NEWS SUMMARY.

Washington.

The Treasury Department has issued a new circular, intended to encourage the circulation of standard silver dollars, which can now be issued in multiples of one thousand, not exceeding ten thousand, as provided by law.

Secretary Sherman has addressed a long and interesting letter to O. H. Heaffy, Mansfield, concerning the issue of the trade dollar, and the present depreciation in its value. Upon the latter point Secretary Sherman says: At no time and on no account have they ever been received or paid out by the Treasury, and it is a matter of regret that so many of our people should have accepted them at their face value, thus enabling their owners to put them into circulation at a considerable profit. Under date of July 20, 1875, the Director of the Mint published tables from which the value of coins can be ascertained. He does not advise any one to dispose of them at such rates. As early as August 24, 1876, the department informed an inquirer that the trade dollar had only a bullion value, and this information has been repeated scores of times, and published by the press throughout the country. It will avoid the labor of preparing manuscript letters, the Director of the Mint has embodied information in a circular, stating briefly a table for computation of such value. There was no new decision involved in the circular, though possibly its publication may have hastened the depreciation of coins to their true value, an event which was inevitable, and could not have been much longer delayed.

At Boonsville, New York, lately, a large crowd had assembled on the Fair Ground to witness a match between rival base-ball nines of rival towns. The nine chosen as the regular catcher of one club, James Barry, of Utica, was substituted. The first man who walked to bat, and struck wildly at the first two balls and two strikes. The next ball must have been either three balls or three strikes. The umpire decided that it was a great force, and the man at the bat struck a foul tip, the ball passing beneath and just grazing the cloth sensibly over the left groin of the stomach and telling him to the ground. Barry picked up the ball, threw it to the pitcher, and fell to the ground. The umpire and striker spoke to him, but he could not articulate. A physician was summoned from the audience, but in a minute he could get to him Barry was dead. Deceased was twenty-nine years old, and pitched for the Union Club last year. The spectators were greatly excited when the announcement was made of Barry's death.

The Rev.—of Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church have deposed Dr. McCoskry, formerly Bishop of Michigan. The official charges against him are that Bishop have not been met, and the House of Bishops made no attempt to whitewash the character of one who failed to show any defense.

President Hayes arrived in Chicago on September 3, and had a public reception. Parades and a speech were in order, and left next morning for St. Paul, Minn.

It is estimated that Pressler's majority for Governor of Vermont it about twenty-three thousand.

Orville Grant, brother of Gen. U. S. Grant, ex-President, died in Lisbon, Ohio, has been adjudged insane and committed to the insane asylum at Morristown, N. J.

The mind of man runs in many channels, and strange new business on a gigantic scale. He was sent to the asylum at the instance of his own brother.

Wm. Taylor, a colored man, was dragged through the streets of Sandusky by an infuriated crowd, on September 5, with a rope around his neck, and finally hanged to a lamp-post. His offense was the outrage and murder of a white girl on the 3d instant, and with whom he murdered the girl during the absence of the family, and taking the body in a buggy into the woods, where he set on fire at night, concealed it in the woods. The girl being missed, a search revealed the above facts.

The Minnesota Republicans recently met in State Convention, and nominated a full ticket. Among the resolutions passed was one heartily indorsing the President's administration.

The Kansas Democrats in State Convention passed resolutions declaring "the indecision of Rutherford B. Hayes to the office of President, notwithstanding the election of Samuel J. Tilden thereto, a high crime against humanity, which can never be forgiven or condoned, and will not be forgotten. The same spirit of patriotism which forbids us to submit to the usurper will resist and punish any attempt at a second."

President Hayes made a speech on the cause of the money panic at the Fair Grounds, during his visit at St. Paul, Minn. Incidental speeches were also made by Attorney-General Devens and others.

For some time past a German farmer of Parma, in Cuyah-go County, named Unsinger, has been almost constantly annoyed by rifle shots, as all his neighbors think, without any cause. A few evenings since this gentleman, who is a quiet, peaceable man, threats against the life of his wife and child, and struck their rumer several blows with a gun. She finally escaped to a neighbor's house with the child, and secreted herself in the barn. The next the neighbors saw was Unsinger's house in flames. A search party found the house also in flames, and his dead body lying between. It seems he had set his barn, house, and himself on fire, and hen shot himself through the heart.

In Muscatine, Iowa, recently, was discovered the most horrible and mysterious murder that ever occurred in that locality. The murderer was T. A. Zenk, a young German tanner and currier. The victim, Zenk and the victim Carrie Myers, about twenty-two years of age, whose home is near Cherokee, Iowa. She had been with a neighbor's family, and secreted herself in the barn. The next the neighbors saw was Unsinger's house in flames, and his dead body lying between. It seems he had set his barn, house, and himself on fire, and hen shot himself through the heart.

Fire Record.

Dispatches from Omaha state that the town of Plum Creek, on the line of the Union Mississippi River, outside of San Francisco, caught fire mysteriously in the fifth story of the Palace Hotel, on the night of the 5th, and the flames spread with such rapidity that in two hours, was completely destroyed. The building was a five-story brick, one hundred and thirty-five feet front, and cost $500,000. A few minutes before midnight, when the fire had burned five hours, the entire south wall fell over a crowd of firemen and citizens in the corridor of the hotel, burying four men who held the nozzle. Their names, Joseph M. Lee, Lewis Wiggs, Alonzo Randall, and Billy McNamara. A coroner's jury on a man named Lockfield and another named Ashe. Others, in charge of the debris and rescue the same were manufacturing. The fire burned all night, and at noon the following day was still burning. The remains of the men were found in an unrecognizable state next morning. A three-story building two hundred thousand dollars. August Kountze, of New York, bought it a few months ago under foreclosure.

The excursion steamer Princess Alice, returning from Gravesend on the evening of September 3, with about eight hundred persons on board, was run down, at about eight o'clock by a screw steamer. The Princess Alice was struck amidships and sank in about twenty minutes immediately. The number of persons drowned is variously estimated at from five hundred to five hundred and fifty. The latter estimate is the highest, and is given by the London Steamboat Company, owners of the Princess Alice. The screw steamer which struck the Alice is supposed to be the Bywell Castle, a screw collier, bound north to Hartlepool. She did not stop after striking the Alice, stated that after the collision the other steamer proceeded without attempting to render aid. Its existence was unknown to those on board the Princess Alice. Speaking how early in the morning the excursion steamer rendered what assistance was possible. The Alice was owned by a company in proportion of women and children. Several survivors speak of having lost from as many as three, five and six children.

The Corpse's jury has returned a verdict censuring the commander and officers of the Bywell Castle for not rendering assistance to the sinking steamer.

A dispatch from Sydney, New South Wales, says the insurrection in New Caledonia is not quelled. The insurgents stubbornly maintain their positions in the mountains.

Later estimates of the number of persons drowned by the collision on the Thames are not materially changed from those given. The now stated between six hundred and seven hundred were lost, a majority of the estimated number of women and children. Divers are be felt corpses packed four and five deep in the cabin of the Princess Alice.

Alleged Fiction Stranger than Romance.

The pleasing picture of the Iowa heroine, who had two pickerel under her arm, and a string of fish in her hand, coming down a pond in a beautiful little boat, was the sweetest. A story ever clipped from a mysterious exchange editors' sheave. But who shall say that the ingenuity of the fiend in human shape was not equal to the nether and devised the sweetest possible fish story? Here is the Whitehall (Mich.) Times' account of the finding of the queen of the speckled beauties. A man has an artificial trout pond with at least three thousand in it, each weighing from half a pound to two pounds, more or less. He also has a boy. The boy, not old enough to be successful in training the fish so that she can go to the door and ring a bell for a meal of dry crumbs fed them from her chubby hand. They have learned to jump out of the water and catch bugs from the fingers, and they are extremely fond of their little mistress. One day she lost her way in the woods and pitched head into the water where it was deep. She says that she knew she went down to rise, she fell, quickly gathered beneath her and that she showed their love for their mistress by bearing up her bony until she arrived, thereby saving her life from meeting a watery grave. It's a beautiful tale, but the next fish from the Far West may have another still lovelier.

QUEEN ISABELLA'S jewels have been sold for $270,000, and she has only $50,000 left.

The old woman went on to relate numerous anecdotes about the smallest man in New York, when he appeared in the room. He was dancing in a manner, in derision of their brother. Then he sang a song, in which the chorus, without paying further attention, went to walk in the fields.

Then he showed her his hand cross the bridge, and had heard the minstrels called them back to amuse her. This, however, she generally refused to do, when her husband knocked at the gate, and the minstrels, disappointed, but equally alarmed. Fortunately, the lady perceived in a neighboring room three pairs of ear orders. She was a well studied minstrel, shut the doors and then opened the gate to her husband. He had only come back to get another quart of his wife, as usual, and, after a short stay, went out anew, at which you may believe his wife was not displeased. She longingly ran to the coffers to release her engagement, but this intervention was taken, and he came to New York. He is small, and has a sore trial to him at first. He was sensitive on the subject, and when he ventured into the streets he was constantly called to low him; and their curiosity so aroused him that to escape persecution he at last hit upon the idea of his Fifth street, Brooklyn, and had he wanted to go back to Ireland. The captain would not accommodate him, and told him that when once he became known persons would stop annoying him. He, however, was not satisfied took no notice of the attention he attracted. He has lived in New York nearly twenty-five years, and for eight years has been employed on the street-cleaning force at full pay. "I never," he says, "saw any of the others one," he said, studiously, straightening his little body to its utmost height, "sometimes offer him money, but he refuses all alms. P. T. Barnum once offered him $5,000 to appear in his show, but the proposal was refused.—New York Tribune.

The Three Hunchbacks.

At a short distance from Donai, there stood a little castle in the midst of a wood near a bridge. The master of this castle was hunchbacked. Nature had exhausted her malice upon him, and could assist her by no more. He was deformed on the whimsical figure. In place of understanding his misfortune, he was proud of it. Which, nevertheless, he bore with two shoulders; he had thick neck, and a horrible visage.

Spite of his deformity, this bugbear bethought himself of falling in love with a beautiful young woman, the daughter of a poor but respectable burgess of Douai. He sought her in marriage, and as he was the richest gentleman in the district, the poor girl was delighted with him. After the nuptials he was as much an object of pity as she; for, being devoured by jealousy, he passed his unhappy night or day in sighing and praying and rambling everywhere, went suffered no stranger to enter the house.

One day during the christmas festival, while standing on the bridge, he, Johnny," as he is called, he perhaps the most celebrated hunchback in the world, in a small, dark, rear room of a big tenement house. An old woman who occupies an adjoining room pen asked if she knew him.

"Know Johnny! I was reply. "Bless me! I have known Johnny for thirty years. Why, Johnny is next to Tom Tum; you've heard tell of Tom Tum, haven't you? Well, Tom Tum is one of the most famous men in the world. Johnny is next to Tom Tum, and you've got to be mighty well acquainted with Johnny before you can get him to say a word to you. Johnny and Tom Tum are the only two dwarfs I ever knew. Johnny is a queer little man, but he's all right when you get to know him. Johnny's got a hump on his back and one on his breast, and he's got a head like a pumpkin, and he's got a face like a full moon, and he's got eyes like a cat, and he's got a voice like a peacock, and he's got a temper like a wildcat, and he's got a disposition like a mule, and he's got a heart like a lion, and he's got a soul like a saint, and he's got a mind like a steel trap, and he's got a memory like a sponge, and he's got a tongue like a razor, and he's got a pair of hands like a woman, and he's got a pair of feet like a baby, and he's got a walk like a duck, and he's got a run like a deer, and he's got a laugh like a hyena, and he's got a cry like a child, and he's got a way with him that makes you love him, and he's got a way with him that makes you hate him, and he's got a way with him that makes you indifferent to him, and he's got a way with him that makes you mad, and he's got a way with him that makes you glad, and he's got a way with him that makes you sad, and he's got a way with him that makes you tired, and he's got a way with him that makes you rest, and he's got a way with him that makes you work, and he's got a way with him that makes you play, and he's got a way with him that makes you pray, and he's got a way with him that makes you curse, and he's got a way with him that makes you laugh, and he's got a way with him that makes you cry, and he's got a way with him that makes you sing, and he's got a way with him that makes you dance, and he's got a way with him that makes you sleep, and he's got a way with him that makes you wake, and he's got a way with him that makes you live, and he's got a way with him that makes you die, and he's got a way with him that makes you stay, and he's got a way with him that makes you go, and he's got a way with him that makes you come, and he's got a way with him that makes you stay away, and he's got a way with him that makes you return, and he's got a way with him that makes you forget, and he's got a way with him that makes you remember

THURSDAY, SEPT. 19, 1878.

The Citizen says: The crops of Jackson county are all far above the average except potatoes. All the counties around us beat us on them.

Mr. W. H. Stone, banker, of Adrian, well known throughout the State, died at 2.20 Friday morning. He had just returned from a party, and complained of feeling ill, and expired in about ten minutes. The cause of his death is supposed to be neuralgia of the heart.

The balance of cash in the State treasury, Sept. 7, 1878, was $554,915.02; receipts during the week ending Sept. 14 were $14,193.28; payments during the same time were $6,660.98; balance in treasury Sept. 14, 1878, 562,447.32; increase for the week, $7,532.30.—[Lansing Republican.

This number of the ENTERPRISE completes the eleventh volume. A large number of subscriptions expire with this number, and we hope our subscribers will send in their renewals promptly. We have resolved to make numerous improvements in the coming year, of which we may speak hereafter, and shall need all the assistance we can get. We take this opportunity to thank our many readers for their very generous patronage, and hope they will continue to give the ENTERPRISE their support, by enlarging its subscription list.

We issue a special edition of the ENTERPRISE, this week, 300 copies of which will be distributed among the farmers, mechanics, laboring men, &c., in the vicinity of Brooklyn, Jackson County. The Ennis Brothers, a live mercantile firm of that village, have an advertisement which occupies the whole of the first page of the edition, and it is with a view to increase their now extensive business, that they make the investment. We wish our readers to bear in mind that the first page of the regular edition of the ENTERPRISE contains reading matter,—poetry, a good story, and interesting articles. We hope the object for which the edition is issued will prove successful, and that the enterprise of A. L. Ennis will be rewarded by many sales. We have been a charming subject for the pencil of a Hogarth—or a Nast. This announcement of the miller was the first intimation that it was the Sabbath. His reckoning was a trifle at fault.

Mr. John Pikett narrowly escaped having his barn burned, on Thursday of last week. He was threshing with steam power, and had it been a horse thresher, nothing could have saved the building. It seems the straw carrier by some means got off of its bearings, and before any one knew it, heat was generated sufficient to set the straw on fire. The last load of wagon had just arrived, full of water, and that saved the barn and its contents. Determined men and plenty of water wrought wonders. The barn is a large and valuable one, with stone basement, two threshing floors, &c.

Wm. Hunter, engineer at the foundry, was called out to assist at the time of the fire noted above, as the engine of the thresher did not work just right. Just as the engine was being drawn away, Hunter was making an effort to let off steam, and in so doing, one wheel of the engine ran across his foot. Some weeks will be required to make that foot sound again.

Mrs. W. W. Tuttle has gone to Detroit to purchase a stock of millinery and dress-making goods.

Wilder Bancroft has had a corps of pickers on his cranberry marsh during the last two weeks. They have gathered for him about 100 bushels of nice berries.

Mr. Edward S. Greee, of Detroit, and the Hon. Dan Bovington, of Leoni, addressed our citizens, last night, the 18th, on the subject of greenbacks. Quite a large number of ladies were present.

It seems that the shooting-match in Manchester, on the 15th inst., was quite a social affair, and passed off so pleasantly, profitably and agreeably to some of our boys, that they now talk of getting up one.

After having been on the river all day, blistering my hands rowing among the weeds, and going home at night with only one poor little duck, I have arrived at the conclusion that either ducks are very scarce or ducking is not my forte—although its about as good as catching fleas.

The Rev. Lemuel Fish, of Nashville Tenn. who has been visiting his many relatives and friends in Michigan for the past few weeks, held services in the Baptist church at this place on Monday and Tuesday evenings of this week. Mr. Fish is a very interesting and entertaining speaker, besides being one of the sweetest singers in the country. We never tire of hearing him.

The Grangers have a fine hall here, continue to maintain their organization, and seem to be in a flourishing condition. Their main object will believe, to do away with the middlemen. In this they have succeeded but too well for the best

CLINTON.

Geo. M. Hard, of Pittsfield, Ill., is visiting here.

Some of our citizens talk of going to the Toledo fair.

The great rush of wheat is over, still considerable is coming in.

The Nationals, yesterday, nominated Frank Estabrook for State Representative.

The Congregational people held a festival at the town hall, Wednesday evening.

Apples are dull in this market. D. R. Gibson is paying from 50 to 70 cts. per barrel.

Farmers are cutting corn and sowing wheat. This week will close a majority of seeding.

H. Smith, of the Union Hotel, is taking down his barn, in order to build on a different place.

Rev. O. B. Hale, of Saginaw, gave us a temperance talk at the town hall, Sunday, at 3 o'clock, P. M.

Dr. Symmonds, of Petersburg, O., was in town, Monday last, to call on his brother, who is now in Sturms' harness shop.

I have just seen Harry Downs, son of Deacon Downs. He fell from a ladder, at the school house, and broke his arm.

Mrs. Judge Bacon, of Monroe, is the guest of J. B. Wells. It will be remembered that the widow of the lamented Custer is the daughter of Judge Bacon.

Charles Fisher, son of John Fisher, died last week, of consumption. He was formerly a student in our high school, subsequently he was in the university at Ann Arbor.

Ed. Coffin, who came home from the war with a rebel bullet in his thigh, after suffering considerable from its effects, some two years ago had it cut out. Now of late it has mattered and become a serious affair, rendering him incapable of business.

A slight difference of opinion occurred in one of our saloons, Saturday evening last. A young man had absorbed too much beer. Of course it was beer, as our saloonists have not taken out whisky licences. Well, the beer began to effervesce, and to keep it from foaming over, the saloonist knocked the beer receptacle over; then quiet was restored.

Last Sunday Walter Nichols hired a horse and buggy of Frank Silvers, who keeps our livery. About 6 P. M. Nichols came back with the horse completely exhausted. The poor animal died in a short time. Nichols was arrested and kept in "durance vile" until Monday afternoon, when he was released in order to make arrangements for a settlement.

Mr. A. B., who lives east of here, had some business in Saline, so he concluded to take a grist along and have it ground while he was busy with other matters. Having arrived at the mill, no miller was there to greet him, whereupon he repaired to the dwelling of the knight of dust. "Well, Mr. ——, can you grind my grist to-day?" "Why, yes, I guess so, but really, I dislike to do it." "Why?" says Mr. A. B. "Because," said the miller, "it is Sunday." The look of blank despair and mortification that overspread the countenance of A. B. would have been a charming subject for the pencil of a Hogarth—or a Nast. This announcement of the miller was the first intimation that it was the Sabbath. His reckoning was a trifle at fault.

Correspondence of MANCHESTER ENTERPRISE.

Your issue of Aug 15th is received. Many thanks for your happy notice therein of the Oregon wheat, oats and barley, I sent you last spring. Our farmers have just about finished their harvest; and although the yield is not as large as usual, on account of the drought, yet still, as the acreage sown this year in Oregon is larger than formerly, we shall have a large surplus to ship. Already several ships are here, awaiting grain cargoes; and both of our railroads, as well as our river steamboats, are now very busy emptying eastern Oregon and the Willamette valley, and pouring into our city many thousand bushels of the finest of wheat, oats, barley, and other products, every day, to load said ships.

Our Indian war is about over, thanks be to Gen. O. O. Howard and his brave boys. It happen to know Gen. Howard personally; and a braver officer, truer soldier, and better man, does not exist in all of the United States army, to-day.

About a week ago we had two startling occurrences here: the one, a shock of an earthquake, which made things look lively and me look shaky; so much so that you will be said to me, "is that you that is shaking the bed?" I said, "No, it is a real, simon-pure quake of the earth." The other was a daring robbery and murder of three men, on the 20th inst., here, in broad, open daylight, and, I am sorry to say, they got off scot-free, with a few hundred or more dollars in coin; but one of them, a mere boy, has since been arrested, and a liberal reward will soon, we hope, "hug and cage" the other two scoundrels. Crime seems to be on the increase all over this large land. We should like to see the cat-o-nine-tails introduced here and laid on heavily over the bare backs of all such scoundrels. What say you? O. S. HIELDS.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 19, 1878.

Local News Brevities.

Frank Hall and Ham Kingsley have traded guns. Ham got $20 "boot" money.

There has been a general stampede from this village to Chicago, Detroit and Toledo, this week.

The next meeting of the school board of this district will be held at the engine house on the square.

We are sorry to learn that Rev. Dunning is in town. We have enjoyed his society very much.

The attention of the ladies is called to the advertisement of Mrs. Baldwin, of New York, which will be found on this page.

The D. H. & S. W. Ry. ran a special train of freight cars, for the accommodation of those wishing to attend the State Fair.

The mail train from the East, on the L. S. & M. S. Ry., is late nearly every day now, on account of the damage done by the rains last week.

It is reported that a revenue officer from Jackson interviewed friend Kappler of Sharon Hollow, a few days ago. What's the matter, my dear?

Conemaugh Goodyear made quite a nice little speech at the meeting of the council on Tuesday evening, in which he favored the organization of a fire company.

Subjects at the Baptist church next Sunday. In the morning: The nature of man and the power of the word of God. In the evening: A sermon for Odd Fellows.

The red ribbon boys collected money enough at the door, on Sunday last, to pay the expenses of the ball, speaker, &c. The plan is better than the old-fashioned contribution.

The old school house on the public square has been repaired, and the Marshal has placed the Babcock hook and ladder tracks therein. It makes very snug quarters for them.

The temperance people of this village have succeeded in securing the following speakers:

Rev. Mr. Schaeffer, of Hillsdale, on day, Sept. 22. Church Reichsbacher, of Hillsdale, on day, Sept. 22. Jerome Murray, of Ogden, on day, Sept. 29. Mr. Bateman, of Ypsilanti, on day, Oct. 6.

We understand that the Manchester Cornet Band intend to visit the Jackson County Fair on Thursday next, and compete for a prize at the Band Contest. Three prizes are offered—$200, $100, and $50.

On Sunday next the temperance people in this vicinity will have an opportunity to listen to one of the most eloquent speakers in this section, Geo. A. Knickerbocker, of Hillsdale. Goodyear Hall should be filled.

Wm. Bowers and Daniel Burch, of Sharon, eat a bee tree, on Saturday, and secured 130 pounds of honey. We will offer this against Mr. Bowers' "bumble bee" tree, noted recently, and tally the surplus honey for the next tree cut.

The members of the Manchester Cornet Band desire us, through the columns of the ENTERPRISE, to express their thanks to the citizens' committe, the Clinton Cornet Band, and all the people who attended the parade or assisted in making it as great a success.

We are pleased to announce that Manchester can boast of a first-class photograph artist. Mr. S. Davis has proven, by his excellent work, that such is the case. He has been "viewing" of late, and has stereoscopic views of both sides of Exchange Place, of the dam and Exchange Place bridge, from lower side; the D. H. & S. W. Ry. bridge and up the river; of the East side, from prospect hill, etc.; and is preparing to take others. These views will sell on sight. Our citizens should visit the gallery and see samples of his work.

GONE WEST.—L. D. Watkins and son Willis started for Nebraska on Monday night. Mr. W shipped about 200 sheep, via. L. S. & M. S. Ry., in charge of the Logan boys, on the same day.

EXCURSION TO CHICAGO.—The excursion train left here for Chicago yesterday morning, at 5.38, via D. H. & S. W., and M. & O. Ry. There were 95 tickets sold at this station, which are good for six days. The great Inter-State Exposition is open, and the papers say that the show is the best ever seen there.

THE HILLSDALE CO. FAIR.—For many years Hillsdale county has had one of the best exhibitions held in the State. The officers of the society have had much experience and know how to attract and interest the people. The list of entries is always large and the premiums awarded in a meritorious manner. Many of our readers will attend the fair this fall, which commences on the first of October and continues four days.

THE RUNNERS.—The managers of the red ribbon organization of this village, are to be congratulated on their good fortune in securing first-class speakers. On Sunday last, K. E. Frazer, of Ann Arbor, made a telling speech at Goodyear Hall, and eighty names were added to the pledge. Among those who signed were one or two who have made drinking a specialty. Knickerbocker, Murray and Bayanton have been engaged to speak.

THE JACKSON CO. FAIR.—This fair commences at Jackson on Monday, the 23d inst., and continues all the week. The officers of the association are laboring to offer large inducements to exhibitors, and they should meet with a generous response by the people of Jackson county. We hope they will all attend, and take something along with them for exhibition. They cannot all take premiums, but they can try. It is a large and wealthy county, and all should take pride in their fair.

PERSONAL.

Dr. E. M. Conklin, of Tecumseh, was in town on Sunday.

Mrs. J. C. Gordanier left to-day for White Pigeon, where she will visit friends.

Mrs. J. H. Hollis, of this village, went to Ohio, this morning, for a three weeks' visit.

T. W. Martin has been in town several days, canvassing for the Michigan State Gazetteer for 1879.

Charles Emanuel Augustus Bierstedt, a former clerk for Hollis & Roller, has been in town for a few days.

Jay Corey, of the firm of Case & Corey, of this village, arrived home from the East on Friday last, having visited Philadelphia, New York and Boston.

Dr. G. H. Field, formerly of this village, returned from California on Tuesday of last week. His health is usually good, but the throat difficulty for which he visited California, with the hope of improvement, is no better. He attended Conference last week, and has been assisting Dr. Cook.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Townsend, of Adrian, were in town a few hours on Monday. They have just returned from Clinger's Lake, a beautiful sheet of water near Sturgis, where they have erected a small house, in which to spend the summer months. The lake is a very popular resort, and those who desire enjoy the cool breeze, catch lots of fish, and bathe in the clear waters of the lake.

Contrary to our rules, as our correspondent "G." seemeth a maxim in deepe distresse," we print her "lay;" but we advise all correspondents, be they "thirteen years old and large for the age," or otherwise, to always sign their full names. If a communication is not worthy a name, is it worthy of publication?

MANCHESTER, Sept. 16, 1878.

DEAR EDITOR:

I am just thirteen years old.

And am quite large for my age, I'm told.

I have a brother and sister dear,

And we're all having the horrid ague.

Now, Mr. Editor, if you know a cure,

To do the horrid ague we endure,

Oh! I will extol you to the skies,

If you'll print it in the ENTERPRISE.

Dear "girl of thirteen," and "large for your age," You wish a receipt ague's chills to assuage; We'll write the receipt with pleasure, no doubt— Take the ENTERPRISE—only "one fifty" a year— Wrap up warm, ere the chill, take a hot lemonade,— But be sure in advance your subscription is paid.

Certain members of the Common Council are in favor of organizing a hook and ladder company, and think the council should encourage the move, and in case a company is organized, they should appropriate a sufficient amount of money to buy caps, &c., for the members, and otherwise assist in perfecting the organization and make it useful to the village in case of fire. We hope prompt action will be taken in the matter, and that every person will encourage it and do their part. The property owners of the village should interest themselves in the matter.

The secretaries of the Jackson, Hillsdale, and other agricultural societies, make a practice of sending premium lists, bills, and other printed matter to us, so that we may know and inform our readers when their fairs will come off, but the officers of the Washtenaw society do not, so we cannot say a word about it.

CAMP, MORRILL & CAMP.

This well-known mammoth dry goods and carpet house at Jackson are ever alert for everything new and desirable for their host of customers, and equally alert in seizing every opportunity of presenting their varied attractions to the public. Having recently opened a $100,000 stock at Jackson, they are going to give $75 worth in special premiums at the Jackson Co. Fair, "just for the fun of the thing;" and that will be a first-rate time, also, while in Jackson attending the fair, to visit their establishment, which she ladies will find a "fair" in itself, and feast their eyes, at least, on its myriad attractions. They will meet with courteous treatment and a kindly welcome, whether they purchase goods or not. But we warn them not to "enter into temptation," if they don't intend to buy anything,—else they will!

This firm have a branch store at Union City, and it is because they are able to purchase goods in enormous quantities, for cash, that they can afford to sell them at prices that puts competition entirely out of the question.

To purchasers of merchandise in the line of dry goods and carpets they offer special inducements, as their stock is so large and varied that ample room for selection is given the most fastidious or economical purchaser.

The firm of Camp, Morrill & Camp, is no ephemeral concern that has "shot up like a rocket, to come down like a stick," but is one that has BUILT UP a reputation and made its name familiar as household words by liberal and judicious advertising

The Austrian reinforcements have commenced operations against the insurgent insurrectionists on the banks of the Save. The fighting so far is indecisive. The Austrian losses between the 4th and 9th of September were about one hundred officers and three thousand men.

Treaty Between Russia and Servia.

Treaty Between England and the Porte.

The Pesther Lloyd makes the sensational statement that the basis of the new treaty between England and the Porte has been settled, giving England a Protectorate over Egypt. The Pesther adds: "France wants to the treaty, and will take part in the management of the finances.

Amnesty to Catholic Priests.

It is considered probable that a proposal by the Grand Council of Berne to Catholic priests deprived of their living in it is for refusal to comply with the requirements of the State, the Vatican intends to propose to the other Cantons to adopt similar measures, and solve the existing difficulties by common agreement.

How a Story of a Massacre Originated.

The story of General Miles's massacre in Yellowstone Park originated with the mail carrier between Bismarck and Fort Keogh as an explanation of the unnecessary delay of two days, alleging that he had been held up by the commanding officer for dispatches. The mail carrier, his empl oyer, at Little Missouri, and he, like others, accepted the story.

Frost and the Corn Crop.

The cool weather of the latter spring and early summer kept the corn back, and caused much replanting. This and other features of the season made the crop uneven in the same conditions, and still more uneven in the different conditions of high and low lands. The late midsummer did not suffice to bring all to maturity. There was a general frost in the principal corn growing regions of the West on the night of the 11th, which caught much of the crop before it was fully matured.

New Planet Discovered.

Professor Watson, during the recent observations of Vulcan at the time of the eclipse, found two planets instead of one. He reported only one until lately, when he announced his observations, so he said nothing of his discovery. The second planet is larger than Vulcan, and its position is eight degrees, nine minutes and twenty-four seconds right ascension, and declination eighteen degrees, three minutes north. Professor Watson says there are no known stars in the places which they give, and hence I can see no mistake as to the identity of the objects."

Burial of Queen Victoria's Daughter.

The thirteenth Sunday after Trinity will be remembered as the day on which, Ghent, by the great assembly in Woodland Cemetery, drawn by unprecedented of the second of Queen's funeral. This fair to adjust the concourse at twenty thousand nearly twenty-five thousand. It was a recent September Sunday, and the cemetery of Lakewood, Woodland and Mad River bridges was alive from noon till five o'clock. The Cemetery itself is thousands for hours before the procession wound up the long slope to the gates. The rest to the north of this avenue rose the street cars and to the hillside of Woodland contained its rows of double-banked vehicles of all descriptions, more than seven hundred, exclusive of those that filled the grounds. Both the east and west gates were opened that way. Rev. Dr. Bender delivered the funeral discourse.

A Terrible Crime.

An unusually shocking murder is reported as having recently been committed in Texas. George Lynch, a much respected citizen, resided seven miles north-west of Hockley, with a family of children. His wife died a few weeks ago, leaving a child. Lynch had two daughters, the oldest, Miss Minnie Lynch, aged nineteen, and Miss Laura, aged twelve years, and a little son, Jerome Lynch, aged nine. On the night of the murder the family retired as usual, a lamp being left burning on a fireplace in the main room of the cottage. Three of the children slept in the corner of the apartment, another three on a bed—alongside of the wall. Miss Lynch slept on a lounge near the fireplace. Her father, with the young motherless child in his arms, lay on a pallet on the floor. Past midnight Lynch was awakened by a pistol shot, and the ball striking him in the breast, he sprang to his feet and awakened Miss Lynch, burying the hatchet in her head, and also mashed the skull of three other of the children, and set fire to the house. The distracted father saw the burning house fall in on the bodies of his innocent children. The bodies were exhumed from the smoking ruins, and an inquest held. Several of the skulls showed hatchet marks. Lynch, it is thought, will recover.

General.

The second great Exposition of Industries, in connection with the St. Louis Fair Association, opened on the Fair ground September 9, under the most favorable auspices. The exhibition in general, and in all its separate features, far exceeds that of last year, and does great credit to the merchants and manufacturers of St. Louis, and other cities who display their goods and wares. The Art Gallery alone has over half a million dollars worth of pictures on exhibition, many of it, and embraces many of the best examples of the very first American and foreign artists. There is not a single poor picture in the entire collection. The Machinery and Mechanical Departments are crowding with the best products of the shop and factory, and the agricultural implements' exhibit is simply immense.

Sylvester E. Dean, an employee of the Illinois Central Railroad, at Chicago, in a fit of unreasonable jealousy, cut his wife on the cheek from ear to chin with a razor, intending to commit murder, but he succeeded only in inflicting a disfiguring wound. He then drew the razor across his own throat, half severing the windpipe. He died at two o'clock Tuesday morning.

A Gallipolis dispatch of September 10 says: The so-called yellow fever below this city is on the increase, and to-day, on account thereof, the schools were so thinly attended as to necessitate their temporary suspension. The fifth death from the above cause occurred in a shanty on the person of Martin Mott. Chas. Watchman on the John Porter, and at this writing it is impossible for the physicians to secure any one to go and help out the corpse. The people in this neighborhood are badly frightened that all the week, both before and after death, is thrown upon entirely physicians, who, thus far, have stood by like up to the work. Quite a number of children are taken sick, and others will follow in the next twenty-four hours, although within the corporation there is not a single case of fever nor any seems thereof.

The Republicans of New Hampshire, in convention at Concord, to-day, nominated Nat Head for Governor. A series of resolutions were passed, indorsing the policy of the Administration, and declaring all efforts to delay the day of resumption.

The earliest returns from Maine show that Greenbackers and Democrats will count the Republican majority for Governor, and will, perhaps, have a majority on joint ballot, in which case they will elect the Senators. The Republicans are only sure of three out of the five Congressmen.

In Maine, the House stands now, sixty-five Republicans and two Democrats supporting Republicans, twenty-one Democrats and fifty-eight Greenbackers. Five are not reported of which two are known to be Greenbackers. This makes sixty-seven Republicans to eighty-one opposition.

After permitting the pestilence breeding cows of John Porter to be at their doors until the fever in her vicinity had a good start, the authorities at Gallipolis, Ohio, decided that the must be destroyed. So, not likely that the disease can obtain a serious hold so far up the river, but it would have been a wise precaution to have sunk the boat and barges before.

The Convention of Massachusetts Independents, representing the Greenback party, nominated Hon. Ben. F. Butler for Governor, by a rising vote. Resolutions were passed in the Convention opposed to the old political parties, and demanding "the immediate repeal of the Resumption Act, so that periodical carnivals of bankruptcy shall forever come to an end, and that our National wealth be made the fixed and reliable foundation of our monetary system, forever banishing from America the idiotic proposition of making commodities of shifting values and articles of merchandise, like gold and silver, a basis for medley, a basis that ever has, as in 1816, 1837 and 1857, and ever unprecedentedly slip out from under each monetary system, thereby destroying it and plunging the country into ruin and bankruptcy, a basis that even England has never been able to maintain for any great length of time, although she is the creditor Nation of the world." They also opposed the further issue of any more interest-bearing bonds, unless such issued by a direct vote of the circumstances attending the death of Mehemet Ali Pasha. Upon his arrival in Jakova, he found the greatest excitement prevailing among the inhabitants. He was violently upbraided with having come with twenty-five hundred men—the Servians. Agitation went on increasing, finding vent especially in vehement abuse of Abdullah Pasha, Mehemet Ali's Adjutant's house, selected by Mehemet Ali for his lodging, was fired by the Albanians of Jakova and Ipeel. Then a fight began between the incendiaries and Mehemet Ali's escort, in which twenty men of the latter fell. Toward evening, through the intervention of some Ulemas, the conflict was appeased, the insurgents promising to observe a peaceful attitude. About six o'clock in the evening, however, in Jakova, where Mehemet Ali still remained, a struggle broke out afresh, originating in the death of Abdullah Pasha, with several officers of his escort, and the house in which they took refuge was fired. Mehemet Ali succeeded in escaping from the burning building and in concealing himself in a shed close by, but his hiding-place was soon discovered, and he was mercilessly put to death.

Yellow Fever.

In Memphis, on September 10, ninety deaths were reported. It is believed that many have occurred in the suburbs which are not reported, for the reason that undertakers will not go beyond the city limits, and though they sell coffins for their interment do not report them.

At Elmwood, many coffins were brought in, and another dozen or more were sent to Calvary Cemetery.

Among the day's dead are MacWilliams Willis, Superintendent Southern Express Company, who was a leading member of the Citizens' Relief Committee, and an active worker among the sick and destitute. John C. Lonsdale, Jr., Treasurer of Citizens' Relief Committee. Ed. Foster, of the Howard Association. R. W. Burt, editor of the Western Methodist, and his wife and child, and another child of Rev. McGregor, of Tipton County, Tennessee, died in the suburbs.

Mr. J. W. McDonald, telegraph operator, recently from Cincinnati, is dead. The Howards are down with the rest. Messrs. Langford and Bryant, who were doing splendid work. Of the twenty-four original Howards only six are on their feet. the others have been prostrated. The medical force is so much reduced that Secretary, J. H. Smith, requests persons sending contributions to the Howards, to send them to Nashville. Pomeroy and Manager Edwards, netted $400 for the sufferers.

The collections in aid of the yellow fever sufferers in ten city churches of Worcester, Mass., on the 15th, amounted to $1,422.

At New Orleans, on the 16th, the weather was reported clear and pleasant. There were seventy-three new cases reported, one hundred and eighty-two cases of which were date to September 12.

The Masons of Louisiana, with profound gratitude to sister jurisdictions who have voluntarily donated a large sum for the relief of the yellow fever sufferers of the craft in this State, beg that they would cease their generous contributions, as ample funds have been HONEST RECEIVED.

From noon to noon on the 16th and 134 new cases were reported. Only about half of these cases have occurred since September 12, the others prior to that date.

A dispatch dated September 15, from Brownsville, Tennessee, says: The prospect which was cheerful yesterday, as we have days, is not so hopeful. The cases of fever now on hand are not doing so well. Last night was not so favorable, and all are cast down. Citizens are looking every hour for large numbers of cases to develop. Some thought hopeful, to terminate in death. Nine new cases are reported, and are of a more malignant type to-day than yesterday, showing the many wonderful changes of this most capricious disease. There have been one hundred and forty-six cases and forty-five deaths to date. There are nearly one hundred sick now, under the attention of physicians.

From Vicksburg, 15th inst., we learn that physicians think there is a steady decline in new cases, but fears are entertained if the very warm weather returns the fever will again increase. Eighteen deaths on that day, nine white and nine colored. Among the new cases were William P. Fairchild, a prominent citizen and member of the Howard Association.

From Grenada, Miss., September 15, came the following report: Ten express cars, which had been closed for eight days, was reopened to-day by C. A. Pardee, Southern Agent of the Southern Express Company. There were ten deaths reported, and two new cases. The fever is abating, and will soon soon look for a more cheerful condition of affairs. A way of the fatality of the disease, who arrived here this morning from New Orleans to take charge of the railroad office, after viewing the situation, concluded to return. He left on the train at night for New Orleans.

At Gallipolis, Ohio, on the 15th there were three deaths from yellow fever, Loring Mosher and Charles Chapman, in the suburban district below the city, and William Beck in the vicinity of the steamer Porter. An effort was made to land some of the Porter's barges at Blaisenburg, about ten miles below the city, but a man who was on them when they broke loose. He was prevented from landing by Colonel Montgomery, who fired several shots and paraded him down the river a distance of ten miles, when he took a skiff and fled for the opposite shore.

The Board of Health of Vincennes, Ind., has established a rigid quarantine against Cairo. The Health Officers meet all trains four miles south of the city, but do not allow any passengers from Cairo to stop. Hotels and boarding-houses are forbidden to receive as guests any persons from Cairo. There was some apprehension among some of the citizens on account of a fatal case in Cairo, but there is no danger, as the city is in a very healthy condition, and the citizens and Board of Heal h are very active and vigilant. Two have should happen to the citizens.

The circular of Cardinal McCloskey, directing collections in all the Catholic Churches on September 22, for the relief of yellow fever sufferers, was read at several masses and has resulted in large quarterly contributions. Bishop Longdin made an appeal in his Cathedral at Brooklyn. Two grand concerts, given in Brooklyn by fifty German societies, in aid of the yellow fever sufferers, were very successful. Two hundred and twenty-two kegs of beer, presented by the brewers, were drunk.

Miss Carey and Mrs. Husk gave a concert, at Chicago, under the auspices of the Owl Club, of that city, for the benefit of the yellow fever sufferers. The receipts were about $2,000.

The performance at the Grand Opera-House, Nashville, under the lead of Jennie Pomeroy and Manager Edwards, netted $400 for the sufferers.

The collections in aid of the yellow fever sufferers in ten city churches of Worcester, Mass., on the 15th, amounted to $1,422.

From noon to noon on the 16th and 134 new cases were reported. Only about half of these cases have occurred since September 12, the others prior to that date.

The mortuary report for the week ending at noon, Saturday, September 13, is: total deaths, 260, of which 132 were males, 71 females, 76 children under ten years of age. Of the total deaths, 501 were from yellow fever, 477 whites and 29 colored.

John K. Irwin, formerly of the Memphis Avalanche, but of late connected with Howard, died on the 15th of yellow fever. He established in Memphis through the epidemic of 1873. Caving Olmstead, aged twenty-seven, a native of New York, returned Saturday evening, the 14th, from Hollow Springs, where he had worked, eight days and nights as clerk for the Howards, entirely broken down and died on Monday at four p. m. He leaves a wife and two children.

The Young Men's Christian Association of Memphis has established seven cases on the 16th, 79; the Howards, 50n, including 6n tinue.

Lost on a Glacier.

London Times.

Never since Pontresina became a favorite summer residence has there been so great an excitement as on Sunday, the 3d of August. On the previous Thursday two parties had started from Pontresina for the new shelter hut of the Swiss Alpine Club at Roval. The first, consisting of two gentlemen of Zurich, with the guides, Hans and his brother, Christian Grass, proposed to ascend the Piz Palu on the following day. The second party, Mr. Seton Karr, with the guides, Carry and Christian Grass (the son of the before-named Hans Grass), intended to ascend the Piz Bernina. Both parties slept at the "Bovalhutte, and from thence started at five o'clock a. m., and proceeded together to the Festung. Here they separated. Some hours afterward a snow-storm suddenly overtook both, although the weather had been fine and the sky almost cloudless. This storm lasted until Saturday night, and after a painful and most difficult walk the first party, after reaching the Palu, returned safely to Pontresina in the evening.

There Hans Grass learned that his son and the young Englishman had not yet returned. Without taking any rest, Hans at once started with John Grass for the Roval, which they reached about one o'clock a. m. Finding the hut empty, they had a presentiment that an accident had overtaken the party for whom they were in search. They consequently retraced the route they had taken twenty-three hours previously, and nearly reached the Festung. But the increasing storm and the darkness compelled them to return to Roval, where they met Karr and his guides, who had come from Pontresina to assist in the search. After a short rest the three men started in the raging storm and heavy fall of snow, passed a rock in the middle of the glacier called the "Fortung, and crossed under the "Bella Vista" peak toward the Bernina. Again they were prevented by the fearful storm from making further progress, and no response was heard by the distracted father to the loud calls for his lost son. Hans therefore reluctantly again descended the glacier and returned to Pontresina at six o'clock p. m., overcome by fatigue and inconsolable at the supposed loss he had sustained.

In the mean time, however, the whole corps of guides, thirty in number, had started from Pontresina. Twenty-four went to Roval in order to commence their search in different direction after midnight. In the early morning six were to proceed to the Valley of the Roseg, as possibly the storm might have thrown the travelers down the precipice on the Tschierva glacier. It was also arranged by telegram that men from Poschiavo and Malewo should ascend the Bernina from the Italian side. When every possible arrangement had thus been made, about eleven o'clock in the evening of Saturday, the 3d, joyous shouts were heard from the Monterasch tide, which were taken up by the villages and rapidly spread in all directions. "They are found! they live! They are well!" A messenger was at once sent to Kampfer to convey the happy tidings to the relatives of the Englishman, who had almost abandoned hope. The history of the adventures was shortly as follows: They had gained the summit of the Bernina at 9:20 a. m., when suddenly they were surrounded by thick clouds and overtaken by a storm which lasted till the evening of the following day. However, after a short rest, they commenced the descent, and by seven o'clock had safely reached the great "Firnkessel." Onward they proceeded in the now raging snow-storm until they gained the "Grasta Cuzza" (three thousand and six hundred feet), and had overtaken them, and further progress was impossible. At dawn of day fresh but ineffectual efforts were made to escape from the inclosure of ice and snow in which for twenty-four hours they had been imprisoned. About noon on Saturday, the 3d, they contrived by means of a rope to let themselves down a considerable height, falling upon the soft snow and continued their perilous journey. Nine o'clock in the evening, thinking that they were within easy reach of the "Bovalhutte," where succor was awaiting them, fire here their cries had been heard. Joyful greetings were exchanged, and food and shelter were soon provided. None of the party sustained any serious injury, although the English man narrowly escaped the effects of frost-bite.

No blame can be attached to the guides by any who understand the fearful power of a sudden snow storm among the mountains. Still, in order to avoid similar adventures, it would be desirable for every guide to possess a compass, and also that travelers should provide themselves with a good aneroid when undertaking a lengthened mountain excursion.

A sick child in Westbenfield was believed to be dead. The doctor called wrapped it up in a blanket covered with a hot mustard paste. In a few minutes the muscles of the body twitched, the eyes opened, and from the telltite lips came the wailing cry, "Lemme out; I'm roasting." It was let out.

Come now, the world is growing better. A Danbury family were furnished with provisions by the town on a Monday. On the Wednesday following they went to a picnic at the cost of fifty cents each. There were five of them, making a cost of $2.50, but they furnished themselves, not asking the town for a single penny.

A New England scene. Grand old hills, pine clad and scarred, towering to the clouds in their majesty, gurgling brooks winding through green meadows, fields of corn with the breeze waving and rustling their ripening heads and flaring sunflowers. Winding around and through these a stretch of yellow road, silent in the glare of the sun. On the road a solitary potato bug, toiling laboriously eastward.

ALEX. STEPHENS was heard to remark he other day, as he opened an envelope and pulled out an artistic circular, that he would willingly—yes, gladly and eagerly—strangle all his ambition could be but enjoy for two minutes and a quarter Kearney's gift of ready and vigorous expression.

Prompt Reform of Bodily Evils.

The prompt reform of those bodily evils, enfeebled digestion, incomplete assimilation, inactivity of the liver, kidneys and bladder, as well as of the nervous system which these ailments are especially prone to begin, is always accomplished by the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a remedy prescribed by physicians, pronounced pure by analysts, and eminently wholesome and agreeable. Simple seek a substitute. There is no substitute and indigestible mineral drugs and unsanctioned nostrums. The nation at large assuredly thinks so, judging by the unprecedented demand for the article from Maine to the Pacific, a demand now supplemented by immense orders for it received from tropical America, Mexico, the British and Spanish Colonial possessions, and elsewhere. Both at home and abroad it is recognized as a standard remedy and preventative, the decisiveness of its effects recommending it everywhere.

WITHOUT DOUBT UNFAILING AND INSTANTANEOUS. The great Cuticle Tonic cures chilis without the intervention of doctors and their bills. No consulting with them—no prescriptions to be filled—no huge bills, entailing pecuniary embarrassments, added to loss of work. THURSDAY, SEPT. 19, 1878.

The Citizen says: The crops of Jackson county are all far above the average except potatoes. All the counties around us beat us on them.

Mr. W. H. Stone, banker, of Adrian, well known throughout the State, died at 2:30 Friday morning. He had just returned from a party, and complained of feeling ill, and expired in about ten minutes. The cause of his death is supposed to be neuralgia of the heart.

The balance of cash in the State treasury, Sept. 7, 1878, was $554,915.02; receipts during the week ending Sept. 14 were $14,198.28; payments during the same time were $6,660.98; balance in treasury Sept. 14, 1878, 562,447.32; increase for the week, $7,532.30.—[Lansing Republican.

This number of the ENTERPRISE completes the eleventh volume. A large number of subscriptions expire with this number, and we hope our subscribers will send in their renewals promptly. We have resolved to make numerous improvements the coming year, of which we may speak hereafter, and shall need all the assistance we can get. We take this opportunity to thank our many readers for their very generous patronage, and hope they will continue to give the ENTERPRISE their support, by enlarging its subscription list.

We issue a special edition of the ENTERPRISE, this week, 300 copies of which will be distributed among the farmers, mechanics, laboring men, &c., in the vicinity of Bishop, Jackson County. The Ennis Brothers, a live mercantile firm of this village, have an advertisement which occupies the whole of the first page of the edition, and it is worth a view to increase their now extensive business, that they make the investment. We wish our readers to bear in mind that the first page of the regular edition of the ENTERPRISE contains reading matter,—poetry, a good story, and interesting articles. We hope the object for which the edition is issued will prove successful, and that the copies will not fall among stony places, where they will do no good, but that they will fall into good lands and bring forth subscribers a hundred fold.

The State Fair now in progress at Detroit is no doubt the best the State can boast of. Almost every article that the hand of industry can shape is on exhibition, to be seen by the whole State for a reasonable sum. Farming and stock raisers have brought more and we might say a better collection of farm stock than has yet been our fortune to see, and this shows that they are awake to the importance of thorough breds. Besides the fair, Detroit presents many points of interest, and one could busy himself two or three days in sight seeing. The manufacturing and business houses of the city have brought their finest wares on the grounds, to test the superiority, and where similar articles are brought in comparison, one is lost to adjudge the preference. The interior of the State is equally well represented in the manufactures, agricultural implements, stock, fruit, poultry, etc., and in fact everything that is pleasing to the eye.

A. G. Evans, who has been tried for larceny from A. P. Cook's store, was found guilty, and Judge Huntington gave him a sentence the full penalty the law would allow.

Mr. Philip Green, of Woodstock, fell out of his carriage, Thursday, while going home from town, and was so badly injured internally that there is not much prospect of his recovery. Since I have been in this town, Mr. Alderdice, of Cambridge, fell out of a wagon, breaking his neck; Mr. Bates, of Woodstock, fell from the hay mow, fracturing his skull, and lying in a few hours; and now Mr. Green, in the situation he is from the same cause, is it not well for those who are pursuing the same path to bear in mind the danger of drinking and pause before it is too late.

Mrs. Judge Bacon, of Monroe, is the sister of J. B. Wells. It will be remembered that the widow of the lamented Custer is the daughter of Judge Bacon.

Charles Fisher, son of John Fisher, died last week, of consumption. He was formerly a student in our high school, subsequently he was in the university at Ann Arbor.

Ed. Coffin, who came home from the war with a rebel bullet in his thigh, after suffering considerable from its effects, some two years ago had it cut out. Now of late it has manifested itself become a serious affair, rendering him incapable of business.

A slight difference of opinion occurred in one of our saloons, Saturday evening last. A young man had absorbed too much beer. Of course it was beer, as our saloonists have not taken out whisky licences. Well, the beer began to effervesce, and to keep it from foaming over, the saloonist knocked the beer receptacle over, then quiet was restored.

Last Sunday Walter Nichols hired a horse and buggy of Frank Silvers, who keeps our livery. About 6 P. M., Nichols came back with the horse completely exhausted. The poor animal died in a short time. Nichols was arrested and kept in "durance vile" until Monday afternoon, when he was released on bonds to make arrangements for a settlement.

Mr. A. B., who lives east of here, had some business in Salina, so he concluded to take a ride along and leave it ground while he was busy with other matters. Having arrived at the mill, no miller was there to greet him, where upon he repaired to the dwelling of the knight of dust. "Well, Mr. ——, can you grind my grist to-day?" "Why, yes, I can, but really, I dislike to do it." "Why?" says Mr. A. B. "Because," said the miller, "it is Sunday." The look of blank despair and mortification that settled on the face of A. B. would have been a charming subject for the pencil of a Hogarth or a Nast. The announcement of the miller was the first intimation that it was the Sabbath. His reckoning was a trifle at fault.

Mr. John Piket narrowly escaped having his barn burned, on Thursday of last week. He was threshing with steam power, and had it been a horse thresher, nothing could have saved the building. It seems the straw-carrier by some means got off of its bearings, and before any one knew it, here was generated sufficient to set the straw on fire. The tank wagon had just arrived, full of water, and that saved the barn and its contents. Determined men, and plenty of water wrought wonders. The barn is a large and valuable one, with horse power, and has a threshing floor, &c.

—Wm. Hunter, engineer at the foundry, was called on to assist at the time of the fire noted above, as the engine of the fire department did not work just right. Just as the engine was being drawn away, Hunter was making an effort to let off steam, and in so doing, one wheel of the engine ran across his foot. Some weeks will be required to make that foot sound again.

It seems that the shooting-match in Manchester, on the 13th inst., was quite a social affair and passed off so pleasantly, peaceably and agreeably to some of our boys, that they now talk of getting up one.

After having been on the river all day, hunting up hands raising among the weeds, and going home at night with only one poor little duck, I have arrived at the conclusion that either ducks are very scarce or ducking is not my forte—although its about as good as catching chubs.

The Rev. Lemuel Fish, of Nashville Town, who has been visiting his many relatives and friends in Michigan for the past few weeks, held services in the Baptist church at this place on Monday and Tuesday evenings of this week. Mr. Fish is a very interesting and entertaining speaker, his subjects being one of the greatest aspects in the country. We never tire of hearing him.

The Grangers have a fine hall here, continue to maintain their organization, and seem to be on a flourishing condition. Their main object is, I believe, to do away with the middleman. In this they have succeeded to a great degree, and if the benefit of this village, and I fear for their own, too, as Norvell has no grain or produce buyers. Should this one idea of theirs be fully carried out, we will soon be without merchants or population.

Correspondence of MANCHESTER ENTERPRISE.

Your issue of Aug. 15th is received. Many thanks for your happy notice thereon of the Oregon wheat, oats and barley. I sent you last spring. Our farmers have just about finished their harvest; and although the yield is not as large as usual, on account of the drought, yet still, as the average sown this year in Oregon is larger than formerly, we shall have a large surplus to ship. Already several ships are here, awaiting grain cargoes; and both of our railroads, as well as our river steamboats, are now very busy emptying the eastern Oregon and the Willamette valley, and pouring into our city many thousand bushels of the finest of wheat, oats, barley, and other products, every day, to load said ships.

Our Indian war is about over, thanks be to Gen. O. O. Howard and his brave men... I happen to know Gen. Howard personally; and a braver officer, truer soldier, and better many-days not exist in all of the United States army, to-day.

About a week ago we had two startling occurrences here: the one, a shock of an earthquake, which made things quite lively and my bed shake; so much so that my wife said to me, "Is that you that is shaking the bed?" I said, "No, it is a real, sinus-pure quake of the earth." The other was a daring robbery and murder of three men, on the 20th inst., here, in broad, open daylight, and, I am sorry to say, they got off, scot-free, with a thousand or more dollars in coin; but one of them, a mere boy, has since been arrested, and a liberal reward will soon, we hope, "bag and cage" the other two scoundrels. Crime seems to be on the increase all over this large land. We should like to see the cat-o-nine-tails introduced here and laid on heavily over the bare backs of all scoundrels. What say you?

Present, William D. Harriman, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Regina M. Unterkircher, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Peter Unterkircher, executor of the last will and testament of said deceased, praying that a certain instrument now on file in this court, purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, may be admitted to probate, and that administration with the will annexed may be granted to him, the executor named in said will.

GLEANINGS FROM THE MUSE.

EBEN COMFORTS BROTHER JACK.

BY PHIL BEETS.

"Crying? Of course I'm crying, and I guess you'd be crying too
If people were telling such stories as they've told about me, sheer enough Oh, yes, I know I'm a coward, you want me to say so, and so I will,
But you don't know how
And see your best friends actually up on a party leave you to gossip it over.

Why don't you say 'stop' to those they've come twice as much as I do,
And don't sober and crawl into bed because they've told stories about you?
No more it's her 'sensitive nature'—no more it's that I along 'spoil
And I don't 'hold up my head' and 'act proud' as I ought to take what I will.

I know why you're mad! Yes, I do, now. You think that they have cause to be jealous
And I've heard her repeatedly say you're the noblest fear boy that she'd ever
And she'd like to know where you learned manners
Oh! you, kick her downstairs, you brute! you!
Spoil the rest on my dress, indeed—to resent her
Why, there was no harm in it!

What station—Pretend you don't know the That's saying I hooked up the match!
Twas old Mooney-grabbed and Mary, by accident called him 'Comfort's Brother.'

Why, that makes a trifle, but all the Need be made for his wife and him to never Have enough that I didn't mean me so Just because I will be brave, but I tried to laugh.

And you said then, some time
I might come to my senses
In my dear; they was good people master 'especially—Mister Comfort and her tongue was not of the smoothest
She need to scold a servant soon got into her ways and served her so well as I could, till, after awhile, she no fonder of me than she would a child Betsey Blake, you're a good girl, wish there was more like you." And say, "My sister's coming to visit me mine."

But things went wrong about the place. My master was one of the easy-sort as let things go their own way and take their chance for better or worse; then two or three bad years, and master had to borrow money, and missus got more and more worried, and used her tongue more freely in consequence.

And then she turned with one of the servants; and one day the fairly lost her way, and cried over it all, and she says
to me:

"Betsey Blake, you'd best seek some other place, for, one way and another, shall manage and bustle all of a jumble,
don't see, I am sure, where the money for your wages is to come from at present."

"Then I'll wait, ma'am thank you,"
I replied; "and don't you take on so, Things will get right after awhile, you'll events, I'm not going for to leave you when you be in trouble."

"That's right, Betsey Blake, say she
You will get your reward some day."

"Thank you, my dear mistress—tell me about that," I suggested.

"I must tell you, miss, as was living ing by beyond Hazlem. It wasn't a it is now, you know, but a dreary wild moor and heath like. We hadn't many neighbors to speak of, the nearest was where a man lived as was a surly, cu
features.

"I won't say as we was friends
me. Leave go!

Don't I managed to get my hand free, and I struck him a clip over the
my whips as I thought would make him
let go. But he only laughed.

"I shall again, but before I could come down with my whip, I felt Diamond move, and all at once the man toward the ground. He had given a shot and my blow fell upon old Jack's instead, and sent him off at a fearful canter.

"I had never seen a man so when I was out on errands, and he had turned to say a cool word or so of compliment to me but I only answered
Thank you kindly, sir,' and took no more notice. I was afraid he would always to be civil, but never to stay and talk to a man as was not my relation.

"Martin Parker was a widower, and he and my master were not over good friends, though Martin was always a civil spoken to me, I must say.

"Well, one day my missus comes to me in terrible trouble.

"'Betsey Blake,' says she, 'we shall be ruined! That shall we do! My best husband has just fallen terribly in love with Martin Parker's sister, and she's coming to visit him, and I'm sure I don't know what to do.'

"Why, ma'am, I should say, if I was you, I should be very glad to see her brother's sister, and hope she was a nice young woman.'

"'Betsey Blake,' says she, 'you're a girl! I'll send old Maurice with you, and then told 'em what had happened
You may fancy how they opened their eyes at my news.

"You shan't ride back alone, my dear!' I'll send old Jack with you, and he'll be a brave chap as attacks old Maurice.'

"Well, my dear, we got back. I rode behind the old man on a pillion, and wasn't I glad not to be alone. Indeed,
I was pleased to see him, for I thought
Martin Parker might leave me a bit of breath Better to shoot murder with Well, he pardon, sir," I said, "but I'm not used to ride on a pillion."

"'Nor to having your arm around an old man!' he said laughing.

But I was not frightened to mind his joking, and said nothing till we got our duty, and to do it with all our might.

"You were brave," I said. But the little old woman looked up quietly, with a twinkle smiling under her spectacles.

"Wait a bit, my dearey; you haven't come to the end yet.

"Well, I shall say during the master's hundred pounds got safe that night.
When we got back into our old kitchen,
and I was trying to make up the fire to tell missus all about it, Diamond came running in, and drops something at master's feet. It was a letter, it was was waiting up for me by the fireside in the passage.

"'Long as I was near missus, I knew pretty well I wasn't so bad, but when I got out on to the lonely heath, my heart went so bad that I had to keep saying a bit of a psalm I knew by heart.

"Whose bullets under the defence of the Most High,' and Diamond as so quiet and warm next me that I felt a bit comforted. But when it began to darken, I felt wish old Jack would go faster.

"Well, my dear, when we got to a turnout that with every step I thought the wind rustled in and out among the branches. I felt creeping-all over. But I tried to cheer myself up with the master and missus, and was getting better, when all at once a figure starts up, just alongside the bridle, and rushing out, seized old Jack by the bridle. I didn't a fanciful scream, but I called out:

"Leave hold, I say!"

"'Give me the money,' said a deep,
low voice, 'and I won't touch you.'

"I ought to tell you as the man had a mask on, so that I could not see his features.

"I won't, I says; and you touch
me! Leave go!'

Then I managed to get my hand
free, and I struck him a clip over the
my whips as I thought would make him
let go. But he only laughed.
