PAPERS IN SCHOOL .- We notice that quite a number of schools have adopted the plan of newspaper reading by their reading crasses. We cannot see but this idea is a good one. The matter in the school readers, which is read over and over again, becomes stale and uninteresting. Newspaper reading would give lessons o practical every-day occurrences, would form the pupils in regard to those business cansactions in which they are soon to take a part, and they would thus be fitting themselves for usefulness when th attain their majority and are thrown out to battle with the cares and conflicts of We life.-Buchanan Record.
