others of the right to use the educational channel for other means.

Economic factors loom large enough to further eradicate the possibilities of turning WMSN into an FM station.

"We have enough money now to start an FM station, but not enough to continue it," Nagy said. "Since an FM station would broadcast to off-campus students, not just to on-campus students as we do now, we'd have to find another way to fund the station."

The station is currently funded with a $1 fee paid by each student who signs up at registration to live at a dormitory. The only alternative to this type of funding would be to use a check-off box at registration, in the same manner that PIRGIM does.

"This would be impossible," Nagy said. "The amount of money collected each term would vary and we could not plan ahead. We have a huge investment here and we're reluctant to take a chance with it."

According to Nagy, there is only one way WMSN would be economically steady enough to go FM: The trustees would have to grant WMSN the right to tax the entire student body for two terms, without a vote on this, so enough money would be raised on a continuing basis. Afterwards, the students could vote on whether or not they wanted the FM station to continue.

"Naturally, this wouldn't be very popular," Nagy said.

MSU quarterback Ed Smith was named Big Ten Offensive Player of the Week, following his showing against Purdue last Saturday. This Saturday, Smith will direct his aerial show against Indiana.

GAME TIME SET AT 1 P.M.

MSU ready for Indiana

By EDWARD L. BONDERS
State News Sports Writer

Will MSU's young, inexperienced defense find full maturity against Indiana's Hoosiers in Spartan Stadium tomorrow?

Time is at the new kickoff time of 1 p.m. to find the answer. But pregame statistics indicate the Spartan defenders have the opportunity to continue the fine play turned in since the second half of the University of Notre Dame clash.

While the Hoosiers are currently fourth in the Big Ten rushing with an average of 190 per outing, they are in last place in three other categories. Indiana has averaged only eight points per contest while generating only 254 total yards each game. They also stand 10th in passing with an average of only 63 yards a game.

Spartan coach Daryl Rogers noted, "The defense started playing better in the second half of the Notre Dame game.

They are consistently getting better and that's the whole key."

The Spartan defenders have earned the conference basement, though, in two categories and hope to improve at the expense of the Hoosiers. MSU now ranks eighth in total defense, surrendering 377 yards a game while they've moved up to ninth in rushing defense with a 277 average.

The offense will be led by signal caller Ed Smith, who's gaining a list of credentials to match his passing yardage.

Smith now ranks second in total offense in the conference and he mans the same position in passing — this despite playing in only four Big Ten contests.

Flanker Kirk Gibson, meanwhile, catapulted into second place in the conference in the receiving category by virtue of six snafes against the Boiler-makers last week.

Indiana will start a young backfield which generated but one touchdown against U-M and OSU the past two weeks.

Scott Arnett, a sophomore, has moved ahead of senior Terry Jones at the quarterback spot, while freshman Mike Harkrader is the tailback.

Club Sports

The MSU Varsity Club has scheduled a meeting this Sunday 6:30 p.m. in the Varsity Club Room at the stadium.

The Men's Rugby Club defeated Notre Dame 4-4 last Saturday at Old College Field. The Women's Rugby Club will be away weekend as it takes on the Fort Wayne Rugby Club on Saturday.

The MSU Karate Club participated in the Fernald State Karate Tournament and brought home five gold medals.

The MSU Volleyball Club is sponsoring open volleyball Sunday for all interested students in Gym III of the Men's Building starting at 11 a.m.

MSU ickers are ready;
Huskies come to Munn

By JIM DUFRESNE
State News Sports Writer

Hockey coach Aldo Bessone and the boys are a bit jumpy today and the reasons are clear — Michigan Technological University is coming to Munn Ice Arena this weekend.

In one of the most brutal rivalries of the Western Collegiate Hockey Assn., the Spartans will host the Huskies tonight at 7:30 and complete the important series on Saturday and starting at 7:30 p.m. And naturally both nights are sold out.

"This going to be a real tough series," said Bessone, whose teams have lost seven of the last eight meetings with the Huskies and has not beaten Tech at home in more than three years.

"This weekend is very important to both schools," he continued. "We are trying to establish ourselves in the league and Tech will be trying to break out of a slump."

The Huskies, who hardly know what the word "slump" means, have lost their last three games before arriving in East Lansing. Tech divided its opening series with U-M, then dropped two games at Colorado College last weekend.

One of the problems Tech coach John MacInnes is encountering this season is the same one that plagued Bessone — the graduation of all his scorers. The top six scorers in the WCHA last year were either from Tech or MSU and all but Husky Stu Ostlund have graduated.

"I'm very optimistic about our scoring," said MacInnes. "We'll find the range soon. We have been getting more chances lately and they're bound to start going in."

Defenseman Ed Dempsey, who has two goals and three assists in the first four games, and leftwingers Stu Younger and Dana Decker, each with three goals, have paced Tech in the early part of the season.

Despite the low goal production and a 1-3 record, the

Cocaptains end
MSU careers

By GEOFF ETNYRE
State News Sports Writer

The heart and soul of the Spartan soccer team will play their last game for MSU today when the squad travels to Bowling Green State University.

Oh, yes. There are plenty of other guys on the team who contribute just as much. They are the first ones to tell you that.

But cocaptains Jim Steiner and Doug Bigford are the core of the defense on a defensively-minded team, and if ever a team had a heart and soul, it's the "H" MSU soccer team.

Freshmen in 1976, Steiner and Bigford stepped onto the now familiar MSU soccer field for their first collegiate game as starters, never to relinquish that role throughout their careers.

Four consecutive varsity letters — made possible by the NCAA ruling allowing freshmen to compete in varsity athletics — have rewarded their steady side efforts as fullbacks.

"It's not about your personality," Bigford said, commenting on what four years of MSU soccer has meant to him.

"Anytime you play a sport you have to have something in you to come out day after day. I play soccer because it's fun, but there's got to be a little more in you than that."

In Steiner's case, that little more is pure, unadorned aggressiveness.

"I just enjoy aggressive play," said Steiner, who played soccer at Birmingham-Selham High School. "When I look at it, I try to make it as tough as I can. A guy might beat me, but maybe not twice."

"Doug's got the finesse," added Steiner, preparing for a good natured part aimed at Bigford.

"He's got the more. But that's one more than I've got."

"Really though, I couldn't believe how much different college soccer is compared to high school," Stelter continued in a more serious vein. "All we ever played was kick and run."

"And when you play on an artificial turf, like we did in Ann Arbor, you have to make your passes perfect because the surface is so fast," added Bigford who hails from Concord, Mass.

Adjusting to collegiate soccer has proven to be a productive experience for the two fullbacks as they have led the Mustang MSU soccer defense to 22 shutouts since 1973.

They have had help from goalie Gary Wilkinson, who has credit for 18 of those shutouts for an MSU career record, and all three agree that shutouts are a team effort.

"There are games where Gary saves us with some great saves, and there are other times where our team effort makes it easy on him," said Stelter, voicing the common opinion.

Today, Stelter, Bigford, Wilkinson, Zdravko Rom and Ed Randel, who also are completing four years of varsity play — Kamy Asadigha, Hossein Shodja and Michael Grasser will all close out their MSU soccer careers in the season finale at Bowling Green State University.

The Spartans last played Bowling Green in 1973 when they lost 1-1. MSU holds a 2-1-1 edge in the series, however, and will be looking to finish the season on a positive note. The Spartans stand 6-4-1 going into the finale.

Somehow, there didn't seem to be any reason to ask Stelter and Bigford how they felt about their last game.

Spartan defense improved

At fullback will be junior Ric Harkrader. Despite their supposed experience, Harkrader and Rom lead the Hoosiers in rushing. Harkrader with 696 yards and Rom with 519.

Corso looks at the MSU game realistically, noting, "We'll go Michigan State with a solid plan and if they execute we beat us, well, fine, on to the next game. But, we'll be ready to play."

MSUINGS: The kickoff time for tomorrow's game has been moved up to 1 p.m. The Spartans have won the last four meetings between the two teams. Last year Marshall Lawson came off the bench for MSU and threw a TD aerial to Kirk Gibson to give the Spartans a 14-10 conquest. Both Indiana and MSU are 2-3 in the conference.

Lindsay set to challenge Virgin Huskies off to a slow start for Big Ten cross country title

By JIM DUFRESNE
State News Sports Writer
Every November for the past three years Herb Lindsay has chased after the Big Ten cross country championship and lost it.

This Saturday the Spartan harrier will chase it once more and hopefully, in his final season at MSU, capture it.

The Big Ten harrier crown is about the only title the two-time All-American has not won while competing for MSU in three sports.

"The Big Ten meet is going to be a little more interesting this weekend," said Lindsay, who has finished second the last two years to Craig Virgin of Illinois.

"I was the only one that stayed with Virgin the last couple of years," he said. "But this time it should be more crowded up at the front."

Virgin will be running for his fourth straight championship at Northwestern, but along with Lindsay, two other harriers have a good chance of snapping that string of victories. U-M's Greg Meyer, who was fourth last fall and defeated Lindsay earlier this year, and Wisconsin's Mark Johnson should both be pushing the defending champion from Illinois.

"As for the team, we could do as well as third," Lindsay said, "or place as low as sixth, it all depends on how well everyone runs this Saturday."

Though it might be a battle between Virgin and Lindsay for the individual winner, the fight for the team championship will be a repeat of last year with Wisconsin and U-M finishing 1-2.

The Wolverines won it last fall but since then have lost two of their top runners from that championship squad and earlier this season were defeated by Wisconsin in the Notre Dame Invitational.

"Wisconsin has to be labeled the favorites this weekend," said U-M coach Ron Warhurst. "But we have improved a lot since the beginning of the season and I think it's going to be an awful close meet."

Huskies have had four close games, losing two of them to Colorado by last-minute goals.

"Tech usually starts off slow," Bessone said. "This is going to be a good series. Other than Darryl DiPace and Pat Betterly, everyone is healthy and very enthusiastic about this weekend."

Spartan Slapshots — To compensate for the loss of Betterly and DiPace, coach Bessone has pulled up to the varsity squad junior leftwinger Ken Brothers from the junior varsity.

Coach Alex Terpay and his junior varsity team, which is working on a 18-game winning streak, will host Hillsdale College Friday at 3:30 p.m. On Sunday the junior Spartans will travel to Hillsdale for the second game starting at noon. Coach Terpay's squad is 3-0 for the season.

WHO'S BEHIND THE REMARKABLE DQ-10 SPEAKER?

Some of the most remarkable men in audio—Jon G. Dahlquist and Saul B. Marantz, the founders of this company.

There's hardly an audiophile anywhere who doesn't know about Saul Marantz, one of the pioneers in the growth of this industry and a leading proponent of high quality performance.

Then there's the brilliant engineering head, Jon Dahlquist. His contribution in the Lunar Excursion Module project involved vibration and stress analysis. This eventually led him to more earthy projects such as loudspeaker wave-form behavior. His research was applied to the unique acoustical concepts that are incorporated in the DQ-10, Phased Array™ speaker system.

THE BASIC CONCEPTS..... ..... LOW DIFFRACTION AND TIME-DELAY COMPENSATION

Dahlquist's low-diffraction construction solves several acoustical problems that have plagued speaker designers in the past. Typical speakers consist of a box-like enclosure with the drivers mounted on its front surface. Unfortunately, the relatively large baffle area exerts a loading effect on the sound radiation only until it reaches the sharp interruption at its outer dimensions. At this point the energy will radiate into the room and become superimposed on the directly heard sound, but, because of the added distance of travel, will not arrive in the same phase relationship. The result is numerous random phase cancellations, which becomes audible as a sound quality that seems constricted and unnatural. In addition, it disrupts the subtle phase information which permits depth images to be perceived. The DQ-10 overcomes this problem. Sound is free and transparent.

Time-Delay Compensation

Time-delay compensation between drivers, while more subtle in effect, serves to maintain maximum sharpness of sonic detail. In the DQ-10, each driver is positioned at a predetermined point along the listening axis which assures that its band of overtones arrives at the precise instant that retains the original shape of the sound wave.

'Saturday Night' cancels 'U' visit

By MICHAEL SAVEL
State News Staff Writer

Tom Leach, director of RHA films, said "soap opera-type" circumstances have caused the cancellation of the performance of the "Saturday Night Live" cast on campus later this month.

John Belushi and Dan Ackroyd, known for their impersonations, were tentatively scheduled to perform on campus Nov. 21, but a hike in price, a dispute between the cast, and Chevy Chase's departure from the show caused the cancellation.

"This past week has been just like a soap opera," Leach said. "John and Gilda had a falling out and wouldn't go on the road together, and Belushi and Ackroyd would come together, but they just about doubled their price."

Leach said problems also arose because the network did not want the material performed on the road.

"NBC was concerned about having the material done on the road and Chevy Chase leaving the show did not help things either," he said.

At the RHA meeting Wednesday night, the assembly elected Wilma Davenport from Williams Hall to the office of vice president for the rest of the academic year.

The assembly consists of one representative from each of the 25 dormitories. Davenport received 14 votes; her only challenger, Mark Townsend from Holmes Hall, received eight votes and three abstained.

Davenport has been serving as interim vice president since the beginning of fall term. Jersey Maskin was elected vice president last winter term, but he quit RHA to become interim president of ASMSU because of the appeals controversy for that office last summer.

When Michael Lenz was seated as ASMSU president in August, Maskin became his executive assistant and Davenport was appointed interim vice president.

"Being a black female vice president I feel I can add a new perspective to the organization," Davenport said. "I hope I can add a plus that RHA needs."

She hopes to open lines of communication between students, the Administration and RHA.

"I want to maintain and (continued on page 17)

L. housing

Because of its population approximately 52,000 — 28,000 students and 24,000 non-students, East Lansing is entitled to HUD funds under HUD guidelines.

"We can't directly provide housing for students because of HUD policy, but we can hope for secondary effects, like opening up the housing market," vanRavenway said.

Since the late 1960s, East Lansing has needed an increase in the housing supply, he said. "Things that should've been done a long time ago haven't been done," vanRavenway said.

What is needed most is a comprehensive analysis of the city's housing situation, vanRavenway said, so that it can be determined where the money should go.

Recommendations of the housing commission will go to the city council for approval, then on to county and state officials before being finally approved to HUD for approval.

There will be a public hearing on the report Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the East Lansing City Council chambers.

GOOD NEWS
FOR ALL OF YOU!

The response to MISTY BEETHOVEN, M.S.U.'s porno hit, has been so enthusiastic that you really must catch it while it's still playing on campus. This movie is turning out to be a real "turn-on." The cinematography is beautiful and the film appeals to the mind as well as feeding the Libido. Women are coming to this film and leaving in a better one! Maybe that's why more women are seeing this movie than ever before. As in any good sex films, there are some kinky things. They can be good for a laugh even if they aren't your cup of tea. And the movie is pleasant & sexy throughout. IT MOVES ALONG quickly so you can even come to the late show after studying and the film won't put you to sleep like those old fashioned heavy duty numbers. So remember my two tips: 1) If you can't dig the scene with the mango (for instance) just close your eyes. 2) Get into seeing women's fantasies on the screen instead of men's only. So wait no longer. Check it out!

HIGH-RISK PERSONS URGED TO TAKE ONE

Diabetes detection tests offered

Free diabetes detection tests will be available all next week at the University Health Center as part of the American Diabetes Association's Detection Week. The screening test, which includes a blood sugar test, is being offered to find unknown diabetics and to make the public more aware of the incidence and seriousness of diabetes.

A high-risk group which includes persons who are overweight, over age 40 or who have had a baby weighing over nine pounds are encouraged to take the test.

Eating a rich carbohydrate meal is important two hours prior to the test. The diabetes association suggests: for breakfast, fruit, cereal with sugar and milk and toast and jelly; for lunch, a sandwich, potato, salad with dressing and a sweet dessert. After the meal have nothing more than water.

No appointments are necessary and the tests are open to students, faculty, staff and the community. The clinic is in the laboratory of the health center. Hours are 9 a.m. to noon and 1:30 p.m. to 3 p.m.

Student group sets up ACLU campus chapter

By SUE STEWARD
State News Staff Writer

The only campus chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) in Michigan is being established here at MSU.

Barry Schroeder, chairperson of ACLU of MSU, said, "We decided that there ought to be a campus chapter so we formed the group."

"With all of the civil libertarians here on campus, no one before has taken the initiative to organize," he said.

The purpose of ACLU of MSU is "to protect and defend the rights and duties of citizens, with special attention to matters arising in the MSU area as they relate to the Bill of Rights."

Schroeder said the group will also focus attention on education concerning the Bill of Rights. "We want to educate persons so they know their rights," he said.

Schroeder said ACLU of MSU has about 60 active members this term. "It makes the organization kind of interesting because the students represent so many diverse interests."

ACLU of MSU is an affiliate of the Lansing chapter of the ACLU. Schroeder said that the campus chapter falls under concurrent jurisdiction with the Lansing chapter. "In other words, our chapter will not take any policy stands which differ from the national policy of the ACLU," he said.

ACLU of MSU will render opinions on current issues from the standpoint of the ACLU. "In campus matters, when we render a stand we will have a lot of support behind us," Schroeder said. "Support of the entire ACLU carries a good deal of weight."

Gladys Beckwith, Lansing ACLU chairperson, said the student chapter will perform important functions. "Although the Lansing chapter contains a good number of MSU faculty members, they are not so close to student problems as students are," she said. "The reserve of potential people power on the campus is tremendous."

Schroeder has served on the state board of directors for the Michigan ACLU and he cites this as a reason for MSU having the only campus chapter in the state.

He became interested in civil liberties in a class he took in criminal justice. "The class told how things really were in the criminal justice system," he said, "and I saw the inconsistencies which exist concerning constitutional rights."

ACLU of MSU will be one of the very few campus chapters of the organization. Many chapters have a large number of student members, but few campuses organize their own groups.

Ohio, New York and Indiana do not have any student chapters but they do have student members of city chapters.

California is one state which does have active student chapters of ACLU. A California spokesperson for the ACLU said there are three active student chapters in the state and at one time they had as many as 12 active student chapters.
