CHILD LOVE.

Thro' the dreary length of years, Thro' the hasy mist of tears, Comes my sweet child-love; With her soft and tender eyes, Beaming mild as April skies, Or the gentle dore,

When in childhood's happy hours, Lauching load, we cull'd-the flow'rs, Roaming side by side; Roaming thro' the meadows sweet, Fee our young hearts sadly heat, Or with grief were pried.

And I hear her sweetly say—
for us to the fields away,
While the sun is bright;
While the birds do gayly sing.
Making this dull earth to ring,
With their glad delight.
