As we see it

Bolshoi Mak shows certain style

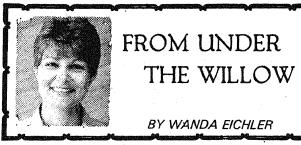

You've got to admire the McDonald's Corporation, which today opens its first fast-food restaurant in Moscow. It's taken McDonald's 14 years of perseverence to open that restaurant, but it will do more to show Russians how America's capitalistic system works first-hand than almost anything else.

Recent news stories about this new restaurant explains it will be the world's largest McDonald's — a rare feat among 11,000 food locations worldwide. In all, 630 Russians have been hired at the rate of $425 monthly (for full-timers)... but more than 26,000 students, housewives and professionals applied, all wanting to learn more about modern business.

Even while waiting 14 years (and wading through truly "red" tape), McDonald's couldn't have Soviet workers build the 900-seat restaurant and other building fast enough. What did they do? McDonald's brought in Hungarians, under supervision of a Yugoslavian!

McDonald's built a giant food processing center near Moscow to guarantee adequate supplies of

One in four — who cares?

The statistics are overwhelming. One out of every four children in rural America lives in poverty.

It is hard to put faces on statistics. Try thinking about the children you saw on a recent visit to a fast food restaurant. Or about the last time you ran into a group of schoolchildren at the local library. Then picture this, one out of every four of those kids lives in a household where the income level for a family of three in 1987 was estimated by the U.S. Census Bureau to be slightly above $9,000.

The numbers about children in poverty in rural areas are astounding. Consider, too, the number of elderly who live at or below that poverty line. Fifteen percent of senior citizens in rural areas of the U.S. qualify for that category.

In the U.S., the rural poor are likely to be white and live in the south AND even those people statistically have high rates of working full-time and having two workers in the family. Yet they still find themselves below the poverty line. Here in the midwestern states, 14.4% of our rural population lived at or below the poverty line in 1986.

In the last eight years, the rate of rural poverty has almost caught up to the rate of poverty found in our inner cities. While economic recovery and prosperity was publicized by the Reagan administration, the number of rural poor and inner city poor increased. More importantly, the number of children below the poverty line skyrocketed.

That one in four ratio of children in poverty ought to frighten us. Our teachers and school administrators deal with the effects of it everyday. So do law enforcement officials, judges and parents. Pressures are great in middle class families where money is more present. Add to the burdens by substracting household income and it is hard to imagine how some people can get by when they are struggling to raise families.

Children are precious. Their very future is the future of all of us. They need good food. They need jeans and shirts and shoes and coats and hats and mittens. They need to learn. They need opportunity and promise and dreams. They need warm beds and a roof that shelters and people who care for them and love them

Dollars spent for nutrition and food programs like the Women, Infant and Children program or for Food Stamps are wise investments that prevent future problems and bring health to lives. In her book, "Families in Peril," Marian Wright Edelman says, "It costs $495 per year to provide infant care through the Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC); yet it costs an average of $12,000 to save a tiny newborn with neonatal intensive Edelman also reminds us that keeping teens in juveline institutions costs $30,000 per year, while the cost of a summer job for a teen runs about $1,100. Programs like Head Start have again and again proved their effectiveness, yet are always involved in the scramble for funding.

Families, schools, churches and community groups need to pay attention to the growing numbers of poor children in rural areas. More than paying attention, we need to act on their behalf by being advocates for programs that bring food, health, education and dignity to our precious children. Our task is rural development of the highest order.

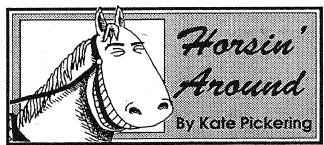

Our dream for the 1990s ought to include a commitment to lessening the effects of poverty on our children. Rural and urban, America's kids deserve a chance.

potatoes, milk, lettuce and beef for the ultimate 20 Russian restaurants planned. They hired Canadian farmers to show Soviets how to grow russet Burbank potatoes for french fries. The first harvest last fall was 20% to 100% better than yields in most Russian fields.

To guarantee an adequate milk supply, McDonald's over-built its processing plant. Russian dairy farmers produce plenty of milk but often cannot find enough pasteurization equipment. So, McDonald's allows farmers to send all the raw milk they can — and it packages what it needs at the Moscow restaurants, then bottles and sells the rest to grocery stores, splitting the profits with the happy farmers.

Not everyone can operate on a scale like McDonald's. But the company expects to serve 30,000 hamburgers every day at the one Moscow site — at $4.80 each for the "bolshoi mak" (bolshoi means big), so ultimately they'll do all right.

But the world is changing... and it's interesting to see companies like this directing that change, more than all the governmental action, laws, battles or

The Freedom Of Music

"Begin the day with a friendly voice - a companion unobtrusive, play that song that's so elusive and the magic music makes your morning mood. Off on your way, hit the open road, there is magic at your fingers for the spirit ever lingers - undemanding contact in your happy solitude. Invisible airwaves crackle with life, bright antennae bristles with the energy. Emotional feedback on a timeless wavelength bearing a gift beyond price - almost free. One likes to believe in the

"The Spirit Of Radio" - RUSH PERMANENT WAVES • Lyrics: Neil Peart

From the cradle to the present, there have been three unchanging components that have comprised the very marrow of my existence: love, family and music. Oh sure, other things come and go, many things come and stay horses, education, men, literature, art - yet none of these have been as constant, nor do they go back as far as the

My earliest recollection is of "mommy's voice" filtering in, from infancy - I suppose even from the womb. My mother - singing as she toiled in the kitchen, singing along with the radio, singing lullabies at nap-time and bed-time. Mom was an accomplished musician on a couple of instruments - piano, organ, accordion, saxaphone - so who could sleep while being so captivatingly entertained?

Then there was dad and his guitar. I recall crawling around his large, black-oxford clad feet, staring up in rapture at the huge, work-worn hands that oh-so gently and adroitly caressed the frets of his big old Gibson guitar. could sing "Engine Engine No. 9" and "The Orange Blossom Special" before I could speak.

My sister learned - by ear - which is not to say that she played with her ears, but rather without lessons or music - to play the piano at age four, and my brother to bang pots and pans with considerably more rhythm and control than the average toddler bangs pots and pans - hence the birth of our funny family band!

Despite being surrounded by all this vast musical talent, I myself-could never read a note or play any instruments, but I supplied perhaps the most vital element in any musical performance - a sincere appreciation! Music is just noise drifting into the Twilight Zone, without an ear to enjoy it! (I like to think I've saved many a tune from being drawn haplessly into that black hole of infinity.)

Since those early years music has woven itself into my life like a strong but sparkling golden thread in the rich and unusual tapestry of my existence. And I do mean all music - mom's "big band" favorites, the hundreds of C&W tunes my dad can strum, the radio's in my sisters' rooms ceaselessly playing the hippest pop-rock and new wave, the head-banging favorites of my heavy metal brother, the classic rock collection of my little brother, grandma listening religiously to the polka hour, the many devotional hymns sung regularly in church, the silly tunes and rhymes of childhood, the "classical" music we learned in high school vocal - the list goes on.

I am never without music if I can help it, and if I could memorize ANYTHING with the amazing accuracy that I can memorize song lyrics, I would be a genius!! We aren't allowed to have a radio on the job, but that doesn't mean

Huron vital statistics show slight growth

If there'd been no families moving into Huron County or out during 1989, the population would have increased by

Based on births in 1989, there were 437 new Huron County babies born last year, which is 14 more than in 1988. At the same time, deaths were down 25, from 310 in 1988 to 285 in 1989, for a net population gain of 39.

That was one set of figures revealed last week in Huron

Clerk Helen M. Lemanski's report to the Huron Board of Commissioners in Bad Axe. Marriage licenses were down 10 last year, from 268 in 1988

DIVORCE ACTIONS FEWER

In the Circuit Court of Judge M. Richard Knoblock, divorce actions were down last year, the clerk's records show.

There were 103 divorces granted, which was 8 fewer than the 111 granted in 1988. Further, cases commenced in 1989 numbered 114, down 24 from the 1988 total of 138.

URESA/Support cases were down 5 in 1989, to 60 from the 1988 figure of 65. URESA, Judge Knoblock explained, means cases that fall under the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, which applies to agreements among states which honor each other's attempts to collect support money from a parent who leaves the home state and moves to another to escape making support payments.

Criminal cases in circuit court numbered 63 last year, up 10 over 1988, and auto negligent and personal injury cases were 32, down 3 from 1988.

Paternity cases were higher in 1989, numbering 29, while 1988 showed 20.

General civil circuit court cases numbered 83 in 1989, up 9 over 1988, and appeals were 8 lower, 49 in 1989 compared with 57 in the previous year.

That makes the total cases in Huron Circuit Court 430 last year, 12 lower than in 1988 with its 442.

OTHER CLERK'S RECORDS

In other business in Clerk Lemanski's office, there were 140 passport applications in 1989, up 22 over the 118 the year before, and there were 131 concealed weapons permits granted, up 46 over the 85 granted in 1988.

Notary commissions in 1989 numbered 128, up 19 over the 109 issued the year before.

Ken Dietzel to head May 5 Bike-a-Thon

Ken Dietzel of Pigeon has volunteered to coordinate the St. Jude Childrens' Research Hospital Bike-a-Thon in Pigeon planned for Saturday, May 5. we're angry with embezzling stock brokers, we worry over

The Bike-a-Thon, an annual event dedicated to raise funds to combat catastrophic childrens' diseases, is dedicated this year to Ellen Marie Haynes, a six year old solid tumor patient at St. Jude Childrens' Research Hospital.

The hospital was founded by entertainer Danny Thomas in 1962. St. Jude Hospital is non-sectarian, nondiscriminatory and provides total medical care to all patients.

More details will be available about the Bike-a-Thon as the event date draws near.

I agree with the person who agreed with my "feeding comment." You should be shot. What about the farmers who plant the fields that the deer feed in, only to be shot in those same fields by the farmers? Or every other hunter who hunts near an orchard or crop field? Use your head, instead of hop-ing someone gets shot in

I understand that when Laker Schools are closed because of bad weather, some coaches still hold practice for sports. This is really not a good policy, or does the urge to win override the safety of our ath-letes? That's what it appeears, and I would hope the school board considers this matter.

Make plans for your family to attend the annual Laker Band Booster Soup & Sandwich Supper on Tuesday, Feb. 13 at Laker High School. Serving from 4-7 p.m. Enjoy home made soup, sandwich, desserts, and attend the basketball game with Cass City afterwards.

What am I going to do? — MRS. S. M., Jacksonville, Fla.

I suggest you begin by stabilizing your household. I can help with the financial aspect and am sending the funds to cover your expenses for two months. Part of that should pay for the costs of your AIDS testing.

Now for the hard part — the

DEAR MRS. M.:

My God - what am I going to do? I've been married for 12 years and have two children. The man I'm married to is not the man I thought I married. Imagine my horror waking up one morning to learn my spouse is a closet homosexual. That was three days ago. I didn't have a clue in the world that my husband was gay. But he's not only gay, he's also got AIDS! What if I have the disease too? My God, my God - what am I going to do? I'm, confused and shocked and have never been so disillusioned with life. I kicked him out of the house and told him to seek sympathy with the man or men who gave him this decadent disease. I have no skills, as I've been a homemaker my entire adult life. At 33, I'm faced with no hope or future for my children and myself, except the dreaded life of welfare. You've just got to help me, Mr. Ross. We were living paycheck to paycheck when my husband was here and have no savings. My household expenses are $735 a

"I thought maybe we could make it out today," he said. "Sure hate to walk all the way out to the dropoff." Without another word he opened the car door and jerked out the fishing sled from the backseat. I followed suit and we were soon gingerly hoofing our way towards the middle of the lake.

John and I had journeyed to this particular lake on several occasions during the past months. An early cold snap had locked up the area lakes by the first of December and until now we had been able to drive his favorite fishing car right to our fishing spot. However, one of those crazy mid-January thaws had driven the daytime temperatures near 50 degrees for several days and the results were startlingly ice covering of a few days ago was now in many different stages of decay. The thaw had left puddles of water in low spots, both from the melting snow cover and also seepage from the many open fishing holes that dotted the ice. The warm sun from
