MSU expects first woman V-P

MSU May be receiving its first female vice president as successor to Robert Perrin, outgoing vice president for University and federal relations.

Connie Stewart, director of policy communications with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, was nominated by President Cecil Mackey Wednesday night.

Stewart, if approved by the Board of Trustees at Friday's meeting, would become the first female vice president at MSU.

She would also be the third vice president appointed by Mackey since he took office in August.

"I'M REALLY PLEASED President Mackey has found such an excellent candidate who was also a woman," said Trustee Jack Stack, R-Alma. "It shows Mackey's commitment to affirmative action."

Though Stack did not get an opportunity to meet with Stewart, he said she "certainly seemed qualified in terms of training and experience."

"I am very pleased with the nomination of Connie Stewart," John Bruff, D-Fraser said. "Her experience in TV and radio and her work in Washington should be helpful in the area of federal relations."

"The fact that she is a woman is an added plus in my opinion. President Wharton, Harden and Dr. Mackey have all asked for minorities and females in these positions and I am pleased Dr. Mackey has been able to move in that direction so quickly," he added.

Trustee Raymond Krolikowski, D-Birmingham and Bruff spoke with Stewart at the Detroit Metropolitan Airport Sunday. Other trustees were able to interview the vice presidential candidate Saturday afternoon during the Spartan football game.

"MACKEY'S CHOICE FOR this position was excellent," said Aubrey Radcliffe, R-East Lansing. "This shows that affirmative action is moving ahead at full speed. I support this candidate 100 percent and see no reason why the board will not approve her."

Mackey said he would make no comment on Stewart's appointment before the board took action on Friday.

Stewart, 40, has been with HEW since 1977. She was appointed to her position by President Carter, who has known her since she campaigned for him in the Georgia gubernatorial race.

She received her bachelor of arts degree in journalism and her masters degree in public relations-advertising at the University of Georgia.

She worked as a reporter, for WSB-TV, an NBC television affiliate in Atlanta, Ga., before becoming editor of a weekly newspaper in Oconee County, Ga. in 1971.

SHE MOVED TO Tampa, Fla., in 1972, when her former husband took a teaching position at the University of South Florida.

It was there that she met Mackey, who was then president of the University of South Florida.

If her appointment is approved by the Board of Trustees, Stewart will succeed Robert Perrin, who left MSU to become vice chancellor for university affairs and development at the State University of New York.

Perrin, who served as vice president for University and federal relations, for nine-and-one-half years, announced in July he would leave the University to join former MSU President Clifton Wharton, Jr., at SUNY.

State Police to release 'red squad' files to public

By MARK FELLOWS
and TIM SIMMONS
State News Staff Writer

"Thousands" of people who participated in campus activities during the 1960s and early 70s may soon receive letters informing them they have a "red squad" file, Zolton Ferency, MSU criminal justice professor said Wednesday.

State Police officials expect to send about 40,000 notices this November to persons whose names were indexed in their red squad files. Those receiving letters will be able to pick up copies of their files at any one of eight State Police district offices.

"Anyone who was involved in civil rights, war movements, gay activities or other activities might very well have a file on them," Ferency said.

The files were created during the anti-communist McCarthy era of the early 1950s to gather intelligence on people participating in "subversive" activities. Because the State Police unit was originally formed to observe those advocating political or industrial reform the unit was named the "red squad."

"THE LAW WAS based on a 1930s law that was used for labor purposes to keep information on those who participated in strikes," Ferency said. "In the 1950s, they amended it to include those involved in political activity."

More than 200,000 files were collected during the following three decades, he said. This number was later reduced to about 50,000 files after police "culled out those files which were outdated."

Ferency originally challenged the information gathering by State Police Subversive Activities Unit in 1975. At that time, he filed a suit on behalf of the Human Rights Party.

A second suit was filed against the red squad by a group of Wayne County residents who had been investigated by the state police unit.

In January, 1976 Ingham County Circuit Court Judge Thomas Brown declared the unit's intelligence gathering system unconstitutional and ordered the files destroyed. A Michigan Appeals Court decision, however, prevented State Police from destroying the files until all cases were concluded.

BROWN THEN RULED that persons who believed they were in the red squad files could petition the court to obtain the files.

Robert Repas, professor in the School of Labor and Industrial Relations, obtained his file at that time.

Repas was active in the Committee Opposing Political Surveillance.

Repas said his file contained "all kinds of nonsense."

Included in his file were reports that a car with a license plate number registered to him was parked on a Detroit street near a Socialist Party U.S.A. meeting place.

REPAS, WHO ATTENDED the meeting, said he was concerned that people not at the meeting were connected to the party because they parked on the same street.

Repas said he believes his file was censored before it was given to him and that state police will also censor the files of those who will be receiving notices in November.

"Many items that I found in my red squad file also appeared in my FBI file," Repas said.

Information gathered by the red squad was transmitted to other police agencies upon request, Ferency said.

"Some of this information cannot be traced, but the system worked in a way where if you wanted (the police) to receive information you had to provide information," Ferency said.

"IT IS QUITE possible that information on someone contained in the red squad files is also on file with the East Lansing police department or the DPS," he added.

C. Patrick "Lash" Larowe, professor of economics, said he also believes information was exchanged between federal and state agencies.

Having obtained his FBI file two years ago, Larowe said he found information concerning his activities with the equal housing movement and other local activities.

Suspensions of a free information flow between agencies was corroborated by a report issued by a Special Committee on Political Surveillance in November, 1977.

THE COMMITTEE, COMPOSED of East Lansing City Councilmember Larry Owen, then Councilmember Mary Sharp, and MSU sociology professor James McKee, investigated political surveillance by the East Lansing Police Department beginning in the early 1960s.

The Committee found among other things, that the State Police, the FBI, the DPS and the Lansing police "engaged in extensive intelligence-gathering activities."

The report continued: "It appears that the State Police were particularly active. East Lansing police cooperated with these other operations when requested."

Senators ask for action against primary rules

By BRUCE BABIARZ
State News Staff Writer

Two Democratic state senators asked Attorney General Frank J. Kelley to take legal action Thursday against national Democratic Party rules which could make Michigan's presidential primary a "popularity contest."

Senate Majority Leader William Faust, D-Westland, and Senator Jack Faxon, D-Detroit, urged Kelley in the action to "preserve the basic rights of Michigan citizens to participate in the electoral process."

Should Kelley bring suit against the Democratic Party rules, Michigan would be alongside Wisconsin in fighting the rules in court.

THE NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC Party's rules dictate that states must close their presidential primary elections in order for the results to count toward the selection of a Democratic presidential candidate.

Michigan's Open Primary law allows voters to cross party lines when voting in presidential primaries — an act prohibited under the new national Democratic Party rules.

The Michigan Democratic Party has placed an Oct. 1 deadline on the state legislature to comply with the national rules.

Should the deadline pass Monday without the issue being resolved, Democratic caucuses will send delegates to the 1980 Democratic Convention in New York.

"There is a legitimate voting right that would be denied to Michigan citizens under the national rules," a legislative aide to Senator Faxon said.

"You're talking about 700,000 people (the number voting in 1976) being disenfranchised," the aide said.

REP. ALFRED SHERIDAN, D-Taylor, is against having a primary altogether because of the estimated $3 million cost involved and anticipation of low voter turnout.

"About 700,000 (27 percent of those registered) voted in the '76 primary," Sheridan said. "That's down from the '72 primary and we expect even fewer voters in '80."

The Michigan Democratic Party will go into a caucus system unless a closed primary system is decided upon, Sheridan said.

"The caucus system allows the precinct delegates to select delegates to the state convention," Sheridan said. "The state delegates will then elect people to the national convention."

IF THE CAUCUS system is used, Michigan's Democratic Primary in May would be reduced to the status of a "popularity contest" because delegates would have already been selected.

"Under the caucus system delegates have already been chosen by the time we have a primary in May," Sheridan said. Kelley was asked to file suit in a letter from Faust and Faxon.

"This is to request your assistance in proceeding with whatever legal action is appropriate to enforce the provisions of Michigan's Presidential Primary Election Law against the delegate selection rules of the national Democratic Party and the Michigan Democratic Party," the letter said.

"THE STATE OF Wisconsin has gone to court against the national Democratic Committee because they believe it's unfair to disenfranchise hundreds of thousands of Democrats who prefer to be able to vote in a presidential primary without declaring a party preference," Faxon said last week.

Kelley rejects role in annex issue

By SUSIE BENKELMAN
State News Staff Writer

Attorney General Frank J. Kelley will not become involved in a dispute between Ingham County and Meridian Township regarding the East Lansing annexation issue, an administrative assistant said Wednesday.

Ingham County filed a motion Sept. 21 to involve Kelley as a third defendant in a suit filed against the county clerk and the election scheduling committee by Meridian Township.

Visiting Judge Leo Corkin denied the motion Wednesday, leaving Kelley with the option of becoming involved voluntarily.

But, the Attorney General's administrative assistant Patrick Murphy said Kelley will not intervene.

"IT'S A LOCAL concern, Murphy said, "and we will let the plaintiffs and defendants in the case hash it out."

The suit, filed Sept. 7 by Meridian

Township, asks for a permanent injunction to stop the special election for determining whether East Lansing should annex parts of MSU's east campus which currently lie in Meridian Township.

With the current boundary system, parts of Akers, Hubbard, McDonel, Holmes and Owen halls lie in Meridian Township and parts lie in East Lansing, County Commissioner Mark Grebner, a sponsor of the petition calling for the election, said the boundaries cause too much confusion during voter registration.

THE SUIT CLAIMS that County Clerk Lingg Brewer and the election committee were not acting within their jurisdiction when they called for the election.

Brewer was acting under the Charter Township Act in scheduling the election for Nov. 2. Meridian claims he should have followed Michigan Boundary Commission guidelines for scheduling that type of election.

A conflict between the Charter Township Act and the Michigan Boundary Commission will have to be clarified, Brewer said.

Under the Michigan Boundary Commission's guidelines, Brewer would not have been able to call for such an election because he doesn't "represent" the county.

HOWEVER, UNDER THE Township Charter Act, the County Clerk is given that jurisdiction.

Meridian claims the call for election should be voided because it was not called for by a "county, city, township, village or school district."

Brewer said the attorney general "could have responded in a direct fashion" as to which statute he supported.

"We asked for them because we thought it was relevant and still do," he said. "We feel the attorney general is going to be a silent partner one way or another, but we're just not sure who they're a partner of."

DNR: contaminated waste poses no health danger

By KARL BLANKENSHIP
State News Staff Writer

It doesn't appear as though there is a major health danger caused by contamination near two chemical waste disposal sites at MSU, a top Michigan Department of Natural Resources official said.

"Our indication to date shows that there is no real danger to nearby wells," said Jack Bails, chief of DNR's enforcement division.

Another DNR official had said that 50 to 75 sites that may be dangerous to human health exist in Michigan, but Bails said MSU is not one of those sites.

He cautioned, however, that there is still a "big concern" about the sites and that the contaminated material is to be removed.

Meanwhile, a proposal to drill more test wells at both sites will be made by the end of the week, MSU and DNR officials decided at a meeting Wednesday.

Starr H. Keesler, MSU executive vice president, said a proposal to drill up to four more wells at each disposal site should be on his desk by the end of the week.

Keesler added the wells would be drilled as soon as the proposal is approved by the DNR. Whatever new test soils are needed by the DNR will be obtained from those wells.

"Our indication to date shows there is no real danger to nearby wells," Jack Bails, chief of the Department of Natural Resources enforcement division.

It was decided in a meeting last week that more wells would be needed due to shift in the direction of ground water flow.

The new wells will be used to test for any contamination at the sites which were used for several years by the University for disposal of unknown chemicals.

One of the sites is located 600 yards southwest of Jolly and Hagadorn roads, and the other is behind Power Plant 65.

It was also decided Wednesday that all soils excavated at the sites so far will be hauled away as soon as the disposal company can get here to remove it, Keesler said.

However, that may be a while as the firm which will do the hauling is involved with disposing of materials from two Oakland County chemical waste sites, he added.

Palestinian talks flare over territory

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (AP) — Egypt and Israel opened a new round of Palestinian autonomy talks Wednesday, but negotiations soon flared into a table-pounding clash over Israel's policy allowing its citizens to buy land in occupied territories.

Later, the talks went behind closed doors and the mood was described as cordial.

The dispute, in which the United States backed Egypt, underlined the wide gap in the Egyptian and Israeli concepts of self-rule for 1.2 million Arabs living on land seized by Israel in the 1967 Mideast War.

Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil, Egypt's

chief negotiator, charged that an atmosphere of good faith had been shattered by an ill-timed decision on private land purchases, announced by Israel's Cabinet on the first anniversary of the Camp David summit.

The summit, which ended on Sept. 18, led to the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty signed at the White House in March, which in turn paved the way for autonomy talks, now in their sixth session.

The timing was not proper, especially when we were endeavoring so hard to ask other parties, the Palestinians, to join," Khalil said in his opening remarks.

Pope welcomed as artist in Ireland

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Pope John Paul II, himself a poet and playwright, will get a heavy dose of Irish culture and even a pinch of Polish during his three-day visit to Ireland starting this week-end.

Printers are working to rush out a book, Celebration — A Welcome to a Visiting Artist, featuring works of welcome by Irish poets, both Roman Catholic and Protestant, from the Irish Republic and the neighboring war-torn British province of Northern Ireland. The represented artists include Seamus Heaney and Michael Longley, two of Ireland's best known contemporary poets.

The pope himself was an excellent poet, and playwright, so the anthology will welcome him as an artist," said the project's editor, theater director Jim Fitzgerald. This could prove to be one of the most remarkable anthologies ever brought out by Irish poets.

The book is expected to be available in most bookshops by the time the Polish pope arrives on Saturday and will sell for 2.75 Irish pounds, nearly $6. The publication is expected to be gobbled up by enthusiasts to mark the first every trip to the Emerald Isle by a pontiff.

Interracial laws may be changed

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — In a startling turnabout, Prime Minister Pieter W. Botha has suggested changing laws prohibiting interracial sex and marriage — pillars of South Africa's apartheid policy.

Botha discussed both laws during a congress of the ruling National Party in Cape Town on Tuesday. His remarks were published here Wednesday. It was the first time a leader of the white-minority regime even questioned the statutes. The prime minister skirted the issue of whether the laws should be scrapped entirely, saying only his government was open to suggestions for "improving" the legislation. He added that, in his opinion, mixed marriages were undesirable.

But he told the congress no law should be regarded as a "holy cow" and said that he would not tolerate laws which insulted people in South Africa.

Botha's remarks, cautious as they were, surprised critics of the regime's race segregation policies.

Credited troopers told to leave town

JOURDANTON, Texas (AP) — It can cause quite a stir when local officials try to run two men out of town, especially if they are state troopers credited with cutting the county's traffic death rate in half.

At the center of the dispute are Department of Public Safety officers Earl Conaway and Albert Rodriguez, who have been praised by superiors for cracking down on drunk drivers since being assigned to Atascosa County last spring.

But officials in the rural South Texas county charge that the campaign has been accompanied by harassment and abuse of local residents. The officers deny this and say their unpopularity stems more from the fact that Conaway is black and that two of the drivers they have arrested are sons of prominent local politicians.

County commissioners demanded in a resolution last week that the two officers be transferred from the county by Monday. If they are not, the county says it will evict the highway patrol's six-man operation from its county-owned command post.

Ships fill holds with grain as strike ends

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — Ocean-going ships opened their cavernous holds and began gulping grain from filled elevators Wednesday as grain handlers returned to work after an 11 and one-half-week strike that crippled the upper Midwest's farm-oriented economy.

Ships were tied up at all 12 loading berths in the twin ports of Duluth and Superior, Wis., with 14 more lined up in the harbor.

Nearby, lines of grain-laden trucks from Minnesota and the Dakotas began forming to unload their cargoes. Police estimated more than 1,000 grain trucks were backed up on residential streets in Duluth-Superior.

But now it's a battle against time. The backlog of grain must be moved before the big lakes start freezing over.

It was business as usual Wednesday for the first time since July 6, when nearly 600 grain handlers began walking off their jobs at the docks, which normally handle about 7 percent of the nation's grain exports. New contracts, which give grain handlers about a 23 percent raise over three years and $1,000 annual bonuses, were ratified Tuesday.

Scandalous agency tricked by auditors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Financial safeguards at the General Services Administration are so lax that its own auditors were able to trick the scandal-ridden agency into sending a $95,000 check to a fictitious firm for goods never supplied, the chief GSA auditor said Wednesday.

Howard Davis, deputy inspector general for audits, told a Senate subcommittee that GSA auditors obtained the check last July by introducing false information into the agency's computer system in Kansas City.

Davis said the incident demonstrated weaknesses in the agency's payment procedures. He urged tighter controls to assure that checks are sent only to bona fide contractors.

Asked by Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., chairperson of the Senate Judiciary subcommittee on federal contracts, if such a "sting" could be successful again, Davis replied that weaknesses in GSA's financial safeguards create many opportunities for such payments.

However, William J. Rita, GSA finance director, angrily denounced the test as a piece of "theatrics" that succeeded only because the auditors suppressed the very controls they were testing.

PREVIEW OF 1980?

Both Carter, Kennedy to appear

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON — Sounding more and more like rival candidates, President Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy are offering a preview of what it would be like if they clash for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination.

With their rhetoric heating up, the two men planned appearances, timed not to overlap, at a Democratic Party fund-raiser Wednesday.

Kennedy, showing every sign of moving steadily toward a presidential bid, planned to appear at a poolside reception preceding a $1,000-a-plate dinner sponsored by the Democratic National Committee. The senator told dinner organizers that he would skip the meal.

Carter was the featured dinner speaker. Party spokesmen said more than 1,000 tickets were sold for the event.

The president was in New York City on Tuesday for a "town meeting" in Queens, and he used the opportunity to question whether Kennedy would fare any better in Congress than Carter has.

Sen. Kennedy has been in Congress for 16 years," said Carter. "His major premise, his major goal, has been to establish a comprehensive national health insurance policy. . . . He has never gotten a comprehensive national health bill out of his subcommittee. It is not easy."

Kennedy was in Washington speaking to the National Association of Black Journalists and he repeated his criticism of Carter's energy policies.

"We do not have to send the cost of crude oil through the roof by abandoning price controls," the senator said. "The OPEC nations have the power to fix the price of oil they sell us. But why should we give them the power to fix the price of American oil as well at a time when inflation is already running 13 percent here at home?"

In a remark widely interpreted as a reference to the Chappaquiddick incident, Carter said, "We've had some crises where it required a steady hand, a careful and deliberative decision to be made. I don't think I panicked in the crisis."

Carter aides have said the president would not raise as an issue Kennedy's reaction to crisis conditions when he drove a car off a bridge at Chappaquiddick in 1969 resulting in the death of Mary Jo Kopechne.

When asked about Carter's oblique reference to the incident, Kennedy said he did not believe Chappaquiddick would be a decisive issue in the 1980 campaign.

"I think the real issues in 1980 are economic issues — the rate of inflation, rising unemployment and energy," the senator said.

Asked about the recent emphasis from the White House on character and the ability to act calmly in crisis conditions, Kennedy replied, "People can draw whatever inferences they will."

Pollution assault on S.F. Bay worsens

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Tons of sewage released by an explosion at a treatment plant threatened San Francisco Bay from a new direction Wednesday while a devastating spill continued in the southern end of the bay.

The new spill began Tuesday at the Central Contra Costa County sewage treatment plant in Martinez, about 30 miles northeast of San Francisco. An estimated 40 million gallons of partially treated sewage spilled into the Suisun Bay tributary, which empties into San Pablo Bay, which in turn meets San Francisco Bay.

To the south, a 4-week-old breakdown at the San Jose-Santa Clara treatment plant has spilled more than a billion gallons of sewage into the southern end of the bay. The state Fish and Game Department has estimated it could take as long as 10 years for south bay wildlife to recover, but plant manager Frank Belick disputed that estimate.

"The beauty of the bay will be restored" within three months," Belick told the San Jose City Council. Belick has been under fire for not reporting the plant malfunction for nine days.

State and regional pollution officials say the spill has destroyed all the fish and shrimp beds in the southern end of the bay and poses a botulism threat to birds that eat the contaminated creatures or drink the water.

There has been no assessment of ecological damage yet from the smaller Martinez spill.

San Jose Mayor Janet Gray Hayes told the council she felt as if she had been "hit between the eyes by a two-by-four" when she finally heard about the big spill.

That spill had been fouling the bay at a rate of 50 million gallons a day, but the flow was reported down to 20 million gallons Wednesday. Officials say normal operations may be restored at the treatment plant — halting the flow of raw sewage — by Friday.

Fire officials in Martinez said the explosion at the Contra Costa County plant occurred when escaping natural gas ignited in a boiler room, knocking out a concrete wall about 50 feet high and 75 feet long.

No one was hurt and a fire was doused in minutes, but the estimated $150,000 worth of damage hampered equipment that provides secondary treatment of sewage.

Sanitary district general manager Roger Dolan said he expected the flow into the bay to be halted sometime Wednesday and predicted normal operations would be restored this week.

MSU freshman has other goal beyond music recording career

By MOLLY MIKA
State News Staff Writer

Nathaniel Calhoun is releasing an album next month, but the MSU freshman said it is just his means to a political end.

"If people know me from my performances, it will be easier for me to get into politics," said the pre-law major.

"I want to be part of a new breed of blacks who are educated and knowledgeable of laws and the political system," he added. "Black people pop up with little or no education and get on TV and it's a disgrace to my race."

The soul artist, recorded on the TK label, said he is attending MSU to learn how to protect himself from being ripped off by managers.

CALHOUN'S PROFESSIONAL CAREER started last spring while he was in Disney World with his senior class from Buena Vista High School in Saginaw. After hearing the popular recording group The Blue Notes, he went backstage to meet the group and was given the chance to play the piano and sing.

"The group asked me to sign with them on the spot. I wouldn't join the group because of my college plans but we did work out a deal for me to cut a 45 and an album," he said.

Since then, Calhoun has performed as a third act in concerts by the Commodores and Teddy Pendergrass.

Aside from his musical pursuits, Calhoun's long-range goal is to become a civil rights leader.

HE'D WORK FOR everyone — particularly blacks," he said. Calhoun has made contacts with the nation's black leaders, but he does not let it alter his political philosophy.

Even though I'm friends with Jesse Jackson, I have to go against him. He talks about taking care of blacks in South Africa, but he should help the blacks in this country who are living under tin roofs," he said.

Calhoun said most Americans are not aware of these bad conditions nor are they willing to work for change.

"Our generation is so apathetic. They're lazy and they don't like to protest," he said.

"After Martin Luther King, everything has slowed down. It's so complacent. Everyone just wants money."

CALHOUN'S POLITICAL COMMITMENT involved campaigning for Carter in 1976 and serving as a board member of an organization to be formed in Atlanta, Ga., to elect Carter in 1980.

He said he writes to Carter and Kennedy about unemployment and civil rights legislation.

"They listen to me because they know I'm really interested," said the 18-year-old who is politically involved at MSU through residence hall government and Black Caucus.

Small fire interrupts Sigma Kappa rush

Between 80 to 90 women who participated in Greek Rush at Sigma Kappa sorority, 518 M.A.C. Ave. were given a start Tuesday night.

While members of the sorority were entertaining possible pledges at the preference stage of rush, a small candle located upstairs was tipped over starting a fire.

The flames were limited to a tablecloth and extinguished immediately by one of the chapter members before East Lansing firefighters reached the scene, Peggy Kanyuck, sorority president said.

Lansing Art Gallery takes 'art to the people'

The Lansing Art Gallery has begun to take "art to the people." "Art in the Community" now rents works by local artists to area business offices as well as to private individuals.

The works, which include photographs, paintings and other wall hangings, may be rented bi-monthly or purchased on an installment basis.

Representatives will visit business offices with portfolios of the works and assist in proper selection and display.

Artists interested in participating in the program, as well as individuals interested in renting available material, should contact Sheldon Kemp or Pati Brush at the Art in the Community office in the Lansing Art Gallery, 425 S. Grand Ave.

Czarnicki, Wilbur picked

The Lansing Chamber of Commerce announced Wednesday that it supports John Czarnicki and Thomas Wilbur for East Lansing council seats.

Czarnicki, an incumbent, actively supports business expansion in East Lansing and understands the concerns of downtown store owners and customers, said James Kurt, a chamber representative.

The commerce supports Wilbur, Kurt said, because he has a background in both small business and politics.

There are six candidates running for three East Lansing council seats. The other four candidates are Ralph Monsma, ASMSU: busy agenda for '79-80'

By MELANIE J. KOTOWICZ
State News Staff Writer

A petition drive to repeal Proposal D and a walk-out to protest tuition hikes were the subjects of two of several bills submitted to board members by Chairperson Bruce A. Studer at the ASMSU Student Board meeting Tuesday night.

Along with the bills, board members were presented with the plans for a number of project ideas ASMSU has undertaken for the 1979-80 academic year.

A book exchange, an off-campus housing directory and a plan to organize the sale of tickets for athletic events were among the projects proposed.

ASMSU is aware of the hassle students encounter when attempting to purchase football and basketball tickets, Dan Stouffer, assistant executive director of the Student Board, said.

ASMSU IS TRYING to get the method of sales corrected before the basketball season begins, Stouffer said, so students will no longer need to participate in all-night ticket vigils.

The purpose of the book exchange is to give students another method of selling books. Instead of going to a book store, students would be able to sell their texts using ASMSU as a mediator, he said.

The off-campus housing directory is designed to assist the student tenant, almost like a consumers' guide to house renting, Stouffer added.

The directory, which would pertain only to houses, would give location, descriptions and other details about homes available for rent to help students either wish to sublet or rent a room.

Another project underway is to change the color of the campus emergency phone boxes from green to a more noticeable color, such as bright orange.

THE PROJECT WAS prompted by an accident that occurred near Case Hall about one week ago, Stouffer said. A student cut his head open and required stitches, he explained. The emergency phone nearby was completely overlooked by friends who ran into the dorm to call for help.

The color green was originally chosen for the phone boxes because of campus aesthetics, Stouffer said. But for safety's sake, ASMSU hopes to strike a balance between safety and aesthetics, he noted.

With the variety and number of projects and bills the board has to work with board members believe this year should be a busy one for ASMSU.

"We've got students on the board that really care and we're going to try to involve students all over campus as much as we can in our projects," Stouffer said.

ASMSU chief resigns

Chief of the Executive Staff of ASMSU, David P. Quigley, resigned at the board meeting Tuesday night because of "personal-professional" reasons.

"I felt that working together with a friend was jeopardizing a good friendship," he said.

Quigley also said he felt he did not fit well into the organization and that ASMSU would be more productive if someone replaced him.

"I'm more of a doer than a bureaucrat," he said.

Quigley, who worked for ASMSU the past two years, began as a volunteer for the organization in legislative relations.

As Chief of the Executive Staff, his duties were to assist staff members and to insure that they did their jobs.

In the past, the Student Board has accepted applications for the opening position after a resignation, but, the board may decide differently.

Khomeini denounced at campus forum

By KARL BLANKENSHIP
State News Staff Writer

Leftist groups that supported the Ayatollah Khomeini's rise to power in Iran should not be "let off the hook" for that support, a member of the Spartacus Youth League National Committee said Tuesday night.

Mary Jo McAllister, speaking to the Spartacus Youth League at MSU, said the purpose of the series of forums the League is sponsoring this year is to "get to the root of the question why the rest of the left supported Khomeini."

"It is inconceivable to them that a mass movement would back a reactionary regime," McAllister offered as an explanation for other groups' support of Khomeini.

"History offers examples of mass movements which were reactionary," she said. "What was Hitler?"

"WE KNEW AND understood from the beginning that an Islamic government did not stand for democracy."

She said the new system in Iran reflects "7th century Bedouin moral codes," citing examples such as segregated bathing, segregated schools, marrying women off at age 13 and the return of "barbaric punishments."

She added that "gains" Khomeini had brought to Iran included the stoning of unveiled women in the streets, 25 percent unemployment and the fleeing of professionals from Iran.

"We want every woman who was ever stoned for being unveiled, every Arab and every Kurd who is in jail facing execution, to curse these people who brought on their new tormentors," she said.

McAllister said the Spartacus Youth League had never supported Khomeini, but had instead supported a working class revolution that would have met the needs of national minorities.

CONTRARY TO AIDING minority groups in Iran, bringing Khomeini to power only continued the persecution of those groups, she said, citing the situation of the Kurdish people as an example.

She added that the Kurds had been split up into five different countries by the Treaty of Versailles, and have been fighting repression in those countries ever since.

"They renewed their drive for autonomy when they found Khomeini was the substitution of one dictator for another," McAllister explained.

When the Kurds threatened a proletarian uprising by demanding more worker rights and support for non-Persians, McAllister said Khomeini answered the threat with a "blood bath."

"The fruits of this have been the murder of over 600 people," she said. "Well over 100,000 people have been forced to leave the country."

Pre-school children taught motor skills

Most people must wait until the end of their teen-age years to get to college. For 150 youngsters, however, classes at MSU are beginning before they get to kindergarten.

The MSU Department of Health, Physical Education, and Recreation is conducting classes in fundamental motor skills for pre-school aged children, 2-and-a-half to 5 years. The three-term program begins today and is self-supporting.

Coordinator Bev Ulrich said the program has three basic goals: to teach youngsters the fundamental motor skills and locomotor patterns; — to provide a laboratory experience for undergraduates majoring in the family and child sciences; and three — as a research program to collect data on a young child's motor performance.

Before the course begins, each child will be given a private 15 minute pre-test to determine their present abilities. Then, at the end of the class, they will be tested to determine their improvement. During the class, the children will be taught throwing, catching, batting, punting, kicking, running, hopping and other motor skills.

The program consists of 11 different sections, each of which are offered either once or twice a week. Ulrich said many of the sections are already filled. The cost of the once-a-week sections is $22 per term, while the cost of the twice-weekly sessions is $38.

The 2-and-a-half to 3-and-a-half-year-olds must be accompanied by their parents for the first few classes, while the 4- and five-year-olds will be on their own.

Route 21, inbound, will enter the MSU campus from Hagadorn Road to Service, Bogue St. and E. Shaw Lane.

Saturday service on route 21 will be discontinued Oct. 6.

Council examined

Academic governance at MSU has been a controversial subject for many University presidents. It has, similarly, been an aggravation to many students and faculty members within and outside the group. Yesterday, in what can now be characterized as his typical lightning-fast speed, President M. Cecil Mackey went before the Faculty Council with the same plea his predecessor, Edgar L. Harden, offered the group last February: let's look at the system to see if some of the red tape can be eliminated.

The Academic Council, as a whole, has made many "cumbersome and slow" decisions (to use Mackey's words) in the last school year. One of these snail's pace considerations was discussed at the Faculty Council's meeting — the Faculty Grievance Procedure. While the revision to the 1972 Interim Grievance Procedure was approved last February, the document still awaits the approval of Provost Clarence L. Winder. In another instance, the Academic Council approved a motion to support divestiture of University stock from a racist South Africa last October (seven months after the Board of Trustees decided to divest). Then, to complicate matters, a motion was introduced the following month in Academic Council to re-consider the previous motion. In another instance, the SIRS (instructor rating) form controversy took almost a year to resolve, after the Council heard arguments from students — who said professors must be rated every term — and professors — who said they wanted to be rated occasionally. After returning to committee in December 1978, a set of guidelines were devised in late winter, 1979.

When you have a group as large as Academic Council, it is not difficult to see why so little is accomplished. The council has a membership of about 150 people — students, faculty and deans — who are, either by position in the University or by election — entitled to sit in on meetings. While many do not attend meetings regularly, the number is still rather astounding. In addition, Academic Council has a variety of committees, with about a dozen members on each. Some have suggested the Council re-examine the need for so many and such large committees, and distribute the group's academic weight to the committees which serve a normal, on-going function.

More importantly, we urge the group to re-examine its purpose and boundaries within the University. Some have said faculty members must have greater access to Council procedures and agendas than can be provided through their representatives. This places a great task before the Council, for they too, know the must constantly re-examine their methods in order to serve their public better.

Perhaps this could be achieved in part, by exploring academic governance structures at other universities and colleges across the country for new and more expedient methods. We urge the Council to take Mackey's suggestion to heart and begin the awesome task of re-evaluating their effectiveness and speed. We feel certain that if this is achieved, it can only mean a better organized, stronger Council which can guide us through these troubled times as we continually look to the pursuit of knowledge for help.

Surveillance files will be released

"Freedom of expression, freedom of religion, freedom of sexual preferences" are but a few of the slogans chanted in an era which attempts to remove local and the federal bureaucracy from our daily lives. If this is such an enlightened era, then why are reports of the Michigan State Police's now defunct "red squad" so slowly coming to the surface?

A statement issued by the Michigan State Police admits that as many as 40,000 Michigan residents were spied on by the squad sometime during the 1950's to the early 70's. According to police, files were kept on residents once deemed subversive or unhealthy influences on a democratic society. Beginning in the 1950's — amidst the fear and turmoil of the McCarthy era — the squad investigated the personal affairs of thousands of Michiganders. Some of these residents merely harbored attitudes or personal opinions contrary to the popular trend of thought at that time.

In such an enlightened period of American society, we wonder why Michigan State Police are just now getting around to releasing information which was deemed inappropriate almost four years ago. The department may be trying to clear its reputation among Michigan residents, but an incident of this magnitude cannot be overlooked by a mere casual apology and a delayed return of the illegal material.

To add more fuel to the controversy, it is estimated that taxpayers may have to fork out approximately $200,000 to finance the process of contacting the aggrieved and sending them the files. Under no circumstances should the taxpayers have to bear the burden of financing a process of this sort. Though the people spied upon have every right to know what information was gathered, their rights should not be infringed upon a second time. The possibility that private citizen files may be floating around the back room of a police department is bad enough. An already touchy issue should not be compounded. The decent thing for the police department to do now is to release the files to these citizens and continue with the business of safeguarding citizen rights in the state of Michigan.

The police should be commended for their efforts to rectify the situation, but a very important semantical question remains to be settled. Persons notified of past surveillance operations by the "red squad" will be reportedly be sent a copy of all information gathered on them. If these residents are to be sent copies, what will be done with the original files? Before this matter is finally settled, the Michigan State Police have a long road ahead if they are to justify their handling of this situation.

VIEWPOINT: RAPE

Rape Center could guard safety

By JAN LELAND

This year, at MSU, I am optimistic that women students, staff and faculty will have a safer environment and the education they need to prepare themselves for situations of violence.

The MSU Board of Trustees Health Committee is holding a hearing tonight to gather input as to how we can more adequately prevent rape at MSU and how we can provide adequate treatment for those who do suffer rape trauma and physical injury.

Listed below are the medical, counseling, police and educational services which community women feel are needed at MSU:

EDUCATION

- General rape education seminars for all incoming students at orientation, as well as residence hall seminars.

- Pamphlets providing counseling information and preventative information should be available through all counseling, medical, police and housing facilities.

- Self-defense instruction should be available without cost to all women who want to take it.

- Annual in-service trainings should be held for all medical, police and counseling personnel likely to have any contact with victims.

- For consistency a sexual assault center or coordinator position should exist within the University to coordinate education, prevention, medical and counseling aspects as well as for a referral network.

POLICE:

- Special female officers/detectives, specially trained in the dynamics of sexual assault, with education in empathy and counseling strategies, should investigate all sexual assaults brought to police attention and would work closely with medical and counseling services.

- Any police educational presentations should be conducted by such officers specially trained in sexual assault prevention.

- Purchase of the police training film "Reality of Rape" for training and community education purposes.

MEDICAL:

- Olin will provide a specially trained sexual assault crisis counselor on a 24-hour per-day basis to any victim who arrives at the health center.

- The sexual assault evidence kit as supplied by the Michigan State Police should be used wherever medical evidence is collected.

- Rape victims arriving at emergency should be given immediate medical attention and priority, including a private room, counselor and full availability of all lab facilities.

- Rape victims should be examined by a specially trained physician who has experience in sexual assault trauma, presentation of court evidence, who has been designated sexual assault physician and who has a strong interest in rape trauma. The emergency room physician on call should not necessarily be the doctor to examine the victim.

- All medical personnel who come in contact with victims should receive annual sensitivity and special sexual assault education, including common victim reactions, medical evidence and other medical considerations.

- Victims should be informed both orally and in writing of all procedures, tests and alternatives before they are performed. The victim should be told of rights to deny treatment and should also be given follow-up instructions.

- Pregnancy and venereal disease testing should be a part of the medical procedures.

- All emergency room treatment and follow-up should be free to the victim. If the evidence kit is used the tests will be free. Also costs could be covered by a special rape victim's fund at the health center.

- Medical treatment should never be dependent upon cooperations with the police.

- Where available, female nurses and doctors should be utilized because of the specific nature of the rape trauma.

COUNSELING:

- Crisis counseling from a specially trained rape counselor should be available 24 hours per day, through the health center, counseling center or a special sexual assault treatment and education center located on campus.

- Services of the local rape crisis center should be utilized in every sexual assault case, by medical and police personnel, until such a time that the University has its own sexual assault counselors. The center should be financially compensated for its service to the University and procedures should be routine and automatic.

- Special in-service trainings should be held for all counseling center staff in the basics of sexual assault trauma, coping reaction and psychological needs of victims in the long term reorganizational period, since rape victims may be seen by mental health therapists for short and long term therapy, following crisis intervention.

Leland is a master's candidate in social work.

VIEWPOINT: IRAN

Khomeini's bloody terror reigns

By The Friends of Spartacus Youth League

People all over the world are outraged at the wholesale slaughter of those Iranians fighting for democratic rights. Over the past month, the attacks mounted by the Khomeini regime on its left-wing opponents and the national minorities have escalated sharply. Demonstrators are no longer beaten up by the unofficial thugs of the "Imam's Committees," but now face the heavy weapons of the "Islamic Revolutionary Guards" and the ex-Shah's regular armed forces. In August, following mass demonstrations protesting the suppression of the liberal daily Ayandegan, newspapers and offices of the pro-Moscow Tudeh Party, the guerillaist Fedayeen and the fake-Trotskyist Socialist Workers Party of Iran (HKS) were closed down and sacked. However, the biggest mobilization of Khomeini's reactionary repression has been directed against the Kurdish national minority, and has included army troops and the air force launching of a full-fledged reign of terror in Iranian Kurdistan.

Last fall, when hundreds of thousands of Moslem fanatics took to the streets in Iran, we pointed out that Khomeini aimed to institute a theocratic state based on the Koran that would not be qualitatively better than that of the Shah, and indeed might be much worse for women and minorities. We said then: "Down with the Shah! Down with the Mullahs!" This principled stand earned us the enmity of virtually the entire left and the Iranian students here, whose lauding of the "progressive" and "anti-imperialist" Ayatollah was boundless. Unfortunately, these disagreements were not confined solely or even principally to the political plane. Last spring, the SYL sponsored several forums on the situation in Iran, including a tour by Fatima Khalil, a near Eastern communist woman of Moslem origin, entitled "No to the Veil!" The Organization of Iranian Moslem Students conducted a vicious physical assault on one of these forums in Ann Arbor, and it was only because a number of burly trade union supporters of the Spartacist League defened the speaker that the forum was able to be continued. These Moslem reactionaries wanted to do to Fatima Khalil what Khomeini is doing to unveiled women, leftists and national minorities in Iran today.

Similarly last fall at MSU, an unholy alliance of fake leftists and religious fanatics disrupted an SYL forum entitled "Down with the Shah! Down with the Mullahs!". This stupid and undemocratic disruption drew the attention of the campus police, who came, endangering the very lives of those non-citizens present. Though the actions of these left cowards and their reactionary partners very temporarily stopped the event, they could not stop the truth that the SL/SYL alone had the courage to tell.

Today in Iran, Khomeini is carrying out his campaign promises. The bloody repression of women, leftists, national minorities and the working class is a fact of life. All those concerned for democratic rights for the Iranian masses must demand freedom for the imprisoned Kurdish partisans, Arab oil workers, Fedayee guerillas, HKS members and other leftists, and all victims of Khomeini's reactionary terror. Let not anyone forget those fake leftists who claimed Khomeini was a "progressive" alternative to the Shah, who hoped to ride to popularity or power on the coattails of Islamic reaction. They bear the responsibility for Khomeini's bloodletting. In particular, the central aim of the HKS and their American co-thinkers, the Socialist Workers Party, has been to defend Khomeini. The ultimate price for this betrayal — their heads — has not been paid by them as yet, but is being paid by the oppressed masses of Iran every day.

The Friends of Spartacus Youth League is a revolutionary youth organization based on the politics of Marx, Lenin and Trotsky.

Student Council damaged by story

The article, "MSU: Who pulls the strings," (Welcome Week, 1979) contains several errors that discredit the Student Council, a group that attempted to represent students in academic affairs.

As a member of the 1978-79 Student Council, I cannot recall any meeting where we did not have quorum, though the reporter writes, "The council rarely got a quorum together last year, as students wrote in at-large candidates like Earvin (Magie) Johnson to represent them." Johnson was not a member of the '78-'79 council; he was elected to the '79-'80 council.

Thus, the "student voice" is not "effectively stifled, in this case, by the students themselves." Admittedly, Academic Council is a cumbersome, slow-acting group at times, but students try to maintain an active voice. During the last academic year, students raised many objections to the complete elimination of SIRS (student ratings of instructors), along with helping revise the procedure. A student first moved that the Academic Council support the divestment of South African related stocks. Two students served on the Presidential Search and Selection Committee during its long search. Students constantly stated their opinions and, in general, served conscientiously on the University committees to present a student viewpoint.

The main difficulty students face in maintaining an active and meaningful voice in University affairs is the quick turnover in student representation. Faculty and administrators serve on the Academic Council and various committees for several years, learning all the ins and outs of academic processes; students serve limited terms of a year or two.

Until students become involved in Academic Council in their first year at MSU, they just must work harder to have an effect on the University. And articles which present an incorrect view of student representation do not help increase student participation.

In a history making 13-hour operation, a team of surgeons at Harper Hospital in Detroit, reattached the right hand of Todd Nadeau, of Northville, following an accident in a factory Sept. 8. Since that date, Todd has undergone five more operations involving skin grafts. The X-ray behind shows his severed hand.

Cager's hand reattached

By JOANNA FIRESTONE
United Press International

DETROIT — The hand of a 17-year-old high school basketball star, severed in an industrial accident last month, has been successfully reattached, doctors at Harper Hospital said Wednesday.

Todd Nadeau, of Northville, a senior at Catholic Central High School, cut off his right hand with a power saw Aug. 8 while working at his summer job.

The hand was reattached during a 13-hour operation by a team of six surgeons, headed by Dr. Robert Larsen.

Nadeau, who is expected to leave the hospital Thursday, has undergone five skin grafts since the hand was reattached, and still faces "a minimum of four pretty good operations," Larsen said.

LARSEN WAS UNABLE to predict how much of its original function will return to Nadeau's hand.

"His youth is in his favor. The severity of the injury is not,"

Larsen said.

"It certainly will be better than if he had not had the hand at all, but never as good as prior to his injury. Within that range, it's pretty hard to come down to anything precise."

Nadeau, a 6-foot-3 starting guard on the Shamrocks basketball team, is hopeful he will be able to play again this year.

"All I gotta do is move it a little bit," he said. "I'm a left hander."

"If it doesn't hurt, I'll be out there. I'll give it my best shot."

NADEAU, WHO FOR two years was a wide receiver on the school's football team, was cutting aluminum when the accident occurred. His boss, Jim Belanger, grabbed the severed hand and packed it in ice before rushing him to the hospital.

Larsen said Nadeau was in surgery within three hours of the accident.

Although the hand itself was cleanly amputated, Larsen said it appeared the youth jerked his arm back from the saw because his forearm was "badly mutilated."

Doctors grafted one artery and three veins in Nadeau's hand and arm, taken from his leg.

Two days after the hand was reattached, Larsen said, the hand began "going sour", and Nadeau was taken back into surgery, where one artery and three veins were regrafted.

LARSEN SAID HE believes Nadeau will be able to play basketball again.

"He's highly motivated and wants to go back very badly," Larsen said.

Lawyers draw up suit to keep major cereal companies intact

BATTLE CREEK (UPI) — Attorneys for Calhoun County and the city of Battle Creek Wednesday began drawing up a lawsuit aimed at preventing the Federal Trade Commission from breaking up the nation's leading cereal makers.

In a special early morning meeting, the county commission approved $5,000 in matching funds to join in a federal court suit to be filed by the city. The suit will force the FTC to complete an environmental impact study before it goes ahead with its shared monopoly suit against Kellogg Co., General Mills and General Foods.

The suit — which was expected to be filed before Oct. 2 — was believed to be the first of its kind.

The FTC claims the three companies unfairly monopolize the cereal market, and is seeking to break them up. Such action could cost grain millers 2,600 jobs nationwide and 1,500 jobs in Battle Creek alone.

"THIS WOULD ABSOLUTELY devastate the county's economy," county Commissioner Bess Jordan said. "We feel it's about time the federal government started listening to the local people."

"If they go forward with their hearings, then they need to hear from the people it would directly affect. They so often forget about us," she said.

"We are very happy they are on our side of the issue," said Ralph Davis, a Kellogg spokesman.

person. "The greater the output of noise, the greater the possibility of being heard."

Jordan said breaking up the cereal makers would not only deprive 1,500 workers of their jobs at Kellogg's and the Post Division of General Foods, but would also force layoffs in related industries like paper, glue and grain.

"THIS COULD PUSH our unemployment rate up three or four points," Jordan said. Unemployment in Battle Creek usually runs about 8 percent. Some 141,000 persons live in the county.

"Our job market is our environment," Jordan said.

"We think an economic impact study is justified."

Juilliard Quartet returns

By WILLIAM BARNHARDT
State News Reviewer

Perhaps the most enviable thing about reviewing the Juilliard String Quartet is the complimentary set of tickets one receives from the MSU Chamber Music Series. Well, think about it. America's foremost chamber music ensemble is not likely to be anything but perfect, the group is incapable of making a mistake, and the music is never less than the composer's conception. That leaves the reviewer (like this reviewer) in the unoriginal position of raving and coughing up superlatives and confessing to being totally overwhelmed (like this reviewer will proceed to do).

The world-renowned Juilliard String Quartet performed their first of three visits on the MSU campus to a sold-out Fairchild Theatre last night — sadly for some, the other two performances — one in January and the other in May — are sold out as well. The evening began with the Haydn Quartet in D (Opus 20, No. 4), the sweeping Hungarian "Sun Quartet" in four parts, perhaps the most advanced string quartet written in the 1700s in its use of syncopation and domination of the cello. Joel Krosnick, the cellist and the group's newest member (1974), commandeered the minuet with eloquence against the frenetic gypsy fiddling of the trio.

Alban Berg's avant-garde Lyric Suite moved the quartet through a musical obstacle course. Rapid movements of different speeds in various musical directions, drifting in and out of melody — sometimes slow and atonal, approaching familiar harmonies only to lose them; sometimes fast and hysteric, transforming violist Samuel Rhodes and second violinist Earl Carlyss into percussionists, grating and sweeping their bows across the strings. Amid the desolate tenuous line of melody, first violinist Robert Mann — the founder and only original member of the quartet — demonstrated the limits of performance, saving the instrument to discord in one measure, and then instantly restraining the music to a refined poignancy — an excellence 20th century music requires for it to be understood.

But then excellence has always been this group's trademark. It was the first string quartet to perform in Russia, while being easily the most popular American quartet (4,000 sold-out performances), and perhaps the most acclaimed (Grammy Awards in 1971 and 1978) — it is the Juilliard String Quartet that all others must be compared to.

After intermission, the foursome soothed the audience with Brahms' Quartet in A minor (Opus 51, No. 2), the most well known of Brahms' quartets and his most polished. As I complacently

Varda's feminist movie on-campus

"This film is about women, men, work, music, love, marriage or not, children or not, and friendship," says writer-director Agnes Varda at the beginning of her film One Sings, the Other Doesn't.

Lauded by Judith Thurman in Ms. as "a valuable, clear and passionate film about the coming of age of women," and ridiculed by Pauline Kael in The New Yorker as "a cheery, educational feminism-can-be-fun movie," the 1975 French film is being shown on-campus tonight and tomorrow night by Classic Films.

One Sings, the Other Doesn't chronicles the friendship of two young women — one of whom composes and performs songs — from the early sixties to the mid-seventies. Varda, through concentrating on the relationship of Pomme (Valerie Mairesse) and Suzanne (Therese Liotard), meant to illustrate some of the moral, political and feminist changes of the last two decades.

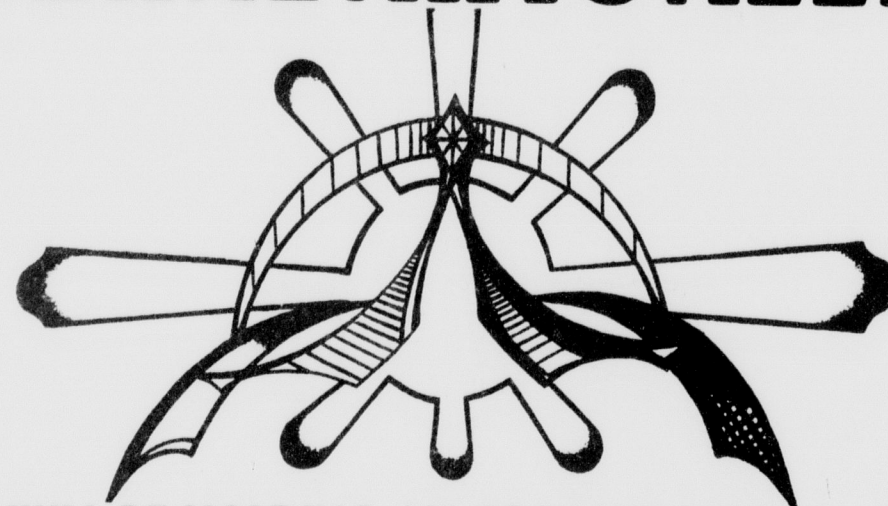

The New York Post's

Judith Crist, for example, called the picture "... a handsome movie-movie, guaranteed to be all things to all women and most men ... a blend of fact, fiction and feeling — the stuff of life ...". Kael, however, dealt more harshly with Varda's film: "(Varda is) a lively, sophisticated film technician who thinks that this ode to superficiality is poetic truth ... If a big American advertising agency had been given the job of devising a feminist film to offend the smallest number of people, this mindless, cosmetic movie is exactly what it would have come up with."

Agnes Varda's One Sings, the Other Doesn't is in French with English subtitles. Classic Films is showing the picture tonight at 8 p.m. in 109 Anthony, and tomorrow night at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. in 100 Engineering. Admission is $1.50 — $1 for those holding an RHA pass.

Rock at the Rainbow

My first encounter with any of the bands in the Michigan new wave rock 'n' roll scene was Destroy All Monsters, a dreadful group from Ann Arbor. Although the band includes illustrious personnel from such '60s Michigan greats as the Stooges and MC-5, Destroy All Monsters has often been labeled "Destroy All Music" by people unfortunate enough to sit through one of their sets.

Destroy All Monsters prejudiced me against the Detroit Ann Arbor new wave scene for quite some time, and — excluding the Romantics, the Mutants, Sonic's Rendezvous, and a few others — I concentrated more on the east coast and the music across the Atlantic. That was until I saw Johnny Thunders & the Heartbreakers at Bookie's last June. Opening the show for the Heartbreakers was a Detroit-based band called Coldcock.

Coldcock is a great rock 'n' roll band, and my favorite of all the recent Detroit bands I've encountered. With a powerhouse line-up and a lead singer who resembles a shell-shocked Iggy Pop, the band interspersed their own satirical originals with Ramones-like high energy covers of the Stones' "As Tears Go By," the Animals' "We Gotta Get Out Of This Place," and J. Frank Wilson's classic teen tragedy, "Last Kiss."

Coldcock will be appearing at the Rainbow Ranch tonight, fresh from recent triumphant gigs in Boston and Chicago. Opening the show will be two other Detroit bands — the Denizens and the Radiators — both of which have excellent reputations. Doors open at 8 p.m., and the cover is $3. See ya there.

Virgil Fox to perform

Virgil Fox, the world-renowned showman of classical organ, commences the MSU Lively Arts Series next Tuesday (Oct. 2) at 8:15 p.m. in the MSU Auditorium. Fox will be bringing his famous Allen electronic organ — one of the world's most complex and demanding instruments.

Fox has played nearly every major organ in most of the world's greatest cathedrals, including Canterbury, Westminster Abbey, Notre Dame in Paris, and the Thomaskirche in Leipzig, where he was the first non-German to be invited to play where Bach himself had performed. His concert performances have included Lincoln Center, Carnegie Hall, a sold-out Kennedy Center, and even a packed Fillmore East where he played his "Heavy Organ" concert to 2,500 flower children.

Fox is also a master showman, communicating Bach — his specialty — to every type of audience with spectacular keyboard dramatics and his trademark long black cape. Tickets for Fox are on sale at the Union Ticket Office for $8.50, $7.50 and $6 for the general public, while students can purchase tickets for $4.25, $3.75, and $3 with an I.D.

reclined in my previously uncomfortable Fairchild seat, drawn into the slow minutes followed by the sweeping romantic waltz of the final movement. I abandoned the task of saying anything new about the Juilliard String Quartet, feeling lucky just to see them.

Overflow stage seating for the quartet will go on sale at 7:30 p.m. the night of the other performances at the box office.

Wait a minute with expansion—just 'a nice thing to talk about'

Rumors have abounded the last couple of days surrounding the issue of an expansion of Spartan Stadium.

Reports floated in earlier in the week to the effect that the home of the MSU football team will have its capacity raised from the current 76,000 to upwards of 100,000. Such a move would make it and Michigan Stadium in Ann Arbor the two largest college-owned football stadia in the country. Moreover, these stories had construction on the new seats completed within two or three seasons.

Well, wait a minute now. Not so fast. MSU athletic director Joe Kearney has cleared up some of the confusion on the matter.

"It's a nice thing to talk about," the boss of the MSU athletic department said about the possibility of building new seats in Spartan Stadium. "But chances of it becoming a reality are real remote.

"We would only think about adding seats if we sold all of the tickets for all of our games for the next five or six years and at the same time, we had a sizeable amount of people that wanted to get in to see the games," Kearney continued.

ADDING EXTRA SEATS would be a big risk for MSU to take. Kearney estimated that the construction job would cost at least $20 million and that it would take years to pay this debt. If the athletic department goes ahead and builds the seats only to watch them go unfilled, it will do a lot of harm to the entire program.

So, Kearney says MSU would have to be sure they would be able to fill the seats before this plan to add seats becomes a reality.

"The worst thing that could happen is for you to be overbuilt," Kearney said. "It's better to have your stadium full and have 10,000 people knocking on the door trying to get in."

Joe Kearney

To back this up, he cited the case of a major university with one of the largest football facilities in the country. "They rarely sell out because they have such a large stadium and as a result people don't feel the need to buy a season ticket because of seat availability," he explained.

THE SEASON TICKET is the backbone of ticket sales for a college football team. What Kearney is saying is that if the extra seats are added, not only is it possible MSU may not be able to fill the new seats, but season tickets may drop off because people won't buy tickets for all of the games when they may have wanted to see only a few of the games in the first place.

Kearney also brought up the case of the University of Notre Dame, the school that hosts MSU Saturday. Notre Dame Stadium holds only 59,000 fans and the Irish have sold out all homes for years on end. But for the same reason that MSU fears, the Fighting Irish have not expanded their stadium.

Isn't all the talk about spending millions of dollars on the football stadium a little out of line when MSU sorely needs a new basketball arena?

"I would never recommend action on that (new seats for Spartan Stadium) until we build a new arena," Kearney answered. "A new arena is still our first priority."

A much better idea all the way around. For MSU to remain competitive in the Big Ten in basketball, the Spartans are going to have to ditch ancient Jenison Fieldhouse. And according to rumblings from MSU people in high places, the ball will be rolling soon for plans for a new arena.

Now if we could just have a new arena and some extra seats for the football stadium...

It happened to secretaries first. Then lawyers, bookkeepers, waitresses, cabbies, housewives, and businessmen succumbed to the beauty of our Pilot Razor Point and Fineline pens.

Some people felt it was sick to get so emotionally involved with our pens. But is it really so crazy to love a Pilot Razor Point pen that writes with a sharp smooth line and costs a mere 79¢? Is it nuts to flip over its unique little metal collar that smartly helps to keep its point from going squishy?

If it is crazy, it's going to surprise a whole lot of people. In fact, we understand that Pilot Razor Point even has what it takes to score extra points with football players.

It also comes to our attention that many coaches are fans of the Pilot Fineline.

Spikers open with easy win

By BILL TEMPLETON
State News Sports Writer

The MSU women's volleyball team combined talent with intelligence Tuesday in defeating Grand Valley State Colleges in its opening match of the season.

The spikers, trailing 3-0 early in the first game in the best-of-five game match, dominated the Lakers with a number of brilliant offensive combinations and defensive tactics in winning by scores of 15-5, 15-9 and 15-2.

"We called a timeout in the first game when we were down 3-0 because we were unsure of our order," said head coach Annelies Knoppers. "But we got things straightened out after that and played well."

Following the timeout, MSU fought its way back to a lead of 5-3, before losing service to GVSC.

WHEN THE SPARTANS got the ball back following the next rally, however, sophomore Nona Richardson temporarily took things into her own hands as she served nine consecutive points for the Spartans.

Game two was marked by a number of very well-played rallies by both teams as points were traded equally throughout most of the game.

Just as in the first game, however, there was one stretch which MSU clearly gathered momentum and used it to defeat the Lakers.

Two key blocks by sophomore Eve Zurawski and a diving save to set the ball up by Richardson were the turning points in the tightest game of the match.

Game three was clearly no contest as junior Sheryl Knipsel

We did things in this match that we'll have to use later in the season.

—MSU coach Annelies Knoppers equalled Richardson's performance from game one and reeled off nine consecutive service gems.

"We played our own game," said assistant coach Nancy Steel. "We adjusted to the way they were playing and then turned things around and tried to force them to adjust to our style of play."

"We experimented with a lot of things we didn't count on in this match," Knoppers said. "We did things in this match that we'll have to use later in the season."

LAKER HEAD COACH and MSU graduate Joan Boand admitted that Grand Valley "needs a lot of practice" and that they have a problem with the amount of time they receive to practice.

"Our gym was recently condemned and we have to drive a half hour to practice," Boand said. "We have some good players, they just need work."

"MSU has a fine team this year but they made some mistakes in this match. When they get those problems ironed out she'll (Knoppers) have a good team."

Steel commented on the style of play which the Lakers used and was pleased MSU maintained such good control of the match.

"They set the ball up further back on the floor but no matter what, we were never on our heels," Steel stated. "You need control to run the kind of plays we ran and that's a plus that we had in this match."

MSU faces the University of Waterloo tonight at 6:30 in the IM Sports West Arena and Knoppers admits it will be a different match.

"They'll be smarter and more offensive minded than Grand Valley was," Knoppers said. "They'll hit more, block more and tip more but if we keep pace the way we did against Grand Valley, we'll be O.K."

Leading the field is MSU's Martin Schulist as teammates Michael White and Mark Mesler keep pace. The trio captured the top three places in the Spartans' 18-41 season-opening win over Eastern Michigan University Tuesday. Mesler crossed the finish line first followed by White and Schulist.

Harriers fly past EMU for season-opening win

The MSU men's cross country team placed five runners in the top seven spots to take an easy 18-41 season-opening win over Eastern Michigan University Tuesday.

The Spartans' super sophomores of Mark Mesler, Michael White and Martin Schulist finished 1-2-3, respectively, on MSU's home circuit at the Forest Akers West Golf Course.

Mesler's winning time of 25:17.7 over the five-mile course was well ahead of the rest of the field. White was clocked at 25:34.9 followed by Schulist at 25:36.6.

Senior Keith Moore lost a battle with EMU's Maurice Weaver for fourth place, finishing in 25:44.0 to Weaver's 25:43.1.

The Hurons' Dan Shamiyeh followed Moore across the line in 25:49.5 for sixth place. Shamiyeh and Weaver were the only EMU runners to finish in under 26 minutes.

Junior Tim Kerr finished the scoring for MSU by capturing seventh place in 26:02.3.

EMU put runners across in the ninth, 10th and 12th spots while MSU junior Ted Unold and freshman Todd Snow took the eighth and 11th places, respectively.

The Spartans' next action is Saturday when they host Kent State University.

Good morning. How's your feet?

You kept them up late last night didn't you? And now they don't feel so good.

You should put them into a pair of Rockports.

Rockports are your feet's idea of a good shoe. Comfortable. Very, very comfortable. Because we don't make men's and women's shoes to fit certain price ranges. We make them to fit feet. We're funny that way.

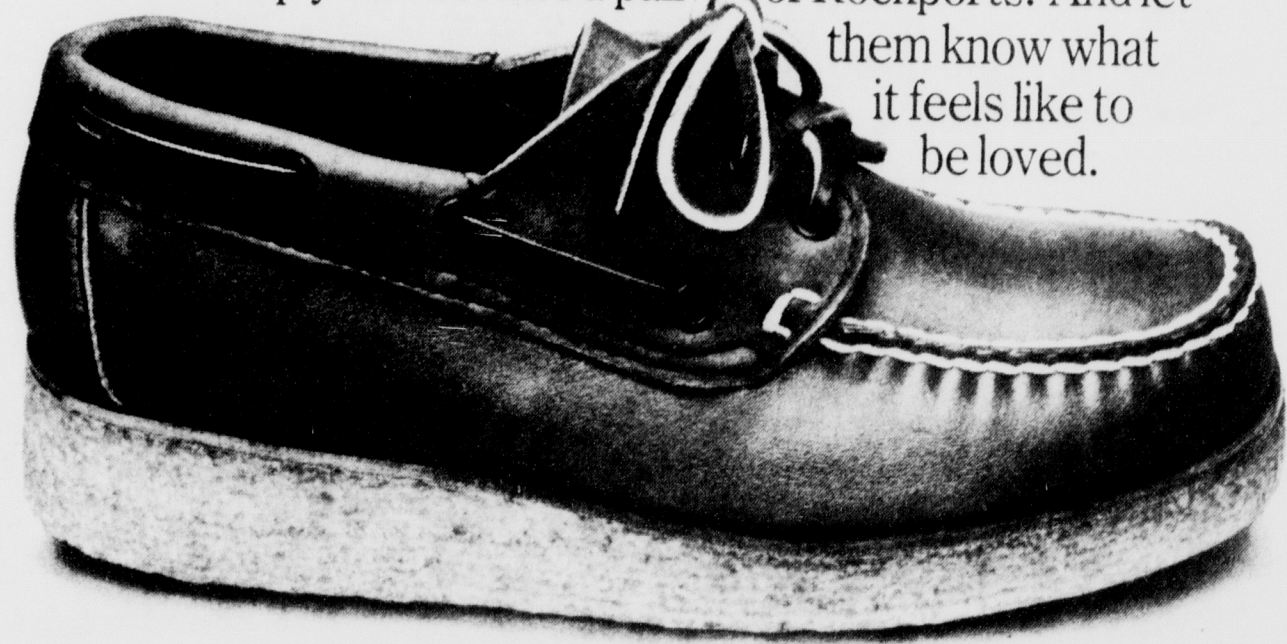

For example, our shoes are stitched by hand. Because even the best machines can't stitch as well as people.

And the sole isn't one big hunk of crepe.

It's at least eight separate layers. This makes our sole softer. More flexible. Easier on your feet.

Slip your feet into a pair of Rockports. And let them know what it feels like to be loved.

Feet have feelings, too. R Rockport

House passes Canal bill

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The House passed and sent to President Carter on Wednesday a bill to carry out final details of the treaties that will eventually give control of the Panama Canal to the government of Panama.

House members had turned down a similar measure last week. But they approved the bill 232-188 after backers of the treaties argued that defeat might bring chaos in Panama. The Senate approved the legislation Tuesday.

The treaties, which take effect Monday, will end U.S. possession of the Panama Canal, which slices across the Central American country and connects the Pacific Ocean with the Caribbean.

Carter and Panamanian leaders already had signed the treaties and they had been ratified by the Senate.

THE BILL, NOW headed for certain signing by Carter, establishes a new U.S.-controlled commission that will operate the canal until, under the treaties, the Panamanian government takes full control of the waterway on Dec. 31, 1999.

House defeat of the canal legislation last week was an embarrassment to Carter, who is sending Vice President Walter F. Mondale and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance to Panama on Monday for ceremonies marking the end of U.S. possession of the canal.

Prior to Wednesday's vote, Carter personally telephoned treaty opponents and House leaders, appealing for approval of the bill.

Panamanian officials reacted cautiously. Diogenes De la Rose, a top Panamanian treaty adviser, said in Panama City that passage was a "positive act," but that he wanted to read the legislation to "see if the law corresponds to the spirit of the treaties."

He noted that the Panamanian position "has been that we would enter the Canal Zone Oct. 1 whether there was implementing legislation or not."

IN DEBATE BEFORE Wednesday's final vote, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill told his colleagues the canal is regarded by Latin Americans as "the apple of American imperialism" and urged them to approve the bill as the final step in carrying out the treaties.

"We'll keep our word," O'Neill said. "I think it's going to be a friendlier Western Hemisphere."

The bill's floor manager, Rep. John M. Murphy, D-N.Y., told the House that rejection of the bill could spark violence in Panama.

Ticket picked

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — A Belgian driver gave a lift to a pickpocket and was glad he did, the newspaper De Standaard has reported.

The driver was driving at 81 mph on the expressway from Leuven to Liege when police stopped him for speeding. After giving the driver a ticket and checking the car's lights and tires, the officers let him go on his way, the newspaper said.

The driver then heard his passenger say: "Don't worry. You won't have any ticket," and handed him the officer's ticket book, explaining: "I just left jail. I am a pickpocket."

HARRY BELAFONTE

Tuesday, April 8

The Belafonte mystique is many things. There's the voice, "crystal-pure and tender as an Irish blues singer's." Belafonte is a recording artist

(33 albums to date), a concert singer, Broadway TV - Film star, friend to the meek and the mighty, humanitarian. A musical evening with Harry Belafonte is an unforgettable experience.

Canal bill

"A timebomb is ticking away . . ." Murphy said. "We have one week before we might face chaos in Panama."

Murphy said troops from the 75th U.S. Army Ranger Brigade at Fort Stewart, Ga., were headed for Panama and implied that their purpose was to strengthen U.S. defenses against possible violence if the canal bill was rejected again.

"I DON'T THINK we have to draw pictures," Murphy said. "They're going down there not for appeasement, but to re-enforce American units if we don't act responsibly today."

But the Pentagon denied that the troops were being sent to Panama to guard against potential anti-American violence. A Pentagon spokesperson identified the unit as the 1st Battalion of the 75th Infantry and said the troops have been in Panama since Saturday on "a routine training operation."

The troops are undergoing jungle warfare training at Fort Sherman on the Atlantic side of the canal, the spokesperson said.

Maj. Sam Floca, an Army information officer, said the battalion had been scheduled to train in Panama "during this time frame for more than a year."

How To Get A

Job In Alaska

Even If Totally Unskilled Start At $1,020 Weekly

Anchorage, Alaska (Special)—Jobs in Alaska are now among the most highly paid in the world. And by high paying we mean big money—$1,020 to over $1,600 a week, plus room and board, either free or at nominal cost. The key to all this is overtime—plenty of it. If you don't mind working about 70 hours a week at a relatively unskilled job, $12 to $19 an hour with time-and-a-half and even double time adds up to those big fat checks you've always dreamed about. So no matter whether you can run a dozer, weld, handle a shovel, fly a helicopter or even wait on tables, local and multinational corporations will be quite eager to forward transportation. And that is where we come in. We are the experts on the companies who are hiring. We developed the ALASKAN EMPLOYMENT KIT, a complete instruction manual and directory listing 1,320 current employers in the Arctic. Plus sample inquiry letters, resumes, application letters with pre-printed labels and procedures. And the jobs will go to those who know where and how to apply. This kit can be obtained by sending $9.95 cash, check or money order to ALASKA EMPLOYMENT, Dept. 15-2, 894 National Press Building, Washington, D.C. 20045. On COD's add $1 goodwill deposit (deductible). Keep it for 90 days. If for any reason you do not obtain Alaskan employment within that time, or are not satisfied with the employment offered, simply return the ALASKAN EMPLOYMENT KIT and your money will be refunded promptly and without question. Do not delay. Tear out this message as a reminder. Send for your NO-RISK copy today.
