Alward, of Care, was made temporary chairman; Theron F. Giddings, of Kalamazoo, temporary secretary. Committees reported and the temporary organization was made permanent.

Nominations were then in order, the rules were suspended and John W. Jochim, of Marquette county, was named for secretary of state for the full term by a rising vote. The nomination of a candidate for associate justice of the supreme court to fill Judge Morse's chair was taken up and was the struggle of the day. The candidates before the convention were Judge E. D. Kline, of Ann Arbor; Judge R. R. Pealer, of St. Joseph; Hon. W. W. Mitchell, of Ionia; Judge Edward Cahill, of Lansing; Hon. H. H. Hatch, of Bay City; Judge Aaron V. McAlvay, of Manistee, and Judge C. C. Ellsworth, of Greenville. Ellsworth, of Greenville.

Ellsworth, of Greenville.

Judge Hooker lead from the first ballot and on the fourth the race had narrowed down to Hooker and Cahill, the former being chosen by a vote of 385 to 346. The nomination was made unanimous. The officers of the convention and the city of Grand Rapids were thanked. The convention insieted worp seeing Judge Hooker and

The fifth annual convention of the State League of Republican Clubs.

The fifth annual convention of the State League of Republican clubs was also held in Grand Rapids on the same day. President Patton and Mayor W. J. Stuart exchanged the usual courtesies and President Patton delivered his annual address. Secretary Baxter's report was read and speeches were made by Hon. John T. Rich and others. Philip T. Colgrove, of Hastings, was elected president for the ensuing year. In the evening a rally was held at Hartman's hall and speeches by J. Sloat Fassett, of New York, Hon. John T. Rich and others were listened to by a large gathering of people.

most wealthy and influential people in Tecumseh.

An incident occurred a year ago which has a bearing on his act. He was riding one evening with a young lady in whom he was much interested when his horse became frightened and ran away. The young lady was thrown out and instantly killed. When Stewart was found dead there was a diamond ring on his finger which belonged to the young lady. It is thought that his despondency was due in some measure to the interest he felt in the young lady.

Ran Down by a Fishing Tug

A fishing tug ran down a boat containing Levi Frazer and Frank Cronmiller just outside the harbor at Marmiller just outside the harbor at Marquette. Cronmiller was drowned, but Frazer succeeded in swimming to the breakwater. The inquest developed the fact that the tug carried no lights as is required by the marine laws, and the master of the vessel is now liable to a revocation of his license, the payment of a heavy fine, a civil suit for damages and prosecution for manslaughter. Proceedings against the owner and master of the tug will doubtless be commenced as soon as the doubtless be commenced as soon as th government officers have concluded their investigation into the circum-stances of the accident.

Four Killed in the Eureka Mine.

Four men fell 200 feet down a shaft in the Eureka mine near Bessemer and were killed. They were Frank Bender, John Leorn, Julius McKaley and John Random. Two were married and leave families. The four men, with two others employed in the mine, started to ride up in the skip. When 200 feet from the bottom the skip "dumped" the four companions being hurled to the bottom of the shaft, where they were crushed to death. It was contrary to orders for the men to ride in the skips, and the coroner's jury therefore exonerated the company rom blame.

MATTERS AT HOMESTEAD.

O'Donnell Must Remain in Jail to Await Trial for Murder--- Militia Will Not Leave. In the criminal court at Pittsburg

In the criminal court at Pittsburg Judge Porter handed down a decision in the application of Hugh O Donnell, the Homestead strike leader, charged with complicity in the murder of J. W. Kline, a Pinkerton detective. The application was refused and O Donnell must remain in jail until his trial. When O Donnell was brought in from the jail he looked cheerful and evidently expected to be released. As the opinion was read his countenance changed, and when it was ended deep disappointment could be read on every feature. He was immediately taken back to his cell.

After this introduction the letter proproceeds to all important issue of tariff and taxes in which tariff for revenue only is advocated. The letter says: "Tariff legislation presents a familiar form of federal taxation. Such legislation results as surely in a tax upon the daily life of our people as the tribute paid directly into the hand of the tax gatherer. We feel the burden of these tariff taxes too palpably to be persuaded by any sophistry that they do not exist, or are paid by foreigners. Such taxes, representing a diminution of the property rights of the people, are only justifiable when laid and colof the property rights of the people, are only justifiable when laid and collected for the purpose of maintaining our government, and furnishing the means for the accomplishment of its legitimate purposes and functions. This is taxation under the operation of a tariff for revenue. It accords with the professions of American free institutions and its justice and honesty answer the tests supplied by a correct appreciation of the principles upon which these institutions rest: This theory of tariff legislation manifestly enjoins strict economy in public expenditures and their limitation to legitimate public uses, inasmuch as it exhibits as absolute extortion any exaction by way of taxation from the substance of the people, beyond the necessities of a careful and proper administration of government.

Two Young Boys shoot Each Other.

Two brothers, Garfield and Lee Van ernum, aged 11 and 15, of Watertown, N. Y., went to visit a relative in the and on the way the younger brother accidentally shot the other with a revolver. The wounded brother immediately seized the pistol and shot the other. Both boys then jumped into Black river and were drowned. They left a note describing their action. The bodies have been recovered.

THE American hog has a grievance. After rooting his way along a path beset with thorns, soothed and sustained only by the encouraging tones of Minister Phelps, he arrives in Berlin to find the butchers there trying to educate the local palate up to the appreciation of horse meat.

TAKING into account the assessed valuation, the New England states. representing large manufacturing interests, with one-thirteenth of the total population of the country, reprecents one-seventh of the-wealth of the country. While Massachusetts is only sixth in population, it is third in wealth. This is due to the large manufacturing interests.

The most prevalent form of color-blindness, as shown by the committee's report, is the inability to distinguish red from green, these colors being often mistaken for white.

WHILE the farming class is the very backbone of the nation and conserves in the largest degree its courage and patriotism the isolation of the individual farmer and his family tends to the destruction of intellectual and social growth. In the winter and spring the farmer and his family cannot leave the farm to visit friends and neighbors of the surrounding towns because the roads are impassable and they cannot get about In the summer and fall they cannot teave because the farm work presses more than at other seasons.

GEORGE ELIOT, in one of her essays, stated an important truth in literature when she declared that the greatest benefit we owe the artist, whether painter, poet, or novelist, is the extension of our sympathies. How great an element this extension of our sympathies by the novelist, poet and art. ist is, has never been clearly set forth, and when it is once satisfactorily done literature and art will, i possible be accorded a still higher place of honor as active agents in theworld's progress and human advancement than they hold at present.

THE feeling that unrestricted immigration is a great and threatening at my departure confided to me a packdanger has undoubtedly been growing for some years and is now pretty generally disseminated. The impression had its origin in certain evils which have been more or less directly traceable to the influx of an undesirable population. These evils are apparent without much investigation into the amount and conditions of immigration, but impartial comparison of the state of things which exists today with that which existed a few years ago goes to strengthen the apprehensions of the watchful citizens

WHEN the British inspector comes to us and notes that our sunrise is amateurish that our roads are bad, our justice venal our cities_ill-governed, ill-paved and dirty, and that the joys of our railway cars are ·crude people, crude manners and a loathsome atmosphere." we are not to suppose that he really thinks meanly of us but to understand on the contrary that he resents the faults he thinks he finds in us all the more because of the lofty scale of perfection by which he judges us. If it be true that he seems over-eager sometimes to detect our faults the reason is that as he measures us by a British standard so all the time he keeps measuring himself by us.

Some time ago a historian and horse fancier wrote at length to show that the karat fineness of every civiifzation has been directly proportionate to the standard up to which the horse has been brea. THE SHIPS OF MELTON.

How sail the ships to Melton,
That lieth far and fair,
And dream-like in the haven
Where skies are caim and clear?
With blown-sails leaning whitely.
Sure-winged 'neath storn or star;
They straightly steer for still they hear
The love-bells o'er the bar.

How sail the ships of Melton? Love-blown across the foam;
For still the sea sings ever
The songs of love and home;
Nor spicy isles with splendid smiles
Can win their sails afar,
While softly swells that chime of bells,
The love-bells o'er the bar.

O, ships that sail to Melton,
With the Captains glad and grand;
The stars that light the ocean
Are the stars that light the land;
But say for me, adrift at sea
On lonely wrecks afar;
My heart still hears, and dreaming nears
The love-bells on the bar.

camp," said Jackson but they are not likely to bother you." I had my doubts; but the prospect of staying all night with Mendez somewhat reassured me, and I started off in very good spirits. My road took me through a scene of bewilder-ing beauty. The tropical foliage round me glittered with all the hues of the rainbow. Unknown flowers of gorgeous magnificence and overpowering fragrance brightened the road-Suddenly I came upon a pond of clear water in an open space. Hot, dusty and travel worn, I could not reist the temptation. Without counting the consequences I fastened the mustang to a sapling and undressed in a hurry, placing my revolver under my clothes on the edge of the Then I plunged in and enwater.

One thing annoyed me. All along the way I met with monkeys every-They were of all sizes, and the interest they took in my movements amused me not a little. Sometimes they chattered at me indig nantly and shook their fists almost in

As soon as I entered the lake the monkeys took fresh courage. They scrambled about in droves and abused me to their heart's content Among them was one of a species that I had not seen before. He was the information from the theory of a feroclous looking monster, fully five feet high and as muscular as a bear. Before I realized the situation this great long-legged fellow swooped as a cock-and-bull story. So I wisely role of Lady Godiva.

There was no time to lose. The monkey had left my revolver, and as soon as I could seize it I fired. He a howl of rage and dropped everything but my coat. I hastily jumped into my recovered garments and gave chase. It was useless. The thief scurried up into the top of a tall cocoanut tree, and in a twinkling of cocoanut tree, and in a twinkling of lofty philosophy of the Chelses sage an eye put on my coat, buttoning it could not be reconciled with the petty him, and then proceeded to sneers and ill-nature of his common hurl cocoanuts at me with such precision that I was glad to quickly leap into the saddle and ride off.

But my troubles had just begun. had reconciled myself to the loss of my coat, as Jackson's money was in lyle's dyspepsia and Byron's lame an inside pocket of my waist, but the limb that put them at odds with the monkey showed a disposit on to follow me. After fring at him several times I gave it up. His tough hide seemed bullet proof and there was no chance to kill him unless I shot him in the eye.

The declining sun warned me that it was time to seek shelter for the night, and I knew that in these tropical solitudes there was no twilight.
I saw no cultivated fields no houses, no signs of the hacienda of Don Francisco Mendez

The situation was growing serious Occasionally a stone weighing a pound or two was hursed at me from some leafy covert and then the gigantic monkey would give a horrible laugh and scamper away. He was a funny looking chap in my blue flannel coat. but I was too angry to enjoy the comic aspect of the matter. It struck me if the brute caught me in the dark he would make an end of me in no time. It was both horrible and humiliating, such a death in the tangled forests of this savage land.

Just then I saw a short distance off in a clearing a square stone hut Here was shelter and protection. I was not disappointed much to find it It was strongly built, uninhabited. with no windows and one entrance, from which the door had long since routed away. A stepladder led to the loft. Ascending I found a small apartment dimly lighted by round holes in the wall which had e idently been used by sharpshooters at some lutionary period in the history of the country. My mind was made up in an instant. I went back to my mustang and picketed him about one hundred and sixty yards from the hut in the bushes. Then I returned to my fortress ust as darkness closed in Then I returned to upon me and sought refuge in the left pulling up the ladder after me dying German philosopher. I was safe here even from the mon-keys and I lay down feeling a sense of perfect security.

It must have been late in the night then I heard something moving in the room underneath me. Looking through the opening in the floor I could see nothing. I struck a match. and by the flickering flame recognized wretch still wore my coat and in the dim uncertain light his appearance was more repulsive than ever.

I lay down again knowing that the beast could not get into the loft and commenced planning for his destruction in the morning. I was satisfied that the animal belonged to a species of mountain apea of great strength and terrible ferocity. long murderous knives.

I heard two dull thuds, and knew that Pedro and Juan had been dashed headlong against the walls. "Mother of Moses!" gasped Juan.

"Knife him!" The robbers made another rush. Ah! ah!" yelled Pedro. . Where are you, Juan? This hog of an American has me by the throat, and I have lost my knife. He is a demon" groaned Juan.

·He is pounding my head against the wall! A volley of yells followed and then a chorus of groans Through it all I heard an ominous dull thud. At length silence prevailed, and I knew that all My last match was gone, but to my great delight it was almost morning.

With the first rays of daylight I peered through the hole in the floor. It was a ghastly sight that met my gaze. The two Mexicans lay on the floor quite dead. Their heads had been smashed to jelly against the wall and their throats bore dark blue marks. Sitting in the corner was the mon He was bleeding profusely and was evidently seriously nurt. At first I thought I would spare him. He saved my life and I was grateful. But when I fixed the ladder and descended the untamable beast prepared for a spring, and there was such evident malice in his eyes that I aimed at his eye and fired. One shot did the work. He rolled over dead.

Last week the Peainsular Savings bank, Detroit, Mich., celebrated its fifth anniversary and the same day the 45th anniversary of its popular cashier. Joseph B. Moore. The phenomenal growth of this banking institution is the talk of the city. It began in a humble manner five years ago in small quarters on Griswold street. Now it occupies an extensive building, with the latest modern improvements, on Forestreet west. Mr. Moore was the recipient of congratulations from his large number of friends on his birthday and his management of the successful career of the institution afforded opportunity for well-merited praise.
