Tornadoes kill 7 in Kalamazoo

Debris litters Burdick Mall in Kalamazoo Tuesday as residents recover from a tornado which killed seven people and caused severe property damage. Gov. William G. Milliken has declared the city a disaster area.

KALAMAZOO (UPI) — Deadly tornadoes spawned by severe thunderstorms ripped through the city Tuesday, killing at least seven persons and injuring more than 70 when they smashed through the city and a busy downtown mall.

Authorities feared other storm victims might be trapped in the rubble of several buildings flattened by the twisters, part of a severe weather system that ripped southwestern lower Michigan.

Four tornadoes reportedly touched down in Michigan in the late afternoon, including one west of Kalamazoo, in Van Buren County, where police said 14 persons were injured.

"We're having a search and rescue attempt," a city police spokesperson said. "We're going from building to building in the downtown area, searching for casualties possibly trapped."

GOV. WILLIAM G. MILLIKEN declared the city a disaster area. He mobilized 200 state police troopers to assist local authorities and placed 200 National Guard members on stand-by alert.

Sheriff's deputies and civil defense officials confirmed three tornado touchdowns in Kalamazoo County.

State emergency services officials said at least seven persons died in the Kalamazoo tornadoes — including a motorcyclist, a man in a 10-story bank building, four persons killed when the back wall of a department store collapsed, and a man trapped in a laundromat which caught fire when a gas line ruptured.

In addition, one man being treated at Bronson Hospital suffered a fatal heart attack, hospital officials said.

About 70 persons were reported treated for injuries at Bronson and Borgess hospitals, with at least one person admitted in critical condition.

MOST OF THE INJURIES apparently were caused by falling debris and flying glass blown out of downtown buildings. The winds shattered virtually every window in the Hilton Center, a downtown convention facility.

Authorities said there were several reports of looting in the downtown area shortly after the twisters hit at about 4:15 p.m. EDT, during rush hour.

A tornado also moved through a residential area of suburban Kalamazoo Township, demolishing as many as 75 houses, damaging cars, ripping up trees and downing power lines, police said.

City officials estimated damage in the area would run in excess of $20 million.

One woman riding a city bus when the twister hit said passengers ran from the vehicle and tried to seek shelter in the county courthouse but were not allowed in the building.

"PEOPLE WERE OUTSIDE pounding and kicking the door and they would not let us in," Siobhan Gogarty said. "I had to take my shoes off and run. I jumped the high (continued on page 10)

Carter, Reagan win

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

President Carter won Maryland's Democratic presidential primary election Tuesday night and took a commanding lead over Sen. Edward M. Kennedy in Nebraska. Ronald Reagan won the Republican primaries in Nebraska and Maryland.

In another installment of the long primary parade, the frontrunners were expanding their towering leads in nominating votes.

Reagan's Nebraska victory over George Bush was in a preferential vote that did not bind delegates. They were elected separately, and Bush allies conceded that Reagan delegates would be dominant.

Challengers Kennedy and Bush had put more campaign emphasis on Maryland than on Nebraska in their search for upset territory.

WITH 61 PERCENT of the Maryland precincts counted, the primary returns read:

- Carter 123,540 or 49 percent. He led for 32 delegates.
- Kennedy 90,184 or 36 percent and 26 delegates.

Ten percent of the vote was uncommitted, for one delegate.

And on the Republican side:

- Reagan 49,572 or 50 percent and 18 delegates.
- Bush 39,311 or 40 percent and 12 delegates.

Rep. John B. Anderson, who was on the GOP ballot even though he is now running as an independent, was drawing 9 percent of the Republican vote. The other votes were scattered among minor and dropout candidates.

THE DEMOCRATIC DELEGATES were awarded in proportion to the popular vote by congressional districts. The Republicans were winner-take-all within each district.

Partial returns from 22 percent of the Nebraska precincts showed these results:

- Carter 11,948 or 51 percent. He led for 13 delegates.
- Kennedy 8,330 or 36 percent and 11 delegates.

Nine percent were uncommitted, the rest of the vote was scattered.

On the Republican side there:

- Reagan 17,097 or 76 percent.
- Bush 4,286 or 19 percent.
- Anderson had 5 percent.

Tuesday's contests were installments that could not decisively alter the campaigns and voter turnout was reported light. In Lincoln, Neb., an election official commented: "It looks like there's no interest."

Judge says 'U' can proceed in hearing on econ grievance

By LOUISE WHALL
State News Staff Writer

A University hearing on the economics department's grievance against the provost can be held without conflicting with a pending court case, a federal judge said Monday.

In other action relating to the grievance, acting Faculty Grievance Official Bruce Miller disqualified himself from the grievance proceedings Tuesday. His withdrawal came after the economics department charged him with a conflict of interest because he is a candidate for the deanship of James Madison College.

Provost Clarence L. Winder has asked for a delay in the grievance proceedings because the case of John R. Hildebrand vs. MSU is still within the court system. MSU legal counsel had advised him not to participate.

C. Patric "Lash" Larowe, MSU faculty grievance official, sent a letter to U.S. District Judge Wendell A. Miles in April, when the department filed the grievance, to ask whether a University hearing would interfere with the court's jurisdiction.

In response to Larowe's letter, Charles Sweeris, Miles' law clerk, conferred with Miles who said the hearing would not pose a conflict. Miles' decision was released in a written statement by the economics department Tuesday. The brief opposed the provost's request for a delay.

Winder refused to comment on the development. "It would be unwise to comment on something I haven't read," he said.

The department filed the grievance because Winder reinstated Hildebrand to an "economics-related" assignment despite objections from the department. Miles ordered MSU to reinstate Hildebrand in January after an 11-year court battle over his dismissal in 1968.

Walter Adams, a distinguished professor of economics acting as counsel to the economics department, stated in the brief that Miles' statement confirmed the department's argument that the grievance proceeding is an internal University affair, unrelated to the court case.

"It (the court order) did not mandate Hildebrand's assignment to the department of economics," Adams stated. "Most broadly construed, the court order required nothing more than the restoration of the status quo preceding professor Hildebrand's non-reappointment in 1969." Norman Abeles, chairperson of the University committee handling the procedural issues of the grievance, said today's oral arguments and Thursday's hearing would probably be canceled to allow time to choose a new acting FGO.

Abeles said he will recommend his choice for acting FGO from a panel of nominees to the University Committee on Faculty Affairs for approval as soon as possible. Further issues in the grievance proceedings would be the responsibility of the new acting FGO.

"UCFA does not want to act on substantive issues," Abeles said.

Rep. proposes tax relief plan

By MARK FELLOWS
State News Staff Writer

A state representative who is attempting to get his tax relief proposal on the Michigan November ballot attacked the Tisch plan Monday, charging that it could lead to increased local income taxes.

Rep. Mark Siljander said the state Legislature could circumvent Shiawase Drain Commissioner Robert Tisch's proposal to cut property assessments to no more than 25 percent of commercial assessments.

Property in Michigan is assessed at one half its commercial value.

Because the Tisch proposal does not set minimum assessment values, the Three Rivers Republican said, lawmakers could slash assessments to almost nothing. This cut would result in a halt to state matching grants to localities, Siljander said.

THE RESULT WOULD force local governments to either cut services or increase income taxes at an (continued on page 8)

E.L. stalls budget

By ROLAND WILKERSON

Still grappling with the proposed 1981 East Lansing City budget, city council members have not yet decided which of the city manager's options would best deal with inflation.

Options presented by City Manager Jerry Coffman include cutting social services, raising the millage rate, or reducing the city's general fund balance.

The City Council discussed the inflation-stricken budget Monday night, but could not agree on the best plan of action, though the document is scheduled to be approved next Tuesday.

Coffman is recommending the council raise the property tax millage rate by 1 mill, or $1 per $1,000 of the state-assessed value of a home. The state-assessed value of a home is one-half its market value.

COFFMAN SAID THE millage hike is necessary for the city to continue providing current services.

"We have not had an increase in the city's millage rate in four years," Coffman said. "If the existing services are to be continued, a millage increase is necessary."

Councilmember John Hunault said she would prefer to cut services rather than raise the millage.

"Most operations of this size (East Lansing) could afford the kind of cut we are talking about and still run just as good," Hunault said.

The cuts in some services and using some of the city fund balance would (continued on page 8)

Court overturns president's plan to impose 10-cent-a-gallon gas tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge on Tuesday overturned President Carter's 10-cent-a-gallon gasoline fee that was to have shown up at gasoline pumps Thursday.

White House press secretary Jody Powell announced the government will immediately appeal the ruling and seek an expedited hearing before the federal circuit court of appeals.

Powell also said the government will ask for a stay of at least part of the ruling by U.S. District Judge Aubrey E. Robinson Jr.

Carter's fee would be imposed on all gasoline, whether it was refined from domestic or imported oil. But, said Robinson's 12-page opinion, the law only gives the president the power to regulate imported gasoline and crude oil.

Carter's plan was challenged by a coalition of consumer groups, petroleum marketers, an oil company and congress members. The plan calls for oil importers to pay the fee initially, with gasoline refiners then reimbursing the importers.

The refiners, who use both domestic and foreign oil, would then be permitted by the government to pass the charge down the retail chain to consumers.

Iranians sight U.S. copters

(AP) — Several American helicopters flew over Iranian ships working in Persian Gulf oil fields but switched course after Iran's armed forces were alerted, Tehran radio reported Tuesday. The Pentagon denied the report.

But Iranian Oil Minister Ali Akbar Moinefar was quoted as saying security at Iran's oil fields would be stepped up following the reported incident Monday night, and the official Soviet news agency Tass denounced the "new provocation by the American military," as "fresh proof of the fact that Washington continues to make plans for new military ventures against Iran."

Tass quoted the Tehran newspaper, Bamdad, as saying five U.S. Naval helicopters dropped a foamy chemical substance over the Persian Gulf, causing a large fire on the water near Iran's coast.

The United States has about two dozen ships off Iran, including aircraft carriers from which helicopters can fly. However, the Pentagon said no helicopters were in the area.

Skyway hearing begins

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — In the minutes before the "Summit Venture" tore out a section of the Sunshine Skyway Bridge, the pilot of the 608-foot freighter reversed engines, ordered the anchor dropped and took a hard left turn, the ship's captain testified Tuesday.

"When the pilot asked me to stand by the anchor, I figured something might be wrong," Capt. H.C. Liu told a marine board of inquiry investigating the tragedy.

Eight vehicles, including a bus with 23 persons aboard, plummeted into Tampa Bay when 1,400 feet of bridge collapsed after the Friday morning collision.

As the board opened its hearings Tuesday, the bodies of a man and a woman were found in the bay, raising the toll of known dead to 33. Authorities said more victims could be hidden in the sunken wreckage.

S. Korean students protest

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — An estimated 1,500 slogan-chanting students demanding an end to martial law battled riot police late into the night here Tuesday.

Meanwhile, South Korean officials studied intelligence reports of unusual North Korean military actions above the truce zone only 25 miles to the north of the capital city.

Student demonstrations, which began early this month in Seoul and several provincial cities, gained momentum Tuesday after a weekend lull. The students have echoed opposition demands that the government promptly carry out promised democratic reforms and end martial-law rule.

Tuesday's protest was one of the most successful street demonstrations held since martial law was imposed after the assassination of President Park Chung-hee last October. The students were able to march through busy downtown streets for about an hour before being overpowered by riot police.

Doctors: Many Cubans ill

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Navy doctors treating Cuban refugees charged Tuesday that Fidel Castro is shipping mental patients and the dying among thousands seeking asylum in the United States — people suffering from cancer, tuberculosis and even leprosy.

But the doctors said there is no evidence that the Cuban president is deporting carriers of highly contagious diseases.

The number of arrivals from Cuba on the "Freedom Flotilla" has slowed considerably. By mid-day Tuesday, only one refugee boat had arrived in 24 hours. A total of 37,000 Cubans have made the crossing since the boatlift began April 21.

Air fare deregulation closer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a major step toward total deregulation of air fares, the Civil Aeronautics Board Tuesday gave carriers authority to raise domestic ticket prices dramatically, including removal of all restrictions on short routes.

The board said carriers can charge whatever they feel the market will bear on flights up to 200 miles and that they can raise fares by up to 50 percent on flights of 201 to 400 miles and by 30 percent on flights of more than 400 miles.

The prices are based on a standard industry fare level set by the board.

WEATHER Today it will be partly sunny with a high around 60. Whew!

The board said airlines could file for the new rates immediately, which means that some could be in effect as early as Thursday.

The action had two major purposes: to give the CAB a chance to monitor what happens in a flexible fare market before the board is required by law to remove all fare regulations at the end of 1982, and to provide relief to an airline industry hard hit this year by soaring fuel costs and other expenses.

Court upholds right to die

BOSTON (AP) — Earle Spring, focus of a bitter right-to-die controversy, should have been allowed to die peacefully instead of being kept on life-support systems for nearly a year against his family's wishes, the Massachusetts Supreme Court ruled Tuesday.

Spring, a 78-year-old retired chemist from Montague, was senile and suffering from kidney disease. He died of heart disease April 6 at the Holyoke Geriatric Center.

A Franklin County probate judge granted a request by Spring's son in May 1979, to stop the kidney dialysis that was keeping the old man alive.

But because of appeals filed by Spring's court-appointed lawyer, that decision was postponed and the patient continued to receive thrice-weekly blood-cleaning treatments until he eventually died of natural causes.

Because of the legal issues involved, the high court agreed to issue a decision despite Spring's death.

Faculty split over proposed semester plan

By LOUISE WHALL
State News Staff Writer

Representatives from the liberal arts colleges and professional schools split over the proposed change to the semester system at Tuesday's Faculty Council meeting.

Several weeks of discussion during academic and faculty council meeting indicate that while the proposal has strong support within the liberal arts colleges faculty members from professional schools oppose it.

Mordechai Kreinin, a professor of economics speaking for the College of Business, said the college overwhelmingly opposed the change, but that only 40 of the 160 eligible faculty members voted.

"Those who were there felt fairly strongly about the change," Kreinin said. "Their position is not philosophical but operational."

DOUGLAS McKEAG, an assistant professor in the College of Human Medicine, said about 45 percent of the faculty opposed the change on practical grounds.

ATL Professor Henry Silverman, however, said the semester system would be a definite advantage in the teaching of writing. He said his department is concerned about whether the new system would change general education requirements, although the provost has not said anything about changing those.

David Reinke, an associate professor of veterinary medicine, said that college has just finished a curriculum change and that going through another one would be "abhorrent" to many members.

Louis Stamatakis, a professor of administration and higher education, said the members of his department who responded to a survey opposed the change. Many were concerned about the effect a change would have on scholarly research.

Carl Page, a professor of computer science, said he favored a semester system because it would allow

Council favors student leader

By KY OWEN
State News Staff Writer

Student Council recommended Tuesday that the board's student chairperson be retained next year.

During the past year the council has had a student, rather than an administrator, serve as chairperson for its meetings.

Last year, the council decided to implement the new system on a one-year trial basis, and that trial is up.

The council made a recommendation to next year's council instead of formally approving the procedure because members believed the decision concerning the chairperson should be made by the new council.

"I've been very pleased with the way it's gone," said Chuck Goeke, a Council of Graduate Students representative.

Steve Spivey, another COGS representative, agreed with Goeke and made the motion recommending that the system be used in the future.

Under Spivey's recommendation, possible duties of the chairperson would be:

- to serve on the Steering Committee of Academic Council;
- to serve on the council agenda committee; and
- to serve as liaison between the council and the Board of Trustees.

Spivey also recommended that administrators, mainly the president, provost, and vice president for student affairs, be represented at council meetings.

Anderson may be cut from ballot by lawsuit

By SUSAN TOMPOR
State News Staff Writer

Independent John Anderson could be eliminated from Michigan's November ballot if he is forced to remain on the state GOP primary ballot, the state Republican party charged in a suit filed Tuesday with the state Court of Appeals.

The suit was filed in response to state Attorney General Frank J. Kelley's ruling Monday which stated that Anderson's name must remain on the May 20 primary ballot because the Illinois Congress member did not meet the March 21 withdrawal deadline.

Anderson dropped out of the Republican nomination process and opted to seek the presidency as an independent candidate April 24. He has requested that his name be removed from the Michigan primary.

Citing an obscure state election law, the suit claimed that candidates may not appear on a ballot for one party and later appear on a second ballot within the same year for a different party.

But Anderson's state coordinator, Lorraine Beebe, said Tuesday that Anderson's campaign efforts in Michigan will continue to "zero in on the August primary" in order to guarantee the candidate a spot on the November ballot.

Anderson needs three-tenths of 1 percent of the votes cast Aug. 5 to qualify as an independent candidate in the November election in Michigan.

Beebe said Anderson's lawyers are studying the possibility of the candidate being banned from the November ballot. She added, however, that Kelley specifically stated that his ruling "does not affect Mr. Anderson's efforts to appear on the ballot for the November general election as an independent candidate."

State Republican Executive Director Richard Adams said Anderson's appearance on the GOP primary ballot creates too much confusion for voters and possibly hinders Anderson's chances for a spot on the November ballot.

Adams said the suit seeks to protect the "integrity" of the GOP primary ballot by preventing voters from casting what would be "a wasted vote" for Anderson on May 20.

To George Bush backers, that vote, which will be designated as "uncommitted," might well be a vote stolen from their candidate.

Republicans who realize that a vote for Anderson in the May 20 primary is a "wasted vote" may choose to vote for Bush as an alternative to the claimed front-runner Ronald Reagan.

PIRGIM tax nearly depleted

In these days of compulsory taxes and redeemable ones, a voluntary contribution seems too good to be true. But the PIRGIM check-off, an option students have at registration to give the Public Interest Research Group in Michigan $1 by checking either "yes" or "no" on their fee cards, may be eliminated because the group has fallen below a tax collection criterion imposed by the University.

Although ASMSU and COGS have passed resolutions in support of PIRGIM funding, Moses Turner, vice president for student affairs, said he will not decide the group's fate until the end of spring term. Not only does delay of the decision keep PIRGIM volunteers in limbo, but it goes against the voice of the students.

ASMSU, though we are often loathe to admit it, does represent the students of this University. The speed with which it passed the resolution is not surprising, considering it does not cost it anything. The tax is voluntary; those who do not want to pay an extra dollar on top of registration costs do not even have to wait three weeks for a refund.

Although the 20 percent criterion is arbitrary, it should apply to all tax-collecting organizations on campus if it is enforced. It would be interesting to find out how many students who pay the ASMSU tax during registration vote in ASMSU elections. For that matter, investigating how many students get their $18 worth from Olin Health Center might make another interesting study.

It is perhaps a reflection of the times that PIRGIM is unable to convince 20 percent of all students to contribute $1 to its many worthy causes. But as one of the last political activist groups in the state, PIRGIM should be able to continue collecting money from those who want to contribute, especially as PIRGIM even pays the administrative costs of collecting the tax.

Although some would say PIRGIM should publicize its activities more to convince students to part with their buck, the organization has, until now, been unable to even get a list of all contributors from the University. With a recent purchase of the PIRGIM membership list from the Data Processing Center, PIRGIM will finally be able to contact those students who are paying the voluntary tax. The freedom to pay such a tax should not be abolished now by those who may not agree with PIRGIM's goals.

The kids are still alright

Besides their common bond of preachiness sometimes bordering on religious principle, it is usually quite sardonic to compare the rock group The Who with any bonafide religious figures, let alone the pope. But that is what we propose to do, solely to analyze the similarities that exist between persons who exercise a lot of power among their followers, are the receivers of unequivocal worship and who often appear in places where security and crowd control are lacking.

We sentence the American media to a lot of hard thinking before it attempts to justify the reasons it cited for the deaths of 11 people who were trampled at a Who concert in Cincinnati last fall. When Pope John Paul II was amiably greeted in Zaire last week, the enormous crowds put a damper on the joy of the occasion. Nine persons, including two children, were trampled to death as the crowd pressed forward for a closer look at the pontiff.

The general response to the incident was near indifference as it zipped in and out of newspaper headlines across the country. Trappings are not uncommon in large crowds, especially those that amass to see a pope. And Cincinnati? Its similarity to Zaire is painfully obvious: a lot of "followers" turned out to see their teachers. Why did the Who fans trample each other? Because when an excited crowd pushes on the gate, the opening of those gates produces a force that would peril the most reverent follower.

Yet drugs, alcohol and rowdiness — the older generation's term for exuberance — took the blame for the Cincinnati melee, which could not have been avoided under the circumstances. The deaths were due to poor planning on the part of the promoters, inadequate security and an inaccurate estimation of crowd size. The press, however, seemed to swallow the claims of the city. It blamed the kids for the problems, which is like castigating thousands of Zairians for pushing hard.

Drugs and alcohol did not cause the 11 deaths in Cincinnati just as overzealous Catholicism did not cause the deaths in Zaire. There is a tendency to be specious when tragedy occurs, and the reverberations of the Cincinnati deaths were no doubt magnified by the notion that such incidents are spurred by drug-crazed youth.

Will the pope suffer the same fate? Of course not. Unlike rock concerts, the papacy has not been equated with violence for centuries. His martyrdom, however, may force him to accept the blame. But in reality, he never knew what happened. Neither did The Who.

VIEWPOINT: TWO-WHEELED KAMIKAZES

Unite against bicycle menace!

By TIM ZETTERHOLM

It is time for the pedestrians and automobile drivers of this University to unite against the bicycle menace that rears its ugly head.

Each spring term, without exception, these communist terrorists are out to undermine the entire campus transportation system; and we true-blooded Americans must learn to fight back. No longer will we be pushed around by these two-wheeled kamikaze pilots.

We must take immediate and drastic steps to stop these anarchists before they control us all. To this end I have devised a two-fold plan consisting of identification and annihilation.

The first step of the plan should be broken into two subsections. The first subsection helps pedestrians to identify these fascists. These guerrillas can be quite easily identified by pedestrians; they will be the ones who:

- Play chicken with you while going at excessive rates of speed. This always results in pedestrians picking themselves out of a) the bushes, b) the river, c) plate glass windows, or d) all of the above.

- Decide that they can weave their way between all of the people on Wells Hall bridge between classes, while simultaneously — now go: this — a) shifting gears, b) ogling the young lady (man) that he (she) just passed, c) trying to break the new land speed record.

- Swear at you when you walk on THEIR bicycle paths and do not hesitate to run you over when you are walking on the sidewalks. This results in a one-inch wide tire mark across your body which must be surgically removed.

The second subsection deals with automobile driver recognition of these Moscow maniacs. This is also quite easy to do. They will be the ones who:

- Are constantly riding the wrong way around the traffic circles, causing cars to come to a screeching halt. As every good American knows, this only serves to increase our dependence on foreign oil, over which, incidentally, these Red Rats will soon have complete control.

- Ride down the middle of the street pretending they are Teddy Roosevelt leading a charge up San Juan Hill. This, of course, seriously impedes the normal flow of traffic and causes extreme mental anguish for the typical auto driver.

As you can plainly see, the red menace will stop at nothing to reach its desired end. So we too must stop at nothing. This brings me to part two of my master plan: annihilation.

This step must be quickly carried out or it will be too late. We must all work together on this, and each of us must do our part for the good of the cause. It can be carried out by using this simple two-step procedure.

- Pedestrians — you must be willing to sacrifice your bodies for the cause. When a bicycle is coming toward you, you must simultaneously throw your body in front of the oncoming bike and yell out "Siberia." This should temporarily put fear in their hearts and souls. When you see they are stunned, you must quickly pick yourself up and destroy their vehicle of exploitation, that they with sinister intent wield against the American public.

- Auto drivers — you must be willing to sacrifice your tires for the cause. Here is the plan. Sneak up behind them and lay on your horn for five seconds. As soon as they have landed back in their seats, take a rope and lasso those suckers, and take them on the ride of their life. When it looks like they have had enough, order them to dismount and drive over their means of transportation a few times.

Remember if we work together using this master plan we can defeat the red menace. It is up to us since they have obviously infiltrated the DPS and brainwashed it. We must act now!

Remember our slogan, "It is ten o'clock, how many spokes have you kicked today?"

Zetterholm is a junior majoring in computer science and is a member of the bicycle division of the Coalition Against Communist Aggression.

A fund raiser nobody lauded

Everybody loves a hero . . . and every newspaper loves to capitalize on his/her accomplishments. Why don't you?

These days, when the world does not seem to know if it is coming or going, it is nice to read about people who care. Believe it or not, this campus does house a group of men that any college paper would be proud to write about. I am speaking of the men of first floor Holden Hall. They call themselves "Vertigo."

For four days, the Vertigo men worked at raising money for the American Cancer Society. They played a marathon softball game that lasted almost 70 hours, and they raised more than $7,000.

What's wrong with our campus paper when more emphasis is placed on the fact that Vertigo didn't break some record, than on the fact that these men gave everything they had to fight a killing disease? Why was it not written by you that two players collapsed from heat exhaustion while working for such a tremendous cause? Why was it not written that some of the players were so drained that they forgot where they were, or what they were doing? Why was it not written that these Holden Hall men volunteered their time, strength and energy just because they cared? Is that not newsworthy?

Until now, The State News has always seemed to cover the important and interesting events with priority. I was disappointed to note that the Vertigo story was on page nine, when the front page was filled with news of equal, if not less, importance. I was also surprised to note that the Vertigo story was very well covered by WVIC and The State Journal.

I sincerely hope that this letter gets printed, not because I like to see my words in print, but because somebody has to tell the men of Vertigo what incredible people they are. I was almost able to say I had not lost faith in humanity, if only The State News could have lived up to my expectations and given praise to our campus heroes! Hats off to you Vertigo: you are respected people.

Culinary oasis sadly runs dry

Is nothing sacred in this age of the freezer and the microwave? On a campus that is one vast gastronomical wasteland, the pastries and other desserts at Kellogg Center have consistently provided a tiny culinary oasis. Now I learn from Ms. Higley's viewpoint of the eminent demise of the gourmand's last campus ort. No more Holiday Praline Pie? No more Mississippi Mud Cake? No more apple dumplings with hot buttered rum sauce? My cardiologist is rejoicing gleefully, but my sweet tooth is in open rebellion. Someone do something quick, lest we suffer the ultimate indignity of lo-cal ice cream and sugar-free topping being passed off as a Hot Fudge Sundae.

A cheap shot

I am writing this letter in response to the cheap shot the so-called music reviewers of The State News took at REO Speedwagon in the May 8 paper. Normally, I simply ignore the arrogant, narrow-minded views you people take on rock bands, but on this one you are way out of line.

First of all, your inability to obtain free passes to either of the REO shows has nothing to do with the band's ability to play rock and roll. It amazed me how you could publically blast a band that you have never seen; but then I realized that this is just consistent with your biased reviewing of rock bands that don't stand up to your "with it" rock and roll mentality.

I did attend the concert and it was one of the best rock shows Lansing has seen in a long time. REO was very professional and had the Lansing Civic Center jumping. I was also at your highly acclaimed "Eight-a-Day-For-The-Eighties" and I can honestly say that both REO and their guest 38 Special would have rocked any of those bands right off stage. So the next time you reviewers fail to get free passes to a show, don't take cheap shots at the band; blame the people actually responsible.

Dave Schenk

582 S. Wonders Hall

Bill Holdship replies: I don't know why people assume that we were taking a cheap shot at REO Speedwagon. All we were saying is that we couldn't get into the show. Just for the record, I've seen the band three times in the past (twice before they were famous), and John Neilson has seen them once. If we had wanted to take a "cheap shot" at REO, there would have been no question as to our intention.

Residents say Edgewood plan will hike taxes

By MATT PERRY
State News Staff Writer

Citizens, citing an unnecessary property tax increase, voiced opposition to the extension of Lansing's Edgewood Boulevard at Monday night's Lansing City Council's public hearing on the city's proposed 1980-81 budget.

Numerous speakers addressed the City Council, many of them residents of Edgewood Boulevard, claiming money raised for a proposed 1.37 mill property tax increase could be used for badly-needed repairs on existing roads.

Funds for the Edgewood Boulevard project, first conceived in the mid-'60s, have finally been allocated in Mayor Gerald Graves' proposed budget.

More than $880,000 for the project was included in Graves' budget message while the rest has already been approved through other funds.

A procession of disgruntled Edgewood residents told City Council members that the property tax increase, which would raise about $1.3 million for the city, would be unneeded if the Edgewood Boulevard project were shelved.

THE CITY'S EXISTING ROADS are in terrible shape, Marilyn Hibbard, an Edgewood resident, told the council, "and now they're going to put in a new road that won't be maintained."

"The choice then is between a new road and a tax increase, or no road and no tax increase," said Patience Drake, who lives close to the proposed construction.

But Jan Lazar, deputy director of finance, said the increase is minimal, only about $16 more a year for the average homeowner.

Homeowners on Miller Road also showed up at the meeting, but for different reasons. The project would alleviate traffic problems on Miller Road by creating another east-west route from Cedar Street to Logan Street. Miller Road residents appeared at the meeting to remind the council of its obligation to build the extension.

Donna Holey, a Miller Road resident, said the city has been promising the extension for 15 years and should not back out of its commitment.

DICK NELLER, of Walter Neller Company, a land developer, also asked that the city build the Edgewood extension. Neller, who owns two areas of land close to the proposed extension, said his plans for residential housing and office space have been dependent on the extension.

Neller said that though there was no formal commitment by the city it was generally known the extension was to have been built. He said his firm is prepared to build Edgewood Boulevard within his own land holdings.

Councilmember Terry McKane said groups opposing Edgewood extension were not nearly as concerned about a tax hike as they were about having a road run by their homes.

McKane said City Council is still committed to building the project to help Miller Road residents with traffic congestion.

Council President Louis Adado also said the council was set to approve funds for Edgewood, adding that plans for construction are finished and contracts for land acquisition were all that remained for the road.

The Edgewood Boulevard, extension is part of Graves' $47.3 million 1980-81 city budget. A budget plan must be approved by the council Monday.

FOR PARKING LOT

Building razing OK'd

The demolition of downtown Lansing's Poxson building, to be replaced with a parking lot, was given approval by Lansing City Council Monday, with an amendment allowing the structure to be smaller than originally planned.

The amendment, introduced by Councilmember Pat Lindemann, allows the construction of an extension of the South Grand parking ramp to vary from 200 to 375 parking spots, to give the city more time to decide on the size of the addition. The parking addition will help supply parking for the city's multi-million dollar "100 Block" renovation, a project aimed at bringing conventions to Lansing.

At last week's council meeting, Councilmember James Blair opposed the parking extension because the plan called for the ramp to be built next to Michigan Avenue. Blair asked to have the extension set back from the road so pedestrians could see the Grand River and the Capitol.

"No one's talking about green space along the river, and no one's talking about green space along Michigan Avenue," Blair said, explaining his dissenting vote Monday.

Wayne Schmidt, from the Michigan United Conservation Clubs, told the council the project should be "centered around the river instead of the river being an afterthought." A delay to the construction to allow more study would be prudent, he added.

If the city plans to build parts of the parking extension into the river, as the original plan called for, it would be required to obtain permits from the Department of Natural Resources. The city could acquire those only with "a great deal of trouble," Schmidt added.

Gentle Giant aims for new exposure

By MARK FELLOWS
State News Staff Writer

Drummer John Weathers, a bit tired and testy from his performance with Gentle Giant a half hour before, bummed a light from guitarist Gary Green and perched on the steps leading backstage.

"I like touring," he answered one of a dozens fans and reporters crowding around him. "I keep fit touring."

That would suit any of the thousand or so fans attending Giant's performance at Harpo's Monday night just fine. During the band's eighth appearance in Detroit it turned in another fine show for the seemingly already hard-core Gentle Giant audience.

Nikki and the Corvettes, one of Detroit's earlier new wave groups, opened the show with a brand of pop rock not unlike the B-52s, but more listenable. Vocalist Nikki Corvette good naturedly handled the audience, which came for something other than new wave, for a clean 45-minute set.

Gentle Giant took the stage promptly afterward, launching into a couple cuts from the new release, Civilian. Those who doubted the level of energy this group puts out, based on their mellower earlier albums, were in for a pleasant surprise. How to describe the performance? Intense, certainly, with impeccable timing. Polished and professional, of course. In a word, Giant cooks.

Most songs were fast, and of recent vintage, contributing to the high energy level generated by the band. But the five-part harmonies and percussion solos by all members of the group added true polish, elevating Giant to something above merely professional proficient.

Indeed, while vocalist Derek Shulman sang "Number One" from the new album, he clearly indicated who he thought the song referred to — at times the audience, at others the band. Naturally the crowd agreed.

Gentle Giant, which previously drew its audience from an "intellectual" pool because of its unorthodox treatment of, for example, rhythm and meter, could be accused of catering to a younger audience now. In fact, the average age of the crowd Monday seemed to be about 20.

Long-time fans have remarked that the tendency toward faster songs on recent albums is aimed by FM exposure (more on that later) and ultimately a younger, less elitist audience.

Gentle Giant vocalist Derek Shulman stretches his vocal cords at Harpo's in Detroit Monday. "We're Number One."

Weathers is quick to disagree. "People talk about change — it's bull—, We just want to keep being original."

"But," Weathers said later, "I like the younger audience. It's not 1972 anymore — it's 1980, and things are changing." Weathers credited this new audience group with helping to boost sales of Civilian 20 percent over sales of previous albums.

The balding, bespectacled drummer grew irritated when asked about allegations linking Civilian's executive producer, Lee Abrams, to improprieties in album promotion.

Briefly, a well-known music critic wrote in a national music magazine this month that Abrams could be in conflict of interest for producing the album while operating a national radio programming consulting firm. The writer compared the situation to the payola scandal in 1960, implying that while Abrams isn't doing anything illegal, the connection with his Atlanta-based consulting firm makes his role of producer highly improper.

Lansing area listeners may have noticed that a song from the new album, "Underground," has received air time on WLS-FM. Dennis Cavender, programming director for the station's AM operation, confirmed that Abram's agency, Burkhardt-Abrams, does do programming consulting for the station's FM section.

However, Cavender said, much of the station's FM programming is done locally by station personnel. "Abrams' word by no means is law," he stressed.

Weathers feels strongly about the allegations. "I'm asked about it a lot, but I didn't expect it. Abrams knew so much about music and taste that we used him."

"The fact he supplies information to a lot of stations doesn't mean anything," he said. He added that a backlash effect might have also occurred, with stations not playing the album because of Abrams' association with it.

And in a very un-gentle moment, Weathers mentioned his desire to break someone's nose over the allegations. The subject was soon dropped.

But Weathers seems to be a good sport, but not because of the Oakland A's uniform he wore at the drum kit. Several Giant fans went home with autographed T-shirts, albums and Giant masks, compliments of Weathers and Green. It's refreshing to see performers return some of the respect given by their fans, even if fans show their respect in sometimes peculiar and irritating ways.

EMU ambushes MSU batters

By BILL TEMPLETON
State News Sports Writer

YPSILANTI — The Indians treated Gen. Custer like royalty compared to what the Eastern Michigan University Hurons did to the MSU baseball team Tuesday.

In the game which made Custer's last stand look like a Sunday picnic, EMU took a 14-4 decision.

The Spartans put their lives on the line again in a scheduled second game, but rain canceled that contest after four innings.

MSU, 14-32 overall, plays Wayne State University today in the final home double-header of the year at 1 p.m.

THE HURONS BEGAN the one-sided slugfest in the opening ending with five runs on three hits. Included in the total was right fielder Audie Cole's three-run home run.

Cole clubbed the homer over the centerfield wall off starter and loser Mark Pomorski, 0-3. It was Cole's 27th homer of his career and set a new record, making him the state's most prolific in that category.

"He's a hell of a hitter and he has been since he has been here," said assistant coach Frank Pellerin. "He is definitely a pro prospect."

Cole knocked in five runs in the contest, including his second home run of the game in the third inning.

"We started throwing the ball up high right away, and when you do that, you get hurt," Pellerin said.

MSU managed just six hits in the game, with junior Jim Buterakos collecting two safeties.

Game two was suspended and finally canceled due to rain with EMU leading 6-5.

THE HURONS STRUCK for four runs in the first frame on five hits, before the Spartans came back with four runs of their own in the top of the second ending.

But it was Cole again in the Huron's second inning as the 6-foot-2 senior blasted his third homer of the day.

With his team training 6-4, sophomore Al Dankovich delivered a run-scoring single in the top of the third, but Mother Nature intervened before either team could score another run.

Umpire Doug Cossey suspended play after four innings, but the rules state the losing team must come to the plate five times to make the game official.

The contest was canceled following a 28-minute wait.

Vincent to try for Olympic bid

MSU's Jay Vincent has been invited to compete against some of the nation's top basketball talent for a position on the U.S. Olympic team. Olympic tryouts are Sunday in Lexington, Ky.

The U.S. Olympic Committee will select a squad of 12 cagers despite the United States' decision to follow through with the boycott of the 1980 Summer Games in Moscow.

The 6-foot-8, 230-pound Vincent was the Spartans' Most Valuable Player and the Big Ten's leading scorer with an average of 21.5 points per game in 1980 as MSU finished ninth in the conference.

Vincent is sixth among all-time leading scorers at MSU with 1,305 points tallied during his three-year tenure as a Spartan.

The Lansing native had a brilliant high school career at Lansing Eastern where he earned All-American and All-State honors with a three-year average of better than 20 points per game.

The junior center's combination of size and quickness makes him an ideal prospect for the pros as a power forward. He is a threat with his ability to move inside as well as hit the hoop from the outside.

Fitness run Saturday

The second annual Capitol 10,000-meter Fitness Run will be held Saturday in Lansing.

The 6.2-mile "out-and-back" course will begin at the Capitol, go to Francis Park and return to the Capitol.

Deadline for entry applications, which are available at the downtown YMCA and area sporting goods stores, is 5 p.m. Friday.

The run is open to 11- to 60-year-olds and there will be separate divisions for men and women, as well as eight age groups.

There will also be a one-mile version of the race offered for those who do not want to run the 10,000-meter distance.

The event is sponsored by Michigan Blue Cross-Blue Shield, the Lansing YMCA and WILS-FM.

TAILBACK AWAITS SEASON

Smith does more time

By WILL KOWALSKI
State News Sports Writer

Junior tailback Steve Smith of the MSU football team has witnessed a lot of changes in the Spartan offense since "Muddy" Waters took over as head coach this spring.

But as far as Smith is concerned, the changes are for the better.

Instead of using the rotating-backs system Darryl Rogers employed, Waters has decided to use just one main set of backs. That means Smith and sophomore Derek Hughes will see quite a bit more action next fall.

Will the doubled amount of playing time put added pressure on the Louisville, Ky., native? No, says Smith.

"I DON'T THINK playing most of the time will put any extra pressure on me because it's my job and I just want to do my best," Smith said.

"Playing more might put a little more self-pressure on me to excel, but I think I'll be better knowing I have to be at my best at all times."

Smith was the Spartans' leading rusher last season with 972 yards in 204 carries with four touchdowns. He needs only 643 yards to become MSU's all-time career rusher (he now has 2,009) and Smith feels he should be able to surpass Eric Allen's mark of 2,654 yards in the first few games of the 1980 season.

"I should be able to rush for a lot more than 1,000 yards next fall and I should break the career record in my first couple of games,"

Smith said. "With the added playing time I should almost be able to double my output."

ALONG WITH MORE playing time, Smith also likes coach Waters' motion-oriented offense.

"With so much movement going on, the defense won't know where the backs will be lining up so it will keep the defense on their toes," Smith said.

"With the backs in motion, I think it gives the offense a slight edge against the defenses we'll be going against."

Smith said that in the first few weeks of spring practice the defense was ahead of the offense in progress, but now it is pretty even.

"EACH WEEK WE looked better and better and made a lot less mistakes," the 5-foot-9, 182-pound Smith said.

"It was tough at first learning all of Muddy's plays, but when it comes right down to it, football is football."

Although Smith agrees that there is not much depth on the team this spring, he said he believes the Spartans can be Big Ten contenders due to the good personnel on the squad and the strength of MSU's kicking game.

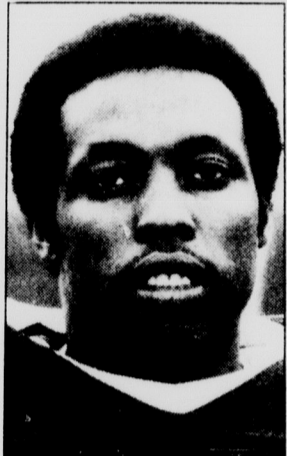

"I think the team, as a whole, has its sights on the Rose Bowl," Smith said.

"We would like to win the conference, but if that doesn't happen then it will be a successful season if we at least make some kind of a bowl game."

As far as the quarterback situation is concerned, Smith says, Bert Vaughn is getting the most playing time and is looking the best, but all of the quarterbacks have the ability to lead the team.

"I really don't think we'll run into another situation like we did against Notre Dame last year where we had two quarterbacks go down in one game," Smith said.

But if something like that does happen we'll have quarterbacks on the sidelines that will be able to go right in and move the ball."

Steve Smith

'Strike,' say Thompson, Kemp

By JIM MASON
State News Sports Writer

As the major league baseball season gets into full swing, a growing threat of a strike by the players looms. Detroit Tigers outfielder Steve Kemp and first baseman Jason Thompson confirmed the May 22 strike threat during a personal appearance Monday at Athlete's Village, 5102 S. Cedar St., Lansing.

"It looks as if there will be a strike," Thompson said. "It's a bad situation, but if we're forced into it, it's something we have to do."

THE MAJOR CONFLICT in the negotiations is the free agent compensation issue. Under the present agreement, a ballclub receives nothing more than a low-round draft choice when one of its players jumps to another team after playing out his contract.

A player is eligible to become a free agent after his first seven years in the league. The players would like to see that figure reduced some to ensure more freedom to play for the team of their choice.

The players don't want to strike, but we don't want to give up what we've had," said Kemp, noting a stricter compensation rule would restrict some owners from signing the free agents. "If they had a preference, they'd like to stay out there and keep playing baseball."

THE TIGERS WERE slumping at the beginning of the season, but are finally getting some consistent pitching that helped them put together a modest winning streak. "Things were tough for a while," said Thompson. "We should have won six straight games out on the West Coast (last week). We just have to win some games and hope to get back into the race."

Kemp complimented former MSU star Kirk Gibson for his work as the new Tiger centerfielder.

"Kirk's doing a great job. He's continuing to improve, and he'll be a big star in his time," Kemp said. "He's come a long way."

Last year Kemp played alongside Ron LeFlore, who was traded away in the off-season. How does Gibson compare with LeFlore?

"I felt very comfortable with Ronnie last year," he said. "With Kirk, it's like starting all over again. We just have to start working together. As time goes on, things will be all right."

Thompson and Kemp signed autographs for local fans during their appearance at Athlete's Village, to which the two players are under contract.

Catching up on things...

Item: "VINCENT NAMED FOR OLYMPIC TRY-OUTS" This is a somewhat shallow honor. Unless Hell or Siberia freezes over, there will not be an Olympiad this summer.

This should not take anything away from our Jay, who made the right decision to remain at MSU instead of going off to NBA-land. Such praise cannot be reserved for such as Louisiana State University's Dwayne Scales or the University of Wisconsin's Wesley Matthews. The latter certainly is a fine player, but come on, he'll sit on the bench in the National Basketball Association. One 55-foot-rainbow-from-further-than-halfcourt-with-time-running-out (against MSU in 1978-79's regular season finale, remember?) does not a star make.

Item: "NETWOMEN LOSE IN STATE FINAL" This was a big surprise. The MSU women's tennis team had beaten the University of Michigan twice during the regular season, but could not do it in the state tournament last weekend. Luckily, the team received an at-large berth to the regionals this weekend, and might get revenge on the Wolves. Best bets for stardom (Oh, what a HACKNEYED phrase!) this weekend include freshmen Monty Gettys and Jill Grinberg, who play Nos. 1 and 2 singles, respectively, and make up the Spartans' top doubles pair. Gettys had been wiping out opponents all season, and Grinberg, who looks like she's about 16 years old, doesn't play like it. Despite some co-worker who might scream otherwise, look for this program to, barring defections and injuries, increase in prestige in the next few years. Remember, you heard it here first.

Item: "GRIDDERS LOOKING GOOD IN GREEN/WHITE GAME PREPARATIONS" Muddy Waters was telling reporters during his press conference Monday how well spring practice was going. Few of us were surprised with what he said, but the new coach took some onlookers aback when asked to compare this spring session with others in Waters' long coaching career.

Waters' eyes lit up with the asking of the question. "I've never had a spring practice before," he replied. "I was frustrated a lot. At Hillsdale, we couldn't afford it. And at Saginaw Valley we got out of school too early. So this is the first one."

All this prompted one ingenious wag to shoot back, "No wonder you think it's perfect..."

Tax relief proposed average of 8 percent, Siljander said.

Faced with this choice, the Legislature would likely shift the burden to localities, he said.

The Tisch proposal also seeks to include on tax rolls previously non-taxable property such as universities, recreation camps and veterans organizations. Only churches would be exempt from property taxation.

TISCH COULD NOT be reached for comment.

Siljander said he was an early supporter of the Tisch proposal, but added he deduced to write his own amendment after finding what he called "glaring, blatant loopholes" in the Tisch plan.

Siljander's own amendment proposal seeks to cut the proposed state budget $450 million in 1981-82 by limiting the budget growth to $50 million out of a projected $500 million revenue increase, he said.

The representative also proposed keying Michigan Aid to Dependent Children and general assistance payments to an average of those in neighboring states. This could save $300 million and reduce the influx of welfare recipients from other states, he said.

Siljander admitted that meeting the July 7 deadline for submitting nearly 30,000 signatures on his amendment petitions will be an uphill battle, but stressed that the effort is not futile.

Siljander challenged Tisch to a public debate on the amendment proposals, "any time, anywhere in the state," to help the public understand the issues involved.

still keep East Lansing in good shape, Hunault said.

HUNAUT SUGGESTED PUTTING off sidewalk and street repairs and reducing sidewalk snow removal to delay a millage increase for a year.

Mayor Larry Owen, however, said the city should not allow roads, sidewalks and other public facilities to deteriorate.

"We have to realize we live in a town that is old, and that some repairs are needed," Owen said.

If sidewalk snow removal services are reduced, the elderly will have a difficult time clearing the walks on their own, he said.

Also discussed was the possibility of not rehiring a city planner and a police officer to cut costs for the next budget.

Several council members said they would feel uncomfortable if the police were not kept fully staffed, noting citizens' complaints about the city's current police service.

Primaries

Kennedy was campaigning Tuesday in California for the biggest, and last of the Democratic primaries, on June 3. He described the state as one he "has to win," but vowed to maintain his candidacy through the convention no matter what happens in the final 15 primaries.

Bush already has been at work in Michigan and there were, for the first time, hints from his camp that a defeat in that primary — a week away — could force him from the GOP race.

'U' hearing OK'd

Larowe had disqualified himself as FGO for this case because he is also a member of the economics department. Adams then sent a letter to Abeles objecting to Miller acting as FGO because the provost recommends his choice for a deanship to the president and the Board of Trustees.

Miller said he submitted his resignation because the appearance of impartiality and fairness are essential to the success of the grievance proceedings.

Bust of Hannah to be seniors' gift

By NANCY J. STUIT

The 1980 Senior Class Council has chosen to commission a bust of former MSU president John A. Hannah as one of this year's senior class gifts.

The second gift will be a grove of ornamental trees to be planted around the entrance plaza of the Performing Arts Center scheduled for completion in 1981, said Karen Essenmacher, class gift chairperson for the SCC.

The SCC has been taking suggestions from the members of the senior class since winter term registration, she said.

"We set up a table at registration to take a survey that would tell us what the senior class was interested in giving as their class gift," Essenmacher said. "Also, a letter was sent out to all seniors asking for their feedback."

An East Lansing sculptor has expressed an interest in doing the bust, but no contract has been signed, Essenmacher added. The SCC would like to display the bust in the John A. Hannah Administration Building although it is still waiting for approval, she added.

Essenmacher also said a drawing showing the arrangement of the trees around the Performing Arts Center will be displayed in the Union so seniors can see how their gift will look when they pick up their caps and gowns.

Essenmacher said the SCC hopes to have approximately $4,000 to spend on the gifts. The money is being raised by sponsoring bar nights and from $1 donations which seniors can pledge when they order their caps and gowns.

The idea for giving a class gift has not been a long-standing tradition at MSU and is not limited to current graduating classes.

"The first class gift was given in 1959 by the class of 1909 at their 50th reunion," said Marti K.S. Heil, the new assistant director of school, college and alumni programs for the MSU Development Fund.

Heil said her office works closely with the MSU Alumni Association and class reunion committees. A list is made of suggested gift ideas and the different groups decide what they would like to donate, she said.

"There will be two class reunions this spring," Heil said. "One is for the class of 1930 and the other is for the class of 1940."

"The class of 1930 has chosen to furnish the pressroom in the new football training facility. The class of 1940 still has to pull themselves together, but it looks like it (the gift) will be a 7-foot grand piano for the Performing Arts Center," Heil said.

The work on getting donations for the class gifts usually begins nine months before the class reunion, she said.

Fraser gains Chrysler seat

ROCKFORD, ILL. (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. shareholders elected United Auto Workers President Douglas A. Fraser to the company's board of directors Tuesday, setting a precedent Fraser predicted will be copied by other U.S. unions.

Fraser becomes the first American labor leader to penetrate top corporate management. But he skipped his first board meeting — immediately after the voting — to return to Detroit for a union executive board meeting.

The election marked the second time in four days Chrysler made U.S. business history. On Saturday, Chrysler won a life-saving $1.5 billion federal loan guarantee in the nation's largest corporate rescue.

At a news conference just before Chrysler's annual stockholders meeting, Fraser said the UAW would demand representation on the boards of General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. during 1982 contract talks.

"It's not enough for a union to go to the bargaining table and argue about decisions that are already made," Fraser said.

Responding to charges he will not adequately represent all Chrysler shareholders, Fraser said workers "have more at stake than any officer of the company, any shareholder and any union representative."

Fraser has pledged to bow out of board discussions on contract talks with the UAW and Chrysler Chairperson Lee A. Iacocca said he sees no conflict of interest in Fraser's election to the board.

"On the other hand, I do see a great benefit to the corporation because of his experience, his strength of character and his breadth of vision about the future of this industry," Iacocca said.

"Finally," he continued, "I want it to be known that I like Doug Fraser as a person. We get along well and we can work together."

Fraser was nominated to the board last fall in exchange for union wage and benefit concessions that will save Chrysler about $430 million over the next three years. Those union concessions were demanded by Congress as a condition for federal loan guarantees.

The corporation did not release specific vote totals on Fraser's election but Chrysler executives said he received less than one-half of 1 percent fewer votes than the average received by the other 19 directors elected.

Fraser acknowledged that there is controversy in the UAW and other American unions as to whether the traditional adversary union-management relationship was compromised by his election to the board.

wall at the side of the building and fell to the pavement.

"There was a blind man on the bus who started running," she said. "He got cut all over his face and neck. There were branches falling everywhere."

The Rev. Lewis Briner, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church near Bronson Park where the motorcyclist was killed, said the storm happened so fast, you barely had time to collect your thoughts."

The tornado was accompanied by golf ball-sized hail that shattered motorists' windshields, local residents said.

About 12,000 area residents were reported without power due to downed high-voltage lines. Telephone service also was knocked out in the downtown area and about 40 gas lines were reported ruptured.

VAN BUREN COUNTY. immediately to the west, was hit hard by the severe weather just before the storm system moved into the Kalamazoo area.

Sheriff's deputies said a tornado cut a swath about 20 miles long and three miles wide across the county, causing extensive damage and injuring 14 persons, some of them seriously.

The twister moved through Bangor, Arlington, Waverly and Alameda townships, Sheriff Richard Stump said, uprooting dozens of trees, downing power lines and destroying or damaging an undetermined number of houses.

Most of the injured were from the Glendale area in Waverly Township, Stump said. Some apparently were residents of a mobile home park west of Glendale that was badly damaged as the storm moved through.

Student Council

had expressed concern that administrators would not give the council as much input if a student chaired it.

"My concern is the lack of administrative input," said Marie Foley, College of Business representative. "I think the council's been kind of slighted (since it has had a student chairperson)."

Spivey, however, said the student chairperson is needed to provide leadership for the body and to serve as the body's spokesperson.

He said a major problem during the past few years has been that people outside the council do not know who to contact if they have a concern to present to the board.

Foley, the only member who voted against the motion, said council members who will return next year should begin thinking about who would be qualified for the job, since in her opinion it will require a great deal of experience.

Faculty split

students to get to know their professors and other students more easily than with the quarter system.

"I FIRMLY BELIEVE that the quarter system is the most efficient teaching system," added Leo Nothstine, a professor of engineering.

He said the quarter system makes both students and faculty work harder and is therefore a more effective teaching system.

Clayton Wells, the dean of Lifelong Education, said the University has a commitment to the citizens of Michigan and the Legislature to serve non-traditional students because of MSU's land grant philosophy. Reducing the number of terms would reduce the opportunities for non-traditional students to take classes, he said.

Kreinin suggested to Provost Clarence L. Winder that he address the concerns of the professional colleges and answer general questions at the Academic Council meeting May 20.
