Reagan undecided on running mate

By SUSAN TOMPOR
State News Staff Writer

GRAND RAPIDS — After a day of intense campaigning, Republican presidential hopeful Ronald Reagan came in from the rain here Saturday, only to hide under a cloud of speculation surrounding his choice of a running mate.

Reagan, who has ceased stumping for the Republican nomination and taken aim at the November election, cautiously avoided making any revelations concerning the vice-presidency.

"I think the Republican Party has so much qualified talent for the job (of the vice president)," he said, "it's going to be hard to choose."

Reagan added that he would seek the advice of party notables when making his decision.

He said his main criterion for choosing a running mate is that the candidate have a political philosophy which is similar to his own.

"The two who run together should be in double-harness and should share the same political views," he said.

Reagan side-stepped speculation linking Tennessee Sen. Howard Baker to the Republican vice-presidential nomination.

"I've ruled no one out, no one in," he said.

Reagan also denied charges that he would be the presidential candidate most likely to involve the United States in a war.

"I have talked of strength because the primary purpose must be world peace," he said.

He said efforts must be made to slow down the "adventuring" policies of the Soviet Union, and charged that President Carter's "vacillating policies" could back the country into a war.

"There have been four wars in my lifetime," said the 69-year-old candidate. "I don't know of any of them that occurred because the United States was too strong."

Riots kill 10 in Florida

By RICK SPRATLING
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Shotgun-packing National Guardsmen patrolled Miami's streets Sunday after four white ex-police officers were acquitted in the death of a black man. The acquittal ignited a racial "time bomb" in a wave of shootings, burnings and looting. At least 10 people were killed and 200 injured.

Police agencies reported 167 arrests on riot-related charges. Black smoke still curled up from more than three dozen buildings, and scattered looting continued Sunday after a chaotic night of violence. Dade County Sheriff Bobby Jones imposed a 8 p.m.-6 a.m. curfew in the most troubled area of Miami, and limited sales of firearms, explosives, gasoline and alcohol.

Schools were ordered closed on Monday. Public bus runs were canceled.

Shouting a one-word battle cry — "McDuffie" — crowds of enraged blacks surged into Miami streets Saturday night and early Sunday after an all-white jury in Tampa found the former Dade County police officers innocent in the death of black business executive Arthur McDuffie.

POLICE SAID ONE MAN was shot, his ear cut off and tongue severed. A red rose was stuffed into his throat.

County Manager Merrett Stierheim said 10 persons were known dead. Two of the dead were alleged looters shot by officers, police said.

There was an 11th death related to the rioting. A Miami city police officer suffered a fatal heart attack while escorting National Guard troops to a threatened area, police said.

The injured included three police officers who suffered gunshot wounds, apparently minor.

Gov. Bob Graham, in a broadcast appeal from Tallahassee, asked residents to stay at home.

"Do your part to stop the violence and hatred," he said. "Black Americans as well as white Americans have worked long and hard since the days of the civil rights marches to secure a fair portion of the American dream for all our citizens."

"We have come too far and worked too hard to see that everything is lost in one more night of needless violence and rage," Graham said.

"WE CAN OBTAIN justice in America and Florida. But justice is only obtainable by working within the law, not by murder in the streets," Graham said.

Meanwhile, in an apparent effort to diffuse the situation, U.S. Justice Department officials announced Sunday they would seek civil rights indictments against the four ex-police officers, who were acquitted less than four hours before the violence broke out here.

Miami Mayor Maurice Ferre said a delegation of prominent black leaders was headed for the city to help restore calm. They included the Rev. Jesse Jackson of "Operation PUSH" in Chicago, Urban League Executive Director Vernon Jordan and Benjamin Hooks, executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Dade County officials imposed a dusk-to-dawn curfew in the riot-scarred northwest section of town, halted all bus service, arrested more than 135 persons and sent police escorts with fire trucks.

Graham mobilized 1,100 National Guard troops, 300 Highway Patrol officers, Marine Patrol and riot troops from the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, four helicopters and an armored personnel carrier.

Jim Baab, a police spokesperson, said the riot victims had been beaten, stabbed and shot. He said they included three white men, one Oriental man and four black men. One body, pulled from a flaming car, was so burned that its identity and sex could not be determined, Baab said.

POLICE ARREST FOR SOLICITATION

Gays claim harassment

By D.R. KINSLEY
State News Staff Writer

The Lansing Association for Human Rights is considering a class action suit against the Lansing police for alleged harassment of gays in the downtown area.

In the last two weeks several gays have been arrested in the downtown area for "solicitation for immoral purposes," said Gene Martin, chairperson of LAHR.

"There has been a step-up of vice squad activity in and around the bars" during the last few weeks, Martin said.

Much of the change in downtown activity at night has occurred since the March 6 reopening of Bonnie and Clyde Disco, 316 E. Michigan Ave.

THE DISCO, WHICH attracted a predominantly straight black crowd, closed for two weeks at the end of February for some remodeling, but mostly for a change in clientele, said Steve Franklin, night manager at the disco.

The bar was reopened and word was spread throughout the gay community that Bonnie and Clyde's management hoped to attract a gay crowd, he said.

"We have extremely large crowds," Franklin said.

"There hasn't been that kind of activity in the downtown area in a long time," he said, "and the police are making themselves aware of that activity."

"But they have no right to harass my customers," he added.

MARTIN SAID HE spoke with Lansing police Thursday and was told the police are not looking for gay people to arrest, but, instead, are looking for prostitution and liquor violations.

"You don't go into a gay bar or sit in parking lots looking for prostitution," Martin said. "They're obviously out looking for gay men to arrest."

The Lansing police said they are patrolling the downtown area for prostitution.

"Some of our men are down there incognito and if these gays approach them for gross indecency they're going to be arrested for a felony," said Deputy Chief William Cavanaugh of the Lansing police.

BUT MOST OF THE gays arrested in Lansing are charged with soliciting, the act of inviting someone to engage in a "lewd or immoral" act. (continued on page 10)

Alumni board votes to work with 'U' admin.

By KY OWEN
State News Staff Writer

Signaling a possible end to the emotional feud, the MSU Alumni Association Executive Board Saturday voted unanimously to cooperate with the MSU administration, with which it has been at odds since February.

Following a two-hour closed-door meeting alumni officials expressed optimism and said they are ready to "move forward."

But amidst the alumni optimism, MSU administrators continued their call for a written operational agreement between the University and the 33,000-member independent association.

"I think an operational agreement is needed," said Provost Clarence L. Winder, who is a member of the Executive Board.

MSU PRESIDENT CECIL MACKEY did not attend the board meeting but Sunday he said he still has a desire to spell out an agreement, adding the association has refused to approve an acceptable agreement.

Executive Board Chairperson William Westcott said he doubts an agreement will be made.

The University presented a proposed document at the April 12 Executive Board meeting which was voted down. The agreement called for the association president to serve at the "mutual pleasure" of the association and the president.

Saturday the alumni association passed a motion in support of Jack Kinney, the current association president. The executive board also approved a two-year contract for Kinney.

Saturday the alumni association made clear it is in full support of Kinney, passing a motion stating its support. The Executive Board also approved a two-year contract for Jack Kinney, the current president.

"I'M DELIGHTED WE showed support for Jack Kinney," Westcott said after the board meeting. (continued on page 12)

Mount St. Helens erupts, killing 5

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Mount St. Helens erupted Sunday in its most violent display yet, belching ash which blotted out the sun for more than 100 miles, forcing closure of two interstate highways, and killing at least five people. Mudflows and floods destroyed bridges and forced evacuation of residents up to 30 miles away.

The eruption began at 11:39 a.m. EDT with a blast felt 200 miles away in Canada. It shot smoke and ash nine miles into the sky and produced a spectacular lightning storm that started numerous forest fires. There were no immediate reports of lava.

In Walla Walla, 160 miles to the east, drifting ash made the sky so dark that automatic street lights went on.

The bodies of two people found at a Weyerhaeuser logging camp near the mountain were flown to Kelso, Wash., by an Air Force Reserve helicopter, said Lt. D.E. Schroeder. They were killed by heat, Schroeder said.

Three other persons were also killed, but the circumstances of their deaths were not immediately available, said Rick Lavella of the state Emergency Services Department.

Mindy Brugman, a spokesperson for the U.S. Geological Survey, said "pyroclastic flows" — hot gas, ash and fragmented material — had been seen on the mountain's north and west flanks. Details were not available because of limited visibility at the summit, she said.

"The devastation on the mountain-side is incredible," said Schroeder. "Trees are knocked down, animals are standing around in shock, covered with ash."

Mudflows entered both forks of the Toutle River on the north flank of the 9,677-foot, snow-covered mountain in Washington's southwestern corner, swelling the river to three times its normal width, aerial observers said.

A brown wall of water, reported as high as 20 feet in places, swept down the Toutle with debris and logs, destroying several bridges on the spirit Lake Highway, said the Washington State Patrol.

About 120 families were evacuated from the town of Toutle and nearby low-lying regions, 30 miles northwest of the mountain. Most persons living closer to the mountain had left weeks ago.

Plumes of steam and ash rise up to 60,000 feet from Mount St. Helens Sunday as the only active volcano in North America violently erupted. There were five deaths reported as a result of the eruption.

FOCUS NATION/WORLD

Korean timetable firm

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — President Choi Kyu-hah said Sunday the military's almost complete takeover of South Korea would not alter the timetable his civilian government set for democratic reform. He said the constitution would be revised later this year and elections held in 1981.

It did not seem, however, the Choi was still in effective charge of the pro-Western Asian nation where thousands of students demonstrated last week for new elections and an end to martial law.

Earlier Sunday, a spokesperson for the civilian government announced martial law had been extended throughout the country, and a short time later the martial law command banned all political activity, arrested politician and student leaders, imposed censorship and closed the universities.

Helicopter crash kills 7

HONOLULU (AP) — A U.S. Marines Corps helicopter crashed and burned Sunday on the Hawaiian island of Molokai, and police said seven Marines were killed and two were injured.

The CH-53 Sea Stallion helicopter, attached to the 1st Marine Brigade at Kaneohe, crashed at about 8 a.m. in the vicinity of Red Hill, about four miles east of the Molokai Airport, officials said.

A civilian ambulance took the two injured Marines to the airport where they were to be flown immediately to Honolulu on the island of Oahu for medical treatment, an ambulance spokesperson said.

The crashed helicopter is similar to the model used in the failed attempt to rescue the American hostages in Tehran.

Love Canal residents upset

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — More than 700 families living near the Love Canal chemical dumpsite are anxiously awaiting word on whether the government will evacuate them, following release of a medical study that shows chromosomal damage to some residents.

Lois Gibbs, president of the Love Canal Homeowners Association, said she has no doubt the government will now move to evacuate residents of a 10-block area around the canal.

"I'm 100 percent sure," she said Saturday after the Environmental Protection Agency disclosed results of the new medical study.

After a health emergency was declared in 1978 by the state health department, the state bought homes of 235 families living on streets next to the dump and moved the families out. A cleanup project to drain leaking chemicals is under way.

Separatists lead in Quebec

MONTREAL (AP) — The separatist side took a surprise lead Sunday in the final opinion poll before Quebec votes on whether to start down the road to independence.

Tuesday's referendum in the largely French-speaking Canadian province will probably shake the North American status quo no matter who wins, since even the "no" side is demanding fundamental changes in Canada's political system.

The poll, published by the Montreal newspaper Dimanche-Matin, showed 40 percent in favor of the proposal by Quebec's separatist government and 37 percent opposed, a reversal of the results of a survey by the same polling organization a week earlier.

The remaining 23 percent either were undecided or refused to answer.

Europeans adopt sanctions

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — The nine European Common Market nations on Sunday imposed trade sanctions against Iran but limited them to business deals signed after the Iranian seizure of American hostages Nov. 4.

The action fell short of a European Economic Community pledge April 22 to enact full sanctions unless there was major progress by last Saturday toward freeing the 53 hostages in Iran.

WEATHER If you are outside and this paper is getting wet, it's probably raining, if not, it was supposed to.

Release plan disclosed

(AP) — The American hostages in Iran will be freed in three stages as soon as the Iranian Parliament approves a comprehensive solution to the U.S.-Iran crisis, sources in Paris were quoted Sunday as saying.

The solution is being worked out by several Moslem countries with the support of international socialist movements and European countries, the sources said.

Fifty-three Americans have been held hostage since last Nov. 4 and Iran demands the return of Shah Mohammad reza Pahlavi, now living in exile in Egypt, to stand trial on murder and corruption charges. Sunday was the 197th day of captivity for the Americans.

The London Sunday Times reported that wealthy Iranian exiles in Britain, France and the United States have launched a multimillion-dollar campaign to topple Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Council interviews 2 BWL candidates

By MATT PERRY
State News Staff Writer

Controversy over appointments to Lansing's Board of Water and Light may have ended when City Council interviewed two candidates at Thursday's Committee of the Whole meeting.

Phillip Hassler, an Oldsmobile executive, was put on the May 26 council agenda for approval, while Charles S. Jones, an audit officer for the state, was put on "hold" until the possible appointment was OK'd with his employer.

Hassler and Jones were appointed to the BWL by Mayor Gerald Graves but must be confirmed by the council before they take board seats.

Opposition to the appointments was voiced by members of the black community when Graves decided not to reappoint the BWL's only black, Marvin Ray. Ray's term ends June 30.

Jones, who is black, was appointed for Ray's place when Graves' initial appointee, Bruce Kozlowski, removed his name after City Council indicated it would not appoint a white male to Ray's post.

JONES TOLD THE COUNCIL it was still his hope, though slim, that Ray be reappointed to the board. Council President Louis Adado told Jones that this decision was up to Graves, not the council.

Jones, who admitted his knowledge of utilities was limited, said he participated three times in an audit of the Public Services Commission, a state regulatory body of public utilities.

Jones said it was possible that time conflicts could arise between duties for the BWL and his state job, saying he would have to check with Auditor General Albert Lee who is out of town.

Jones said his employer is "very, very concerned with what we do outside our job."

The council passed a resolution to place Jones' approval up for vote as soon as he tells the council if he will have job conflicts.

WHEN THE COUNCIL interviewed Hassler, the director of cost and factory accounting at Oldsmobile, the question of a conflict of interest was raised by Councilmember James Blair. Blair pointed out that General Motors Corp. was the largest corporate user of BWL energy.

"I think large energy users should pay for their service in direct proportion to their use," Hassler replied, but said discount rates would have to be dealt with individually.

Hassler said management at Oldsmobile asked him to seek the BWL appointment because it felt there was a need for a member with a strong business background. Hassler, if approved, would replace Robert Dorshimer, a chief engineer at Oldsmobile.

Council passed a motion to consider Hassler's confirmation next Monday.

"I still feel we need more women on the board," Blair said, opposing Hassler's confirmation. He added, however, that Hassler was perfectly qualified and said it was not a vote against him personally.

PARENTS WORRIED

Kids' center future unsure

The future of Spartan Village Daycare Center is up in the air, which has upset many parents.

The College of Human Ecology said it no longer wants to be responsible for the center, and the Office of Student Affairs and Services expressed interest in the center but has not decided to take it over.

Moses Turner, vice president for student affairs and services, met with parents at the center to discuss the situation Thursday night.

"I don't think the parents concerns were answered at all," said Jo Cornell, a concerned parent.

She added Turner did not know the answer to many of the parents' questions.

Turner said Thursday his office is currently looking at options available to the center.

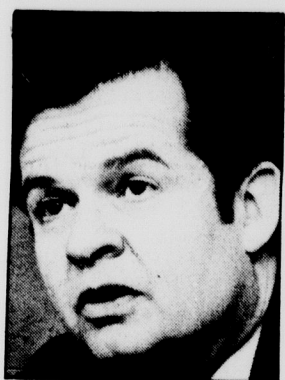

"There are no completed plans relative to the center," he said. "We're exploring several things."

Cornell said parents are concerned about what will happen to the day care center next year. The center will be maintained through Aug. 31 by the current staff, she added.

Parents are also concerned that some programs may be eliminated in the fall.

Parents are planning to contact other vice-presidents concerning the center and to make a presentation before the Board of Trustees at its meeting May 23.

Libertarian Party candidate advocates reduction of military

Ed Clark

By ROLAND WILKERSON
State News Staff Writer

Brass bands and impatient mobs were not to be found at MSU Saturday, but Libertarian presidential candidate Ed Clark continued to advocate the reduction of government here nevertheless.

Clark addressed about 50 students on the need for more civil liberties, economic freedom and a non-aggressive military.

"The draft has to be one of the biggest denials of individual liberty," Clark said.

To maintain an adequate military, Clark suggested paying recruits a wage that would be attractive, rather than forcing individuals to serve their country.

"THE DRAFT IS the biggest victimless crime and the penalty is two years hard labor," he said.

Another example of the lack of personal freedom in the United States is laws prohibiting drug use," Clark said.

He advocated the legalization of all drugs, saying that this would eventually decrease drug use and make it easier for addicts to quit.

He compared marijuana to nicotine and alcohol, saying it is much less harmful than drugs presently accepted by society.

He blasted the Republican and Democratic parties' economic policies, and blamed them for the current recession.

HE SAID LOOSE money policies of the "Carter-Nixon program" have led to skyrocketing inflation and little business growth since the Vietnam war.

The lower and middle class are bearing too much of the tax burden, and this must stop if the United States is to shrug off the recession, Clark said.

He advocated major tax cuts and tax incentives for business as the best way to continue economic growth.

Clark said the United States is spending far too much money on the defense, of American and European shores.

"We can have a very strong defense with less spending," he said. "The current nuclear arsenal is more than adequate to destroy Russia completely."

CLARK ADVOCATED a ban on all nuclear weapons testing and research, claiming the United States is wasting dollars needlessly on additional arms.

He also said the United States should stop paying for Japan's defense. He said the little-taxes Japanese auto industry is not supporting the defense of its own country.

This is part of the reason Japanese autos are cheaper than American-made autos, Clark said. The auto industry pays fewer taxes, therefore they can afford to make inexpensive cars.

Clark said oil and natural gas prices should be allowed to rise to the world market price, so that people will begin to conserve fuel as prices rise.

"We have been encouraging consumption and discouraging production," he said.

Clark said oil companies should have to use the increased profits to explore for additional wells.

Clark said he expects his name will be placed on the November election ballot in every state.

He said the 1980s promise a tremendous amount of growth for the Libertarian Party, adding that the party hopes to become a major contender for the White House by the end of the decade.

Energy seminar money available

Scholarships are now available for women who want to attend a month-long seminar on energy and development sponsored by the American Universities Field Staff.

Faculty or women students, who are not United States citizens, will be eligible to attend. One or two scholarships will be given out.

The conference will be held from June 1 to June 29 in Salisbury, Connecticut. Interested women may contact the Women in Development office, located in the International Center.

'U' professor wins $10,000

An MSU professor won $10,000 in the Michigan lottery grand drawing Thursday night.

Frederick Williams, a professor of history, was one of 10 finalists in the grand drawing held at Woodland Mall in Grand Rapids.

Williams was selected at random from a group of 22,000 $50 winners to compete in the grand drawing.

Seven of the 10 finalists were guaranteed to win at least $10,000. Other prizes of $25,000 and $50,000 were awarded and the grand prize was $50,000 a year for life.

Williams said he could not remember where he bought the winning ticket except that it was at a store in the Frandor shopping center in Lansing. He said he purchased the ticket over one year ago.

Williams said he has been so busy lately, he has not made many plans to spend his winnings.

"We enjoyed the trip (to Grand Rapids for the drawing) and the beautiful spring scenery," Williams said.

Mackey 2nd in MSU race

Nearly 400 runners pounded pavement through campus Saturday in the MSU Student Foundation's Second Annual 10,000-Meter Run.

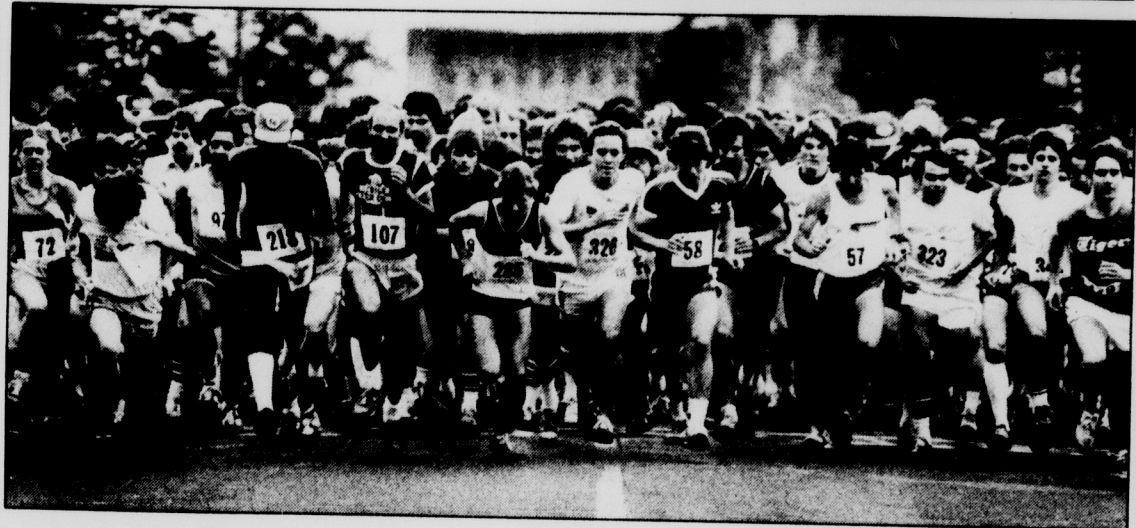

MSU President Cecil Mackey tied for second in the senior men's category by crossing the finish line at 44:41.

The runners followed a 6.2-mile course along the Red Cedar River, from Munn Ice Arena through Sanford Natural Area, and back across campus to Kellogg Center before returning to Munn for the finish.

Dale Arbour of Grand Ledge and Bryan Burns of Carson City shared first-to-finish honors, breaking the tape in 30:45.

A mix-up along the course caused several runners to go an extra half mile. "Damned disorganized," said MSU student Tom Blunt.

Sally Chamberlain of the Student Foundation said last-minute route changes for public safety caused the problems.

Community businesses needed

By ROLAND WILKERSON
State News Staff Writer

Citizens must accept business development in their neighborhoods if they expect the economic climate to improve, representatives of various economic sectors said Thursday.

About 50 people, including business owners and representatives of area governments, gathered at the Lansing Hilton Thursday for an economic development conference sponsored by the Tri-County Regional Planning Commission.

The conference consisted of various discussions exploring the issue of economic development and how it can be strengthened.

D.N. Smith, director of the industrial development division of the Institute of Science and Technology at the University of Michigan, said citizens must be supportive of tax incentives to business to keep businesses in the state.

"WE SHOULD PROMOTE economic development because it improves the quality of life," Smith said. "The responsibility lies with the public sector to make sure that economic development continues."

Smith said economic growth within the state is stunted because local government often ignores the issue.

"In Michigan, local government thinks it's the state's role to maintain economic development," Smith said.

But it is the responsibility of people at the local level, he said, to ensure that their community continues to prosper.

Smith cautioned, however, that tax breaks used to encourage expansion must be granted with care. He said if an expansion would not provide for many new jobs, there would be little reason for granting a break.

Evelyn Brown, from the Detroit Economic Development Corp., said if business and industry are to prosper in Michigan, residents must learn how to attract business.

Student injured in bike accident

An MSU student was in a Saginaw hospital after her bicycle was struck by a car at 10:30 p.m. in Swan Creek Township, the Saginaw County Sheriff's Department reported.

Susan M. Weider, of 316 E. Shaw Hall, was listed in serious condition in the intensive care unit of St. Luke's Hospital in Saginaw, a hospital spokesperson said.

Police said they will seek a warrant today charging a Saginaw man with felonious driving in connection with the accident.

Weider, a freshman majoring in biology, bicycled Friday from MSU to Saginaw with a friend, her roommate said.

Nickels and dimes for lives

Although a bottle and can collection drive at 5 to 10 cents per may not go very far toward alleviating suffering and starvation in Cambodia, the MSU Cambodian Relief Committee should certainly get our returnables for a very worthy cause.

The committee is sponsoring a drive Tuesday to collect returnable cans and bottles for aid to hunger-stricken Cambodians.

Returnables may be dropped off at many campus and community redemption centers and at a central collection point at Lot 63 on Shaw Lane off Harrison Road. Until the end of the year, the survival of about 5 million Cambodians will be complete dependent on international aid. The campus committee estimates that unless relief organizations immediately receive large amounts of money to purchase seeds, rice and other foods and supplies, the Cambodians will starve to death.

Aid is problematical on two counts: much of the relief offered has strings attached, and more of it never even reaches the country. In Cambodia's case, the Vietnamese have intercepted many of the care packages, tossing some of the contents in the sea and feeding their own soldiers with food relief intended for others.

In this an election year, Jimmy Carter has offered only one aid package, totaling about $11 billion, since the crisis surfaced. When one considers the amount of arable Cambodian land devastated by U.S. bombing of the neutral country during the Vietnam War, the Carter offer seems especially paltry.

If pictures are worth a thousand words, then photos of bloated bellies and ribs covered by little more than skin circulated along with pleas for aid might make more of an impact on those asked to contribute. That this country is in the throes of a recession is indisputable, but those who can afford 35 cents or more on a can of Coke or beer can also afford to donate the redeemable change for the neediest of needy.

A present for the future

Chrysler Corp. received a late Christmas present from Uncle Sam last week, the size of which more than makes up for the delay in delivery. The largest rescue package ever floated to a corporation includes $500 million in guarantees which may be available within a week.

The aid package, 17 months in the making, totals $1.5 billion in federal loan guarantees. Although the financially strapped Chrysler may go through the money faster than anticipated, the backing will hopefully give Chrysler a boost as well as the base to make it through the hard times ahead. And they certainly are coming. With auto dealerships closing right and left and layoffs mountings, the good news followed in the wake of a $448.8 million first-quarter losses report issued by Chrysler two days before. While the tailrunner of the Big Three cannot be faulted for a horrendous economy, it certainly can be blamed for ignoring urgent signals to switch production to smaller cars as it attempted to clean house on the big-car market by hawking the last of the gas guzzlers at bargain-basement prices.

With its own plants on the line as collateral for the guaranteed loans, as well as its attempt to raise $2 billion in private capital and concessions from those with a stake in the company's future — a condition in the government's mandatory self-help strings — taxpayers do not have to worry about Chrysler attempting to default on the loans. And while an uncertain economic and energy future raises questions about its prospects for recovery, the company differs considerably from the one that first approached Washington for aid last summer.

With the introduction of a new line of fuel-efficient, compact cars, Chrysler may finally change its big-car image. The company may, in fact, offer a greater percentage of fuel-efficient cars than any other domestic competitor. The change would bode well for the corporation and the economy.

VIEWPOINT: DRAIZE TEST

A perversion of science

By DAVE WORTHINGTON

This is in response to the viewpoint article by T.M. Brody given in The State News in defense of the Draize Eye Test on laboratory rabbits. Brody perpetuates the fallacy that this test is necessary to protect the public health, and erroneously claims there are no alternatives to the Draize Test. Is it really necessary for us to blind rabbits and subject them to excruciating pain and death just to have another shampoo or another mascara? We already have hundreds of different brands of these cosmetics that undoubtedly involved the use of millions of laboratory animals to determine their safety, so why can't we stop now and disassociate ourselves from inflicting pain for vanity?

Brody quickly rejects the possibility of using cell cultures as an alternative to rabbits for determining the safety of these products, yet he never fully explains what is wrong with this idea. Considering how many billions of dollars a company such as Revlon has, it seems they ought to spend some of this money in search of alternatives to the cruel Draize Test.

These alternatives should not be too difficult to develop, as even the recently deceased chairperson of the Research Defense Society — of all persons — admitted.

Furthermore, the use of the rabbit eye as an example for us does not have any value. Dr. James R. Beall of the Interagency Regulatory Liaison Group recently said, "one of the problems with eye irritation tests has traditionally been that there is no uniform way to interpret, understand or record what you have just observed after you put something in the eye." G.H. Scott of Proctor & Gamble has stated that, in contrast with the human eye, the rabbit has "a slower blink reflex, loose lids, and a third eye lid, a different tear composition and response, a thinner cornea . . ." Contrary to Brody's statements, there are plenty of scientists and researchers who recognize the need for an alternative to the Draize Test, and who fully see the pointless use of the rabbit eye in these tests.

To conclude, some comments are due regarding the way the rabbits are treated, the issue that Brody conveniently avoids. In order to prevent the rabbits from dislodging the test substance from their eyes, they are immobilized in holding blocks. For the test, a quote by philosopher Tom Regan will suffice: "Consider how very painful it is to get a mildly caustic substance, like face soap, in your eye. Think how a child cries when this happens. Now imagine a dose of an increasingly caustic substance regularly administered directly to your eye. And imagine that nothing is done to alleviate your pain and that, as a result of this routine, your eye is burnt out of its socket and you become blind. Then think again of the burning pain and frustration, and panic and anxiety that attend being unable to escape. If we can get this fresh into our minds, we might catch a glimpse of the laboratory life of the rabbit."

Clearly, the Draize Test is a perversion of science and a grotesque cruelty that must stop. Now, does Brody still think boycotting Revlon and the others is irrational so they can rake in the money on another shampoo tested by persecuting rabbits?

LETTERS

Don't hide behind the flag

This is in reply to Dan Willenborg's letter of May 9 entitled "No Scapegoats." Dan, your feeling that we should rid this country of Iranian "pollution" sounds familiar. In fact, to me it sounds just like Hitler's plan to rid Europe of "Jewish pollution" during World War II. But oh, pardon me, it must be absurd of me to compare your views with the atrocities perpetrated in Nazi Germany. Or is it?

I am not Iranian and I am not a nut, though it seems quite easy for you to do the labeling simply on the basis of one's opinion. Furthermore, I do not condone the actions of Iran in taking the American hostages.

Nevertheless, your disgusting apathy ("Big deal if the students end up in prison or get shot") makes me wonder. You seem to try to smooth over your blind contempt with irrational patriotism: "What makes their lives more precious than our eight Marines who died two weeks ago?"

You seem impervious to the sanctity of human life, and you try to hide this by flag-waving. I find no more solace in the death of an individual on the basis of wearing an American Marine uniform. What is more, the martyrdom you so quickly attach to those unfortunate soldiers seems to ignore the fact that they did not die from Iranian bullets.

Your version of "acting strongly" leads me to believe you deserve a place right next to the Iranians you describe, whose "brains automatically shut off when they open their mouths." I am not sure what your definition of "terrorism" is, but I shudder to think of what the United States could show the world by using the "line 'em up and shoot 'em down" tactics which you so "patriotically" support. Perhaps you should take a closer look at your own morals before you dictate those of a country.

Information regarding student disciplinary records which was presented in the May 9 State News story, "Dorm damage sparks dispute," was misleading and warrants clarification.

Disciplinary records pertaining to individual students are classified as confidential and fall under the University's "Guidelines Governing Privacy and Release of Student Records" (MSU 1979-1980 Academic Programs, p.40), as well as Article 3 of Academic Freedom for Students at MSU (Student Handbook, p. 15).

Essentially, policy provides that a disciplinary record:

- may be inspected and reviewed by the student to whom it applies;
- may be disclosed to MSU faculty and staff only on a narrowly construed need-to-know basis, i.e., the information requested is needed for the effective functioning of the position or office, or

- may be disclosed to third parties only with the prior written consent of the student about whom the record has been established (except as provided in the guidelines) which specifies the records to be disclosed and the parties to whom the information is to be made available.

Records of disciplinary actions taken against a student are maintained, usually for three years after the student's last term of enrollment, in the Judicial Programs Office, 155 Student Services Bldg. More complete information regarding such records may be obtained by contacting that office.

VIEWPOINT: SEMESTERS

A good cause for unionizing

By GLADYS BECKWITH

Provost Winder's proposal that MSU change from a quarter to an early semester system by fall 1982 has, of course, momentous implications for the quality of life for faculty and students. Such a proposal points to obvious pedagogical benefits, such as more time for both students and faculty to pursue course material in depth and less waste of time and energy in adjusting to new course situations.

And there are negative features as well: The semester system will result in fewer courses and therefore a reduction in faculty; sabbaticals and released time for research could be threatened, and one must pause to consider the expense of a calendar conversion during a period of increasing shortfalls in financial support available to higher education in Michigan.

In any case, one might assume that our University governance system could handle the transition for the benefit of all concerned. But such an assumption is illusory, for the consultative/advisory mode of MSU's governance system guarantees that faculty/student contributions to the conversion process will be minimal. In view of current trends toward greater administrative centralization, the greater likelihood is that Academic Council will be presented with a fait accompli to be accepted or rejected after a brief and inadequate debate.

The provost's proposal, then, is yet another example of why we must turn to collective bargaining, and soon, in order to protect the primary interest of faculty and students — the ongoing creation of a learning-research environment that maximizes the development of human resources and provides a major source of ideas and leadership to a society in crisis.

Wayne State University provides an excellent model of how faculty can maintain control over the quality of their professional lives. Through the collective bargaining process, WSU faculty negotiated the details of their recent calendar conversion as evidence of their concern for faculty working conditions necessary for the optimum vitality of higher education.

In a similar spirit, MSU faculty must organize to protect traditional prerogatives concerning curricula, working conditions, appointments, tenure and the like. MSU Faculty Associates is prepared to work for faculty on this campus. We urge your active participation and help in the process of achieving an effective bargaining voice.

Beckwith is president of the MSU Faculty Associates

Tito and the irony of history

To one who lived through World War II and its aftermath, it has been more than a little depressing to read the generous encomiums to the late Yugoslav dictator, Josip Broz, alias Tito. It seems that someone might have had enough interest in the truth to make the point that Broz differed in only insignificant degree from the other tyrants of the socialist world: he was basically a thug, and to take issue with him or with his official doctrine was hazardous indeed.

A few dissidents survived. We know the names of Djilas and Dedijer because Tito, with unaccustomed sentiment, permitted them to live, though in deep disgrace. Regrettably, the free world has heard little of those who were not so lucky as to be spared on the basis of old comradeship, who were simply snuffed out. The refugees from Titoism can tell many such stories, but all the thanks they get is the threat of deportation based on false charges of their having collaborated with the fascists.

To Yugoslav patriots the great hero of their country is and will always be Draja Mikhailovitch, whose aim was to keep his country free of both communist and fascist dictatorships. He had an excellent chance of so doing until he was subverted by Stalinists in the British and American secret services and the "liberal" press in England and the United States, and was finally delivered up to Tito to be shot.

So it has come to pass that the man who fought for justice and freedom lies unremembered in a traitor's grave, while his murderer, whose battle was for personal power and glory, is buried with all the honor the world can bestow. Only rarely does history show us such an extreme of irony.

Court battles plague primary

By SUSAN TOMPOR
State News Staff Writer

Despite a series of court battles contesting the cost and integrity of Michigan's presidential primary, the primary will be held Tuesday, with independent John Anderson on the ballot and Democrats President Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy not on it.

The Michigan Supreme Court ruled Friday Anderson's name must remain on the ballot contrary to wishes of Anderson and the state Republican party. The court ruled 4-3, upholding the state Court of Appeals ruling that Anderson had withdrawn from the Republican race too late to be taken off the ballot.

Anderson dropped out of the bid for the Republican presidential nomination on April 24 — long past the March 21 deadline for removal from the GOP ballot.

State Republicans, however, believed that Anderson should be erased from the ballot to eliminate possible voter confusion. Convinced of that belief, the party took its case to the secretary of state, the state Court of Appeals and finally to the Michigan Supreme court.

EACH DENIED THE PLEA, citing the fact that the deadline for removal had long passed when Anderson announced he would seek the presidency as an independent.

The fact that Anderson remains on the ballot poses an interesting test of survival for Gov. William G. Milliken's endorsee — Republican contender George Bush.

Bush has admitted that Anderson has been costing him votes throughout the primary process. More than once he has blamed his losses in Wisconsin and Maryland on Anderson.

And because state Bush backers do not want Michigan's results to be similar to those of Wisconsin, they are adding a new plank to their campaign platform: "A voter for Anderson is a wasted vote."

Colleen Engler, state campaign director for Bush, said her team will seek to inform the public that if it favors independent candidate John Anderson, it must vote for him only on Aug. 5, not on Tuesday.

To acquire a spot on Michigan's November ballot, Anderson must garner three-tenths of 1 percent of votes cast Aug. 5. Because he is no longer seeking the Republican nomination, he does not need any votes Tuesday.

THE TRUE TEST Tuesday will be between Republicans Ronald Reagan and Bush, although Anderson, Los Angeles business person Benjamin Fernandez and former Minnesota Gov. Harold Stassen will also appear on the GOP ballot as candidates.

Fernandez and Stassen need 5 percent of the vote Tuesday to be apportioned any of the state's 82 delegates.

On the Democratic side, the ballot will hold the names of former presidential contender California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. and U.S. Labor Party leader Lyndon H. LaRouche Jr.

Brown dropped out of the race for the Democratic nomination April 1.

No Democratic delegates will be apportioned Tuesday, however, because the state Democratic Party decided to select its delegates in closed caucuses. The party is using this system to comply with National Democratic Party rules.

The national party does not allow delegates to be selected in a primary which allows crossover voting, as Michigan's does.

In the April 26 caucuses, State Democrats voted to give Kennedy 71 of the 141 delegates, while apportioning 70 delegates to Carter. Both Kennedy and Carter had their names removed from the state primary ballot in compliance with a request by state Democratic party leaders.

Reagan eyeing Michigan victory

With more than 900 delegates apportioned to him, Ronald Reagan is eyeing Michigan as a state that could put the Republican presidential nomination in his back pocket.

A United Press International delegate count shows Reagan with 939 delegates to opponent George Bush's 206. Uncommitted delegates total 179, according to the UPI count.

To obtain the Republican presidential nomination, a candidate must have the support of 998 of the 1,994 delegates involved in the Republican nomination process.

With 82 delegates at stake in Michigan's primary and 20 delegates up for grabs in Oregon caucuses Tuesday, Reagan supporters say that Tuesday could well be a red-letter day for their campaign.

ALTHOUGH REAGAN SUPPORTERS concede that Michigan presents a legitimate challenge because Gov. William G. Milliken has endorsed Bush, Reagan supporters just as quickly add that they expect to win the state.

In an effort to guarantee such a victory, Reagan's Michigan campaign has revolved around personal appearances by the former California governor and his wife by Tuesday, Reagan will have spent five days crisscrossing the state on the campaign trail.

Unlike Bush, Reagan is expected to spend very little time or money on television advertising.

Following an onslaught of early campaign spending,

State News/Eileen Bloss

Presidential hopeful Ronald Reagan strikes a familiar pose during a street parade in Holland Saturday.

Reagan is nearing the federal limit of $16.9 million for the 1980 primaries. Bush is several million dollars short of that limit, according to his staff.

DURING HIS MICHIGAN campaign, Reagan has appealed not only to members of his own party, but has courted crossover votes from Michigan Democrats as well, paving the way for the November general election.

Reagan has blasted President Carter on both his economic and foreign policies. He has been especially critical of Carter's handling of the Iranian situation, saying the rescue attempt should have been ordered immediately.

Bush needs win to stay in race

With just 12 primaries left after Tuesday, George Bush needs to win Michigan — and he needs to win big — if he is going to capture the Republican presidential nomination in July.

That is why the Bush campaign here has been covering all its bases. A blitzkrieg of late-night television advertisements, a seemingly endless series of personal appearances by the candidate and his family and a fierce recruitment of John Anderson supporters have characterized the campaign.

Although Anderson still appears on Tuesday's ballot, he is no longer seeking the Republican presidential nomination and does not need any votes Tuesday.

AND BUSH BACKERS will be the first to inform people of this fact. "A vote for Anderson is a wasted vote," said Colleen Engler, state campaign director for Bush.

She added if voters want to prevent front-runner Ronald Reagan from obtaining the Republican presidential nomination, they should cast their votes for Bush on Tuesday.

The Bush theme in Michigan has been similar to the one touted across the country: "The United States is being held captive by runaway inflation and a foreign policy that has consistently offered 'too little-too late.' George Bush can do something about these things because he has the key ingredient — experience."

State News/Richard Marshall

Experience has been a prevailing theme in the Bush campaign since he first announced his candidacy on May 1, 1979.

The 55-year-old Bush says he can deal with inflation because as a business entrepreneur he knows the only answer is to cut government spending.

He favors draft registration, a defense build-up, and further economic sanctions against Iran.

Kottke mellows out New directions in jazz

By MARK FELLOWS
State News Staff Writer

Watching Leo Kottke perform Saturday night really brought back the memories to me. There's the first time I saw him perform, for example. It was Detroit's Masonic Auditorium six or seven years ago when he warmed up for the second Mahavishnu Orchestra. I remember the night well — it was my first big concert and I became intimately acquainted with a couple cases of "jumbos," and later consummated the relationship for half the night in a Holiday Inn bathroom in Flint.

The second time I saw Leo was at a theater in Lansing three years ago. An old girlfriend came downstate for the weekend and we took in the show. Returning to my dorm room we found it totally ransacked — stereo trashed, albums, booze and money ripped off, the works. An omen, I thought.

Well, I never saw what her name again after that weekend, and I'll never forget the officer who investigated the scene asking me to spell "Bacardi 151" for his report.

All these things ran through my mind as I searched the Erickson parking lot Saturday for a space, shooting around, parked cars, pedestrians and lightposts like pylons at the GM test track and hoping the show didn't start on time. "If they come for the albums again, I hope the housemate can find the loaded clip," I thought to myself.

Jack Hamilton, a local pub/college circuit performer started Mariah's last show this term with his very laid back

Gordon Lightfoot-style. Whoever booked Hamilton as a warm-up act did a good job of matching his style with Kottke's. In fact Hamilton was probably too similar to Kottke's style, as two hours-plus of acoustic 12-string guitar can get tedious, especially for a show starting at 11:30 p.m. Hamilton was good, but he never fired up the audience enough to make them wildly enthusiastic for the next act. And Kottke could have used it.

Leo was good Saturday, no doubt about that. His peculiar method of finger picking and strumming layers of chords while maneuvering a slide on the 12-string never ceases to amaze me.

Certainly nobody could complain about his song selections — some from the new album and others from far back in his extensive repertoire. His treatment of Tom T. Hall's "Pamela Brown" got a particularly good response from the audience, and his arrangement of "Jesus, Joy of Man's Desiring" illustrated well his command of classical technique. Kottke's usage of styles from country to classical to contemporary demonstrates the range of his talent, but his modest stage manner and sense of humor bring him back to the mortal world.

But Kottke was too low key Saturday, lower than usual. It could have been his cold or the "penumbral glow" he felt from his cold pills. It was a good show, sure, but a little too laid-back. I'm just glad I didn't have to drive far to get home. I was so drowsy that had I walked into my house and found it trashed, I probably wouldn't have given it a thought.

The difference between Griot Galaxy and The Prismatic Band performances Friday night was the difference between a band that has a developed musical background with a positive musical direction, and a band that is trying to find a musical background by covering every musical direction.

Griot Galaxy has changed in scope since its appearance last year with the Detroit Jazz Artists On Tour. The Griots have lost three members and have added the dimension of extra percussion and horns. This does not mean, however, that the band cannot get its musical message across to the audience. The music is avant garde, which at times lends itself to going on a musical tangent with the saxophones of Dave McMurray and Faruq Z. Bey. The music seemed to have no apparent direction, yet it was very coherent as the notes would twist and turn with the fine acoustic bass work of Jaribu Shaid, and one of the finest garbage can solos that I have ever

Dooley's hosts Detroit bands

Nikki and the Corvettes will be headlining tonight's "I Don't Like Mondays" show at Dooley's. The band was one of the originals on the Detroit new wave scene, and the Corvettes owe a lot to the all-"girl groups" of the early '60s. The band has an excellent reputation.

Also appearing will be the Blades, a Motor City unit which recently returned from a brief stint in Los Angeles. The band received rave reviews in California, Doug Fieger of the Knack reportedly wants to record them, and the Blades are currently negotiating with several major labels.

Opening the show will be East Lansing's own Nationals, featuring former members of the Scott Slash Band, the Deceivers and Your Mother. The band is led by guitar virtuosos Scott Forman and The State News' former opinion page editor, Mike Megerian. Both are real cool American guys who are HEAVILY into rock 'n' roll. So do yourself a favor, and check 'em out. Doors open at 8:30 p.m. Admission is $3 at the door, with a "Two-for-one" special until 9:30 p.m.

In a more classical jazz-blues vein, songwriter/piano stylist Mose Allison and his trio will be appearing at Rick's American Cafe tonight for two shows at 8 and 10:30 p.m. Allison's career has spawned 25 years and more than 20 LPs, and several of his own compositions have become classic standards, including "Everybody's Cryin' Mercy" (covered by Bonnie Raitt) and "Young Man Blues" (covered by The Who).

Tickets for both shows will be $3.50 at the door.

SPRING SESSION ENDS IN RAIN

Green gridders trip Whites

By WILL KOWALSKI
State News Sports Writer

The rains may have made the Spartan Stadium field a little slippery, but they certainly did not dampen the spirits of the players as spring football camp ended with Saturday's Green-White game.

The Green squad held on for a close 13-9 victory over the Whites as 4,000 wet fans watched.

The losing squad made it close, though, as it threatened to score the winning touchdown after driving to the Greens' 11-yard line with 18 seconds left to play.

An interception by the Green's senior middle linebacker Terry Bailey of a Jon English pass clinched the victory for the Green machine, and those fans who came out in the downpour to watch the game were able to leave the stadium knowing they had witnessed a fine battle.

WATERS WAS PLEASED with the way both squads played and thinks the team has progressed a little bit ahead of schedule.

"The final score showed how evenly the team was divided and I think the game went just about as expected," Waters said following the game.

"We made a lot of mistakes on both sides out there, but I'm happy with the end result because we have come a long way since the first day of practice. It's satisfying to know the players are adjusting so well to our new game plan."

"I thought all of the quarterbacks looked real good and I was really impressed with the amount of spirit and emotion all of the players put into the game," Waters continued.

BAILEY, WHO INTERCEPTED English's pass, was awarded the Spartan alumni award for being the best defensive lineman in the game. Sophomore Marcus Toney was named the outstanding defensive back.

Offensively, tackle Jack Kirkling and guard Marvin Mantos, both sophomores, shared the honors for best offensive linemen while junior end Samson Howard was named the best offensive back.

Junior placekicker Morten Andersen picked up where he left off last season by booting a 51-yard field goal only one minute into the game to give the Green a 3-0 lead. Bert Vaughn accounted for the rest of the Green's first half points on a one-yard keeper late in the first quarter.

In the third quarter, junior Rich Schario and Andersen traded field goals to make it a 13-3 ballgame and then in the fourth period junior quarterback Bryan Clark of the Whites hit Howard with a 27-yard touchdown pass to make it 13-9.

Fullbacks Derek Hughes (114) and Andy Schramm (62) led Spartan yard-gainers. Clark hit on 13 of 20 passes for 145 yards, while Vaughn completed four of 12 for 102 yards for the Green.

What else happened

Due to space limitations beyond the control of the sports staff, we cannot include more information on road events for MSU teams this weekend...

The Spartan men's track team competed at the University of Michigan Invitational in Ann Arbor Saturday. No team points were kept, but MSU had one first-place individual finish: Randy Smith paced the field in the 200-meter dash.

The women's tennis team lost in the first round of team play at the Midwest Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women tournament Thursday.

MSU's men's golf team stood second after the first round of the Big Ten championships. That tournament also ended Sunday.

The baseball team had its Saturday double-header at Northwestern University canceled due to rain. MSU was slated to play at the University of Iowa in its season-closing twinbill Sunday.

Reed f-hockey coach

Nancy Reed, 22, has made MSU athletic history by becoming the youngest head coach in the history of intercollegiate athletics at the school.

She succeeds Sam Kajornsin, who left MSU shortly before the end of the 1979 season. Reed had filled in as interim coach.

Harassment

"The problem is they (Lansing police) enforce it unequally," he said.

According to the Lansing police jail log, the number of arrests for soliciting has increased during the past months. Two arrests were made during the week of April 13, and during the week of April 27, 12 arrests were made. During the week of May 4, the number of arrests for soliciting then dropped to eight.

AT LEAST ONE MSU STUDENT, who wished to remain anonymous, has been arrested for solicitation for immoral purposes recently and he says he was entrapped.

The student said he got into a man's car in the city parking lot across from Tramps Disco, 523 E. Michigan Ave.

The student recalled saying he enjoyed oral sex, but that he did not want to do anything in the parking lot. The man then suggested they go to Hunter Park, 1400 E. Kalamazoo St., he said.

The student said the man suggested oral sex before they left. The student agreed and they left for Hunter Park in separate cars.

Upon arrival, the man identified himself as a police officer and arrested the student.

Zolton Ferency, MSU associate professor of criminal justice, has been contacted by the student and said judging from the student's story it was "a clear case of entrapment."

"I see no particular purpose in spending Lansing time and money for this purpose," Ferency said, "and enticing them into acts that might not otherwise occur and pose no real threat to the community."

State budget to be cut

By MICKI MAYNARD
United Press International

Gloom and doom forecasts may prevail in the Capitol this week as lawmakers prepare to deal with two problems that will not go away — taxes and the state budget.

Gov. William G. Milliken is sure to be in touch with key lawmakers to press for quick approval of his tax shift proposal, while legislative leaders plan to huddle with him to work out details of an executive order slashing the already slim budget.

The latest evidence of Michigan's dismal economy came last Thursday when state Budget Director Gerald Miller told House Republicans things are twice as bad as they were during the 1974-75 recession.

Milliken aides say the current budget deficit is around $100 million. The excess money will have to be sliced before October, and chances are it will be done within the next 10 days.

A DECISION BY MILLIKEN to issue an executive order cutting the budget will be made after consultations with legislative leaders, House Speaker Bobby Crim said last week.

In the past such orders have been issued only to face rejection by the legislature. The governor will probably meet with lawmakers on Monday or Tuesday.

This week may also see the first test of a tentative $800 million tax shift proposal drawn up by House and Senate leaders, along with Milliken aides.

IT CALLS FOR an average $350 property tax credit for homeowners, as well as a $140 income tax break for renters. The property tax credit and the state's $1,500 personal income tax exemption would be adjusted with inflation.

To make up the lost revenue, the state's sales tax would be hiked from the present 4 percent to 5.5 percent. Miller said the plan means a $200 million cut for taxpayers, since that amount would be made up in sales tax payments by businesses and tourists.

The plan needs a two-thirds vote of both houses to land on the November ballot — something Milliken would like to see happen as quickly as possible. Shiawassee Drain Commissioner Robert Tisch's 50 percent tax cut plan already has a six-month head start on the Milliken group. But House Republicans who refused to support an earlier Milliken plan may also stand in the way of the new one.

Rep. Donald VanSingel, R-Grant, said last week he does not like the proposal and doubts other Republicans will go along with it.

However, House GOP leader William Bryant of Grosse Pointe Farms — who also hated the first plan — has thrown his support behind the latest proposal and may be able to swing eight or 10 votes out of his 40 member caucus.

Profs get internships

The Office of the Provost has named two MSU professors to be academic administrative interns for the 1980-81 school year.

Cassandra Book, an associate professor of communication, and Lawrence Redd, an assistant professor of telecommunication, will spend two consecutive terms in academic administration within Provost Clarence L. Winder's office.

Book will serve under Assistant Provost Dorothy Arata. Book is a fellow in the American Council on Education's Fellows Program in Academic Administration.

Book received an Outstanding Alumni Award in 1978 and a Teacher-Scholar award in 1977. She has published nine books in addition to articles in professional journals. She is also a member of the Speech Communication Association, the Central States Speech Association and the Michigan Speech Association, serving as president in 1980.

Redd has been involved extensively in writing, producing and directing a variety of radio and television programs, as well as directing several plays.

Redd has written a book and is also actively involved in the community. His administrative assignment will begin in January 1981.

Daughter's essay wins; parents receive honor

The parents of Elizabeth Versace, a University College sophomore won the 1980 MSU Parents of the Year contest Saturday.

John and Rita Versace, of Bloomfield Hills, received a plaque, stadium robe and a banner in recognition of their daughter's winning essay about them.

They were chosen from among 27 sets of parents nominated by their children. Other parents honored were Ernest and Marilyn Mika of Grand Rapids, parents of sophomore Maureen Mika, and Mrs. Gerry Williams, mother of freshman Penny Williams. They were chosen as runners-up in the contest.

"I could in no way be what I am now without all the love and support you have always showered over me," Versace wrote in her tribute. "Instead of telling me what I can or cannot do, you simply express your feelings, if that. This way I make my choice, not because of harsh stipulations but, instead, to live up to your expectations of me as a growing adult."

Versace also said she thought her parents were deserving of the award because they value education so highly and have sacrificed to allow her to attend MSU.

The most important qualifications "as the best parents in the world" is absolute love given to their children, she said. "Whether I am three or 3,000 miles away, I can always feel it."

The MSU Student Foundation sponsored the judging and ceremonies at the Parents Day Luncheon in Crossroads Cafeteria, International Center.

The MSU Alumni Association and the Student Book Store in East Lansing donated the prizes.

25 top seniors selected by SCC

The Senior Class Council has selected MSU's 25 outstanding seniors for 1980. The candidates were nominated by faculty members, administrators and other members of the MSU community. Nominees had to fill out a self-description for their qualifications which were reviewed by a SCC selection committee.

The outstanding seniors are: Holly J. Andrus, Gavin I. Awerbuch, Barbara Blank, Kirk Brannock, Christine L. Bond, Sally Chamberlain, Alan Davis, Robert P. DiLaura, Susan L. Finkbeiner, Shari Halthco, Pamela Harris, Carol Lanphear, Laura J. Larkin, Diane L. Lefebvre, Elizabeth Leidy, Michael Longaker, Mary Marron, Lisa Mendelson, James R. Peterson, Daniel J. Rossman, Mary L. Trompeter, Kennedy Wheatley, Karl P. Wiese, David R. Whitaker and Susan VanZanten.

The seniors will be honored at a banquet sponsored by the SCC May 20 at the University Club.

Dual How to make your records sound better, even if they're warped! You'll also make them last longer with a ULM tonearm/cartridge system.

Dual Model 506 Turntable

An ultra low mass tonearm and cartridge system is the most direct way of eliminating tracking problems and excessive record wear. As is often true, the most direct way is less complicated, therefore, less costly, and less likely to need repair.

It's obvious that records will last longer if a stylus isn't digging into their grooves with unnecessary force. Having a total effective mass of only 8 grams, Dual's ULM system exerts only a half to a third of the force of most conventional designs. That also makes for more accurate tracking — even over warps. And most records are warped to some small extent. But warped or not, all your records will sound better.

The Dual Model 506 semi-automatic turntable also has belt drive, four-point gressco-gimbal tonearm suspension, and more outstanding features.

A damp affair

Don Koster of Lansing was determined to see the exhibits at the 17th Annual East Lansing Arts Festival, rain or shine. Unfortunately for the exhibitors, the wet weather kept most folks away from the outdoor booths along East Lansing streets. But for the hardy few who did attend, the music still played, the items were still displayed, and a good, if wet, time was had by all.

Alumni association

He said the contract, approved during the closed-door meeting by a 12-3 vote, runs from June 1, 1980, to June 30, 1982. "I'm very pleased and happy to receive a contract and a vote of support," Kinney said.

Mackey has expressed displeasure with Kinney. Mackey asked for Kinney's resignation in February, but Kinney has refused to step down.

In a May 12 letter to board members, Mackey said he does not feel Kinney is the best person for the job and Sunday he reiterated those sentiments.

BOARD MEMBERS VOTING against the contract were Winder, and MSU trustees John Bruff and Carole Dick.

Winder said he opposed the contract because he believes an agreement between the association and the University should be developed before a contract is approved.

Also, Winder did not see the contract until Saturday's meeting, which he believed was poor procedure. Westcott said he saw no problems with the procedure.

Prior to the executive board meeting, the association's annual meeting was held. It was the first such meeting for the group as an independent corporation since it was incorporated in June.

AT THE MEETING President Emeritus John A. Hannah asked alumni to end its feud with the administration.

"Let's not criticize the president or the Board of Trustees," he said. "Let's go down the road and do what we can to make Michigan State better."

Before Hannah spoke, Westcott told the meeting there would be no report of the University by the MSU president — a traditional part of alumni annual meetings.

Winder, who was asked by Mackey to contact the association to see if the president was to speak to the group, responded to Westcott's comments.

"I personally contacted Jack Kinney to see if Dr. Mackey should be here," he said. "The response (from someone in Kinney's office) was that Dr. Westcott did not want Dr. Mackey to be here."

AFTER THE MEETING, Westcott said the reason Mackey was not on the agenda was that the association did not receive a response from the president in time to adjust the agenda.

Gas shortage hits troopers

By UPI

and The State News

Officials say about half of Michigan's 64 state police posts could effectively be "out of business" today because of a gasoline shortage.

The situation amounts to a "crisis" for the areas served by the individual posts and must be viewed as a threat to public safety, state police spokesperson Paul Hill said.

Affected by the shortage is the state police post in Lansing, which has been forced to restrict road patrols, a spokesperson for the post said.

The post's officers are responding mainly to emergencies, he said. The officers will be placed in high accident areas and will be mostly using stationary patrol, he said.

State police gasoline funds ran out last week because of rising fuel prices. The legislature appropriation was based on the assumption gas would cost 54 cents per gallon.

State Police Director Col. Gerald Hough has given individual post commanders the option of eliminating or cutting back patrols as the gas supply situation requires.

Hill said commanders at the Wayland and Lansing posts have already taken such action, while a dozen other posts around the state could "be in the same boat" within a day or so.

By Monday, Hill estimated, half of the state's more than five dozen state police posts could be effectively "out of business."

Jazz bands

heard by Tari Tabbal. Overall Griot Galaxy's performance was good, but not quite as last year's performance.

The Prismatic Band's musical roots are in progressive music. What this means is that Prismatic looks into the progressive aspects of all types of music in its multi-dimensional approach. At times the band showed a lot of potential on numbers like "Don't Invite Me To The Depression." It featured strong guitar work by Michael Colone, and the refined saxophone of David Reinstein. Then a few minutes later the band would break into something that was a total mess complete with poor percussion and chanting that could have made the Saudi Top 40.

This was to be the tempo of Friday's performance as Prismatic's music went from an impersonation of avant-garde to an energetic style that featured Colone's versatile guitar. However, Prismatic has some problems. The band lacks a strong vocalist and its percussion section did not seem to blend. However, this could be due to the fact that percussionist Penny Kuypers was not properly miked for sound. The band needs a full time keyboardist as well, to compliment Colone's guitar work, and give Prismatic a more balanced sound.

Despite the problems with Prismatic, their potential looks promising. Their musical philosophy will give them the stimulus to grow, and find the aspects to their musical approach that they want to refine. When they do, Prismatic will be a musical force to be reckoned with.

Council to hear budget

Lansing's 1980-81 year budget is expected to be passed by the Lansing City at 7 tonight on the 10th floor of City Hall.

The budget was submitted March 24 by Mayor Gerald Graves and City Council is required by the city charter to pass a budget by the third Monday in May.

The almost $50 million budget was amended only slightly by the council.
