Mausts named All-Americans

Wendell and Lois Maust of Pigeon have been selected as Michigan's outstanding young pork-raising couple for 1985 by the Michigan Pork Producers Association.

They are the Thumb Area's first "Pork All-Americans" and will join the national "All-American Team" of young pork farmers as selected by state executive committees.

The Mausts -- who raise 2000 hogs a year in confinement and open front production from their Gagetown Road farm-- were selected to "acknowledge and bring attention to outstanding young pork producers who have established themselves as dedicated, involved businessmen and leaders in their communities," according to Dick Strieter of Bay Port, a member of the State Pork Producers' Executive Board. The one winning couple per state is picked on 60% production skills and 40% leadership abilities. The national program has been in operation since 1970.

The Mausts have earned all-expenses-paid trips to the Michigan Pork Association convention in Battle Creek Feb. 23-24, as well as the National Pork convention in Indianapolis beginning March 5. "We'll represent the pork producers of Michigan," Wendell Maust says. "We're looking forward to our year ahead, for chances to meet other producers and share ideas."

Besides the hog operation, the Mausts grow sugar beets, corn, beans and some wheat. They have four children, Weldon 13, Angela 11, Donovan six and Nathan four.

As we see it editorially Get happier by switching it off!

Recent facts reported by the United Nations are cause for American worry, concern — and surprise, actually. Which do you think is the world's most literate nation?

Before you start puffing and smiling about how great our United States are, realize this: these United States have slipped in the literacy "standings" from 18th place five years ago to 49th place now in 1984.

Our United States...in 49TH PLACE? Exactly right. We read, listen to music, paint, appreciate fine things here, but other lands do so more literately. More intelligently.

As standings go, we're not far behind. If we're in 49th place, you can imagine the range between first and 49th place isn't too great. But, by the United Nations measure, 48 other nations better enjoy the fruits and benefits of quality educational study. They're more literate because they work harder at it than we do.

Think of your own home. What kind of example do you set for youngsters or others who look to you as a role model? Imagine the impact of that ever-pervasive "noise box" in every home in America.

Television has done some excellent things for us all, but it's completely torn down the personal interaction people should carry on.

In far too many homes nationwide, the TV set goes on in the morning and stays on all day and half of the night, stifling conversation, reducing or eliminating talks and games — and breeding mediocrity in our nation.

At work the following day, we all talk about "last night's special show" or "Saturday's big game." More people watched J.R. Ewing get shot and finally find his would-be assassin than have ever seen a live Shakespeare production — in more than 400 years!

Television, in moderation, is a wonderful influence and possible stimulant. But it's on excessively, and it's the ONLY alternative for too many people. And the example you set will greatly influence your children's comprehension — and control — of TV.

Instead of immediately turning on the television tonight, why not pick up a book, magazine (or even newspaper) tonight after dinner? Why not get out a game board for a family challenge match? Why not go for a walk, or even make a batch of popcorn and sit around to — (gasp) — just talk?

Yes, just talk.

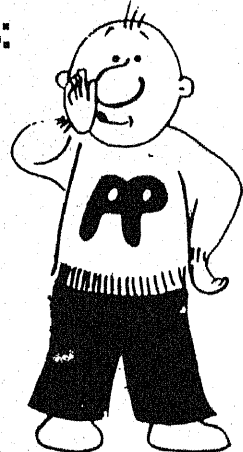

That example we set will begin to rub off, in time. Television is passive entertainment. You turn it on — and it talks to you, dances for you (in living color, if you desire), brings you into the middle of a gunfight, puts you in the passenger's seat during a car chase — in short, you simply sit there and are treated to the parade. You're not very involved.

Games, reading and just visiting are active entertainments. You must DO SOMETHING to get results. These diversions are more difficult than, say, flicking a switch and letting the TV show go on. But they're more beneficial for our bodies...and especially our minds. Especially our minds.

See, you've made it this far through these words. They're active, if you choose to get involved (which you apparently have). They didn't come blasting into your house with a jingle and dance routine. You're taking the right kind of steps — let's just see MORE of this activity. For the good of us all. For literacy's sake!

Healthy and Unhealthy Guilt

One day I was calling on a lady in the church I pastor (in another community) and after 45 minutes of talking on wonderful introductory subjects, I asked if she had any questions about God, the Bible, the church, the pastor, or anything at all. She began to cry deeply. She had many pastoral visits over the years but no one had ever brought her gently to the point of opening a deep wound she had been carrying for 30 years.

It seems that 30 years previous to this visit, this wonderful lady had a beautiful daughter in her mid-20s who had committed suicide. The experience was so painful for the mother that no one ever wanted to hurt her by talking about the subject, so no one did. As years went by, subsequent pastors did not know about the incident, so they never thought to gently check the mother's condition. She had carried tons of guilt around her for over 30 years and it was killing her joy for life.

The really sad part of this problem was that the mother understood the theology that all suicide victims automatically go to hell. After all, they broke the sixth commandment ("Thou shalt not murder") and had no time to repent of this sin.

A little knowledge of Scripture can be dangerous! In this case the mother really enjoyed the church and came every week, she really did love the Lord and wanted to live forever with Him in heaven. But she could not allow herself to go to heaven because her daughter would not be there. Help!

I asked this lady if her daughter would have gone to heaven if she died in infancy. She replied that all babies go to heaven. I asked why. She replied that they were not accountable for sin because they did not have the mental ability to understand sin. I asked if she could back that up with Scripture. She did not know if she could, but that was the way she felt about it.

We then looked at Scripture. We knew that no one comes to the Father except through Christ according to Scripture (John 14:6). We knew that heaven comes to those who believe in (note: not believe that — because even Satan believes that Jesus was God) Christ's dying for us that we might live — one life for another — eternally with God (John 3:16). But what about sin?

Romans 2:12-16 gives very clear teaching that people are judged by what they do with what they know. This particular text is talking about those who have never heard about God and His word, which answers the age-old question about those who have never heard the Bible. But this concept is the basis for accountability — people are accountable for what they hear and their capacity to understand it.

Thus, all babies do go to heaven (I believe) according to Scripture because they cannot be accountable for things they cannot understand. Likewise, inmates in mental institutions and other similar situations are judged on their capacity to be accountable. Once this is understood from Scripture (and I could list many more texts, including Jesus' teaching that to whom much is given much is required) and it will be better for Sodom and Gomorrah in the day of judgment than for those cities that have heard Christ's message) than the fact that mental accountability is understood and considered by God, allows for great healing to take place.

To change gears now, most suicides are committed during what psychology calls a mental psychotic break — or a break from reality where the person has lost touch or lost control of proper mental faculties. Certainly there are suicides that seem to be under full mental faculties (such as an older couple where one is dying and the other does not want to continue life alone; or World War II kamikaze pilots; or Muslim soldiers who find glory in dying for Allah, etc.), but most suicides are done on impulse during a psychotic break.

Knowing this helps us to understand that a person under a temporary psychotic break is the same during this temporary break as a committed mental patient who has lost accountability for what he/she has done. The actual suicide, therefore, in my opinion would not be judged against the victim since the victim at the time of suicide was not mentally accountable. Therefore, that victim will be judged on criterion other than the suicide. Which is to say that suicide really tells us nothing about the eternal fate of a person. God judges on criterion prior to the suicide or prior to the psychotic break from mental accountability.

This is my opinion and I believe it is backed by Scripture. What is definitely backed by Scripture is that my opinions are not the judge, thank goodness, but God is and I trust Him. Wouldn't you trust someone who cared for you so much that he would die for you?

But we are going to have to wait until next week to understand the difference between healthy and unhealthy guilt. Sorry!

RECOLLECTIONS of by-gone days

By GEORGE KEIM

DEAR EDITOR:

On Thanksgiving Day, I had dinner at John Blair's place southeast of Elkton. His wife Grace is my niece. My three sisters from Pigeon and my brother Alvin and his wife were also there. They live near Kokomo, Ind.

We had a very good dinner. We talked about a lot of things that happened long ago.

I told them I had recently seen President Reagan at Tri-City Airport and told of the big crowd that was there. I told how a little girl thought I was Santa Claus!

My brother said he saw President Harding once back in 1922, shortly before he died. He said Harding was a very good-looking man. He said they only had a few loudspeakers and the crowd wasn't very big.

I remember when Harding died. My Dad and I had gone to town with our old Studebaker car. Only a few people had radios and they had earphones on them. I happened to see the headlines on the daily paper which they had in Orr's Drug Store. It said something about him dying from food poisoning.

I heard two old German men talking about it. One said he was afraid we were in for trouble, but the other said it wasn't here like Germany. He said here the congressmen tell you what to do and the president only signed the bills.

Well, Calvin Coolidge took over and he was a good president. He had to straighten up a lot of things, but he did a good job of it. They called those times "the roaring 20s." The prices for our crops weren't so big, but you could get a big car for less than $800.

One day, my Dad and I bagged up a lot of beans. Fred Licht came with his hobsled and team and hauled them to town for us. One the way, we met a man who talked a little to us and he said, "You've got a nice load of beans there and they were $5." Dad said they were up to $6.

Although there was snow on the ground, the man was riding a buggy. He got mad and said, "I guess I sold too quick." He said "get up" and he hit his horse a crack and the poor horse had to run down the road full speed. The dirt and the snow flew in all directions!

We read in I Tim. 6:7-8, "For we brought nothing into this world and it is certain we can carry nothing out, and having food and raiment, let us therewith be content." Most of us have a good place to stay, so we have very much to be thankful for.

SINCERELY YOURS,
GEORGE KEIM

LIFE... After College

By KAMI BUCHHOLZ

Usually I'm talking about the various things that are different about college and life after college, but many things are similar.

For instance, homework follows you both in and out of school. College homework is much different, but the idea of being prepared still holds true. And after all, homework is really just a way to prepare for the big things — like exams — not to mention life.

After college, homework presents itself in the form of budgeting. Granted, many of you probably had numerous budgeting experiences in college, but after college, budgeting becomes especially important.

Now, I'm not going to tell you how to budget, but to pay your bills, you don't need to study the bill collector's address. However, you need to be aware that failure to pay bills results in BIG trouble. So, plan ahead just as you would when studying for an exam.

For me, several profs' exams witnessed the cram method of preparation, but even this method works. You can cram dishwashers, washing machines, dryers and your stomach... Of course, cramming isn't ALWAYS the best method of homework preparation!

In the coming weeks, I'll compare other areas of similarity between college and life after college. Homework never ceases!

Be sure to have a super week!

Thanks A Million

Dear Readers:

Back in July, I printed a letter from Mrs. M.W. of New York City who was concerned about her Social Security benefits. Being a 77 year old widow and living alone in Harlem, she was frightened that her monthly checks were going to stop.

From the mail I receive, I know there are many other senior citizens who share Mrs. W's concerns. At her request, I wrote to President Reagan asking him to respond to her letter. I'm pleased to share his reply with all of you.

Dear Mr. Ross: I want to thank you for this chance to let your readers know how determined I am to preserve and protect their Social Security.

This whole subject has been clouded by misinformation from persons who want to scare senior citizens. Some seniors, like Mrs. M.W. from New York, have been needlessly frightened.

Let me say it as clearly as I can: I will never take benefits away from those people who are dependent on Social Security, now or in the future.

Your readers might be interested to know that after working with Congress, we passed a bipartisan rescue plan, and Social Security is now strong and safe.

Please reassure your readers that they have nothing to worry about, as far as Social Security is concerned. The system is strong, benefits are up and retirees can depend on getting those benefits as long as I am President.

Again, thank you, Mr. Ross, for writing to get the facts. I wish you and your readers every happiness, success and peace of mind. God Bless You — Ronald Reagan, Washington D.C.

Dear Mr. Ross: My special little boy, Bobby, is five years old. For several years we thought he was retarded, only to find out now that he is autistic. God has given him a double dose, as he also has acute lymphoblastic leukemia.

After Bobby was diagnosed with leukemia, his real daddy walked out on us. Luckily, his new daddy is just wonderful with him.

Because of medical and special schooling bills, we can never save enough for the things Bobby really needs.

What he needs now is to improve on his gross motor skills so he can use his arms and legs with better coordination. We would like to buy him a tricycle, but with his budget it is impossible. Bobby's school would like to get him one, but due to their budget, that's impossible too!

If you could help us, Mr. Ross, we would leave it to his school in hopes that another handicapped child would learn to ride and develop from it.

Could you please make a little boy's dream come true? I would love to make his life happy while he's still here. — Mrs. S.S., Salt Lake City, Utah.

Dear Mrs. S.: The Lord works in mysterious ways. How fortunate Bobby is to have a loving and understanding mother. I spoke with a pediatrician who agreed that a tricycle would aid your son's development.

For little children, half the fun is picking out their favorite color. So as soon as possible, take Bobby and help him pick out a trike that best fits his needs... and pay for it with the check I've enclosed.

Schnittker predicts federal farm policy clash

By RICH SWARTZENDRUBER

With the huge federal deficit looming over the U.S. government, a battle over national farm programs between the Reagan administration and Congress is predicted by John Schnittker, head of Schnittker Associates, an agriculture consulting firm based in Washington, D.C.

In remarks last Saturday at Thumb Agriculture Day at Cass City, Schnittker stated he expects a White House proposal to cut farm supports with only partial success due to resistance by Congress.

"There will definitely be two farm programs. Congress will present one thing and the Reagan Administration will present another," he predicted.

A compromise will probably result in market-based price support system for commodities, which would cause price supports for most crops to edge downward, in the next several years.

A rapid increase in federal funding for farm programs in the past several years has produced pressure to review and overhaul farm policy. In 1980 about $3.3 billion was spent for farm programs and that figure increased to $4.8 billion the following year. Federal funding leaped to $12 billion in 1982 and again jumped to $18.8 billion in 1983.

Any changes in price supports would have to take into account political considerations, however, Schnittker predicted that the U.S.

Department of Agriculture will probably propose a farm plan to the President in the next several weeks, similar to the trial balloon launched several weeks ago by the Treasury Department for tax reform. Schnittker predicts the administration will then assess public reaction to the plan before making any concrete proposals.

Schnittker pointed out the trend of U.S. farm production to become increasingly concentrated in the hands of a relatively few large farms. In 1982 12.3% of all U.S. farms produced about 68% of all farm products.

The big farmers also seem to benefit most from current U.S. agricultural policy. Statistics show that return on equity on mid-sized family farms averaged only 1% in 1983 and 1984, compared with 4.2% for large farms, according to Schnittker.

Another obstacle facing farmers at the present time is a "farm credit crisis" which affects all farmers in various ways, said the ag consultant.

"Farmers are in a period of long-term decapitalization and will have to get by with less income in the next several years," Schnittker said. He added that he would like to see a $5 billion credit program enacted to ease the credit crunch on farmers next year, rather than the $600 million package announced by the administration just before the presidential election this past November.

Schnittker's outlook for commodity prices in the near future is not encouraging to farmers.

CORN: Corn exports have bottomed out in the past several years, Schnittker said and predicted they will rise only slowly in the near future. The result will be continued excess production, keeping prices low.

WHEAT: Export growth will also be slow for wheat, due to increased production and shipping capacities in recent years by competing exporters.

DAIRY: Schnittker reported that the support price for milk is scheduled to drop from its current level of $12.60 per hundredweight to $12.10 on April 1, 1985 and again decrease to $11.60 on July 1.

Schnittker predicts USDA's long-term proposals will include a support level around $11.60, with authority to reduce it when surplus acquisitions exceed 5-7 billion pounds of milk per year.

SUGAR: Although Schnittker believes wheat, corn, cotton, rice and dairy prices may be 10-25% too high to be competitive given the current value of the dollar, sugar prices are four times world values and possibly 50% above the long-term world price or cost of production during 1985-90. Because sugar program costs are outside the budget, however, the commodity should not be affected by the debate on the farm bill, he added.

FARM BILL: Due to the ever-increasing number of commodity groups exerting pressure on legislators in Washington, Schnittker predicts the result this year will not be just a 1985 farm bill but rather a three or four-year farm policy struggle. This was illustrated at Saturday's seminar when the featured speaker presented a chart that shows the spider web-like network of committees and organizations that influence legislation on agricultural matters. The day-long event, which also featured seminars on several different agricultural subjects and more than 80 exhibits by ag-related businesses, was sponsored by the Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola County offices of Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service.

RIGHT: Featured speaker John Schnittker provides a pessimistic commodity outlook for the near future.

VIEWING THE BODY

The age-old practice of viewing the body of the deceased has recently come under attack. It seems that some persons wish to deny the reality that death has occurred. One method of achieving this is to fail to have the body present during the period of the funeral, or not viewing the remains if they are present.

This not only goes against tradition, it goes against ancient and modern wisdom. It is essential to admit to death's reality. Even if this is a somewhat painful experience, it can be helpful and rewarding on the first and most important steps of accepting death. Most people wish to remember the deceased as he or she appeared alive. This is where the skill of the funeral service licensee comes in. If the death was violent or the body wasted away, this skill can be used to modify or erase the scars of violence or the ravages of disease.

Team play essential for Varsity

By RICH SWARTZENDRUBER

Last year the Laker Green Hoop Machine finished one game behind Thumb B champion Vassar as the race still undecided until the final week of the season. Lakers, who finished 10-2 in the league, handed 11-1 Vassar their only Thumb B loss of the year.

Laker Coach Bill McLellan predicts Vassar will be the team to beat again this year based on their size and experience.

The strength of this year's Laker team seems to be a beefy front line with 6'3," 215 lb. center Eric Bushey, 6'1," 210 lb. forward Todd Schember and 6'1," 200 lb. forward Scott Rosenthal.

In back, Scott Rosenthal, Todd Schember, Eric Bushey, Morris Dubs, Jeff Smith and Coach Bill McLellan. Missing from the photo is Bill LePage.

McLellan expects good rebounding with very physical play under the boards from his squad, although he says a lack of overall height could be a problem.

McLellan faces the difficult task of replacing last year's graduates that include top scorer John Rathje who received All-State Honorable Mention, Dave Voelker, Mark Manenti and Brian Elston.

Returning letter winners Rosenthal, Schember, Bushey and Bill LePage, Ron Dubs, Ed Gentile will be joined by last year's outstanding junior varsity players Chris Eby, Jeff Smith and Mike McArdle in a bid for the league crown.

"Our success will depend on how well we play as a team since we do not have the great one-on-one players," says McLellan and adds, "We will be a solid squad offensively and defensively."

Lakers begin the season with a non-conference game on the road with Bay City All Saints on Friday. They return home on next Tuesday, Dec. 11, for their home opener with Thumb B opponent Marlette.

All 6 starters are back!

By RICH SWARTZENDRUBER

The Laker volleyball team hopes to take up right where it left off last season — just one point and one match away from a Class C state championship. The Thumb area spikers only needed one point in the second game of the second game of the semifinals to advance to the state finals last year before they were ousted by a comeback by Morenci High.

This year's squad is making a "comeback" this year, even before the players set foot on the floor for the opening game of the season. All six starters from last year are "coming back" with high expectations for a successful campaign.

Because of the experience returning to the Laker lineup, they are considered the favorites for the Thumb B championship this year.

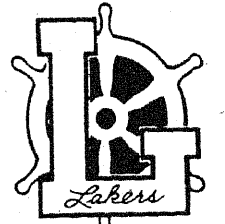

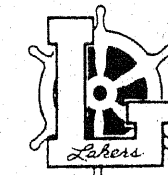

Coach Irene Green will look to All-State setter Shelly Ginter to take charge on the floor. Veterans Sue Kohr, Brenda Baker and Julia Sturm will battle for the two middle hitter-blocker positions.

Chris Steinman and Lynda Brown will bolster the defense, Green says.

Lisa Drabek, Shelly Ritter and sophomore Shelly Henne are competing for the second setting position, while Sue Kersten and Debbie Ginter are working for a place in the hitting lineup.

Players on this year's squad aren't content to just relish last season's accomplishments. Each team member attended at least one volleyball camp over the past summer to improve their skills, Green says.

"I hope that volleyball fever will once again hit the Thumb area," says Green in reference to the tremendous support of area fans during last year's post-season tournament.

New coach has high team ideals

In back, Coach Rick Norey, Gary Abdalla, Jere Stein, Pat McArdle, Tim Tyler and Mike Bollenbacher.

By RICH SWARTZENDRUBER

Enthusiasm, pride and self-discipline are the goals of Laker Wrestling Coach Rick Norey. Last year's inexperienced green-clad grapplers posted an 0-7 record as they struggled against seasoned veterans on opposing squads. Because such a young team wore the Laker colors last season, no athletes were lost by way of graduation.

Rob Macdowall and Pat McArdle, who each qualified for regional competition last year, are back on the mats this season for Lakers. "We still have a young team but we have a very strong core to help pull us through," Norey says. In addition to Macdowall and McArdle, returning from last year's team are Dan Swartzendruber, Tim Patterson and Mike Bollenbacher.

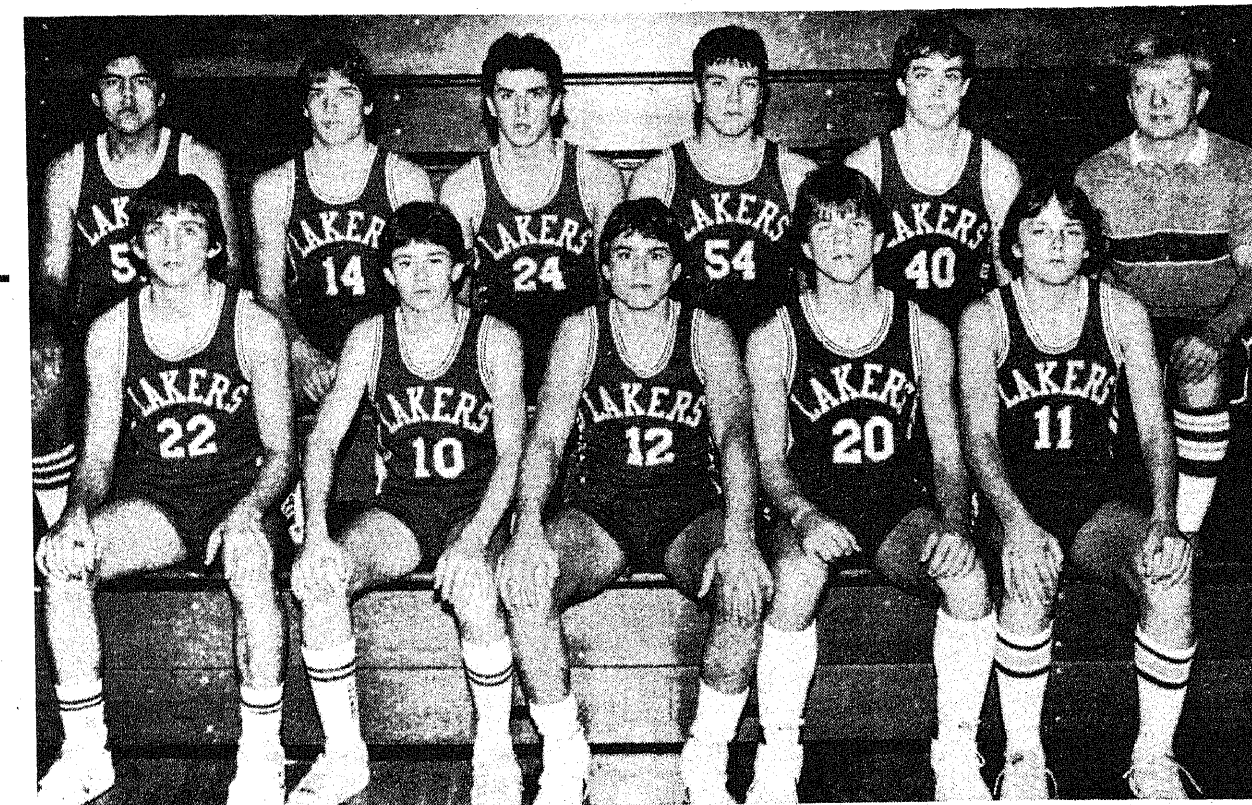

Coach Norey brings a strong wrestling background to his first year as Laker wrestling coach. He is a graduate of Western Michigan University and participated in the sport at both the high school and college levels. The new mat mentor says one of his tasks is to overcome an image problem for the sport of wrestling. "Most people think of wrestling as something fake. They have the impression that high school wrestling is what they have seen on television," Norey says. "High school wrestling is a combination of desire, dedication and determination. It takes real men to endure the hard work and strict discipline associated with wrestling," adds Norey. He urges Laker fans to support these athletes with their presence and encouragement this season. The team's first home meet is scheduled for Dec. 12 beginning at 6:30 p.m.

THE BASIS OF HUMAN RIGHTS WILL ALWAYS BE FREEDOM

The subject of human rights is one that we hear a great deal about these days, and yet the fact that freedom is a prime requisite for them is often lost upon us. We tend to forget that we are able even to discuss these rights only because we have worked to retain our privilege of doing so. A life without freedom would be a bleak existence, and so we must cherish and protect our right to express our opinions without fear, to elect our government officials, and to choose the House of Worship we wish to attend. Then we should go there and pray for all those who are not free to do these things. We must ask the Lord for the courage and wisdom to maintain our own precious human rights, and to do everything in our power to hasten the day when we may see them enjoyed by all people throughout the world.

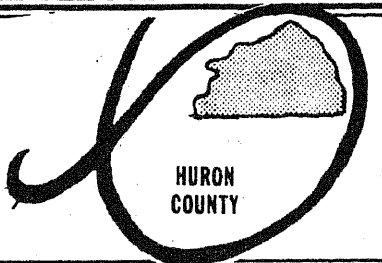

They have rights who dare defend them.
— Roger Baldwin

"...they cried, and their cry came up to God by reason of their bondage."
— Exodus 2:23

SOUND-OFF!

Call 453-2323 anytime to SOUND-OFF. Selected statements will appear in the next Progress-Advance, so watch for yours! Deadline: 5 p.m. Mondays.

Help! I lost $75 cash in a bank envelope last Tuesday (Nov. 27) somewhere in the vicinity of the Community Bookstore/YFC office or the Pigeon District Library. I realize it takes a lot for the person who found it to give it up and give it back. But this young pastor and the family of seven I am currently supporting would be very grateful. Thanks! 453-2317.

To the citizens of Caseville: Have you noticed the new harbor light, at no expense to the village or township? Thank you, D. Fogle, for your concern.

I don't see why we can't have more teen dances, just because some kids ruin it for the rest. It's not fair. If they make trouble, they should get kicked out, not everyone else.

Is there a quilting group in this area willing to do several quilts after the holidays? If so, please enter your name in next week's SOUND-OFF and I'll contact you for details. Thanks.

I wish the Junior High Office would read the announcements over the intercom, rather than giving them to each teacher to read. Sometimes they never get read.

To Caseville Retirement Club members: when are you going to let our President conduct the meeting which he has taken time to set up? The noise, discourteous remarks, interruptions and premature motions to close the meeting are crude, irresponsible actions. Why don't you wise up or stay home?

This is dedicated to noisy teachers. It's none of your business what we do out of school. We can smoke, drink and even take drugs. When we get back to school, you can't kick us off sports because we weren't on school property. And if we want to do something like that to our lives, there's nothing you can do about it. Signed, a student.

I agree new apartments are needed in Pigeon. They should be done well, so it doesn't disrupt the neighborhood, but they can complement their neighbors.

They could easily make the church area look even nicer, on one of Pigeon's best streets.

Black powder basics

According to DNR statistics, when Dec. 1 rolls around and the 1984 muzzle-loading deer season commences, a record number of black-powder shooters will take to the woods. Many of them will be "old hands" at this fast-growing sport. Beginning under the tutelage of another muzzleloader, or belonging to one of the many shooting clubs now in existence, these hunters will be well-versed in the idiosyncrasies associated with black-powder rifles. But, on the other hand, almost as many will enter the woods with a brand new replica in their hands, and little, if any, knowledge or experience in its proper handling. You don't want to be experimenting with your equipment when a thick-necked, eight-pointer is sniffing his scrape some 20 yards in front of your blind, so this column is intended to be a muzzle-loading primer.

Before you even consider buying a muzzleloader for deer hunting, you should have a general idea of ballistics and kinetic energy. Kinetic energy is simply the measurable work performed by a moving object. In shooting, this is measured in foot-pounds. Let me give you an example. If you drop a five-pound rock from a height of 20 feet the energy developed will be 100 foot-pounds. This energy compares closely with a .22 Long Rifle and is sufficient to kill small animals. A .30-06 with 150-grain bullets, thought by many to be the perfect deer load, registers 3,000 foot-pounds of energy at the muzzle. But deer are not killed at the muzzle of a rifle, so we must measure the energy at, let's say, 100 yards, where we find the energy at 2,300 foot-pounds. By comparison, a .45 caliber muzzleloader, the smallest caliber that is legal to hunt deer with, loaded with 100 grains of powder and shooting a 127 grain round ball will develop 1,231 foot-pounds of energy at the muzzle, and drop dramatically to around 600 foot-pounds at 100 yards. What does all this mean? It means that muzzleloaders are different than modern rifles and their velocities are much lower. Therefore, they must rely on bullet weight to attain logical killing energy, and bullet weight is achieved by selecting large caliber rifles. A .50 caliber should be the smallest considered when choosing a rifle with which to hunt deer, and the .54 and .58 calibers should not be ruled out.

To load and fire a muzzleloader, you basically pour a measured charge in the barrel, seal a patched ball or greased maxi-ball on top of this, place a percussion cap on the nipple, or a bit of powder in the pan of a flintlock, cock the hammer and pull the trigger. For this you will need a rifle, black powder or a replica powder, round ball or a conical bullet, patching if you select round balls, lubricant, short starter and percussion caps or flints. Black powder comes basically in four sizes. Fg, used mainly in large caliber rifles or shotguns, FFG, used mostly in .50, .54 and .58 caliber rifles, FFFg, is for the smaller .36, .40 and .45 caliber rifles and FFFFFg, as a priming powder in the pans of flintlocks. Many hunters use and prefer Pyrodex, a replica black powder that burns cleaner and produces less fouling in the barrel of your rifle. But it is also harder to ignite, making it a bit safer and requiring hotter percussion caps. Because of the problems with ignitions, it is not recommended for use in flintlocks.

Before you attempt to load your rifle, wipe the bore free of any oil, then snap several caps on the nipple to clear away any oil that may have accumulated in the nipple port. Set the rifle on its butt and hold the muzzle away from your face and body. Next, pour the proper amount of powder, (read the instructions in the booklet that came with your rifle) in a powder measure. Never pour powder into a barrel directly from a can, flask or powder horn, regardless of how badly you want to get a quick shot off. A remaining spark, and it does happen, can ignite the new charge as you pour it into the barrel. Pour the measured amount of powder down the barrel and hit the barrel several times with the heel of your palm. This will settle the powder into the chamber area of the barrel.

If you decide to use a round ball (which is the only legal bullet you may use during the muzzle-loading deer season, maxi-balls may be used in a muzzle-loader during the regular deer season), the type and thickness of your patching material is very important. To make loading easier, and to help provide a seal against escaping gases, the patch should be lubricated. Although there are many good commercial lubricants on the market, most hunters I know find Crisco an excellent substitute.

A well-patched round ball will start into the barrel with some difficulty. To help it along, a short length of hardwood dowel, just under bore size, with a knob on the end is used. The patched round ball is placed on the muzzle, the bullet starter set on top, and the ball is started down the muzzle with a sharp rap on the knob. The rifle's ramrod is then used to seat the ball firmly on top of the powder.

Once the powder and bullet are loaded, you are almost ready to shoot. If you have a percussion rifle, place a cap on the nipple, cock the hammer, aim and fire. If it is a flintlock, use a pinch of fine priming powder in the pan, instead of a percussion cap.

As you become more familiar with your rifle, you'll learn more ways to speed up the loading process for that second shot. Pre-measured powder charges can be carried in small plastic tubes or bottles. Also, those using a patched round ball will find a loading block invaluable. This is a square of wood approximately 1/2-inch thick, with holes drilled that will just snugly hold a lubricated, patched round ball. For that second shot, one patched ball is centered over the muzzle and rammed home.

Various commercial percussion-cap holders are made that allow fast loading of a new cap. Most are spring-loaded and very easy to use.

Finally, one of the messy problems with muzzleloaders is cleaning them. When black powder or Pyrodex burns, it leaves residues of salts that attract moisture and leads to rust. Hot water, flushed through the barrel many times, is the traditional cleaning method. Small shavings of bar soap (soap used must be non-detergent), help to dissolve the salts. The important thing is to clean the gun every day if it has been fired. Then follow up with a very lightly oiled patch through the barrel.

Many hunters are switching to muzzleloaders because it gives them an additional 10 days to hunt. Others feel that modern high-powered rifles make hunting too mechanical, and they seek out the black-powder guns to put a little "hunt" back into hunting. Whatever the reasons, if you're one of those who has not made the switch, you are really missing something.

Pigeon Lions add 2 members

The Pigeon Lions met at the Pigeon VFW Hall on Nov. 28 at 6 p.m. Forty Lions were present and one guest, Delbert Vargo.

During the board meeting, two new members were accepted into the club, Tom Main and Ron McClumpha. They will be installed along with Mark Gettel and Dave Kretzschmer at the Christmas meeting on Dec. 8. President Dave Clabuesch read various correspondence, including a thank you from Pigeon Elementary School for a $50 check to help with the Hall's new party, a thank you from the Leader Dog School for the $750.00 donation and from the Welcome Home for the Blind for the club's $143 check. The Pigeon Lions also donated $75 to the Caseville Community Christmas Fund.

President Clabuesch reminded Lions of the Christmas Party set for this Saturday, Dec. 8 at Sherwood-on-the-Hill, Gagetown and announced March 22-24 as dates for the State Convention.

Outdoor bits & pieces

DEC. 11 WILL MARK the first elk hunt to be held in Michigan since 1965. A total of 476 elk were shot in 1964 and 1965, but that won't happen this year. Only 50 hunters were selected in the state-wide drawing, and should they have 100% success, the harvest would be considerably less than the 476 taken during the first seasons. Biologists later agreed that too many animals were harvested, and the herd teetered on the brink of extinction. More than 45,000 hunters paid a non-refundable fee of $4, hoping for a chance to hunt one of these transplanted giants. The 50 lucky recipients now must cough up a $100 license fee and attend a mandatory training session on Dec. 10. Local hunters who received permits were Dennis Hagg in Huron County and Jim Wichert and Reed Gough of Sanilac County.

PRELIMINARY REPORTS FOR the 1984 deer season look good. The rifle season which ended Saturday found DNR checking stations with a higher deer count than last year. The Upper Peninsula had an excellent year and the largest deer so far was a 223-pound 15-pointer. The muzzle-loading season continues until Dec. 10 and the archery season will end Jan. 1.

BEGINNING JAN. 21,

THE MICHIGAN DNR, with the help and cooperation of Ontario will tranquilize and transport 15 moose to the Upper Peninsula. The trade-off for these will be at least 150 turkeys. Most of the cost for this upcoming venture will be underwritten by Michigan's four chapters of Safari Clubs International, which has promised to donate $20,000.

THE RECENT DEER SEASON has stolen the headlines from the fishing scene, but one must be aware that there is still plenty of action to be had. Local rivers are experiencing the fall run of perch, and some hardy boaters are still taking trout along the shoreline.

Pirate ambush costs Lakers district trophy

By RICH SWARTZENDRUBER

The Elkton-Pigeon-Bay Port girls basketball team took a big step toward earning a district tournament championship by day, by eliminating Unionville-Sebewaing, 53-49 in the semifinals last Wednesday night. The green and white team stumbled in the finals, however, as they dropped a 56-45 decision to a fired-up Harbor Beach squad.

The Pirates cagers celebrated their coach JoAnn Capling's birthday last Friday night winning the Class C District 88 trophy at the Bad Axe gym. Harbor Beach players and fans joined together in a chorus of "Happy Birthday" for Capling as she hoisted the trophy in the air.

The first half of play in the championship game saw Lakers outpace Harbor Beach 12-7 in the second quarter to take a 20-15 lead at halftime.

A cold shooting touch in the third quarter in which Lakers only canned two of 19 field goal attempts, proved to be the deciding factor in the game. The Pirates outscored Lakers 16-5 in the third period to take a 31-25 lead into the final quarter.

Harbor Beach widened the margin to 38-28 in the first 90 seconds of play of the fourth period.

Lakers, however, refused to toss in the towel as they stole the ball several times using a full-court press.

With just under four minutes remaining in the game, Lakers cut the lead to 40-42. The Pirates then slammed the door with seven consecutive points in just over a minute of play to put the game out of reach.

"Turnovers and rebounding killed us," said Laker coach Paul Beachy after the game.

Harbor Beach beat Lakers at their own game by scoring many of their points close to the basket on second or third shots following offensive rebounds.

Beachy's comment about the effect of Laker turnovers was verified by the statistics which pinpointed 18 miscues by his squad.

Lakers also passed up opportunities at the charity stripe. They converted only nine of 21 free throws during the game.

An aggressive Harbor Beach defense held center Julia Sturm to only five points in the game. The six-foot-tall sophomore averaged 16 points in each of Laker's first two tournament games.

Sue Kohn led Laker scoring with 13 points. Shelly Ginter contributed 12 and Lori Diener tossed in 10.

The Harbor Beach attack was paced by Joy Wehner with 15 points, followed by Anne Messing with 14 and Sherry Meissner with 12.

With the victory, the Pirates advance to a match-up with Brown City on Tuesday in the regional semifinals at Marlette.

USA DEFEATED: Laker

players were in a more positive frame of mind after their 53-49 win against USA last Wednesday.

The Patriots and Lakers produced a game that closely resembled the championship contest. After battling to a near deadlock in the first half, Lakers outscored USA 19-10 in the third quarter.

The third period Laker scoring surge was probably aided by USA Coach Ned Rambo's decision to keep inside scoring threat Sherri Fritz on the bench with three fouls for the first six minutes of the quarter.

Unionville-Sebewaing surged back in the final stanza to knot the score at 47-47 with just under four minutes to play. The two teams traded buckets to again tie the score at 49-49 at the 2:34 mark.

Lakers again recaptured the lead, but the Patriots failed to take advantage of several scoring opportunities in the final minute of play.

With three seconds remaining on the clock, Shelly Wissner iced the game with a pair of free throws.

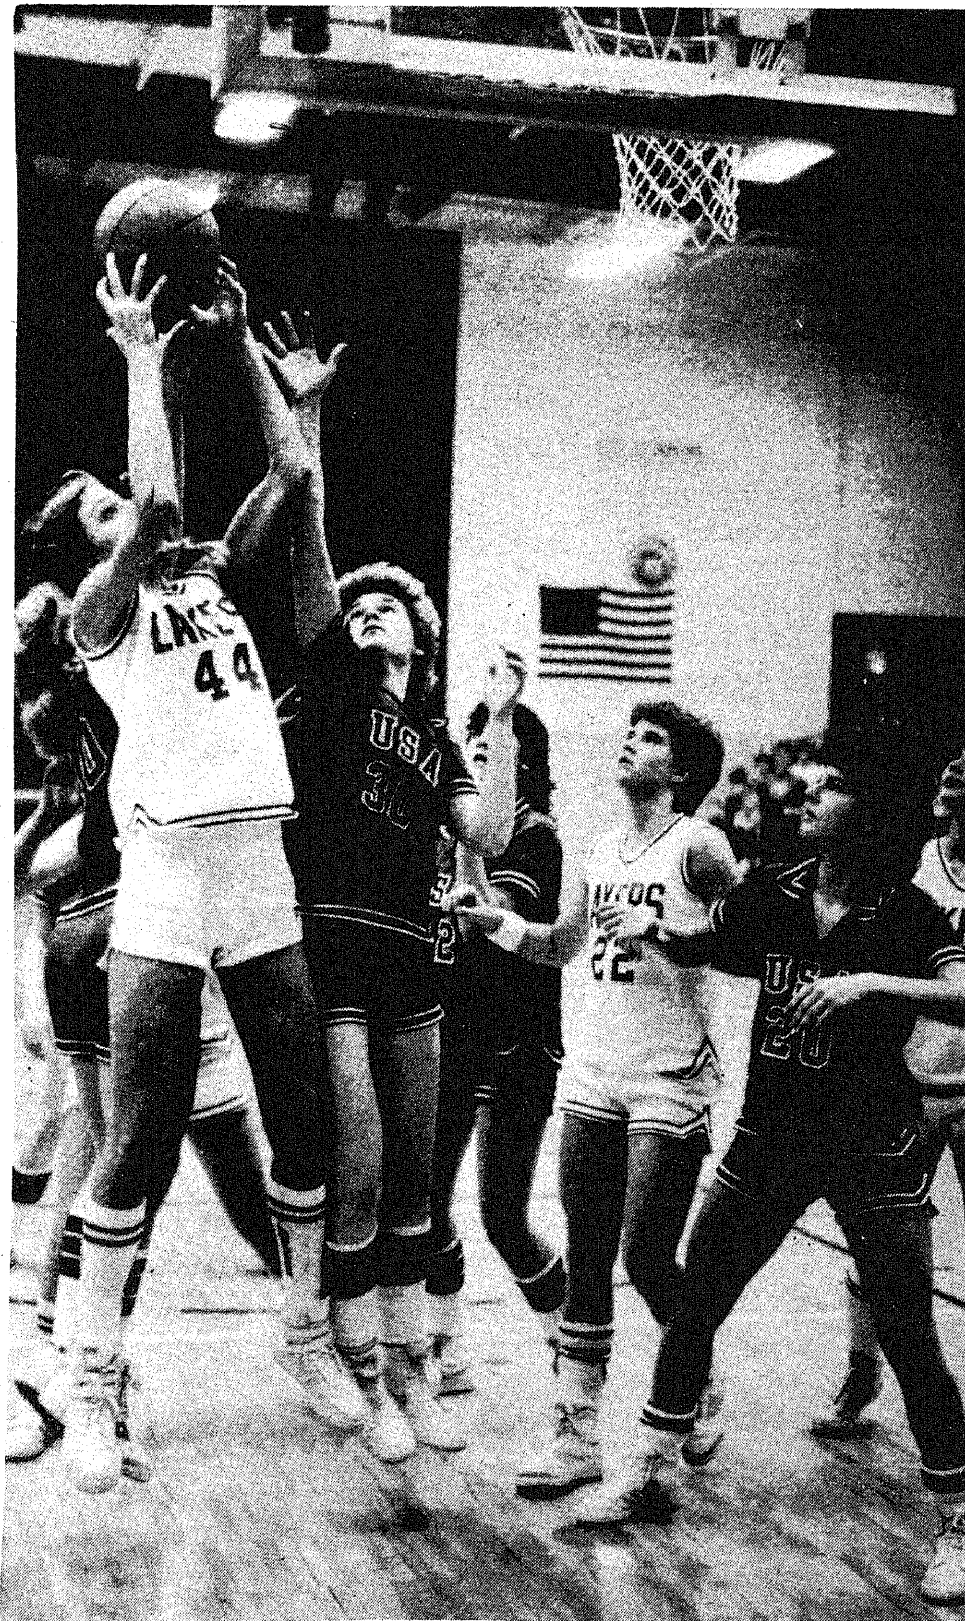

Julia Sturm poured in 18 points for Lakers to top all scoring in the game. Teammate Sue Kohn hit 13 points and Shelly Ginter added 10 to send Lakers into the championship game.

Sherri Fritz paced the USA offense with 14 points following by Laura Haist with 11 and Brenda Hoppe with 10.

WRAP-UP: Coach Beachy summed up the disappointment of his players after their loss to Harbor Beach by noting his squad recorded an 11-3 Thumb B record with a successful 16-7 overall mark, but ended the season with no trophy to show for their achievements.

Seniors Shelly Ginter and Sue Kohn added their names, however, to the school record book with their career performances in Laker uniforms. Ginter placed second as the school's all time scoring leader and Kohn became the fourth highest point getter among all Laker girls.

AIRBORNE: Sophomore center Julia Sturm leaps above her fellow players to net a basket. Sturm piled up 18 points in Laker's victory over non-conference rival Unionville-Sebewaing in last Wednesday's district semi-final contest. RICH SWARTZENDRUBER PHOTOS

PIVOT PLAY: Guard Shelly Ginter swings away from Harbor Beach defenders Sherri Meissner (50) and Connie Braun (32) after grabbing a rebound in the district finals. Ginter finished her Laker basketball career as the second highest scorer in the school's girls basketball history.

WALLEYE AND SAUGER SIZE LIMIT

Under the authority of Section 1 of Act 230, P.A. 1925, as amended, being Section 300.1 of the Michigan Compiled Laws, the Natural Resources Commission, at its meeting on August 10, 1984, ordered that the walleye and sauger size limit shall be 15 inches on all waters, including the Great Lakes and connecting waters, except Lake Gogebic, Big Manistique Lake, Lake Erie, Lake St. Clair and the Detroit and St. Clair rivers for a period of five years beginning January 1, 1985, through March 31, 1990. This order supersedes the previous order entitled "Walleye and Sauger Size Limit", CFI-115.82.

Eagles soar to district title

By RICH SWARTZENDRUBER

The Caseville Eagles girls basketball team was flying high after capturing the Class D District 112 Championship last Saturday night.

In a game that matched Caseville's fast break offense against North Huron's game-long pressing defense, the Eagles ran up a 54-46 victory.

After warming up slowly in the opening period of the game, Caseville established a 12-7 lead after scoring five unanswered points in the last two minutes of the quarter.

North Huron battled back to tie the score at 16-16 midway through the second period. The Warriors went on to open up a six-point lead before the momentum swung back to the Eagles, who recaptured a one-point, 23-22 lead at halftime.

The turning point in the third quarter seemed to occur at the 4:57 mark when North Huron Coach Jack Wellington was whistled for a technical foul while his team led 28-27. Caseville took advantage of the situation and the lead 29-28 as Gela Kretzschmer swished both charity tosses.

The Eagles continued to pull away as they put 10 more points on the board before the Warriors scored again three minutes later. Caseville then maintained an 8-10 point lead throughout the final quarter to earn the trophy.

Caseville scoring was paced by Chris Barton with 16 points and Brenda Johnson and Gela Kretzschmer each chipped in 12.

Tammy Champagne scored 13 points to lead the offense for North Huron.

Caseville Coach Randy Bingham attributed the victory to an effective fast break and a team effort. He also complemented his team on the character and determination demonstrated throughout the year.

"This team went through some adversities this year and they could have quit anytime -- but they didn't," Bingham said.

Beet deliveries finished at Sebawaing

Sugar beet deliveries at the Sebawaing Plant of Michigan Sugar Company were completed as of last Monday, Nov. 26, according to Davis Sunderland, Vice President-Agriculture. His Monday morning report showed that total deliveries for the 1984 crop amounted to 420,738 tons.

That's well over last year's 399,000 tons, Sunderland said. In other factory districts, all acres were harvested by late last week.

"You may still see some truckloads of beets arriving, but they're from other areas, as we try to equalize beets with slicing capacity," Sunderland stated. "Slicing at the Sebawaing Plant is going well, with daily amounts being in the 3800- to 4000-ton area."

This year's campaign will be one of the shortest ever, at 105 days overall, thanks to increased machinery capacity.

An estimated 1000 additional acres in the Sebawaing District will be contracted for the 1985 growing season, thanks to the major capacity expansions announced this summer.
