Report says Korea planned spy ring

By JIM ADAMS
WASHINGTON (AP) — The South intelligence agency planned to set up a spy network in the White House to pay off aides to top U.S. leaders last week, according to a document released Tuesday.

Intelligence Agency in this country were exposed.

Rep. Donald M. Fraser, D-Minn., who released copies of the report during a subcommittee hearing Tuesday, said the 1976 plan and an earlier KCIA plan, apparently in 1973, "revealed a calculated attempt by the KCIA to use clandestine means to sway American public opinion and official policy."

"The action taken by the KCIA to implement the plans must be recognized for what it is — outright subversion," Fraser said. He said that about $750,000 was earmarked for the KCIA operations, not including money that was to be contributed to congressional campaigns.

The alleged KCIA plan released by Fraser's House International Relations subcommittee envisioned $100-a-month payoffs to 14 aides in the White House, State Department, Defense Department and intelligence agencies.

It envisioned payments of $53,000 in campaign contributions to at least four congressmen and "special manipulation" payments to selected congressional aides.

The plan also called for efforts to win over and manipulate reporters in major U.S. news organizations and to manipulate university people to promote support for South Korea.

The elaborate plan to influence U.S. foreign policy and public opinion allegedly was distributed to KCIA station chiefs in the United States in early 1976 — shortly (continued from page 1)

USSR refuses to meet in Cairo

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has informed the United States that it will not send a delegation to a preliminary East conference in Cairo, U.S. officials said late Tuesday.

Russian rejection means the talks proceed with only one of the two co-sponsors of the Geneva conference. Of the so-called confrontation, so far only Israel has agreed to participate.

The administration had urged Moscow to play a "constructive role" in trying to find a solution to the Arab-Israeli conflict. But it has moderated its own position for Sadat's initiative, calling the talks "useful" while stressing the need for a comprehensive settlement in all the parties.

At the scenes, the United States was working with the Soviet Union and with others to try to repair the divisions by Sadat's bold moves to start a process with Israel.

Soviet Foreign Minister A. Gromyko, referring Tuesday to the planned Mideast peace talks in Geneva, said "recent actions are directed at a new Geneva conference."

A Soviet news agency Tass said Gromyko made the remarks during a visit with Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam on the last conflict.

Gromyko as telling Khaddam: "The situation in that area is rather complicated. One can say it is more complicated today than it was yesterday."

President Anwar Sadat called a meeting in Cairo to open this week to prepare for reconvening of the conference. He invited Israel, Jordan, Lebanon and the Soviet Union, plus America and the Soviet Union as co-chairpersons of the Geneva talks that met briefly in 1973.

He advised Washington on Tuesday that he would not attend the Cairo talks. It was Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization, which denounced the talks and said they would stay away from Lebanon, trying to remain neutral between Egypt and hard-line Arab states at Sadat, suggested they would not go to Cairo either. That left Israel, America and the United Nations as the only parties to accept Sadat's invitation. Gromyko did not name Egypt directly in his comments about the Mideast, according to the Tass dispatch.

It reported Gromyko expressed hopes for a reconvened Geneva conference but said recent events made prospects more difficult.

Tass quoted him as saying, "If one country demonstratively departs from the common Arab front and sacrifices the interests of the Arab states as a whole... this, then, is quite another matter. How can one approve such actions. One cannot."

It said Khaddam replied, "Only after a careful analysis of the present situation will we be able to say whether the door of the Geneva conference remains as open as before."

State House OKs bill to ban eavesdropping

By DAN SPICKLER
State News Staff Writer
Reconsideration of a bill that would prohibit undetectable eavesdropping resulted in its passage Tuesday by the Michigan House.

House Bill 4372 had been defeated Nov. 1 by the lower chamber. It would ban eavesdropping by all firms and institutions, except telephone companies, which would be allowed to use a beep tone when monitoring employee customer service calls.

Companies that often secretly monitor employees include various newspaper advertising departments, Michigan Bell Telephone Co. and major universities with campus phone operators, including MSU.

Currently, MSU does not use a beep tone during monitoring of MSU operators.

The bill's sponsor, Mark Clodfelter, D-Flint, said the bill always had enough votes to pass, but getting all supporters in attendance was a problem.

Tuesday's tally provided the minimum number of supporting votes with a 56-46 total. Clodfelter said three other lawmakers behind the measure were not present.

The bill was immediately sent to the Senate for approval. Clodfelter speculated that it would first be sent to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Clodfelter said one legislator told him he originally supported the bill, but was heavily pressured by Michigan Bell Telephone Co. lobbyists to oppose the bill.

Other opponents of the measure include the Michigan Press Association and other utility groups.

"I understand the utilities really united against this bill," Clodfelter said.

Opponents of the bill say it will cut down on their ability to effectively monitor customer service calls. They claim customer service calls are not actually in the private realm.

Clodfelter said he received support from various labor groups including UAW locals, the Michigan Education Association and Communication Workers of America locals.

Earlier this year the Michigan Public Service Commission ordered Michigan Bell to release a list of all companies and institutions monitoring employees.

Clodfelter offered other suggestions for quality control of Michigan Bell employees. Roving supervisors, planted customer calls or surveying of customers following service calls were alternatives, he said.

"The advancement of and availability of monitoring equipment poses just too big of a threat to civil rights," Clodfelter said. "By its opposition to this legislation we can see that the phone company is jealous of its prerogatives and has tremendous power."

In other action the House approved a bill that creates a $47.5 million program to help the elderly and other low-income groups pay heating bills this winter by a 102-2 vote.

The governor had requested that a $32 million program using federal grants instead be approved, but amendments which would have concurred were defeated. The bill is now in the Senate.

DIRECTOR REPLACEMENT SOUGHT

FBI nominee Johnson bows out

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge Frank M. Johnson bowed out as the president's nominee for FBI director Tuesday, and Attorney General Griffin Bell said the search for a replacement will last into the new year.

Still in poor health after surgery last August, Johnson said, "It will be several more months before I will regain my strength and stamina. It will not be fair to the Federal Bureau of Investigation or to me to keep this matter pending any longer."

In a statement issued at his office in Montgomery, Ala., Johnson said he regrets that "conditions over which I have no control" have forced him to step aside.

At the White House, Press Secretary Jody Powell called the withdrawal "A loss to the administration, to the FBI and to the country — and we regret it very much."

Bell announced Johnson's decision at a news conference and called it "unfortunate for the president, the FBI and the nation. Judge Johnson would have made an ideal leader for the FBI."

The attorney general said he and President Carter won't rush into a decision about a new nominee to succeed Clarence M. Kelley and become the third director in the FBI's 53-year history.

"My plan is to do nothing for two weeks to let the dust settle and rethink the selection process," Bell said. "Hopefully during that time, names will occur to me. I think it would be a wise course not to rush."

Bell indicated that he would like Kelley to remain in office for at least a short time beyond his scheduled retirement date Jan. 1. Kelley has said he could stay until the end of January but he has made other professional commitments after that time.

Johnson's decision leaves the administration with the task of filling two top Justice Department jobs. Deputy Attorney General Peter Flaherty has announced he will leave soon to make plans for a possible gubernatorial campaign in his native Pennsylvania.

Bell said he has someone in mind for that job but he is not ready to announce a decision.

The attorney general said he was willing to wait for Johnson to take over the FBI after a full recuperation although that might have meant a delay until late spring or early summer.

"I would wait," he said. "But Judge Johnson has made his own decision that it would not be fair to the FBI or to himself."

Bell said he hopes a new candidate can be chosen and nominated by Jan. 17 when Congress returns from a recess, but he cannot promise to meet that target.

He dropped few clues about who might be in the running for the nomination, except to say, "We still have the list" of four men recommended by a presidentially appointed search committee last June.

They are John Van de Kamp, district attorney of Los Angeles County; Neil Welch, a career FBI man and head of the bureau's Philadelphia field office; Judge John J. Irwin of the Massachusetts Superior Court, and Sheriff William Lucas of Detroit.

Lucas' chances were damaged by disclosures that he had participated in gambling junkies to Las Vegas.

The president and Bell also seriously considered John Mintz, an assistant FBI director and legal counsel who was strongly supported by some members of the search committee but failed to make the final list.

Carter announced the nomination in August and it was greeted with enthusiastic support from a broad range of interest groups.

Johnson then underwent a routine physical examination and doctors discovered an aneurysm, or ballooning, in a section of a main abdominal artery. The condition required immediate surgery.

After the relapse, he was ordered to bed and hearings were postponed until January. His physician, Dr. J.J. Kirschenfeld, said Monday he felt Johnson would not be well enough to plan on January hearings.

The prospect of still another delay convinced Johnson he should bow out, Bell said.

Johnson also would have suffered financially from taking the FBI job, and Bell said he believes "that had to be a factor" in the decision even though Johnson never mentioned it to him.

As a federal judge, Johnson is paid $54,500 and can retire in seven years at full salary for life. The FBI director's annual salary is $3,000 higher, but the quirks of the federal pension system would have forced a substantial reduction in retirement income.

Services scheduled for former director

A memorial service will be held today for Frank B. Martin, retired director of MSU Data Processing. The service will begin at 1:30 p.m. at St. Thomas Aquinas Church, 955 Alton Rd.

Martin, 62, died Saturday at a local hospital. He retired in 1975, after a 37-year career at MSU.

During his time as director, Martin was responsible for computerized handling of student records, MSU business office data and University records involving alumni, student housing and the library systems.

Martin organized the College of University Machine Records Conference, which has met annually for 18 years. He helped found the College and University Systems Exchange (CAUSE) and was a member of other computer-oriented organizations.

Before graduating from MSU in 1938 with a degree in business administration, Martin organized the MSU tabulating department. During the 1940's he was on leave from MSU for military service and to enter a master's degree program at Harvard.

He was a charter member and past president of the East Lansing Kiwanis Club, and belonged to the MSU Men's Club and the MSU Alumni Association.

Martin is survived by his wife Ruth, 635 Division Street, East Lansing; two daughters, Colleen, East Lansing and Carolyn Edwards of Haslett; four sons, Richard, Henryville, Pa.; Dennis, Holt, and Gregory and Gary of East Lansing; one sister, Marge Waner, St. Joseph, Mich.; and two grandchildren, Scott and Nicole.

ASMSU loan ceiling to increase

The top amount available for ASMSU short-term loans will be raised from $30 to $35 beginning winter term, according to ASMSU Comptroller Rick Lehrter.

Due to an increase in student taxes collected at registration this year, the comptroller's office can now afford the higher loans, Lehrter said. ASMSU allocates a portion of its annual budget to be used for the special loan fund.

ASMSU loans are not connected with the short-term loans available from the MSU Financial Aids Office.

Lehrter said the comptroller's office will also explore the possibility of changing the loan repayment system to allow students to repay loans with checks.

Currently, students are required to repay loans in cash because the comptroller's office does not have the personnel necessary to handle bad checks, Lehrter said. However, since the ASMSU comptroller's office is one of the few loan organizations on campus which does not allow students to repay with checks, the policy may change, he added.

Students interested in receiving short-term loans may apply in 307 Student Services Bldg. Loans are available only to undergraduate students and must be repaid within three weeks. If students do not repay the loan within the time limit, a hold card is sent to the registrar's office. Students with hold cards will not be allowed to register for classes until loans are repaid.

The ASMSU comptroller will not be issuing new loans until winter term.

Muzorewa condemns government raids

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (Zimbabwe) (AP) — A moderate nationalist leader with whom the white minority government is trying to negotiate has condemned the government's raids into Mozambique, which the government says destroyed two guerrilla bases and killed 1,200 black insurgents.

Bishop Abel Muzorewa claimed Tuesday most of the victims were black refugees and called for a week of mourning for those slain during the five-day operation by ground and air forces.

"... I vehemently condemn these massacres," said Muzorewa, president of the African National Council, one of three nationalist groups operating inside the country. He said the victims were "for the most part men, women and children who fled from the land of their birth to seek asylum in Mozambique."

British Foreign Secretary David Owen said in London: "This latest attack with its challenge to the territorial integrity of Mozambique underlines the need for an internationally acceptable settlement and emphasizes the grave dangers of enlarging the conflict to embrace the whole of southern Africa."

Philippine president reopens trial

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos on Tuesday ordered a military court to reopen the trial of his chief political foe, former Sen. Benigno S. Aquino Jr., whose death sentence prompted wide foreign criticism.

Aquino, 44, and two alleged Communist leaders were sentenced Friday to be executed by a firing squad for subversion and other crimes.

Among criticism from abroad was a statement by the U.S. State Department that it was disturbed by the death sentence. The department withheld further comment, however, pending appeal of the case.

In ordering Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile to reopen the case "in the interest of justice," Marcos cited a letter from Aquino to the Supreme Court in which he called the military commission that convicted him "a kangaroo court."

S. Africa expected to retain ruling party

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — White South Africans will vote today in national elections expected to give Prime Minister John Vorster's ruling National Party a landslide victory.

Opinion polls have indicated the 63-year-old Vorster may increase the 116 seats he now holds in the 165-seat parliament by between 10 and 20 in a major sweep of constituencies now held by splintered opposition parties.

The anti-government newspaper Johannesburg Star predicted, however, that only about one million of the 2.2 million registered voters will vote. And the country's 19 million blacks, whose future is a key issue in the election, will have no say.

Contesting the National Party are the liberal Progressive Federal Party, the centrist New Republic Party, the South African Party, the Democratic National Party and the extreme right-wing Herstigte Party.

Dock ballot returns favor new pacts

NEW YORK (AP) — The two-month strike by 50,000 dockworkers against container ships appeared to be coming to an end Tuesday in most ports from Maine through Texas.

Although ratification of new contracts in several big ports was delayed for up to 24 hours, Thomas W. "Teddy" Gleason, president of the International Longshoremen's Association, announced after eight hours of secret ballot voting that partial returns showed new three-year agreements being approved better than two-to-one.

Container shipping, developed over the past decade, uses pre-loaded, semi-trailer-sized containers. The containers are transferred by crane between ship, railway car and truck.

The automation reduced the need for longshoremen by more than a third in ports such as New York and became the principal target of the strike for greater job and income protection.

Cleveland teachers refuse to work

CLEVELAND (AP) — About 1,000 of Cleveland's 5,000 teachers refused to work Tuesday because the financially troubled district plans to withhold their paychecks for a second straight week. Fourteen schools were closed and about 11,000 pupils were sent home.

The Cleveland Teachers Union, meanwhile, was winding up a citywide vote of teachers to determine whether it would call a strike unless teachers get their weekly paychecks Wednesday.

A union official predicted results would be very close, in contrast to a similar vote a month ago when the teachers agreed to work for a week without knowing if they would be paid.

The district is caught in the middle of a legal dispute over whether it can use borrowed funds to pay salaries. Officials have said that when the matter is resolved, all employees will get any back pay due them. Other employees, like janitors and secretaries, have also gone unpaid, but have been showing up for work in normal numbers.

Mediators take charge of coal talks

WASHINGTON (A) — Federal mediators took charge of the coal industry's stalemated contract talks Tuesday and won swift agreement for "concentrated and continuous negotiations" to try to avert a nationwide strike threatened for next week.

Chief federal mediator Wayne L. Horvitz said he expressed the government's concern about the impact of a strike on the nation's long-term energy needs. He reported that he received assurances from both sides in the disputes to resume negotiations "with the aim of reaching an agreement."

However, United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller was non-committal when asked about the possibility of avoiding a strike.

"I couldn't say right now," he told reporters.

Miller later briefed the union's 38-member bargaining council on the status of the talks with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association.

Cairo delegate selection begins

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Egypt, Israel, the United States and the United Nations began selecting their delegates Tuesday for President Anwar Sadat's preparatory Middle East peace conference in Cairo.

Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization denounced the Cairo meeting and said they would not attend.

Also Tuesday, Secretary Gen. Kurt Waldheim called for still another Mideast meeting, to be held in about two weeks either at U.N. headquarters in New York or another neutral site.

Waldheim's proposal, made while he designated Gen. Ennio Silasvuo of Finland to represent the United Nations at Cairo, could serve to blunt the Sadat initiative which already has produced direct negotiations between Egypt and Israel after three decades of icy distance.

"We didn't initiate it, we didn't suggest it; we were informed about it after the fact," said one knowledgeable U.S. official.

Among the possible U.S. representatives to Cairo are Philip C. Habib, undersecretary of state for political affairs, and Alfred L. Atherton Jr., assistant secretary for the Near East.

Egypt is trying to decide the number and rank of its representatives to its own summit, which Sadat said could begin as early as Saturday. The meeting will be held in the historic Mena House hotel, in the shadow of the pyramids. Officials were seen checking the building for security hazards Tuesday.

Israel plans to send sub-cabinet officials to Cairo.

Egypt also invited the Soviet Union, Lebanon, Syria, Jordan and the Palestinians, to prepare for a full-scale peace conference at Geneva. Waldheim said "all those invited to the Cairo meeting" would be asked to the U.N. talks, also designed to make progress towards Geneva.

The U.N. General Assembly took another swipe Tuesday at Israeli occupation of Arab territory. A resolution passed by the assembly's special political committee accused Israel of mass arrests, torture and displacement of Arab civilians in occupied areas.

Only America and Israel voted against the resolution, which passed 84-2 with 30 abstentions.

Meanwhile, Iraq said it had sent emissaries Tuesday to the radical Arab regimes in Libya, Algeria and South Yemen, inviting them to a summit sometime next week in Baghdad.

Libya has called a summit conference to begin Thursday in Tripoli, and Iraq has not said whether it will attend.

The Iraqi announcement of government Radio Baghdad omitted mention of Syria, which Egypt working hard for peaceful settlement with Israel. Syria is the only one of three main Israeli adversaries blocking resumption of scale peace talks.

TROOPERS TO PAY FOR MEALS Allowances to be taxed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A worker's regularly paid meal allowances are taxable income, the Supreme Court said Tuesday in a decision that will mean millions to the Internal Revenue Service.

The court's 7-2 vote is a legal and financial setback to some 10,000 state police troopers across the country who face paying federal income taxes on such allowances.

The decision also will affect any other workers routinely reimbursed for meals eaten while on duty.

In studying the case of a New Jersey state policeman, the justices were told by government lawyers that their decision would affect some 10,000 troopers in 15 states who collect meal allowances totaling $10 million a year.

The individual states were not named in papers filed with the court and a list was not immediately available from IRS officials.

Those states, aside from New Jersey, are Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Connecticut, Idaho, Iowa, Missouri, Montana, New Mexico, North Dakota, South Dakota, Texas, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

Without a specific exemption by Congress for cash meal allowances, the court said in an opinion by Justice William J. Brennan Jr., such allowances are income as defined by federal tax laws.

"While the issue centered on states paying their police officers, the same rationale theoretically could have been used for all employers," a Justice Department tax lawyer said after learning of the court's action. "The gates might have been opened if the court had decided the other way."

The decision does not affect reimbursements made for meals and lodging for a worker traveling on company business, nor does it affect "sporadic meal reimbursements" that workers receive when working overtime or temporary assignment.

The justices drew a distinction, however, between cash allowances for meals and food given to an employee on an employer's premises. The cost of the food is not taxable income under federal law, the court said, cash allowances for food are.

The decision came in the case of New Jersey trooper Robert J. Kowalski, who in 1970 paid a base salary of $8,739.38 and an additional $1,697.54 in meal allowances.

Under New Jersey law, state police officers are given up to $1,704 a year for meal allowances. There are no restrictions on use of the cash; troopers may eat at home if they live within assigned duty areas, may eat at a restaurant or bring their meals from home to eat in their police cruisers.

Kowalski's tax return for 1970 did not list meal allowances as income, and he was challenged by the IRS. The U.S. Tax Court ruled in favor of the IRS but the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals decided that Kowalski did not owe tax on his allowance money.

The Supreme Court decision reversed appeals court ruling.

Justice Harry A. Blackmun, joined by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, dissented from Tuesday's decision.

"I fear that state troopers the country over not handsomely paid to begin with, will not understand today's decision," Blackmun said.

Carter news conference to take place in Poland

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter will become the first U.S. president to hold a wide-open news conference in a Communist country when he visits Warsaw late next month, it was learned Tuesday.

Poland will be the first stop on a curtailed version of Carter's once-postponed world trip, now set to begin Dec. 29. A formal announcement of the journey is expected later this week.

When Carter meets the press in Warsaw, Polish journalists will be invited to join their Western colleagues in questioning the president. It was not known whether Poland's state-owned networks will broadcast the session live. However, the Voice of America is expected to beam the conference to Communist countries, including the Soviet Union.

White House officials declined to confirm plans for the news conference. However, they acknowledged that another highlight of Carter's six-nation trip will be the first visit by an incumbent president to France's Normandy beachheads where American and other Allied troops landed more than 32 years ago during World War II. Carter also will lay a wreath at a U.S. cemetery for American war dead.

Besides Poland and France, the trip will take Carter to Iran, India, Saudi Arabia and Belgium. He is expected to return to Washington on Jan. 6 or Jan. 7.

Opposition voiced by Ferency role of trustees in selection questioned

By PAM WEAR

State News Staff Writer
The role of the MSU Board of Trustees in the presidential search and selection process has been the focus of lively discussion at the Academic Council meeting Tuesday.

Debate on the trustee's role was part of general reaction to provisions in the MSU presidential search and selection proposal, which the ad hoc selection committee presented to the council for discussion. Academic Council took no formal action on the proposal Tuesday, but a vote whether to approve the proposal is scheduled for the December 6 council meeting. Possible amendments will also be considered at the next meeting.

Academic Council plans to present its decision on the proposal to the MSU Board of Trustees at the board's December 8 and 9 meeting.

Opposition to the board of trustees' role in the presidential selection process was first voiced in Tuesday's meeting by criminal justice professor Zoltan Ferency.

Though criticizing the philosophy of the entire search-and-selection proposal, he specifically opposed the provisions which gave the board seats on the selection committee and allowed the trustees to appoint a chairperson from among committee members.

"(Allowing the board of trustees on the selection committee) is an invasion of the right of the academic community to reach its own decision unimpeded by the board of trustees," Ferency said.

"It's a deliberate effort on the part of the board in shaping this document in advance of our deliberations, and I frankly resent that."

Other faculty members voicing opinions also disapproved of the provision calling for the committee chairperson to be selected by the board of trustees. The speakers said the chairperson should be chosen by committee members and that the chairperson should be a faculty member.

In the Taylor Report I, the guidelines under which MSU President Clifton R. Wharton, Jr. was selected, no specific provision was made to include trustees on the presidential search-and-selection committee. Wharton told the council that the presence of two trustees on the current ad hoc committee was not an attempt to manipulate the presidential selection process in favor of the board of trustees.

"In delegating two members to the ad hoc committee, the board of trustees was operating in the greatest sense of good faith and good will," he said.

Another major issue raised was whether the board of

WOULD BE CLEAR TO HIGH-SCHOOLERS

Legal jargon may be simplified

By DANIEL HERMAN

State News Staff Writer

Most consumers usually share a common fear of the often confusing legal language found in the majority of legal contracts.

Rep. Jackie Vaughn, D-Detroit, and Sen. Joseph M. Snyder, D-Macomb, are trying to remedy this situation with bills which would simplify legal language, so that anyone with a high school education can understand it.

Snyder's bill — a duplicate of Vaughn's proposal — will be put on the Senate calendar for consideration within "one or two days," said David LaLumia, Snyder's aide.

The bills will cover the legal language found in consumer credit, insurance, property purchases, leases and other contracts including government documents to be used by the public.

Snyder said the primary purpose of the bill, "is to protect the average person who usually signs anything put in front of him."

"The average consumer will now be able to go into a contract situation with prior knowledge that he can understand the contract, and I think it will stop a lot of heart breaks," he said.

From this: A person shall not make, publish, disseminate, circulate, or place before the public, an advertisement concerning the buying, selling, exchanging, or trading of a real property if that advertising contains language expressing discrimination on the part of the seller concerning prospective buyers because of race, creed, color, national origin, sex, or marital status. This act shall not authorize the attorney general to assume facts not in evidence. The attorney general shall at all times bear the burden of proof to all charges made against a party. This act shall not diminish the right of a party to direct and immediate legal or equitable remedies in the courts of this state.

To this: A person shall not circulate an advertisement concerning the sale of real property if that advertising contains language (on the part of the seller) which discriminates against buyers on the grounds of race, creed, color, national origin, sex or marital status. The attorney general shall bear the burden of proof if such charges are made. This act shall not impede the institution of legal remedies.

Snyder pointed out that a similar act has "been in effect in New York state for a while," and has done "fairly well."

Vaughn said both bills have "a very good chance for passage."

"My bill will make all contracts readable. It will require everything to be stated simply," he said.

Linda Joy, Executive Director of the Michigan Consumers Council, said, "I don't think it will cure all of the problems usually encountered with contracts, the burden of proof in a dispute will still be on the consumer."

"It will make the contracts much more understandable before a consumer signs it, and it will cut down on consumer frustration with contracts, such as housing contracts, where the consumer feels the landlord has a stacked deck against him," Joy added.

Representative Lucille H. McCollough, D-Dearborn, a co-sponsor of Vaughn's bill, commented, "the consumer should not be forced to try to unscramble legal jargon or have to hire a lawyer to fill out their business or governmental forms, there is nothing wrong with plain English."

Development fund distribution opens hearing to citizen input

A public hearing on the distribution of Community Development funds will be held tonight at the 54-B District Court located in the P-K Building, 301 M.A.C. Ave., East Lansing.

East Lansing residents will be able to give input on the recommendations of the Planning Department staff, which formulated the proposal currently before the planning commission.

Final recommendations on how to distribute the $2,040,000 in Housing and Urban Development Funding for the next three years will probably be acted on Dec. 14 by the commission.

The recommendations will then go to City Council for approval.

Copies of the staff recommendation are available in the planning department at City Hall, 410 Abbott Rd.

The recommendations were already modified by the planning commission in a works session held last week. Commissioners were basically pleased with the staff recommendation, but suggested a few minor changes which are now included in the report.

Symposium will focus on energy and society

Energy and its impact on society will be the focus of a free "Energy and Society" symposium held Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the MSU Auditorium. The symposium will feature a panel discussion moderated by Adams, MSU professor of economics and president of the American Economic Association. Panelists will include: Rollo Davidson, director of the Center for Policy Research Inc. He wrote "The Act of Society" and "Genetic Fix."

Will," for which he won the Ralph Waldo Emerson award for humane literature; Kenneth B. Clark, psychologist and president of Clark, Phipps, Clark and Harris, Inc., a personnel consulting firm specializing in human and race relations and affirmative action programs; and Amitai Etzioni, professor of sociology at Columbia University, director of the Center for Policy Research Inc. He wrote "The Act of Society" and "Genetic Fix."

The symposium is sponsored by Gov. William G. Milliken, in cooperation with MSU.

Dear Grad Students:

A Jewish Grad Group is new to MSU Hillel this term. The goal to provide fun and fellowship for Jewish Graduate students began in September with a Wine and Cheese Party at Hillel. A Halloween get-together provided October fun.

What's next? Meet us at JIM'S TIFFANY PLACE, 116 Michigan Avenue, Lansing, on Saturday evening, December 3. Cocktails and Hor d'oeuvres, compliments of Hillel, will be served at 7:30 p.m. Dinner, on your own, is at 8:00. A special dessert is Hillel's treat. Please make reservations by December 1. Call Lori Kahn (332-0437) or Neil Golden (337-2327) or leave a message at the Hillel office. Do you need a ride or can you provide transportation for other students?

Punishment does not fit crime

At a time when the use of marijuana is gaining acceptance among increasing numbers of people, and when the Michigan House is considering legislation which would decriminalize it, here at MSU a backward attitude prevails.

John Furbush, a resident assistant at Williams Hall, has been suspended for admitting that he once smoked marijuana in his room.

Furbush has appealed his suspension to the regular departmental grievance committee, a panel composed in such a way that a fair hearing seems unlikely. In addition, Furbush has appealed to Vice President for Student Affairs Eldon Nonnamaker for a ruling on the equity of the panel's composition.

Smoking marijuana is illegal. In addition, it is true that using the drug violates an RA's terms of employment. It must also be conceded that, ostensibly, an RA serves as a role model for students.

However, to suspend Furbush — or any RA — for admitting to having smoked marijuana once in his room is a punishment that clearly does not fit the crime, especially in light of society's currently more relaxed attitude toward marijuana use.

Moreover, the action taken against Furbush presumes that the University controls virtually every moment of an RA's life. An RA is not on duty for 24 hours, as the penalty imposed on Furbush would indicate.

If Furbush had been apprehended smoking marijuana in East Lansing, he would have been issued a $5 summons. Surely no one was endangered by Furbush's action, and it is clear he did not neglect his responsibilities as an RA.

Furbush seems to be a competent RA in the view of residents of his floor. A majority of them signed a petition presented to Gary North, coordinator of Residence Halls Programs Office, asking that Furbush be reinstated.

The question of the role of the University in the personal lives of its student employees is fraught with inconsistent answers.

As usual, student employees are provided with none of the safeguards available to other University employees, and it seems RAs are especially subject to arbitrary practices.

A similar action could not have been taken against any other type of University employee. Non-academic, clerical-technical and administrative-professional employees have grievance procedures provided by contractual agreement. The faculty also has a grievance procedure that is far from perfect, but essentially democratic.

The committee reviewing Furbush's case will consist of four representatives from North's office — who can hardly be expected to disagree with him — and one student chosen by North.

If the University administration wanted the faculty to unionize overnight, it could provide no better impetus to that action than the imposition of a similarly rigged grievance procedure.

Nonnamaker should promptly rule in Furbush's favor and take steps toward establishing procedures for a grievance appeal in conformity with the basic tenets of fairness. More importantly, the University should re-evaluate the position it takes against those who use a socially acceptable drug.

Cairo talks raise difficulties

The situation in the Mideast is becoming increasingly complex and imponderable.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, basking in the afterglow of his summit extravaganza with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, now seeks to convene a peace conference in Cairo, Egypt's capital. The purpose of the meeting — which Sadat envisions as including the principles in the Mideast conflict, as well as the United States — would be to establish a working foundation for the long-delayed Geneva peace conference.

Thus far, Israel and the United States have agreed to Sadat's proposal. Unfortunately, The Palestine Liberation Organization and other Arab states have rejected Sadat's invitation.

The planned Cairo talks raise the possibility that the Arab world will be further alienated from Egypt, fearing as it does the possibility that Sadat is attempting to make a separate peace with Jerusalem.

Egypt and the United States both reject allegation.

However, diplomats in these and other nations concerned nonetheless. In politics, whether national or international level, style often takes precedence over substance, and the appearance of reality is often more important than the reality. If nothing of major significance comes from the summit, critics will maintain that the participants were engaging in a meaningless charade. If the meeting does produce a breakthrough, critics contend that it was achieved without proper acknowledgment of the views of other Arab states.

It appears that Egypt, the United States, Israel are in a no-win situation. Nevertheless, meeting should take place. It represents a move, designed to break a simmering Middle East logjam that has proved impervious to countless initiatives launched over the years by concerned parties.

Bike danger

The recent State News article entitled "Biking Fast..." has been long overdue. As an occasional cyclist myself I see the advantages and necessity of bike transportation. On the other hand, as the dazed pedestrian "survivor" of an accident with a bike I also know the danger it poses. With personal injuries increasing from bikes, it is time for DPS Capt. Badgely to do more than encourage his officers to ticket offenders.

Indeed, more drastic measures are in order, for offenses that are dangerous and commonly seen on campus: excessive speed, "no hands," riding double, carrying oversized objects, no warning devices (horn or light), wrong-way use and non-use of bike lanes. Though physical injury is less likely for the motorist than the pedestrian, the bike is a hazard to him as well. Cyclists are often riding several abreast in roads, riding against traffic, not observing traffic signs or signals but then demanding the same right of way as other vehicles.

The solution called for is simple: handle bicycles on campus like automobiles. This means registering them at (minimal) fees which would be used toward strong enforcement of some existing and some needed regulations. This mandatory system could serve as a better theft deterrent than the present voluntary one, and as a safety examination of the bike as well. Surplus funds could go toward improving the system of bike routes on campus. There should be a designated bike route, even if just a striped area of the sidewalk, to every building on campus. These should be kept clear in all seasons and bikes required to use them.

In short, it is time to stop treating the bicycle like an innocent form of recreation and start regulating it as an integral part of campus transportation and a potential threat to the public safety. I realize that increasing an already formidable bureaucracy at MSU will not be popular with all.

Regulations inconvenience the responsible majority as well as offending minority. However, the common good is being neglected at present. Foresighted action now will prevent a worsening situation in the future.

Hunting brutal

Hunting is not a means of providing nourishment any longer; it is considered a sport. Hunters carry shiny new guns, wear bright orange clothes, and shoot at anything that moves. In the past, hunters shot only what was required for food. Seldom were the problems of hunting that exist today apparent.

As compared with last year's death toll of three hunters, this year's toll has more than tripled. So far this hunting season, nine hunters have been killed by gunshots, 12 hunters died from heart attacks, and 10 hunters wounded by gunshots. One 16-year-old boy shot his father in the stomach and watched him die. This boy will live with this hunting expedition the rest of his life. Other men will have to live with the picture of a wounded hunter being rushed to the hospital.

It is hard to understand what kind of entertainment is derived from sitting in the cold woods, searching for movement, aiming a rifle, and in a cold-blooded, premeditated fashion, murdering a deer. Even more unbelievable is that a physically unfit person would attempt to carry this dead animal out of the woods.

Hunting is a contemptible sport. Hunters usually are insensitive brutes unable to read "Posted No Hunting" signs, who trample on other's land shooting rifles near homes. They ignore laws stating no hunting on Sundays in certain counties.

Hunters, why do you not admit that hunting is the only way to kill something legally? Food is generally not the reason these animals are slaughtered. The reason is to satisfy the ego, to become the "King of the Beasts." Hunting is an unnecessary, brutal sport.

Dynasty ends

On Nov. 17, a dynasty ended. One of Michigan State's greatest I.M. football teams lost for the first time in three seasons. Mighty Jai Hai lost in the semifinals of the University championships.

Jai Hai has been University champs since 1975, and this University probably has not seen a better team. Jai Hai has compiled a record in four years of 40-2. Every single member of the Jai Hai team should be proud of their accomplishment.

But credit should go where it is due. Abbot Abreast deserves a lot of credit for their victory. Take note however; like the mythological bird "Phoenix," JAI HAI shall rise again!

I. M. alternative

For the majority of the students on this campus the Varsity football team is something to be watched, possibly worshipped, but certainly not something they could be a part of. As an alternative to Varsity sports most athletically inclined students turn to intramural sports.

Since I.M. sports have become such a growing part of normal MSU life, we don't understand why the State News offers no more than a single paragraph of "I.M. notes" every two weeks to these activities. These teams work hard to keep their teams winning and getting the all University Championship means as much to them as any Varsity victory. So why not give these athletes and their games some recognition? As friends of the 1977 University I.M. Football Champs (Akhilles), we know how much credit they deserve and how much that title means to them! Congratulations Akhilles, from those of us who appreciate intramural sports!

VIEWPOINT: RATE HIKES

Utilities act in public interest

By PAUL M. GARDNER
Your paper's recent editorial, "Utility Reform Urgently Needed; House Bills A Positive First Step," wrongfully criticized Michigan utilities and the organization that oversees their operations, the State Public Service Commission (PSC).

Your support of legislation, introduced by representative Lynn Jondahl, D-East Lansing, and Francis Spaniola, D-Corunna, to our way of thinking deserves some reevaluation.

Among the proposals advanced by the two lawmakers is one calling for a ban on utilities passing along increased fuel costs to users. One may wonder how such expenses will be paid.

Fuel and purchased power expenses are the largest items of expense which an electric utility incurs in serving its customers. For example, they represent over half of Consumers Power Company's total electric operating expenses, excluding income taxes. Looking at this another way, for every dollar which the Company spends for its daily bills, 59 cents goes to pay the cost of fuel and purchased power.

Fluctuations either up or down in such a significant expense can add up to a considerable sum of money. A fuel and purchased power clause in a PSC-approved method of reflecting, on a current basis, any increases or decreases in this expense in the customers' bills. To deny an electric utility's residential customers an opportunity to receive automatic decreases if costs go down is unfair to them. To deny the utility the opportunity to recoup, in a timely manner, increases in such a significant expense, upon which it does not make one cent profit, could seriously ly affect the utility's capacity to the requirements of its customers.

Your editorial said the cost of the bills for residential customers is high. Yet, you back the legislative proposal to tack an additional charge monthly bills to fund a "residential utility consumer action group." contention is that we need yet another agency to protect the rights of a consumer.

This, despite the fact the PSC large and well-equipped staff to represent the public interest in rate proceedings, despite the fact the Attorney General of the state of Michigan has been extremely active in virtually every major utility rate proceeding in the 10 years, and despite the fact virtually anyone can intervene in case, at almost any stage of proceeding. In the past, for example, number of groups have intervened in Public Interest Research Group Michigan, several cities, the Michigan Farm Bureau and numerous individual customers from major industrial to individual homeowners.

Your editorial criticized utility monopolies whose profits should be regulated in a manner with consumer interests. We feel we are regulated in a manner consistent with the public interest. The bill of an average electric customer served by Consumers Power is lower than the residential electric bill of 61.5 percent of residential customers served by other electric utilities in the country.

The two legislators say laws needed to prohibit utilities from including the cost of advertising in customers' bills. A substantial portion of our advertisements are, in fact, solely by the company's shareholders and not customers. In addition, the intent of the majority of our advertising is to inform the public about ways to conserve energy and, in turn, their monthly utility bills.

You say the Public Service Commission and the utilities have failed to recognize consumer interests. We Consumers Power Company do not disagree more. We're here to serve the public with gas and electricity, something we intend to do at the lowest possible cost to the customer.

The cost of energy, however, due to inflation and the expense of raw energy resources, will continue to rise. This is an unfortunate fact of life. Additional needless laws, red tape and bureaucratic involvement will result in higher, not lower costs to customers.

Gardner is a spokesperson for Consumers Power Company.

Colorado River rapids offers trip in Arizona's Grand Canyon wilderness

Hidden Canyon: A River Journey
Photographed by John Blaustein
by Edward Abbey
Penguin Books

John Blaustein's wilderness adventure. Ah yes, the familiar institution that each red-blooded American with a desire to become a Daniel Boone. Whether the excitement of the frontier be starting the fireplace with only one match or goes so far as carrying a backpack around the living room stuffed with books, most armchair nature freaks dream of fantastic trips someday get around to taking.

Satisfy the dreams of convicted city dweller or steadfast camper too broke to venture far from a heated home with water. Penguin Books has published a fascinating account of a boat trip down a river which meanders through the bottom of the Grand Canyon.

This is no ordinary book, for it consists of nearly 100 color photographs intermingled with an insightful journal of the 18-day

Hidden Canyon: A River Journey was photographed by John Blaustein who has had his work printed in several editions including Time Life Books' American Wilderness

In addition to being an excellent photographer, Blaustein also has been a boatman and guide on the Colorado River, having made over 35 dory trips through the Grand Canyon.

To achieve the unusual close-up pictures of wooden boats being tossed about in frenzied waves Blaustein actually used his camera mounted in the rear of a dory as it plummeted through a rapid.

In a photograph at the end of the book, "I place the motor-drive (35mm) in an ammo can, with large holes cut out of two opposite

Both holes are covered with Plexiglas, and sealed with rubber. One affords the front of the lens a clear view and the other allows me to see through the viewfinder in order to proper framing when I attach the rig to the boat. . . . When the dory is in the middle of the roughest water, I start the camera, and it will automatically expose an entire roll of film — thirty-six frames — within nine to eighteen seconds, depending on how I set

As a result of all this extensive preparation is an exciting journal essay on the river boat trip by a photographer who has received any formal instruction in photography.

Though the book consists primarily of pictures, there is a text by Edward Abbey. He has been a park ranger, fire lookout and full-time wilderness poet. Well qualified for the task of writing an account of the journey equal to Blaustein's photographs, Abbey kept a journal while taking the trip.

Intermingling facts about the area with his own impressions of the adventure, Abbey succeeds in producing a fast-paced account of an incredible vacation.

"The temperature of the water here is 47 degrees (I place a six-pack of Michelob in the water for quick chilling.) And brand new? This river is not the Colorado we knew and loved. The real Colorado died in 1964 when the engineers of the Bureau of Reclamation closed the gates at Glen Canyon Dam, changing the Colorado from a wild and free river into the domesticated, well-regulated conveyor belt for boloney boats that it is today. Probably no man-made artifact in all of human history has been hated so much, by so many, for so long as Glen Canyon Dam. . . .

"And the boatmen, they look even worse than the boats. . . . Time to back out of this deal. I knew there was something queer about the whole setup, this supposedly free ride on the new Grand Canyon subway. . . . Our destination, 277 miles downstream."

Realistically petrified of the trip in the beginning, Abbey's insatiable thirst for the unknown parallels that of Major John Wesley Powell's who traveled the same river course nearly a century ago and whose journal the author frequently quotes in his own account.

"August 13, 1869 — We are now ready to start on our way down the Great Unknown. We have but a month's rations remaining. We have an unknown distance yet to run, an unknown river to explore. With some eagerness and some anxiety and some misgiving we enter the canyon below. . . .

And, further on in the text, Abbey's writing talent and editing becomes more evident as the reader can almost feel the panic which grips the passengers in the boat when the helmsman yells, "And one more! . . . One more indeed. The dory drops into the deepest hole yet. I think I can almost see bedrock bottom. The third wave towers above us. Far above. The Great Wave. Heavily our water-loaded boat, askew, climbs up its face. Never makes it. As the wave hits us from the portside our dory turns over with the grave, solemn, inevitable certainty of disaster. No one says a word as we go under."

Yes, they survived the Horn Creek Rapid at mile 90 which is rated between 7 and 9 for difficulty, 10 being the most challenging. On the 13th day, Abbey describes the rapid which even the boatman fear: Lava Falls. This rapid with a rating of 10 plus becomes the climax of the text at mile 179.

The remaining five days of the journey were described in brief — perhaps because the notebook which Abbey was using became soaked with river water and nearly indecipherable.

However, if only just for a few leisurely hours, the escape from city life to wilderness adventure is well worth the time.

'All you need is love' fails

ALL YOU NEED IS LOVE

by Tony Palmer

Penguin Books

$8.95

By DAVE DI MARTINO

Tony Palmer is asking for trouble in writing this book. What ALL YOU NEED IS LOVE purports to be is "the story of popular music." No more, and no less. Unfortunately, as Palmer himself admits in the book's preface, such a documentation can in no way be complete unless it were to contain several thousand pages. Keeping that in mind, Palmer has managed to successfully gloss over every aspect of popular music — from ragtime to jazz, blues and rock — in slightly more than just three hundred. With lots of nice pictures, ALL YOU NEED IS LOVE is fun to look through but little more than a laugh to read.

As it happens, Palmer is an Englishman. That might not seem to make much of a difference, but the popular music that he attempts to document is almost exclusively American. As a result, the distance between both countries has never seemed greater.

Originally, Palmer's book came about as a supplement to a nine-week musical series he produced on the BBC. Aired in England several months ago, the series was much criticized on several counts (including its breadth of coverage) and was regarded by more than one critic as a lame attempt, by Palmer, at demystifying a bewilderingly American music scene. According to a Penguin Books press release, Americans will have their own chance to see Palmer's series in January, when it will be aired on most PBS stations. Until then, ALL YOU NEED IS LOVE will have to do.

Quoting Palmer's own words: "Critics of popular music are obsessed by the need to load the music and its development with a philosophical importance that is alien to it." A valid point, certainly, and it's encouraging that Palmer himself manages to make it. Once made, however, the point quickly is obscured by a series of "philosophically important" conjectures by Palmer that mire his already limited viewpoint and rarely let up.

Palmer spends most of his time in ALL YOU NEED IS LOVE congratulating himself for his "extensive research." After what undoubtedly became a harrowing series of experiences out in the field, Palmer has turned up the following fascinating data: 1) Popular music did NOT originate from West Africa. 2) The Storyville club in New Orleans during the early 1900's was NOT jazz headquarters (in case you thought it was). 3) When Storyville was shut down, jazz was NOT bootied out of New Orleans, and musicians did NOT steam up the river to Chicago. 4) The blues is NOT the cornerstone of all modern popular music. And finally, 5) The Delta, home of "American Negro music," is NOT located in and around the Mississippi River at New Orleans.

More of these shattering revelations abound in ALL YOU NEED IS LOVE, but I won't tip Palmer's hand. The curious can pick up Palmer's book. But if they're smart, they'll promptly put it back down again, because ultimately the book carries worth on only two levels: the art — including some fascinating reproductions of sheet music covers produced during the early '20s, and several previously unpublished photos of British rock stars — and the exclusively British music coverage. Understandably, Palmer comes across much more authoritatively when writing about current British pop, undoubtedly because it IS current, and British.

However, when Palmer's documentary shows up on PBS next January, I'll be watching. Supposedly some very rare film footage of saxophonist Charlie Parker has been unearthed — Parker previously was assumed to have never been filmed in action — and, if nothing else, that part of Palmer's project should be worthwhile.

THE MAJESTIC SYSTEM

Flexibility and performance at a modest price. That's the MAJESTIC SYSTEM. Even a quick check of the many convenience features of the JR-5100 shows that it offers much more than similarly priced receivers. Not only does the JR-5100 share many of the original JVC technical developments of the larger and more expensive models, it also guarantees the same Original Sound Radiom that is a JVC Policy in high fidelity equipment. The JR-5100 delivers enough power for those great bass notes (below 45 Hz) that characterize popular music today. What this means is you can use medium efficiency speakers and still get great gussy sound. The Genesis 1 speakers are those speakers. You get adequate sound pressure levels in a normal room with power to spare. So, the JR-5100 is a perfect example of high performance at astonishingly low cost. The Audio Technica AT11E cartridge requires a relatively low tracking force which results in less wear on recordings.

Wood offers alternative fuel source

ANN ARBOR (UPI) — Full utilization of wood energy could save Michigan $8.4 billion and 600 million barrels of oil over the next 30 years, based on current market prices, according to Gov. William G. Milliken. "I don't think anyone here today would suggest that wood energy is the single solution to our energy problem," Milliken told a wood energy conference Tuesday. "But it can play an important role as a renewable source of energy — as a reliable, ongoing resource which fills part of the gap left by shrinking fossil fuel supplies. It holds the potential to be a clear part of the solution to our energy problems, a part of an overall approach which includes a number of alternatives shaped by regional needs and resources."

Milliken said Michigan has more than 19 million acres of forest land which would produce 500 million tons of surplus wood fiber over the next 30 years.

Surplus wood, he said, currently has no commercial value, but can be used for fuel. "It is difficult to equate wood to other forms of energy in terms of heat content because burning wood efficiently is somewhat of a lost art," the governor said. "But a conservative estimate equates this 500 million tons of surplus wood to 600 million barrels of oil."

Milliken said increased harvesting of wood fuel in Michigan would create additional jobs — particularly in the traditionally high unemployment areas of the north.

"It is estimated that more than 250 jobs would be stimulated per each million tons of wood fuel harvested within the state," he said. "Thus, wood fuel deliveries totaling four million tons could generate more than 1,000 jobs." The governor said he is hopeful a wood energy demonstration project will soon be started in Michigan.

Lansing approves new public basketball league

There will be more basketballs bounced in Lansing this season as a result of a resolution sponsored by Lansing city Councilmember Terry McKane.

In Monday night's city council meeting McKane asked for the immediate passage of a resolution granting $600 for an additional Lansing young adult basketball league.

The resolution, prompted by the inability of three basketball teams to join the regular Lansing league, was unanimously passed by the council. The additional league will give six to 12 teams the opportunity to compete.

After much debate, the council also finally passed a resolution for funding the reconstruction of the Kalamazoo St. Bridge. The resolution was tabled at last week's meeting to let city attorney Timothy W. Sanderson review the council's policy on transferring funds.

The first vote on the resolution resulted in a tie and, after debate, was passed by a 6-2 vote.

The Lansing Board of Water and Light will be allotted $140,000 of a Federal grant for the electrical work on the bridge reconstruction, expected to start in late February.

In other City Council action:

•The council agreed to have beat patrolmen assigned to downtown, Frandor and Michigan Ave. shopping areas during Christmas shopping season.

•Accepted an offer by Vector Construction Inc. for the purchase and redevelopment of land on the corner of Washington and Shiloh St.

The final date to have free senior pictures taken for the Cedar Log has been extended through Dec. 9.

Seniors can schedule an appointment by calling 353-5555. Students who have already had their pictures taken are reminded to return the proofs to the photographer as soon as possible. Orders for yearbooks can be placed in 30 Student Services Bldg. or 337 Union. The cost is $12.

High schoolers' attitudes toward sex, drugs shift

NORTHBROOK, Ill. (AP) — Seventy percent of the nearly 24,000 high school juniors and seniors who answered a questionnaire say they have never had sexual intercourse, and 56 percent say they would prefer their husband or wife to be a virgin when they marry.

The nationwide poll is conducted annually by "Who's Who Among American High School Students" among juniors and seniors chosen by their principals, guidance counselors and national youth groups.

This year's poll — the eighth — produced substantial evidence which seems to show the teen-agers have reversed liberal trends of 10 years ago and are becoming more politically and morally conservative.

Seven out of 10 of the leaders surveyed say they do not condemn couples living together without marriage, but only two of those seven say they would seriously consider such a relationship for themselves.

However, 37 percent said they approved of premarital sex if there was mutual consent, and 5 percent approved if the couple is going steady and another 18 percent said it was OK if the couple plans to marry.

Fifty-four percent listed national defense as a priority in spending tax dollars. That was the first time a majority had picked defense as a priority.

Seventy-seven percent favor maintaining the defense budget at the current level or increasing it, a contrast to four years ago when only 8 percent urged greater defense spending.

In 1971, only 30 percent advocated capital punishment. Now 66 percent favor reinstating the death penalty. Also, 64 percent believe in censoring certain movies, television programs, books and magazines whereas almost the same percentage opposed any censorship in 1971.

Nearly half the students, 49 percent, said they never had beer, 46 percent never drank a glass of wine, and 61 percent never tried hard liquor. In 1972, 85 percent said they had tried some alcoholic beverage.

About 88 percent said they never have used drugs and only 9 percent said they have smoked marijuana. Also, 85 percent reported never having smoked cigarettes and 8 percent have quit.

PBB COVERUP ALLEGED

Charges may signal new probe

GRAND RAPIDS (UPI) — Federal charges filed against two firms blamed for Michigan's PBB livestock disaster may be the first step in a federal investigation of the contamination incident and its coverup, U.S. Attorney General S. Brady said.

Brady said Monday that a federal task force will seek to answer other questions including allegations that the two firms and government agencies attempted a coverup in the wake of what Brady called "the most serious agricultural contamination problem" in the nation's history.

Brady said the task force would include members of his department and the FBI.

Brady filed a four-count information Monday against Michigan Farm Bureau Services Inc., and Veliscol Chemical Co., accusing them of violating federal and drug laws by making and selling livestock feeds that were contaminated with toxic PBB.

The charge is a misdemeanor which carries a maximum $100 fine for each count, Brady said. Arraignment was scheduled for Dec. 12.

PBB, made by Veliscol's corporate predecessor, Michigan Chemical Co., was sent to a farm bureau mill in 1973 where it was mistaken for a feed additive and mixed with livestock feed.

Brady said the misdemeanor charges were the result of past investigations by the U.S. attorneys in Grand Rapids and Detroit, federal grand jurors J. Kelley, the U.S. Department of Justice and the Federal Drug Administration. He said those authorities had information "some time ago" but opted not to file charges because the alleged violations were only misdemeanors.

"It hasn't been until recent months that the serious consequences of PBB contamination, as far as its destructiveness and potential harm to humans, have become known," Brady said. Brady said his task force will continue to investigate charges that the two firms and some government officials failed to act properly to protect the public from PBB contamination after the mixup was discovered.

Officials of the two companies refused comment on the accusations, saying they had not seen the specific charges.

Farm Bureau attorney Kenneth McIntyre said the charges "appear to be the same thing the grand jury looked at a year ago, and they didn't figure it merited any further action."

McIntyre said the formal charges name the companies but not the officers as defendants. "I don't know how they are going to arraign a corporate charter," he said.

An unknown graffiti writer apparently didn't think much of this billboard near downtown Seattle, Wash., but the chorines keep dancing oblivious to their new "tatoos." The same billboard was defaced in a similar way several years ago when it showed a model advertising whiskey.

Author will read African poetry

South African author Sheila will read and discuss works of South African literature at 12:15 p.m. Thursday in International Center.

"About Time" will be the title of her presentation at the luncheon sponsored by the African Studies Center. She is a native of South Africa and teaches literature at MSU. Her collection of short stories, "Outside Life's Feast," won the Olive Shreiner Prize for prose in 1975. Her latest novel, "He's My Brother," has been banned in South Africa because of its description of social and political problems in that country.

Kreative Kampus Klubs

By MARK WEST

Every day on campus we are bombarded with massive amounts of information on this organization or that. Most of this goes in one eye and trickles out a nostril. Not only is this messy, but we may be missing something worthwhile. For example, you may have lived in a closet for years, eating onion soup and not talking to anyone, afraid of ridicule and actual physical abuse because you thought you were the only person who appreciated Hugo Winehard's embroidery stitching on stuffed frogs. Then you get on campus and see a poster announcing the Fifteenth Annual Hugo Winehard Collector's Convention and Swap Meet. With this thought in mind, I read quite a few of those mimeographed, misspelled posters and flyers. I will now present, verbatim, a couple of the more interesting ones.

COMMITTEE ON INTELLIGENT EATING

During past holiday breaks many Hubbard Hall residents saw their friends overindulging in holiday feasting. Alarmed by these displays of gastronomic gorging, concerned residents have formed the Committee on Intelligent Eating.

Be sure you know the warning signs of problem eating. Ask yourself the following questions:

- 1) When you put on a yellow coat do people mistake you for a taxi?
- 2) Does the weekend elevator make everyone else leave when you get on?
- 3) When young children visit you do they use one of your shirts as a tent?
- 4) Did you throw away your diabetic roommate's insulin so you could have more room for munchies?
- 5) Is the only reason you smoke marijuana because it is socially acceptable as an excuse to have the munchies?

If you answered yes to any of the above questions, you need help. You are welcome to attend the CIE meeting next week. Refreshments will not be served.

THE EX-FREAK CONGREGATION

John Doe (not his real name) was a typical high school student with a not-so-typical talent for art. John's life took a dramatic turn for the worse when he painted the ceiling of his high school gym during a 57-hour acid trip. Ever since that weekend John gets sick at the sight of paint, thus ending a promising artistic career. He's so burnt out now he's cut his hair and taken up business administration at MSU.

But there's still hope for John. Every time he hears "Wooden Ships" his eyes get misty, his hands tremble, and starts beautiful sketches that he just can't finish.

John is only one of many such people in our community. These men and women need our help. Please donate your battered regalia of yesteryear. We need your old Army jackets, headbands, blacklight posters, old albums by Blue Cheer, Stooges, Hendrix, Jefferson Airplane, etc., etc.

Your donations will be used in monthly meetings to help these poor wretches relieve their youth.

VIRGINS ANONYMOUS

This group had only its name and phone number on its notice. It decided to call and find out what they are about.

"We have a rapid turnover in members," said Mary (859-3401), the member who answered the phone. She told me that VA members use only their first names and phone numbers.

"People join up to get rid of their virginity. The ratio of men to women is about even. Usually after the first meeting everybody goes home with somebody. Of course, then there is no need for them to come back."

'Sarah' illuminates legend

By KATHY ESSELMAN
State News Reviewer

Zoe Caldwell creates a glittering, brittle portrait of the legendary Sarah Bernhardt in the CBC production of Sarah, airing tonight on WKAR TV (channel 23). Glorious, evanescent, a woman of ephemeral passions and monumental ability, Bernhardt was of the first generation of international stage stars and shared the adulation of the Western world with Eleanor Duse and Ellen Terry.

Nothing was too extravagant or outrageous for Bernhardt to adopt as a habit or fetish if it furthered her career. She ascended into the skies in balloons, wore trousers and kept a pet ocelot. She let it be known that she slept in a coffin and carried a skull with her on her travels. Bernhardt openly acknowledged her illegitimate son — a clear act of defiance against the Victorian double-standard.

Bernhardt's taste for the unconventional extended to her theatrical performances. She was the first performer to portray Racine's Andromache dressed in mourning, rather than in the conventional white. Her performances in the French classics were original and incandescent. Like Ellen Terry, she invested her readings with naturalism and stripped them of the mannered style dictated by French Classicism.

Zoe Caldwell gives a brilliant evocation of the mercurial Sarah Bernhardt, reminding one that there are far too few great roles written for women. Her reading of a speech from Andromache is electrifying. She has won two Tony awards, for A Slapstick Tragedy and The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie. This performance should earn her an Emmy.

In Sarah, Suzanne Grossman has kaleidoscoped Bernhardt's career, using her make-up session before her only film appearance in La Reine Elizabeth in 1912, at 68, as a frame for her reminiscence. Grossman has constructed a complex work which communicates an enormous amount of information about Bernhardt's life and career.

It is this perverse, brilliant artist that Grossman portrays in her script. However, the drama has a mechanical quality. Seams show here and there where scenes are patched in to communicate a bit of information or set a mood. The over-all structure is a shade too intellectual. First, it recounts the establishment of her career, second, her stormy, tragic marriage to Jacques Damala (Jeanne Leclerc) a roue twenty years her junior, and then it concentrates upon her lifelong love affair with France. This structure allows for the inclusion of a great deal of biographical material, but breaks the flow of the drama, allowing the viewer to be too distanced from emotional involvement with the work.

Grossman's dialogue is tinged with the salty accents of the Parisian demi-monde. Grossman has done an admirable job of communicating the mores of a leisure class who considered any behavior acceptable, as long as one did not do it in the street and frighten the horses.

The work was directed by Waris Hussein, who did Nous les Femmes, the life of George Sand, for BBC-TV. He elicited stunning performances from all the players, and composed this diverse material into a unified whole. The grand manner, favored by theatrical folk at the turn of the century, poses problems, cause it can veer dangerously toward parody. To Hussein's credit, all the performances succeed in maintaining a delicate balance between grandeur and humanity. His organization of the technical aspects is meticulous.

This original CBC production is mounted with lavish gance. No detail is omitted, and costumes that leave nothing to be desired.

Sarah offers an appetizing alternative to the bland being ladled out by the works this season.

STATE EMPLOYEES TRAVEL TOGETHER Local van pools saving gas, money

By ANNE MARIE BIONDO
State News Staff Writer

Michigan state employees have conserved some 22,000 gallons of gasoline since April through a new form of mass transportation called van pooling.

According to the Michigan Bureau of Transportation Planning, 100 state employees are presently participating in van pools. Eight vans operate daily to transport 10 to 12 people from home and work.

Van pooling is an attractive way of reducing peak hour traffic congestion, said Steve Vertalka, mass transportation planner for the state.

The Department of State Highways and Transportation said that the vans are traveling about 2,000 total miles a day. Van poolers were still driving separately, they would be traveling about 14,700 miles a day.

Expense and operational costs — determined by the number of miles the van travels daily — are covered by a van pool expense account. He said the vans are leased through a local dealer.

The expense account is funded by participating employees' payroll deductions, he explained.

A public subsidy is involved, Vertalka said. "The program was designed to break even, and so far this has been the case," he noted that the driver is not charged a share of the cost. He is responsible for contacting riders in his or her area, for the route and maintaining the van at the program's expense.

The van pool was started to demonstrate that similar programs would be beneficial to other Michigan employees. "We hope to use the experience to serve as a guide for other potential van pool programs," Vertalka explained.

There has been an overwhelming success, he added. "In April the program began with three vans; today 28 vans are operating. We expect (vans) by the end of the year," Vertalka said.

Roach, manager of Mass Transportation Planning, said a long-term forecast — projecting 10 years into the future — 10,000 employees can be expected to provide home-to-work transportation for more than 100,000 Michigan residents.

There is a lot of activity at the federal level as well as the state level to encourage van pooling, Roach said. "Within a year we expect to see a lot of organizations starting programs."

Recently introduced into the legislature were six bills dealing with such employee concerns as workmen's compensation insurance, Roach said. "These bills are designed to reduce the burden on the user."

According to Roach, the bills will exempt vans from the state tax and establish an income tax credit for private vehicles using van pools. He added that the bills call for the creation of a division of ride sharing within the Department of Highways and Transportation. He said the division will coordinate all ride-sharing programs in the state, create van pool guidelines, and provide guidelines for local agencies interested in starting ride-sharing programs.

Vans travel daily from many areas including Grand Rapids, Ann Arbor, Ionia and St. John's to Lansing Roach said.

One enthusiastic rider, Bob Reynolds, a highway department employee from Ionia, said he saves between $125 to $130 a month by van pooling.

Faculty and students of Cleveland's Case Western Reserve go underground to study cave exploration, and with few caves in the area Outing Club members explore storm sewers. Club members say their activities are within the law as long as they don't enter through manholes.

Trustee's role questioned

trustees would have to choose a president from a recommended list of candidates submitted by the search-and-selection committee.

While the proposal does not specifically state that the board must choose a president from the committee's list, it does state "It is the frank spirit of this instrument that the Board shall appoint a person from the Recommended List."

John F. A. Taylor, chairperson of both the ad hoc committee which formed this proposal and of the committee which formed Taylor Report I, emphasized that the board of trustees is not legally bound to solicit the academic community's opinion on the presidential selection procedure.

One provision which would encourage the board to choose a president from the list, Taylor said, is one which states that the recommended list must have the common consent of the committee and the board of trustees before it is passed on to the board of trustees for selection of a president.

Wharton said he believed it was "highly unlikely" that a majority of the board of trustees would choose a person not on the advisory committee's recommended list.

Another topic of discussion was the proposal's statement that the search-and-selection committee should include women and minorities in its membership.

At any price you can afford to be choosy.

Because the value of every diamond is determined by four characteristics (cut, color, clarity and carat weight), you can always use these qualities to your best advantage.

Perhaps you're attracted by the grandeur of a large diamond. Well, sometimes a large stone can cost the same as a smaller one. Simply because it has a little more color. Or a delicate birthmark hidden inside.

On the other hand, you may feel size isn't the most important quality. Then you could choose a diamond that's small, but perfectly cut to sparkle with an icy-white elegance.

In any case, you'll be able to find one to suit your personality. Because each one is an individual, with its own combination of characteristics. And you can use these qualities any way you wish, to help you decide what's precisely right for you.

But the important thing to remember is to buy a diamond engagement ring you'll be happiest with. You'll be sharing it for a lifetime with someone you love.

And for that reason alone, you should be choosy.

MICHAEL KLOCKE

Jitters will disappear

There can be no doubt — MSU was rather tense in their opening game Monday, a 68-61 win over Central Michigan.

But it is understandable. There was an incredible amount of pressure on the athletes, and especially on Earvin "Magic" Johnson. A lot is expected of the Spartans, and they must prove themselves.

The slim victory margin over CMU was definitely not expected by most people, especially after seeing MSU dominate Windsor by a 114-66 score in an exhibition game. More of the same was expected against the Chippewas.

The team didn't play well, but in many ways the game against CMU was a beneficial one.

For one thing, the young freshmen got some game exposure. Late in the game you could sense that "Magic" was over the nervousness he had displayed earlier.

One thing the fans must not do is underestimate Johnson's ability after his rather mediocre showing Monday. All great athletes have bad days — and Earvin is a great athlete.

At Lansing Everett last year, he had a very bad game in a mid-season loss to Jay Vincent's Lansing Eastern Quakers. But in the district tournament opener against Eastern, he was dominating.

Another positive aspect of the game was the emergence of Vincent, who had 25 points. Quite simply, Vincent won the game for the Spartans. It's been a long time since anyone from MSU has taken the ball to the hoop with the authority and strength that Vincent did Monday.

Coach Jud Heathcote had maintained earlier the victory margin did not matter — MSU simply needed a win Monday.

They got the win, and they got game exposure for the freshmen. This will be sorely needed when the Spartans travel to Syracuse this weekend for the Carrier Classic. It is possible they will play eleventh-ranked Syracuse Saturday — and they'll have to play quite a bit better to even come close.

"Magic" did not play well. Bob Chapman did not play well. But MSU has too many talented players for everyone to have a good game every time.

Women cagers reach for national prominence

By GAYLE JACOBSON

State News Sports Writer

Though the basketball season doesn't officially get under way until December 20 when MSU's women cagers go up against Grand Valley in Allendale, the Spartans have been busy training for a number of weeks.

"We've spent a lot of time working on our offense," head coach Karen Langeland said. "That's going to be one of our biggest assets this year."

The Spartan women finished their 1976-77 season looking vastly improved from when they began it. They wound up the year by capturing a second-place finish in the Big Ten tournament, and were victorious in the state of Michigan and Region Five championships.

Langeland is hoping to improve the team's record for this coming year and to repeat as state of Michigan and Region Five champs.

"We're a much more experienced team... and we have a lot more balance, so we should do better than last year," Langeland said. "I'm hoping for a first-place finish in the Big Ten."

Right now there is every reason to believe the team of twelve women can accomplish these pre-season goals Langeland has set.

This year's group of cagers consists of nine returning players and three sophomore transfers. Langeland plans on going with last season's starters for the 1977-78 opener with Grand Valley. She will be using senior co-captain Jill Prudden at center, senior co-captain Kathy DeBoer and junior Lori Hyman at forward, and senior guards Karen Santoni and Diane Spoelstra.

"The starters have the playing experience and have played together on a winning team," said Langeland.

The three transfer players have already proved themselves to be much-needed assets to the Spartan squad.

Mary Kay Itnyre, a sophomore transfer from Arizona State, is a six-footer — the tallest member of the MSU team. Itnyre, a center, should be able to provide the size and strength needed for the position.

"She's a strong individual and should give us a lot of rebounding and scoring from the inside," Langeland said. "This is something we were lacking last year."

Pam Rendine is a sophomore transfer from Southern Illinois and at five-foot-five she is the shortest player on the squad. Rendine is an excellent ball handler and passer and also a good defensive player.

Dawn Bryant is a sophomore from St. Joseph's College in Indiana. A forward, Bryant transferred back to MSU for the school's track and basketball program.

In between the Spartan season opener December 20 and their home opener January 3, against Wayne State, the cagers will be making an appearance in Flushing, New York for the Queens College Holiday Tournament. The tournament games will be played December 27-29 and will consist of seven other teams: Old Dominion, Providence College, Fordham, Oral Roberts, Concordia, USC, and Queens College.

Old Dominion is ranked sixth and has to its credit All-American Mary Lieberman. The tournament host, Queens College, is ranked eleventh.

"We're not ranked in the top ten right now," said Langeland. "We could be after the Christmas tournament, depending on how we do."

Karen Langeland

mas tournament, depending on how we do."

So, the Christmas games are certainly very important ones for MSU. The Spartans will be up against some of the top teams in the country only a week into regular season action. And there is definitely going to be a great deal of pressure on them to win despite how young the season may be.

JOHN SINGLER

Tip the hat for spikers

Something has to be said about Annelies Knoppers, the head volleyball coach. She recognized the talent she had on fall's squad and, despite absolutely horrid results, asked everyone that sooner or later her charges would jump some and work a few surprises.

While averaging one win a month through September-October, the Spartan spikers did nothing but give a successful women's sports program one big, black eye. In than one case, they evoked chuckles, not cheers.

Through it all, Knoppers insisted that her team was better than the record showed. I didn't believe her and she knew it.

The third-place finish in the state tournament, the final week of the season, came as a surprise indeed, and a pleasant one. team is to be congratulated, albeit a little late, for sticking to it.

Strolling through the hallway at the Women's IM the other I noticed Knoppers sitting in her office with the door open, and invited me inside to eat some crow.

She told me that I'd been wrong.

The women's gymnastics season is in the blocks ready to Mike Kasavana has assembled quite a collection of talent. Spartans should be much better than last winter's good camp.

The schedule is the difference. MSU has Massachusetts, State, Southern Illinois and Clarion State (Pa.) on the card. four are national powers and have been for many years. Clarion the defending national champ.

Athletic director Joe Kearney made an interesting point. halftime of Monday's Central Michigan-MSU basketball game said that in order to compete on a regular basis — and make representative showing — against national powers, you have to have quality and depth.

Indiana State All-American candidate Larry Bird (left) puts in two of his 26 points over Purdue's Walter Jordan. Bird led his team to a 91-63 upset in Terre Haute, Ind. Monday over Purdue, ranked No. 7 in the nation and favored to win the Big Ten championship this year. Indiana State is tied with Utah for 16th. The loss evened Purdue's record at 1-1 while Minnesota, another Big Ten favorite, evened its record at 1-1 by defeating Eastern Kentucky 61-59.

MSU will overcome jitters

They didn't play well, but they won. That was truly amazing were the fans' reactions. There had to be some disappointment over the poor showing, but the spectators really show it. They cheered just as loud when the team was leading early in the contest as they did when the Spartans led unbeatable in the final five minutes. A crowd just might have been the difference in the game. If they had played as they did Monday in the Chippewas' crackerbox stadium they might have lost. Doubtless most of the blame for the game's close score would go to MSU's poor showing. But CMU head coach Dick has to be credited for one heck of a coaching job. Chippewas were ready for MSU and they played extremely well. Although the talent disparity between the teams was

U-D's Vitale retires

DETROIT (UPI) — A bawling Dick Vitale retired from coaching because of internal bleeding Tuesday on the eve of what could be the University of Detroit's best basketball season — but left the door open for a possible return to the pro job he admittedly covets. Vitale, who lifted a tattered Titan program from the edge of dissolution four years ago, remains as athletic director to preside over a season full of sold-out games. Assistant Dave Gaines was elevated to become the school's first black head coach.

Spartans will crack top 10

It doesn't matter what sport you're talking about. What he said is the truth. The women's gym team had quality last year, but no outstanding depth. They have both this season and if things go smoothly between now and April, MSU will push its way into the golden circle of teams mentioned above.

Pam Steckroat is an All-American and you might expect a coach to leave her alone, not change a whole lot of her performance. But not Kasavana. He has Steckroat trying a few new tricks on the uneven parallel bars and polishing two moves which he says have never been done — to his knowledge — in the 18 years he's been associated with the sport.

That says something about how much this man, and his staff, want to succeed. Wins and losses aren't as important in this sport as how you play the game, and who you play it against.

Document says South Korea planned U. S. spy network

before other similar South Korean efforts were publicly disclosed.

A subcommittee member, Rep. William Goodling, R-Pa., said he believes Korean efforts to carry out the plan were cut short by the publicity.

That sentiment was echoed by Sohn Ho Young, who defected from KCIA station chief in New York City two months ago. The subcommittee apparently obtained the alleged plan from him.

Sohn said South Korea was already getting bad publicity about alleged influence-buying by Korean businessman Tong-sun Park when the plan was formulated.

"My common sense tells me this was really not carried out," he said.

The alleged plan envisioned paying $100-a-month to three aides for the "intelligence net, work in the White House, three aides in the State Department to strengthen ties with an unnamed official there and three aides to 'concentratedly infiltrate' the Defense Department's military aid division.

It also called for $100-a-month payments to five employees in U.S. intelligence agencies to strengthen ties with them.

Three unnamed aides in the House Speaker's office and other congressional leaders' offices were to be paid $500 a month as "paid collaborators."

Some $15,000 was to be paid in "special manipulation expenses" to aides apparently in at least four different congressional offices.

The KCIA also planned to try to recruit and manipulate reporters for the New York Times, Washington Post, Christian Science Monitor and American Broadcasting Co., according to the plan.

Benjamin C. Bradlee, executive editor of the Washington Post, said through a spokesman that he knew of no attempts by South Korean officials to recruit or manipulate Post reporters.

John Hughes, editor and manager of the Christian Science Monitor, said: "To my knowledge, no correspondent of this newspaper has ever been manipulated by the Korean CIA, or any agency of the South Korean government."

"To the contrary, one of the most unpleasant confrontations this newspaper has ever had with a foreign government occurred when the South Korean government in 1974 barred one of our correspondents, Elizabeth Pond, from South Korea for her reporting, which the government considered unsympathetic."

"Specifically, the South Korean ambassador to Washington warned us that Miss Pond's safety could not be guaranteed if she entered South Korea."

Another goal was to "manipulate" two news organizations whose names were censored out of the copies of the plan released by the subcommittee.

The KCIA planned to "hire and utilize two American reporters as paid collaborators" and to hire one reporter for a Korean residents newspaper for $12,000 a year to manipulate him.

A New York Times spokesperson said, "It appears it is just a statement of intent of what they would like to do and we have no evidence that any New York Times people were converted."

The KCIA also allegedly planned in some cases to try to convert reporters by flying them to South Korea for visits and also hoped to convert at least one unnamed Harvard University scholar listed as an opponent of President Park Chung Hee's policies.
