ACADEMIC COUNCILS NEED RE-EVALUATING

Governance system tabbed awkward

By SUE ROBACH
State News Staff Writer

The effectiveness of the academic governance system needs to be re-evaluated, MSU President Cecil Mackey told the Faculty Council meeting Tuesday.

"I have no set model I want to suggest," Mackey said, "but it is worthwhile to look at the effectiveness of this system."

Mackey, who was presiding officer at the council's first meeting of the academic year, said that the complexities of the academic governance system can often be characterized as "cumbersome and slow."

"My personal taste is to come to some resolution, rather than delay action," he said.

EX-PRESIDENT EDGAR HARDEN also expressed his views towards the academic governance system in his State of the University address last February.

Harden said that whenever possible, academic decisions should be made at the department level.

Mackey also said that he would like to see a council that the faculty as a whole would be satisfied with. This would include deciding its own procedures and having freedom to set its agendas.

"I am accustomed to being available personally to faculty governance groups," he added.

Mackey said that he wants to see more cooperation between faculty and administrators.

WHILE MACKEY CRITICIZED extensive delays in council procedures, the topic of the proposed revision to the 1972 Interim Faculty Grievance Procedure was once again tabled.

Zolton Ferency, professor of criminal justice, gave a report on the Ad Hoc Committee to Study the Faculty Grievance Procedure.

The proposed Faculty Grievance Procedure was approved by the council in February, however, Provost Clarence L. Winder must still approve the document.

Ferency said that binding arbitration, one of the chief areas of conflict "is not near agreement."

The Ad Hoc Committee worked with Winder this summer and a document updating their work will be available at a later date.

IN OTHER BUSINESS, the proposed 1979-80 University budget was reviewed by Winder.

He said the State Appropriation Conference Committee approved the budget in July and gave MSU what he termed a "rather standard increase of $12.4 million." This is a 9.3 percent increase over last year's budget.

Winder also said he had hoped for an increase of about 11 percent, however, in a last minute budget cutting session the state legislature reduced the MSU appropriation to 9 percent.

The proposed budget is expected to be raised for approval at the Board of Trustees meeting Friday.

Dem. primary little more than 'beauty contest'

By MICKI MAYNARD
United Press International

LANSING — Efforts to bring Michigan's presidential primary into compliance with national Democratic Party rules appeared doomed Tuesday following a meeting of the House Democratic Caucus.

Michigan is facing a Monday deadline set by the state Democratic Party to bring its open primary into compliance with national party rules, which require closed partisan contests. If Michigan fails to comply, the Democratic primary would be reduced to beauty contest status.

With Gov. William G. Milliken threatening to veto legislation closing the primary, the House voted once to repeal the election altogether. A Senate-passed bill seeking to strike a compromise was stalled in the lower chamber.

An aide to Milliken late Tuesday said the governor had not scheduled a meeting with House leaders before the Monday deadline. Democrats have been trying to see Milliken in an effort to hammer out a compromise.

HOUSE LEADERS CALLED Tuesday's caucus to see if members wanted to make one final effort to bring the primary into compliance. The answer appeared to be no.

Rep. Alfred Sheridan, D-Taylor, sponsor of a House-approved measure eliminating the primary altogether, said he felt the caucus was unnecessary.

"I don't know what the hell we're here for," Sheridan said. "What's before us? We know what the bills are. None of them have been successful."

Sheridan said the cost of holding a primary would be prohibitive.

"You're just throwing $3 million down the drain," he said. "Only 27 percent voted last time, and it will be more this time."

THE CHAIRPERSON OF the House Elections Committee agreed.

"You're going to drive people away from the polls," said Michael Griffin, D-Jackson. "A closed primary is not what the people want."

A Wyandotte Democrat said the public was confused on the issue.

"There's a lot of opposition for a closed primary, but there's also a lot of support for letting Democrats choose Democratic nominees and letting Republicans choose Republicans," said Jeffrey Padden.

Padden further challenged Milliken to make good on his threat to veto any bill that closed the state's presidential contest.

"IF HE'S SERIOUS about it, let's put a closed primary bill on his desk," Padden said. "I'd like to see him veto it."

The Democratic National Committee requires that voters state a party affiliation when voting in primaries.

The rules were drawn up to eliminate crossover voting, a common occurrence in Michigan, where any registered voter can vote in either party's contest.

A House committee last week rejected a Senate measure that would have partially closed the primary by shutting out the votes of independents from delegate selection.

SOVIETS CALL CLAIM FALSE

Soviet troop dispute delays SALT

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairperson of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, recommended Tuesday that the panel delay sending the SALT II treaty to the Senate until something is done about Soviet troops in Cuba.

Church was reacting to a speech to the United Nations by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in which he called reports of a Soviet combat brigade in Cuba a propaganda campaign "based on falsehoods."

The artificiality of this entire question must be honestly admitted and the matter closed," said Gromyko.

President Carter called Cuba a "puppet" of the Soviet Union Tuesday night and told a "town meeting" audience that despite Soviet claims to the contrary, Russian troops on the island are combat forces. "It is a combat unit," he said.

Church said that "as far as I am concerned the matter can be 'closed' only when President Carter is able to certify to the Senate his conclusion based on our independent intelligence assessment, that these Soviet combat forces are no longer present in Cuba."

THE IDAHO SENATOR added that "I do not want to see the SALT II treaty rejected by the Senate. For this reason, I am of the opinion that the Senate Foreign Relations Committee should defer reporting the treaty to the Senate until the current negotiations have been completed and the results are known."

When the presence of Soviet troops in Cuba was first disclosed by the Carter administration, Church said he did not believe the Senate would approve the SALT II treaty until the troops were withdrawn.

Other senators also reacted strongly to Gromyko's speech.

"I'm astonished," said Republican Leader Howard M. Baker Jr. of Tennessee. "There is simply no basis for doubting that the Russians have a fully equipped, fully manned combat brigade in Cuba. There's simply no doubt about it."

Baker called on President Carter to release to the public the evidence showing the presence of the Soviet troops in Cuba.

Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., called Gromyko's statement "a bald face lie" adding that "the SALT process has been put on ice for an indefinite period."

THE FUROR OVER Gromyko's speech came not long after Senate Majority Leader

Robert C. Byrd appealed to the Senate to remain calm and avoid linking Cuba and SALT.

"Why all this sudden panic?" Byrd asked in a floor speech. "Why all this sudden hysteria?"

Dropping his previous insistence that he is uncommitted on the strategic arms-limitation treaty, Byrd said, "I'm inclined to vote for it, but I'm not fully decided."

The West Virginia Democrat, whose support would be essential for approval of the treaty, said he will make his final decision after hearing the results of the Senate Intelligence Committee's study of whether compliance can be adequately monitored.

The intelligence panel is expected to complete its work later this week.

IN HIS SPEECH Tuesday, Gromyko implied that the issue of Russian combat troops in Cuba is artificial and the United States is meddling in his country's affairs.

The Soviet Union wants "normal and, what is more, friendly relations with the United States," Gromyko said. But he added this requires observance of "the principles of peaceful coexistence and non-interference in the affairs of others."

Gromyko did not specifically mention the troops issue in his speech to the assembly. But it seemed clearly on his mind as he lamented that "all sorts of falsehoods are being piled up concerning the policies of Cuba and the Soviet Union."

The veteran diplomat said the two communist allies were the targets of a propaganda campaign. "Our advice on this score is simple," he said.

"It is high time that you honestly admit that this whole matter is artificial and proclaim it to be closed."

Gromyko's remarks appeared to represent a Soviet rejection of U.S. charges that the troops impinge on U.S. security interests.

"The Soviet Union and other countries of the socialist community have never threatened anybody, nor are they threatening anybody now," he said.

State police surveillance 'red squad' files released

By United Press International

Michigan residents should begin finding out later this year whether they were spied on by the now defunct state police "red squad" even though police believe some residents may prefer to leave the past buried.

State police officials expect to send notices some time in November to as many of the 40,000 persons whose names were indexed in the red squad files as they can locate. Those receiving notices will be able to pick up copies of their files at any one of eight state police district offices.

A Wayne County circuit judge cleared the way for the notification procedure by signing a consent order which allows the police to delete information from the file which could identify informants or undercover police agents.

Judges in Wayne and Ingham counties have ruled, in separate cases, that the red squad program, a product of the McCarthy-era, was unconstitutional.

Under the program, the state police monitored the activities of dissident and allegedly "subversive" organizations during the 1950s, 60s and early 70s.

Capt. Roger Warner, chief of the state police criminal investigation section, said his agency will begin the notification process as soon as it has reviewed the recent Wayne County order.

Under current projections, he said, notification letters would start going out by first-class mail some time in November.

Due to funding uncertainties, however, it may be necessary to seek a special appropriation from the legislature to cover the program's projected cost of $200,000, Warner said.

Warner said the final cost of the effort will depend on how many of the 40,000 red squad subjects demand to see their file.

Warner said those responding to the letter or ads will receive a copy of all information kept on them in the file with names of informants, police agents and third parties deleted.

Judge to hear parents' suit; court-ordered marathon talks fail

By United Press International

An Ingham County judge, conceding that court-ordered marathon talks have failed, Tuesday began hearing a suit filed by five parents seeking to halt the three-week strike by Lansing teachers.

In Detroit, a strike by the 12,000 member Detroit Federation of Teachers dragged into its 16th day with no progress toward a settlement reported. The school board planned to meet tonight to discuss another contract offer.

Strikes continued in nine other districts — Baldwin, Benton Harbor, Chippewa Valley, Clintonville, Flint, Kelloggsville, Madison Heights, Oxford and Van Buren Intermediates.

Some 17,000 teachers were on the picket line across the state, keeping about 313,000 students on an extended vacation. The Detroit strike alone involves 213,000 students.

Remove expired parking permits

Vehicles parked on campus with expired permit stickers will soon be ticketed, even if current permits are visible, the Department of Public Safety said.

Starting this year, all expired stickers must be removed and a new permit be attached to the lower right side of the windshield, or the car will be ticketed as if it were parked without a sticker, police said.

Ingham County Circuit Judge James Giddings, who had sequestered both sides in the Lansing dispute for five days, said no progress was made and began hearing a suit filed by five parents aimed at ending the strike by 900 teachers.

In a private meeting with the school board on Monday, Giddings urged the district to fatten its offer to the teachers' union by dipping into its $2.4 million surplus fund equity.

The district and the union reportedly were $2.2 million apart. With more than 26,000 students, the Lansing walkout is the third largest in Michigan.

In Detroit, school board President George Bell said he was working on a new contract offer to replace the one rejected by teachers at a meeting on Sunday.

The new proposal reportedly will contain a wage reopener option in the third year of the contract, one of the key union demands. The DFT now has rejected two official contract offers, the first one before the strike began on Sept. 10.

School officials have argued the walkout is causing students "irreparable harm" and could force them to make even more severe cuts in programs because of a projected $10.2 million deficit.

Bill assures state aid to districts hit by strikes

LANSING (UPI) — The state House Tuesday approved an emergency measure that would save school districts hit by teacher strikes from losing state aid payments.

The House approved the bill on a 98-0 vote. The measure was introduced last Thursday and rushed through committee Tuesday morning. It now goes to the Senate.

The measure, sponsored by Rep. Joseph Conroy, D-Flint, would rescue 11 districts, including Detroit, Lansing, Saginaw and Flint from losing millions in state aid.

Conroy's bill exempts the districts from a state law which bases the first aid payment of the school year on the number of students in class on the last Friday of September.

Without the measure, districts hit by strikes stand to lose their funding at the end of this week.

Under the bill, strikebound districts would use the second Friday following the resumption of classes as an alternate pupil count day. The measure is in effect only for 1979.

Though the bill could be construed as an incentive to teachers to continue walkouts without fear of losing state aid, Conroy did not agree. "That might be the school board's opinion, but I don't think the teachers will take it that way. The teachers are hurting enough without having a paycheck," he said.

S. African blacks granted union rights

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — South Africa granted trade union rights to the nation's black majority Tuesday, including the two large worker categories that had been excluded in a similar legislation last spring.

Frans Botha, minister of human resources utilization, announced the decision that will reverse a 50-year-old policy denying union rights to blacks.

The effect of the government's decision is to allow black workers' unions, which already exist, the right to negotiate under the country's industrial conciliation law.

Because the unions have had no legal status, they have been unable to represent their workers in talks with management, and activities such as strikes or work slowdowns were automatically illegal.

Labor observers said Botha's announcement, while expected, was broader than anticipated. It was likely that the government hoped to regain some of the favorable publicity generated last spring when it accepted a commission report advocating union rights to blacks.

Mamie Eisenhower in 'delicate' health

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mamie Eisenhower, admitted to Walter Reed Army Medical Center on Tuesday after a stroke, has been frail and bedridden for several months, Julie Eisenhower says.

She's been in delicate health for many years," said Julie Eisenhower, who is married to Mrs. Eisenhower's grandson, David. "She has an enlarged heart and hasn't been able to get out of bed for several months."

The 82-year-old widow of President Dwight D. Eisenhower was rushed to Walter Reed Army Medical Center by a volunteer fire department ambulance from her farm on the edge of the Civil War battlefield in Gettysburg, Pa. She has lived at the farm since her husband died in 1969.

Mrs. Eisenhower was taken immediately to the Eisenhower Nursing Suite, a VIP facility named for her husband.

A medical bulletin issued by the hospital two hours after Mrs. Eisenhower's arrival said the former first lady was in stable condition and had been placed on medication.

GM says recall won't hurt car sales

DETROIT (AP) — A General Motors recall of some of its 'X-body' cars — the first recall of the popular new front-wheel drive compacts — should not hurt sales, according to studies which show that it takes several recalls of a model to turn off the customers.

Such a confidence-shaking series of recalls occurred in late 1977 and early 1978 when Chrysler Corp.'s Dodge Aspen and Plymouth Volare suffered four recalls in six months.

GM announced Monday it was bringing back 225,600 of its 'X-body' series to fix automatic transmission cooler hoses that could leak and start fires, as well as steering gear mounting plates that could crack from metal fatigue on 160,000 of the same cars.

The company said it knew of nine fires resulting from defective hoses, but heard of no failed steering assemblies.

Several studies, including those conducted by the United Auto Workers union and the University of Indiana, have concluded that one recall of a model does not affect sales.

US money in the future may be plastic

WASHINGTON (AP) — The dollar bill could become a thing of the past and tomorrow's money might be made of plastic if Congress follows the recommendations released Tuesday by a Carter administration task force on money.

The task force suggested that the government begin replacing the paper dollar with the new Susan B. Anthony dollar coin and, later, with $2 bills.

It also suggested that Congress consider eliminating the half-dollar coin, making pennies out of aluminum alloy if copper prices rise too high and urged a study of using plastic in future currency.

Possible elimination of the dollar bill was immediately attacked by Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., chairperson of the House Banking subcommittee on consumer affairs. Annunzio told a hearing that he would do everything within my power to keep the dollar bill in circulation.

If we do eliminate the dollar bill and, instead, use the dollar coin, then the Treasury Department should be required to issue every American a pair of suspenders," he concluded.

Florida warned of increase in virus

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Florida officials, alerted to a sharp rise in an encephalitis virus that threatens the elderly, have stepped up efforts to control mosquitoes, which transmit the disease.

But those efforts are being hampered by heavy rains in parts of south and central Florida, and no one knows whether the early warning will help prevent a repeat of a 1977 outbreak, a federal disease control expert said Tuesday. That outbreak of St. Louis encephalitis swept through 20 counties, with 77 confirmed cases and eight deaths.

Dr. Karl Kappus of the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta said he knows of only a few previous cases in which health officials knew in advance that the virus was on the rise.

But I can't cite one example where this was picked up, purposely acted on and it was shown for sure that this aborted and prevented an outbreak," he said.

The warning has led to stepped up mosquito eradication efforts, but the weather isn't helping.

Cloudy skies hamper forest spraying

GRANTS PASS, Ore. (AP) — Rain forced cancellation of federal plans to spray herbicides on 2,700 acres of southern Oregon forest on Tuesday. Officials said the spraying would be done when the weather cleared, despite protests of nearby residents.

Meanwhile, several residents were reported to have left their homes during a separate U.S. Forest Service spraying project Monday.

U.S. Bureau of Land Management officials said the planned spraying of timberland in the Wolf Creek area about 20 miles northwest of Grants Pass would go ahead when weather cleared.

One resident of the sparsely populated area whose property adjoins land targeted for spraying said he feared there could be violence when BLM helicopters begin spraying.

We have little choice but to leave or to fight, and we're not going to leave," said Ivan Rossall.

He said he had urged peaceful demonstrations but that there were reports that some protesters would be armed with rifles.

NEW YORK MEETING

Carter supports mass transit

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — President Carter said Tuesday his proposals to aid mass transportation will erase decades of neglect and "reclaim America's transit systems" unless Congress rejects his proposed tax on oil company profits.

Carter, making a one-day trip to New York City, also promised that mass transit systems will continue to get priority allocation of gasoline and diesel fuel if shortages develop. "We will keep them rolling," he said. Carter's remarks were prepared for delivery at the annual convention of the American Public Transit Association.

AFTER HIS SPEECH, the president was to attend a reception for civic and community leaders before holding a "town meeting" with residents of the Queens borough.

In his speech to the transit group, Carter said he has made proposals that would produce 40,000 jobs throughout the 1980s, save massive amounts of energy and add 15 million passengers a day to buses, streetcars and subways.

He announced no new programs, but said that when he is through with New York City's 75-year-old IRT subway line "it won't look a day over sweet 16."

Carter spoke glowingly of the future of mass transit but said, "for this program to succeed, the Congress absolutely must approve one major element — the windfall profits tax."

HE SAID LOBBYISTS "are swarming all over Capitol Hill, working to devastate" the tax on excess oil company profits by cutting back sharply on the $140 billion the administration claims it would produce for the Treasury over 10 years.

"Their proposed amendments would put a total of well over $100 billion in the pockets of the oil companies," Carter said.

Shortly before Carter left Washington, the Senate Finance Committee unanimously agreed to exclude "newly discovered oil" from the tax, one of a number of pending moves aimed at softening the tax bite. The administration opposed the committee's action.

The president told the transit group that he wants to double the production of buses and speed construction of new rail lines.

The program Carter outlined to the nation July 15 in his energy address included a recommendation that $10 billion be provided from the windfall profits tax for public mass transit facilities along with $6.5 billion for improving automobile fuel efficiency during the 1980s.

House votes for pay raise

By JAY PERKINS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — House members voted Tuesday to give themselves a 5.5 percent raise, increasing their salaries to more than $60,500 a year on Oct. 1.

Three times previously the House had shied away from approving a pay raise for members of Congress, top-level government officials and federal judges. The representatives reversed themselves Tuesday on a narrow roll call vote of 208 to 203.

The bill now heads for an uncertain fate in the Senate.

Final House approval of 5.5 percent pay raise, recommended by the House Appropriations Committee, was signaled earlier when the House rejected a bid to prohibit members of Congress from receiving any salary increase this year. That action came on a 155-72 head count vote.

OPPOSITION OF A PAY raise got a clean shot at killing the proposal outright Tuesday when Rep. George M. O'Brien, R-Ill., offered an amendment that would have frozen the pay of legislators and senior government officials at current levels.

Members of Congress now receive $57,500 a year, although their leaders are paid more.

Only 41 congressmembers were willing to force a roll call on the O'Brien amendment — three short of the 44 required. The House then rejected the pay freeze proposal on a head count vote.

The 5.5 percent increase applies to salaries of members of Congress and to federal employees and judges who make at least $47,500 a year.

Earlier, the House rejected on a voice vote an amendment that would have given more than 22,000 top-level federal bureaucrats and judges a 7 percent pay increase while holding any congressional raise to 5.5 percent.

THAT AMENDMENT WOULD have affected only those federal employees who make at least $47,500 a year.

The House also rejected by voice vote an amendment by Rep. Peter Peyer, D-N.Y., that would have given pay raise supporters an increase while denying any boost for members who voted against one.

The bill to which the pay raise amendment was attached would provide emergency operating funds for the federal government after Oct. 1, the start of the new fiscal year.

The emergency money is needed because Congress has not passed regular legislation to finance operations of many major federal agencies.

EARLIER THIS YEAR, the House killed three separate attempts to raise congressional pay. But after twice defeating two attempts last week to raise salaries by 7 percent, the Appropriations Committee resurrected the emergency bill and attached a 5.5 percent pay hike. The House in June had killed a 5.5 percent pay raise tacked onto a different piece of legislation.

The votes came after Rep. Jamie Whitten, D-Miss., told the House a pay raise was not an issue, because Congress had authorized a raise in 1975. The only question, he said, was whether Congress "should appropriate the funds to carry out the law."

Whitten said rejection of the appropriation would allow members of Congress to sue in court for the 12.9 percent cost-of-living allowance which the 1975 law authorized.

Unlike the earlier votes, Tuesday's took place under rules that allowed opponents to offer their own proposals instead of having to counter the offers tossed at them by pay raise supporters.

House Clerk Thomas Thatcher readys the new $155,000 vote tally board for operation in the House Chambers. New carpet and phones were also installed during the legislators' summer recess.

State House of Representatives gets new electronic tally board

By BRUCE BABIARZ
State News Staff Writer

While most of the bugs have been worked out of the House of Representatives' new $155,000 electronic vote tally board, many members are still not quite used to it.

The scoreboard-like vote indicator was installed during summer recess along with new carpet and phones in the House chambers for a total cost of just under $200,000.

An identical tallying board is mounted at the balcony level of each side of the House chambers, providing easy viewing for House members. The board has a green and red bulb next to each lawmaker's name.

The voting board and an adjacent "message board" are both controlled by House Clerk Thomas Thatcher. The message board can flash 49 different messages in red lights, including a "message from the governor" and "amendments."

WHEN MEMBERS ARE about to vote on a measure the board identifies the bill number that is being considered, its listing on the House calendar and its status.

Each lawmaker has a console at their desk equipped with four buttons. A green "Ay" vote button lights up the green bulb on the voting board and a red button lights up the board indicating a "Nay" vote. The white button can be used to summon a page and the yellow button does not yet have a function.

The new board replaces a 40-year-old malfunctioning board that was smaller and described by Thatcher as a "mechanical monster."

"We're certain that it did malfunction," he said, "but we made sure that each vote was recorded correctly in spite of the malfunction."

Unlike the old board, the new one automatically feeds each vote into a computer where it is stored on a disc.

"WITH THE NEW board we can retrieve the votes cast from the computer if they are ever needed in the future," Thatcher said.

But the new board still has some members confused Thatcher said.

Under the old system, when the House Speaker ordered the board closed, no more votes could be cast.

But now, a member can still vote after the board is closed by standing up and signaling his vote to the speaker. The clerk then enters the vote into the record.

The new plush blue carpeting, which cost $25,600, displays the State of Michigan seal every three feet. It replaces the red carpeting that graced the House floor for 15 years.

The new phones at each lawmaker's desk have lights instead of bells as a method of decreasing the noise on the House floor.

The Senate chambers also has new phones, new carpeting and a new press box for reporters. Future plans call for an improved voting board for the Senate that is more sophisticated than the one in the House.

The House and Senate renovations are the most recent in the process of restoring the century-old Capitol Building.

Lansing settles suit for firefighters' pay

By ROLAND WILKERSON
State News Staff Writer

In a move to halt legal action by the Lansing firefighters, the Lansing City Council agreed Monday to transfer $26,000 to the firefighters overtime account.

In a letter to the council, Mayor Gerald W. Graves said the Lansing firefighters agreed that if the money was transferred, the suit would be dropped.

The suit was filed Sept. 13 to prevent the city from keeping less than 61 firefighters on duty, the minimum number set by the Board of Fire Commissioners for full operations.

Problems with the overtime fund arose when it was learned that $15,000 allocated for the fiscal year was depleted in about two months.

WHEN THE MATTER was brought before Graves, it was decided that additional firefighters would not be called in to replace others that were either sick or on vacation, said City Attorney Stephen Sawyer.

After the firefighters filed suit, city council approved an $8,000 interim transfer in order to comply with a temporary restraining order requiring the city to maintain 61 firefighters at all times.

Addressing the council, Graves said the agreement would be the best way to resolve the issue, enabling "everyone to go back to their own duties."

After the meeting, Graves said an increase of vacation days for firefighters "put the nail in the coffin" of the original overtime money.

Graves also said he understood that there would be a "good faith" effort made by the firefighters to stay within the budget if the $26,000 was transferred.

CITY COUNCILMEMBER TERRY McKane, said Tuesday however, that he is not satisfied with the reasons given for the rapid depletion of funds. He said that as Chairperson of the General Services committee he may still look into the matter.

The money will come from the contingency fund, a $300,000 account set up to take care of budgetary problems that arise during the fiscal year.

MSU grads finding jobs in business, industry

By MOLLY MIKA
State News Staff Writer

About 35 percent of MSU's 1979 graduates found jobs in business and industry last year, an annual report from the MSU Placement Services shows.

The major employers in those two fields were GM, Ford and IBM, and the average salary offered to graduates with a bachelor's degree from the College of Business was $13,392.

The report compiled statistics from over 6,700 graduating students who used the Placement Services last year.

The number of job interviews arranged through Placement Services increased 1,673 to 25,175, and employment vacancy listings shot up 24 percent to 31,382, the report said.

THERE IS NO placement office in the nation handling this volume, said assistant director Rebecca Yost.

The report continued to say that employers asked to interview Bachelor of Science en, ineers more than any other group, and the average salary offered to graduates of the College of Engineering was the highest at $17,664.

It was the best recruiting year for teachers since 1973-1974, the report said. Twenty-three percent of MSU's graduates found jobs in education with an average salary of $10,572. Sixty-five percent of graduating teachers found jobs, mostly in Lansing, Grand Rapids, and East Lansing school districts.

The government was the next largest employer, putting 7 1/2 percent of the class on its payroll.

BUT, 7.15 PERCENT of graduates seeking employment were still unemployed three months after graduation, the report noted.

Standing in unemployment lines were students with non-technical backgrounds and minorities.

Although salary offers for women who received bachelors degrees in 1978-1979 rose 4.5 percent over last year to $13,428, women's salaries at the bachelor's level lagged behind the average for every college except Engineering, Business, and Human Ecology, the report said.

"The Placement Services tries to assist women, minorities, and liberal arts and social science majors in getting a fair shake," Jack Shingleton, director of Placement Services, said.

THERE ARE STAFF advisers for each group, special resume books and career programs for minorities and women, he said.

Shingleton also advises students to start the job campaign early.

"Seniors who start the job search in October will have no problem getting a job," he said.

Students can start job-hunting by registering with the Placement Services. They can then sign up for interviews, which begin in October, and prepare for interviews by attending various workshops held twice a week at Placement Services, 113 Student Services Bldg.

A workshop on positive interviewing will be conducted today at 1:30 p.m. by Edwin Fitzgerald, assistant director of Placement Services.

General workshops deal with writing resumes, interviewing, and appearance. More workshops on specific majors concern resumes and letters of application for business, industry and government, resume and career strategies for non-business majors seeking business positions; career alternatives for education majors; and career-related information on summer employment for 1980.

IN THE COMING year, demand is estimated to be high for 1980 graduates with a bachelor's degree in computer and information services, physical sciences, accounting, health fields, engineering, and business and management, a survey by the National Center of Education Statistics shows.

The demand for jobs will equal the supply in library science, architecture, public affairs, agriculture and natural resources, mathematics and statistics, biological science, and communications.

The survey predicts that the job market will be overcrowded for graduates in fine and applied arts, foreign languages, psychology, education, and social sciences.

New traffic light installed

Pedestrian safety and traffic efficiency is being improved with a new $10,000 traffic signal at the intersection of Shaw and Farm Lanes.

Pedestrian-actuated signals are replacing the three-phase lights and allow vehicle traffic to move when there is no foot traffic. Major Adam Zutaout of the Department of Public Safety said.

Library card catalog being modernized with addition of computer system

Research paper writers probably have never had it this easy.

Starting this term, the MSU Library is entering the computer age with a new circulation system. The computer system will make the search for all those books a lot easier.

The system, manufactured by the C.L. Systems, Inc., is not a replacement for the traditional card catalog. Rather, the system is a vital addition to the catalog.

About 300,000 titles were duplicated on the main computer, located in the Library basement. An additional 75 percent of the Library's material is still only located in the catalog.

"The card catalog is still the major place to go to find everything we own," said Chris Ostrum, of the Library Circulation Department. "The computer contains only 25 percent of the holdings, but those are the holdings that have been checked out the most in the past. (The computer) is quick, easy access."

Ostrum said the transition to the computer system became necessary after the old IBM card system began to wear out. Including the central computer, the 23 terminal system cost approximately $300,000. MSU plans on ordering more in the future.

Terminals are located in central places in the Library so that all students may have access to one. In the new system, after the book is located the student must register the book with his/her student I.D. at the front desk.

CLC organizer speaks on mall

The Citizens for a Livable Community coordinator will discuss the future of the new Dayton Hudson mall proposal at 6 tonight in Room 183 of the Natural Resources Building.

James Anderson, MSU humanities professor, will speak at the first meeting of the Environmental Information Service, a student organization involved in community and environmental affairs.

Red Cedar Log delayed; expected by mid-October

Persons who purchased a 1979 Red Cedar Log yearbook and are wondering why they have not received their copies yet can expect it by mid-October, said Keith Adler, yearbook adviser.

The cause for the delay in shipping is due to a special 16-page supplement on the 1979 NCAA basketball champions, which will appear in the front of the book.

"We apologize for any inconveniences the delay may cause," Adler explained, "but we believe the book will be well worth the wait."

Adler noted the books will be shipped out from the publishing company in Dallas by the end of September and those who purchased a yearbook can expect it in the mail about two weeks later.

The 1980 Red Cedar Log staff will hold an open house tonight at 7 in 111 Berkey Hall for persons interested in gaining professional experience in writing, photography, art, and work-study.

Plastic society offers awards

MSU students have the opportunity to win a $1,000 scholarship for innovative and practical uses of polystyrene foam material in a contest sponsored by the Society of Plastics Industry.

The Third Annual Expanded Polystyrene Scholarship Award Competition will feature new uses for the material which is most familiar as the white foam cup that keeps drinks hot or cold. The material has other commercial uses and the competition is open to student's abilities to initiate new concepts.

Designs will be judged on their usefulness to industry, practicality and cost.

Students may pick up entry blanks in the Dean's office or by writing to the Society of the Plastics Industry, 3150 Des Plaines Avenue, Des Plaines, Ill., 60018.

Judging will occur in March.

WKAR to telecast MSU-Notre Dame football game in the MSU Auditorium

Students and faculty who were unable to purchase tickets for this weekend's MSU-Notre Dame football game can watch Saturday's action live in the MSU Auditorium.

MSU's campus station, WKAR-TV, will telecast the game via a cable hook up on a 10 foot by 15 foot screen, John Haytol, ASMSU chairperson, said.

Tickets can be purchased at 10 a.m. Thursday for $2 at the ticket window on the east side of Munn Ice Arena with a student or faculty ID. There will be no limit on the amount of tickets each person can buy.

Tickets will be sold to the general public after students and faculty have a chance to make purchases, Haytol said.

About 3,600 tickets will be available for the event, which is sponsored by the Programming Board of ASMSU.

Kick off is at 2:30 p.m. and doors will open at 1:30 p.m.

The auditorium is an accessible facility. No bottles or cans will be permitted.

"I'm really excited about this," Haytol said. "There are a lot of freshmen who were not even able to buy tickets and this is a good chance for anyone to see the game with a crowd. There is some chance we may be able to do this again if everything works out."

OPINION

Salt II jeopardized again

The United States seems to go through a "red scare" every 20 years. In fact, Americans usually turn stone white whenever communists are mentioned in daily conversation. And it is through events such as the first and second World Wars and the McCarthy hearings, that the impact remains so strong on the American public.

The "red bogey" force is threatening the values of the American public once again, as approximately 3,000 Russian combat troops go through military training in our neighbor, Cuba. While some still quibble about the status of that group — whether it is a military training patrol or a combat brigade — others find it more pertinent to discuss the impact this group may have on American security in the Western Hemisphere.

What the United States will do about the Russians is still up for debate. Carter has said he will not take any physical action against them, fearing the U.S. would blow the situation out of proportion through military intervention. While some have suggested we discontinue grain sales to the Soviets, agricultural experts claim this action will hurt American farmers, who are knee-deep in grain, but shallow in profits. One of the more interesting solutions to surface in the Cuba question came last week, as several Washington lawmakers suggested the U.S. step up anti-Soviet propaganda on Eastern European radio.

Regardless what Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and top U.S. officials decide to do about the incident, we hope they do not let the effects of anti-Soviet sentiments in America make them jump the gun. It is quite possible that the troops are in Cuba to train, for we have little substantial evidence to the contrary. The fact that the troops are described as "extremely mobile and exceptionally well-trained" may only be a credit to the schooling they are receiving. One sends their military forces through rigorous training in hopes to create effective military personnel, after all.

The problem at the heart of this conflict involves a far greater concern: the fate of the SALT II agreements. The pro-defense snowball which has snowed this country may gather strength when former President Gerald Ford blasts SALT II at a speaking engagement tonight. This will create a Republican umbrella for other lawmakers who may want to back Ford's suggestions. A growing number of senators in Washington seem skeptical about SALT II, and considering the deluge of anti-SALT material we see in our newspapers today, they are following a nation-wide trend. Hopefully, the SALT II agreement will be passed regardless of the conservative push, for to dismiss it because of the Russian forces in Cuba would be a mistake. Both the United States and the Soviet Union agree that without a nuclear arms treaty, relations will not improve between the two.

Many legislators stand behind Frank Church's suggestion that the Senate delay discussion of the SALT II situation until the Cuban conflict is resolved. We hope legislators keep in mind that the longer the question remains unresolved, the longer one can question relations between Russia and the U.S.

Court ruling a good one

The Michigan Court of Appeals scored a great victory for individual rights Monday, when they ruled an "allegedly" obscene film cannot be barred from an open air theater. The decision, which overturned the verdict of a Huron County judge, is merely a common sense decision for most people. But it means much more on another level, as a warning to judges who would decide such issues without thinking twice.

The judge ruled this after area residents complained their children were exposed to pornographic movies, because they lived nearby. What he did not decide, however, was if the film was legally obscene. This should come as no surprise to those who see a strong conservative trend in our courts, and see what decisions like this may be leading to.

This decision may spawn new legislation about the difference between a "private nuisance" and "offensive" material to complainants. Rep. Dennis Hertel, a Detroit democrat, announced the House Judiciary Committee will study the situation to see if a new law is needed. For while parents do have a right to protect their children from what is legally obscene (as determined by the U.S. Supreme Court) they do not have the right to shield them from what a small group may find personally offensive. That fine line, between "public nuisances" and "offensive material" must be distinguished before situations like this happen again.

We commend the Court of Appeals for catching this technicality, but we question the objectivity of Student voters slighted

A recent study examining East Lansing voting patterns since 1974 has once again caused a considerable amount of concern between students and East Lansing homeowners. The survey suggests that the East Lansing area has not been able to provide local homeowners with the best possible services because of the increasing role students play in area political decisions. The study implies the students' role has a damaging effect on local decisions. The report also goes on to say that three of the five East Lansing City Council members acquired their positions almost solely by soliciting the student vote.

This report surely does not help to improve the relationship between students and East Lansing homeowners. Several of the implications against students and slurs in the report cannot be tolerated. The thought that students are more transient than local homeowners is nothing short of sheer arrogance in many cases. The average stay of a student here is slightly over four years, not including graduate study. There surely are thousands of homeowners who have moved as often, if not more frequently, than have students in the area.

It is generally understood that many of the students attending classes at MSU live here for eight or nine months out of the year. The fact that a student may not reside here for a full year should in no way damage the validity and the integrity of that student's support for the East Lansing area.

Since the Michigan Supreme Court ruled in 1971 that students could choose to vote in their college towns as opposed to their home towns, many local homeowners have attempted to weaken the importance of students here. The only way for students and homeowners to solve their differences will be to discuss them rationally and in an above-board fashion. The attempt to change the date of local elections to August is not the type of solution the community is looking for.

It is imperative for all parties concerned to remember that East Lansing students are and will remain a considerable asset to this community. Without the support of students, many of the businesses along Grand River Avenue would be forced to close. As it now stands, the bulk of business revenues along Grand River are generated during the school year. Without students patronization, property tax rates would probably have to go up to take up the slack in local tax coffers.

Improper handling of this situation in the future could push the students beyond their breaking point. If forced to, students could demand that they receive some of the benefits of their tax dollars, benefits now largely accrued by the East Lansing homeowners.

The timing of the release of the study is peculiar at best. It is apparent that the homeowners would like to see students a little less interested in local affairs, but the release of the study shortly before the election may spur students to show their concern.

Some time ago, word leaked out about a possible de-annexation of the MSU campus from the city of East Lansing — a move which would eliminate student influence from East Lansing affairs. It is hoped the city would not have to resort to such tactics to solve its problems.

REGINALD THOMAS

Exterminators at 'U'?

When you enter the Student Services Building on Collingwood Drive there is a large display case outside the vice-president for student affairs office and across from the placement services office. In that case are the words "Fair Play. Play Fair." They don't seem that important to the average passer by, but if you are involved in interviewing Moses Turner, it has significant meaning.

Last week Vice-President for Student Affairs Eldon Nonnamaker submitted his resignation to MSU President Cecil Mackey. Mackey, in a quick move, decided to bring in one of his own people from Texas Tech University to replace Nonnamaker. But before doing so, he asked the Academic Council for their input. He hoped this would speed up the process. Mackey couldn't have been more mistaken.

What Mackey didn't realize was that different members of this University like to flex their muscles in bureaucratic games. They enjoy forming committees to study problems — committees that often meet, two or three months, longer than necessary. And this is what would have happened with the appointment of Turner.

The Academic Council would have taken about two months to study the role of the vice-president for student affairs. That sounds good. Except this should have been done a long time ago. To study this role now would only complicate and frustrate the appointment process. The Academic Council should know the role of the vice-president for student affairs already.

The Academic Council suggested Mackey wait until the October Board of Trustees meeting to make his recommendation. Chances are Mackey won't. But if he did wait, it would only make the process longer and more tedious.

Turner has been interviewed by trustees and they seem pleased with the selection. According to reports trustees want Mackey to make his appointment at tomorrow and Friday's board meeting. Chances are Mackey will. He asked a group of students, faculty and the members of the councils Executive Committee to meet and interview Turner. This occurred on Monday. This article went to print before the results or opinions of that interview were disclosed.

As of now, Mackey is guilty of two things. For one he has tried to cut the University's red tape. After all these years someone is trying to eliminate instead of perpetuate, the bourgeoisie petty fogging that has characterized past administrations. And Mackey is guilty of improving the University's affirmative action policy. While others have talked of the University's commitment, Mackey has shown it. Turner will be the third black appointed to an administrative position.

It is good to see that someone will move decisively on University policy. Some have said this appointment is the first test of Mackey's power. It doesn't seem that drastic. Mackey has no intentions of making this appointment his war. He knows he has many more appointments to make in the future.

The fear at this University is not that Mackey will bring incompetent people in to sabotage the University's programs. But instead, that Mackey is bringing in competent people who will act as his exterminators.

This is the importance of those words in the showcase. Is Mackey playing fair or is the Academic Council playing fair? The Academic Council cannot recommend anyone to take Nonnamaker's place, but they want to hold things up. Mackey is rushing things through.

If the council is really trying to find out what Turner's role would be, then they are wasting their time and his. His job will be the same as Nonnamaker's. Hopefully, it will be done much better. No matter how long they interview Turner, they will not be able to determine whether he is Mackey's exterminator or not. Turner won't tell and neither will Mackey. The fact is whoever is put in charge of student affairs will have to do Mackey's bidding. Remember what Assistant to the President Lou Anna Simon said — vice-presidents serve at the pleasure of the President.

Mackey cares?

With due respect to the President's appointees for the positions of Vice President for Student Affairs and Services, Vice President for Development, and Vice President for Operations, one cannot help but wonder if Mackey is really as concerned about affirmative action as he implies and impresses, or if he has become intimidated by a vocal and assertive member of the Board of Trustees?

If President Mackey were truly concerned about and sensitive to affirmative action, broadly conceived, would he not have subjected the filling of these positions through affirmative guidelines as established at MSU and as promulgated by the federal government? Has the President, in his haste to "please", plunged the University headlong into a justified affirmative action guidelines suit?

One can only hope that during his first few months as President, Mackey will learn and honor the rights, privileges and roles of the students, faculty and staff which were so hard earned over the past decade.

VIEWPOINT: NUCLEAR POWER

We can no longer ignore the nuclear power threat

By THE OCTOBER 21st COALITION

The threat of nuclear power, coupled with the United States government's intense nuclear weapons build up places each one of us into a critical position which we can no longer ignore. Our opposition must be heard. Wednesday night's meeting at 8:30 in 332 Union — which will discuss nuclear power through a speaker and slide show and will plan for the State-wide march on Oct. 21st at the Capitol — is one place where we can begin.

The nuclear industry is the most blatant example of the daily plans of the big corporations who do not concern themselves with the safety and needs of the people in this country. There is no longer any question that there exists no safe way to develop or maintain nuclear power. Not only can they not control the dangers of a plant failure which could cost the lives of millions during one fatal disaster, but the statistics exist to prove that these plants are extremely dangerous under normal circumstances. Nuclear plants continually emit strontium 90 into the atmosphere. This has increased the rates of cancer for people living around the plants to up to 56 percent of the national average. These figures don't even take into consideration the nuclear waste problem for which experts admit no solution is available.

We have been forced to express our opposition through demonstrations and other actions, since there has been no place for the people's opinion to be raised in the decision making process of the nuclear industries. The democracy we are led to believe exists in this country is coming into question more and more. We have no vote concerning nuclear power and nuclear weapons.

There is definitely a question of our basic democratic rights being denied when we have no voice in these matters. Ask the people who have been unknowingly living for years in areas contaminated by one of the thousands of illegal chemical dumpings. They'll tell you about their "rights" — rights to be chronically ill, to have cancer, miscarriages and deformed babies, while they have no "right" to receive compensation from the chemical companies who have grown rich in the process.

These tragedies can no longer appear to be accidental. Especially when, for example, we witness the conscious decisions being made which cut back social services, close public hospitals and cut back youth programs — all of which are desperately needed for many people today. Meanwhile, more and more of our tax dollars are used for drastic increases in the military budget and the continual development of outrageously expensive nuclear weapons. We don't believe either of these plans would be approved by the people.

Other questions must be raised also: questions which are completely ignored in the media today such as the policies of U.S. corporations to export these evils to third world countries. How many people know that a nuclear plant is being built by U.S. corporations in the Philippines that is being subsidized and guaranteed against profit loss by our tax dollars through the U.S. government's Export-Import Bank? How many have heard of the nightly news that this multi-billion dollar project, which will never begin to meet the needs of the vast majority of Philippines, is being built in a location in one of the world's most active earthquake zones, near four active volcanoes, and which just eight years ago was hit by a tidal wave? Not many people know about this, nor about the other projects planned under similar circumstances in many underdeveloped countries. The meager safety regulations existing here do not even apply in these countries, and more often than not any protest is met by death or torture under military dictators who are heavily supported by the U.S. government.

Why are these critical questions being ignored? They are being ignored because the multi-nationals grow and thrive from the super profits obtained in precisely these ways, and changing their methods of exploitation would destroy their entire empire.

The corporations in this country will not surrender their investment in nuclear power, no matter how many times we can prove its dangerous consequences. But they will have to listen to the struggles of the people in this country because we will give them no other choice.

We have no investment in nuclear power, any more than in destructive chemical plants, faulty automobiles or cancer producing food additives. As conscious people, it is our responsibility to expose the injustices, to take a stand on these issues, and to move towards building a strong movement which recognizes the essential right of the world's people to decide how the wealth that they have produced by their own labor will be used. And we know that when this happens, neither nuclear power nor super profits for a few corporate giants will be on the agenda.

Leak shuts down nuclear reactor

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A nuclear reactor at the Virginia Electric & Power Co.'s North Anna power station was shut down Tuesday after a heat exchanger tube failed and radioactive gas was released, the utility said.

The radioactivity of the gas released was only a small fraction of allowable limits of radiation and the health and safety of the public was not affected, said C.M. Stallings, Vepeco's vice president of power supply and production operations.

He said no one at the plant was over-exposed to radiation.

Stallings said the problem with the heat exchanger tube was not directly related to the reactor. In the heat exchanger, radioactive water from the reactor's core transfers heat to uncontaminated water, producing steam to drive the generators.

But in the course of shutting down the reactor, he said, there was a minor release of radioactive gas in an auxiliary building.

With the shutdown of North Anna 1, all of Vepeco's four nuclear generating units are out of service. The second unit at the North Anna plant has not yet gone into operation.

Two reactors at Vepeco's Surry power plant have been shut down for months — one for steam generator repairs and both for testing of the units' ability to withstand stress from severe earthquakes.

North Anna 1 will be out of service for 12 weeks for refueling and inspection that had been previously scheduled to start within the next 10 days, the utility said. "Since the next few months should be marked relatively mild weather, we believe we will be able to meet customer loads during the period," Stallings said.

Last March's accident at the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant near Harrisburg, Pa., occurred when a series of mechanical and human failures deprived a reactor of cooling water. The following rapid increase in temperature caused radioactive steam and gases to be vented to the atmosphere.

State gives go-ahead for new U-M hospital

By CHRIS PARKS

LANSING (UPI) — State officials gave the go-ahead Tuesday for the replacement of the University of Michigan's hospital, ending a year of controversy over the project with a $200-plus million price tag which reportedly is tops for any U.S. hospital to date.

State Health Director Maurice Reizen ceremonially handed the crucial certificate of need to U-M Interim President Allan Smith during a Capitol news conference also attended by the head of a planning group which fought to scale-down the project.

"This is indeed a very great moment for the University of Michigan," Smith said.

The project cost is set at $210 million but health department policies allow for cost overruns of as much as 15 percent, meaning the project eventually may cost as much as $241 million.

of outmoded buildings of the University Hospital complex on the U-M campus in Ann Arbor. The hospital now has a capacity of 969 beds.

University officials long have sought to replace the aging structure which has experienced increasing difficulties with certification agencies despite its nationwide reputation.

The university's original proposal for a $254 million, 966-bed facility was criticized as too expensive by the Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Southeastern Michigan which recommended rejection of the certificate of need.

A compromise subsequently was hammered out and the council gave its approval in August.

THE HOSPITAL MUST have the certificate of need to qualify for participation in federal programs.

Groundbreaking is scheduled for 1981 with project completion set for 1986.

Reizen said the project will increase the efficiency of medical care while correcting code deficiencies. He said 135 physicians and 277 other professionals will be added to the hospital staff.

Dayton Hudson plan to be presented at Planning Commission hearing tonight

Dayton Hudson Properties will present a site plan for its proposed shopping mall at 7:30 tonight at a Planning Commission hearing in the Pinecrest School gymnasium, 1811 Pinecrest Road.

The public hearing, the second held by the Planning Commission, will review Dayton Hudson's 162-acre rezoning request for construction of a mall on U.S. 127 and Lake Lansing Road. The Commission may make an immediate recommendation to East Lansing City Council, City Planner Robert Owen said Tuesday.

Approximately 40 acres in the request would be rezoned for retail sales business to allow construction of the mall. Owen said an additional 24 acres in Meridian and Lansing townships would also be used for the mall site. He said Dayton Hudson representatives have indicated that they would request part of that land be rezoned residential.

The request also allows housing on approximately 103 acres, with 18 additional acres dedicated to the city for community use. Owen said Dayton Hudson consultant Daniel Swanko and traffic, economic and environmental consultants will present the plan and answer questions tonight.

Should the Planning Commission pass a recommendation back to city council tonight, Owen said the council would have to advertise 15 days prior to a last public hearing on the issue. Owen predicted that council would hold a public hearing on the mall prior to the election.

Missing license plates returned

A plain, brown envelope dropped off at a Case Hall reception desk Tuesday turned out to contain 13 stolen out-of-state license plates.

The plates, which were left by an anonymous individual, were stolen last weekend and may belong to some people who don't even know they were missing. Major Adam Zutaut of the Department of Public Safety said.

Persons who are missing out of state license plates may identify them at the DPS Building, 87 Red Cedar Road.

THE LEGISLATURE STILL must approve funding for the project through the State Building Authority.

Bukowski: poet for our time

Play The Piano Drunk Like A Percussion Instrument Until The Fingers Begin To Bleed A Bit
by Charles Bukowski
Black Sparrow Press, 125 pages
$4.00

Reviewed by RENALDO MIGALDI

An English professor and I once got into a little argument. It began when I offhandedly remarked, in my snotty, opinionated way, that I felt Charles Bukowski was one of the greatest poets America had ever produced. To this I added my opinion that Jack Kerouac was one of America's greatest novelists.

The look he gave me was not really one of amazement. It was more of a well-meaning, patronizing smile that said: "Well, I went through a stage like that too, but you'll grow out of it soon enough." I insisted to the contrary.

The discussion veered toward Bukowski, and the professor tried to explain to me that while Bukowski's work was undoubtedly a lot of fun to read, and admittedly rich with emotion, it lacked any intellectual underpinning, or any sense of craft. He also said that Kerouac wrote books for adolescents.

This prof was one of the few in the MSU English Department I had any respect for, and I filed his remarks in my head for future reference, thinking that after a few years and more reading, I might come to better see what he was getting at.

Two years have since passed. Although I still enjoy leafing through On The Road or The Subterraneans from time to time, I have gradually grown impatient with Kerouac's simplistic romanticism, his words for the sake of words, and his nonsense about the greatness of America. But I am ever more convinced about the quality of Bukowski's work. His poems, stories and novels are far more than just the random ravings of a drunken madman. When you stand back and look at them as a single body of work, you realize that they all seem to point to the same thing. And you can sense and feel what that "thing" is, but you cannot state what it is in a few glib words. It has taken someone gifted with an awesome power of vision to articulate secrets we are all dimly aware of, secrets we feel running in our veins like poison; and even this individual cannot communicate his secret in a few simple words. It must be hinted at, suggested, surrounded with fences, coaxed into standing still, jabbed at with relentless punches, stared down, and otherwise persuaded to pull the mask off its face.

Bukowski's 34th published book — his second this year — is called Play The Piano Drunk Like A Percussion Instrument Until The Fingers Begin To Bleed A Bit. Avid fans of Bukowski's work will recognize the word "piano" as Bukowski's habitual metaphor for that most loved and hated of the writer's tools — the typewriter. The title, then, concisely states Bukowski's ideal of what a real writer must do (stated more elaborately in "how to be a great writer," a poem from his book Love Is A Dog From Hell). Taken further, it suggests an attitude toward how life is to be lived. But I don't want to be cockeyed and pseudo-intellectual about all this...

Play The Piano is a collection of Buk's poetry from the past nine or ten years. There is some variation of styles, from his earlier, more elaborate and figurative style ("the paper on the floor," "2347 Duane") to his latest work: terse, laconic, vibrant with echoes ("a killer gets ready," "the loner"). This variation makes for a somewhat hodgepodge effect, but the collection does keep a certain unity from the remarkable consistency in the quality of the poems. In fact, nobody could ever accuse Buk of being uneven — it's hard to pick out any "best" of his writings. Consistency is a Bukowski hallmark, in spite of whatever he may say about being "drunk and writing poems at 3:18 a.m."

Bukowski may be the first American poet to do what American poets ever since Wordsworth have been talking about doing: writing in the language of the everyday individual without sacrificing quality. His deft use of the colloquial idiom comes quite naturally to him. And he is a natural story teller — even his poems are little stories, rich with the voices and passions of real people, most of whom have been crushed by the System. Buk doesn't moralize; he just plops the naked American dream in front of us like hot, steaming garbage, and allows us to smell the stink.

Bukowski is far beyond worrying about technique. Far beyond the bearded professors with their electric typewriters and their students and their mimeographed handouts and slim volumes of verse. Far beyond the shallow formalists-without-content, the Updikes and John Irvings that the bookstore cash registers so love to ring for. Buk is interested in feelings, in mysteries, in truth and suffering. The technique springs from the unconscious and creates itself. The technique is coarse, blunt and powerful. While so many writers waste time on talk shows, while the Mailers and Micheners scream at each other over typescripts piled deep with incomprehensible gibberish, Buk is on the streets, listening to the voices, feeling the rises and falls of his gut, and getting it all down on paper...

...the thoughts that most of us linger on for half a second and then abandon forever to a stream of others so that in the end they blur together and mean nothing? — Buk stops each one, punches it in the chest and demands, "who are YOU?"

Charles Bukowski in a standard pose.

Buk doesn't spare much, and he often likes to revel in the most gritty, distasteful aspects of modern urban life, and you might find his philosophy quite a bit on the harsh side, but whether you agree with him or not he is FASCINATING; he is blessed (or cursed) with the ability to vibrate emotions right into your brain like osmosis. I hope I've actually managed to say something about him in this review and if not it's probably because this is the THIRD time in two years I've reviewed one of his books and I'm trying hard, friends, not to repeat myself. Why don't you just put this paper down and run right out and buy Play The Piano right now, and all of Buk's other books too. Read them, and then read them again. You'll be different when you are through.

As for what the professors say, don't worry. The academics, well meaning though they may be, are usually 50 years behind what's happening in world literature anyway. Buk is a real artist, not just a pop star like Tom Robbins or a circus freak like Norman Mailer or a bland suburban daydreamer like John Updike or a lovable dummy like John Irving. So don't worry about the professors; all they can ever say anyway is Hemingway, Faulkner, Fitzgerald, Hemingway, Faulkner, Fitzgerald, Hemingway, Faulkner, Fitzgerald, Hemingway...

Eric Gale excels on latest fusion LP

By REGINALD THOMAS
State News Reviewer

After playing backup on numerous fusion albums, guitarist Eric Gale has once again produced a fine piece of vinyl. His Part Of You (Columbia JC-35715) is a well-produced LP which proves that fusion can be good.

The album opens with "Let Me Slip It To You," a fast paced tune out of the Ginseng Woman mold. It is complete with the strong percussion of Ralph MacDonald (who is also the album's producer.) This cut has all the elements of the average fusion piece. Even its personnel are familiar.

In addition to MacDonald, Gale's band includes Steve Gadd on drums; Richard Tee on piano and Anthony Jackson on bass. The rest of the album gives musical credit to Harvey Mason (drums), Idris Muhammad (drums), Charles Earland (organ) and, of course, Grover

Washington, Jr. But the best thing about this album is not the names involved, but the result of their involvement, such as the mellowness produced on the title cut, "Part Of You." This is a slow, mellifluous tune which accents Gale's guitar plucking.

From "Part Of You" the album jumps into a fluttering guitar-organ-drum piece entitled, what else but, "Trio," featuring Gale, Muhammad and Earland. These three musicians do wonders with this cut. The organ is strong throughout, as is the guitar of Gale. Muhammad is his usually steady self in the background.

The rhythm arrangement on this tune was done by Gale, and it should prove to those who have labeled Gale a "sellout" that he can still produce cuts form the "old mold."

The flip side of the album is as good, but it is more along the lines of Gale's Ginseng Woman album. This features a soft-but-lavish sound that is supported by the tenor saxophone of Grover Washington, Jr. "Lookin' Good" was originally supposed to be the title cut but for some reason the album's producers changed their minds. But either way, the album and Gale are "lookin' good."

Gale takes the album into another fast pace tune entitled "Nezum," before finishing out with the meticulously rich "Holding On To Love." No matter what anyone says this is Eric Gale in his usual habitat. He plucks profusely on his guitar, as his fellow musicians provide the stabilizing force that he has often provided for their albums.

Styx tickets still available

Multi-platinum recording artists Styx will be bringing their grand illusions to Jenison Fieldhouse Friday, Oct. 5, at 7:30 p.m. Accompanying Styx will be a second band, Morningstar.

Styx was formed in Chicago in the mid sixties, though at that time the band was touring under the name of The Tradewinds. After changing their name and singing with Wooden Nickel records in 1970, Styx released a succession of albums that were all but ignored by the press, radio, and the record-buying public.

Their luck finally changed when, a few years after its release, a song from the band's second album was released as a single in response to requests and airplay at Chicago's WLS. "Lady" soon became a national hit.

Since then Styx has enjoyed considerable success, and each succeeding album has shot high into the charts. When Styx comes to MSU they will be bringing a spectacular stage show, making extensive use of theatrics and special effects.

Tickets for Styx are on sale for $9.50, $8.50, and $7.50 at the Union Ticket Office, Marshall Music in Frandor, Campus Corners II, and Sounds & Diversions in Lansing. Due to the fact that tickets went on sale at the same time as football tickets, there are a lot of good seats still available.

WARM UP WITH 7-0 WIN

Kickers face challenges

By JEFF HITTNER
State News Sports Writer

With the leaner portion of the schedule behind it, the MSU soccer team embarks on a string of pivotal road tests beginning at Calvin College today.

The Spartans bettered their season mark to 3-1 Monday after feasting on Albion College for a 7-0 victory.

But just how successful MSU head coach Joe Baum's third soccer team is in 1979 could well be determined in the next three games.

After the Calvin match, the Spartans travel to Baltimore, Md., where they play in the prestigious Loyola Invitational Soccer Tournament. They will face the University of Maryland in the opener Saturday and then either Duke University or host Loyola College Sunday.

THE THREE CONTESTS provide the Spartans with their first top-flight opposition of the season and should reveal how far away MSU is to becoming a playoff contender.

Although the Spartans own an all-time mark of 13-1-1 over Calvin, the Knights have given MSU almost more than it could handle in the past two meetings.

The Knights beat MSU 2-1 last fall and took the Spartans into double overtime in 1977 before bowing to them 1-0.

"In the last two years, we've only scored two goals against Calvin," Baum said. "They are a big, physical team and they use it to their advantage because of the narrow field up there."

Soccer is the major fall sport at Calvin because there is no football program. Consequently, crowds of 1,000 or more will turn out for the Knights' games. But that doesn't seem to bother Baum.

"We need one tough challenge before we go out east," Baum said. "The crowd and field are to their advantage, but that will just make us play that much harder."

THE SPARTANS WARMED up for their important road trip by simply dominating a much weaker Albion squad.

"I'm extremely happy with the way we moved the ball," Baum noted. "Our goals were the result of offensive execution rather than defensive mistakes."

Execute is exactly what MSU did to Albion. The Spartans kicked 38 shots-on-goal compared to a meager two for the Britons.

Junior Scott Campbell scored the first of his two goals of the afternoon when he booted a shot past Albion goalie Scott Wiegly just six minutes into the game. He tallied again on a 30-yard blast from the left side of the field one minute into the second half.

Campbell's two-goal, one-assist performance showed he has regained the offensive form he had as a freshman when he led the squad in scoring. A knee injury cut short his sophomore season and left some doubt as to whether he would fully recover.

SOPHOMORE MARK NETERER, the team's leading scorer this year, recorded his fourth and fifth goals of the season in the contest. He scored on a pass from senior Nick Bowen 36 minutes into the game and at the nine minute spot of the second half on an assist from freshman Vaneho Cirovski.

MSU's other three goals came from the feet of Cirovski and juniors Eric Reinhard and Eric Faunce.

"We still force plays," Baum reflected. "We need to be more patient before we score that first goal. But I was pleased with what I saw and it's a good feeling."

State News/Richard C. Marshall
Trying to maneuver the ball away from an Albion College player is MSU's Mark Neterer who had two goals in the easy 7-0 defeat of the Britons. Neterer's goals were his fourth and fifth of the season. He is the team's leading scorer.

SPORTS

Gridders move up in polls

The MSU football team has moved up to sixth and seventh places respectively in this week's United Press International and Associated Press college football polls.

The Spartans were in eighth place on both polls a week ago, but moved up by virtue of their 24-21 victory over Miami of Ohio University Saturday.

MSU's next opponent, the University of Notre Dame, dropped from No. 5 in both polls to 15th in the AP and 16th in the UPI. The Fighting Irish fell to Purdue University last Saturday by a 28-22 count.

Teams ahead of the Spartans on the UPI poll include No. 1 University of Southern California. The Trojans received 32 of the 38 first place votes. Others receiving votes for the top spot were No. 2 University of Alabama and No. 4 University of Texas.

Harriers impressive, home opener is next

By BILL TEMPLETON
State News Sports Writer

The MSU women's cross country team made an excellent showing in the 12th annual Springbank Invitational Road Race which was run Sunday in London, Ontario.

Because of the format of the race, individual places are determined instantly, while team finishes are not announced until much later. So much later, in fact, that the harriers are still unsure as to their finish in the race.

At the individual level, the Spartans placed six women in the top 20 in a field of 300, with all team members bettering their times from a year ago in the same race.

Senior Cynthia Wadsworth led the Spartan charge as she finished the four-and-a-half mile course in 24:21 for a sixth place finish overall.

Junior Sue Richardson was right behind Wadsworth, as she completed her run in 24:30 for a seventh place finish.

The race was won by internationalist and 1979 AAUW 1500-meter champion Brenda Webb, a graduate of the University of Tennessee who now represents the Knoxville Track Club.

Webb has won the Springbank Invitational three consecutive years.

Senior co-captains Lisa Berry and Natalie Hughes did not run in the Springbank race due to injuries. Transfer student Carol Schenks was also absent from the meet with an injury.

Hughes is recovering from a series of four stress fractures in her leg and was taken off of her crutches this week.

The harriers open their home season Saturday when they will entertain Pennsylvania State and the University of Wisconsin at the Forest Akers golf course.

The race is scheduled to start at 10 a.m.

In women's rugby action here Sunday, MSU was defeated by Purdue University, 10-8, on a hard pitch in exciting season-opening competition.

MSU and Purdue both appeared strong through much of the game, but two important plays revealed the MSU Road Rugger's weaknesses. Both plays came deep in Purdue territory when it seemed apparent MSU was in control.

On a tackle by a Purdue player and subsequent ruck, or walk over of the ball, Purdue won possession and broke three tackles to escape downfield and cap an 80-meter run with the first try of the game. The conversion attempt was good and Purdue led 6-0.

After MSU kicked off to Purdue, the visiting team again showed its tenacity by sticking close to mid-field and challenging, and winning some lineouts. MSU's emphasis on control and support play provided excellent team coverage from about mid-field to the try line.

Some excellent kicking plays from MSU's Terry Rizzo and fine ball handling from Carol Schultz, provided a fine key pass to Beth Cols, who showed greater character in powering over for the MSU try. Since the goal was touched near the corner, the conversion attempt had to be made twenty-two meters out from the corner. One of the most difficult kicks in rugby, the attempt failed, leaving MSU trailing 6-4.

In the second half, MSU allowed another scoring opportunity to escape them. Again Purdue managed to win the ball deep in its own territory. High tackle attempts by MSU let the Purdue back slip through to gain excellent yardage for the second Purdue try. The conversion attempt failed but Purdue was still ahead by six, 10-4.

On the last score of the game MSU showed fine control by driving within a meter of the try line in the final minutes. Purdue's tenacity stalled the ball and referee Steve Cohen ordered a scrum down, awarding the ball to the defending team, Purdue.

Possession of the ball after the scrum remained uncertain while a flurry of action took place behind the try line. But MSU's Sue Grissim, a member of the Midwest Select Side, firmly touched the ball down for an MSU score. Michele Strobehn's conversion attempt failed and the game ended soon after with Purdue on top, 10-8.

MSU is scheduled to play at home Saturday against Kent State University on the Veterinary Clinic fields. Game times are to be announced.

Sensitive Prince goes out winner

It should have been a triumphant moment for Dennis and Joan Milne, the part-owners of Sensitive Prince, but it wasn't. Less than an hour earlier they had watched and cheered as the four-year-old son of Majestic Prince had charged out of the starting gate and led from flag fall to the finish line in winning the 31st running of the Michigan Mile and One-Eighth Handicap at Detroit Race Course. But as jockey Jacinto Vasquez guided him to the winner's circle a sharp eye could detect that Sensitive Prince was bobbing his head and veering slightly off step. Something was wrong with his left front leg.

He was taken to the track veterinarian as soon as the awards ceremony was over and given a shot of Phenylbutazone ("Bute"). Now he stood in his stall with both forelegs in a tub of ice water. His exercise rider, Bobby Commodore, was crouched underneath him with the top half of a sawed-off, plastic gallon jug, lading the water over an eight-inch area just above Sensitive Prince's left ankle. A heavy blue bandage had already been applied.

TEN FEET AWAY, Joan Milne sat on top of a muck-stained feed bucket. She was dressed in a smart gray flannel dress suit and was still holding the one and one-half dozen, long-stemmed red roses that had been given to her in the winner's circle. The roses were tied together with a big red bow. The blanket of red and white carnations that had been draped over Sensitive Prince's shoulders lay folded on her lap. "I'd usually hang these up outside the barn," she said as she fingered the blanket, her eyes moist. "But it seems so inappropriate. And he ran such a fine race."

Indeed, he had. He had fought off several challenges from his half brother, Prince Majestic, and was in front by a widening length and one-half at the finish. He had been bet down to 3-5 by the crowd, officially listed at 12.108, and had matched last year's Michigan Mile winning time of 1:52.3.

Dennis Milne came over to the stall. "We'll have him x-rayed tomorrow morning," he said to Andy Desernio, Sensitive Prince's assistant trainer and second in command for the stable of horses trained by New York based H. Allen Jerkens. "Anything you need?"

"Sure," said Desernio. He is a small man with an exuberance that is captivating. "Sure," he said, "get me some beer, get me a bottle of wine."

DENNIS AND JOAN Milne left to search for a party store. Andy Desernio removed Sensitive Prince's legs from the tub of ice water, towed them off and checked the bandage. He walked outside the stall and reached into a brown bag containing some grapes.

"Grapes of wrath," he said. "Grapes of wrath!" He held out a handful for Sensitive Prince. "Look," said Desernio, laughing, "he sure likes his grapes!"

The x-rays were taken on Sunday morning. They showed that Sensitive Prince had cracked the cannon bone in his left front leg. He could never race again. It was decided that he immediately be shipped to Lexington, Kentucky, where he would start breeding for Top The Marc Stable as soon as he healed.

Dennis Milne calmly answered the questions. The original plan had been that Sensitive Prince would run in one more race after the Michigan Mile, then be retired to stud on November 1. He has already been syndicated for $2.5 million. Yes, Milne was disappointed about what had happened. No, he didn't know at what point in the race the injury had taken place. No cast would be placed on the leg, but a heavy slug band would.

Someone asked, "if this wouldn't have happened, would you have been willing to take on Affirmed one more time?"

DENNIS MILNE SMILED. There was a time when many thought that Sensitive Prince was a match for last year's Triple Crown champion. He almost beat Affirmed in the Jim Dandy Stakes at Saratoga last year. But in three races against Affirmed, he had lost three times.

"No," said Dennis Milne. "Affirmed's too tough." The record will show that Sensitive Prince won six of eight races his final year, with earnings of $280,000. His lifetime earnings total $495,000. He goes out as a winner of a major stakes race, and if you're a horse and you have to retire, that's the way to go.

BASEBALL SEASON WINDS DOWN

California, Reds head for titles

With just a few more days left in the regular season, the major league pennant races still have only one sure winner, the Baltimore Orioles. However, two of the races look almost over while one looks like it is going right down to the wire.

In the American League East, the Orioles are just going through the motions, trying to keep sharp for the playoffs, after running away with the divisional title.

Their western opponent looks as if it will be California, who whipped Kansas City Monday to move four full games ahead with only five to play. The Angels have been teetering on the brink of collapse for the last month, but now it looks like they will win their first divisional title ever.

Meanwhile, the Reds finish the season with home games and chances are the Big Red Machine will return to the playoffs for the first time since 1976.

The National League East is still a dogfight. The surprising Montreal Expos were one-half game in front of the Pittsburgh Pirates after salvaging a split of their doubleheader in Pittsburgh Monday. The Expos had seven games left, the Pirates six. The teams had two remaining games in Pittsburgh, with first place riding on the outcome.

In the National League West, the Houston Astros dream of winning its first divisional title rapidly disappears. The Astros lost both ends of a doubleheader to the last-place Atlanta Braves Monday night, to drop 2-and-one-half games in back of the Cincinnati Reds and just about insure themselves an

Rock Island still stalled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interstate Commerce Commission on Tuesday delayed for a day plans to order a swift resumption of freight shipments on the strikebound and financially strapped Rock Island railroad.

The ICC said it would vote Wednesday on a revised plan for ordering the Kansas City Terminal Co. to operate the Rock Island system for 60 days to relieve the mounting economic burden on the Midwestern farm industry, which has been unable to ship huge grain harvests to market.

The ICC met in special session after it received a letter from new Transportation Secretary Neil Goldschmidt, who said he was "shocked" at the handling of the railroad's labor and money problems by its court-appointed trustee, William M. Gibbons of Chicago.

GOLDSCHMIDT ALSO HAD urged the ICC to act immediately, but the commission recessed to redraft its "directed service" order and to get more information on the Rock Island's money problems.

Logan may be expanded

The possible expansion of Logan Street and extension of temporary I-69 through Eaton County will be discussed by the Tri-County Regional Planning Commission 7:30 tonight at 2722 E. Michigan Ave.

Before the Logan Street project can be federally funded, it must be placed on the Transportation Improvement Program list of priorities. The commission will discuss the status of these projects tonight.

Cowley Ave. stays open

Cowley Avenue north of Saginaw Street will not be closed, the East Lansing Transportation Commission decided Monday.

Despite citizen desire to close the street to prevent the flow of through traffic from Saginaw, the commission determined that there is not enough traffic on Cowley Avenue to warrant any traffic control measures.

Mark Harbison, of the commission, said that based on a recent study, Cowley has very low traffic.

and the four-week walkout's impact on farmers.

The commission said it would announce its decision Wednesday.

But because of paperwork and other details, it would be the end of this week or early next week before freight could start moving again along the Rock Island's 13-state, 7,000-mile system, ICC officials estimated.

There also was a chance the ICC would delay acting for 48 hours — as suggested by one commission member — so the agency could bolster its legal case for ordering a resumption of operations.

In addition, Rock Island officials might go to court to try to block a temporary takeover. The railroad is under court-supervised reorganization to stave off bankruptcy.

MEANWHILE, ANOTHER development that has disrupted grain shipments, an 11-week strike at grain elevators in the twin ports of Duluth, Minn., and Superior, Wis., ended Tuesday when grain handlers ratified contracts with eight elevator companies.

The ICC met as 4,100 striking Rock Island workers continued to defy a 60-day, back-to-work order issued by President Carter last Thursday.

Carter said he asked the ICC to act because the Rock Island lacks enough cash to resume full operations, even with an end to the strike.

CHILDREN SUFFERING EFFECTS

Veterans claim drugged by army

By DANIEL F. GILMORE
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Nine veterans who say they were subject to secret army drug experiments claim they and their children have suffered lasting harmful effects from them.

The nine, including a suburban Detroit, Monday told reporters the Army refuses to tell them what drugs were administered in secret experiments conducted on them from 1960-1973 at the Army's Edgewood Arsenal in Maryland.

They are pursuing their case through the Justice Department.

The nine men came forward after an arm of the Church of Scientology offered to help enlisted personnel subjected to such experiments.

ALL NINE TESTIFIED or submitted sworn affidavits claiming they had suffered long-lasting mental problems and some of their offspring were born with defects they believe were caused by the drugs.

Gary S. Wagner, of Royal Oak, told of an experiment conducted in 1966.

"I was put in a bed . . . my right arm was tied down and a needle the size of a thin pencil was inserted into my arm," he said. "I was terrified and asked the nurse and the doctor what was happening to me and what drug were they going to use on me. I was told that it was top secret."

Wagner said he did not remember anything of the next six months.

"My nine-year-old daughter has physical deformities and I attribute them directly to the drugs I was given at Edgewood," he said.

William Selig, of Rockland, Mass., describing some of the experimenting he underwent in 1967, said:

"ANOTHER TEST WAS in an air duct that had a hole in it, where you would put your head. The hole had a rubber collar that fit snugly around your head . . . when you put your head in, there was a cloud of vapor of the chemical coming at you."
