Wonder!

J.J. flabbergasted

By DIANE COX
State News Staff Writer

*"There is a world within itself
With a language we all understand
With an equal opportunity
For all to sing, dance and clap their hands."
— "Sir Duke"*

That's a song by Stevie Wonder, J.J. Jackson told "Clarence" a computer sang the song. "Have you heard of him?" Jackson did not know that "Clarence" was, in fact, his friend, singer-composer Stevie Wonder.

As a computer programmer in the Artificial Language Laboratory of the MSU Computer Science Dept., Jackson had a challenge Tuesday. He had to teach a student who is both blind and speech-impaired how to use the talking computer to aid in communicating.

Jackson, who is blind himself, said the laboratory had never been used by a person with that combination of handicaps. "I'm really worried," he said before "Clarence" arrived in a wheelchair for his lesson. "This is a first."

"Clarence" turned out to be a fast learner and especially interested in Jackson's relationship with Stevie Wonder. "I've known Stevie for 15 years," Jackson told "Clarence." "I consider him one of my best friends."

"Between you and me, Clarence, I think the computer sings better," Jackson said about the computer's rendition of "Sir Duke."

Jackson tried to show "Clarence" additional marvels of technology, but the student was tired of learning. He arose from his wheelchair, took Jackson's hand — and began to laugh. Jackson stood befuddled for a few moments. And then it finally dawned on him. "Stevie?" Laughter. "Stevie!"

"Have you met Clarence?" Jackson jokingly asked his old friend. "I had, for 'Clarence' was Wonder's creation, enabling him to surprise visit in honor of Jackson's 28th birthday. Jackson said he was genuinely surprised.

"I think he didn't know," Wonder said. "He doesn't have much

Two wiretap bills killed by Senate

LANSING (UPI) — The Senate has apparently dealt a fatal blow to House-passed legislation permitting Michigan police officers to wiretap the telephones of suspected drug profiteers.

Two bills setting forth strict limits under which wiretaps would be allowed were sent back to the Senate Judiciary Committee on a 25-12 vote Tuesday.

"They're dead," said Sen. John C. Hertel, D-Harper Woods, a judiciary committee member who supported the wiretap provisions.

Ostensibly, the measures were referred back to committee to gather further information on the overall effect of wiretaps on civil rights and in the fight against drug trafficking. But few Senate members expected there would be further committee hearings.

"I'm not even pretending there should be another hearing," said an opponent, Sen. Daniel S. Cooper, D-Oak Park. "They should be killed."

Earlier, the Senate had approved and returned to the House another key portion of the drug crackdown package — a measure providing stiff mandatory penalties up to life imprisonment for top echelon heroin and cocaine dealers.

But the sponsor of the package, Rep. Paul Rosenbaum, D-Battle Creek, had said the wiretap provisions were crucial for an effective assault on the highly profitable and well-insulated world of the drug kingpin.

Senate backers had taken up Rosenbaum's argument that the wiretap authorization had adequate safeguards to assure privacy rights would be protected.

Currently federal officials are authorized to use wiretaps but Michigan police agencies are not. The bill would have allowed state-operated wiretaps if all other investigative methods failed, if the state attorney general petitioned for a warrant and if a three-judge Michigan Court of Appeals panel approved the warrants.

"The most stringent safeguards that have ever been recommended by the courts in this state are in these bills," said Sen. Hal W. Zielger, R-Jackson, who led the floor fight to win approval for the legislation.

But Sen. Robert VanderLaan, R-Grand Rapids, said privacy and other liberties "are too hard fought to start giving them away piece by piece."

Cooper added: "These are things that our people died for."

In another development, the Senate approved by votes of 23-7 and 23-9 two minor bills in the drug package. One would guarantee that persons convicted under the penalty bill would be denied parole. Another is a technical bill extending the higher penalties to the criminal code.

Distributing porn to kids now illegal

LANSING (UPI) — Gov. William G. Milliken has signed into law a bill banning the distribution of pornography to minors — a measure seen as the opening shot in an all-out state attack on smut.

The law will prohibit the dissemination of sexually explicit materials to persons younger than 18. It includes a three-part standard for determining whether the banned materials will be "harmful to minors."

That standard, officials hope, will pass court tests and become the basis for controlling pornography in schools now available to adults.

"This law ... can help government deal with one particularly offensive aspect of pornography — its effect on children — while we search for a more sweeping solution to the larger problem of pornography and its existence in society in general," Milliken said Monday.

Under the law, visual and verbal materials will be considered harmful if they appeal to the prurient interests of an average minor, if they are patently offensive to standards of suitability for minors, or if they lack serious literary, artistic, political or scientific value for minors.

Persons who violate the law could be fined up to $10,000. It exempts parents or guardians, teachers, administrators, librarians or persons distributing material for legitimate medical, scientific, educational, governmental or judicial purposes.

A recent Michigan Supreme Court ruling struck down local obscenity ordinances and put the state under pressure to enact a statewide standard which the court said is needed as the basis for the regulation of pornography.

Court nixes police promotion plan

By DIANE SILVER

ROIT (UPI) — A federal judge says Detroit Police Department's affirmative promotion program is unconstitutional because it discriminates against officers and could "sow seeds of hatred."

The ruling Monday by Chief U.S. Judge Fred Kaess marked the first federal court has labeled a big city department's affirmative action program unconstitutional.

An angry reaction from Detroit Mayor Coleman Young, and city attorneys would appeal.

The judge said the program, aimed at increasing the number of black sergeants in Detroit, violated "the rights guaranteed by the 14th Amendment."

Discrimination is as indefensible as practiced against whites as when practiced against blacks and it does not become 'reverse' because it is practiced against whites," Kaess said.

Under the ruling, Kaess said the city must appoint its police sergeants in accordance "with strict, numerical ranking and without deviation" from the current eligibility list.

Kaess ordered a second trial to determine if awards should be ordered for 200 white officers passed over for promotion.

"The judge is wrong, and what he is saying flies in the face of affirmative action decisions handed down across the country," said Young, who was in Washington when the ruling was handed down.

"If the judge is saying that there hasn't been past discrimination in Detroit, then I want to know what country he's been living in."

City attorneys said they were preparing an emergency appeal to the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati. Pending that appeal, the city will make no promotions to the rank of sergeant.

In his ruling, Kaess said discrimination — even in the name of equality — is not constitutional and will not work.

"The racial preference promotional practices of the Detroit Police Department cannot withstand a constitutional assault, and violate the rights guaranteed to whites by the equal protection clause of the 14th Amendment," Kaess said.

Kaess conceded the goal of equal opportunity "is a laudable one," but he said it "cannot be achieved by use of a racial quota which necessarily runs counter to the constitutional mandate of the 14th Amendment."

"Inevitably, race quotas do not accomplish the result of equal employment opportunity," he said.

CLUBS APPEAL COURT RULING

Pigeon River drilling disputed

By TOM CIPOLLONE

Various sport and conservation clubs filed a deposition with the Michigan Supreme Court Tuesday appealing a December lower court ruling upholding the state's right to allow limited oil drilling in the Pigeon River County forest area.

The West Michigan Environmental Action Council and nine other groups charge that the Michigan Natural Resources Commission has sanctioned environmental destruction in the lower peninsula's largest wilderness tract and wildlife refuge.

The state has until April 4 to file a deposition countering the charges.

Roger Conner, attorney for the Action Council (a group of state sport and conservation clubs dedicated to preserving the wildlife refuge), said the Ingham County Circuit Court failed to consider all the effects drilling will have on the 145-square-mile forest.

Conner said his group is appealing the decision on the grounds that the state violated the intent of the Environmental Protection Act. He said the group feels the earlier ruling threatens the effectiveness of the act.

Stewart Freeman, representing the NRC in the case which began in 1976, said the Pigeon River County issue involves "a question of values."

The NRC believes state royalties from the drilling project, estimated at $100 million over the next 30 years, justifies its decision to allow drilling in the lower third of the forest, Freeman said.

Gerald Thiede, of the DNR Office of Forest Management, said that under current plans all the oil companies involved but one, Michigan Oil Company, have agreed to a cooperative drilling effort in the forest.

"Under this agreement, only one company, Shell Oil, will actually drill," Thiede said. "Shell will then distribute the profits to the other companies like Amoco who also hold leases in the forest."

Freeman cited the oil industry's concessions to reducing noise levels in the forest to the lowest ever agreed upon by the industry and restrictions placed on drilling close to ground water sources, as examples of the control the NRC will exercise over the drilling operation.

Despite these drilling restrictions, the Environmental Action Council and others, including the Sierra Club, the Northland Sportsmen's Club and the Detroit Audubon Society, are appealing the December decision saying pollution will nevertheless occur with the intrusion of the oil industry into the forest.

Still before the high court is a suit brought against the NRC in 1972 by the Michigan Oil Company to acquire a permit for independent and competitive drilling in the Corwith Township area of the forest. The NRC earlier denied the permit.

Wharton blasts NCAA in testimony

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Jim Santini, D-Nev., said Tuesday the National Collegiate Athletic Association exerts "abusive and arbitrary power" that destroys college players, coaches and schools, and alumni supporters.

And at a second day of testimony into the policies and practices of the NCAA, former MSU president Clifton R. Wharton Jr. charged NCAA denied MSU due process before imposing probation on the University.

Wharton, president of MSU when it was placed on two years football probation, decried the evils of big-time college sports, but lashed out at "NCAA concepts of justice and due process" in its probes.

During the investigation of MSU, Wharton — now chancellor of the State University of New York system — said the NCAA displayed "a hostile attitude" and violated basic fairness.

"There was, in my estimation, a very pervasive attitude in the whole proceeding that it was the University's obligation to prove its innocence, rather than for its guilt to be established."

Even more disturbing than the NCAA's attitude, he said, is that no one has devised a means of curbing abuses in college athletics. Athletes are suspended from competition for violations, but coaches found guilty can move on to another college and are free to keep making money.

"And the values imparted — 'You are nothing if you are not No. 1' — hardly fit an academic mode," he said.

He said the stakes are too high to call college sports "amateur," and "when you need a book of more than 280 pages to tell you how to conduct intercollegiate athletics, you are no longer talking about 'sport.'"

Spanish army postpones actors' trial

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — Under obvious pressure from an embarrassed government, the Spanish army on Tuesday postponed the trial of six pantomime actors accused of insulting military officers by portraying them as prejudiced drunks.

A lieutenant colonel announced in the military courtroom that the trial of the mimes — members of a Catalan group called the Jugglers — would be delayed because the defendants were not all present to answer the charges. No new trial date was given.

One day earlier, 34-year-old troupe director Albert Boodella escaped from police custody, and the army said then that it would try him and any others who did not show up in absentia. Friends said he had fled to an undisclosed place in France.

Four of the six accused were in court Tuesday, and defense attorney Jose Maria Loperena shouted at the lieutenant colonel that they were ready to stand trial.

Sweden concerned over Soviet patrol subs

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Sweden will express concern to the Soviet Union about six Russian submarines that patrol the Baltic Sea carrying nuclear missiles, the Swedish Foreign Ministry said Tuesday.

"We don't like it," ministry spokesman Lars Rohmert said.

He said the flotilla was stationed permanently in the sea between Sweden and Russia about one year ago and is "significant from a point of security policy since it is a new weapon in the Baltic . . . We plan to take up this question on a diplomatic level."

But Bertil Lagervall, a spokesperson for the National Defense Staff, said: "This does not alter our strategic situation. It would hardly be of any importance from military aspects."

He said it made no difference if a missile armed with a nuclear warhead was fired "from the Baltic, the North Sea or from ashore in some Eastern state."

UMW leaders ready radio promotions

(AP) — The proposed contract that could end the 85-day nationwide coal strike goes before a split union membership this week, and United Mine Workers president Arnold Miller is taking to the airwaves to encourage the membership to ratify it.

As copies of the proposed new contract — reached by negotiators last Friday — circulated in coal country Tuesday, UMW members and local union leaders scheduled meetings over the next few days to discuss and be briefed on its provisions.

The UMW leadership in Washington readied a half-dozen television commercials and more radio spots to promote the pact, at a cost of $40,000 in air time alone.

A majority of local union presidents in 15,000-member District 6 in Ohio and northern West Virginia denounced the agreement Monday as a step backward in such areas as medical benefits.

AFL-CIO to lobby in support of farm strike

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The AFL-CIO will lobby Congress in support of the nationwide farmers' strike, a spokesperson for the labor organization said Tuesday.

The AFL-CIO Executive Council, which ended meetings here on Monday, had issued a statement Sunday in support of the farmers' movement for higher prices.

It said the farmers had adopted the strike as a last resort.

"We felt there must be government programs to assist these people in acute danger of losing their farms and livelihood, and that their farms would fall into the hands of corporations or foreign investors," said Albert Zack, director of public relations for the AFL-CIO.

He said the labor group would concentrate its efforts on Congress in an attempt at new legislation to support the farmers.

"There's a lot of foreign capital and corporate capital going into farm land," Zack said. "If the family farmer is driven out of business, the American consumer would be at the mercy of the corporation farmers or absentee landlords."

Senators impatient with canal debate pace

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders indicated Tuesday they are growing impatient with the slow pace of the Panama Canal debate and may move soon to speed the process.

"About everything that can be said, has been said," Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., told reporters before the start of the 10th day of debate.

But Byrd declined to say whether he was going to clamp down on senators who have begun going over and over the same arguments.

Byrd's Republican counterpart, Sen.

Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee, said he plans to try to get senators to agree to limit the time spent on each amendment.

"I'd like to finish it well before Easter," said Baker.

The Senate voted twice Monday to reject amendments offered by treaty opponents, and both leaders said they were encouraged by the results.

But many observers felt the votes demonstrated only that there are still no clear signs how undecided senators eventually will vote on the pacts.

Missouri files suit against NOW

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri filed suit Tuesday against the National Organization for Women, accusing it of antitrust violations for urging conventions to boycott the state because it has not ratified the Equal Rights Amendment.

"The merits of ERA are not at issue in this suit," state Attorney General John Ashcroft said in announcing the suit filed in U.S. District Court. "The issue is the intentional economic harm to our state and its citizens, and the inability of those harmed to defend themselves.

"The availability of normal and protected channels to try to pass an amendment will remain, but the threat to the continued viability of representative government must be stopped," Ashcroft said.

Record education budget ask

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter asked Congress on Tuesday for a record $12.9 billion federal budget for education and promised that some of the aid will go toward reviving the three R's — reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic.

If adopted by Congress, the hike would be the biggest increase in federal aid to education since Lyndon Johnson's administration. Carter's message to Congress restated his fiscal 1979 budget request for a 24 percent increase in spending on education. It also revealed his proposals for reshaping the Elementary and Secondary Education Act in order to channel federal money more directly to "those so often shortchanged in our educational system because of social problems or poverty."

The president, whose first public office was as a school board member in Sumter County, Ga., said his proposals "will focus our nation's resources on helping our children master the basic skills — reading, writing and arithmetic — which remain critical to their ability to function in a complex society."

He also reaffirmed his intention to ask Congress to set up a separate Department of Education.

Carter asked for $6.9 billion for elementary and secondary education, up from $6 billion this year. This includes nearly $3.4 billion in aid for compensatory education for poor children, which funnels money to 14,000 of the nation's 16,000 school districts.

He proposed targeting $400 million in extra aid to 3,500 districts with large concentrations of poor students. Two-thirds of this money will go to hard-pressed center-city schools, while one-third "will flow to rural and suburban school systems which have similar needs," he said.

The extra money will increase from 5.6 million to 6.5 million the number of poor students who get remedial education.

In his effort to improve steadily declining basic educational skills such as reading and writing, Carter said the government will fund more research and demonstration programs in these areas.

He said the push on basic skills also would include federal support for "increased use of achievement testing and the participation by parents in teaching their children."

And he said the government will try to link schools "with employers and other resources in the surrounding community," and basic skills also will be emphasized in adult education programs.

Congress, which has provided more for education than Republican presidents wanted from 1969 through 1977, is expected to be receptive to Carter's request, although a split is developing on aid to college students.

Carter wants to increase aid to college students by $1 billion, with much of the money going to $250 grants to students from middle-income families.

However, there is support in Congress for tax credits to families of college students to help them pay college tuition. Carter opposes the tax credits.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. P. fano, once a Johnson aide at a news briefing in the House:

"This is an extraordinary education budget, unprecedented since 1965. . . . It's those moments in which Lyndon Johnson were alive see what President Carter done for the federal government that began 12 years

FDA approves anticonvulsant

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government gave its approval Tuesday to an anticonvulsant drug that experts predict will help more than a half-million victims of epilepsy, some of whom are incapacitated by hundreds of seizures a day.

The drug, valproic acid, is chemically similar to sodium valproate, a drug that has been available in Europe for a decade and that has been the subject of a campaign in recent months by the Epilepsy Foundation of America to win U.S. approval for its use.

Valproic acid will be marketed in this country by Abbott Laboratories of Chicago under the brand name Depakene.

Dr. Julius Richmond, assistant secretary for health in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, called the Food and Drug Administration's unusually quick approval of Abbott's new drug application "an excellent example of the FDA's scientific regulatory process working efficiently and objectively in the face of strong emotions and partisan pressures."

Buses in South Africa drop segregation policy

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — White bus riders in Cape Town are rubbing shoulders with black, Indian and mixed race strap-hangers in a new crack in South Africa's system of apartheid.

The quiet revolution began about six months ago when City Tramways, which runs all of Cape Town's bus services, began removing apartheid signs from buses and bus stops one by one and area by area.

In the past, all buses were designed for use by one racial group or else had segregated seating. But the company was losing money by operating segregated buses.

A candlelight vigil around Akron, Ohio, city hall began Monday night in support of legislation to regulate abortions voted on Tuesday morning by Akron city council. The outcome was a 7-6 victory for the anti-abortionist Citizens Informed Consent.

ask Non-academic employees honored

By PETE BRONSON
State News Staff Writer

Six MSU staffers — including a blacksmith, a forester and a custodian — will be $1,000 under this year.

The winners of the first annual Distinguished Staff Awards were announced Tuesday afternoon. Recipients were selected by the Non-Academic Women's Advisory Committee. Four men and two women representing the three major areas of non-academic employment at MSU were chosen by the committee. Walt Lemmien, a forester, and Doris McNitt, an administrative assistant, were selected from the administrative professional classification.

Ruth Langenbacher, an executive secretary for the Department of Communication, and Paul Schneider, a graphic technician for the Department of Resource Development, are both members of the clerical-technical division and will also receive awards.

For the labor classification, the committee chose Georges Lambrette, a custodian at George Art Center and Norman Oswald, a blacksmith for University Farms.

The Distinguished Staff Award finalists were selected from more than 200 nominees, the selection committee chairperson Marilyn Bria said. Nominations were submitted from all segments of the university community, including students, faculty and administrators as well as staff.

The awards are the first presented to honor MSU staff members. Established by the advisory committee a year ago to "bolster university morale, the awards encourage job excellence and highlight staff contributions to university operations," said Geraldine Cords, advisory committee chairperson.

Comparable to the Distinguished Faculty Awards given to outstanding MSU instructors each year, the award also includes a choice of a silver bowl or mug with an inscription. The Non-Academic Women's Advisory Committee was established in 1975 by former MSU president Clifton R. Wharton Jr. to advise administrators on the concerns of non-academic women employees, and to strengthen affirmative action programs.

Financed by the Office of the Vice President for University Development, the awards will be presented at the first Annual Employees' Recognition Dinner to be held March 22.

University Vice President Jack Breslin called the award a "big morale booster."

"I'm glad to see some recognition for non-academic employees. The academic community can't get by without help from people like these," he said.

All recipients agreed they were surprised at being selected for the award.

"After a department meeting where my award was announced, (communications) department members stopped by my office and offered to help me spend my $1,000," Ruth Langenbacher said.

George Lambrette, who has spent more than 20 years maintaining Kresge Art enter is described as a "superb" worker by his boss, Art Department chairperson Roger Funk.

"If I wanted money I'd be a banker," he commented.

Blacksmith Norm Oswald said he "burns the midnight oil" to maintain his farm near Holt and work at MSU, but added that his job performance hasn't suffered.

"I like working with horses and machines," said the grandson and son of blacksmiths. J. Paul Schneider prepares graphics for two campus departments, and has seen the University double in size since he was hired in 1945.

Doris McNitt is active in the Administrative Professional Association she helped found in 1969, and also takes part in fund-raising activities for several charities. She is assistant to the Dean of the College of Social Science.

Sometimes called "the father" of MSU's Kellogg forest near Kalamazoo, Walt Lemmien began planting trees in donated barren farmland in 1946. "It's impossible to replace Walt," said Forestry Department chairperson Lee James.

"Walt is a 'forestermeister' in the old world tradition. He's everything from a scientist to a laborer and he's one of a kind."

MSU Brazil project inspected by trustee during two-week tour

An MSU trustee is currently on an inspection tour of the controversial Brazil project and other MSU programs in South America.

John Bruff, D-Flaser, is making the two-week tour on a grant from the Midwest University Consortium for International Activities. No MSU funds were used for the trip, according to University officials.

Opponents of the project have often voiced criticism to Brazilian involvement because of alleged tortures and human rights violations carried out by the Brazilian government.

Homer D. Higbee, assistant dean of international studies and programs, said Bruff is being accompanied on the trip by Ralph H. Smuckler, dean of the program.

"The trip is needed to acquaint members of the board with the international affairs programs," Higbee said.

Bruff is scheduled to return around March 12. Smuckler will remain in South America a few more weeks to observe MSU-connected programs, Higbee added.

He called the trip "a routine administrative inspection trip."

But Milton Taylor, professor of economics and one of the most severe and vocal critics of the Brazilian project, took a considerably different view.

Taylor said he believes Bruff's trip condones what he calls exploitation of the people by a "fascist Brazilian dictatorship."

"He'll only see what the dignitaries of the Ministry of Education want him to see. He won't see the poor people or the ghettos. All he will see is the inside of a plush hotel," Taylor said.

Candidacy not valid, judiciary tells student

The invalidation of Kathy Lamb as a candidate for Business candidate for the MSU Student Board was upheld this week by the All-University Student Judiciary.

Lamb's candidacy was invalidated by the University Elections Commission earlier this month on grounds that she was not officially registered as a student in that year.

According to a written statement released by the judiciary Tuesday, Lamb is enrolled, with a major in James Madison College and a major in economics. While Lamb thought that as a dual major she was eligible to run for representative in either college, the judiciary based its ruling on the fact that James Madison College has sole jurisdiction over her academic records.

"In no manner does the College of Business monitor her or other dual majors, have control over their academic programs, or take appeals from them regarding their academic careers at MSU," the judiciary statement said.

The judiciary also noted in its ruling that while Lamb is an economics major the College of Business also lists her as a major of James Madison College.

FORESTRY CLUB PLANS ANNUAL PARTY Tie-wearers beware: foresters may attack

By MICHELLE CHAMBERS
State News Staff Writer

Tie-wearers will be in peril Thursday and Friday if they choose to wear their usual accessories in the halls of the Natural Resources Building.

The MSU Forestry Club is holding a "tie-cutting" on those two days to publicize the club's annual "Shindig" to be held Friday night.

The victims will be mainly professors, Forestry Club president Jim Champion predicted.

Headquarters for the tie-destroyers will be the Forestry Department office, 126 Natural Resources Building.

All victims who do not remove their ties upon request will be escorted to the office where two club members will be waiting with axes and a chopping block.

"The members of the club performing this task were chosen because of their high level of eye-hand coordination," a club spokesperson explained.

Dan Stouffer, chairperson of the tie-cutting committee, said that the event was chosen to publicize the "Shindig" party because "all foresters, in their flannel shirts and hobnail boots, have an inherent distaste for anything allowed to get a stranglehold on the neck."

"Tie-cutting has been a tradition at Shindig and we decided to extend it," Champion said.

"We're trying to drum up a little interest with the professors," he added.

"Shindig," featuring square dancing, will begin at 8 p.m. Friday in the student center at St. John's Student Parish. All agriculture and natural science students are invited.

During the events, awards will be presented to commemorate the 75th anniversary of the Forestry Dept.

Other awards will go to the best-dressed male and female foresters.

"We're all coming dressed to look like old-fashioned foresters with wool pants and suspenders," Champion explained.

Prizes will also go to the participants of the beard-growing contest, which started in January.

The six Forestry Club members still in the contest are competing for awards in the categories of "most coverage," "best looking" and "shouldn't have tried," Champion said.

Forestry Dept. chairperson Lee M. James will be honored and new club members will be announced at "Shindig," he added.

But the main focus of the evening will be "eating, drinking and funning," one club member said.

"Formal attire is totally inappropriate for this occasion," he added.

Tickets are on sale for the dance in the Forestry Dept. office at $3 for students and $6 for alumni.

Kenneth Bloomquist

Band director to become new music chairman

Kenneth G. Bloomquist, professor of music and director of bands at MSU since 1970, will become chairperson of the MSU music department July 1.

He will succeed James Niblock. A native of Iowa, Bloomquist holds degrees from the University of Illinois. He was a United States Army Band leader before beginning his college education.

He taught and supervised music programs in Taylorville and Urbana, Ill., public schools, then served on the faculty of the University of Kansas from 1958 to 1970.

During those years, he was professor of trumpet, director of bands and brass ensembles and organizer of a brass choir.

Bloomquist was named Outstanding University of Illinois Alumnus in 1966.

He has also written articles about trumpet-playing, marching bands and brass choirs for educational and music journals. As a conductor and contest adjudicator he has traveled throughout the United States as well as Southeast Asia, Australia, Mexico and Europe.

Bloomquist will give up his directing duties when he assumes his new position.

Appointing judges to high court best serves interests of justice

In an age when judicial review of key legislative decisions is expected rather than feared, Americans live under a government of men, not laws.

The appellate courts, particularly the State Supreme Court, have the power to negate any legislative action with the sweep of a robed arm. And this is being done with frequency.

High courts have issued rulings that set the legal standards for everything from abortion to education, leaving legislators and executives frustrated in defeat.

Because of this method of selecting high court justices, the method often becomes the floor for a political battle rather than a forum for those concerned with justice.

In Michigan, State Supreme Court judges are popularly elected, ideally without partisan allegiance. The candidates, however, must be nominated at one of the major party conventions.

There are two moves underway in the state to change the selection of high court judges; one in the legislature and the other within the law profession.

The State Bar Association, with the vocal support of Gov. William G. Milliken, has taken to the streets with a petition to have their plan voted on by the public.

The Bar is backing appointment of high court judges by the governor. We agree with this plan.

The state legislature, however, is the setting of an effort launched by House Judiciary Committee Chairperson Paul Rosenbaum, D-Battle Creek, to change the system of electing justices.

Rosenbaum's bill, unanimously approved last week by his committee, would eliminate the party nominations and have would-be judges run in a non-partisan primary. Afterwards they would face off in a similarly non-partisan general election.

The faults in this plan are very similar to those in the present system. Popular election of high court justices demands campaigning, which in turn requires funding.

The seven Supreme Court Justices in Michigan currently serve six-year terms, with two up for re-election at the same time.

Since the judgeships are state-wide offices, campaigning has to be vigorous and take up time that incumbent judges should be spending on the bench. With two incumbents campaigning at once, the Supreme Court is often left with only five active justices for as long as six months of an election. Funding for these state-wide campaigns is large scale and exposes judicial candidates to favors — and later pitfalls — of special group support.

It is not in the interests of justice for candidate to accept funding from a special interest that will, in all probability, be bringing before that court and judge.

Lawyers, in the past, have been prime contributors to judicial campaigns, but this too carries the appearance, if not the certainty, of impropriety.

And state lawmakers cannot be considered campaign fund sources for judges when legislative proposals go to the court for review.

Under the current system, judges, nominating political parties, cannot escape a partisan taint both before and after the election.

The primary method proposed by Rosenbaum would somewhat alleviate this but would also have the danger that a man or woman could be seated on the state's most powerful body because of a smile or the innate capacity to sell his or her ideas to the people.

While appointment of justices surely weakens the bench would be left at the mercy of the party in power at the executive level — being backed by the state bar shows more concern for a rational selection process.

Appointment of Supreme Court justices vents needless political sales pitches and lessens the danger that a man or woman could be seated on the state's most powerful body because of a smile or the innate capacity to sell his or her ideas to the people.

Both political parties are now more concerned about any change in judicial selection because high court will undoubtedly rule on legislative pointment after the 1980 census.

But political fears and ambitions as appointment of high court justices is an available method of insuring that qualified, interested men and women with judicial political, aspirations will be seated. In this government of men and women will best be

VIEWPOINT: NATURAL SCIENCE COURSE

Open letter: teaching creation and evolution

By JOHN N. MOORE

Open letter to Dr. Robert L. Anstey, MSU Department of Geology, and colleagues in the Department of Natural Science:

Professor Anstey, I am very interested in your proposed course in geology that "will serve as a counter-presentation to other MSU courses, in which a biblical viewpoint is presented as a part of the subject matter of natural science" (State News, Feb. 6). Please send me an outline or prospectus of your planned course that I might compare it to my own course structure.

As I mentioned in our telephone conversation of Feb. 9, I would like you to have a brief prospectus of my teaching at MSU. You related in that conversation that your impressions of my courses in natural science at Michigan State were based in part upon your reading of paragraphs in the December 1977 Scientific American in the "Science and the Citizen" section. Let me state emphatically that that writer displayed an inordinate lack of objectivity of reporting since I was neither contacted directly nor interviewed by telephone.

Upon direct inquiry of me the writer could have ascertained that I do not teach "the Biblical view of creation" by teaching religious dogmas. As far as I can determine the Scientific American writer based those paragraphs upon a California newspaper story, which in turn evidently was contributed by a freelance writer in Detroit, Mich. (I will add parenthetically that claims that I do not teach science have been made unjustly and without any substantiation.)

As you know, newspaper writers are not scientists generally, but I would have expected that the Scientific American writer would have determined the following more adequate representation of my courses: In my general education natural science courses at Michigan State University I definitely teach about the nature of scientific knowledge, and I explain the scientific processes throughout the year as three specific themes are implemented: (1) explication of observation versus explanation, (2) discussion of the structure of theories, and (3) attention to interaction of science and society.

In the fall term (N.S. 135D) subject matter (selected from astronomy, chemistry, and atomic physics) utilized to implement these three themes involves treatment of changing scientific ideas or concepts of the universe. And for about 10 days near the middle of the term I help students realize limitations of the big bang idea of cosmologists and itemize circumstantial support for creation of the universe. Rigorous application of cardinal principles of science and illustrations of aspects of scientific methodology is a particular characteristic of classroom work throughout the first term.

In the second term (N.S. 115D) students study subject matter (selected from cell biology, aspects of knowledge of sexual reproduction, and genetics) to implement the three main themes stated above so as to clarify scientifically the nature and continuity of life. For about a full week I help students realize the confrontation possible between the unscientific concept of sub-microscopic, sub-molecular spontaneous generation of life on the earth and evidences of order and complexity, which make creation of life circumstantially credible — even in the 20th century. Rigorous application of cardinal principles of science and illustrations of aspects of scientific methodology is also characteristic of classroom work throughout this term.

In the spring term (N.S. 122) I engage in a week by week, even day by day, confrontation between evolutionist and creationist views regarding origin of human kind and other forms of life (plant and animal). Again the three main themes already stated above are implemented through use of selected scientific subject matter (from geology, comparative biology, molecular biology, population genetics, and paleontology). Again rigorous application of cardinal principles of science and illustrations of aspects of scientific methodology is a particular characteristic of classroom work throughout the third term.

I have taught these courses during each academic year for the past four or five years with the full knowledge of my departmental colleagues, and they have received good student comment and support. Survey of student reactions at the close of classwork has regularly resulted in student agreement that: (1) "The instructor discusses points of view other than his own," (2) "The instructor contrasts the implications of various theories," (3) "The course stimulated me to examine new ideas or re-examine ideas and values previously held," (4) "I was stimulated to ask questions that I would not have thought of or asked before," and (5) "The total class experience has given me a sense of intellectual growth, a feeling that something valuable and productive has occurred."

Other objective evidence of positive evaluation of the careful teaching technique that I have developed is found in the fact that over the past five years I have lectured (entitled, "A Scientific Case Against Evolution"), on invitation, before graduate zoology classes, zoology honors course classes, science college classes and other natural science classes (over 30 times to this date), than my own. All the above occurred at Michigan State University. Also, in recent years, I have taught in the College of Education, on invitation, a special instructional module, "Evolution and Creation," for senior education majors in three separate terms (continuation was interrupted by my second Sabbatical, spring term, 1977).

Further objective evidence of positive evaluation of both on-campus and off-campus professional work by me has been receipt of special merit raises to my annual salary, as awarded in two separate years by departmental peers, for what was stated in reports of the Natural Science Department Council as "1. Scholarly work in the area of the Creationist-Evolutionist debate," and "2. Public service in the presentation of Creationist-Evolutionist issues" on May 30, 1973; and "For continued scholarly work in the area of the creationist-evolutionist debate," and "For continued public service to a wide range of groups in presentations on the issues of the creationist-evolutionist debate" on March 28, 1975.

You should be informed also that I have presented scientifically-based lectures before sessions of AAAS and numerous science teacher conferences and conventions (state, regional or area, and national — including NABT and NSTA), on invitation, during the past six years. In fact I was scheduled to participate in the 1978 NSTA national convention in Washington, D.C. on April 10. However, I was informed (Feb. 7, 1978) by the national program chairperson that he was "not able to find someone to present the other side of this issue" (Creation and Evolution), and therefore, "it is necessary that I cancel this session." Amazing to me is the fact that from a national organizational membership not one evolutionist can be found to engage in a face-to-face confrontation with one creationist science teacher.

Finally, I would inform you that my classwork in each of the three courses mentioned above includes clear presentation of the fact that the leading physical and biological scientists who began the profession of science did so within the world view or metaphysical presuppositional base of theism. My students throughout the year learn of the clear-cut difference between the presuppositional disposition of Copernicus, Kepler, Newton, Clerk-Maxwell, Faraday, Linnaeus, Pasteur, Nuttall et al and the usually unstated metaphysical pre-suppositional base of mega who believe in explosion of spontaneous generation event "dissipative structures" with re origins.

May I hear from you at your convenience in the form of a outline or course prospectus planned course as I have requested. Moore is a professor of natural sci-

Feminine ideas

The Feminine
Miriam and Jose Arguelles
Pembala Publications

Beyond the realm of feminist literature and chauvinistic works from members of the sexes, exists a study of the more subtle nature of the feminine and masculine around the world.

Not an exploration of the traditional and true ideas of yin and yang, The Feminine examines the idea of the feminine as evidenced in cultures, literature and art around the world.

The feminine is described as the open, all pervading space; the masculine arises from within the feminine, and providing an active power through its open spaciousness.

The book traces the idea of the feminine in all pervasive space, the unborn force, through its glorification and expression in art and history.

The authors, both artists themselves, use a vast amount of art to illustrate their ideas — a pleasant touch. Paintings by O'Keefe, Indian sculpture, and photographs and drawings by the authors are included in The Feminine almost an art book, rather than a philosophical work.

The authors lean toward a verbose style more reminiscent of a doctoral thesis rather than a popular work of non-fiction. Although fluent in their use of English, the persistent use of multi-syllabic words makes The Feminine difficult to read.

Its content, however, is concise. It progresses logically toward its discussion of androgyny and proposes that men and women can learn to balance their feminine and masculine natures. "The union of feminine and masculine as the inseparability of discriminating awareness and skillful compassionate behavior could be developed as a life-embracing discipline," the authors suggest.

Along with the artwork, the text is highlighted by the inclusion of appropriate quotations which emphasize the authors' points. An appendix of additional quotes is used to give authors, sages and saints from history the chance to reveal their philosophy of the feminine.

The dense style makes this a difficult book. However, The Feminine is an interesting and beautiful book. It's probably best suited to be a "coffee table" book (albeit a paper bound one) because of the incredible art included. It is, nonetheless, informative and perceptive work.

NBC loses 'Change'

NEW YORK (AP) — Because of some work on the part of a network technician, almost 17 minutes of the wrong NBC's Loose Change was aired during the eastern two-thirds of the nation last night.

James Bess, operations supervisor for the network, said the technician — whom he did not identify — went to the wrong tape for the second episode of the eight-part series, and instead cranked up the first show.

A deluge of calls kept Bess from solving the problem immediately, he said, and then the proper reel had to be brought out, the projection system set up, and the commercials replaced.

By that time, 16 minutes and 36 seconds had elapsed.

The fumbling will cost the network thousands of dollars in overtime to employees who must stay on the job until the network day ends and in time leased from affiliate stations — all for what Bess called "a human error."

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC tightened its grip on first place in the networks' ratings race, claiming the five most-watched programs of the week ending Feb. 26, A.C. Nielsen figures show.

It was only the slightest twist on an old story. ABC is almost routinely first in ratings — 22 of 25 weeks this season — and the network's Laverne and Shirley, Happy Days and Three's Company seem to swap the No. 1 spot from week to week.

Generally, CBS or NBC slips a show into the Top 5, but in the most recent survey, NBC's best was No. 6 Little House on the Prairie, CBS' was the Grammy awards show, No. 7.

Laverne and Shirley was the week's most-watched program, with a rating of 31.9. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with TV, 31.9 percent watched all or part of the show.

Elvis look-alike!

ELVIS COSTELLO IS KING! Who? Well, he's not exactly a household name yet, but he is the first New Wave rock act to have a record pass #50 (with a bullet!) in Billboard Magazine's Top 100. Reason enough for East Lansing's Discount Records to proclaim Tuesday "Elvis Costello Day."

"Wanna throw a dart at Elvis?" CBS Records representative Jeff Lewis asked customers as they entered the store. Their target was a giant Elvis poster covered with balloons, each designating a different prize, and the contest was symbolic of Costello's album title — My Aim Is True.

"I don't think I like him," said the bewildered winner of an Elvis poster. "God, I'd give five dollars for one of those posters!" exclaimed another contestant who had to settle for a "collector's item" single.

Perhaps the biggest fans were Terry Przybylski (pictured in center) and Jim Allen, both of East Lansing, who tied for first place in the "Elvis Look-Alike Contest." Allen brought his guitar. "I was going to bring my accordion and play Watching The Detectives on it," Przybylski said.

Cities &amp; Desire 2

At the end of three days, moving southward, you come upon Anastasia, a city with concentric canals watering it and kites flying over it. I should now list the wares that can profitably be bought here: agate, onyx, chrysoprase, and other varieties of chalcedony; I should praise the flesh of the golden pheasant cooked here over fires of seasoned cherry wood and sprinkled with much sweet marjoram; and tell of the women I have seen bathing in the pool of a garden and who sometimes — it is said — invite the stranger to disrobe with them and chase them in the water. But with all this, I would not be telling you the city's true essence; for while the description of Anastasia awakens desires one at a time only to force you to stifle them, when you are in the heart of Anastasia one morning your desires waken all at once and surround you. The city appears to you as a whole where no desire is lost and of which you are a part, and since it enjoys everything you do not enjoy, you can do nothing but inhabit this desire and be content. Such is the power, sometimes called malignant, sometimes benign, that Anastasia, the treacherous city, possesses; if for eight hours a day you work as a cutter of agate, onyx, chrysoprase, your labor which gives form to desire takes from desire its form, and you believe you are enjoying Anastasia wholly when you are only its slave.

'Star Wars' sequel set

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Bleep. Zap. Ping ping. Activate, R2-D2. Time to go chasing Darth Vader again, and pick up your Oscar on the way.

There were two developments Monday for fans of Star Wars, the space opera that has made more money than any other movie: It has won at least one Oscar and — to the surprise of absolutely nobody in the movie business — there will be a sequel.

Lucasfilms Ltd. formally announced Monday that filming will begin in Europe and Africa this summer on a sequel to Star Wars, reassembling the original cast — Mark Hamill as Luke Skywalker, Carrie Fisher as Princess Leia and Harrison Ford as Han Solo.

Irvin Kershner will direct, with a $10 million budget and a script written by Leigh Brackett from a story by George Lucas, who wrote and directed the first film.

The Board of Governors of the Academy of Motion Pictures Arts and Sciences have announced two special Academy Awards.

Benjamin Burtt Jr. will receive a special achievement Oscar for creating the voices of the non-humans in Star Wars, such as R2-D2's unintelligible, but expressive, bleeps and squeaks.

A special award for sound effects will go to Frank Warner for Close Encounters of the Third Kind.

Star Wars has been nominated for awards in 10 regular Oscar categories and Close Encounters in eight.

Norman Lear to leave sitcom scene

LOS ANGELES (AP) — All in the Family producer Norman Lear, the sad-faced king of situation comedy, is taking an "extended leave" from weekly television that could prove permanent.

"I just have a real need to flex other creative muscles," said

Lear, 55, who in seven years put 16 situation comedies totaling 1,400 episodes either on the networks or in syndication to stations.

He said Monday that he plans to return to writing and directing feature films, study programming for cable TV or so-called "over-the-air" pay TV, and work on a public affairs program idea he has for commercial TV.

But he said he'll also work as a consultant for his two production companies — Tandem Communications, Inc., and T.A.T. Communications — when his services are required.

He said at least six comedies he helped develop — either now on television or awaiting their premiere — will continue, but without him.

They include All in the Family and Maudie, if renewed, Good Times, The Jeffersons and One Day at a Time, and America 2-Night, a syndicated series, a spokeswoman for Lear said.

Lear, whose All in the Family broke long-time TV taboos against comic treatment of bigotry when it began in January 1971 on CBS, emphasized he wasn't taking leave because he was tired of the weekly grind.

Cobham makes satisfying music

By DAVE DIMARTINO
State News Reviewer

A very personable Billy Cobham brought his new band to Dooley's Monday night, giving two concerts and a great amount of satisfaction to an audience that was forced to wait almost two hours for the drummer to take the stage.

With Cobham was his brand new band, a group he's put together for touring since the release of his recent Magie LP on Columbia Records. Members include the relatively new-found Alvin Batiste playing clarinet and flute, bassist Randy Jackson, guitarists Ray Mouton and Charles Singleton and keyboardist Mark Soskin. With the exception of San Franciscan Soskin, all of Cobham's band members come from Louisiana; Batiste, a superb player and an unusual bit of casting for the standard "fusion" mold, in fact is a former director of music at Louisiana State University.

After the somewhat contrived Cobham-George Duke partnership, which resulted in at least one LP and a Lansing appearance at the Silver Dollar Saloon, Cobham's new group comes as a pleasant surprise. The incorporation of Batiste's clarinet into the group's sound makes for a very welcome variation to the now rather dreary fusion format. That, plus the fact that neither of Cobham's guitarists play in the McLaughlin/DiMeola style — as did guitarist John Scofield with the Cobham/Duke band — adds to the uniqueness that Cobham literally HAS to attain to emerge from the murkiness his prolific Atlantic Records association left him in.

In fact, only keyboardist's Soskin's insistence on bending his notes a la the typical Corea-ish fusion fashion left anything to be desired Monday night. Cobham's guitarist Mouton utilized a neat little, gimmicky electronic device which cut off the attack sound of his picking, giving his playing a unique sound slightly akin to a sort of "organic" synthesizer. Because Batiste was miked, rather than electronically amplified — and due to Dooley's rather limited sound system capabilities (monitor problems, etc.) — the general sound level of Cobham's band was appreciably less overpowering than his 1976 Silver Dollar appearance with George Duke.

As for Cobham himself, what can be said? He's one of the most powerful drummers now playing, and though at times he's stylistically at odds with some of the more traditional forms of jazz, he does what he's doing better than most everyone in the genre.

After the show, Cobham relaxed while a few reporters asked him some questions.

Asked what happened to the Cobham/Duke band, Cobham said that he chose to dissolve the band and stay off the road due to a few personal problems.

"I felt somewhat frustrated with Atlantic (Records) due to a lack of luck on my part. If I could have played to a few more people — we backed up the Doobie Brothers when Crosswinds came out and we played to over 100,000 people — if we could have continued having that sort of continuous exposure, things might have worked out."

Cobham acknowledged the general criticism that most of his LPs with the Atlantic label were hastily thrown together rush jobs, and concedes that several of them were indeed slightly "watered down."

"But I love what I'm doing now," Cobham says, and expresses satisfaction with both his new band and his new label. College audiences, the drummer says, are his favorite, and generally he finds people that age group most attracted to his music.

Cobham is acutely aware of the disdain he is occasionally accorded in much of the "traditional" jazz press, and is particularly pleased. Reminiscent of his appearance on pianist McCoy Tyner's Fly With Wind LP, Cobham resigns smirks.

"Downbeat said my playing on McCoy's album was bombastic and 'too aggressive.' What they didn't say was the LP was McCoy's best-selling record ever. I mean, I can't win."

But such frustrations to Cobham as inevitabilities of current fusion role, and he makes him bitter. Just another asked his opinion of McLaughlin's recent work. Shakti, Cobham reveals an interesting news. Shakti, Cobham says, is no more. In fact, Cobham has recently recorded a hot "Johnny Guitar" for LP with McLaughlin places him in such company as Chick Corea and his former partner, violinist Jerry Garcia.

But again, more than anything else, Cobham is pleased with his new band. The group has already recorded a new LP which is scheduled for release in August, and as most of the drummer's material, the music will be composed by Cobham, who rapidly becoming a studio fusion arranger.

Cobham clearly has plans for the future, and is very warm reception. Dooley's amply demonstrates he has an audience that is more than willing to accompany through every phase of his career. Few musicians are lucky; Cobham and his audience both have much to be thankful for.

Czech music to highlight concert

The spirit of the Czechoslovakian city of Prague will be in the air tonight when the MSU Concert Band presents a free public concert at 8:15 p.m. in Fairchild Theatre.

The major work of the program will be Karel Husa's Music for Prague, 1968. Composer Husa, a native of Czechoslovakia, dedicated the work to the city at a time when his country was being invaded by Soviet communists.

P. Carl Chevallard, assistant director of bands, will conduct the piece.

Appearing as guest conductor for Jager's Third Suite for Band will be Kenneth Bloomquist, MSU director of bands.

Also on the program are John Barnes Chance's Blue Lake Overture, dedicated to the Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp near Muskegon; Giannini's Danza Final, and Robert Russell Bennett's Rose Variations, featuring a cornet solo by senior music student John Wojcik.

College coaches hoping for calls from NCAA

NEW YORK (UPI) — Watch the sale of tranquilizers jump at the local campus drug stores during the next week. The most nerve-racking days of the college basketball season is here.

With the start of the NCAA tournament only 10 days away, teams will be battling their hardest this week as they seek to land one of the 32 berths in the prestigious and lucrative postseason tourney which will culminate at St. Louis March 25-27.

Right now only one coach can rest easily this week, knowing his club has already locked up an automatic bid to the tournament. Gary Cunningham, in his first year as head man at UCLA, watched his team capture the Pacific Eight championship for the 14th straight year Thursday night and can relax until March 11 when the Bruins play a West regional first round game at Eugene, Ore.

For the rest, though, the NCAA tournament is still a dream. There are still 16 automatic bids awaiting conference champions and another 15 bids to be extended to at-large teams, and they will be determined on the court during the next seven days.

Ten of the major conferences conduct postseason tournaments to determine their NCAA representative and they will begin as early as today. The Atlantic Coast, Southern, Ohio Valley, Metro 7, Big Sky, Eastern Eight, East Coast, Big Eight, Southwest and Missouri Valley Conferences all select their NCAA representatives through postseason tournaments.

Other conferences which will be decided this week are the Big Ten, Ivy League, Western Athletic, Mid-American, Southeastern, West Coast Athletic and the Pacific Coast Athletic.

Among the independents who should look up bids to the NCAA by the end of next week are Marquette, DePaul, Notre Dame, Utah State and Detroit, Illinois State, Pan American and North Texas State also are under consideration for at-large bids.

To fill the 15 at-large berths, the NCAA also is likely to select the runners-up from some of the stronger conferences. The Southwest, Big Ten and Atlantic Coast Conferences probably will have more than one team.

Here's a look at how the NCAA regional pairings shape up:

The East

ACC champion vs. at large and Southern Conference champion vs. at large, Charlotte, N.C., March 12.

Ivy League champion vs. at large and Eastern Eight champion vs. at large, Philadelphia, March 12.

Winners of these games advance to East semifinals and finals at Providence, March 17-19.

The Midwest

Big Ten champion vs. at large and Mid-American champion vs. at large, at Indianapolis, March 11.

SEC champion vs. at large and OVC champion vs. at large, Knoxville, Tenn., March 11.

Winners of these games advance to Midwest semifinals and finals at Dayton, Ohio, March 16-18.

The Midwest

Big Eight champion vs. at large and MVC champion vs. at large, Wichita, Kan., March 12.

SWC champion vs. at large and Metro 7 champion vs. at large, Tulsa, Okla., March 12.

Winners of these games advance to Midwest semifinals and finals at Lawrence, Kan., March 17-19.

The West

Pacific Eight champion UCLA vs. at large and Big Sky champion vs. at large, Eugene, Ore., March 11.

WCAC champion vs. at large and WAC champion vs. at large, Tempe, Ariz., March 11.

Winners of these games advance to West semifinals and finals at Albuquerque, N.M., March 17-19.

Walsh gets better with time

By LARRY LILLIS
State News Sports Writer

MSU's Mike Walsh has been wrestling with the Spartans for two years after transferring from Ohio's Cuyahoga Junior College and has led the team in victories both years.

Walsh, a junior from North Olmstead, Ohio, is a hard working scrappy type of wrestler that gives his all to win. He is a smart wrestler who tries to not let his opponent get the upper hand on him and force him to wrestle his opponent's game.

It seems to have worked as Walsh has racked up a total of 42 career victories in two years at MSU. In his first campaign with the Spartans last year, Walsh had a 21-10 record. He fought at the 126-pound weight class completing his season with a third-place finish in the Big Ten meet.

In order to bolster MSU's lineup, Walsh has moved up to the 134 pound weight class this year. To some wrestlers it might pose problems, but Walsh took it all in stride.

Walsh responded with 21 wins and only five losses. His season hasn't ended yet with the Big Ten meet and a chance at the NCAA meet coming up.

Walsh is one of the top conference wrestlers in his weight class and should be the No. 2 seed in the Big Ten Meet this weekend in Ann Arbor.

"I think that I have a good chance of winning in the Big Ten meet," Walsh said. "There are a couple of guys that will give me some real competition, but I can't worry about them. I have to go out and wrestle one person at a time."

When Walsh wrestles, he doesn't do anything fancy. He doesn't use unique holds or try to finesse his opponents with technique. What he does is to try to be quicker than his opponents.

"I go out and try to get my points early in the match," Walsh said. "Once I get the lead then I just wait for my opponent to make a mistake."

"You see, once I get ahead, the other guy tends to try too hard to get back in the match before he falls too far behind, and this is where he hurts himself. They will try so hard, that they leave themselves open and I step in and take advantage of this. Before too long the match will be over."

Walsh hasn't set any goals for himself. He just likes to take things as they come. And if he keeps up the pace he is on right now, he could earn All-American status at the NCAA meet before he graduates from MSU.

TICKET SITUATION IN LIMBO

Tournament bid not locked

By MICHAEL KLOCKE
State News Sports Writer

At the last two MSU home basketball games, the crowd of 9,886 went delirious when it was announced that Minnesota had lost. But, as Jud Heathcote has pointed out, the real worry for MSU is still Purdue.

With its 13-3 conference record, MSU has clinched a tie for the title and it has a commanding two-game lead over Purdue. But with only two games left on the schedule, MSU still has not wrapped up a bid to the NCAA tournament.

Should MSU lose its final two games (Wisconsin and Minnesota) while Purdue wins its final two contests (Northwestern and Illinois) then both teams would finish deadlocked with 13-5 conference records.

MSU head coach Jud Heathcote is quick to point out this could very easily happen.

"Wisconsin has been playing very good basketball recently and it's almost impossible to win at Minnesota," Heathcote said.

Should MSU and Purdue finish in a tie, one of two things will happen.

The at-large berths for the NCAA tournament will be picked March 5 — the day after the regular season ends. If the Big Ten is given two bids, MSU will go as the champion.

But if the Big Ten only gets its one automatic berth, there would be a playoff Tuesday, March 7, between MSU and Purdue. The game would be played at Illinois.

"I'd like to think we would get a bid regardless of what we do in the last two games," said Heathcote, reiterating his belief that the Big Ten is the best basketball conference in the country. "But I talked with Jeff Elliot (director of the Big Ten Service Bureau) and he said nothing is definite."

Heathcote was a little irate that "everyone" assumes the Atlantic Coast Conference will automatically get two bids.

"How can they say the ACC will get two bids and not say the same thing about the Big Ten?" Heathcote asked.

Chances are the Big Ten will get two bids. Although Minnesota is on probation, it seems likely that MSU and either Purdue or Indiana will get berths. Should Indiana get an at-large bid over Purdue, MSU would go as the champion, due to its overall record.

But, as Heathcote said, a win over Wisconsin Thursday would certainly simplify matters.

If MSU does get a berth, it will play March 11 against the fourth-seeded at-large team in the Midwest Regional at Indianapolis, Ind. The semi-finals and finals of the regional will be held in Dayton, Ohio March 16 and 18.

MSU Athletic Director Joe Kearney said the ticket situation for the NCAA tournament is still unclear. Kearney said each team will be guaranteed 250 tickets for the first game at Indianapolis.

But spacious Market Square Arena holds over 17,000 people, so MSU should get considerably more tickets.

Kearney also said there be an announcement late week explaining how tickets will be available general public.

"As soon as we know going to a tournament, we will try to get as many tickets as possible," Kearney said Monday. "The more tickets we get, the better with how they will be allocated. We have a lot of commitments to people, instance the parents of

Skaters losing a colorful player

By JOE CENTERS
State News Sports Writer

When the 1977-78 MSU hockey team ends its season Saturday in Ann Arbor it will mark the end for seven seniors. But more than that, it will end the era of the "Grand Rapids Boys."

Mark DeCenzo, one of the members of the group, (along with seniors Joey Campbell and Tim McDonald) probably won't be remembered at MSU as a great hockey player, but he's the kind of person that won't be quickly forgotten.

"Mark's probably got more spark than anyone else," coach Amo Bessone said about the Grand Rapids, Minn., senior. "That makes him a leader. He's well liked by his teammates and he's a hard worker."

DeCenzo was named captain along with senior goalie Dave Versical half way through the season and it was a tough position for the two of them to take.

"It was hard because no one was picked as captain at the beginning of the year," DeCenzo said. "As far as the team went, it was hard to be a leader because we were all in the same boat."

One of the biggest problems, according to DeCenzo about this year's team, was that the seniors really didn't have the experience that most seniors usually do.

The first two years that DeCenzo played for MSU, the Spartans were loaded with upper classmen so the freshmen and sophomores didn't see much playing time.

This year is really only the second full season for the seniors.

Even though DeCenzo didn't see much action on the ice his first two years, along with Campbell and McDonald, he always seemed to get into enough action off the ice.

"For the first three years we were always in the dog house with Amo," DeCenzo said. "We were always late for everything."

Campbell, from East Lansing, related a story about Bessone and the "Grand Rapids Boys."

"Cotch (DeCenzo) and McDonald were from Grand Rapids, Minn., and I used to hang around with them so Amo started calling us the Grand Rapids Boys," Campbell said.

"One time we were in Colorado and we had missed the plane so we landed in Colorado Springs to smash on the lower right

"We followed him for but he stopped to talk to a guy and we kept going stopped to talk to a student and we got lost."

"We were looking for when we found Tom (former MSU All-American) who was also lost. Fing found the bus. If Ross with us, Amo would have there for sure."

It has been a colorful years for DeCenzo, and the Wisconsin series in January, he made sure that out in style.

Women's tennis wins match

MSU's women's tennis team won an early season meet over the weekend with Purdue and easily defeated the Boilermakers, 9-0.

Debbie Mascarin, who returns at No. 1 singles, won her first match of the year, as did four other veterans in the first four matches.

Diane Selke won at No. 2, Cindy Bogdonas won No. 3 and Mike Krueger won her No. 4 match. Jennifer Brielmeier won No. 5 and freshman Heather McTaggart won her first match of her career at No. 6.

Mascarin and Bogdonas teamed up to win doubles, Selke and Krueger won No. 2 doubles, Asher and Brielmeier won No. 3.

The team's scheduled meet at the Tennis Club Invitational this weekend has been cancelled. MSU will take its 1-0 record to Tennessee during spring break where they face six teams.

Stevie surprises J.J.

But Wonder later echoed much different sentiments about the man he lived with for two years while both were attending the Michigan School for the Blind in Lansing a decade and a half ago. "I've always admired his brilliance," Wonder said. "I always envied his always getting the best marks in school and along with that keeping a firm stand on the basics in life. If you get good grades in school you can become an introvert or conceited. Not so with him."

For Jackson, the feeling was mutual. "I think the reason Stevie feels that admiration for me is that it mirrors a lot of himself a thousand-fold," he said. "He has always kept his feet on the ground."

The men agreed that what they cherished most about each other was that their friendship has remained intact over the years. Wonder, who is producing the soundtrack to a new movie called "The Secret Life of Plants," said Jackson was "instrumental with me becoming familiar with and finding some of the units we use." The units are synthesizers which can accurately reproduce sounds. One example Wonder gave of their use in the soundtrack was a bird singing in pitch.

"The whole purpose is to make people aware of the capabilities of the synthesizer, not as a gimmick," Wonder said. "To me, a synthesizer can aid in speech for those who are speech-impaired."

Wonder said if people hear the synthesizer in his music, they may wonder how he created the real-life sounds.

"It is a way of using music for education, to encourage the enlightenment of things that are available," he said.

While in the Computer Science Building, Wonder created a new version of a recent song: "Blind people got no reason/ blind people got no reason/ blind people got no reason to live/ they got little bitty eyes that do not work/ everytime they run into something it truly hurts."

Everyone laughed. Why such a need for a sense of humor about blindness?

"Because so many people are so serious about it," Wonder said. "If people knew more about it, they wouldn't be so hung up. It may not be normal, but it's still a part of life."

Hubcaps stolen? Only borrowed

MIDDLETOWN, R.I. (AP) — If there is such a thing as an honest thief, Jerry Kluba has found one.

Kluba's hubcaps were stolen from his car parked outside his apartment in Middletown. Police said they could not help him and his insurance policy did not cover the hubcaps, so it looked as though Kluba was out of luck.

But he went out to his car and found a paper bag with — guess what — his hubcaps.

In the bag was a note which said "Sorry, they don't fit. But thanks anyway."

COUNCIL DELAYS PLANS Fund transfer defeated

By DANIEL HERMAN
State News Staff Writer

A move to transfer $1.5 million from Lansing's general fund for the South Washington Square project was defeated at Monday's Lansing City Council meeting.

Further planning on the project will be delayed because of the fund transfer defeat.

The project's purpose is to rejuvenate the downtown Lansing area which includes redeveloping much of the downtown and capital area.

The opposition was led by councilmember James Blair. Blair reiterated his past objections to the project. "The city has an $8 million surplus this fiscal year, but what about next year? I'm interested in what happens if we don't have a surplus."

Blair also restated his desire for "written proof" from the "business community of their commitment."

Also voting against the transfer of funds were council members Richard Baker and Robert Hull.

In order to transfer funds, it is necessary to have six of the eight City Council votes.

One city official, involved with the council, commented that, "the mall is just stalled for a week. I'm sure next week the funding will be approved."

The official explained that Blair was just "grandstanding," adding, "Blair's major problem is that he acts on the spur of the moment."

In other developments, council member Louis Adado suggested that to save energy because of the coal shortage the City Council should change its meeting time from 7 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Councilmember Richard Baker complained that changing the starting times of meetings would interfere with the "dinners of members of City Council."

Adado commented that, "maybe if some councilmembers would do without dinner, we might get through earlier."

The proposal, however, was defeated.

The council also approved a resolution echoing Governor Milliken's request that Lansing be reimbursed for the snow removal costs for January 28-27. To date, the federal government has only reimbursed areas for snow removal from January 28 through February 1.

He's running on a farce platform

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — The candidate for student body president at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln says he's ready to give the voters just what they want — nothing.

Lyle George is a member of a party called ARF, which stands for "A Real Farce." George said if he is elected, he would do the least amount of work possible and would "represent people who think the whole university is a farce."
