Milliken proposes $158.5 million for MSU

By TIM SIMMONS
State News Staff Writer

A total appropriation for MSU of $158.5 million was proposed for fiscal year 1980-81 by Gov. William G. Milliken Monday, an increase of about $12.5 million over last year's recommendation.

The suggested appropriation to MSU was part of a $4.9 billion proposed general fund budget for the state which will result in the elimination of nearly $200 million in existing state programs, Milliken said.

Although Milliken recommended a total MSU appropriation of $146.8 million last fiscal year, the Legislature trimmed that figure to $146.1 million in actual funding. Traditionally the Legislature appropriates more money to the University than the governor recommends.

The total recommended appropriation to MSU is distributed among three separate branches — general fund, Agricultural Experiment Station and Cooperative Extension Service.

Milliken slated $133.7 million for MSU's general fund, an increase of $10.8 million over last year's appropriation.

The state appropriation for the general fund makes up only a part of the total University budget. The general fund also consists of tuition, gifts and grants. This year the University had requested a $230.7 million general fund budget.

Milliken's general fund recommendation includes continuation of $1.98 million appropriated in fiscal 1980 to support the operation of MSU's clinical center.

In addition to the general fund Milliken also made his recommendations for the Agricultural Experiment Station and the Cooperative Extension Service.

About $12.9 million was recommended for the Agricultural Experiment Station, which is an increase of $843,297 although the University had requested a $3.1 million increase.

The Cooperative Extension Service received a recommended appropriation from Milliken of $11.9 million. The recommendation represents a $782,635 increase, falling short of the $3 million requested by the University.

"Governor Milliken Recommendation obviously recognizes Michigan State University as having high priority in a time of very severely constrained state budgets," MSU President Cecil Mackey said.

"Given the pressing needs which must be met to maintain the University's position as a high quality land-grant institution the coming months will be a time of very intensive budget planning. University officials will work closely with the Legislature and its staff as the Legislature reviews the governor's recommendations," Mackey added.

Milliken's suggested appropriation to MSU was part of $52.8 million increase to all four-year colleges and universities in the state.

The 8.4 percent increase was based on a formula used by Milliken where the maximum increase an institution could receive would be 9.5 percent.

"Clearly in the absence of the details of the governor's proposals and prior to any indication of legislative reactions to it, it is impossible to determine its precise impact on the University's programs," Mackey said.

"Our objective is to produce a budget which will support maximum educational services at the lowest possible cost to our students."

Americans favor Olympic pullout or moving Games from Moscow

By EVAN WITT

Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans narrowly favor the United States pulling out of the 1980 Summer Olympic Games in Moscow because of the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan, the Associated Press NBC News poll says.

The poll was conducted Thursday and Friday, before President Carter announced he was asking the U.S. Olympics Committee to withdraw from the Summer Games if Soviet troops are not withdrawn from Afghanistan in a month and the Games are not moved, postponed or canceled.

Forty-nine percent of those who know of the Afghanistan situation said the United States should not participate in the Moscow games, but 41 percent disagreed. Ten percent of the 1,595 adults interviewed across the country by telephone were undecided.

While the margin in favor of withdrawal is small, the public would overwhelmingly support efforts to move the Olympics out of Moscow, the poll found.

ABOUT TWO-THIRDS — 66 percent — of the Americans who have heard of the Afghan crisis favored moving the Games out of Moscow. Twenty-six percent opposed such a move and 8 percent were undecided. Such a move has been discussed by various officials in the United States and elsewhere, but Olympic officials say a shift is not possible because of the complicated logistics of the Games.

After the Soviets moved thousands of soldiers in Afghanistan in late December, Carter announced a series of actions against the Soviet Union, including a partial embargo on shipments of grain, an embargo on computers and other high-technology items, and consideration of withdrawal from the Summer Games in Moscow.

Overall, Americans back President Carter's efforts to deal with the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan. But they still do not think Carter has been tough enough in dealing with the Soviets.

On the more direct question of whether the United States should refuse to compete in the Moscow games, the public opinion is split.

THOSE WHO FAVOR withdrawal argue the Soviets must be punished for the Afghanistan intervention and that withdrawal of the U.S. team would be a severe blow to the international prestige the Soviets hoped to win through hosting the Games. Opponents of withdrawal argue that the Olympics must be kept above politics.

Asked directly about the Afghanistan crisis, 9 percent of those questioned said they had not heard of it.

Forty-nine percent said they approved of Carter's action in response to the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan. Thirty percent disapproved and 12 percent were not sure.

On the specific topic of the embargo shipments of U.S. grain to the Soviets, 80 percent of those who had heard of the Afghanistan crisis back the embargo. Sixteen percent were opposed and 4 percent were not sure.

By an even larger 87-10 margin, they backed Carter's ban on shipments of U.S. high-technology items — such as computers and machinery — to the Soviets.

DESPITE SUPPORT for Carter's actions, 56 percent of the public said he had not been tough enough in his dealings with the Soviets, with only 38 percent saying he had set the right tone. Two percent said he had been too tough and 4 percent were not sure.

That finding was changed only a bit from September — before the Iran and Afghanistan crises — when 56 percent said Carter was not tough enough, 31 percent said he set the right tone, 1 percent said he was too tough and 12 percent were not sure.

That perception could help explain why public approval of Carter's action on Afghanistan is lower than approval of his actions on Iran.

Carter has retained the backing of the public on the Iran crisis, although his failure to win the release of the Americans taken hostage Nov. 4 in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran has eroded his support.

Fifty-six percent of the public approves of Carter's action on Iran, down from 69 percent in mid-December. Thirty-eight percent now disapprove of his actions, up from 21 percent in the last AP-NBC News poll. The remainder in both polls were not sure.

JUST AS APPROVAL of Carter's handling of the Iranian crisis boosted his ratings from the lows of mid-1979, frustration over a lack of freedom for the hostages has eroded the public's judgment of his work overall.

Thirty-eight percent gave Carter good or excellent ratings for his work overall in the latest poll. That was down from 45 percent in the mid-December AP-NBC News survey. Forty-four percent gave him an "only fair" rating last week, compared to 41 percent last month. Sixteen percent rated his efforts poor, up from 12 percent. Two percent each month were not sure.

As with every sample survey, the results of the AP-NBC News poll can vary from the opinions of all those with telephones across the nation because of chance variations in the sample.

For polls with 1,595 interviews, the results should vary no more than three percentage points either way simply because of sample error.

'U' attorney files motion for new Hildebrand trial

By DEBBIE CREEMERS
State News Staff Writer

An MSU attorney filed a motion Monday for a new trial in the University's appeal of a federal court jury decision ordering the reinstatement of John R. Hildebrand, a former associate professor of social science.

Leland Carr Jr., University attorney and vice president for legal affairs, said he presented a motion to the U.S. District Court of Western Michigan asking the judge to rule in the University's favor or hold a new trial.

The federal jury in Grand Rapids ruled Jan. 5 that Hildebrand's first amendment rights were violated by his 1969 discharge from MSU. The jury ordered that Hildebrand be reinstated and awarded $249,292 in back wages and $100 in punitive damages.

A hearing scheduled for today by U.S. District Judge Wendall A. Miles to enter judgment on the verdict, was postponed until Feb. 6, Kenneth Laing, Hildebrand's attorney, said.

Laing said he was not surprised by the motion, calling it "a fairly routine procedure." He added he did not know if the motion would even be considered.

"The judgment may be a little complicated as is, because the computation of interest in back pay and the University's social security contribution were not submitted to the jury," Laing said.

"What's two more weeks after 10 and a-half years?" Hildebrand said in reference to the postponement of the judgment.

Carr said the decision will be appealed to the Sixth District Court of Appeals in Cincinnati after judgment on the verdict is heard.

Hildebrand was denied tenure in 1969 and filed two unfair labor practice charges with the Michigan Employment Relations Commission. MERC rejected the cases in 1970.

He then tried to file a suit in state courts, but was refused.

In 1971, Hildebrand filed suit in federal court against the MSU Board of Trustees and five University officials, charging denial of the constitutional guarantees of freedom of speech and due process of law.

In October 1974, a jury was selected to hear the case. After a five-day hearing, the jury reached the verdict that Hildebrand should have been granted tenure and should be reinstated with back pay.

However, Miles decided the jury's ruling would be advisory and that he would make the final decision.

Two and one-half years later, in March 1977, Miles ruled against Hildebrand.

Hildebrand then appealed to the Cincinnati court of appeals and last year the court ruled he was not given a fair trial. The case was sent back to Grand Rapids for a new hearing.

The jurors decided Hildebrand's First Amendment rights had been violated by Clinton A. Snyder, MSU professor of social science, and Douglas Dunham, then chairperson of the Department of Social Science. However, the court also ruled that Hildebrand's 14th Amendment rights had not been violated.

Hildebrand's back pay was calculated by giving him the average salary a professor of social science was earning since 1969, when Hildebrand was dismissed. Snyder and Dunham were ordered to each pay Hildebrand $50 in punitive damages.

Iranian jet liner crash kills 132

By United Press International

An Iran Air domestic jetliner crashed and burned in the snowbound hills north of Iran Monday, apparently killing all 132 people aboard, an Iran Air spokesperson in Tehran said.

The airline spokesperson reached by phone from New York, said there were 120 adult passengers, plus four infants and eight crew members on the flight.

The West German news agency, DPA, reported that rescue teams had reached the burning hulk of the Boeing 727 jetliner near a military base and that "they doubted if anyone had survived the crash."

The Iran Air spokesperson in Tehran said the jetliner was on a domestic flight from the northeastern city of Mashad, and that communications were lost "about 15 minutes out of Tehran."

It was snowing heavily in the Elbroz mountains, where the plane plummeted, at the time of the crash, DPA said.

DPA reported that Revolutionary guards and rescue troops immediately began to extricate bodies from the burning fuselage.

In its report out of Tehran, DPA quoted an Iran civil aviation authority communiqué as saying the plane lost radio contact with Tehran airport at 7 p.m. local time, as it was coming in for landing.

The revolutionary guards, sent to search for the jetliner in the pathless mountains near the military base at Lasgharak, 18 miles north of the capital, found the wreckage five hours later, the state radio said.

When located, the plane still was ablaze, the radio said in its midnight broadcast.

Eyewitnesses from the Lasgharak military base said they heard a heavy explosion as the plane crashed, followed by enormous balls of fire that catapulted into the dark winter sky, the radio said.

Soviets airlift new troops

By The Associated Press

The Soviet Union has mounted a transcontinental airlift to pour fresh Soviet combat forces into Afghanistan, replacing local troops who are deserting "like so many disappearing soda bubbles," diplomatic sources in Pakistan said Monday.

U.S. intelligence sources in Washington estimated that Soviet dead, wounded, captured and missing in the war against anti-communist rebels might now total 2,000.

Foreign journalists reported from the Afghan capital of Kabul that Moscow has also sent in thousands of Soviet administrators to take firm control of the government, whose communist bureaucracy was hit hard by two years of bloody in-fighting.

The new Afghan interior minister, meanwhile, said former President Hafizullah Amin was overthrown in a coup on Dec. 27 because he had been plotting with Moslem fanatics and the CIA to end Marxist rule in Afghanistan.

THE MINISTER, SAYED Golabzoi, speaking at a news conference, claimed Amin had planned his power play for Dec. 29, Associated Press Correspondent Marcus Eliason reported from Kabul. The new regime has claimed repeatedly that Amin was a CIA agent.

The Soviet troops who began arriving in Kabul in big numbers Dec. 25 helped topple Amin two days later and replaced him with Babrak Karmal. Both men were Marxist, but Karmal was regarded as friendlier to Moscow. Since then the Soviets have joined in the war against anti-communist Moslem rebels.

'U' divests remaining South Africa stocks

MSU divested the last of its stock in the racially segregated country of South Africa on Jan. 3, 1980.

Divestiture was completed when stock in Eli Lilly and Co. was sold for $826,500 — at a profit of $30,450 for the 14,500 shares involved.

In March 1978 the MSU Board of Trustees passed a resolution to withdraw

The firms involved included: Coca-Cola Co., PepsiCo Inc., General Motors Corp., Citicorp, Upjohn Co., Dow Chemical Co., Eastman Kodak Co., Ford Motor Co., IBM Corp., Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co., Exxon Corp., Xerox Corp. and Eli Lilly Co.

Stocks held in three other companies — Borden, Inc., Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. and International Telephone and Telegraph — were gifts to the University and were endowed with instructions not to be sold,

If the trustees were to sell all the stocks at once they certainly would have been challenged legally for not acting prudently. — Steve Terry, MSU assistant vice president of finance stocks from all companies with business ties in South Africa by the end of 1979.

The divestiture process, which lasted 13 months, was designed to show moral opposition to the "apartheid" policy in South Africa which endorses separate development for Blacks and Whites.

THE PROCESS, WHICH affected 13 stocks held by the University, was allowed to cover an extended period of time to take advantage of shifts in the stock market.

thereby making them exempt from divestiture.

The sale of the stocks was handled by Seudder, Stevens, and Clark, the University's investment firm.

By October 1979, 10 of the stockholdings had been sold. The action resulted in a profit of more than $279,000 at that time.

Soviets airlift troops

The sources in the Pakistani capital of Islamabad, who asked not to be identified by name or nationality, said Monday that the airlift had been going on for several days.

They said the new troops were being flown in from bases in Eastern Europe and that they apparently were to reinforce — not replace — the Russian forces already there. An estimated 76,000 to 80,000 Soviet soldiers are in Afghanistan.

THE AIRLIFT COINCIDES with reports from Afghan rebel sources and Asian and Western diplomats in Islamabad that Afghan army troops are deserting by the thousands.

"It's reliable information," said a Western diplomat in Pakistan.

"We are getting a large number of reports that the Afghan army is just evaporating — disappearing like so many soda bubbles."

Two Afghan insurgent groups with spokespersons in Pakistan claimed late last week that 4,000 Afghan soldiers from an army division based at Nahrin, in Baghlan province 120 miles north of Kabul, defected to the rebel side with their arms.

Diplomatic sources say there have been numerous similar reports.

"What's happening is that the Afghan army is suffering such rapid desertions that the Soviets are reaching the point where there will be no indigenous forces to rely on," said one Western diplomat.

The desertion reports cannot be independently verified, although it was clear even before the Soviet intervention that many soldiers were abandoning the government army.

State Department spokesperson Hodding Carter said the latest intelligence indicated severe winter weather and rebel attacks had kept the Soviets from reaching isolated garrisons of the Afghan army in northeastern Afghanistan, where the heaviest rebel resistance is reported.

Despite their efforts to unite, however, the various, tribally based rebel groups remain "badly coordinated," a West European diplomat in Islamabad said.

Oklahoma rioting

IDABEL, Okla. (AP) Shopkeepers toted rifles, many businesses were closed and schools were virtually empty Monday following a night of "shooting, rioting and burning" that left two people dead and four wounded in this southeastern Oklahoma town of 10,000 residents.

"The situation is very tense and we are extremely apprehensive about what might happen tonight," said Larry Bowles, an inspector for the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation.

About the only people seen in the downtown area Monday were state troopers and police from surrounding communities. About 140 extra officers were called in to help restore order when hundreds of blacks rioted following the shooting of a 15-year-old Black girl near a private club for Whites.

The rioters set fire to the club, shot out store windows, ripped up gasoline pumps and vandalized businesses before order was restored at about midnight.

Only 25 of 500 students showed up for classes at the local high school on Monday. Superintendent Woodrow Holman said attendance was equally sparse at the junior high and three elementary schools.

Soviets puzzled by Olympic politicking

By STEVEN R. HURST

Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — President Carter's call for international action to scuttle this summer's Moscow Olympics left Soviet citizens baffled Monday.

"I think he must have been just in a fever when he made this decision," said a factory superintendent from the western Soviet city of Brest. "I don't think he was thinking when he was talking."

The man, who refused to give his name, was in Moscow on business and was shopping at the "Podarki" Olympic souvenir shop on busy Gorky Street.

"I don't see any relation between Soviet troops in Afghanistan and the Olympics," said a woman shopper nearby.

In a television appearance Sunday, Carter said that if Soviet troops did not withdraw from Afghanistan within a month the Summer Games should be moved from Moscow, postponed or canceled. If none of these steps is taken, he said, the United States should not send a team to the Games.

THE SOVIET PRESS carried no immediate report of Carter's remarks, but many Russians, who have been preparing for the Olympics for years, learned of the U.S. threat from Western radio broadcasts or from the English-language Radio Moscow world service.

"I would advise him (Carter) to think about our children," the man from Brest said, referring to the growing chill in relations between the two nuclear superpowers.

Nelli Khromova, manager of the store, said Carter's move was "groundless."

"We are peace-loving country. We have always been on friendly terms with the American people. The statement of our government and that of General Secretary (Leonid I.) Brezhnev is correct."

"We do not want war. And besides, I think the Olympic Games will be held in Moscow in any case," she said.

A Russian army colonel, also shopping, at first refused to comment, saying he was not allowed to talk to foreigners.

But then he said, "It is impossible to connect the Olympic Games with events which are now taking place in the world."

He said he had not heard about the Carter television appearance earlier.

THE FIRST EXTENSIVE official reaction came in a Tass commentary late Monday. The official news agency accused Carter of holding athletes and sports "hostages" — again despite the fact that of late Carter has repeatedly denounced the use of hostages for the attainment of political ends.

"Sports and politics are two different things," said Vadim Zagladin, a senior member of the Communist Party Central Committee.

Carter proposes new Iran relation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, outlining a modest array of new initiatives for the election-year Congress, asserted Monday that "restraining inflation remains my highest domestic priority."

In a 75-page written State of the Union message, Carter also pointed to Soviet intervention in Afghanistan as posing a threat "to the entire subcontinent of Asia," and declared:

"We must pay whatever price is required to remain the strongest nation in the world."

While decrying the continued holding of U.S. hostages in Iran, Carter said his government would welcome "a new and mutually beneficial relationship" with Iran once the prisoners were freed.

"We have no basic quarrel with the nation, the revolution or the people of Iran," Carter said in what amounted to an oblique suggestion that the two countries make a fresh start in assessing their relations.

The president, who plans to emphasize Soviet-American relations in a shorter State of the Union address he is to personally deliver to Congress on Wednesday night, reiterated his support for eventual ratification of the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty with the Soviets, calling it "the single most important bilateral accord of the decade."

The fate of the SALT II treaty has been in doubt since the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan, which led Carter to embargo grain shipments to the Russians and halt sales of high-technology equipment.

In the realm of domestic policy, Carter promised a "responsible, restrained budget" and said he would "be limiting my major new proposals to a critical few," in part because Congress plans a shortened election year session.

But the president suggested that action on his new initiatives, coupled with enactment of past proposals, "can help to ensure stable prices and economic growth, a return to energy security, an efficient, responsive government."

with the University's stock in Xerox, worth $145,350.

The 19,268 shares sold in Exxon netted $77,072. The 2,550 shares of Xerox stock gained $6,120 for the University.

Steve Terry, assistant vice president of finance, said MSU could not legally sell stocks "without an alternative investment with at least comparable risk, profit and diversification."

"If the trustees were to sell all the stocks at once they certainly would have been acting legally for not acting prudently," Terry said.

Glenn Oesterle of Mason takes a close look at the works of 19th century craftsman John Brown Walker. The exhibit of Walker's paper cutouts will be on display in the MSU Museum until March 29.

State News/Tony Dugal

Kresge exhibits 1800s cutouts

By WILLIAM CORNISH

The work of a 19th century cutout artist who lived in the Lansing area for 8 years will be featured at the MSU Museum until March 29.

John Brown Walker's works were collected by two Burton, Ohio, sisters, Helen Hotchkiss Coats and Hilda Hotchkiss Hosmer, both personal friends of Walker.

The cutouts brought to MSU by Burton resident Jeanne Harrison Meyer and MSU Museum folk art project directors Marsha MacDowell and Kurt Dewhurst.

Before the advent of photography in 1840, paper cutouts were a popular way of recording events. After that, however, cutout-making declined because it was more costly and time-consuming.

Walker's cutouts were mostly letters and family records, intricately designed with jackknives and razor blades, given to people he met in his travels throughout Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Michigan.

Cutouts were his life work. Walker survived by living with different people, and by doing farming and other chores for them.

Walker, who nicknamed himself the "Wellwisher," established many close relationships in all four states, two of which were with Coats and Hosmer.

"There are some parallels between the cuttings of Walker and decorative work of the Pennsylvania Dutch areas," Dewhurst said. "Birds, hearts, angels and geometric, floral, and heraldic devices were popular in Pennsylvania Dutch."

Most of Walker's cutouts were in the shape of hearts, maple leaves and fuschia plants, Dewhurst said.

Walker also made family records and certificates, a few of which have survived through the ages, as well as the fancy designs on his letters.

"Some of Walker's work, such as the 'briaded' letters and small presentation pieces, was made for a private or locally defined audience," Dewhurst said. The handwriting on most of his work has faded over time, but what remains is revealing of Walker's character, he added.

In one letter dated July 1880 to "Hattie," the mother of Coats and Hosmer, Walker wrote:

"Tell Pa that I have been thinking about the Darned Oats until I have concluded I would rather cut paper. But tell him I would sooner cut them than have him cry."

In a letter he wrote from Okemos June 3, 1902, Walker said:

"I drifted a few years ago into Lansing. I stayed at the Lansing Hotel for over 3 years. I then moved to the Coope Hotel in North Lansing, staying there until I grew tired. I am now at Okemos, the historic home of Okemos the Indian Chief whose tribe has become extinct or emerged into others. You will confer a great favor on me by informing me of your wellfare etc., who of my old friends are yet living. To you I send respects, J. B. Walker."

Walker died Nov. 12, 1908 in the Ingham County Poorhouse.

Lansing secretary shot in neck

A secretary for the Michigan Department of Agriculture was shot Monday morning by an acquaintance in an office on the fifth floor of Lansing's Lewis Cass Building.

Vicky Harris, 21, of 3207 Maloney St., Lansing, was treated and released from St. Lawrence Hospital for a superficial wound to the neck, a hospital spokesperson said.

The suspect, Jimmy Allen, 26, of 910 N. Larch St., Lansing, surrendered to Lansing police at about 11 a.m. Monday. Allen was charged with assault with intent to commit murder and with possession of a firearm in commission of a felony, police said.

Police said Allen is being held in Lansing city jail on $55,000 bond and will face a preliminary examination Feb. 6 in Lansing District Court.

Police said the assailant entered the building at about 9:30 a.m. carrying what some witnesses thought was an umbrella. The man was carrying a .22 caliber rifle, reportedly wrapped in plastic, police said.

Upon learning where Harris worked in the building, the assailant reportedly walked into the office, shot her once and fled.

Harris remained conscious and was treated at the scene by Lansing Fire Department paramedics, and was then transported to St. Lawrence Hospital.

Police said Allen drove to a relative's house after the shooting and then left the house with the relative to give himself up.

Before reaching the Lansing Police Department, police said, Allen and the relative spotted a Lansing police unit and surrendered to them.

MSU a leader in Peace Corps volunteers

By ANNA BROWNE
State News Staff Writer

More MSU graduates have joined the Peace Corps since 1975 than any other university in the country, according to a recent report from ACTION, the federal agency for volunteer service that administers Peace Corps.

Approximately 258 people have gone to work as volunteers in over 60 countries in Asia, Africa and Latin America after graduating from MSU.

Steve Howard, MSU ACTION recruiter, said he thought the reason for the high number of volunteers was due to the agricultural, technological and international interest the University has developed over the years.

"Not many universities have recruiters on campus," Howard said. ACTION was willing to recruit and the interest was here, he added.

"THERE ARE A lot of volunteers (at MSU) because of the general international commitment the University has," Howard said. "It is one of the most active universities in world commitment."

MSU's current first-place position reflects the University's growing interest and concern for the needs of developing countries and the successful matching of those needs with the University's academic programs in agriculture, engineering, the social sciences and humanities, Howard said.

The MSU graduates currently serving in their two years overseas with the Peace Corps represent majors such as political science, zoology, biology, advertising, and others.

Howard said MSU maintains close contact with the Peace Corps. There are approximately 300 former volunteers on campus, faculty and staff, as well as graduate students.

"Every year MSU has faculty teaching overseas in developing countries," he said, "and this really reflects on the student population when instructors come back and relate their experiences."

THE PEACE CORPS was founded in 1961 by President John F. Kennedy to share the talent, technology and enthusiasm that existed in the United States with the newly independent and developing countries of Asia, Africa and Latin America.

In the first 15 years of its existence, Peace Corps attracted 1,136 MSU graduates into its ranks — the seventh highest total among universities.

"MSU is a real leader in the area of international development," Howard said.

Persons interested in further information on the Peace Corps can contact the African Studies Center, 100 International Center.

The 'PBB era' and its lessons

After nearly seven years, Michigan's nightmarish brush with PBB appears to be nearing an end. With the approval last week of a comprehensive PBB testing and cleanup proposal, the Senate Environmental and Agricultural Affairs Committee has effectively echoed the sentiments of farmers, environmentalists and public figures who demand that the state take final action to rid itself of PBB contamination. If passed, the measure could be the state's most valuable tool in bringing the "PBB era" to a long-awaited close.

If there is a lesson to be learned from the events of the past seven years, it is that a small measure of toxic substances prevention is worth millions of dollars — and untold consequences for human health — in cure.

The Senate committee's proposal would direct the state Department of Agriculture to complete testing for the toxic fire retardant in 998 untested cattle herds and appropriate an estimated $1.35 million for cleanup of 22 highly PBB-contaminated farms around the state. It is, to be sure, only a minuscule portion of a burdensome tax levied as a direct result of governmental and private carelessness.

Hindsight, as the popular saying goes, is 20-20, but the state's experience with PBB could provide us with a great deal of useful foresight in future encounters with toxic chemicals. Given the astronomical costs of dealing with chemical contamination after the fact, it follows that responses should take the form of long-range preventive measures rather than the hasty case-by-case remedies of the past.

To date, the state's response has been encouraging. Certainly programs such as MSU's Toxicology Research Center are indicative of an awakening to the drastic consequences of public lethargy, and the state is undoubtedly more bold than it used to be in prosecuting chemical offenders. But a smattering of successes cannot be allowed to lull Michigan lawmakers into a state of blind assuredness. Ironically enough, the only positive benefit of the PBB era may have been a heightened awareness of the consequences of complacency.

Boycott entails future problems

International support for the U.S.-sponsored move to stage next summer's Olympic games somewhere other than Moscow could not have come at a better time for the Carter administration. In less than a month since the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, America has gained Third World support and respect, which has lately increased in value faster than the price of gold. Now the countries have given unequivocal support to an Olympic boycott. The worldwide tilt of support toward the United States appears to be burgeoning, but for the wrong reasons.

Carter and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance have given the Soviets a clear cut ultimatum, threatening to pull out of the games unless the Soviets pull out of Afghanistan within the next month. Their position naturally reflects the same anti-imperialist views of Third World countries, but may be espoused only for that reason. Carter's response to the Afghanistan invasion boosted his ratings in the polls more than any other single issue, at a time when support for Sen. Edward Kennedy had already declined. In light of the arguments that detente is dead, the president may feel there is no risk in canceling Olympic participation, since there is no sense in continuing to maintain amicable relations with a country that is willing to use the policy of detente as a means to an end.

If such an easy answer were possible, then the argument for a policy based on long-term U.S.-

Soviet relations would have no credence. But existing in the testy issue of boycotts is the nightmare of consequence — what shall we do after cold war relations have further cooled? The same thinking, one of restrained reason, was largely responsible for preventing an invasion of Iran, where the stakes were obviously much higher. The taking of hostages understandably antagonized us more than a violation of detente. Yet our actions have been tempered with caution, if for no reason other than our aversion to taking a stance we may want to back out of later. Regardless of what happens in the hostage crisis, we are still going to buy oil from Iran if we need it.

The Soviets cannot offer nor deny us as valuable a commodity. What they can do is intimidate us, as opponents of the SALT II treaty have shown. Can we intimidate them with such symbolic gestures as grain embargoes or Olympic boycotts? We think not. In fact, our attempt to threaten the Soviets with a pullout appears even weaker when the U.S. Olympic Committee, which has final say in the matter, is still opposed to mixing sports with politics.

Presently, support for a boycott is at an ebb. Several countries have expressed support for the idea, although the hope for an uninterrupted Olympiad is still probably everyone's vision, including America's. That optimism may spur a new restraint of action, involving more consideration of long-term consequences before we go ahead with moving the games.

Paradox of an education

Paradox, according to Webster's New World Dictionary, is "a statement that is self-contradictory and, hence, false." It is the perfect word to describe an imperfect situation in which many journalism students find themselves.

Students come to MSU ripe out of high school and naive about college, particularly about the School of Journalism (J-School). They think good grades are of utmost importance, until they are told otherwise.

During a brief indoctrination service into the department and the journalism courses they will take, students are told that the nature of their major is different from that of other majors.

Unlike science or mathematics, fields in which book work is crucial, journalism students hear that their major is a "practical" one and can only be learned through "real life work in the field."

Experience, they hear, is the real key to success. J-School instructors engrave in students' minds that without a bulging stringbook (collection of published articles) graduates will never land a job.

Fellow students, faculty and advisors preach the same sermon.

Dedicated students live diligently by the gospel, but not without making sacrifices. They learn quickly that much time and work must be invested in their publications.

Often at the cost of better grades, journalism students cultivate their stringbooks. They accept a "B" instead of an "A" in a course, satisfied that in the end their "work in the field" will lead them to a victory.

However, this is where the paradox comes to life, affecting journalism students, alumni and faculty.

In the quest for experience, my colleague works diligently on a newspaper for three years and attains a respectable position on that publication.

Having followed the J-School preachings, my colleague rests assured that all her hard work will lead to the big payoff.

But to some within the department, the proven successes of this student were not sufficient. They desired more.

Searching for a job, my associate finds that experience truly is not enough to pacify J-School standards.

When newspaper interviewers came to MSU, she was sifted through the screen of applicants solely because her grade point average was slightly below the department's preference.

My colleague learned the hard way (at the expense of a possible job) that the tune which the J-School teaches, and the one that they follow, is to the beat of a different drummer.

A journalism graduate recently experienced a similar paradox. The tune he heard sung by the J-School was the same my colleague heard.

Throughout his MSU years, the former journalism student worked non-stop writing press releases for a prestigious government agency. Undoubtedly he learned a lot from the professionals.

However, time donated to writing at the Capitol was time away from studying. Hence, the former student's grade point average was less than perfect.

Although his government experience was invaluable both to him and his current employer, the same people that once heralded his "practical experience" suddenly cast another light on his situation.

When applying to the J-School's graduate program, he, too, was eliminated on the basis of a low grade point average. Like my colleague, this graduate exemplifies the paradoxical preachings of the J-School.

One possible plus point (?) for the department is that they seemingly do not discriminate between students and instructors.

J-School faculty are also victimized by the department's contradictory actions.

Within the past two years I have had courses taught by instructors who have been or are soon to be "released" from their jobs because they do not have doctoral degrees.

They, too, have "worked in the field," both as journalists and educators. Apparently, the only criteria on distinguishing them from their employed colleagues is a certificate proving that others have spent more time in class studying.

Perhaps, too, these instructors fell easy prey to the J-School paradox because they actually believed the "tune of experience" they professed to their students.

J-School intentions are undoubtedly honorable in the sense that the school employs only the most qualified faculty. However, it seems strange to me that individuals originally hired on their merits in the field could suddenly be released on their alleged shortcomings.

By no means am I stating that good grades or an educational degree are unimportant in journalism. I don't think this is true in any career. However, I do think that in fields such as journalism, practical experience is of the utmost importance, and grade point averages and degrees should be a secondary concern.

I wonder what John Milton's grade point average was.

Some final reflections of Cofer

It's hard to believe that someone so full of life, love and decency is no longer among us except, of course, in memory.

My memories of Lloyd "Pops" Cofer are as positive and meaningful as the profound importance he played in the shaping of Black students whom he helped to realize a dream.

I remember the first time he spoke to us, one night in a study hall in Detroit's Northwestern High School. He and "Doc" Norrell talked about our strengths, our commitment to learning, our gleam that seemed to say "yes I can make it, I do want the opportunity to try."

His smile was our security, his words altered our destiny, his presence provided the direction. Somehow an obituary column in the back of The State News seemed to lessen the importance of his contributions. Yet, it did speak appropriately to many of his deeds. Yet, so many of his efforts will never be realized, hundreds of Black students who never knew he existed have him to thank, though they may never suspect why.

But those of us who were there at the beginning, who weathered the storm of adversity and transition, those of us who felt as foreign to MSU as MSU did to us will remember how he did so many of those little things that were necessary to our success. He did these things without fanfare, without ceremony, and without self-aggrandized adulation. He did them because he was made that way.

I don't like the idea of his being gone, but I can't change the reality. I confessed to a friend how much of my dismay comes from knowing that he'll never see me finish my education. My friend replied, "Lee, perhaps it's not important that he see you finish, perhaps it was only important that he saw you begin." Thank you, Cofer.

Issue not in proper perspective

This letter concerns a recent State News article pertaining to the Delta Tau Delta Multiple Sclerosis Dance Marathon.

We feel that it is unfair and selfish of Dan Jones and Ben Lowery to protest their rights as gays against this charitable event.

The point of the dance marathon is to raise money for Multiple Sclerosis Society, not to form a battleground for gay rights.

From their action, they are influencing a possible withdrawal of the desperately needed sponsors, i.e. Miller Brewing Co. and the Michigan Multiple Sclerosis Society.

Delta Tau Delta has annually put forth a great effort to help this needy and well-deserving cause. We are personally neutral about Jones' and Lowery's sexual preferences, but do not feel this is the right place for them to challenge the "social standards."

We encourage Jones and Lowery to withdraw their charges against the Delta Tau Delta MS Dance Marathon before their ignorance and selfishness take disastrous effects on this humanitarian event.

Legal justice is absent at MSU

Disgust is the best word I can think of to describe my reaction when I read about the decision not to prosecute the three Case Hall resident assistants who were caught with stolen refrigerators.

There seems to be an exception to the law in this case because of their previous "fine service" as MSU employees.

It does not seem to matter here that possession of stolen property worth over $100 is a felony.

If these women are guilty, prosecute them.

Why is everyone so concerned with letting these women resign so it will look better on their records? Is the good standing of their records really the issue?

I'm sure it was embarrassing for them to resign and leave the residence hall, but is that really punishment?

I am strongly in favor of having justice done on this campus. What that means to me is fairness to everyone and equality in dealing with student affairs. If these resident assistants are guilty, then they, as MSU students, ought to be held responsible for their actions.

The next time I get a lecture at a floor meeting about students' negligence costing the University so much money in damages, I will remember this case. People were found actually stealing from the University and dismissed in order to preserve their fine records.

U.S. bombers eye Indian Ocean

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States said Monday B-52 aircraft are flying surveillance missions in the Indian Ocean and Arabian sea.

It was a clear signal to the Soviet Union of U.S. military capability over the oil tanker lifeline to the West.

For the first time, the administration disclosed it has sent several of the large bombers which make up the backbone of America's strategic Air Force to the area.

The use of the bombers on surveillance missions clearly signaled to the Soviets that the United States is capable of sending B-52 bombers on military missions to the Middle East and southwest Asia.

The bomber version of this aircraft is the one which would carry nuclear weapons on bombing runs against the Soviet Union.

Defense officials said that the B-52s carried no nuclear bombs but they were careful to leave the impression that the aircraft may be carrying other kinds of weapons.

The officials refrained from saying when the B-52s flew out to the Middle East. But they stated they were not using any Middle East facilities but rather were taking off from U.S. bases elsewhere. Those bases would likely be in Germany or Spain.

Canada expels three Soviets

OTTAWA (UPI) — Canada expelled three Soviet diplomats for spying Monday and said the case also involved a U.S. government official "in a sensitive position" who sold American secrets to the Soviet Union.

The Soviets were expelled from Canada for using Ottawa as a base for espionage activities against the United States, External Affairs Minister Flora MacDonald said.

The expulsions were ordered on the basis of a Royal Canadian Mounted Police inquiry supported by the FBI.

"The case," MacDonald said, "involved a United States citizen employed in a sensitive position in his own country. He was in contact with the Soviet embassy in Ottawa and was paid by the embassy to obtain classified information."

"With the cooperation with the FBI . . . the RCMP determined that over a period of some 16 months these Soviet officials met clandestinely with the U.S. citizen."

Test-tube Mammoth researched

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviets hope to create soon, through the test-tube and for study only, a live 12-foot-tall mammoth of the type that became extinct thousands of years ago.

Soviet scientists say they have begun a program to create the mammoth by using cells from original creatures to conceive a similar animal in the laboratory.

"Under the right condition, in 18 to 20 months the world could see its first artificial baby mammoth," said Viktor Mikhelson, a Leningrad scientist involved in the project.

The test-tube mammoth, scientists admit, will be a difficult project. They say they plan to use techniques similar to those that created "test-tube babies" in the West, benefiting from the almost perfect condition of pre-historic animal tissue preserved for centuries in the frozen Soviet Far East.

The goal is to produce a living mammoth about 12 feet tall — a kind that became extinct 10,000 years ago — for scientific study. Scientists have not yet decided where they will keep their mammoth if they succeed, but Mikhelson said Monday that "this will be the least of our problems."

Georgia Senate vetoes ERA

ATLANTA (AP) — The Georgia Senate voted 32-23 Monday to defeat a proposal to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment, handing the controversial amendment its second defeat in Georgia for five years.

The vote came after four hours of debate in the Senate, where the ERA was hailed by supporters as "the heart of democracy" and criticized by opponents as legally unnecessary.

State Rep. Cathey Steinberg, a leading supporter, said its backers had not given up on the Senate and would move for reconsideration on Tuesday.

She said she was pleased with the "sensible" debate, which she said stayed closer to the issues than in 1975, when the Senate defeated the proposal 33-22.

The ERA, which would outlaw discrimination based on sex, must be ratified by 38 states by June 30, 1982, to become part of the Constitution. The original deadline of March 22, 1979, was extended by act of Congress.

It has been approved by 35 states, but five have since rescinded approval. The validity of that move still is in question and the Justice Department has said it is up to Congress to decide.

Russians endanger Iran border

(AP) — Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said Monday that Iran's "own borders are in danger" because of the presence of Soviet troops in Afghanistan.

A broadcast tape of the Super Bowl football game was delivered, meanwhile, to the occupied U.S. Embassy for listening by the American hostages in the 79th day of their captivity.

Ghotbzadeh, a candidate in Friday's presidential election, said Iran was "ready to render every assistance for putting an end to the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan."

"... We condemn the Soviet danger to Iran and in order to safeguard the interests of our country we should take decisive action on the Soviet threat because now our borders are in danger," he was quoted as saying by the official Pars news agency.

MSU researchers study Hispanic media

Four MSU researchers from the Department of Communications have started the first large-scale study to examine Hispanics' use of the media. The researchers have received a $119,000 grant from the Gannett Co., Inc. to perform the year-long study among Hispanics in Texas, California, Arizona and New Mexico.

"This will be original data — a study like this has never been done before," said Bradley S.

Greenberg, chairperson of the communications department and a member of the research team.

The other MSU faculty involved are Judee K. Burgoon, and Michael Burgoon, research consultants to Gannett, and Felipe Korzeny, an expert in Hispanic media use.

Preliminary studies have shown a difference in content preferences, and the use and image of the media in the Hispanic community compared to the majority population, Judee Burgoon said.

The study, therefore, is designed to define Hispanics' attitudes toward, use of and interpretations of the media, Greenberg said.

"The results will be of great academic interest and would be of help to local newspapers, radio and television stations," Burgoon said.

The researchers have begun the study by interviewing the publishers in the different sites to be studied.

The study will include more than 2,500 subjects to be interviewed personally or by telephone, Burgoon said.

The study will involve interviewing Hispanics and non-Hispanics of all ages.

"We will be dealing with high school students and elementary students as well as adults," Greenberg said.

The researchers will be aided by a National Advisory Panel consisting of representatives from the Michigan Commission on Spanish-Speaking Affairs, National Council of La Raza and the National Association of Spanish Broadcasters.

Wrestlers beat Northwestern for fourth win in five meets

By JIM MITZELFELD
State News Sports Writer

The MSU wrestling team continued its hot streak last Saturday as the Spartans won for the fourth time in their last five meets.

The Spartans increased their dual meet record to 6-4-1 with a 31-11 win over Northwestern University.

Much of the momentum needed for the win may have come from a courageous effort by Jeff Thomas.

Thomas, who wrestles for the Spartans at 134 pounds, knocked heads with his opponent Rich Wilhelm, sustaining a cut which later took six stitches to close. But he held on to win his match 10-5.

"I think Thomas' win might have given the rest of the guys a little extra incentive to win their matches," MSU coach Grady Peninger said after the victory.

HARRELL MILHOUSE TOOK his fourth straight dual meet at 118 pounds with a 5-2 win over the Wildcats' standout Dan Scotten, to start MSU off on a right note.

Chuck Joseph did not waste any time in his match, pinning his opponent in 55 seconds in the 126-pound confrontation.

"He (Joseph) really caught the kid with a headlock and decked him good," Peninger said.

The Spartans' Jeff Therrian and Greg Sargis won their matches 10-4 and 10-2 respectively, putting MSU up 19-0 on the Wildcats, who owned a 5-2 mark going into the meet.

MSU clinched the win with

Fred Worthem's 5-5 draw at 158 pounds, and Steve Foley's 15-5 decision at 167 pounds.

JEFF LAYER WON by a fall for the first time this season giving the Spartans the 177 pound weight class.

Northwestern's Craig Jennings pinned Scott Shepard after Shepard had Jennings almost to the floor at 190 pounds.

Northwestern won the battle of the heavyweights, as expected. The Wildcats' Mike Weitzman, the No. 5 heavy-weight in the country, defeated Dan Dudley 6-0, giving Northwestern its second match of the day.

The Spartans will put their 2-0-1 Big Ten mark on the line this weekend when they host the University of Illinois and Purdue University.

Spartan tracksters tough

A good showing at an away invitational is something that every coach hopes to get from his team.

But when the final results turn out to be more than what was expected, that is an added pleasure.

The MSU men's indoor track team did just that when it traveled to the Eastern Michigan University Invitational last weekend.

Competing against a host of Mid-American schools, plus a limited University of Michigan squad.

MSU individual firsts were by All-American Randy Smith in the 60-yard dash, Paul Pivinski in the high jump, Mark Mesler in the three-mile run and Ricky Flowers in the 300-yard dash.

The other first was by the mile relay team of Gerald Kane, Tyrone Williams, Tim Kenny and Calvin Thomas.

Individual seconds were captured by Scott Brasington in the two-mile run for freshmen and junior college transfers, Flowers in the 400-meter invitational race, Jerome Judd in the triple-jump, and Ted Unold in the mile run.

Relay seconds were in the distant medley, comprised of Thomas, Kenny, Keith Moore and Mike White, and in the two-mile, made up of Kenny, White, Moore and Jeff Lewis.

Swimmers take Purdue, Illinois

By JIM MITZELFELD
State News Sports Writer

It was a very successful weekend at home for coach Dick Fettes and his MSU men's swimming team.

The Spartans squeaked past the University of Illinois, 59-54 Friday night and then overhauled Purdue University 70-43 Saturday afternoon to pick up two Big Ten victories.

He signaled out MSU's one-two finishes in the 1,000-yard freestyle, 200-yard individual medley and three-meter diving as keys to the victory.

MARK LANCASTER FINISHED first in both the 50- and 100-yard freestyles, giving the Spartans their best individual effort.

In the 1,000-yard freestyle Matt Fettes and Terry Inch finished one-two to get the Spartans back in it after Illinois took first in the 400-yard medley relay and the one-meter diving.

It was only a short time later that Mike Borre and Bob Lundquist took first and second place in the 200-yard individual medley.

MSU's Matt Johnson and Pete Saggau then took first and second in the three-meter diving and George Kruggel finished first in the 200-yard butterfly.

After Matt Fettes and Inch took second and third in the 500-yard freestyle, Lundquist won the 200-yard breaststroke insuring MSU the win.

THE SPARTANS HAD

little trouble with Purdue Saturday.

"I don't know what they were thinking about when they came in here," Fettes said. "They gave us the 400-yard medley relay, and when we took first and second in the 200-yard individual medley, we pulled the rug out from under them."

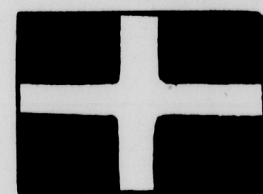

Matt Fettes took the 1,000-yard freestyle, and Lancaster won the 50-yard freestyle before Borre and Lundquist finished one-two in the 200-yard individual medley.

Other first place finishers for the Spartans were Saggau in the three-meter diving, Kruggel in the 200-yard butterfly, Chris Rock in the 100-yard freestyle, and Lundquist in the 200-yard breaststroke.

Television's second season

By MATT OTTINGER
State News Special Writer

You say you tuned in on Sunday and couldn't find Mork and Mindy? You say you turned to WKRP in Cincinnati and got something else instead? You say you actually liked Detective School?

If you can't find your favorite shows lately, don't blame yourself. It's probably the fault of network programming strategists in the midst of what they call the second season. During the month of January, the networks regroup and reshuffle their schedules, always trying to add points to those all-important ratings. The biggest losers, of course, are the millions of viewers who see their favorite shows canceled or moved to inconvenient time slots.

The most common change during the second season is always the cancellation of faltering series. Most of the shows the networks hyped so heavily are now being unceremoniously dumped to make room for newer — though not necessarily better — programs. Fourteen shows have been axed, four from NBC and five each from ABC and CBS. The early victims are: A Man Called Sloane, Kate Loves a Mystery, Shirley and Elsie (all NBC); Detective School, A New King of Family, 240 Robert, Out of the Blue and The Lazarus Syndrome (all ABC); Working Stiffs, The Bad News Bears, Big Shamus, Little Shamus, California Fever and Struck by Lightning (all CBS).

Time changes are the most frustrating for viewers trying to find their favorite shows, but the networks nevertheless have switched several. The smartest move was ABC's moving Mork and Mindy to Thursday and Fantasy Island to Saturdays, putting the shows back in the times that made them hits. CBS has made an entirely new Tuesday schedule. The White Shadow, Hawaii Five-O, and Paris, and two CBS shows WKRP in Cincinnati and Barnaby Jones have been moved to different times on their same nights. The two other changes see ABC's Laverne and Shirley and Angie on Mondays now, and Tom Snyder's NBC Prime Time filling up time on Saturday.

Other changes are somewhat harder to explain. The Last Resort, a comedy that CBS had canceled once before, is now on that network's Monday schedule. Another Monday returnee is ABC's Family, which takes over the spot vacated by NFL Football. In addition, The Associates, a series that premiered on ABC last September but was taken off, will return to prime time when Soap goes into late-night reruns.

The rest of the network's line-up is filled by new series, most of which have already begun. Many of these are shows that the networks decided were not good enough in September, but they are still churned out, getting almost as much hype as the fall programs did. Here is a list of all the new shows, according to network releases:

Skag (Sundays, 10 p.m. NBC) is a family drama with Karl Malden as a steel-mill worker. It premiered with a three-hour episode and will continue with a special two-hour show Thursday.

Facts of Life (Fridays, 8:30 p.m., NBC, begin March 7) stars Charlotte Rae in the Different Strokes spin-off that was seen briefly last summer.

Sanford (Fridays, 8 p.m., NBC, begins Feb. 29) stars Redd Foxx as the same old junkman, but in this series he's married into money and he must deal with the culture shock.

The Big Show (Tuesdays, 9 p.m., NBC, begins Feb. 26) is a 90-minute attempt to revive variety shows. Each episode features a different host, with a comedy group as regulars. Sort of an expensive Saturday Night it would seem.

United States (Tuesdays, 10:30 p.m., NBC, begins March 4) is an unusual comedy (no laugh track, for example) starring Beau Bridges. It is called a sophisticated look at marriage.

House Calls (Monday, 9:30 p.m., CBS) is a hospital comedy starring Wayne Rogers and Lynn Redgrave. It is based on the Walter Matthau-Glenda Jackson movie.

Knots Landing (Thursdays, 10 p.m., CBS), is a Dallas spin-off featuring Gary, the black sheep of the Ewing clan, and the people he meets when he relocates in Southern California.

The Chisholms (Saturdays, 8 p.m., CBS) is a western based on last spring's miniseries.

Tenspeed and Brownshoe (Sundays, 8 p.m., ABC) is a comedy-drama about a stockbroker and a con artist who team as private eyes.

One in a Million (Saturdays, 8:30 p.m., ABC) stars Shirley Hemphill as a taxi driver who strikes it rich.

Stone (Mondays, 9 p.m., ABC) stars Dennis Weaver as a police officer who moonlights as a best-seller author.

Goodtime Girls (Tuesdays, 8:30 p.m., ABC) stars Georgie Engel and three relative unknowns as four girls sharing an apartment during World War II.

B.A.D. Cats (Fridays, 8 p.m., ABC) is a smash-'em-up action series about race car drivers working for the L.A.P.D.

Incredible Sundays (Sundays, 7 p.m., ABC) is a magazine series which collects stranger-than-fiction stories.

This list of cancellations and new series is as complete as possible, but remember that networks are always making fine-tuning adjustments so anything could happen. Keep in mind that predictability is impossible when dealing with the networks, and that show that caught your eye last week may be gone in a couple of months.

Campus graffiti report

"And the sign said the words of the prophets are written on the subway walls, and tenement halls . . . — Paul Simon

Today's column we turn over to you, the student, whose comments, feelings and writings on current issues generally end up on classroom desk tops or on bathroom walls.

Today, therefore, we present some original desk-top graffiti from Berkeley Hall, which has, of course, been edited where necessary:

"Buy a friend — go Greek! . . . Remember the Dead Boys . . . You can't rollerskate in a buffalo herd . . . When God created man, She was only kidding . . . legalize people . . . I love women!"

"A loving touch is worth more than raw sex . . . Yes, but raw sex will get you through times of no loving touches better than loving touches will get you through times of no raw sex!"

"Flint is the armpit of Michigan . . . Dr. B. . . is an idiot . . . Idi Amin is my main man . . . Greek destroys . . . I'm sitting in this boring class and all I want is kinky sex! . . . yeast rises . . . I love frogs."

"Skidrow — 1 N.W. Holden . . . sex education should give oral exams . . . Dylan: everybody must get stoned . . . Wanted: female — no experience necessary . . . Pandora's box is a kinky story."

"Today is my last day! . . . We'll get loose in the caboose with our backs to the tracks . . . Stop writing on this desk . . . Mickey Mouse wears a Spiro Agnew watch . . . Bruce Springsteen proves it all night!"

"This chair is much too close to the B.S. which originates near the blackboard . . . 654579's learning ended here on May 28, 1974 (RIP) . . . Sex, drugs, and rock 'n roll . . . Doors/Morrison lives . . . Free the Indianapolis 500."

"Gabba, gabba hey! . . . Multilineal Neoclassical Spaghetti 481 . . . Springsteen: The Boss is back . . . Seag Maggots untie . . . Sociology at MSU is a four-year study in the elaboration of the obvious . . . Ain't it tragic? — no more Magic!"

"Strike a death blow: ask SO WHAT? and demand an answer . . . For a good time, call T. . . she'll make you laugh! . . . spanking is fun . . . Jan is great! . . . I smoke dope and I'm not a criminal . . . Sex is good for you."

Heavy petting leads to a happy puppy . . . Did you know that God spelled backwards is Dog? It sort of makes you think . . . "Two in a hammock, little kisses, weeks later — Mr. and Mrs. . . . Love is blind. God is love. Ray Charles is blind. Ray Charles is God! . . . Royal Order of Spitting Snakes."

"Jack and Jill went up the hill to fetch a pail of water, Jill forgot to take the Pill — and now they've got a daughter! . . . A better world through Polish forestry . . . Why is sex the Number One fastest growing indoor sport?"

"Thurmin of Zircon . . . My zippa isa open . . . this class is the absolute pits . . . I don't want to be here . . . Who does? . . . Send $10 for help to P.O. Box 3 — West Holmes Hall . . . Without Belushi and Aykroyd, Saturday Night Live is Dead . . . Grateful Dead!"

"If the walrus was Paul, who was the eggman? . . . I wish I knew that redhead's name . . . In Brody, you have to eat your soup before it clots . . . U-M: the University of Choke . . . bullets for peace."

"Napoleon sat here and blew his bone apart . . . Don't dream it — be it! . . . USSR: Savior of the world, breakfast of champions . . . drugs are America's backbone . . . Oh Suzannah — I want your Mama!"

"A little bird with a yellow bill, sat down on my window sill. I fed it lots of water and bread, and then I smashed its head!!!"

Dancers perform this weekend

MSU's Repertory Dance Company, featuring guest performer and choreographer Jody Oberfelder, will appear Jan. 24 through 26 in Fairchild Theater.

Staged under the auspices of the MSU Department of Theatre, the concert includes eight modern, ballet and jazz dance numbers. Show time is 8:15 p.m. with a 2:15 p.m. matinee set for Jan. 26.

Oberfelder, a former MSU dancer now residing in New York City, will perform two solos: "Offering," a bowl dance accompanied by a traditional Chinese shepherd song, and "Creature of Habitat," which production director Dixie Durr describes as "a dance of raw, wild energy." Oberfelder is also the choreographer of the group piece, "Miles of Forest Left . . . Right" which Durr says "explores aspects of people and how they become separated from their natural, animal spirit."

Other numbers in the show include "Lagueus," a new choreographic work by Barbara Banasi-kowski Smith, company director and MSU faculty member. Also on the program is another Smith work, "Deathly Vortex."

Company member Laurie Spivak will introduce her first choreographic piece, "Flying." The work represents the motion of wind and birds in flight, translated into dance movements. Spivak will also dance a solo in the jazz suite, "Off the Wall," choreographed specifically for the company by Barbara Sullivan, director of the Atlanta Dance Theatre in Georgia.

The show also includes a humorous piece, "Spiked Turkey," restaged for the company by Pittsburgh theatre arts teacher, Myron H. Nadel.

The Repertory Dance Company is composed of career-oriented dancers who are selected by auditioning in ballet, modern and jazz dance.

Tickets are on sale at the Performing Arts Company box office, 355-0148, and are priced at $3.50 and $4.

SPORTS

Lacrosse

A meeting for all MSU lacrosse players and anyone interested in lacrosse will be held at 6 tonight in 309 Jenison Fieldhouse.

Lacrosse practice will begin at 5:45 a.m. Tuesday, Jan. 29 in the turf arena of the IM Sports-West.

For further information, call coach Nevin Kanner at 353-9344.

Spartan fencers open

The one thing MSU fencing coach Charlie Schmitter was worried would happen to his team in its season-opening meet last Saturday did — inconsistency.

The Spartans had an up-and-down performance while beating the University of Windsor, 17-10, before losing to Wayne State University, 19-8, and the University of Michigan at Dearborn, 14-13.

Senior Bryan Peterman led a strong showing by MSU in epee with a 7-2 record for the day. His sophomore brother, Barry, went 6-3 while senior Ward Best finished at 5-3.

Juniors John Chambers and Jon Thomas topped the Spartans' sabre group with 4-3 and 4-5 marks respectively.

In foil, seniors Chris Young and Dominic Marazita finished at 4-4 and 4-5.

"Sabre will get better with more experience," Schmitter said, "but we need to be more consistent if we're going to win this season."

Engineers Sundstrand on campus...

Feb. 4

As one of the world's leading suppliers of advanced systems and components for aerospace manufacturers, we play a vital role on craft such as the space shuttle, all U.S. commercial jets, current military programs, and a number of business jets. Sundstrand also is known for its products in energy systems, air comfort, power transmission, and fluid handling.

If you're interested in a creative engineering environment where you can work with outstanding professionals, investigate Sundstrand. We offer competitive salaries, strong benefits, and a generous educational reimbursement program. Our headquarters are in Rockford, Illinois, a medium-sized community with varied employment opportunities for spouses.
