Street singer entertains at 'U'

By LOUISE WHALL
State News Staff Writer

With songs, stories, jokes and even a little soft-shoe, a street singer from Boston entertained a crowd of about 100 winter-weary people for several hours in front of the Administration Building Thursday.

Stephen Baird sat on his worn guitar case, surrounded by several guitars, a dulcimer, a tambourine, and an African kalimba, playing some old favorite and some obscure folk songs for the appreciative audience.

His songs included everything from "a Girl Scout drinking song" to "Feeling Groovy" and the crowd, eager to relax in the midday sun, eventually sang and clapped along with him.

"What do you get with 50 pigs and 50 deer," Baird asked the crowd. "A hundred sows-and-bucks," he said to a chorus of groans.

BAIRD PASSED AROUND several well-worn three-ring binders, with yellowed pages full of poems, pictures and memories of his days on the streets.

The guitarist began his career as a professional street singer in 1971. He had worked at a day care center and at Harvard University before deciding to go on the road. He was a chemical engineering major at Northeastern University in Boston but, alienated by the growing anti-war movement of the time, he dropped out before receiving his degree.

He still lives in Boston but spends about six months a year traveling around the country. He was in Ann Arbor Wednesday and will probably return there after a day or two here.

He said he sings mostly on college campuses when he is in the Midwest because of laws prohibiting street singers from playing in many places.

Baird is currently working to legalize street singing and has won the support of the American Civil Liberties Union in several cities. He said streetsinging is legal in Boston and San Francisco and has, in fact, become part of the culture.

BAIRD DID SOME sign language with one song, passed kazooos out to the audience, and did routines with small (continued on page 11)

As with the robin, the sight and sound of Boston street singer Stephen Baird is a sure sign of spring. Baird appeared at the Administration Building Thursday and entertained any and all who passed by or stopped with his special brand of familiar ditties and stories.

Carter toughens economic sanctions

By The Associated Press

President Carter turned the U.S. economic vise on Iran a little tighter Thursday, and got a boost from the West Europeans. Portugal banned all trade with Iran, and the European Parliament urged the nine Common Market nations to consider breaking diplomatic ties with the revolutionary regime in Tehran.

At a Washington news conference, Carter warned that if non-military steps do not lead to the release of the 50 U.S. Embassy hostages in Tehran, "the next step will be military action."

He announced he was banning financial transactions with Iran by anyone in the United States, prohibiting most American travel to Iran, ordering payment of reparations to families of the 50 hostages from frozen Iranian assets, and ordering U.S. made arms on order by Iran to be made available to U.S. armed forces instead.

Earlier Thursday, Iranian revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini dismissed the American sanctions as an "empty drum," and President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr insisted Iran was "mostly self-sufficient" and would not be endangered by a broad trade embargo.

BUT BANI-SADR nonetheless threatened anew to cut off Iranian oil to nations that join in the U.S. sanctions.

It appeared that Portugal, for one, had taken the punch out of the Iranian threat by itself suspending Iranian oil imports.

In announcing the new measures, Carter said he might next order a ban on shipments of U.S. food and drugs to Iran.

Traffic in those items is already minimal, however. Iranian purchases of U.S. food had declined sharply since the anti-shah revolution succeeded 14 months ago, and the American dock worker's union had cut off whatever other food shipments there were. But U.S. officials indicated that a formal export ban would help establish an example for U.S. allies to follow.

The surprise announcement in Lisbon indicated Carter had found at least some solid support in Western Europe.

After a Cabinet meeting, the government of Premier Francisco sa Carneiro announced it was prohibiting all Iranian imports and Portuguese exports to Iran. It meant oil-poor Portugal would be cutting off one of its chief sources of petroleum. In the third quarter of 1979, it received 21 percent of its oil from Iran.

IN 1978, PORTUGAL imported $131 million worth of Iranian oil, while exporting $2.7 million in goods to Iran.

Portugal is a member of the NATO alliance but not of the European Common Market. It nevertheless joined the nine Common Market governments last week in instructing its Tehran ambassador to "demand" that the Iranians free the U.S. Embassy hostages.

In Strasbourg, France, meanwhile, the Common Market's European Parliament, voted overwhelmingly in favor of a resolution calling on the nine governments to "contemplate" breaking diplomatic relations with Iran, following Carter's example, "in the event of the hostages not being released."

It did not endorse economic sanctions, but at a meeting next week the Common Market foreign ministers will consider such steps, and West German officials predict that some kind of economic retaliation will be approved.

Khomeini, in a televised speech to militia, derided the American embargo as an "empty drum" and said it would be "a shame for Europe to follow Carter and gather votes for him, to make him win over his presidential rivals."

Bani-Sadr, in an interview with the Japanese newspaper Asahi Shimbun, was quoted as saying Iranians "are mostly self-sufficient" and would not be affected by European or Japanese economic boycotts.

BUT HE WARNED that if Japan adopts sanctions, "Iran will not only cut off oil shipments but also take other measures." He did not elaborate.

Thursday's U.S. Embassy demonstration centered on a coffin holding the body of Bijan Ashtiani, a 26-year-old University of Nebraska student who died after being arrested on assault charges in Nebraska. In a preliminary report, Nebraska authorities said he died of heart failure "due to an epileptic-type seizure," but some Iranians claimed he was brutalized.

Ashtiani was arrested Dec. 20 for allegedly attacking his landlord with a butcher knife after the landlord tried to evict him because he found pro-Khomeini slogans written on the apartment walls. The young man was committed to a Lincoln, Neb., psychiatric center Feb. 27 and died there April 6.

The young man's distraught father contended Thursday his son "was tortured several times by the fascist police of the United States and finally they killed him."

House committee OK's draft registration plan

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — In an important victory for President Carter, the House Appropriations Committee on Thursday resurrected his embattled plan for peacetime draft registration of young men.

By a three-vote margin, 26-23, the committee approved spending $13.3 million to start registering an estimated 4 million men, aged 19 and 20, at post offices throughout the country, beginning this summer.

Proposals to register women along with men, as Carter proposed, were shouted down twice without a recorded vote.

Carter's plan has been stalled in Congress since Feb. 27 when an appropriations subcommittee approved only enough money for a standby registration program that would not start until the President ordered mobilization in an emergency.

THE SUBCOMMITTEE VOTE had been a sharp setback for the administration, and resulted in an intense lobbying effort by the White House and Pentagon to reverse the outcome.

The vote by the full committee nullified the subcommittee decision and cleared the way for a debate over registration on the House floor next week, probably Tuesday.

"I would be surprised if it were defeated," House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., told reporters.

He said a White House survey shows 206 Congress members support registration, 86 are opposed and the remainder of the 435 members are undecided.

The committee's vote marked the first victory in Congress on registration for the administration.

Carter announced his registration program in his Jan. 23 State of the Union address, calling it a sign of U.S. strength and resolve to protect American interests after the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

REP. EDWARD BOLAND, D-Mass., said registration is "more timely now" because of a possible need for military action in Iran if the sanctions announced by Carter — and perhaps a naval blockade — do not result in the release of the hostages.

Rep. Jamie Whitten, D-Miss., the committee's chairperson, said rejection of registration "would do serious injury to our president and our country."

On the other side of the argument, Rep. Lawrence Coughlin, R-Pa., said, "This is not a hawks-versus-doves issue. It's not an issue of supporting the president. It is an issue of a program that simply won't stand scrutiny."

There was widespread division among Republicans and Democrats on whether to support registration.

$4 MILLION SLICED

MSU appropriation cut for '81

By MARK FELLOWS
State News Staff Writer

Proposed 1981 state appropriations for MSU were cut by $4 million as part of a general statewide $180 million budget cut announced Thursday by state Budget Director Gerald Miller.

The MSU cut was part of a $24 million reduction in appropriations for colleges and universities proposed by Miller to the Senate Appropriations Committee.

The higher education cuts for MSU represented a reduction of about 3 percent of Gov. William G. Milliken's original budget recommendation for MSU. A. Thomas Clay, director of the State Office of Budget said.

Most MSU administrators were unavailable Thursday afternoon for comment, except Provost Clarence L. Winder, who declined comment.

The new recommendations reduce MSU's appropriations from a growth of about 9 percent to about 6 percent, said Robert Endriss, department of management and budget education analyst.

He added budget increases for the MSU Cooperative Extension Service and Agriculture Experimental station now equal about 4 percent for 1981.

The new cuts bring the total MSU 1981 recommendation for the general fund to about $130 million Endriss said. Appropriations for Cooperative Extension Service and Agricultural Experimental station are about $11.6 million and $12.5 million respectively.

New fiscal difficulties forced the state administration to revise its original budget recommendation to the state Legislature.

The cuts were a response to the federal government's decision to eliminate state revenue sharing, a $100 million loss to Michigan, and the state's swelling welfare rolls resulting from Michigan's deepening recession, an additional $100 million cost.

Clay said appropriations reduction recommendations for the state's colleges and universities were formulated to apply across the board. In other words, institutions receiving the largest appropriations increases should still receive more than others.

The largest cut is a $50 million reduction for K-12 school aid, Clay said. Other cuts include $4 million from community college appropriations, $14 million from state mental health programs, $31 million from the Department of Social Services and $20 million in grants to local government.

Clay said the local government cut was in line with the stipulations of the Headlee Amendment, Section 30 of the state Constitution, which requires a percentage of the state expenditures be allocated to local governments.

He added, though, the Department of Management and Budget recommended amending the law to allow for the loss of federal revenue sharing, thus requiring local governments to help shoulder the burden.

Sen. William Faust, D-Westland, criticized the Milliken administration for ruling out a general tax increase to help make ends meet.

Milliken Wednesday reiterated his belief the state's doubledigit inflation makes a tax increase unfair to the public.

The new cuts, added to those already proposed in the governor's first budget recommendation, total about $400 million in program reductions.

Miller recommended removing $41 million from the state's $275 million Budget Stabilization Fund to balance next year's budget, but warned about the possibility of cleaning it out if current trends continue.

"It has been a very difficult and painful process," Milliken wrote.

PBB: Milliken asks President Carter to declare state of emergency

By LANI WIEGAND
United Press International

Gov. William G. Milliken asked President Carter Thursday to declare a state of emergency in Gratiot County, where the toxic fire retardant PBB and other chemicals leaking from a landfil threaten city water supplies.

In a six-page letter to the president, Milliken said the hundreds of thousands of pounds of chemical waste endanger the "health, safety and general welfare of citizens in the vicinity."

The former Michigan Chemical Co. — now Velsicol to Chemical Corp. — dumped 80 to 94 tons of PBB, as well as low-level radioactive material, into the landfill during the mid-1970s.

Repeated pleas by the state Department of Natural Resources have failed to elicit adequate cleanup proposals from Velsicol, officials claim.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency now is seeking action against the Chicago-based firm to clean up its St. Louis, Mich., plant site, an adjacent dump and the county landfill.

MILLIKEN REQUESTED federal aid to meet the estimated $4 million to $9 million cost of containing the chemicals.

He also asked for assistance from the U.S. Public Health Service to determine the effects of PBB and other toxic substances on human health and help from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to design a landfill containment system and a new water treatment system at the site.

The containment and treatment systems could cost $4.95 million.

The DNR revoked the contractor's license and closed the landfill in 1976 following repeated violations of state dumping standards. It then was learned that Velsicol had disposed of 269,000 pounds of chemical waste at the site, including PBB — the toxic fire retardant accidentally mixed with Michigan cattle feed in 1973 and responsible for the death or forced slaughter of millions of farm animals.

DNR samples taken in the area detected contamination leaking from the site.

Thus far local, state and federal agencies have spent $255,000 for various testing and monitoring procedures at the landfill. Milliken said in his letter to the president state and local government no longer can carry the burden of cleanup costs.

"State and local governments have overestimated their capability to respond to this program," he said.

"In addition the threat is expected to continue and local business, government and the general population will feel the impact of this contamination for years to follow, unless action is taken to mitigate or avert disaster as soon as possible."

Bruff denies MSU will form alumni relations program

By R.W. ROBINSON
State News Staff Writer

The chairperson of the MSU Board of Trustees Thursday denied all reports indicating the University will set up its own alumni relations program to rival the autonomous MSU Alumni Association.

"The battle is over as far as we are concerned," John Bruff, D-Fraser, said. "If there is going to be any battle, it's going to be from the other side, I suspect."

The Detroit News, quoting Bruff, Wednesday reported the University will create a new alumni relations program to get the administration's story out to the alumni.

"We have attempted to make some changes in the alumni association and obviously they are against that. And to my knowledge we are not setting up any new alumni program," Bruff said.

RON KARLE, Editor of the MSU alumni magazine said MSU President Cecil Mackey wants control over the alumni association "to get the alumni magazine."

"It is my feeling that when a University administration has control over the alumni magazine, the administration is talking to itself," Karle said.

In an attempt to regain partial control over the association, the trustees and administration developed a proposal to have the alumni president serve at the mutual pleasure of the association and the MSU president. The alumni association Executive Board voted against that proposal Saturday, stating it could cooperate with the University without it having any control over the association.

"If CECIL MACKAY were able to sack Jack Kinney in that matter, it indicates an atmosphere I could not work in," Karle said.

Kinney, president of the alumni association, was instrumental in the association obtaining autonomy in June. However, Mackey has said he would not have allowed such a move had he been president when the board voted to separate the association from the University.

If MSU does form its own alumni relations program, "it would be very awkward and confusing because we have always worked in concert with the MSU development office and the athletic department," Kinney said Thursday.

"The University will examine all of its relationships with the alumni and then decide the best way to meet its responsibilities," Mackey said.

He added, "I continue to hope the alumni association and the University can reach a mutual agreement on a set of operating guidelines."

Hundreds of Cuban refugees crowd onto the main balcony of the Peruvian Embassy in Havana late Wednesday.

More refugees flee Cuba

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Cuban refugees arriving from the Peruvian Embassy in Havana Thursday claimed supporters of President Fidel Castro insulted them and took their personal belongings before allowing them to leave.

Two planes brought 254 refugees during the second day of an airlift from communist Cuba, bringing the total flown here so far to 490. Peruvian officials said some 9,700 Cubans still were waiting to leave their homeland.

The refugees, including women and children, looked wan and tired as they stepped off two "freedom flights" manned by the Costa Rican airline, and were taken to a former presidential residence in San Jose for hot food, rest and processing.

Crane supports Reagan

(AP) — Republican front-runner Ronald Reagan and chief rival George Bush both gained costs Thursday for Pennsylvania's big primary next week, while Sen. Edward M. Kennedy vowed — like the tortoise against the hare — to "go on, and on, and on" against President Carter.

Reagan stood to benefit with the withdrawal of Rep. Philip M. Crane of Illinois, and fellow conservative, from the GOP race. Crane, beaten badly in every primary he has entered, said he would campaign for Reagan's nomination and election as a "mainstream conservative candidate."

At the same time, Bush picked up the support of six Arkansas delegates to the Republican National Convention who previously had been uncommitted or pledged to candidates no longer in the race. Their switch gave the former U.N. ambassador eight of that state's 19 delegates. Reagan has nine, and two still are uncommitted.

Kennedy, meanwhile, toured Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, where he likened himself to the Pittsburgh Steelers professional football team — "a second-half team" that always comes on strong — and criticized Carter's economic policies as "a pale carbon copy" of traditional Republican positions.

Auto worker unemployment up

DETROIT (UPI) — Long-term unemployment in the battered U.S. auto industry edged upward to 169,450 hourly workers this week and car and truck production continued its downhill slide.

That figure, up from 163,100 last week, does not include massive indefinite production cutbacks announced this week by General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. that will furlough at least 20,000 additional hourly workers later this spring.

Temporary layoffs of 42,900 this week will drop to 22,850 next week as workers idled for one of two week periods return to their jobs.

Personal income up in March

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans' income increased 0.8 percent in March, less than the rate of inflation but enough to support a slight increase in consumer spending during the month, the Commerce Department reported Thursday.

It said total personal income from all sources increased $15.6 billion to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $2,069 trillion. The gain was almost double the February increase of $7.4 billion, or 0.4 percent.

The Commerce Department said consumer spending increase during March by $10.4 billion, or 0.6 percent, despite another steep drop in auto purchases.

Carter acknowledges recession

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said Thursday the nation's economy "probably has entered a period of recession" that will cause "pain and . . . disruptions" for many Americans. But Carter said he believes that is the price for restraining inflation, and predicted the downturn will be short and mild.

It was the first time the president has acknowledged a recession apparently is at hand, although predictions by his own economic forecasters recently have been bolstered by layoffs in the auto industry and a sharp decline in homebuilding.

Carter indicated he agreed with other government officials, who say the downturn probably started in late March or early April.

Turkish ambassador shot

ROME (AP) — An Armenian vengeance squad struck again at the Turkish diplomatic corps Thursday, wounding the ambassador to the Vatican from ambush in reprisal for Turkish extermination of Armenians early in the century. Turkey asked European governments for better protection of its diplomats.

An anonymous telephone caller told a non-Italian news agency that the attack was carried out by a commando group called "Avengers of the Armenians Genocide."

At least three gunmen wounded Ambassador Veidi Turel, and one of his bodyguards as they were being driven to Turel's office from his home, police reported. The driver and a second bodyguard were not hurt.

Gov. Milliken traveling to Japan to lure auto makers to Michigan

By MARK FELLOWS
State News Staff Writer

Gov. William G. Milliken travels to Japan today in an eight-day effort to encourage the location of Japanese industry in Michigan.

Milliken will meet with officials of seven companies that already have operations in the state to convince them to expand their operations here, press aide Paula Holmes said.

The governor will also meet with officials of the Toyota Co., which recently announced it will study the feasibility of locating an auto plant in the United States.

Milliken plans to meet with two members of the Japanese cabinet as well.

HE WILL MEET Tuesday with Saburo Okita, minister of foreign affairs, and later with Yoshitake Sasaki, minister of international trade and industry.

Milliken said his trip comes at a time when the climate for Japanese investment in industry in this country has improved significantly since his 1977 visit there.

He added that protectionist sentiment in the United States is growing, and that the Japanese are sensitive to this. Milliken, however, has come out against import restrictions on Japanese automobiles as a means to boost domestic auto sales.

Japanese cars now hold about 20 percent of the auto market in the United States, Milliken said. Combined with the general economic slump, imported cars have hurt sales of domestic autos, which contributes further to Michigan's economic problems.

Good news, however, has come from Japan on the eve of the governor's trip.

NISSAN MOTORS, INC., announced Thursday its intentions to locate a $300 million pickup truck assembly plant in the United States, naming Michigan as a possible location.

Nissan, producer of Datsun cars and trucks, estimated the plant will produce 10,000 trucks annually and employ about 2,200 workers.

The company, Japan's second largest auto maker, said it expects to purchase about $10 million worth of American-made parts per month, but will still import engines and other components.

In another development, Chrysler Corp. announced Tuesday it will buy engines for a new line of small cars from Japan's Mitsubishi Motors Corp.

Election officials will continue to prepare for Michigan's May 20 presidential primary following a decision by the Michigan Court of Appeals Thursday.

A final decision by Ingham County Circuit Judge Ray Hotchkiss is expected Monday, however, which could block the primary and force the state to appeal the case again.

Hotchkiss extended an order Thursday morning blocking the primary until Monday and broadened the decision to stop preparations for the May 20 primary.

THE MICHIGAN COURT of Appeals vacated the order Thursday afternoon, however, allowing election officials to continue preparing for the primary.

The appeals court decision allows Hotchkiss to order the primary stopped for 1980, although the state will appeal such a decision said Janet Baugh, representative for the attorney general's office in the case.

The injunction was ordered at the request of the Michigan Municipal Clerks' Association and the Michigan Townships Association. The clerks claim they will not be adequately reimbursed by the state for costs incurred while running the primary.

The Michigan Court of Appeals decision stated the "plaintiff (clerks) has made no showing of possible irreparable injury."

"EVERYBODY WILL NOW proceed to print ballots and prepare for the election under this decision," Baugh said.

Hotchkiss issued an injunction against the primary in a similar case four years ago, although he was eventually overruled by the Michigan Court of Appeals and the Michigan Supreme Court.

Because of economic conditions in Michigan, Hotchkiss said, the situation is different now and holding a primary is not good judgment.

The clerks claim they were only partially reimbursed in 1976 and there is no guarantee they will be reimbursed by the state for the 1980 open primary.

MORE THAN $500,000 has already been spent on election preparations such as ballot printing and absentee applications, state Elections Director George Herstek testified Thursday.

The Republican Party is planning on using the open primary to apportion delegates for its national convention in July in Detroit.

If the primary is not held, the party has no alternate plans for selecting presidential nominating delegates, testified Richard Adams, Michigan Republican Director.

If the court of appeals overrules Hotchkiss, the clerks will have to appeal the case immediately in order to have a decision before the May 20 primary, Baugh said.

ASMSU blimp board members may drive aircraft over MSU

By JIM MITZELFELD
State News Staff Writer

The ASMSU blimp could take to the skies over MSU as early as Sunday, said Bruce Studer, ASMSU chairperson and blimp board of directors member.

Joined by two other student board members, Studer drove down to Champaign, Ill., Thursday morning to view a blimp similar to the one the group was planning to purchase. The blimp board plans on taking for a test flight is owned by Al Green, owner of Tower Hobbies, a hobby shop in Champaign, specializing in radio control models.

Green, who has only flown his blimp three times after he bought it a month ago, invited the group to take it for a test flight. He said he would offer it to the ASMSU for the same amount he has invested in it — about $2,900. Green, who originally bought the blimp to advertise his products at trade shows, said he has yet to try flying the blimp outside.

"IT FLEW BETTER than I expected," Green said. "We flew it at the sports arena in Toledo, Ohio, and we got a good reception."

Along with Studer, ASMSU Comptroller Terry Buckler and Bob Carr, blimp board member, will view the 16-by-6-foot radio controlled blimp today.

"We could conceivably come back with it," Studer said. If the blimp board likes what they see they plan on putting a deposit down on the blimp and bring it back for a test flight on Sunday. The blimp board will then go before the student board on Tuesday and make a recommendation as to whether or not the blimp should be purchased.

"The test flight on Sunday will be open to the public so they can voice their opinion on it," Buckley said.

"We'll have all the TV, radio stations and newspapers there to look at it," Studer said.

THE BLIMP BOARD said it will simply return without the blimp if it is not impressed with its test flight at Champaign.

Green said the flight would cost ASMSU $60.

If the weather is bad on Sunday, Studer said they would try and schedule a trial flight in one of the sports arenas on campus next week.

Gene Kenney, assistant athletic director in charge of facilities said he had not heard of ASMSU's plans to buy a blimp and was not sure whether ASMSU would be able to make a test flight in Jensen Fieldhouse.

"I don't know what the safety factor would be," Kenney said. "My first impression is I don't like the idea of it, but I'll have to find out more about it before I make a decision."

MSU celebrates Earth Day '80

By DAVE VARGA
State News Staff Writer

Earth Day '80, a renewal of the commitment to the ecology first begun in 1970, will be celebrated Tuesday across the country.

On the 10th anniversary of this day, environmental values and protection will be highlighted with campus events sponsored by the Public Interest Research Group in Michigan, the Environmental Information Service and other organizations.

Events which will highlight the Earth Day weekend include: • "Tri-county Environmental Youth Conference" from 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m., Friday at the Woldumar Nature Center.

• "Earth Day Flicks" sponsored by PIRGIM and RHA — "Charlie Brown Cleans the Air," "The River That Came Back" and "Cry of the Marsh" — will be shown before scheduled RHA films on Friday and Saturday.

• "ENVIRONMENTAL POLITICS IN 1980" is a speech by U.S. Rep. Bob Carr, D-East Lansing, sponsored by PIRGIM — MSU, in which he will discuss citizen action on national environmental legislation at 2 p.m. Saturday in 335 Union.

• "Awareness Walk and Work Day" will be from 8:30 to 10:30 a.m. Saturday at the Riverbend Natural Area.

• "Discovery Walk and Spruce-Up Day" from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at Fenner Arboretum will include a bonfire, a hotdog roast and music.

• "Solar Sites Bicycle Tour and Open House" will be held at noon Saturday at the Urban Options Energy House, 135 Linden St.

• "Awakening Your Senses" will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday at Fenner Arboretum, 2020 Mount Hope Road, Lansing.

• "EARTH FEST KITE Flying" will be sponsored by

PIRGIM-MSU and will be held at 1 p.m. Monday at the Demonstration Hall field. Free (continued on page 11)

U.S. allies bark, but will they bite?

Ideally, President Carter would not have to twist any arms to obtain allied support of economic sanctions against Iran. Ideally, the nations to whose aid we have come militarily and economically would jump at the chance to return the favor.

Yet they hesitate, leaving us to wonder why European nations did impose sanctions on Zimbabwe-Rhodesia, a less belligerent nation, in 1965. Are allied demands that the hostages be released mere rhetoric? American allies were among the first to label the Iranian seizure of the U.S. Embassy a violation of international law. Their denunciations of both the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan and the hostage crisis were strident. So why are they hedging now that we, after months of patience, have finally issued a call for economic sanctions and diplomatic isolation of Iran?

Their reasons are numerous, and important enough to make us hesitate, were we in the spot this crisis has placed them. It is relatively easy for the United States to call for a halt to trade with Iran. We had already stopped buying its oil, and the arms we sold in exchange can be dumped anywhere on the world market. The European Economic Community is much more dependent on trade with Iran; the world market for goods they sell Iranians is very competitive.

The United States has not offered to underwrite the oil we are asking our allies to boycott either. And Japan, dependent on Iran for 10 percent of its imported oil, would undoubtedly be hurt by the loss.

The boycott of oil, however, may just become an irrelevant issue. Iranian production has plummeted by two-thirds since Khomeini came to power. Iranian crude has also become increasingly expensive. With such an unstable supply, Japan would be wise to check alternate sources. And with conservation currently the name of the game, the Japanese may just find enough oil instead of a tight supply.

Our allies could, of course, also point to the hostage crisis as our mess. With some justification, they could ask why they should support the United States in bilateral dispute. But the Western Europeans have sordid histories in countries bordering Iran. Their diplomats are therefore also vulnerable to an embassy takeover, a consideration which would make it in their interest to uphold the preservation of international law.

As allies, the Common Market and Japan should follow our lead in imposing sanctions on Iran. Carter has stated that without allied support, sanctions on Iran would be ineffective. Some would argue that Europe should dance when we say so, pointing to their unequivocal commitment as allies. However, it is enough to say that as allies, we should be committed to each other. By not imposing sanctions, the Common Market and Japan are in fact condoning the violence and violation of international law even as they condemn it.

Luxury and need

First they stopped giving out dinnerware sets at movies. Then they made you wipe your own windows at the gas pumps. Now America's society of infinite luxuries is facing an even further setback — a possible end to the Saturday mail service.

It seems that when it comes to simple economics, budget cut-backs can have more of an impact on the mail service than rain, sleet, snow or gloom of night. The U.S. House Budget Committee let the axe fall on the postal service last week, cutting its appropriations in 1981 by $836 million beginning Oct. 1. That means that Americans in most parts of the country will probably have one day less per week to venture out their front doors in search of that check that is "in the mail."

Nevertheless, Saturday mail has become a luxury taken for granted that is now about to die the same death as trading stamps at the supermarket. The need for a six-day mail service undoubtedly still exists. And the distribution problems inherent in adjusting to a five-day system may take some time to iron out. But Americans have come to expect too much anyway. In debating which government programs should be slashed in order to balance the budget, cutting mail service is a small sacrifice.

Besides, the only substitute for a cut in mail delivery would have been another raise in postal rates. Somehow, a five-day delivery schedule seems less of a burden. Most citizens would bemoan the postal service every time they mailed a letter if they were charged 20 cents or more for a stamp. As of now, the only problem they face is an empty box on Saturday morning.

Candles and chaos in Brody

Where were you when the lights went out? That seemed to be the popular question Monday morning when students sat down at breakfast to rehash the exciting blackout that darkened campus the night before. As a resident of Butterfield Hall, I had my own unique story to tell.

Wolfgang down the remains of a Little Caesar's pizza, a close friend of mine and I noticed the lights beginning to flicker at approximately 8:40 p.m. A few screams and hollers later we were engulfed in complete darkness.

That certain excitement that always comes over me during blackouts began to flow through my veins.

There's certainly something special about being forced to do without electricity. Maybe it's that our mechanized computer chip society of today lets us sit back and be entertained and satisfied. It seems without that great electric god we are forced into entertaining ourselves. Simply applied to the world of your average college student, that means — let it all hang out!

Spotlights lit up those who were brave enough to venture out of the safety of their rooms when fireworks were heard emanating from the fourth floor porch of Rather. Somebody jumped in a Pinto and raced around the courtyard. A voice down the hall called out, "Somebody said the South Complex blew up!" Thoughts of a friend of mine in Holden ran through my mind. A skyrocket shot over the Brody cafeteria.

By this time most of the guys on my floor had deserted hoping to find warmer and more luscious things in the women's dorm next door. My own friend insisted I couldn't leave her to do the same. Besides, she was scared.

All of a sudden a troop of 10 female students came marching down the hall led by a lone but brave candle bearer. It was comical to think most of my hall had gone looking for them, only to not be around when they came searching for us. They seemed deaf to my request that they could find refuge in my room. My female companion made me pay dearly for that one.

Gee . . . I thought. Wonder what the maternity wards will look like around Jan. 13, 1981? Blackouts sure seem to bring people together.

All of a sudden we were jostled by the loud sounds of Van Halen emanating from Emmons, a dorm almost 1,000 feet away. "Hey, that ain't somebody's transistor radio," the guy in the next room remarked. Sure enough some hard rocker just couldn't cope without the 90-decibel sound of his stereo and had hooked it up to his car battery.

Another string of firecrackers exploded.

Then what sounded like a small nuclear device blast rocked our windows, illuminating the entire courtyard. "I knew it, we're under enemy attack," I whispered to my friend as we both dived to the floor taking cover.

I love blackouts! But the real social comment of the evening came later that night when I returned to my dorm to find everyone had gathered, men and women alike, in the john. The scene there would surely make John Denver weep. Three would-be Bob Dylans were strumming on their guitars while some 30-odd students joined them in song. Their voices reverberated off the candle-lit stalls of the men's room to the tunes of "Cat's in the Hat" and "Lady."

Sitting on the counter with my feet in the sink and my voice ringing out, it finally hit me. There was a lot more going on there than 30 people singing songs. There was a feeling of warmth that reminded me of campfires and a feeling of camaraderie long since forgotten. A special glow was in the air. Everywhere there were smiles. When the lights finally did come on a little after midnight, someone got up and turned them off, and everyone kept singing.

Why is it no one gets together until the power goes out? Maybe we don't need that Iranian oil after all.

'LASH' LARROWE

Back Carter!

I'm doing a full gainer with a half twist off the three-meter board in the IM pool, feels like a real clean entry. I come up for air, this varsity swimmer pops up next to me.

"That was some belly flop you took there, Lash," he says, looking concerned. "You OK?"

"That dive was good enough to tie for the bronze when I did it down in Melbourne in '28, buster," I snaps.

"Oh, wow!" he laughs. "I've seen old newsreels of those games. How about you doing a clown act in our next meet wearing the tank top outfit you used to compete in back in those days?"

"You got something urgent you want to talk about, bub?" I demands. "If you haven't, I gotta get back on the board while I'm still hot."

"I've been trying to see you in your office for two weeks," he complains. "You're never there, so I figured I'd catch you here. I wanted to get your opinion on Carter's Olympic boycott, you being a self-styled champion of civil liberties and all."

"When our national security is in danger," I tells him sternly, "we all have to make sacrifices for Old Glory, you know. If that means some of you folks don't get to compete in Moscow, that's tough."

"I can see Carter asking us athletes not to go to the Games as official representatives of the U.S.," he says. "But I sure don't like his threat to pull our passports if we want to go on our own. Don't you agree we have a civil rights issue there, Lash?"

"Negative!" I booms. "When the Sovs are threatening world peace the way they are in Afghanistan, human rights go on the shelf for the duration."

"My history prof says overwhelming evidence suggests that the invasion is only an attempt to impose some order in an unstable country on a sensitive border, and that the USSR acted out of a deep-seated and not entirely unreasonable fear of encirclement and subversion, Lash."

"He says if Mexican guerrillas were stirring up trouble among the Chicanos on both sides of the border, we'd send the Marines into Mexico to put a stop to it, way we did when Pancho Villa was giving us a hard time."

"Sounds to me like you've got a mighty pro-Soviet prof," I says disapprovingly.

"I hadn't thought about him that way," he admits. "He also told us that what the Russians are doing in Afghanistan isn't any different from what the United States did in Vietnam, so how can you say Afghanistan is a threat to world peace when Vietnam wasn't?" "Where we differ from the Bolsheviks," I explains patiently, "is before we invade a country we set up a puppet regime to invite us in. That way we don't break no international law."

"We learned in my history class," he persists, "General Hafizullah Amin, who was head of the Afghanistan government when the Soviets moved into the country, was a Russian puppet, Lash. Doesn't that shoot down your theory of the difference between them and us?"

"No, it don't," I tells him. "The United States never recognized Amin's regime, you know, and when the Red Army rolled into Afghanistan they wasted him first thing, right? Anyway, international law don't apply to no Soviet satellites."

"Sounds to me like you stopped thinking when you hit your head on the bottom of the pool in those Melbourne Olympics," he complains. "You still haven't shown me there's a threat to our national security that justifies the U.S. boycotting the Moscow Games."

"You ever hear of the domino theory, sonny?" I asks. "Okay, here's how it works: Once those Russkies've wiped out Afghanistan, they move into Iran, next thing you know they're astride of the Straits of Hormuz. You can kiss goodbye to the oil we're getting from Iran when that happens. We won't be seein' no more Iranian caviar on the campus cocktail circuit, neither."

"Where have you been for the last five months, Lash?" he wonders. "We haven't gotten any oil from Iran since last fall. They cut us off when Carter let the shah into the United States."

"So that's why I've been ripped off at the gas pump lately," I muses. "But I'm still supporting my President on his boycott all the way. That's a small price to pay for peace."

"That's all fine and good for you to say," he squawks. "You and your fat cat pals on the faculty can afford to buy all the gas you want even if it goes to two bucks a gallon."

"But what about us athletes? We've been training for years, looking forward to Moscow in '80. Doesn't it bother you that all our efforts are going down the drain?"

"Jimmy's way ahead of you on that," I assures him. "When he converts his registration into the draft he's got planned, he's gonna make commands outta you jocks, send you to the Middle East to defend freedom."

"You'll get all the action you can handle then, you bet!"

When I contacted the East Lansing Police, they said it was a private agreement between Stanton Associates and Haslett Super Service, and they had nothing to do with it.

I'm writing this as a warning to motorists not to park in that parking lot, and as a complaint against the illegal towing practice from the lot which is fully condoned by the East Lansing Police. So if you park your car in an East Lansing parking lot, pay the meter, and still come back to find your car towed because of some private agreement that you know nothing about — don't be surprised. Apparently, anyone can make their own laws in East Lansing now, and the East Lansing Police will discreetly look the other way.

Illegal towing?

Coming out of Rick's Cafe last Saturday night, I was dismayed to find my car had been "stolen" (along with sixteen others up to that time) from the little dirt parking lot on the corner of Albert and Evergreen Avenues. The reason I say "stolen" instead of "towed" is because no warning signs of any kind had been posted, not even a simple "No Parking" sign — nothing. Haslett Super Service did the stealing, and their two trucks worked non-stop until well after the bars closed. Afterwards, many car owners, including myself, tried to steal our cars back, but Haslett Super Service had flipped a switch on the passenger side of the distributor of those cars with electronic ignition, and took the distributor coils from the rest.

Now, the real culprit here is not Haslett Super Service — towing is probably its bread and butter, since their gas is 12 cents a gallon more than the station directly across the street. It's merely prostituting its tow trucks to all takers. No, the real culprit is the irresponsible owner of the parking lot, Stanton Associates. Having been informed by the city that since theirs was not a public parking lot, they could not let cars park there, Stanton Associates hired the towing service to tow all cars from the lot, with no warning to the motorists whatsoever.

VIEWPOINT: MIDEAST

Israel a victim of media biases

By Rabbi Daniel Allen

The headline read "Israelis enter Lebanon to patrol for terrorists." It was on the front page of The State News April 10. The day before, the story that had prompted Israel's moves, namely that Palestinian terrorists had attacked a kibbutz in Israel killing among others a two-year-old child (they attacked a children's house, a brave and honorable thing to do), was found buried on page two in the Focus column. This treatment of the news is one that continues to anger me greatly.

Why is it that any action that the government of Israel takes or any unrest in Israeli society seems to be front-page news while the barbaric acts of those dedicated to the destruction of the state of Israel, the terrorists and murderers of the PLO and their supporters, is buried in the paper somewhere? The terrorist attack on Kibbutz Mishgav Am was not the first such attack this year. Since January there have been more than 100 incidents perpetrated against Israel and her people by the PLO.

Well, my friends, the situation in Iran should teach us that chamberlainism, appeasement, and giving in are not the paths to success. We have been patient. We waited to begin economic sanctions, and the minute some decisive action is taken the thugs holding our citizens in OUR embassy raise the ante to include killing our fellow countrymen. "Even one bullet is a military action," they tell us. So what good has it done?

The game of world politics is not the same as that of American elective democracy. It is well enough that here when the fight is over the rivals for power can still sit down and be friends. President Ford still gets briefings from the White House and even confers with President Carter while being an outspoken critic of Carter's administration. That is not the case in the rest of the world.

People and governments are playing for high stakes. They are ruthless and, even as hard as it is for naive American to understand, will kill and lie and take over other countries to pursue their ends. This is what happened in Iran, replacing one dictator with another even worse power monger. This is what the Soviets have done in Afghanistan. And these are the tactics of the Arab world and the PLO as they deal with the issue of Israel.

Let me site for you an example of the PLO. On October 25, 1979 in Brussels, Farouk Kadoumi, Head of the "Political" Department of the PLO, said to the press: "The PLO wants a just and lasting peace. This implies concessions from both sides . . ." It seems to be a reasonable statement, one that implies that the PLO is willing to learn to live in peace with a Jewish neighbor, Israel. Ah, but listen to Kadoumi in Kuwait just three days later. "The PLO will not recognize Israel even if an independent Palestinian state is established." Hardly a reasonable statement.

Let us be of firm resolve that all those who support the actions and thoughts of the PLO support death and destruction and support a cause that wants to destroy not only Israel but cripple America as it holds us hostage to oil. And the threat of terror.

Allen is director of the Hillel Jewish Student Center

Big Business Day battles Growth Day

By The Associated Press

Thursday was either "Big Business Day" or "Growth Day" — depending on your point of view.

Labor leaders, senior citizens' groups and consumer activists led by Ralph Nader attacked alleged abuses in the marketplace with marches, rallies and mock trials marking what they called "Big Business Day."

Corporate supporters responded with "Growth Day" activities in defense of the economic system, which, they said, "has freely and generously provided so much for so many."

Individual events spread across the country. The focus of the "Big Business Day" campaign was a bill introduced in Congress earlier this month to limit the powers of the nation's 600 largest corporations.

LOCAL GROUPS, HOWEVER, used the day to campaign for their own causes. The New Hampshire People's Alliance, for example, said the rally it sponsored at the capital in Concord was designed to call attention to problems of unemployment, electricity rates and other consumer problems. Members of the Massachusetts Building Trades Council who marched through downtown Boston protested the increase in non-union construction firms in the state. And the Michigan

Citizens' Lobby put the Hooker Chemical Co. and its parent firm, Occidental Petroleum Corp., on trial for allegedly polluting the environment. The guilty verdict was announced before the trial. An Occidental spokesperson said the charges were "unfounded and undeserving."

"Big Business Day" supporters in San Diego included the Grey Panthers, a senior citizens' group; Friends of the Earth; and an organization called "Tax Big Oil." They distributed 1,000 ballots to vote for candidates for the "San Diego Corporate Hall of Shame."

Nader, who says the public is "increasingly dismayed by the gross misconduct of our largest corporations," scheduled a speech in his home state of Connecticut where the Citizen Labor Energy Coalition and the 1st Congressional District Congress Watch organized a day-long program. Included was a mock grand jury with citizens testifying about what they said were the harmful effects of corporations.

NADER ALSO SPOKE in Evansville, Ind., where he criticized U.S. Rep. Joel Deckard, a Republican, who represents the district.

"While the citizens back in his district suffer because of skyrocketing energy prices, Rep. Deckard has been in Washington voting with the interests of big oil," Nader told about 700 students at the University of Indiana.

Deckard, reached in Washington by telephone, called Nader's remarks predictable. "If we would follow the advice of Ralph Nader, conditions in this country would become worse," Deckard said.

The "Growth Day" events were sponsored by the Heritage Foundation, a conservative think tank. Washington Gov. Dixie Lee Ray, a Democrat, told a breakfast sponsored by the foundation that Americans are "in a maze of government regulation from which we need to rescue ourselves."

At the same meeting, Alexander B. Trowbridge, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, accused Nader and his supporters of "verbal overkill." What the nation should be focusing on, said Trowbridge, is "restoring American productive capacity."

Barbara Keating of Consumer Alert, a Connecticut-based group which was one of the supporters of "Growth Day" said that Americans are doing better than most other people.

'Big corporations need restricting'

By LOUISE WHALL
State News Staff Writer

More controls are needed to restrict the power of multinational corporations, panel members said Wednesday during a Big Business Day forum sponsored by the Public Interest Research Group in Michigan and other organizations.

Bob Morris, legislative analyst for the Michigan House Democratic research staff, said many large corporations are buying out small industries, milking them dry and then moving to new locations, leaving the cities and towns which were dependent on the companies to suffer.

Joe Finkbeiner, president of United Auto Workers union local 1618, said he has no objections to companies moving to areas of high unemployment, but he does object when a company moves purely for profit-motivated reasons.

Panel members discussed the problems involved with plant closings and possible methods to help people who are affected monetarily and psychologically when a plant shuts down.

"THE LAWS ARE getting more strict in this country, but are not strict enough," Finkbeiner said.

Two Michigan legislators, Rep. Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, and Sen. Don Riegler, D-Mich., have introduced plant closing legislation which would force plants to announce closings well ahead of time and also provide a severance pay plan for the displaced workers. It would also ask plant owners to supply reasons for the move.

Alex Kotlowitz, a Lansing journalist, said other reasons for plant closings are when a plant is working on a defense contract that is discontinued or when machinery becomes obsolete because a corporation refuses to reinvest its profits.

"Some group must assume the responsibility for the situation," said Denise Sloan, a legislative director for the Employment Research Associates. "That group must be the government."

Rep. says business has less influence

By BILL CORNISH
State News Staff Writer

Corporate impact on legislation has declined in the last 30 years, Rep. H. Lynn Jondahl, D-East Lansing, said Wednesday at MSU.

Jondahl spoke in a panel discussion at the MSU Union as part of Big Business Day activities here.

"Being a legislator can be a full-time job, which means there is no longer a dependence on corporations and business for income and support," he said.

"Today, a member of the House earns $27,000 plus expenses, whereas in 1948 they earned only $3 a day and received no expenses," he added.

YET A PRODUCTIVE economy with profitable businesses is a plus for public life, Jondahl said.

"Legislators want to maintain economic stability, like business does," he said. Difficulties often arise, as in maintaining the welfare budget, he added.

Some groups, such as truckers, want their industry to be regulated because this keeps competition down, Jondahl said.

The AFL-CIO tries to influence legislation by informing its members who their representatives are voting, said Jim Mowry, of the Michigan AFL-CIO.

If they are not helping the AFL-CIO, our members should know, he added.

"WE SPENT OVER $14 million for federal elections in 1978," Mowry said, "but corporations spent over $50 million through political action committees."

Political action committees can use advertising to emphasize the negative points of a candidate opposed to them, Mowry said. The favorable opponent enters with a clean slate if the committee does the mudslinging, he added.

The committees are funded by private donations because corporations are not allowed to use their money for them, he added.

"Openness and participation in government should be fundamental," said Steve Carter, state chairperson for Common Cause, a national citizens' lobby.

"THE PUBLIC SHOULD know what is going on," he added.

Legislatures should be funded by the public rather than through private special interest groups, he said.

"The public would understand the issues better if legislators would be totally funded by it instead of special interest groups and business lobbies," Carter said.

Health care for women target of big business

By LESA DOLL
State News Staff Writer

The high-powered technology and economy of the medical profession forces many women to seek alternative methods of health care, said area midwife Pia Taavila at a panel discussion Wednesday night.

The discussion, on "The Big Business of Women's Health Care," was offered as a part of "Big Business Days," sponsored by the Public Interest Research Group in Michigan.

Taavila said patriarchal attitudes of male doctors make women money-making targets in gynecological and obstetrics fields.

"There's this whole patriarchal attitude of 'you're my daughter, I'm your father. I'll take care of this,'" Taavila said. "It's all capital gain. The more doctors are able to do this the more money they can get."

Judy Aulet, a women's studies instructor at MSU, said health care is used as a tool of the economic system.

THE TOOL IS often targeted at women because of "the whole power that gives the mother the impression that she is incompetent," Taavila added.

"They look to power authorities for the knowledge they do have," she said.

"Ever since medicine has started to become a business there have been certain sections that have been the target," Sue Gold, of DES Action/Alert, said.

The panel discussed different examples of the misuse of women by the health profession, including routine pelvic exams, unneeded medication, sterilization and the production of harmful, unneeded infant products.

One example of this, Gold said, was the use of DES to prevent miscarriage about 20 years ago. The drug, found to be a cause of a rare cancer in the daughters of women who took it, was given to many women before its full effects were realized, she said.

"YOU HAVE A 'Catch 22' with a lot of doctors," Gold said. "They do not let women know what they're giving them and the women don't ask."

"The question's not as much who is responsible but that these women were treated like children," she said.

"DES is a good example of a drug industry trying to get a good hold economically and also reflects the medical professions whole view of women," she said.

Another mistreatment of women is demonstrated in the Nestle, Inc., promotion of infant formula to Third World women and the subsequent sale of that formula at high prices, Taavila said.

Taavila explained the formula has become a "status symbol" for Third World women, who are misled by Nestle claims that the formula (continued on page 16)

Woody's spirit hurts 'Sam'

By MARY TINNEY
State News Reviewer

The Performing Arts Company couldn't have taken a greater risk when it chose to perform Woody Allen's Play It Again, Sam. Even Hamlet would have been safer. After all, there are dozens of interpretations of Shakespeare floating around. But there is, undeniably, only one Woody Allen. And that, unfortunately is what cripples this production before the actors even take the stage.

Allen and his work are, for a certain determined minority, national institutions. He represents with amusing and disturbing clarity, the sorry state of our species not only with his work but with his entire neurotic persona. And although PAC makes a valiant, not wholly unsuccessful, attempt to recreate the man and his humor, the ghost of Woody Allen is impossible to exorcise from the play. You find yourself laughing at the familiar lines only because you can picture Allen saying them . . . after all, nobody could say it better.

This is not to say Play It Again, Sam is a failure. There are, in fact, some fine performances. Don Weingust's portrayal of Allan Felix is the best. Weingust certainly looks the part. He's small, energetic and effectively self-conscious. At times it seems his actions are overemphasized and his already extreme personality overstated, but in general he carries the role with confidence. It's disconcerting just the same that he tries so hard to be an exact imitation of Allen. The closeness of his interpretation makes it that more obvious that he's not Woody Allen — on the other hand, if you chose to produce a familiar play, inextricably tied to such a familiar personality, how could you interpret the personality in any other way?

It is certainly true that on the rare moments when Weingust leaves the stage, the play loses most of its appeal. Lawrence Baisch's characterization of Felix's best friend, Dick Christie, is downright boring, and Jane C. Salutz' portrayal of Dick's wife Linda is confusing to those who understand Linda the way that Allen obviously did when he created the character . . . the way that Diane Keaton obviously did by being the model and later the vehicle for that character. Salutz' Linda is entirely too mindless. She dresses like a fashion model and delivers her lines with "dumb blonde" solicitedness that seems to destroy the appeal of the character for the audience, as, it would seem, it would destroy the appeal of the character for Allan Felix.

Salutz' portrayal is characteristic of the interpretation of the other female roles, which leads to a major criticism of this particular production — the play, as the PAC presents it, is remarkably sexist . . . an affliction that Allen managed to avoid for the most part in his film version. It's due to the annoyingly ineffectual, vacant renditions of all the female characters — Linda Christie is the most obvious and extreme example. There is even an incredibly offensive exchange between Felix and Linda that, regardless of respect for the author, should definitely be censored in the interest of good taste. Felix states, "They say that the secret desire of every woman is to be raped." Linda replies, "It depends on who's doing the raping . . . No one would even attempt with my luck." It might have been funny 10 years ago when the play was written (though barely), but it certainly didn't sit well with the audience Wednesday night, and it would be in the best interest of the play to axe the line.

Then we have Gregg Schulte as the phantom Bogey. In what is an even more familiar and therefore difficult role to recreate, Schulte does a nice job. His impression is far from exact, but he refrains from forcing a literal rendition of the role and the result is fine. Cindy Zeitz, too, is good as Felix' ex-wife Nancy.

The set is especially nice — there are hanging drawings of Bogart in some of his more famous films about the set, and when Felix begins one of his frequent fantasies, the lights go down on the set and up on the Bogie prints. It's an interesting and inventive effect. The music, however, before the play and during the intermission was godawful. It sounded like a cross between a saber dance and a Sousa march. I'd be interested to know what director Frank Rutledge was possibly trying to evoke with these obnoxious selections.

Allan Felix (Don Weingust) discusses the problems of relationships with his friend, Linda Christie (Jane C. Salutz) in the PAC production of Woody Allen's Play It Again, Sam, which continues through Saturday in Fairchild Theater.

Play It Again, Sam is a very funny play, and if you've never the film, you will no doubt enjoy PAC's production immensely. But if you have seen the film, then you'll anticipate the funniest lines and be a little disappointed when they're not delivered exactly as Keaton and Allen delivered them; and when the play finally reaches the climactic scene where Felix sacrifices Linda to her husband, it just doesn't seem to work staged in Felix' apartment rather than at a foggy airport (especially when Felix misquotes Casablanca). Now all this is not really the fault of the PAC. It's just that the humor of Woody Allen is too much tied to the personality of Woody Allen to be all that effectively interpreted by anyone else.

Play It Again, Sam runs through Saturday. Showtime is 8:15 p.m. in Fairchild Theater. Tickets are $4.

'Star Trek' will return

NEW YORK (UPI) — The voyage of the starship Enterprise has not ended and Star Trek will return in a movie sequel and possibly some new television dramas.

That comes straight from Walter Koenig, who as Mr. Chekov has guided the controls of the Enterprise — always under the direction of Captain Kirk, of course.

Koenig said in an interview that he understands Paramount has given the go-ahead for a new motion picture — a sequel to Star Trek — The Motion Picture that proved a hit at the box office.

He said William Shatner and Leonard Nimoy — for the benefit of non-Trekkies, they originated the roles of Capt. Kirk and Mr. Spock on the television series — are obligated by contract for the sequel.

"There also are rumors that Star Trek will be brought back as a kind of mini-series," Koenig said. "It would be a two-hour motion picture for television, with several episodes broadcast over the television year."

By BOB FONOROFF

State News Special Writer
Ellen McIlwaine, The Son Seals Blues Band, Leroy Jenkins, and The World Saxophone Quartet. After Sunday's performances, we may need Monday off to recuperate!

Ellen McIlwaine's career is in a state of reorganization after some major setbacks with the music industry. In 1978, she was toasted at a luncheon in Atlanta's fashionable Peachtree Plaza by United Artists Records for her first UA release entitled Ellen McIlwaine. Industry observers felt the album had more potential for commercial success than any of McIlwaine's four previous albums for other labels, all commercial failures.

And in honor of her musical contributions while residing in Atlanta, Mayor Maynard Jackson had proclaimed "Ellen McIlwaine Day."

In 1979, Ellen McIlwaine found herself with no record company, no management. Nothing. United Artists had been bought out by Capitol Records, and the company saw no future in her. An appearance last fall at Lizard's (now Rick's American Cafe) was a total disaster due to a faltering sound system. No one bothered to help out and the second set didn't even go on that night.

This woman has had her problems. Promoters are hesitant to put her on with other female acts in concert. (Why I don't know.) It must be frustrating. "They won't even let Bonnie Raitt play on my albums," she has said.

This year may turn things around. She's a tough performer on stage. Her vocal style is omnipresent, dynamic and forceful. She defies the music industry's belief that a woman cannot play a loud, powerful guitar, because she does exactly that.

The problem with the blues scene today is that there isn't enough room at the top for more than one universally known blues artist, and that is B.B. King. But one day B.B. will have to step down, and there will be someone to take his place. Guitarist Son Seals hopes to be the one. Seals grew up in Osceola, Ark., in a house adjoining his father's juke joint called The Dipsy Doodle Club, famous for "blues in the front, dice in the back." It was there that Son learned how to play guitar and drums from his father.

Later, he found himself on the road as a drummer, working with such notables as Albert King. After working with King, Son decided to go back to playing guitar fulltime. However, it is his drumming experience which gives Son Seals a guitar style that is crisp and rhythmic. You may hear traces of other guitar styles in his work — which is inevitable with the blues — but mostly you will hear Son Seals. He is only 35, and some writers consider him to be one of the last great bluesmen. This is yet to be seen, but some of the other musicians playing the festival plan to see his Sunday afternoon performance. Maybe they know something we don't.

Sunday night, Leroy Jenkins and the World Saxophone Quartet will bring the festival to a close. Jenkins will perform a solo violin concert. This should be a real challenge for the artist, because there is nothing for him to fall back upon. Jenkins is an extraordinary musician, and he has more than enough versatility to pull it off.

Leroy Jenkins combines different musical attitudes with various techniques he has developed over the years. At 48, he is not a newcomer to music. He is more interested in the music he makes, rather than making himself a "star." His work with the Chicago-based AACM (The Association for the Advancement of Creative Musicians), the CCC (Creative Construction Company), and The Revolutionary Ensemble in the past 10 years exemplify Jenkins' desire to find new ways of expression in music through the use of new instruments and original compositions. He has performed and recorded over the years with Archie Shepp, Anthony Braxton and the late Rasaan Roland Kirk. Jenkins recalls an appearance at the Ann Arbor Blues and Jazz Festival as one of his career highlights.

The World Saxophone Quartet is playing the jazz of the 1980s, according to some of the top music writers around the world. Formed in 1976, the Quartet brings together four talented musicians: Julius Hemphill, Oliver Lake, David Murray and Hamiet Bluiett who play a variety of saxophones, flutes and clarinets.

They incorporate a multitude of textures and sounds, playing without any bass or percussion instruments. It is this approach, abandoning the "mandatory" rhythmic foundation, that puts the World Saxophone Quartet into the forefront of today's avant-garde music.

The idea of an unaccompanied saxophone goes back to an old Coleman Hawkins record entitled "Picasso." Sonny Rollins, John Coltrane and Anthony Braxton have employed this technique over the past 30 years, but the WSQ has brought this art form to life with the power of their individual sounds. Although lacking a rhythm section, the Quartet makes up for this by playing rhythm for each other.

The WSQ is not very well known in the United States. However, recent appearances in New York City and the San Francisco area brought large crowds and an enthusiastic response from critics. If avant-garde music interests you at all, then Sunday night's performance is right up your alley. Those in attendance Sunday night will get some new insights into the state of avant-garde music and where it's going. After reading and listening to the WSQ, I am both curious and excited. It should be a great night of music.

So there you have it. The first annual East Lansing Blues and Jazz Festival. It starts tonight and runs through Sunday night. If you think any of these artists may appeal to you, by all means go see them. Many of the acts appearing at the festival will not be playing in a 450-seat hall again, and Erickson Kiva is a great place to see a concert. See you there.

THIS WEEKEND

CONCERT DEPT. This weekend is East Lansing's first annual Blues and Jazz Festival presented by Mariah Folk & Blues and Showcase jazz. This full weekend — with all the events held in the Erickson Kiva — starts off tonight with Dave Bromberg and special guest Sippie Wallace. Shows are at 8:30 and 11 p.m., and tickets at the door will be $7.50.

Saturday, jazz artist Gil Scott-Heron will give shows at 2 and 4:30 p.m.; tickets are $8 at the door. At 8:30 and 11 p.m. Saturday, the Dixie Dregs with special guest Alive! will entertain. Tickets are $6.50 at the door.

And Sunday at 2 and 4:30 p.m., the Son Seals Blues Band will perform along with Ellen McIlwaine as its special guest. Tickets are $6 at the door. That night at 8 and 10:30, you can see the World Saxophone Quartet with guest Leroy Jenkins for $7.50 at the door. To buy tickets in advance — at $1 less than these door prices — better get down to the Union box office before noon today when the advance sale ends.

Ten Pound Fiddle presents a double feature in Williams Hall at 8 tonight with The Folkellers from North Carolina and the popular Bill Staines on his fourth visit to MSU. Admission is $3.

Contemporary music lovers should check out Jocundry's, 210 M.A.C., new music recital at 2 p.m. Sunday and hear original piano music of composer Steven Noll and Randall Wolfe's musical accompaniment to e.e. cummings' poetry.

THEATRE DEPT. Oh, there's plenty this weekend. BoarsHead Theatre completes its run of The Collected Works of Billy the Kid, an avant garde drama for mature audiences. Call 484-7805 for ticket information. Also finishing its run is Michigami, the puppet production in the Arena Theatre for $1.50. Call 355-0148 for the times of their Saturday and Sunday shows.

Opening in the area are two new productions, the PAC's Play it Again, Sam at the Fairchild Theater, 8:15 to night, Saturday, and Sunday. Call 355-0148 for ticket information.

The other new play is the Okemos Barn's Joseph & the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat, a rock-opera by the people who wrote Jesus Christ Superstar. Call 349-4340 for ticket information.

FLATT AND SCRUGGS AND ABRAMS DEPT. Abrams Planetarium is presenting an evening of bluegrass (supplied by East Lansing's favorite pickers, the Bluegrass Extension Service) with a cosmic show of laser lights. This show is Saturday only at 4, 8 and 10 p.m. Tickets are $3 (at Elderly Instruments, Recordland or at the door). Tonight and Sunday, Abrams reverts to its current show, Cosmic Fireworks, of which times and admissions can be obtained by the phoning of the number 355-4672.

OH KRESGE MY KRESGE DEPT. Today commences the Undergraduate Art Exhibit at the Kresge Art Gallery — don't miss it! Hours are today from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday from 1 to 4 p.m.

MOVIES DEPT. Two new films coming to town today. One is Jesus, the dignified religious picture from the Genesis Project by the same studio that brought you Life of Brian. It opens at the Michigan. At the M-78 Drive-In is The Hearse, which is (surprise, surprise) a horror film. We hear that Breaking Away (the film nominated for Best Picture and awarded a Best Original Screenplay Oscar) is on the bill with Norma Rae (also nominated for Best Picture and awarded Best Actress for Sally Field's performance) both at the Campus Theatre starting today.

Classic Films presents Fellini's newest work Orchestra Rehearsal, an elaborate and ingenious metaphor for the decline of Western society — an incisive political film. It'll be shown tonight and Saturday at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. and Sunday at 8 p.m. in 109 Anthony Hall. Admission is $1.50, or $1 with an RHA pass. On the bill with Fellini is Asparagus, an animation cult favorite that's BIZARRE.

RHA hauls out Woody Allen's dated but hilarious Sleeper, Bill Holdship's favorite super-schmaltz, Rocky II, and their best presentation of the weekend, Taxi Driver, starring an intense and incomparable Robert DeNiro as a self-appointed minion of law and order — a great film. Call 355-0313 for times and places.

If you don't like Fellini's Orchestra Rehearsal, then why not see The Girls In the Band, the porno from Beal at 7:30, 9 and 10:30 p.m. and midnight tonight and Saturday in B-106 Wells. Admission is $2.50, and Beal assures us that there will be bonus sneak previews at some showings. Jill Clayburgh doesn't spare the rod and still spoils the child in Bertolucci's recent Luna, about INCEST the Italian way. It's in 100 Engineering Bldg. at 7:30 and 9:30 tonight and tomorrow night for $2.

Pilobolus Dance Theatre on campus this week

The Pilobolus Dance Theatre, a troupe of young artists who combine dance, acrobatics and mime, will perform at 8:15 p.m. Monday and Wednesday in the MSU Auditorium. The event is part of the Lecture-Concert Series Lively Arts & Choice series.

The company will present two different programs. The Monday concert will tentatively feature six numbers including "Ciona," a 1974 work commissioned by the American Dance Festival, and "Monks' Farewell," described by one reviewer as "the company's medieval piece: a world peopled by gargoyles, jousting knights and pilgrims-in-progress."

The company is also expected to present "The Empty Sutor" (1980) — a number it choreographed for performance at the 1980 Winter Olympics — at the Wednesday night concert.

The Pilobolus Dance Theatre got its start with the meeting of Dartmouth College undergraduates Moses Pendleton and Jonathan Wolken, who were both taking choreography classes at the time. Gymnastically inclined, the men began to develop dance routines together. Wolken came up with the company's name from his study of biology at Dartmouth. He describes "pilobolus" as a "rather bawdy little fungus."

The company began with four male artists, but it has now expanded to include two females and another male. In addition to its Winter Olympics appearance, the troupe has staged concerts on Broadway and traveled extensively in the United States and abroad.

Jonathan Wolken and Pilobolus member Michael Tracy will also conduct master classes with students in MSU's dance program on Tuesday, April 22. Registration deadline is Monday, and those interested should call Dixie Durr at 355-4762.

Tickets for both performances are on sale at the Union box office ranging from $6 to $8.50; half-price for students.

THE ORGAN

The Roaring Twenties presents — the Mighty WurliTzer Theatre Pipe Organ — star of yesteryear, when silent movies dominated the silver screens of the movie palaces. Created to accompany the various moods and actions of the films, the pipe organ was introduced to replace the rising costs of pit orchestras and pianists who originally provided background music for stage shows and films. Led by the Rudolph WurliTzer Company of North Tonawanda, New York, these "Unit Orchestras" produces the orchestral sounds of the symphony and the stirring rhythms of the military band. In addition, the theatre organ possesses many percussion effects, such as, xylophone, glockenspiel and marimba harp; with train whistles, klaxon horns, telephone bells and bird whistles as standard sound effects used to emphasize the action of the movies. A toy counter features individual band instruments, such as, a bass drum, snaredrum, tambourine, castanets and cymbals — all of these sounds controlled by one individual seated at the organ's horseshoe shaped console. The magnificent pipe organ installed in the Roaring 20's restaurant represents the ultimate in modern theatre organ construction.

10-TEAM FIELD EXPECTED

Trackmen host MSU Invitational

By WILL KOWALSKI
State News Sports Writer

A 10-team field of in-state and regional colleges will congregate at Ralph Young Field Saturday for the first annual Michigan State Track Invitational.

Spartan coach Jim Bibbs is hoping for some sunny spring weather Saturday and expects a lot of fine competition from the strong field of teams.

Along with a full Spartan squad, the universities of Michigan and Toledo, Western Michigan, Central Michigan and Eastern Michigan universities, Hillsdale, Siena Heights and Saginaw Valley colleges, and Northwood Institute, will be in attendance.

"ALL AROUND THERE'S going to be many great athletes participating at the meet in a lot of close races, and I sure do hope our first home meet of the indoor season can take place in some nice weather," Bibbs said.

MSU's All-America performers Randy Smith, Keith Moore and Paul Piwinski will all be on hand to show their stuff and all three will be facing tough competitors in their particular events.

Smith, a senior, will run the 100-meter race along with fellow Spartans Andre Williams and Don Muhammad, and will be hotly contested by the Wolverines' Butch Woolfolk.

Moore, also a senior, will run the 1,500-meter race with Scott Brasington, and finds his toughest competition from Keith Bailey of Eastern Michigan.

PIWINSKI, A FRESHMAN, will high jump with Daryl Dimond, Tom Elzinga and Mark Adkins, and will most likely fight it out with CMU's Mike Winsor for the first-place position.

Smith will also compete in the 200-meter race with Williams and Ken Eaton, and should find Northwood's Kevin Jones making it close at the finish line.

Other running events feature Eaton in the high hurdles; Tyrone Williams and Robb Murphy in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles; Ricky Flowers, Calvin Thomas and Gerald Cain in the quarter mile; Tim Kenney and Jeff Lewis in the 800-meter run; and Martin Schulist and Brasington in the 5,000-meter run and the 3,000-meter steeple chase.

IN OTHER FIELD events, Jerome Judd and Paul Giles will be in the long jump; Jim Stewart and Mark Zuverink will pole vault; and Dave Prieskorn will be in both the shot put and the discus throw.

Tony Gilbert, a transfer student from Santa Barbara City College, will compete with Eaton in the high hurdles.

The preliminaries begin at 10 a.m., while the final races and events start at noon.

Batters take show on the road

By BILL TEMPLETON
State News Sports Writer

The MSU baseball team takes its 5-17 overall record on the road this weekend for twinbills at the universities of Minnesota and Wisconsin.

The Spartans are 0-2 in the Big Ten. They opened defense of the conference title they won a year ago with a pair of losses last weekend at the hands of the University of Michigan.

The Badgers are first on the agenda this weekend as the two teams will tangle in Madison, Wis., Saturday.

WISCONSIN WAS SECOND in the Big Ten last year and owns a 4-12-1 record this year.

The Badgers' designated hitter, James Barwick, leads the team in hitting with a .367 average, while third baseman Craig Zirbel is at a .298 clip.

MSU will see two right-handed pitchers against Wisconsin, as the Badgers will go with Dean Rennie and Steve Marsden in the two-game set. Rennie is currently 3-2 with a 6.00 earned run average, while Marsden is 1-2 with a 6.70 ERA.

Following the twinbill with Wisconsin, MSU takes its act to Minneapolis for a Sunday pair.

Minnesota, 8-8 on the season, is hitting .270 as a team. Designated hitter Tim Klis is the pacesetter with a .375 average. The Golden Gophers also boast the talents of third baseman Dave Francour (.300) and freshman shortstop Bill Pwinea (.364).

Minnesota has named just one pitcher for the series, while it is unsure about the other hurler. Bob Meyer is the Gophers' only solid choice at this time.

THE SPARTANS SPLIT games a year ago with Minnesota, while sweeping the Badgers.

MSU head coach Danny Litwhiler has named his pitchers for the four games this weekend, but is unsure as to the order. Seniors Brian Wolcott (1-3) and Jay Strother (1-4), junior Phil Magsig (1-2) and freshman Terry Johnson (2-2, 2.45 ERA) will be on the mound.

Senior left fielder Ken Robinson leads the Spartans with a .343 batting average, and is tops in every other offensive category. Sophomore shortstop Al Dankovich is hitting at a .327 clip, and junior outfielder Mark Russ is at .317.

MSU is hitting just .245 as a team, while their opponents have hit for an average of .280.

MSU hosts Wooster in 'must-win' game

By WILL KOWALSKI
State News Sports Writer

The MSU lacrosse team found out Wednesday afternoon why Denison College is ranked seventh in the nation.

The Ohio opponent ripped the Spartans, 18-3, which forces the laxers to regroup for Saturday's home battle against Wooster College.

The game will be played on Old College Field beginning at 3 p.m., and it is a must-win situation for MSU.

The laxers now stand at 4-4 overall and 1-2 in the Midwest Lacrosse Association standings, and if coach Nevin Kanner's hopes for the MLA crown this season are to be realized, a victory over Wooster is of great necessity.

"WOOSTER IS COMPARABLE to Ashland in their style, but this time I hope we come out on the winning end," Kanner said, reflecting on MSU's 12-10 loss to Ashland last weekend.

"They're a well disciplined team with strong midfield lines and a good defense. They like to double-team the ball a lot, so we'll be trying to hit the open man as much as possible.

"We've got to move the ball well to be successful, and the team knows it has to regroup after the way Denison beat us."

The Denison game was a costly one for the Spartans as senior co-captain Mark Pinto took a crushing hit early in the third quarter which damaged his left ankle. The seriousness of the injury has not yet been determined, but Kanner said he is sure Pinto will be out of action for a while.

"AS BEST AS we can tell right now the ankle is severely sprained," Kanner said, "but it's possible there might be a break and we won't know for sure until more tests are run over the weekend."

As if Pinto's loss was not enough, leading scorer Kevin Willits was forced to leave the game in the second period after the pinched nerve in his hip acted up again. His ability to play against Wooster tomorrow is still up in the air.

The Spartans also were without the services of Jay Hungerford and Ken Horan against Denison because of earlier

Women's track team opens at home against U-M, EMU

By BEN WELMERS
State News Sports Writer

The MSU women's track and field team opens its 1980 home outdoor season when it hosts the University of Michigan and Eastern Michigan University in a triangular meet on Ralph Young Field at 10 a.m. Saturday.

So far the only outdoor competition the Spartans have seen was a 10-day road trip to Tennessee, Florida and Alabama March 16 through 25 and they performed well.

Since returning to Michigan, however, unfavorable weather has restricted the women's workouts to the track in Jenison Fieldhouse.

"We have not been able to do much outdoors because it's been so cold," head coach Nell Jackson said. "We haven't done any quality work outside."

Several Spartan runners made a strong showing during the spring road trip, including freshmen standouts Diane Williams, Desiree Pritchett and Judie Brown.

Williams was impressive in the 100- and 200-meter events as she took four first-place finishes, on the trip one second and one fourth place. Her best time in the 100 meter is 11.5. She was also part of a Spartan relay squad that edged Tennessee in the 400-meter hurdles.

Brown captured a first-place finish in the 400-meter hurdles over break.

Junior speedster Cheryl Gilliam, who has made her mark on the MSU record books, has continued to be a dependable performer in the sprints and relays.

Gilliam holds MSU indoor records in the 60-meter, 200-meter, 220-yard, and 300-yard events. In the outdoor she owns

HOW GM "PROJECT CENTERS" CREATE CARS

FROM CONCEPT TO CUSTOMER IN THREE YEARS AND THREE BILLION DOLLARS

Throughout the history of the automobile industry, product change was almost always evolutionary. But in 1973, GM determined that the times required revolutionary changes. It started its first Project Center—which by itself heralded a revolution in the use of science and technology to meet the changing demands of the marketplace. A few months later, the Arab countries launched the oil embargo. Fortunately, machinery was already in motion in GM to create and develop new cars and components in a new way and faster than ever before.

GM's first Project Center brought out totally new full-size cars: smaller, yet roomier, and far more efficient than their predecessors. The advertisements said they were "designed and engineered for a changing world"—and they were. Another Project Center, begun in 1975, developed the immensely popular GM X-cars.

Led by the five car divisions, Project Centers gather people, ideas, and knowledge from all 30 divisions and staffs of General Motors. In the first stage, which we call "concepting," experimental engineers, environmental scientists, forward planners, and marketing experts pool their thinking. Their objective: what the marketplace will require. This is the most important stage. Here we must determine not only what kind of car, but how many we might be able to build and sell years later. Economics, customer tastes, availability of various kinds of fuels must be compared with state-of-the-art technology—and what steps must be taken to advance that technology quickly yet surely.

In the "concepting" stage, a new car is conceived. If the car is to be sold to customers three years later, construction of new plants must begin and basic tooling must be ordered.

The second phase of the Project Center takes 24 to 30 months. It encompasses development, design, structural analysis, handling analysis, emissions, noise and vibration, safety, reliability, serviceability and repairability, manufacturing, assembly, marketing, financing.

Advanced product engineers and research scientists work with the one hundred fifty to two hundred people at the Project Center and thousands more in the staffs and divisions to transfer new science and technology to the new car. Components are hand-built and "cobbled" into existing models for road testing.

Prototype cars are hand-built at a cost of more than $250,000 each. These enable the Project Center team to determine how newly developed, pretested components operate as a unit. Then, pilot models will be built from production tooling and tested some more. New technology, such as structural analysis by computer, saves time. Lead time has been reduced by 25% from ten years ago, when cars were far less complex.

After almost four million miles, nearly three billion dollars, and nearly three years of work, the new cars—quite unlike anything before them—start coming off the production line at a rate of better than one a minute.

There are now eight Project Centers in General Motors. Four are developing new cars using hydrocarbon fuels, one is creating an electric car, and others are working on computerized engines and emission controls, a new kind of automatic transmission, and the inflatable restraint system.

New and revolutionary cars can't be mass-produced for the road overnight. But by putting all the parts of General Motors to work together, we found a way to speed up the process. We have integrated the creativity of thousands of human minds to make invention into reality when it's needed.

This advertisement is part of our continuing effort to give customers useful information about their cars and trucks and the company that builds them.

Netwomen blank CMU, go to Kentucky

By JOHN VAN WAGONER

The MSU women's tennis team broke its five-match losing streak Wednesday with an impressive 8-1 home win over Central Michigan University.

The victory lifts the Spartans' overall record to 6-9 as they head to Lexington, Ky., this weekend for matches against the University of Georgia Saturday and the University of Kentucky Sunday.

All news was not good news Wednesday for MSU as it had to play without top singles player Monty Gettys.

GETTYS SUSTAINED A concussion after passing out in her residence hall room Monday. Coach Earl Rutz Jr. said it would be questionable whether she will be able to make the road trip this weekend.

"It will be up to Monty and how she feels as to whether she will be with us on the trip, but she does have a doctor's clearance," said Rutz.

With the absence of Gettys, all the singles players moved up one notch against CMU and Diane Dunn was introduced into the starting six.

Taking over the No. 1 spot was freshman Jill Grinberg. Grinberg had no trouble in disposing of Robin Walker in straight sets 6-1, 6-1.

PLAYING NO.2, Cindy Bogdonas defeated Mary Hop in a quick, 38-minute match, 6-0, 6-1 and Sue Kim controlled Cindy Bagley 6-1, 6-1 in the No. 3 spot.

In one of the tougher matches of the day, Jennifer Tewes (No. 4) defeated Becky Crespo, 6-3, 6-3, and in only 35 minutes No. 5 Pam Pierce beat Missy Chapman 6-0, 6-0. Rounding out the lineup, Dunn defeated Teresa Bisse in straight sets 6-4, 6-2.

"I didn't think Central would be very hard and once we started playing them they were easier than I thought," Rutz said.

"BUT I AM still very happy with this win and it is just the right thing to give our girls the confidence they needed. It also showed them that in some of the matches they had lost recently that they were not too far behind, talent-wise."

MSU has already faced Kentucky once this season and came out on the short end of a 6-3 score. Rutz does not know much about Georgia except that it has a better team than Kentucky.

"I feel if we play as good as we can this weekend we will have a good shot at winning both matches," said Rutz.

MSU soccer host

Thanks to the cancellation of an Ohio team in competition this weekend, MSU is finding itself host to an impromptu state soccer championship instead.

When Miami University canceled a pair of games, the University of Michigan picked up the slack, bringing together the four women's soccer teams in the state for a shot at a state crown.

Central Michigan University and Kalamazoo College will join with Michigan in attempting to take away the title from the defending state champion Spartans, winner in a similar tournament at Oakland University last spring, on the MSU turf.

Central and Kalamazoo square off in the single elimination tourney Saturday at 11 a.m. and Michigan pairs off with the Spartan booters at 1 p.m. on the varsity field.

The championship match will be 4 p.m. Sunday with a third-place game at 1 p.m.

MSU is 5-1 this season, including two victories over U-M and another over Central Michigan. The Spartans finished second in a tournament in Cincinnati last weekend.

Ex-Piston Lanier happy man in playoffs with Milwaukee

By MICHAEL V. USCHAN

United Press International

MILWAUKEE — Bob Lanier says he does not have many goals left in his pro basketball career, save an NBA championship.

And Lanier, who was traded to Milwaukee by Detroit earlier this year, is nearing that goal.

"It's the creme de la creme, it's the end all," he says in a wistful voice, smiling at the thought of it. "I can't think of anything I want more at this time."

THE BUCKS LEAD the Seattle Superonics 3-2 in their Western Conference semifinal series going into game six Friday night in Milwaukee.

For years, Lanier was the Pistons' mainstay, leading them in scoring and rebounding. The team, however, went into a tailspin in recent years.

At the All-Star break the Bucks sent center Kent Benson and a first-round draft choice in 1980 to Detroit for Lanier, a 31-year-old center of questionable health.

Lanier has had trouble with his knees in the past and was coming off a six-week layoff due to a broken bone in his finger.

It was a gamble, but it paid off. The Bucks won 20 of their last 26 regular season games to win the Midwest Division title with a 49-33 record.

LANIER AVERAGED 15.7 points and nearly seven rebounds a game and solidified the Bucks' defense. He came through in the clutch and surprised some people by fitting in easily with young stars like Marques Johnson, Brian Winters and Junior Bridgeman.

"You are beyond that when you get to this stage," he said of any jealousy or ego problems. "It has to do with maturity and getting economic security. After that, you set your sights on different things."

Lanier starred in college at St. Bonaventure and went to the Pistons in the 1970 draft. He has been in seven All-Star games and the Pistons made the playoffs four straight seasons from 1973 to 1976 before going into a decline.

LAST SEASON HE averaged nearly 24 points and snared 494 rebounds but his team tied for fourth with a 30-52 record. The Pistons got off to a poor start and, without Lanier in the second half, had even more problems.

V-Clubs meet

Men's and women's varsity clubs will meet Sunday. The men's club will meet at 6:30 p.m. in the Varsity Club Room in Spartan Stadium, while the women will hold their meeting at 6 p.m. in the downstairs lounge of the IM Sports-Circle. All new letter-winners are encouraged to attend.

Freshman Jill Grinberg readies for a return in MSU's 9-0 rout of Central Michigan University Wednesday. The women's tennis team raised its season record to 6-9.

Gibbs shoots for nationals

MSU gymnast Marvin Gibbs will be vying for a shot at the USGF Elite Nationals Saturday and Sunday when Jenison Fieldhouse hosts the U.S. Gymnastics Federation Regional Trials.

Gibbs, a junior, will be one of 10 regional competitors at the meet, held on Jenison's third floor.

A two-day total of 108-points or more qualifies the performer for the Nationals, which takes place April 25 through 27 at Ohio State University. Gibbs has already come as close as 107.55 points in previous performances.

Compulsories will be held at 7 p.m. Saturday and admission is free. Options begin at 2 p.m. Sunday, and admission for that session is $1 for MSU students and $2 for the general public.

Laxers look for win

injuries, and the whole affair left Kanner with little to smile about.

"We just don't have the experience or the depth to be able to lose players and still stay close to a team as good as Denison," Kanner said.

"WITHOUT OUR BEST players out there it was like taking a basketball team that hasn't played together for two years and then throwing them against Indiana University."

If it was any consolation, the Spartans kept Denison scoreless in the final period even without the nucleus of the team playing, and Kanner was happy with MSU goaltender Jim Sanford's performance despite the 18 goals scored against him.

"Jim made 25 saves in the game, so added to the 18 goals that's over 40 shots that were taken on him," Kanner said.

"All of their scores were point-blank shots with men cutting across the field, so despite the final score I thought he did a commendable job."

The Spartans had taken a 1-0 lead in the game on a goal by Willits but after that it was all downhill. Willits added a second tally in the second quarter, giving him 25 in six games. Pinto scored MSU's third goal.

Ticket computer errors cleared up

By SCOTT SAUNDERS

Each fall MSU students must compete with the public and an Arkansas computer to get seats in Spartan Stadium.

Last fall, students lost the competition.

Many students were told there were not enough season tickets, and then the computer gave some students the wrong seats.

"It behooves us to sell as many general public season seats as possible," said Assistant Athletic Director Bill Beardsley.

THIS IS BECAUSE general public season tickets sell for $10 per game, while student tickets cost $5.

Because the Athletic Council is 90 percent self-supporting, the more general public tickets sold, the more money there is for a fund used primarily to pay the debt on Munn Ice Arena.

"We never had any guidelines as far as how many tickets

we had to save for the student body," Beardsley said.

Season ticket sales are based on the previous season's sales.

WHEN STUDENTS RETURNED to campus and wanted more tickets than expected, a shortage developed. Tickets were sold to the public earlier in the season, when public demand was the greatest and students were not yet on campus.

"Had we saved 1,000 of those (student tickets), we were that close," said Beardsley. "We would have been able to take care of everybody who wanted tickets."

Student ticket sales were not anticipated to be near the end result. In the 1979-80 season, student sales were 22,500. In the last 10 years, sales had not been over 17,000. The demand was not expected, Beardsley said.

BUT THE ERROR had been made. And students were still competing for season tickets.

For security reasons, MSU football tickets are printed by computer by a national printing firm in Arkansas. Tickets are printed by section, row and seat.

Seats in the student sections are measured wider than elsewhere in the stadium. The computer failed to make the change in seat size, creating extra seats in the aisles.

"WE SHOULD HAVE caught it (the computer error) in our audit," Beardsley said. "We caught it in all but two sections."

About 900 of 7,000 students were affected by the computer miscue.

Beardsley said the printer was made aware of the error. The same printer and printing process will be used next fall, with more caution exercised in the audit.

Beardsley said he anticipates no problems like those of the 1979 season next fall.

the 200-meter dash as well as being other team records as a member of relay squads.

Junior Kelly Spatz is also a reliable mid-distance runner who holds the outdoor team record for the 3,000-meter and shares the two-mile relay indoor record.

Jackson said with the new additions to the team and improvements by returnees she hopes her team will make up the small point difference that put her squad in third place last season behind the University of Wisconsin and Ohio State University.

However, before the Spartans have hit their stride this outdoor season they have lost a few key members.

Sophomore Molly Brennan, who holds records in the 400-meter dash and 400-meter hurdles, and senior distance runner Lisa Berry are both on the injured list.

Senior Pam Swanigan and junior Linda Wright have both left the team for personal reasons.

Now it's Vikki's turn to leave MSU

By GERRY SKOCZYLAS

"Bye-bye, Miss American Pie" — Don McLean.

First it was Earvin Johnson to leave MSU before he was expected to. Then it was football coach Darryl Rogers and Athletic Director Joe Kearney who headed for warmer pastures.

Now it is varsity cheerleader Vikki Wiegand's turn to leave East Lansing.

Yes, friends, Vikki Wiegand, that sweetheart of the Spartan Spirits, national champion cheerleader, and racquetball player extraordinaire, is transferring to Oakland University in Rochester April 29.

For those not familiar with the MSU cheerleaders, Vikki Wiegand is the petite bundle of energy with the "killer smile" and soft eyes that could melt any guy's heart, who is famous for skydiving from the top of the squad's various mounts.

Vikki, it seems, intends to pursue a career in physical therapy, and she learned recently that she was one of only 24 applicants to be accepted at Oakland University's School of Physical Therapy. Vikki said that being accepted by Oakland works out best for her because now she can live at home in Troy and drive a few miles north to the OU campus in nearby Rochester.

And it was in her native Troy that Vikki's athletic-cheerleading career first began.

"I've been a cheerleader ever since the fifth grade," said Vikki, "but I think being involved with gymnastics has helped me here on MSU's squad."

In high school, Vikki was a state champion on the balance beam and in ninth grade her school won the state title as well.

A 1977 graduate of Troy Athens High, Vikki came to MSU with no particular athletic goals in mind, but her love of competition sent her into cheerleading.

"My freshman year, I went crazy because I didn't have anything to do," Vikki noted, "so that's when I first looked into cheerleading."

Vikki, of course, was a member of MSU's 1978-79 cheerleading team, and the national championship the squad won surprised her.

"We weren't serious about it until we learned that we had made the final five," Vikki noted, "so after that, we started putting in 20 to 25 hours per week preparing for it."

The national championship almost never came for Vikki Wiegand, however, because she suffered a dislocated elbow during practice for the finals.

The doctors told Vikki that her arm wouldn't be strong enough in time — but she was not to be denied. So, she went on a program of exercising and weight lifting to strengthen her arm.

Vikki said she did not want to hinder the squad if her arm was not OK, but she was determined to get it in shape.

The rest, as they say, is history. The squad gave Vikki the "OK," they went to Provo, Utah, in March 1979, and came back with the National Cheerleading Championship.

Reflecting on her decision to transfer, Vikki says: "It was a tough decision to make, but I didn't want to stay here and pursue a field I didn't like, so I decided that going to Oakland was really in my best interests."

Vikki said that she will have many fond memories of MSU and there's little wonder since she was involved in so many activities — cheerleading, working, racquetball, and her social life — all while maintaining a 3.8 average in the classroom.

As her boyfriend and fellow cheerleader Dave Green says, "Vikki's a one-in-a-million girl. I'm really gonna miss her."

You're not the only one Dave, you're not the only one...

Correction

The Forest Akers East golf course, not the West course as was incorrectly stated in Thursday's State News, will be opening this Saturday, April 19, and reservations will be taken beginning at 8 a.m. today.

The West Akers course will open no earlier than Wednesday, April 23.

Slight adjustments in green fees await those who plan to play this weekend as nine-hole rates have been raised from $2 to $2.25 for students, and 18-hole rates are up 50 cents from $3 to $3.50.

These are East course rates only.

IM NOTES

The MSU intramural sports department, in conjunction with the National Intramural Recreational Sports Association and the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports, is offering an opportunity for all students, faculty and staff to earn the Presidential Sports Award.

Forty-three sports, including such popular activities as bicycling, bowling, golf, jogging, racquetball, swimming and tennis, are included.

To participate, sign an entry sheet in 201 IM Sports-West or 121 IM Sports-Circle, pick up a copy of the Qualifying Sports and Standard/Fitness Log, select a sport and complete the log(s).

A $4 fee and the log(s) should be mailed or submitted to the IM offices, where further information on the program is available.

Olympic cagers challenge NBA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Olympic basketball team will play a series of five games against players from the National Basketball Association in "Gold Medal Games" spawned by the American boycott of the Moscow Olympics, officials said Thursday.

It was the first announced alternative participation for American athletes affected by the boycott.

The series will be played in June under the sponsorship of the Olympic basketball officials, the NBA and the NBA Players Association.

The games are scheduled for June 16 in Los Angeles, June 18 in Phoenix, June 20 in Seattle, June 22 in New York and June 23 in Indianapolis. Another game is planned in Greensboro, N.C., pitting the 1978 U.S. Olympic team, which won the gold medal at Montreal, against the 1980 team.

'U' Astronomy Club will present exhibit

Abrams Planetarium and the MSU Astronomy Club will present a special astronomy exhibit from 10 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. Saturday at Meridian Mall.

The exhibit will include slide presentations, a meteorite and a telescope demonstration.

Staff members will be available to answer questions and will hand out information on Astronomy Day.

Gov. William G. Milliken, by an executive declaration on Feb. 20, named April 26 Astronomy Day. This day is also recognized as Astronomy Day in many other states.

Earth Day festivities

kites will be supplied by Michigan National Bank in honor of Earth Day.

• "New Games Festival" will be held Monday in front of the IM Sports-West and is sponsored by PIRGIM-MSU and the MSU Recreation Association. Fun, non-competitive games are promised and, in case of rain, the festival will be held inside the IM building. Music at the games will be provided by the Pretty Shaky String Band.

• A "solar display" of a window box heater and a greenhouse will be at the MSU locomotive on campus Monday. This display is sponsored by PIRGIM-MSU and Urban Options.

• "Earth Fest Celebration" will be sponsored by PIRGIM-MSU and MSU Great Issues and will feature poetry reading and music at noon Tuesday, at Beaumont Tower.

• "ISSUES OF THE 80's: Energy and the Environment" is sponsored by many local environmental groups and features a series of seven workshops on energy issues from 1 to 5 p.m. Tuesday at 331 and 332 Union.

• "Earth Day recycling project" is being sponsored by the MSU Environmental Information Services. Papers will be collected from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday at the Livestock Pavilion, by the MSU locomotive and at McDonell Hall.

• "Michigan's Toxic Legacy" is a discussion by Andy Hogarth and Grant Trigger, water quality specialists from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, on the toxic leakage problems in our state. Sponsored by PIRGIM and MSU Great Issues, the speech will be at 7 p.m. Tuesday in 335 Union.

• "Earth Day Open House" will feature films and a tour from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at 590 Holister Building, Lansing.

wooden stick figures named Ginger Rogers and Jimmy Carter. As the show went on more and more students threw coins and dollars into his case.

In one of his scrapbooks, entitled "The Right to Sing," Baird presents his justification for his singing.

"Some of the individual creative responses and support have been a child's sketch and toys, poems, a student's silk screen print, flowers, a young man's tears — 'all I have' — $60, fruit, invitations to dinner, or an old man's dance," Baird wrote.

After an hour or so Baird took a break to rest his voice and restringing his instruments.

"It made my day," one student commented as he left.

Literature benefits med. students

By JAMES ST. CLAIR

John Keats, George Bernard Shaw, Leo Tolstoy, Joyce Carol Oates.

Works of literature by these and other authors may be the key to medical students gaining humanistic insights and may lead to better patient care, said Jeanne Trautmann, director of the Hershey Center for Humanistic Medicine at Penn State University.

Trautmann, who spoke at MSU Wednesday, said literature has always taken a "back seat" when it came to the teaching of medical humanities.

Trautmann said the teaching of medical humanities began in the 1960s as an offshoot of the medical ethics program, but literature instructors had been hesitant to become involved.

"ONE POSSIBLE REASON for this is that a lot of people would say the teaching of literature to medical students was not an integral part of medicine — that it was 'nice' but not necessary," Trautmann said. "Anyone teaching literature to medical students would be suspect."

Trautmann said literature was still considered "artsy" by leading medical thinkers.

"People look on literature as something that you can teach yourself," she said. "This is especially odd when nearly everyone agrees that we are in a highly illiterate age."

Trautmann suggested another reason why literature was slow to enter the medical humanities field was that people are not sure just what is the connection between literature and medicine.

"Someone outside this room would look on literature and medicine as books to be read while you are sick," she said.

LITERATURE THAT DEALS with human problems and suffering offers medical students a chance to see people as presented by the author, both at a distance and inside the character's mind, she added.

For example, the treatment of the elderly in Patrick White's novel, Eye of the Storm, can provide students with a better insight into problems faced by the elderly than can many professional studies, Trautmann suggested.

She said literature allows students to see more than the medical side of issues such as death, dying, grief and abortion.

"An important distinction about literature is that it not only illustrates medicine, but illuminates it," she said. "Literary thinking can be used as a complement to medical thinking."

COGS confirms funds for program

The Council of Graduate Students discussed, but did not approve, Wednesday a motion to withdraw its funding of a speaker for the EveryWoman's program.

During the committee reports, Treasurer Carl Friedlander announced his committee had approved media funds for several different groups, including EveryWoman's Weekend.

Peter Brown, a representative of the College of Education, initially questioned whether the expenditure should be made in light of the recent controversy over the collec-tive's refusal to allow certain groups to participate.

"They continue to call themselves EveryWoman's Weekend and they continue to say they are open to every viewpoint," Brown said.

Steve Keck, a member of the finance committee, said the decision was made before other University groups began withdrawing funds.

"The problem is purely semantics," Keck said.

Reed Snellenberger, a representative from the College of Engineering, made the motion to withdraw the funds on the grounds that the collective misrepresented their position.

The council did not approve the suspension of the rules required to vote on the motion at that time.

They did, however, approve a motion requesting the COGS president to ask for a clarification of University policy in regard to the groups that withdrew funding.

The council also approved a $400 expenditure for phone and mail costs for the Health Professions Indochina Relief Committee.

Campground hosts needed this summer

The Huron-Manistee National Forests will need 14 "hosts" to volunteer time and energy in a campground setting this summer.

Most volunteers are visitors who have friends or relatives in the community of the campground and have some extra time to help, said Bob Lockhart of the Forest Service.

The campground hosts will stay on the campground at no charge and will supply their own gear, he said.

The program, named "Campground Host," requires volunteers to do light cleanup, keep toilet buildings neat between visits of regular cleanup crews, and provide information to visitors, he said.

Only one person is needed at each campground at any time, Lockhart said, but it is possible for several volunteers to rotate or follow one another.

"We try to get people for a month or more," he said.

For more information, contact the District Ranger for the campground.

The District Rangers are in Manistee, zip code 49660; Cadillac 49601; White Cloud 49349; Mio 48647; and East Tawas 48730.

MSU economics senior wins $3,000 fellowship

Klaus John Kolb, an MSU senior majoring in political science and economics, has been awarded a $3,000 fellowship for graduate study from Phi Kappa Phi, a national scholastic honor society.

Kolb said he plans to study law and economics at Harvard University.

He was one of 40 students selected nationwide from a group of 117 nominees.

Phi Kappa Phi is based on the campus of Louisiana State University and has chapters at 225 colleges and universities throughout the country. Founded in 1897 to recognize academic excellence in all disciplines, it established its fellowship program in 1932.

CONFRONTS JACK ANDERSON

Liddy pushes new book

NEW YORK (AP) — G. Gordon Liddy shook hands with Jack Anderson on Thursday and amiably told the columnist that he would willingly have killed him had the White House given him the go-ahead and would have considered it "justifiable homicide."

Liddy, the Watergate conspirator who had kept silent until now, said he proposed eight years ago that Anderson be murdered for allegedly exposing the identity of a U.S. intelligence agent working abroad — and then waited in vain for an order from the White House to carry out the killing.

Anderson and Liddy were meeting for the first time as they sat down in easy chairs on the set of ABC's Good Morning America television program. Later, at the NBC Today program, Liddy and E. Howard Hunt, his former White House colleague, gave each other a cold shoulder and Hunt was interviewed after Liddy left the set.

LIDDY'S APPEARANCES WERE to promote his just-published autobiography, Will. In the book he also says he planned to kill Hunt in what he considered the likely event that the White House would want Hunt silenced to keep him from telling a grand jury about the Watergate break-in.

Hunt characterized Liddy as a posturer with doubtful credentials as a killer and suggested he was mentally unbalanced.

Liddy said he considered Anderson a fit target for killing because one of his columns had unmasked and probably cost the life of an American intelligence operative abroad.

Anderson denied it and countered that the real reason was that he was hurting President Richard M. Nixon politically.

"We were embarrassing Richard Nixon. We weren't exposing agents. It wasn't national security. It was political security they were worried about," said Anderson.

"SURE ENOUGH, YOU were a pain in the butt," said Liddy, but added: "You were seriously damaging the ability of the U.S. government to conduct foreign policy and diplomacy."

But Liddy also conceded that he did not know, first hand, that Anderson had caused the death of the operative.

"If you say you didn't do it, fine," said Liddy. "I'm certainly not in a position to say you did, because I'm not the one who developed the information. For that I would refer you to Howard Hunt."

Both Liddy and Hunt agreed that they had met with a retired CIA doctor to discuss discrediting Anderson by drugging him with LSD to cause him to behave bizarrely in public. The doctor told them the LSD was too unpredictable to make the plan work.

That was the end of it, according to Hunt.

But Liddy said it was at that point that he said: "What are we fooling around with all this talk about LSD for? What you ought to do is just eliminate him."

He denied that killing Anderson would have been murder.

"MURDER IS A technical term," he said to Anderson. "You call it murder because you think it unjustified. I would say it was justifiable homicide, given the truth of the situation."

By this, he said, he meant that working at the White House, there was "a presumption of regularity." He would not have questioned whether the facts relating to Anderson were correct or considered that a go-ahead to kill Anderson might have been wrong.

Liddy, who served 82 months of a 20-year term for his role in leading the Watergate burglary, said he was telling all now because the statute of limitations had expired for everyone involved.

"Nobody's liberty is put at risk by that book," he said.

"I find only two insights in his book," said Hunt. "One is my inclusion on his hit list . . . The other is final confirmation that Mr. Liddy's mental health needs looking into."

Boy dies in fire in Lansing home

A 3-year old Lansing boy died in a fire in his Lansing home at about 10:30 a.m. Thursday, Lansing Deputy Fire Chief Clarence Peterson said.

Jimmy Norris Jr., of 3416 Radford Road, died of smoke inhalation and heat despite efforts of firefighters to revive him at the scene, Peterson said.

The boy's uncle, Lebon Smith, escaped through a back bedroom window with the aid of a Lansing police officer.

Peterson said.

The boy's parents were not at home at the time of the fire, Peterson said.

Three firefighters suffered minor injuries while fighting the fire, he said.

The living room, kitchen and hallway of the house were "completely gutted" by the fire, he said.

The cause of the fire is under investigation.

Dean appointed

Irving R. Wyeth, director of the Institute of International Agriculture, has been appointed as assistant dean in the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Wyeth will coordinate international agriculture programs in cooperation with the MSU Office of International Studies and Programs. The International Review Committee, formed in 1978 to assess the college's previous overseas projects and future directions, recommended Wyeth's appointment.

Wyeth has coordinated projects with more than 30 countries during his 11 years as head of the institute. He spent five years as coordinator of an MSU project in Nigeria and two years establishing an agricultural extension program for the National Taiwan University.

Wyeth has earned four degrees from MSU in education administration, extension education, agriculture and entomology.

Road construction down

By MICHAEL VEH
State News Staff Writer

Reductions in federal funds for highway, road and street construction will seriously reduce scheduled projects in Michigan, but will not result in layoffs of workers, a Department of Transportation spokesman said.

Chuck Fisher, assistant administrator of public information, said the cutback in federal funds has placed a "freeze" on hiring in the department, meaning that positions which are vacated because of retirement or resignation will not be filled.

Fisher said DOT director John Woodford "gave division heads orders to cut back their operating budgets by 10 percent." He added that these reductions can be accomplished without employee layoffs.

Woodford announced April 9 the amount of federal money available for new highway projects during the period from May to September had been reduced from the expected $220 million to $70 million.

HE ALSO PREDICTED that work will stop in early June on construction currently underway in Michigan due to a $1 billion shortage of funds for the projects. The shortage of funds is indicative of the total amount of federal money owed to states which are currently engaged in construction projects.

"These are contractual obligations the federal government has made with the states, and we expect them to be met," Woodford said. "The states, and more importantly the contractors who are doing the work, must be paid."

In contrast to the cutbacks in highway spending, the Michigan DOT will accelerate spending on public transportation and rail programs.

Federal public transit and rail programs are not financed by the same fund as highway construction and were not affected by the cutbacks in highway funds.

THE DOT PLANS on spending more than $200 million in appropriated funds, Woodford said. At the urging of Gov. William G. Milliken, the department will spend $98 million in federal funds and $102 million in accumulated state funds on the construction of bus stations, for rail freight projects and for large and small bus systems throughout the state.

The construction of "intermodal transportation terminals" was another project supported by Milliken. Intermodal terminals are transportation centers which are used as transfer points for various types of transportation, Fisher said.

The terminals, like one built in Kalamazoo, are stations used by trains, city buses, inter-city buses and taxis which work on coordinated schedules to allow passengers on one mode of transportation to make connections with another, he explained.

A terminal is currently under consideration for East Lansing and $1 million has been set aside in the state budget for development of the project, said East Lansing Council member John Czarnecki.

The state highway department plans to build the terminal on Trowbridge Road, a short distance from the existing Amtrak depot, Czarnecki said. But he said he considers a site on the southwest end of the MSU campus a better location.

The department also plans on spending $16 million on transit development projects for commuter systems in the Detroit metropolitan area.

African festival begins today

A panel discussion, film, children's storytelling, soccer match, music and fashion show are slated for this weekend as part of an African Culture Festival.

"The Future of Africa: Politics, Natural Resources and the Role of the Elite" will be discussed by seven panelists from 2 to 5 p.m. today in 201 International Center.

Victor Uchendu, director of the African Studies Program at the University of Illinois, will be guest speaker amongst six MSU professors. African science and development, continental cooperation, rural planning, food problems, colonialism and apartheid will be discussed by the panel.

Xala, a Senegalese film by novelist Sembene Ousmane will be presented at 8 p.m. Saturday in B-102 Wells Hall.

African stories will be told to children from 1 to 3 p.m. in Room C of Crossroads Cafeteria in the International Center. Beginning at 3:30 p.m. Saturday, a soccer match between the African Students Union of MSU and the same group of students from the University of Michigan will be played on the main soccer field which is across from the tennis courts.

An African high-life band will play and a fashion show will begin at 7 p.m. Saturday in the Crossroads Cafeteria.

Admission cost to the fashion show is $6 for the general public and $5 for students. All other scheduled events are free and open to the public.

Jewish Student Appeal contributes to charity time, money, goodwill

Though they are inconspicuous, there are currently about 60 MSU students suffering from earaches, another 1,400 lacking a pocket jingle and all of them with generous hearts.

According to Alan Havis, an MSU sophomore, the 1,460 MSU students have definite cause to be ailing in such ways — and to feel good about it.

Havis, who is chairperson of MSU's Jewish Student Appeal, was among a small group of Jewish students who organized the predominantly charity-oriented organization last fall.

The 60 MSU students now suffering of earaches were volunteers who from April 8 through 10 called thousands of MSU students in an attempt to raise money for J.S.A.

The 1,400 students currently lacking a jingle in their pocket, were the donors of the $5,400 collected during the phone campaign.

Seventy-five percent of the money collected last week will be sent to Jews suffering health and welfare problems in Israel and Europe and to pay transportation costs of the few Jews permitted to leave communist countries, Havis said.

The remaining 25 percent of the fund will be used by other campus organizations to finance Jewish cultural and social events.

The J.S.A. is one of several groups sponsoring former Israeli foreign minister Abba Eban's Sunday evening appearance.

For information regarding J.S.A. persons can contact Alan Havis at 337-2417.

This Is What The State News thinks about the Eight-a-Day Show...*'Eight-a-Day' policy relaxedBy JOHN NEILSON
State News Staff Writer

Pop Entertainment has officially changed its admissions policy for the upcoming "Eight-A-Day For The Eighties" show to allow for unrestricted re-admission, director Carl Bressler has announced.

While it was previously announced that Pop Entertainment might have to charge people to re-enter if they left at any time in order to satisfy University requirements, it was generally felt that it would be an inconvenience to require concertgoers to remain inside for the duration of the all-day festival. The new policy would allow ticket-holders to leave and re-enter at will upon presentation of proof of admission (ticket stub or hand stamp).

Assistant director Glenn Movsh said the policy will be to let ticket holders come and go as they please. There will be picnic tables and bleachers outside the fieldhouse for those who wish to sit out during any of the acts, as well as concessions selling many varieties of food, T-shirts, trashes, etc. People are also free to bring their own lunches if they desire.

"What we're trying to do here is create a situation that's essentially an outdoor show, indoors," Movsh added, citing that Pop Entertainment will not be producing an outdoor concert this spring. "The doors will be open, the wind will be blowing and people can wander in and out all day."

Bressler and Movsh both stressed that people planning to attend the festival should get their tickets as soon as possible, citing that response to the Festival will determine what (if even IF) concerts will be held next year and beyond. So far they noted, ticket sales have been fairly slow, even though the May 3 concert is only a few weeks away.

"The concert is an attempt to break away from the mold of previous shows we've had at the University and offer people something new and different," Movsh pointed out. "We've been faced with all sorts of pressure to not put on this kind of festival, and we need people to support this and prove that they really DON'T want to see Pablo Cruise year after year."

"If this show isn't a big success," Bressler added, "music at MSU could go back to the Dark Ages. We would not be allowed to take risks — we would have to put on concerts by outside promoters offering only the most established bands."

The line-up for the "Eight-A-Day For The Eighties" show is indeed quite a departure from the usual MSU concert offerings. Headlining the show will be the Ramones' six albums of stripped-down rock 'n' roll have had an immeasurable impact on rock music in the last few years. Also on the bill will be Stiff recording artist Weekless Eric, who has just released his first American album after earning quite a reputation for his three-chord pop/rock in his native

THE TEXTONES

England, MISEX, who will be bringing their electronic new wave music from Australia for their first-ever American concert. Caroline Mas, who has been widely hailed for her Springsteen-like concert appearances, and Canada's Battered Wives, who thankfully have recently taken to calling themselves The Wives.

The show will also feature L.A.'s Textones, a relatively new band who so impressed Tom Petty recently that he gave them a new song to record; The Lloyds, who are featured in a soon-to-be-released Jon Peters movie called Die Laughing; and Detroit's own Gary Fabulous and the Black Slack, who electrified Dooley's over spring break with their awesome funk/new wave fusion music (the dual guitar players in the Black Slack are so incredibly hot that some wits have dubbed them "The new Parlia Funkadelic-Experience").

Tickets for the "Eight-A-Day For The Eighties" extravaganza are already on sale for $10 apiece (which a little bit of math translates to a mere $1.25 per band, for reserved seats). Tickets are available at the Union Ticket Office, WhereHouse Records II and III, and Sounds & Diversions in Lansing. Tickets are also available by mail order to the Union ticket office.

Womens health care

is better for their babies. Taavila said this is not true. "It's a combination of male dominance, capitalism and imperialism that causes them to sell those products," she said.

AULETT SAID DOCTORS also perform many unneeded hysterectomies, with a concentration in the population of poor women.
"It's a cheap way out for people to sterilize poor people," she said.

Sterilization is also the most expensive form of birth control and is useful in maintaining the entire economic system, she said. "This misuse of power delivered against women" is the primary reason why women should take much of their own care into their own hands, Taavila said.

Many women can be trained to do their own routine care, she said.

"One of the reasons we stay with doctors is that we don't think there is anything else we can do," she said.

TAAVILA SAID WOMEN can be trained, through gaining self-knowledge in how to do their own routine health care.

Corporations

good for the corporation is good for the nation," Morris said. "The whole notion of free enterprise."

"The two greatest capitalist countries in the world have tougher social legislation than we do," he said.

Finkbeiner said it is important to organize groups of workers to improve social conditions, but added that the UAW does a poor job in organization.

Worker rights

enterprises do, Ferency said.

HE SAID COMPANIES not only have great economic power, but also great social and political power in determining where we live, how we live and how the country is run.

Ferency said corporations have a responsibility to the public and are not the totally private entity some say they are.

"The permission to exist is one we gave the corporations. I don't think they're truly private."

Ferency asked if it was right for a private utility to cut off electricity to a family that cannot pay its bill, since by doing so would "leave them in the cold, in the dark and hungry."

"The private right has to be second to the human right," Ferency said.
