L Successful Spellist.

Any one who has seen the rivalry of the contestants in a western spellingchool will appreciate this incident from Edward Eggleston's reminiscences of his schooldays, published in the March Scribner. He says: It was in the same old Bethel schoolhouse, about the same time, that the master, one Benefiel, called out the spelling class of which my mother, then a little girl, was usually at the head. The word given out was "onion." I suppose the scholars at the head of the class had not recognized the word by its spelling in studying their lessons. They all missed it widely, spelling it in the most ingeniously incorrect fashions. Near the foot of the class stood a boy who had never been able to climb up toward the head. But of the few words he did know how to spell, one was When the word was missed "onions." at the head he became greatly excited, twisting himself into the most ludicrous contortions as it came nearer and nearer to him. At length the one just above the eager boy missed, the master said whereupon he exultingly ewung his hand above his head and came out with "O-n, un, i-o-n, yun, ing-un,—I'm head, by gosh!" and he marched to the head while the master hit him a blow across the shoulders for

How Men Get Ahead.

A son of Maine who went west in early youth, and has there attained wealth and an honorable position, returned, last summer, to visit his old home. At the village store he met an old man whom he had known in his younger days. He accosted him, but was not recognized, So, you don't remember me.' "I'm John R.—." "You!" exclaimed the old man, "you don't mean to tell me you are John R-7" said the visitor, shaking him by the hand, "and I'm very glad to see you again." "Well," persisted the old man, "Inverdid. To think that this is you. They tell me you've grown awful rich, John." John admitted that he had "saved something." And they say yon're president of a railway, and get a big salary." Again John had to admit that rumor spoke truth. "I'm glad on it. John! I'm glad on it, my boy! It beats all what circumstances and cheel will do for a man.—Boston Transcript.

As in our busiest and most populous cities of the sesboard and interior, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is pre-eminently popular. Wherever civilization plants its foot on this continent, thither the great tonic soon finds its way. Nor is this surprising, for it is the medicine of all others best adapted to the wants of the Western emigrant, be he miner or agriculturist. It is an incomparable remedy for the diseases to which he is most on by a change of climate, hardship, ex-posu e, unaccustomed air and diet, and miasmatic atmosphere and water. Among missmatic atmosphere and water. Among these are disorders of the stomach and howels, rheumatic ailments, and malarious fevers, for all of which Hostetter's Hitters is a certain specific. A course of the Bitters before departing for the new field of labor or on serving, will have the effect of preventing the evils for which it is such a signal emody.
