GOP wants Anderson off ballot

By SUSAN TOMPOR
State News Staff Writer

State Republican leaders promised Monday to continue their efforts to remove John Anderson from the GOP primary ballot by contesting Attorney General Frank J. Kelley's ruling that the independent candidate's name must stay put.

Kelley ruled earlier Monday that it is too late to remove Anderson's name from the primary ballot, though the Illinois congress member is no longer seeking the Republican nomination.

Kelley said Anderson did not ask that his name be withdrawn until more than a month after the March 21 deadline for such action.

Anderson announced April 24 that he will seek the presidency as an independent and requested that his name be removed from the ballot.

But Republican leaders charge that the continued presence of Anderson's name on their primary ballot only contributes to voter confusion — a confusion that George Bush supporters fear will steal votes away from their candidate.

"A vote for Anderson is a wasted vote and will be translated as a vote for (Ronald) Reagan," said Colleen Engler, state campaign director for Bush.

According to Kelley's ruling, elections officials will have to place labels underneath Anderson's name, designating those votes cast for Anderson as being "uncommitted."

Engler said voters may cast their ballots for Anderson in the May 20 primary for GOP delegates, believing that Anderson would need support in this primary for a spot on the November ballot. Rather, it is the result of the Aug. 5 primary that will determine Anderson's fate as a presidential contender.

Anderson needs three-tenths of 1 percent of the votes cast on Aug. 5 to get his name on the November ballot.

Republicans who realize that a vote for Anderson in the May 20 primary is a "wasted vote," Engler said, may choose to vote for Bush as an alternative to front-runner Reagan.

Counting on that, Engler said, the Bush campaign will undertake a media-oriented education drive to scrounge up the necessary votes which they hope will turn the tide on the May 20 election in favor of underdog Bush.

Engler added that Bush backers will attempt to rally support from Anderson followers who originally filed for positions as Anderson delegates.

But Anderson state campaign coordinator Lorraine Beebe said Monday neither Kelley's ruling nor state Republican efforts to remove Anderson's name from the May 20 ballot will affect the Anderson Coalition.

Beebe said Anderson released his Michigan delegates when he requested that his name be removed from the ballot. She added that those delegates must now decide if they will choose to go to the polls on May 20 and cooperate with Bush backers.

She said she will, however, honor Anderson's request that his name not be on the ballot and she will not go to the polls May 20.

State GOP Chairperson Melvin Larsen said Anderson's name should be removed from the ballot to preserve the "purity" of the election.

Larsen said the state Republicans sent a letter to the Secretary of State's Office about two weeks ago requesting that Anderson's name be removed from the May 20 ballot.

The Secretary of State's Office, which had earlier said Anderson's name would remain on the ballot, then sought an opinion from the Attorney General's Office.

Unhappy with Kelley's decision, Larsen said he is instructing party attorneys to appeal that ruling to the proper court — either the state Court of Appeals or Ingham County Circuit Court.

Larsen admitted state law is unclear in dealing with a candidate who has withdrawn from seeking a party nomination.

Gov. William G. Milliken, who has endorsed Bush and was campaigning with him in Detroit, issued a statement through his office, supporting his party's efforts to appeal Kelley's decision.

"The Michigan presidential primary law did not contemplate a situation in which a candidate would appear on two primary ballots," Milliken said. "Republican officials party are to be commended for their actions to attempt to clarify the situation for voters."

McDonel resident, 20, dies

A McDonel Hall resident died Monday morning from "accidental asphyxiation," said Ingham County Assistant Medical Examiner William Swords.

Richard D. Brovont, 20, of 623 W. McDonel Hall, was found in his residence hall room at about 10:15 a.m. with a scarf tied around both his neck and a bedpost, campus police report.

Swords refused to say whether the death was sexually related, but Department of Public Safety Capt. Ferman Badgely said there was a possibility the death may have been caused by sexual asphyxia.

Brovont, a sophomore majoring in marketing, was pronounced dead at the scene by the Ingham County medical examiner, police said.

Brovont was taken Monday to Edward W. Sparrow Hospital, where an autopsy was performed, Swords said.

Funeral arrangements will be handled by Jessen Funeral Home, 3232 W. Saginaw, Lansing.

Arrangements were indefinite Monday, a funeral home spokesperson said.

Senate OK's balanced budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate approved a $613.1 billion balanced 1981 budget Monday night, but last-minute spending hikes raised new doubts about whether Congress will actually eliminate the federal deficit for the first time in 12 years.

The vote on final passage was 68-28.

Before approving the defense-oriented budget package, the Senate voted to restore money for Saturday mail delivery, boost veterans spending, keep federal law assistance grants alive and make repeal of President Carter's oil import fee easier.

While the string of spending votes technically left the 1981 budget in balance, the last-minute changes would require dipping into the $10 billion expected to be raised by Carter's import fee.

IN PROPOSING TO balance the 1981 budget, Carter and congressional leaders vowed not to use the import fee which, beginning Thursday, will add about 10 cents to the price of a gallon of gasoline.

However, in a dramatic turnabout from its earlier support of its Budget Committee's belt-tightening plan, the Senate rejected several of the more unpopular proposed spending cuts.

By a voice vote, the Senate agreed to restore $300 million for Saturday mail deliveries, paying for that increase by cutting federal administrative costs an additional 1 percent across-the-board, except for defense.

The 1 percent cut is on top of a 5 percent reduction in the bureaucracy already approved by the Budget Committee and some observers believe the new cut is unrealistic.

The Saturday mail amendment by Sens. John Glenn, D-Ohio, and David Pryor, D-Ark., puts the Senate in disagreement with the House, which favors elimination of Saturday mail.

EARLIER, ON A 87-6 vote, the Senate raised spending on veterans affairs by $300 million to $21.3 billion and agreed to pay for the hike by reducing a promised tax cut that was to be paid for by the $10 billion oil import fee.

Ironically, the decision to use the import fee money followed a 75-19 Senate vote expressing strong displeasure with the fee and making it easier for Congress to repeal Carter's authority to impose it.

The two votes raise fresh doubts about whether the budget can be balanced in the face of a worsening (continued on page 8)

Iranian students have chance at asylum, but 'U' urges haste in obtaining degrees

By DON CALDWELL
State News Staff Writer

The prospects for Iranian students at MSU who plan to apply for asylum are "pretty good," said August Benson, advisor to foreign students and scholars.

Benson said he expects a fairly large number of students to try to obtain asylum when temporary visas expire so that they can continue to study or work in the United States.

"Students will be given the authority to remain in the U.S. and will probably be given permission to work," he predicted.

Last week, Benson sent a letter to Iranian students at MSU, encouraging them to complete their degrees as quickly as possible because of the uncertainty about the length of their stay.

HE ALSO SAID, however, that students whose visas expire may be eligible for asylum.

When students interview with the Immigration Service to apply for extensions of stay, they can apply for permanent asylum, he said. Students' applications will be kept on file and students will not be required to leave the country while their cases are pending. During this time, students will probably be given permission to work.

"We are aware that some Iranian students have essentially completed their programs but have deferred taking their degrees," Benson's letter said.

"We urge those students to take their degrees or diplomas without further delay. In addition, we urge all other Iranian students to pursue their programs as earnestly as possible," the letter said.

Benson explained that as a result of President Carter's breaking of diplomatic relations with Iran on April 7, "No new visas will be issued to Iranian citizens and no current visas will be revalidated except for compelling and proven humanitarian reasons."

STUDENTS SHOULD PLAN to leave the United States upon completion of their degrees unless they are applying for asylum, Benson added.

If students leave the United States it is not likely they will be allowed to re-enter, he said.

In an additional set of actions following the diplomatic cutoff, the federal government said extensions (continued on page 8)

Milk case thievery turns sour

Moving out of residence halls may take on a new dimension this year because students may find themselves hiding milk cases from the watchful eyes of campus police.

Heatherwood Farms Co. of Lansing is giving students two weeks to return the stolen or otherwise-acquired cases before it begins prosecuting students caught with the "goods."

Verlene Weber, executive secretary for Heatherwood Farms, said students take the cases for use in rooms and apartments.

Cases are taken from Lansing-area grocery stores where students shop, she added.

"We hate to do it, but the cases are registered ... and we're entitled to prosecute," Weber said.

She said the dairy will pick up and accept returned cases with no questions asked for "about two weeks" before going to the police.

Although police will not be searching residence halls to find the cases, they will stop persons seen with them, she said.

Weber added she expects police to find the most cases when students begin moving out in June.

Department of Public Safety Capt. Ferman Badgely said he asked the company for a letter stating that stolen milk cases were a problem and recommended that the company give students a grace period during which they can return the cases.

After that period, he said, officers will arrest students (continued on page 8)

Disqualify Miller, says econ dept.

By LOUISE WHALL
State News Staff Writer

The economics department asked a University committee Monday to disqualify acting Faculty Grievance Official Bruce Miller from officiating in its grievance because he is actively seeking a deanship.

Walter Adams, a distinguished professor of economics acting as counsel for the economics department, said Miller is a candidate for the deanship of James Madison College.

Miller would not confirm or deny whether he is a candidate for the deanship.

Adams said a conflict arises because nominations for deanships are submitted to Provost Clarence L. Winder, who is the respondent in the grievance and will recommend his choice to the president and Board of Trustees.

THE DEAN, ONCE appointed, also reports directly to the provost.

The department filed the grievance because the provost reinstated John R. Hildebrand to an "economics-related" assignment after the department rejected the appointment. A federal judge ordered MSU in January to reinstate Hildebrand, culminating an 11-year court battle over his 1968 dismissal.

"I don't have any comment on that (the economics (continued on page 8))

Egyptian Cabinet resigns

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The 31-man Egyptian Cabinet resigned Monday, paving the way for President Anwar Sadat to revamp domestic policies and priorities. Cairo television said Sadat accepted the resignations and asked Premier Mostafa Khalil to head a caretaker government until a new one is formed.

The report said consultations for a new cabinet would begin Tuesday morning. Observers saw this as a possible indication Sadat would take over the premiership, since he did not assign anyone else to form a government.

Khalil announced the resignations to reporters after a 45-minute meeting with the cabinet, which was formed last June.

"At this stage, the beginning of a new phase of national reconstruction, I saw it fit to present to President Sadat our resignation and place it at his disposal," he said.

Marines disperse protesters

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Marine guards, using tear gas, dispersed a group of Salvadoran rightists who had set up a barricade in front of the San Salvador residence of U.S. Ambassador Robert White, U.S. officials disclosed Monday.

The protesters had set up the barricades Saturday afternoon, vowing to prevent White from departing the residence until the Salvadoran government released Maj. Robert d'Abuisson, a rightist former military officer who was arrested following an abortive coup attempt on May 2, the officials said.

The officials, who asked not to be identified, said about 200 protesters were initially involved in the demonstration but that the number had dropped sharply by the time the Marine guards ended the incident at 5 a.m. EDT Monday. White left the residence soon thereafter, the officials said.

White, a career diplomat who was assigned to El Salvador two months ago, has angered rightist elements because of his support for Salvador's civilian-military junta, which has instituted a sweeping land redistribution program and other reform measures.

Islamic Republicans leading

(AP) — Islamic fundamentalists increased their lead Monday in Iranian parliamentary voting and apparently handed Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr another defeat by blocking his effort to name a prime minister. The hardliners' growing influence could further complicate the U.S. hostage crisis.

Tehran Radio said 229 of 247 seats in the Iranian parliament have been filled and that the Islamic Republican Party has won 113 of them, including three decided Monday. Victories by Moslem fundamentalists running as independents will give the IRP a working majority in Parliament.

Observers saw the clergy-dominated Revolutionary Council's failure to name a prime minister during the weekend as yet another setback for Bani-Sadr. The council was reported to have debated the appointment of a prime minister for several hours Sunday before turning the matter back to Khomeini.

Khadafy juggles names

(AP) — Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy pressed an ideological purge Monday by renaming embassies in a number of countries "People's Bureaus" and replacing diplomats in them with "people committees." Britain expelled four officials of Libya's embassy in London in retaliation for "harassment" of Libyan dissidents there.

The current trouble apparently stems from growing unrest Khadafy faces in Libya and his increasing sensitivity to criticism from abroad, particularly from Libyan emigre groups in England, Italy and Greece.

Military oust president

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Uganda's rebel six-man military commission ousted civilian President Godfrey Binaisa on Monday, and took over the powers of the presidency, according to official Uganda radio.

The military commission seized the radio station and other key installations over the weekend, rejecting Binaisa's dismissal of army chief of staff David Oyite Ojok.

The announcement said: "The military commission wishes to inform the public that it has taken over the powers of the president with immediate effect. From now, the powers of the president will be exercised by the military commission."

"This is an action by the commission and not by the army. The army and the public are requested to remain calm and continue with their normal duties."

Pope comments on Drinan

ROME (AP) — Pope John Paul II, making his first direct public comment on the case of U.S. Rep. Robert F. Drinan, said Monday that "politics is the responsibility of laymen and a priest should be a priest."

It was announced a week ago that Drinan, a Jesuit priest and five-term Massachusetts Democrat, had agreed to retire from politics at the pope's urging.

The pontiff made the statement to journalists traveling on his special papal jet in responding to a question about Drinan. The pope returned to Rome Monday after an 11-day swing through six African nations.

Firestone to pay $500,000

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. said Monday it will pay a record $500,000 fine to avoid an expensive court fight over its failure to recall sub-standard tires.

The Transportation Department said the penalty, levied because of Firestone's failure to immediately recall tires it knew could not meet government standards, is the largest ever assessed under the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1966.

The department said its National Highway Traffic Safety Administration investigated the Firestone 500 steel-belted radial tires and a related tire line marketed under the "Primero" brand name.

The proto-type Fam-Car had its first full day of use on the MSU campus Monday. Junior Sharon Mikrut, supervised by Bill Burns of Handicapper Services, finds the $40,000 handicapper transportation vehicle to her liking.

'U' handicapper bus service adds modern Fam-Car to fleet

By LESA DOLL
State News Staff Writer

A national innovation in handicapper transportation is making its debut on the MSU campus this week.

The Fam-Car, acclaimed for its speedy and safe transportation of handicappers and wheelchair users, is the newest addition to the MSU handicapper bus service. The $40,500 vehicle has been purchased by the University on condition for one year, and will be evaluated at the end of that year.

Judy Taylor, director of the Office of Programs for Handicapped Students, said Fam-Car will be a worthwhile investment for the University.

"Fam-Car, if it works out, will be a real innovation, not only for our program but for programs throughout the county," she said.

MSU IS THE FIRST university to invest in Fam-Car, said Eric Gentile, assistant director of OPHS. The vehicle is built on an Oldsmobile Toronado chassis and features a door that folds out into a ramp.

Although Fam-Car seats only two handicappers as compared to three in the older University buses and transettes, the new vehicle could make up for the deficit with its speed, Gentile said.

"If things work out right with Fam-Car, it might be possible we might get as much service out of one Fam-Car as we would get out of two transettes," Gentile said.

Gentile said the ramp and low floor of the Fam-Car reduce loading and unloading time by more than three and one-half minutes. The older vehicles, with their high floors and lift ramps, are more difficult for handicappers to get on and off of, he said.

"It's so quick there is at least some reason to believe that will reduce the time it takes to make a single run," he said. "If this can cut that time it will greatly increase the effectiveness of the overall system."

THIS WOULD INCREASE the number of handicappers who could be transported between classes, which is good during a time when the demand for handicapper transportation will continue to increase, Gentile said.

Gentile added that better gas mileage and lower maintenance costs will make the vehicle more cost-effective than the old vehicles.

Safety is another asset with the Fam-Car, Taylor said. The low floor and ceiling on the Fam-Car will eliminate loading and unloading accidents and reduce the swaying and tipping of wheelchairs inside.

Gentile stressed that while the Fam-Car was not a perfect vehicle — and recommendations for improvements will be made to the manufacturer — it has great potential.

Auto layoffs idle 7,400

By MATT PERRY
State News Staff Writer

More than 7,400 line workers at Lansing's Fisher Body and Oldsmobile automotive plants were temporarily laid off Monday because of the recent decrease in car demand, said the director of public relations for General Motors Corp.'s Oldsmobile division in Lansing.

Fritz Bennetts said some car assembly workers had already been laid off for one week, but all employees were expected to resume work next Monday.

The first layoffs resulted from a two-week curtailment of production of Delta 88s and 98s at Fisher Body and Oldsmobile. Workers on the second line, which assembles Cutlasses, started a one-week layoff Monday.

Fisher Body provides the chassis for production at the Oldsmobile plant. Both plants manufacture only 88s, 98s and Cutlasses.

John Dean, chief of plant security at Lansing's Fisher Body, said other production plants, such as Buick and Pontiac, have already encountered slowdown.

"WE'VE BEEN VERY FORTUNATE to have been working for so long," said Dean.

Dean said car production would be cut by 13,000 over the two week period.

Dealer orders from the zones across the nation have asked for fewer cars, causing the lower production Bennetts said.

The decrease resulted from a climb in interest rates, which made car loans harder to get, Bennetts said.

BENNETTS WAS OPTIMISTIC about future interest rates, saying recent projections show a drop in the rates. Bennetts said he was not sure if the rates were "bottoming out" at present, but hoped they would continue decreasing until fall.

Herbert Moon, supervisor of salaried personnel at Fisher Body, said workers would not be hurt financially by the temporary layoff, with 95 percent of the regular employees pay compensated for through GM sub-benefits and unemployment payments.

Moon said the UAW was notified of the layoff far in advance of it, and no one was surprised it occurred.

"I think they're all well aware that cars are not selling right now," Moon said.

Schwartz says administration withheld semester system info

By JIM MITZELFELD
State News Staff Writer

The MSU administration is not playing fair with the students with the proposed semester change, said Paul Schwartz, ASMSU policy chairperson.

Schwartz said Monday he does not feel the administration has given students enough information about the calendar change, and added that it is his goal to get some concrete answers and facts for the students. "I don't know why they treat us like an ignorant mass," Schwartz said.

Schwartz and chairperson Bruce Studer announced ASMSU will hold open forums at each residence hall complex to let students "air their gripes" about the semester change.

ASMSU will also take down any questions students have about the plan and relay these questions to the administration for the answers, Studer said.

"I don't know why they treat us like an ignorant mass."

—Paul Schwartz, ASMSU policy chairperson

Schwartz said he felt the administration was trying to hide the facts about the semester system so the students would not voice their concerns with the plan until after it was implemented.

"You know they have got to have some master plan and those facts haven't been given to the students," Schwartz said.

Schwartz said all three administrators who had spoken to the student board about the change gave the representatives different facts, and that none of them had concrete answers to the board members' questions.

ASMSU will compile the information from the open forums and present it to the administration.

I CAN BRING PEOPLE TOGETHER

Griffiths to run for drain post

By ROLAND WILKERSON
State News Staff Writer

Former East Lansing Mayor George Griffiths announced Monday his candidacy for Ingham County Drain Commissioner in the November election.

Griffiths, a Democrat, joins the race with Republican Victor Stelmashenko, who declared his candidacy Feb. 28.

The winner of the election will replace Commissioner Richard Sode, who is not seeking re-election.

Griffiths, who joined the City Council in 1971, and was appointed mayor in 1975, said his experience as a councilmember and mayor would make him a good drain commissioner. "My public experience demonstrates that I can bring people together to cooperate," Griffiths said.

GRIFFITHS SAID one of the most important tasks of the drain commissioner is to work closely with area governments, business and developers. This task is necessary to ensure that all parties involved in a drain project are aware of that particular project, Griffiths said.

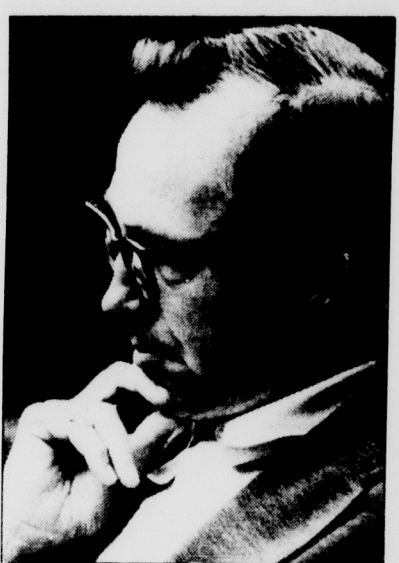

The drain commissioner has "considerable power," Griffiths said, noting drain commissioners must approve all projects within the county, including new business and subdivisions. Proposed developments can be scrapped if the drain commissioner finds that drainage plans are unacceptable, Griffiths said.

GRIFFITHS ADDED, however, that if elected he would not abuse the power that comes with the office.

"I hasten to assure the citizens of Ingham County that I would wield that power with caution and restraint," he said.

Stelmashenko said he is running for the position because he was asked to by area minority figures.

An Eastern European, Stelmashenko said there is currently an

George Griffiths

"inequity" in Ingham County Drain assessments, making it hard for the middle class to make ends meet.

"It's just a matter of time before the middle class is no longer," Stelmashenko said. "Then what are we going to do?"

To ease that burden, Stelmashenko said, if elected, he would "push" for a tax credit for those bearing heavy drain assessments.

Stelmashenko said he would be "beneficial" to the county because of his experience as a consultant to area businesses that are experiencing economic problems.

Black BWL appointee 'won't be a token'

By MATT PERRY
State News Staff Writer

The latest appointee to Lansing's Board of Water and Light discounted any notion of being a token black on the board, saying if approved he would serve as any other member of the BWL.

"I will not be a token," said Charles S. Jones, a state audit officer and Mayor Gerald W. Graves' latest appointee to the BWL.

Jones said he was unsure of Graves' intent in appointing him to the board, but said he certainly would not act as a token.

Jones added he would not serve the special interests of the black community, but would represent all of Lansing.

JONES' APPOINTMENT must be approved by City Council before it takes effect. Bruce Kozlowski, a white male, withdrew his name from consideration after the council indicated it would only approve a minority member.

Controversy over BWL appointments was sparked when Graves announced he would not reappoint Marvin Ray, the only black on the eight-member board. Local black representatives opposed Graves' move, and demanded another black replace Ray.

Jones will be interviewed by City Council Thursday.

Administrative Assistant to the mayor Robert Black cited Jones' eight-year service in the state auditor general's office as well as experience on BILD Corp., a Lansing housing board.

"I don't know if he is the most qualified person, but he is qualified,"

Black said.

Jones, who has never met Graves, said "it's very possible that there are" more qualified blacks available to serve on the board. But Jones said he had knowledge of public utilities through a state audit of the public service commission, the state's regulatory agency for utilities.

"I DON'T INTEND to create any fights or be overly aggressive," Jones said. He said Lansing's city charter spells out responsibilities of a city board member and he intends to fulfill them all.

Black grads starting at higher salaries

By KARL BLANKENSHIP
State News Staff Writer

Black MSU graduates receive higher starting salaries than other MSU graduates, according to a recent MSU Placement Services survey.

The survey, which was based on information from 243 of the 427 blacks who graduated between August 1978 and June 1979, also showed a drop in the unemployment rate for black graduates.

The survey showed that black students who graduated with bachelor's degrees earned an average of $13,570 on their first jobs — $191 more than the average for all students.

Black graduates with master's degrees earned an average of $17,311, or $944 more than other students, while blacks with doctorates earned $21,191 — $3,285 more than the average for other graduates.

"THERE'S BEEN SOME very positive progress that's been made," said Jack Shingleton, director of Placement Services, noting that 10 years ago the figures would have been just the opposite.

"I think a lot of improvements have been made for the black students in the last decade," he added.

Shingleton credited the pay difference to the federal Equal Employment Opportunities program, combined with the small number of black graduates.

"It boils down to a supply and demand situation," he said. "As long as the supply of black students is as low as it is in regard to demand, the trend will continue."

When more black students begin to graduate, however, the starting salaries will probably more closely match the pay received by other students, he said.

The survey also showed the unemployment for black graduates continued to decline last year, dropping to 7.75 percent as compared to 7.59 percent for other graduates.

WHEN THE FIGURES for black graduates were first compiled in 1976, black graduates with bachelor's degrees had an unemployment rate of 14.55 percent, compared to 10.4 percent for other students.

Shingleton said similar surveys have not been done with other minority groups because "sometimes the numbers (of students) are so limited we feel we cannot draw valid conclusions."

But regardless of race, Shingleton said he expects this year's graduates to do well in the job market.

Student Council meets today

The Student Council will meet at 3:15 p.m. today in the Board Room, Administration Building.

Chuck Goeke, chairperson of the University Committee on Student Affairs, will present a report on the status of the proposed Students Right and Responsibilities Document. The council will also hear a status report on the resolution regarding the Reaffirmation of Commitment to Intellectual Honesty.

The council will discuss the position of chairperson for its meetings next year. Because this was the first year a student member chaired the meetings the council will also decide whether a student chairperson has been effective.

The council will also discuss the election procedures for the 1980-81 Student Council.

County considers job program

A resolution which would create 12 summer jobs will be considered by the Ingham County Board of Commissioners at 7:30 tonight in the Commissioners' Room of the Ingham County Courthouse in Mason.

The resolution, to be introduced by the Personnel Committee, will provide jobs in various county departments. Those hired will be paid $4 per hour for eight weeks.

Other topics include a resolution which would make adjustments in the 1980 Health Department budget, the authorization of a new CETA contract and a resolution for a Jail Art Project luncheon at the Ingham County Jail.

Embassy siege and its results

British propriety dictates the presence of rationality. So does the British government, and it reacts in accordance with its morals. When Iranian terrorists started dumping bodies outside London's Iranian Embassy last week, the decision was obvious: move in. There was no time to ponder the validity of negotiations in this case. The terrorists were following through with their cold ultimatum.

Congratulations are due the British government for its propriety, its uncompromising stance toward terrorist tactics. From every corner of the Western world came shouts praising the British government's bravery and gallantry. Inevitably, the obvious parallel between the London siege and Tehran is pointed out. The Carter administration looks impotent indeed compared with the British response. It is a comparison, though, which lacks substance.

The Iranians were no fools in this case. Disdainful as they were of the London incident, their official government statements reflected an equal amount of ambivalence. It mattered not to them what the terrorists did with their captors. Several of them were British citizens, not Iranians, anyway. The incident bore no resemblance to the American hostage situation in terms of concern or tension. The Iranian government reacted to the siege with the solicitude of a disinterested party.

But the British — and of course many Americans — see the raid of the London Embassy as having much more importance. Now that a Western-allied country has come to the aid of the Iranians caught in a twist of ironic fate, Europe and the United States are hoping to use the incident as leverage in persuading the Iranians to release the American hostages.

There are two problems with this assumption. First, the Iranian government successfully gambled when it feigned indifference toward the embassy seizure. It did not come running for assistance from the allies and any "favor" Britain may considered itself to have done does not really exist. Second, an assumption that Iran now owes us something eventually gives way to more impatience. Neither Britain nor the United States can consider the successful raid leverage if Iran sees it as nothing more than a necessary step on the part of the British to keep London from experiencing its own civil disobedience.

The successful raid in London can be considered a feather in the British government's cap. What it should not be considered, however, is carte blanche for applying more pressure on Iran to release the hostages. The British did what they had to do. The Iranian militants have committed no act similar to that of the captors in London.

Dorm residents need a lawyer

The residents of McDonel Hall's fourth floor northwest should take the University to court if they are forced to pay for the damage done to their floor 10 days ago; they may find MSU's bark reduced to a whimper outside the residence hall domain.

A prime example of the University's attempts to bully students, many of whom do not know their rights, took place at a meeting of management and advisory personnel and floor members last week. When the residents, who say they do not know who is responsible for the more than $300 in damages incurred, suggested calling in the Department of Public Safety to investigate, a graduate advisor immediately nixed the idea, warning students they could face more serious consequences if the DPS were called in. What "more serious consequences?" The hall director chimed in that should the matter go beyond the residence hall level, any action taken would go into a student's permanent records which, she added, employers check.

Students' files are confidential files, but when MSU successfully keeps complaints in the system, laws do not have to be followed. In the process, student rights, unless they take complaints to the proper authorities, are trampled on. The three resident assistants who resigned last term under pressure because of stolen refrigerators after a "routine maintenance security check" should not have resigned quietly. The University did not decide not to prosecute the RAs because they were "role models," but possibly because the security check conducted might not have stood up in court.

Because no action was taken when the floor was damaged last year, residents say a precedent was set which management personnel are now attempting to remedy. But the damage to McDonel Hall is hardly an isolated incident — funds for repairing damages are included in each resident hall's budget. As the damage was in all probability caused by students, the costs for repairs should be absorbed by all students. The solution is much more equitable than the bill MSU is threatening to send the residents of 4 Northwest McDonel if they fail to come up with a culprit by Friday.

A far better solution would be for students to familiarize themselves with the laws which uphold their rights, if only to make MSU administrators think twice before attempting to step on them.

VIEWPOINT: HARASSMENT

E.L. police less than humane

By CRAIG VANDERBROEK

I would like to call attention to an incident involving the East Lansing Police Department and myself, and particularly the less than humane treatment that I received in the city jail.

It started like this. Two weeks ago, two friends and I were returning from an afternoon of relaxation at Lake Lansing. On the way back to campus, we stopped at the Clark station at 1120 Grand River Ave. to get a couple bucks of gas at the self-serve pump. An East Lansing police officer was standing inside the station. Upon walking back to the car, (which one of my friends was driving) I noticed that he was following me. As I approached the car and looked around, the officer was breathing down my neck. He immediately ordered all three of us to present our identification.

I naturally protested, and questioned the motives of the officer for hassling us in the first place. He told me again to present our I.D.s and, peering into the car, located two empty beer cans and one with about an inch of beer left in it. Upon seeing this, he reached in the car with vengeance in his eyes, grabbed the cans and informed us that we could get arrested for being minors in possession, being that we were all 19 years old.

He was really steaming now. I made my mistake when I again asked him what gave him the right to just walk up and begin searching our car. With that he turned me around, told me I was going to jail, threw the cuffs on me and my friends, radioed two more police cars, and took us all off to the East Lansing City Jail on Abbott Road.

When we got to the jail, they threw the book at us. I mean, none of us had even been arrested before and here we were being fingerprinted, booked, and having mug shots taken! Now we are on record for life! My friends were charged for being minors in possession and I received a charge of disorderly conduct (come on!) and possession of a small amount of marijuana after they found a joint on me when emptying my pockets. (How did that get there?) After about an hour, both of my friends were released on bail, but no such luck for me. They said they were going to "teach me some respect." I asked for a phone call three times but was refused each time. With that, they threw me in jail at approximately 5 p.m., telling me I would be freed at 8 the next morning. The conditions in that jail cell were shocking and intolerable.

After lying on the bed in the cell for what I guessed to be about seven hours, I began to wonder when or if I was going to be fed. It then occurred to me that there were other "prisoners" on each side of me who had not said a word the whole time. I tried to get their attention, asking them when we were going to be fed. Silence. Then one of them mumbled that they had only been fed one hamburger in two nights at the jail. No wonder they were not talking; they were probably too weak to move! I began to wonder what they had in store for me! At this point I decided to try and sleep away the hours. I found this impossible because the police had high-wattage lights glaring directly on us. These lights stayed on all night. A couple more hours passed and I began to get panicky, wondering how much longer I was going to be locked up. I called for an officer and asked him what time it was. He told me it was 3 a.m. Five hours left, I thought. Another long period of time went by, at least a couple hours. I was getting weak and exhausted from the lack of food and bright lights. Again, I asked what time it was. This time his reply was 2:15 a.m. Time had gone backwards! Now they were playing mind games with me. Play it cool, I thought to myself.

By the time I walked out of there in the morning I was a nervous wreck, but determined to let somebody hear my story. I don't know what will happen when my case goes to court, but the point is that treatment such as this is inhumane, intolerable, and should not go unnoticed. I thought it inconceivable that something like this could happen in this country.

The East Lansing Police Department is known for its "redneckishness" and proved it to me in classic form. If its goal was to try to teach me to respect the law then it is my contention that what they did was the opposite: promotion of contempt for the law.

If this police department, or any police department, wishes to serve and work with the community and gain respect, then episodes like this must cease.

Forest View has no clones

After reading several articles in The State News, including the most recent "Bear Lake is 'Pure Paradise,'" I feel the need to clear up some misconceptions that this paper has precipitated.

The Forest View community encompasses an area bordered by Mt. Hope Road and Crego Park to the north, Jolly Road to the south, U.S. 127 to the east, and Sycamore Creek to the west. The Forest View area includes many unique natural areas in addition to Bear Lake, such as Fenner Arboretum, Crego Park, Glen Eden and Forest View Parks. The homes in the area, including the homes in the new Provincial House subdivision so unfairly described as clones by Karl Blankenship, actually range in age from 25 years old to new homes.

The Forest View Citizens Association has been in existence for many years and was not organized for the purpose of lobbying MSU to grant access across its land.

The FVCA asked MSU to grant access only after extensive legal remedies to halt the mining in the pits near Bear Lake were exhausted.

The access that the FVCA requested of MSU does not cross the Bear Lake area. MSU already has an access road leading to the gravel pits. It also owns the central pit of those three in question. Granting access in no way endangers Bear Lake; only the mining presents a danger to those pits.

The FVCA supports the immediate and permanent cessation of all mining in the pits. We also support the immediate restoration of the gravel pits within the Forest View area. We would support action by MSU to further protect the unique natural area known as Bear Lake.

The residents of Forest View wish to preserve and enhance our natural resources. Mr. Solomon, MSU, and the city of Lansing are aware of the determination of the FVCA to protect both the residents and the environment within the Forest View area.

Grim reminder

Enough of this criticism of journalistic method. The placement of military propaganda with a picture of a deceased soldier in close proximity to each other, whether intended or not, ought to be viewed within the grim context of our present condition in nature.

President Carter wants to register 19 and 20 year olds for conscription; is conscription itself far beyond? Rep. Carr's report that many in Congress think not is not intended for a gathering of people to discuss the possibilities of a lifetime of Sundays in the sun.

Conscription implies in our present historical position war, and war produces actions miserable and "visually stressful." It seems more fitting that we should suffer from internal revulsion physically, as well as emotionally, from the highly probable reinstatement of the draft.

No degradation of the soldier or his cause is intended here, but we should view such testimonials of an inhumane civilization. Each and every one of us should in viewing this frightening photograph see himself or herself. Let us have no more criticism of this paper's attempt to portray our real position in the world.

Exhibit of dead monstrous act

The Iranians' hideous exhibit of the bodies of the Americans who died in the recent effort to free the hostages from their terrorist captors is an unpardonable affront to any thinking person's perception of human dignity. This heinous display, which was permitted and encouraged by those in positions of power in Iran, clearly demonstrates a fundamental variance with Western notions of humanitarianism. The human indifference illustrated by this monstrous act unveils a level of consciousness far more barbaric than that toward which our attempts at resolution have been directed. We cannot effectively deal with a people whose concept of humanity might properly be said to be "right out of the trees" with 20th century ideas on the subject.

One wonders the number of Iranians studying in America who, had they been in Iran and not here, would have shoved their way to the U.S. Embassy in Tehran to gawk at and applaud the charred remains of the American soldiers strewn ghoulishly upon the pavement.

Midnight Ramblings

By BRIAN BUCHANAN

I sat at the table all glassy-eyed, the inner cavity behind my forehead starting to feel like mush, as if it were midnight already and I was starting the transformation into a pumpkin, but the reality of it was the clock insisted it was only 10:30, so either my process was an hour-and-a-half early, or else the flourish before my eyes was only a dream another in that endless existence they call life. The constant splash-splash of the psychedelic lights monotonously flashed off the wall in cadence to the equally boring bwap-bwap beat of real simulated disco music as I sat surveying the new terrain. Hardly any liquor was invading my blood stream and trying to pervert the questionable sanity of my cerebrum; my body and its fluids were clean of all drugs — unlike some contorted bodies in attendance; the punch available was regrettably unspiked and diluted with melting ice anyway, so I should have been alert to all happenings, but instead I rested on my posterior in an aimless trance. Before me, through the haze of strobe lights and camera flashbulbs that some masochistic individual insisted on continually setting off and blinding

I was in attendance at this socio-cultural function which pairs him and hers in bondage for a night, each meticulously wrapped in the best cloth their parents hard-earned money can provide, only to go out and hop around to some de-ranked synthesized noise trying to force its way out of the pulsing squares of sounds.

all who had the misfortune of glancing in his general direction, my intelligence observed the goings on of a uniquely human phenomenon — that collection of hypocritical charade playing we all call "the dance."

Yes, much to the amazement of all, including my date, I was in physical attendance at this socio-cultural function which pairs him and hers in bondage for a night, each meticulously wrapped in the best cloth their parents' hard-earned money can provide, only to go out and hop around to some de-ranked synthesized noise trying to force its way out of the pulsing squares of sound. So there I posed, watching human nature personified, replying "observational" when my date asked me what kind of dancing I engaged in. Scanning the multitude of bobbing heads before my perceiving senses, I kept glancing at people I once knew but who now looked so strangely different, as if it was a costume party where you simultaneously were both Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. Out on the floor throbbed one vaguely familiar form, facing her set-up date but existing in a separate reality of her own; a purist it struck me, as her mouth formed every word that the big speakers forcibly emitted on us unwilling victims; a purist who knew every damn word in that song. And that other couple down from her, also lost in individual trances, flailing away as two distinct entities unaware of the others existence, like interlocking pieces of a torn-apart puzzle thrown back in the box and separated from each other until whenever. But when the ranting cubicles decide to rest, the crazed mass regains its individual consciousness, and revert back to normal functioning selves, such as the passing soul who not an eye-blink ago was convinced that he was a pogo-stick, but now gave every indication that he indeed was capable of pretending to be mentally sound. What motivates these poor beings, I pondered as my brain cells strained in overtime to unlock one of the obviously deeply hidden secrets of the universe that lay surrounded by a no-man's land of supernatural barbwire. Summoning to arms all the initiative that forgot to escape earlier, I glided several tables to the west, and stole a girl who looked likely, as the other half was too busy getting cheap thrills watching the funny people of which I was about to become one dance, and led her into the deranged mob of bouncing bodies that constitute tomorrows supposed leaders. Starting slowly, but gaining momentum fast like the hundred-car freight trains that insist on continually rolling down the long grade back home with hell-bent speed demons operating the whole bloody thing, it all converged on me. I was, much to my perplexed satisfaction, becoming one of them; one of those whose sanity I had been bouncing around like dead tennis balls for the past two hours of my life. Yes, I was caught up in that whole plot that is perpetrated by some unknown organization seeking to pervert the entire structure of our behavioral existence; the pulsing sound waves merged into me like flouride in water, deadening the rumored mass between my ears and taking control of my body like a sadistic marionette operator. I did not comprehend my actions, but I also had no desire to terminate the new existence that had so forcefully encroached upon me, tossing me around like a leaf caught in a whirlwind. But eventually the puppeteer insisted on taking a break, leaving me to wind down, grope for my seat, and ponder what had overpowered me.

Maybe, my sore and boggled voice upstairs debated as we shuffled home, having not turned into a sphere of hollow orange after all, with compliments to an unknown form called fate, the crazy really are sane; it is me that is out of sync. Having then accepted the crushing realization that I too was indeed fallible, I joined the others in liberating the burgundy from its bottled existence.

Jazz bands end season

MSU's two excellent jazz bands will present their final concerts of the year Wednesday and Sunday.

The Wednesday concert will feature Jazz Band II performing a variety of selections, including works by two former MSU students, Mike Amundsen and John Moss. Several soloists will be featured, including Bob Lyons, named top soloist at the Aquinas Jazz Festival earlier this year. The concert begins at 8:15 p.m. in the Music Building Auditorium and there is no admission fee.

The Sunday night concert will feature Jazz Band I, which is rapidly becoming known as one of the best jazz bands in the Midwest. Individuals who have won awards include Joe Lulloff, alto saxophone; Chuck Peterson, trumpet; and Mark Oliverius, bass. In addition, the saxophone section received an award for the outstanding sax section at the Aquinas Jazz Festival. The most prestigious award for the band this year has been an invitation to the Montreux Jazz Festival in Montreux, Switzerland, and also to the newly organized festival in Detroit called Montreux-Detroit. These festivals are considered the best in the world, and only the top bands and musicians are invited. The Sunday concert will be at 8:15 p.m. in the Music Building Auditorium and there is no admission charge.

Gridders looking good

By WILL KOWALSKI
State News Sports Writer

Speaking to reporters at a Monday press conference, Spartan head football coach Frank "Muddy" Waters said the team is adjusting well to his versatile and motion-oriented style of play and prepared for Saturday's Green-White game.

But the one question for which everyone wants an answer, how good are the Spartans really going to be when the season begins next fall, was something Waters simply did not know.

"Our execution has been excellent in practice, and I can't say enough about the spirit and enthusiasm the players are showing," Waters said.

"BUT WHEN IT comes right down to it, there is no way to really tell how good or bad we're going to be because there's no way to compare our progress with anything. We have a good idea as to how much ability we have, but until we get in a real game situation we really can't tell where we stand."

Waters said even though this Saturday's game will give him some direction in picking his starters for the 1980 season, he has not made any definite decisions as to who will be playing what next fall and he does not intend to make his choices any sooner than late August, when fall camp opens.

"I'm anxious to see how we'll look in the Green-White game, but just because a player has a great game Saturday doesn't mean he'll be starting next fall," Waters said.

"There's so much that can happen over the summer — some players will improve greatly, some will come to summer camp out of shape — that I might wait until the day before the first game before picking my starting lineup."

HOWEVER, THERE DOES seem to be one area — the offensive backfield — where the same names come up frequently. Sophomore Derek Hughes has been switched from tailback to fullback and will be paired with junior tailback Steve Smith to make up the No. 1 set of backs. The second set of rotating backs will be juniors Bruce Reeves and Andy Schramm.

The quarterback situation, though, seems to still be up for grabs. Waters said Bert Vaughn has been working with the first team in practice and has been doing an excellent job, but also getting their share of playing time and showing signs of promise are John Leister, Brian Clark and Jon English.

One positive area, Waters said, is the defensive backfield, where there is an abundance of quickness and hard hitters. Waters credits assistant coach and defensive coordinator Sherm Lewis with doing a great job filling the gaps left in the MSU defense due to graduation last season, and is pleased with the pursuit of his defenders in practice.

Netwomen at-large

As expected, the Michigan Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women selection committee announced that it has granted an at-large berth to the MSU women's net squad to attend its regional tennis tournament this weekend.

The committee also gave bids to Spartan singles players Monty Gettys and Cindy Bogdonas to compete in the individual competition.

The Spartans had already qualified Jill Grinberg in the individual singles draw and the doubles team of Grinberg and Gettys as a result of last weekend's victories in the State of Michigan AIAW tournament.

The top finishers in the regionals will go to the national championships in Baton Rouge, La., June 3 through 11.

'Beatens' MSU, EMU tussle

By BILL TEMPLETON
State News Sports Writer

It will be a battle between two very frustrated teams today in Ypsilanti as the MSU baseball team takes on the Eastern Michigan University Hurons.

The Spartans, owners of a 14-31 overall mark, will face a 17-34 EMU squad in a 1 p.m. double-header.

MSU will close out its home season Wednesday against Wayne State University in a 1 p.m. twinbill at Kobs Field.

FOLLOWING THE TWO non-conference double-headers this week, MSU will be on the road this weekend for a pair of games Saturday with Northwestern University and two Sunday with the University of Iowa.

Seniors Ken Robinson and Kirk Haines are now listed in the top two spots offensively for MSU. Leftfielder Robinson is hitting .329 with six home runs and 25 RBIs, while Haines is up to .324 with three homers. Haines is also the Spartans' leading Big Ten hitter with a .405 average.

Although MSU has had its problems scoring runs all year, the Spartan pitchers have been lowering the team earned run average. MSU's ERA now stands at 4.39. Head coach Danny Litwhiler is unsure, however, which of his hurlers will throw today in Ypsilanti.

Gary Baker and Greg Howe lead the Hurons with batting averages of .362 each, while Audie Cole has clubbed nine homers and driven in 34 runs.

COLE NEEDS JUST one more roundtripper to cast himself as the most prolific home run hitter from a Michigan school.

Like Litwhiler, Eastern Michigan coach Ron Oestrike has not named his starting pitchers.

"This is the most frustrating season I've ever had in college baseball," Litwhiler said about the year, "and it's not a lack of desire by the players. I just don't have an answer for it."

"I haven't been in the cellar since my early days with the (Philadelphia) Phillies as a player."

MSU split a double-header with the Hurons earlier in the season.

M-golfers 3rd

Following a third-place tie in the Northern Intercollegiate in Ann Arbor over the weekend, the MSU men's golf team must now prepare itself for this weekend's Big Ten championships in Madison, Wis.

The Spartans tied Ball State University with a score of 1,535 on the University of Michigan course, 26 strokes behind champion Ohio State University. Michigan was second with 1,527.

Individually, the Spartans were led by Niles freshman Rob Haidler's score of 302. Haidler's rounds of 75, 72, 75 and 80 tied him for fourth with the Buckeye's Joey Sindelar.

OSU's Mitch Camp was crowned individual champion, with Michigan's John Morse placing second.

"Robby had a few problems finishing," said MSU coach Bruce Fossum, "but otherwise he was right in the ballgame. The kid's gonna be a great player."

"I'm pleased with our score," Fossum said, "but we still haven't really stuck it all together."

The Spartans will be pressed into doing precisely that this weekend on the Cherokee Country Club, as they will try to accomplish season-long goals by winning the championship and qualifying for the NCAA tournament.

Sun doesn't shine for women golfers

The springtime sun never really shone long enough this season for the MSU women's golf team and coach Mary Fossum, as the linkswomen closed out the 1980 season this weekend in the Bowling Green Invitational.

The Spartans waited patiently for the warm weather and the ideal conditions golfers enjoy, but they never really came.

The fact that the MSU "green" team placed second in the nine-team field in Bowling Green, Ohio, may be one of the saving graces of the spring, and yet, not really.

The Spartans top unit was led by sophomore Lisa Speaker's rounds of 82 and 81 for a 163 total, just two shots off the pace set by medalist Elaine Crosby of the University of Michigan.

The balance of scores, however, indicated the linkswomen's lack of practice throughout the season, due to the weather, as many of the players showed inconsistent results.

Sophomore Nina Spatafora shot 85 and 82 for 167; freshman Alison Sellers had 85, 83 for 168; senior

Ann Atwood would up with 88, 82 for 170; freshman Syd Wells had 82, 91 for 173 and freshman Lisa

Brown had 89 and 87 for 176 to complete the "Green" scoring.

Weekend frisbee action saw the MSU ultimate team capture top honors in its region.

Netmen place a disappointing 9th

It was a disappointing weekend for MSU coach Stan Drobac when his men's tennis squad finished ninth at the Big Ten championships in Minneapolis.

Drobac had hoped for an improvement on last year's eighth-place finish but had no luck as his team placed just ahead of the cellar-dwelling University of Illinois.

The University of Michigan won the tourney for the 13th straight year.

Despite the poor finish in the standings, Drobac found a few bright spots in the Spartans' play.

Freshman Steve Yorimoto, at No. 1 singles, avenged an early-season trouncing at the hands of University of Minnesota's Kent Helgeson by winning his opening match 6-4, 6-3.

Sophomore Jeff Wickman, at No. 4 singles, lost his opening round match but picked up a point for the Spartans with a win in the consolation round.

The No. 2 doubles team of Wickman and Matt Sandler finished second in last year's tournament and had hopes of doing as well this year. The pair played well and picked up four points for the team, but was eliminated in the semi-final round.

Scott King at No. 3 singles and Dino Demare at No. 5 lost heartbreaking first-round matches, but earned praise from Drobac for their efforts.

Laxers lose MLA finale

The MSU lacrosse team ended Midwest Lacrosse Association play on a sour note this weekend, dropping a 17-9 game to Wooster (Ohio) College in a meaningless playoff game.

The Spartans had already clinched the third-place position in the MLA going into the game, so the final outcome did not take away from the team's highest finish in the MLA since joining the league 10 years ago.

MSU had defeated Wooster 6-5 earlier in the season, but co-coach Nevin Kanner pointed out that Wooster was missing five of its best players in that game.

MSU is 7-10 overall, 3-5 in the MLA.

Kevin Willits scored four goals in the losing effort while Greg Helgemoe and Dewey Andersen had two apiece and Mark Pinto one.

Students

of stay will not be granted unless there is an immediate need for medical attention available only in the United States or the applicant has an immediate relationship to a U.S. citizen or permanent resident.

Benson said the situation is not clear for students who are only supposed to stay as long as they are attending school. He said he will distribute more information on the question of student status when it becomes available.

Senate OK's balanced budget

recession and growing congressional sentiment against the import fee.

Some economists believe the recession could push unemployment as high as 9 percent and drive the 1981 budget as much as $40 billion into deficit.

The import fee amendment, sponsored by Sens. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, and Bob Dole, R-Kan., would exempt bills to repeal the fee from a restriction in the 1981 budget that requires tax cut bills to be delayed until Congress adopts firm spending ceilings in September.

The exemption would mean that repeal legislation, if approved, could be sent immediately to Carter and would give Congress added time to override an expected veto.

Last week, the House approved a $611.8 billion balanced budget that favors lower defense outlays and milder social spending cuts than the Senate package. Senate approval will send the proposals to a conference to work out differences.

President Carter has proposed a $611.5 billion balanced budget that generally parallels the House version.

Under the 1974 Congressional Budget Act, Congress package a deadline on Thursday to approve a 1981 budget resolution.

Disqualify Miller — econ dept.

department's request," Winder said. "It was addressed to UCFA (University Committee on Faculty Affairs)."

Miller was appointed to serve as acting FGO in the grievance between the economics department and the provost. The current FGO, C. Patric "Lash" Larrowe, disqualified himself because he is a member of the economics department.

decision to be reached then.

Winder has requested a delay in the grievance proceedings because the case of Hildebrand vs. MSU is still under federal litigation.

Abeles said the hearing proceedings for the grievance will continue until a decision is reached. Both parties were asked to submit written statements to Miller on Tuesday, and he will hear the oral arguments today.

Adams, besides asking the UCFA to disqualify Miller, said Abeles should take charge of any further proceedings in the case.

Case thievery turns sour

for possession of stolen property.

No extra personnel will be used in June, however, to watch for students with milk cases, he added.

Although students have "acquired" the cases for years, the problem has grown during the last year, Weber said, and the company has taken stock of how much is lost on the cases.

She said the cases cost about $7 each, and that the cost of the cases has not yet been passed on to customers.

"We're hoping they (students) will feel some empathy for us," she said.

Students who want the company to pick up cases can call Ron Smith at Heatherwood Farms in Lansing.

MSU awed by losses

Disappointed head coach Gloria Beckford could not believe the bad fortune dealt her softball squad last weekend.

Her dreams of a berth in the national championships were laid to rest Friday as the Spartans' 1980 season came to an abrupt end in the Midwest Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women double-elimination regional tournament.

Winner of the regional competition automatically advances to the nationals with a possible at-large berth for the runnerup.

The Spartans won their opener Thursday against eventual tournament champion Western Illinois University, 2-0, before facing No. 1 seed Indiana University later that day.

In that game the Spartans went into the seventh and final inning with a 4-0 advantage, but were unable to stave off a five-run rally by the Hoosiers.

"Nobody could really believe we lost," said head coach Gloria Beckford. "We had it won going into the last inning, but we let it get away. It was hard on everyone to lose that way."

Following the loss to Indiana the Spartans were sent into the losers bracket against Ball State University, who dealt the MSU team the final blow with a 5-0 shutout.

"I really thought we shook (the loss to Indiana) off when we went against Ball State," Beckford said, "but we made a couple of errors and got behind early and that was it."
