AROUND THE STATE.

MATTERS OF INTEREST FROM ALL OVER THE STATE.

Col. Tyrrell, of Jackson, Asked by Gov. Rich to Explain—No More Beer at the State Military Encampments—Several Fatal Accidents—Items.

John E. Tyrrell, of the First Infantry, M. N. G., created something of a sensation a short time ago by announcing that he would grant leaves of absence to all his men who applied for them in order to attend the World's Fair and that he would endeavor to induce the colonels of other regiments to do likewise if the encampment was ordered held at Island Lake as usual. This was a breach of discipline so serious that the military authorities could not possibly overlook it, and Gov. Rich, as commander-in-chief issued an order suspending Col. Tyrrell from duty.

Col. Tyrrell in an interview at his home in Jackson stated that he would appear before the board as ordered and was confident that he could explain matters very satisfactorily; what he said in regard to the matter as a private citizen, and did not think he was accountable for the same to the board. As soon as he was notified that the encampment would be held at Brighton he had nothing to say, but set himself to work to get out as many men for the encampment as possible.

General order No. 3, issued from the office of the adjutant-general contains the following information and instructions in relation to the encampment at Island Lake (Brighton). The encampment will be in charge of Brigadier-General E. W. Brown, and that Col. F. S. Norcross and B. S. Kaufman are detailed as assistant inspectors-general.

The "canteen system" of selling beer by the state is done away with and "attention is directed to section 107 of the military law in reference to the use of intoxicating liquors on the part of the troops, and commanding officers hereby directed to rigidly enforce the same, excluding all liquors from the camp." Substitutes will not be allowed to remain in camp and will not be allowed transportation to camp.

Members of companies answering to names of absent men will if detected, be at once sent to home station with loss of all pay due. Officers violating the foregoing in regard to substitutes will be subject to court-martial and dismissed from the service.

After an interview with Gov. Rich and Adj.-Gen. Eaton Col. Tyrrell made an apology for the apparent breach of discipline as follows: "As a military man I recognize the fact that discipline must be maintained in my power."

This apology was deemed sufficient and an order was issued restoring him to the command of the regiment.

Jackson Business Men Jubilant. The business men and people in general feel jubilant over the fact that George T. Smith purifier business has been resumed and that within a few months the wheels will go round with the old-time activity.

The resignation of P. M. Harwood, professor of agriculture was accepted by the board, and Prof. Clinton D. Smith, director of the Minnesota Agricultural Experiment station, was elected to this position. Prof. Smith is under 40 years of age and a graduate of Cornell university.

Two Fatal Accidents. John Kochinski, aged 10, fell off a box car at Bay City while playing with several boys, and struck on his head and shoulders, breaking his neck and killing him instantly.

Frank Condon, of Bay City, a brakeman on the Michigan Central, had his head crushed between two cars and is dead. Condon had been at work but a few days, taking the place of Chas. Anderson, who was killed the previous week.

Supt. Wood's Successor. Supt. W. H. S. Wood, of the Industrial School for Boys, resigned his position. The resignation was immediately accepted by the board and that body held a meeting and elected J. E. St. John, of Lansing, as Wood's successor. St. John was bookkeeper at the school for about 20 years and lost his job two years ago when the Democratic regime took hold of things.

Fast Freight Wrecked—Engineer Killed. The Chicago fast freight on the Chicago & Northwestern railway was derailed at Wallace, 75 miles south of Ishpeming. The accident was caused by a cow on the track. Engineer Chas. Cook was instantly killed and his fireman was seriously injured that he may not recover. Fourteen cars were also derailed and the contents badly damaged.

Lightning rod agents have been doing the needless farmers around HHS and rods that were only to cost $7 come to $154.

The August race meeting at Sturgis promises to be a big affair. They are now 500 entries and 215 horses already on the ground.

Herman Langkewell, of Muskegon, while driving was thrown from his buggy and received injuries that may result in death.

Kalamazoo has another 100-foot 6-inch drive well, which, with the first one put down, is furnishing 1,000,000 gallons of water per day.

Hudson has raised a fund of 500 to entertain the Michigan and Ohio Band association at their ninth annual reunion in that city, August 17.

William Schroeder, a wealthy and prominent farmer of Galesburg died from injuries received by the breaking of a whiffletree while he was driving.

There is one immigrant at Ishpeming who bids fair to acclimate himself. He arrived one day and the next afternoon was seen learning the mysteries of a new bicycle.

Howard D. Lawrence went into a drug store at Jackson with a female companion. They were after soda water. Lawrence's wife found them there and thrashed them both.

A number of residents of Iron Mountain will drive the 330 miles to Chicago in a "bus" hauled by four horses. They leave Aug. 15 and will advertise their town all along the line.

Menominee's G. A. R. will erect a soldiers' monument. To raise the necessary cash they will raffie off about $3,000 worth of property which has been donated to them for that purpose.

Samuel Edison, of Port Huron, father of the famous electrician, will be 61 years of age in August. He has a little daughter nine years of age and a son-in-law in Michigan can equal his record.

A dog was killed in Manistee by a gas accumulator left over from the Fourth. He ran after it, gobbled it up in his mouth and was about to return with it to the thrower when it exploded and blew off his head.

The ladies of Lansing have inaugurated a movement to organize a voters' union for the purpose of posting themselves on the constitution and the laws relating to woman's suffrage. They propose to be able to vote intelligently next spring.

Frank Stackpole, aged 73 years, has just died in the poor house at Adrian, where he resided with his wife. He was wealthy once and was induced to sign away his property to relatives, who afterward would do nothing for the aged couple.

James Abrams, a prominent and well-to-do farmer, living two miles east of Brighton, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head, dying instantly. The act was committed while he was laboring under the temporary aberration of the mind.

The evidence against Supt. Southern, of the Ironwood water works, who left the city to avoid lynching, points to criminal negligence of the commonest sanitary precautions. When asked to clean the stand pipes, from which dead animals and fish were taken, he is said to have refused.

Hudson wants its pretty sugar-coated Rev. John McLean, pastor of the Baptist church, makes his exit because his views of certain "worldly" games do not coincide with some of his people, and the resignation of Rev. Geo. S. Bradley from the congregational fold is attributed in persistent radical and vehement denunciation of the tobacco and whisky habit.

Charles Cameron, a 4-year-old son of Daniel Cameron, living in Kenosha township, St. Clair county, was burned to death in his father's barn. Charles and his brother Eddie, aged 6, went to sleep in the barn. Eddie awakened to find the barn filled with smoke and flames, and immediately fled. Remembering his little brother he three times re-entered the barn to save him, but was each time driven out, seriously burned. He finally fled exhausted in the open air. He terribly burned and may not recover. Charlie's body was burned to a crisp.

IT COST TWO LIVES.

IONIA HOUSE OF CORRECTION CONVICTS TRY TO ESCAPE.

After a sharp fight the Guards overpowered the Prisoners After Killing One of Them, Fatally Injuring Another and Seriously Wounding Several Others.

In a desperate attempt to escape from the State House of Correction at Ionia, Convict Oscar Millen was instantly killed and William Eagan was mortally wounded. C. E. Jones had his head cracked and several other inmates of the prison were more or less injured in the fight with the guards. None of the 75 or more prisoners who joined in the outbreak escaped, and none of the guards were seriously injured.

The instigators and main participants, also their crimes and terms of sentence, are as follows: William Eagan, sentenced from Grand Rapids, April 15, 1891, for 15 years for manslaughter. Charles Jones, sentenced from Detroit, February 24, 1893, for four years for burglary. Oscar Millen, sentenced from Detroit, June 11, 1890, for seven years for burglary. Michael Lynch, sentenced from Detroit, February 4, 1893, for three years for larceny.

At the time the break was made there were two men at work repairing the east tower, for which several ladders were in use. The prisoners mentioned, left their work in the shops and made for the north wall of the paint shop in charge of the laborers employed by Warden Parsell to repair the tower. The alarm was given and several guards were immediately upon the ground, where a desperate battle was imminent. The prisoners implicated were known as desperate men—placing no value upon human life as compared with liberty—and a break was not a surprise to Warden Parsell.

Leopoldus, whose lives were in great jeopardy during the entire progress of this attempted escape. The prisoners were amply supplied with hammers, wrenches, and various weapons of a deadly nature and used the same freely upon the guards, but it was of no avail for after a severe battle of over 15 minutes the prisoners were overpowered and returned to their cells.

Oscar Millen was killed outright, being shot through the heart by Constable Mitchell when he was going up a ladder. Charles Jones lies at the point of death, receiving a blow on the right temple, leaving him unconscious from congestion of the brain. Smith, Eagan and Lynch were badly wounded. Eagan's leg was broken and he was immediately placed in solitary confinement and will be severely punished; will hereafter wear stripes, also carry a 75-pound ball with chain. The prisoners mentioned were the instigators of the daring plot, but it is estimated that there were at least 300 prisoners in the yard at the time, who had quit work, intending to join the leaders, and it is a wonder that the affair terminated without great loss of life to both officers and inmates.

A MAGNIFICENT NERVE. A Grand Rapid Young Man Lays Plans to Forge $500,000.

The biggest success in the matter of forgeries which has ever occurred at Port Huron has been unearthed, the result of which is that Leon S. Smith, of Grand Rapids, is in jail for passing nearly $4,000 worth of forged paper. The victims are the banks of Flint and Grand Rapids. Had it not been for the sharp detective work the forger might have been on his way to Europe with half a million dollars in cold cash.

He arrived at Port Huron last week and passed a forged check upon the Commercial bank. This was discovered, but the matter was smoothed over. He then went to Flint, where he was well-known, and passed a draft on the Commercial National bank of New York for $500,000.

He returned to Port Huron and returned to St. Clair with three Port Huron girls and had in his possession $4,200 in money and paper sufficient to have forged $500,000. Smith had secured his blanks by ordering them from Calvert Lithographic company, of Detroit, by pretending they were for a bank. Had the jobs at Port Huron been successful he would have secured passports, then worked New York and Boston banks and sailed for Europe with the proceeds. He is only 21 years of age.

The spectacle of death, became more awful as the minutes passed and minutes seemed almost ages in length as the fire crept swiftly up to where the remaining firemen were huddled together. Before it reached them, the awful crash came. The tower toppled for a moment as though uncertain which way to fall. Then, slowly at first, it began to fall until it came down with a thundering roar. The fire had eaten away the supports at the base and the whole mass was swayed up in the awful roaring furnace. As the greedy flames gathered in the fresh victims, they rolled up toward the sky with redoubled ferocity.

Lightning and Powder. Lightning struck the powder magazine of Van Dusen Bros., near Kingsford, N. Y. The magazine contained 55 kegs of powder, which exploded, blowing the building to pieces. The force of the explosion also destroyed two houses near by. In one of these Anthony Prussack and his family lived up stairs and John Conway and his wife and children down stairs. When the building collapsed all were buried in the debris and badly bruised and hurt. Mrs. George Sewalski was severely injured by the collapse of the house, the others of her family escaping. Nine persons in all were injured, none of them fatally.

Crushed Under a Load of Logs. Gust Carlson and a man named Decker were transporting a tram car on trucks with two teams near Whitehall and when close to the edge of a hill the earth gave way and the load toppled over. Carlson was caught under the load and instantly killed while Decker received serious injuries.

Nicaragua Minister Recalled. Dr. Guzman, the Nicaraguan minister, called upon Secretary Gresham and presented his letters of recall. He has communicated to the department of state the fact that the Nicaraguan government has abolished its legations here and in Europe, and in fact in all save a few countries in South and Central America. This action is understood to be based on economical considerations.

Tried to Suicide Because of Jealousy. George A. Kirby, a farmer living at Tompkins Center, attempted to commit suicide by cutting his throat. His young wife left him and he saw her with a man named Looney and afterward caught by Henry and George Looney with a gun, which they took from him. Kirby is 42 years old. He is expected to recover.

Ernest Eggert, of Saginaw, won the naval cadetship after a competitive examination in that city. Robert C. McKay, of Caro, was named as alternate.

MOLITOR'S MURDERERS.

Three More Conspirators Found Guilty at Alpena—After 18 Years.

Alpena special: Vogler, Fuhrman and Jacobs are guilty of the murder of Albert Molitor. It took the jury three hours to reach a verdict of murder in the first degree. This makes four men convicted; Grossman having been sent to Jackson for life last January.

Albert Molitor, a merchant at Rogers City and a clerk of his named Sullivan, were murdered on the evening of Aug. 23, 1875. There were many theories and suspicions as to who were the murderers, but nothing definite was ever learned until Wm. Repke, a farmer, living in Moltke township, Presque Isle county, becoming conscience stricken after 16 years of silence, went to the prosecuting attorney of Presque Isle county at Rogers City during the last days of July in 1891, and confessed that he and 16 other men, then working in and about Rogers City, entered into a conspiracy to kill Molitor and Frederick Dennis Jarke, but that while they succeeded in shooting Molitor, they made a mistake as to Jarke and killed Sullivan in his stead. Repke gave the names of such of the other murderers as he recollected. Some of them had moved away and two were dead, but nearly all of those remaining in this section of the county had become prominent and leading citizens, and the confession of Repke accordingly caused a tremendous sensation. Warrants were at once issued and the prosecution of the murderers began with the results as shown above of four convictions.

VIOLATED HEALTH LAWS. Several "Soo" R. K. Employees Arrested on Complaint of the State Health Board.

Dr. Baker and Prof. Fall of the state board of health were at Sault Ste. Marie investigating reported laxity in the observance of health board rules and as a result General Agent E. B. Finch, yardmaster, Chicago & North Western, Thomas Corley, conductor, Arthur Sharpe, and engineer, Phineas Bailey, all employees of the "Soo" line were placed under arrest on the complaint of local state health inspector, Dr. C. J. Smith, on a charge of wilfully violating the rules of the state board of health. The men were immediately bailed out. The penalty upon conviction is $100 fine or 90 days imprisonment or both in the discretion of the court.

The company claims that it is being discriminated against and is being treated in an unwarranted manner, and that the rules of the state board exceed the authority vested in it by the health law. The company's attorney will apply for an injunction to restrain the health officers from further interference, and claim that the health officers are not obeying the orders of the national health board that is enough. The cases will test the state's power in the matter.

The Caravels at Chicago. The Santa Marie, the Pinta and the Nina, the famous reproductions of Columbus' fleet have reached Chicago after a long journey across the Atlantic and through the great lakes. Amid the booming of cannon, the waving of a multitude of flags and the shouts of a hundred thousand people the Spanish caravels were welcomed to the World's Fair grounds. The welcome was a cosmopolitan one. They were slowly towed into port by that ancient relic of the United States navy, the revenue cutter Michigan with an escort of half a hundred or more gallantly decorated steamers, and the crews of the boats, and as the historic trio hove to, and cast anchor there was a boom of cannon and blowing of whistles and clanging of bells intermingled with the shouts of the multitude along the shore. When the uproar had ceased the sturdy officers of the revenue cutter, manned the caravels were taken on shore, where they were met by a guard of honor and bands of music. The Spanish officers were escorted to the grand stand near the terminal station and reviewed the grand provision of national representatives on "Pinta" and "Nina" as it passed. President Palmer of the national commission rapped the vast assemblage to order and Senator Sherman made an address which was responded to by Capt. Conner, of the fleet. Hon. H. A. Herbert, secretary of the navy spoke and was followed by Mayor Harrison and Hon. Fred Douglass.

A New Enterprise Burned Out. Flames were discovered issuing from the roof of the J. L. Stevenson Carriage Company's factory in Port Huron. The building was an old wooden one, and the wood was soaked with oil. The blaze gained rapid headway, and before the firemen could reach the scene the building was wrapped in flames. Assistance was out of the question and the building, together with the office which joins it, was burned to the ground.

The loss is complete and will amount to about $25,000. Insurance on building, $2,000; on contents, $5,000. About 25 hands were employed there. The building was new, only having started this spring. It was an outgrowth of the Anderson & Company failure last fall.

A Sailor Saved the Ship. London cable: The saving of the wrecked Camperdown, which collided with the Victoria, is said to have been due to the presence of mind shown by a Maltese stoker. Although off duty at the time of the collision, he voluntarily ran below and closed the watertight doors. Before he had completed the task the water was up to his neck. The admiralty will promote the stoker and grant him a life pension in case this story of his coolness and bravery be confirmed.

Lighting struck the powder magazine of Van Dusen Bros., near Kingsford, N. Y. The magazine contained 55 kegs of powder, which exploded, blowing the building to pieces. The force of the explosion also destroyed two houses near by. In one of these Anthony Prussack and his family lived up stairs and John Conway and his wife and children down stairs. When the building collapsed all were buried in the debris and badly bruised and hurt. Mrs. George Sewalski was severely injured by the collapse of the house, the others of her family escaping. NEW YORK has an infant prodigy of 8 years who has been expounding the gospel for twelve months. Boy preachers have been known before but baby preachers are new. The suggestion that the phenomenon be spanked and put to bed is thrown out for what it is worth, and it is worth more than the parents seem to realize.

JACK the ripper has begun his infernal work again. It is hard to believe that a monster such as he must be can exist in human form. It would be comforting to our human nature if we could believe that these atrocities were perpetrated by an orang-outang, as the "Murders in the Rue Morgue" in Poe's tale were committed.

HERMANN, the prestidigitateur, testifies in court that the performers on Wall street made seventy-five thousand of his good dollars disappear last year and all his skill failed to make them return to his pockets. The animals and things he is wont to pull out of plug holes are not in it with the bulls and bears of the Wall street breed.

MEMBERS of the Italian chamber of deputies, stopped legislation long enough to bawl vociferous opinions that the premier was a coward and a liar. The premier in return shook a parliamentary fist to emphasize an allegation that they were not gentlemen. Then the ship of state belled her sails and floated on. Legislators seem alike the world over.

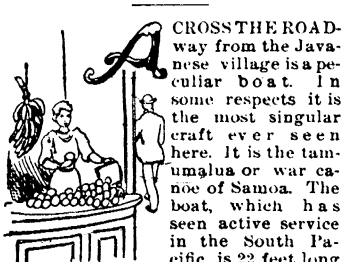

If any man is kept down by inexorable poverty, if he suffers the daily pangs of destitution, if chill penury represses his noble rage and freezes the genial current of his soul, he need not despair. Let him raise a set of whiskers. They are worth $10,000 to him. At any rate, that is what Mr. Moses King is expected to pay for appropriating another man's beard.

THE immigration which most threatens the American people now is not so much that landed at the regular American ports, but that stealthily landed on American shores by so-called tramp steamers. If this danger grows, as some New York papers would have the country believe it is bound to grow under the present restriction laws, possibly the new American cruisers will have a little patrol duty to perform. The penalty against the nefarious business threatened should be enforced even to the heroic degree.

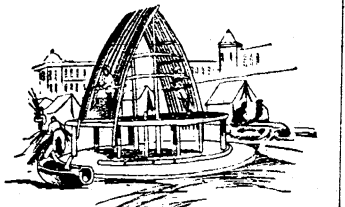

HERBERT SPENCER in his latest book makes a plea against giving money to organ grinders. It is rather a sharp descent to come down from the philosophy of the unknowable to organ grinders, and the fact remains, in spite of philosophy, that if a man is pleased by an organ grinder it is a fair and square thing for him to drop a nickel in his hat. If he is displeased the cheapest thing he can do is to pay him a half dollar, to go away. There are more things in heaven and earth, Herbert, than are ever dreamed of in your philosophy.

A GLANCE AT THE CUSTOMS OF THE SAMOANS.

Objects of Interest Seen in the Samoa Village in Midway Playhouse—A Ship of War—A South Sea Palace—Interesting and Instructive.

CROSS THE ROAD—way from the Java village is a peculiar boat. In some respects it is the most singular craft ever seen here. It is the tamulua or war canoe of Samoa. The boat, which has been active service in the South Pacific, is 22 feet long and 5 feet of beam, and not a scrap of iron enters into its construction. It is made of 18000 wood, a native timber of dark reddish hue, capable of taking a high polish. The boards are put together in a peculiar way. They are joined with fiber twine, and the work is so well done that there is no leakage. It requires twenty-two men to row the boat, and in addition to these it will hold thirty-three warriors. To help the oar-men a square sail, made of matting is used. It is held aloft by a mast, but thongs are fastened to the four corners and to the boat, in this manner the pulling is done. The figure-head is the carving of a god in which the Samoans believed many years ago. It is the god of sea-going people and is represented as on the lookout for rocks and shoal water. The warriors are armed with bows and arrows and axes and the sides of the boat show the marks of numerous conflicts. The oars are remarkably heavy, long sweeps. Near the boat is the long, a sort of bell. It is like a trough hollowed out of a log, about four feet long and set up on pegs. In the hollow is a piece of wood, which gives out a ringing sound that can be heard a considerable distance. A lighted torch can also be seen. It is provided with outriggers and is like the improved racing machine of today.

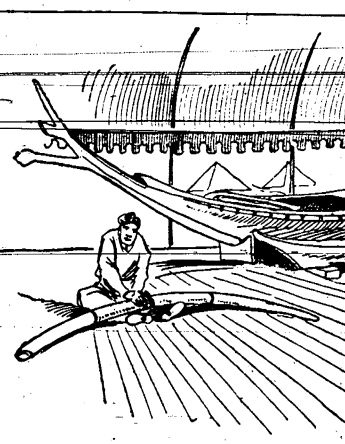

BUILDING A SOUTH SEA ISLAND HUT. The natives want to call their house a considerable distance. A lighted torch can also be seen. It is provided with outriggers and is like the improved racing machine of today.

In front of the entrance is erected a Samoan house. It is the property of Mataafa, the deposed ruler. It was brought from the little settlement of Malie, several miles from Apia, and is most wonderfully constructed. In shape it is circular. It is upright to the height of five feet and then slopes to a tent-like point thirty feet above the ground. It is made entirely of bread-fruit wood, the only wood that the white ants, which overrun the island, will not eat. A house built of any other material would be eaten up in a month by the pests. The uprights are made of pieces about four inches in diameter. At intervals of four feet a circle is made of the same material. The pieces of wood are all short and are joined and bound together by thongs. The roofing is made of twigs and covered with thatch. The house was used by Mataafa and his father and is said to be very old.

The Samoans themselves are the oldest race of the south seas. They are tall, sturdy and very intelligent. They are Catholics now, but about four centuries ago they held the Mohammedan belief. About the only practice of the settlement which has a tinge of barbarism is the native dance. It is Fijian in origin and is supposed to have been danced for a thousand years. It had its foundation in the stormy war times of the early times when the different tribes who occupied the island were at enmity. The dance is accompanied by a chant and chorus. The chant describes the different stages of a war expedition from the time it leaves home until the return, and at the end of each stage the warriors all join in the chorus. The music, if such it can be called, is peculiar. At times it is almost dream-like. Again it resembles the wail of the Scottish highlanders funeral song. There are moments when it is dignified and moments when it is wild, fierce, barbaric. The rowing of the boat, throwing the lances, rushing through the waves, the heat of battle and mourning for the dead are told in song and in pantomime and this pantomime is the dance. They have other dances of a much more cheerful nature, such as accompany a marriage, but they are of comparatively modern origin.

The home dress of these people is very scanty. It consists of nothing more than a wide strip of tapa cloth about the loins. Tapa is made by the natives and is a product of the bark of the mulberry tree. Strips of the bark 1 1/2 inches thick, 2 feet long and 4 inches wide are stripped from the tree. These are taken to the river, where women and girls submerge them to a crude process of tanning by soaking in a small water boat and the bark is scraped by a rough shell, leaving the inner bark. This leaves it a pulpy substance. The small strips are overlapped and the edges pounded together until a piece is made the required size. To color the cloth in designs a piece made of a half-oval board of pau wood, over which colors made of native barks and roots have been smeared. The prepared cloth is spread over this and the print is made. All kinds of designs are used and the drawing is very crude, but the printing is done with geometric accuracy, although the eye only is used.

H. J. Moore of Apia, who is the candidate of Mataafa and who will in all probability be his prime minister if he returns to power at the next election. A theater being built and performances will be given of the state of the colony consists of 300 warriors and dancers of both sexes.

Cupid is beginning to make his presence known in the playhouse. Within a week a Samoan has fallen in love over head in love with a Norwegian girl in the beauty show, the priest in Cairo Street is languishing because an American cash-girl was sent away after he had given his heart to her, and a German had an experience he will not soon forget. His name is Carl Meinen, and in the land of his birth he is called Herr Baron. At present he is employed in serving beer and Frankfurt sausages in a restaurant where he can hear the lions roar while going through their performance. A week ago he went to the Chinese theater. In the play a poor, down-trodden celestial, fleeing from an unjust death, about to end his life, when the beautiful daughter of the King saves him and weds him. It was at the first sight of this daughter that Cupid began to work. His aim was true. The server of sausages was smitten. His attention to the customers was redoubled, for tips were necessary. It costs 25 cents to see the beautiful daughter of the King. Carl saw every performance and his heart beat harder and harder. On Sunday he found out the name of the girl, Wong Pang. To hang around the stage door was useless, for the Chinese lived in the building. Besides it was a waste of time, for tips had to be earned. The next best thing to do was to write a letter. He did it. It was an impassioned screed and told of the great love he had. The letter was delivered and the trembling Carl sat in front awaiting some sign. It came. Manager Sling touched him on the shoulder and told him to follow. Once in the coveted presence, Wong Pang informed the love-struck Teuton of an ability to "talk English like Melican man," to which Carl replied with a heart-crushing smile: "Has ist zehr gut." Those were the last words he spoke in the theater. His dignity had been sitting, but now, pulled off the wig of the beautiful daughter and let down a long cue. Wong Pang is a man, and because they don't have women on the stage in China he impersonates one. Carl served sausages the rest of the day in a very dejected manner. He gave one customer an attack of heart disease by declining a tip. His hope in life is gone.

THE SULTAN'S LOSS.

Constantinople Is in Mourning Over the Recent Disaster.

The Sultan of Turkey lost a bouquet of the fairest flowers of his seraglio by the recent sinking of his yacht, which collided with a steamer while on her way to one of His Majesty's country palaces. The lost beauties, some thirty in number, were among the choicest bits of the harem and were specially selected to beguile the Sultan's idleness. Only the Sultan's religious devotion preserved him from the fate that befell his favorites. Before setting out to join his collection of pulchritude the Ottoman ruler was warned by the kiosk of the old seraglio to worship the mantle of Mohammed, the mantle of Mohammed, the mantle of Mohammed. After his devotion he ate his evening meal and left by a land route for the Yildiz kiosk, where the girls were to await his arrival. When he reached there he met the news of their tragic misadventure. The Sultan is said to have taken the affair very much to heart.

The Iron Chancellor's Tender Side.

There is always something fascinating about women in letters written by noted men. It is a little vein of the mother Eve in them all, perhaps. Fancy, then, the stern old Iron Chancellor writing like this to his wife, after the manner of wives, she is a wife to her mother. "I feel as I should," writes Bismarck, "on a fine September day gazing on the serene and yellow leaves of the trees. I am well and cheerful enough, with just a suspicion of homesickness, and the it within me a longing for forest, lake and plain; you and the children—all mixed up together with Beethoven and sunset."

LESSON III.—JULY 16—PAUL AT ATHENS.

Golden Text: God is a Spirit, and They That Worship Him Must Worship Him in Spirit and in Truth—Acts xviii:28-31.

S. Day of Judgment. Matt. xxv. 31-46.

Introductory.—Our last lesson left Paul in a Roman jail at Philippi. The present one shows him to us as standing on Mars Hill at Athens. Between that and this many things of unusual interest happened to him. To keep up the thread of the story it is only necessary to read the Acts consecutively.

1. Finding a Text, vs. 22-23.—"Mars Hill." The English translation of the Greek word "Areopagus." It is an eminence standing to the west of the Acropolis in the city of Athens. "Ye men of Athens." A formal and courtly introduction. "I perceive." From what I have seen and heard in your city. "That ye are too superstitious." The Revised Version softens this to "somewhat superstitious."

2. "As I passed by." Walking up and down the streets, "Devotions." Objects of devotion, such as statues and altars. The city was crowded with them. "To the unknown God." Better. "To an unknown God." That no deity might punish them for neglecting his worship, they erected an altar to any god or power unknown to them, besides altars to their numerous gods. "Whom therefore ye ignorantly worship." Whom ye worship without knowing just who or what he is. "Him declare I unto you." Making known his nature, revealing his attributes.

11. Preaching a Sermon, vs. 24-31.—"God that made the world." The Greeks looked on matter as eternal, and, therefore, had no conception of creation. "Dwelteth not in temples made with hands." His majesty is not confined in such narrow spaces; he is there, but not there alone.

12. "Neither is worshiped with men's hands." The word "worshiped" should be "served." God is not dependent on human service. "As though He needed anything." How can He who has all things stand in need of any gift that we can offer?

13. "Hath made of one blood all nations of men." Even if we follow the Revised Version in dropping the word "blood" out of the verse, it still teaches most clearly the doctrine of the unity of the human race. "Determined the times . . . and the bounds." Divine Providence fixes the periods and the places of the different nations of men.

14. "That they should seek the Lord." The quest for God is the chief vocation of men. God intended that they should seek for him. "If haply they might feel after him." Even though their search be no more intelligent than the groping movements of a blind man. "Though he be not far from every one of us." After all, God is close to the human soul.

15. "In him we live," etc. He wraps us around with his presence, just as the atmosphere does. "Certain also of your own poets." Aratus and Cleanthes. "We are also his offspring." And therefore, like him in nature. There is no chasm between him and us.

16. "Forasmuch then as we are the offspring of God, we ought not to think," etc. If God's children have life, intelligence and conscience, it is not reasonable to suppose that God himself is like any dead and senseless image that human art has wrought out from materials of stone or silver or gold. The father must be not less, but greater than the offspring.

17. "God winked at." Overlooked, did not note for punishment. "But now." In the present dispensation. "Commandeth all men everywhere." There is no exception. "To repent." To turn away from such idolatrous folly.

A WOMAN'S RUSE.

One Way of Making a Husband Promise to Love Forever.

At last a realization of the truth forced itself upon her unwilling mind. Her husband's love for her was waning.

They had been married six months now and in the rush of a fin-de-siècle generation it was not to be expected that an affection would longer endure without a new stimulus, says the Detroit Tribune.

With a woman's tact she cried herself sick four times and hit upon an expedient.

"I have it," she insisted to herself and beamed radiantly.

At 7:57 o'clock upon the following morning she awakened from a troubled sleep.

Her husband still slumbered.

She crept from the couch, braced herself for the mighty effort and sprang forward with a wild cry.

It was done.

The man whom she adored was shut in the folding bed.

She stood with clasped hands and suffused eyes.

"Will you—"

It was with difficulty that she controlled her voice.

"—always love me?"

The bed trembled.

The words sounded far away.

"—out."

A HOUSE TO LET.

Clever Scheme of a Little Woman—Her Formula to Renters.

"If you can't pay your rent more promptly, out you go," the hard unfeeling landlord said, and to verify the words he tacked up a card in front of the house, a card he always kept ready for emergencies, says the Detroit Free Press, and which he had brought with him.

"We've lived here five years and you haven't lost a dollar by us. When George comes home he'll have the money," said the little woman, who, with her small family, occupied the house.

"I want my money when it's due, not two weeks afterward," reiterated the landlord. "I'm losing flesh and turning gray trying to collect my rents," and he shuffled off.

"It's dead meat," said the little woman; "he's a shark, that's what he is. I'd like to see him get me out when I pay rent regularly—if it ain't just to the minute."

Then she sat down and formulated a little woman's plan of action, which is always victorious.

Ting-a-ling-a-ling at the door bell.

"This house to let?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"Can I go through it?"

"Certainly; walk right in."

Then the little woman opened a door.

"This is the parlor. It's new-papered twice a day; it's new-carpeted on the dampness."

"Oh, is that so? Is that why you are moving?"

"Here's a bedroom off—very convenient. When the children had the scarlet fever, I used this room for them."

"You don't mean to say you've had scarlet fever?"

"It was very light. They were much worse off with the measles. Come upstairs, ma'am. Are you afraid of typhoid?"

"Good gracious, let me out! I wouldn't have the house as a gift!"

"Oh, there is no danger. It is a very convenient house if it isn't healthy. There's an undertaker in the next block and the doctor lives next door. His bell keeps us awake all night."

She repeated this formula a hundred times a day; until renters shunned the house as a plague spot, and the puzzled landlord tore down the card and renewed the lease.

INFINITE VARIETY OF INDIA.

England's Possession Furnishes All Sorts of Interesting Material.

The grand difficulty of talking to an Englishman about India is that he always forms a picture of the place in his mind. It may be accurate or inaccurate, but it is always a picture. He thinks of it either as a green delta or a series of sun-baked plains, or a wild region with jungle and river and farms all intermixed, or a vast park stretched out by nature for sportsmen, and sloping somehow at the edges toward highly cultivated plains. It never occurs to him, says the Spectator, that as regards external aspect there is no India; that the peninsula as called is as large as Europe west of the Vistula, and presents as many variations of scenery. East Anglia is not so different from Italy as the northwest provinces from Bengal, nor are the Landes so unlike Normandy as the Punjab is unlike the hunting districts of Madras. There is every scene in India, from the eternal snow of the Himalayas, as much above Mont Blanc as Mont Blanc is above Geneva, to the rice swamps of Bengal, all buried in fruit trees; from the wonderful valleys of the Vindhya, where beauty and fertility seem to struggle consciously for the favor of man, to the God-forgotten salt marshes by the Runn of Cutch. It is the same with indigenous Indian society. The Englishman thinks of it as an innumerable crowd of timid peasants, easily taxed and governed by a few officials, or as a population full of luxurious princes, with difficulty restrained by scientific forces and careful division from eating up each other. In reality, Indian society is more complex and varied than that of Europe, comprising, it is true, a huge mass of peasant proprietors, but yet full of princes who are survivors of land lords who are in all respects great nobles and landlords who are only squires, of merchants like the Baring, of professors and professionals, of adventurers and criminals, of cities full of artificers and of savages far below the dark citizens of Hawaii.

BRIGHT RAYS OF SUNSHINE.

Brief Items of News to and About our May Village.

The days begin to lengthen.

Holt shipped a car-load of bran to Philadelphia on Tuesday.

Attention is called to the mortgage foreclosure in another column.

Any person who has a disposition to work can find employment now.

A considerable amount of hay seems to be dragged to the village this season.

Huckleberries, strawberries, raspberries, cherries and currants are in market.

There is a call for mechanics and laboring men of all classes now, at good wages.

As soon as the small boy and green apple get together there will be cramped times.

Volume 41, part three of the official records of the war of the rebellion has been received.

The ladies' society of the baptist church will meet at the church next Thursday afternoon, July 20th.

Umbrellamenders and jack-knifesharpeners are numerous, but organ-grinders about the town this season.

Robison & Koebbe are out with a new advertisement announcing a cut in prices on all light-weight clothing.

In another column will be found a probate notice in the estate of the late Edward Powell of Bridgewater.

Physicians are taking an inventory of stock preparatory to the opening of the cucumber and watermelon season.

Administrator Waters of the Enfield Antcliff estate is preparing to make his final account. See notice elsewhere.

There will be a special communication of Manchester Lodge F. & A. M. on Monday evening July 17, for work in the first degree.

Orttenburger & Co. have made a change in the grocery and crockery department of their store, having changed sides with the two lines.

It is seldom that our citizens are privileged to eat strawberry shortcake on the 12th of July, but the season has been favorable this year.

Parties going to the world's fair or anywhere else should have a supply of address cards with them. The ENTERPRISE office can furnish the correct thing.

People have queer estimates of dogs. If a person is bitten, it is always by a "worthless cur," while it is invariably a "valuable dog" that gets poisoned.

Farmers try to make us believe there is no money in agricultural pursuits, yet our townsman Mart Wallace's shirt bosom is made radiant by an expensive diamond.

No doubt many of our readers have some school books they do not care to keep. If so, they should read George J. Haussler's advertisement in another column.

We learn that Wm. Buttrick has succeeded in disposing of all the property he purchased of the Antcliff estate, except a few village lots, and he has an opportunity to sell them.

We have just gotten out some new style tablets and baronial envelopes to match. First class and low price at the ENTERPRISE office. Sample sent on receipt of 2 cent stamp.

Considerable excitement is evident among the G. A. R. here owing to the fact that H. H. Fellows has received a notice to show cause why his pension should not be discontinued.

John Kensler has bought a large stock of crockery of all grades and as he will offer it at low prices, the same as all his goods, our readers will have no occasion to go out of town to buy crockery.

The Fayette Normal University has a novel and attractive advertisement in another column. If you think of attending a normal or college, you should write for a souvenir and catalogue of this institution.

On Monday evening, while returning from Bridgewater one of the brewery teams, driven by John Hauser, became unmanageable and ran away, landing the whole outfit in a ditch. The driver was unhurt but the wagon was wrecked.

We learn that there has been considerable complaint this season of people having plants stolen from oak grove cemetery. A watch should be put over the place and the person detected in taking plants or flowers from graves should be severely dealt with.

We have not seen the new comet, but the Free Press says that it can be seen quite plainly by the naked eye. It is just below the great dipper and presents the appearance of a hazy star midway between the two pair of small stars under the dipper. The tail is straight and points toward the dipper.

We are preparing to open a new subscription book, our old one being filled and we wish every subscriber to report to us at once, if there is any mistake in the account as noted on their paper this week. We would also be pleased to have any and all subscribers whose subscriptions have expired about to expire, pay for another year. Send us a new subscription, it will be appreciated.

Mr. & Mrs. Marshal Fisk visited their daughters in Jackson over Sunday.

The Townsend family drove over to Ann Arbor yesterday to visit friends.

Mrs. M. A. Denison left on Monday for a visit with friends at Whiteboro, N. Y.

A son and daughter of Henry Bollinger of Jackson are visiting their grandparents Mr. & Mrs. Fisk.

Cap. Edgar, the refrigerator maker, returned here last Thursday and will remain for some time.

Mrs. E. B. Norris and daughter Belle of Ann Arbor have been visiting friends in town the past week.

Miss Ida Aichele took the train Tuesday night for Chicago to visit her brother Fred and the world's fair.

Mr. & Mrs. W. S. Culver, Miss Howland and Mr. Ferris of Brooklyn visited at B. W. Amsten's on Sunday.

Misses Batha, Marie and Julia Kirchofer started for the world's fair this morning. They will also visit relatives in Chicago.

Prof. & Mrs. Robinson of Newark, N. Y. and Mr. & Mrs. F. Engeler of Bluffton, Ind. came here last week to visit Mr. & Mrs. T. W. Hunt.

We learn that Frank McLean has been promoted to the dispatcher's office at Elkhart, Ind. This will be good news to his friends here.

Thos. Farrell's daughters wrote their father that they saw the fire in which so many firemen lost their lives, on the world's fair grounds.

George Unterkircher of Mandan, South Dakota, arrived in town this morning to make his father and friends a visit. He has been away 11 years.

Mr. Knickerbocker of Jackson was in town a few days ago consulting with Mr. Holt. He wishes to manufacture and sell Mr. Holt's latest invention.

Dr. Kapp went to Ann Arbor last Thursday to see his cousin, Frank Kapp, who had his leg blown off by the explosion of a cannon, on the 4th.

Amos Dickerson of Ypsilanti is in town. He has removed his household goods here and expects Mrs. Dickerson to come as soon as her health will permit.

Frank Cantrick, the Lake Shore ticket agent at Adrian, came here last Friday and remained over Sunday visiting his family, who are visiting at H. Townsend's.

Mr. & Mrs. John Kramer took the train this afternoon for Chicago where they will spend a few days and then proceed to Kansas City and from there to their home, Ottawa, Kan.

We notice by the Daily Review of Manhattan that our townsman Frank S. Cooklin, who has had charge of the cigar and news stand in the Southpaugh, is now night clerk in the same house. We are glad to see him succeed.

Among the old gentlemen of the village and township are Andrew Bailey aged 86, Elijah Carr, 84; Fred Valentine, 83; Lorenzo Coon, 82; Wm. Baxter, 82; James Henderson, 81; E. M. Tracy, 83; John Smalley, 88; A. S. Perry, 83; Thomas Green, 86, and Charles Clark, 83.

While at Wampler's lake last Saturday we saw Roy Flemming, the young balloonist, who made the ascension on the 4th and was injured in making the drop, as mentioned in the ENTERPRISE of last week. He sprained his ankle and had been confined to his bed since the accident but was able to hobble about and expected to return to Jackson on Monday. He was attended by Robert Griffith, son of the veteran Dan Griffith of Jackson. The young men are press feeders in the Citizens office and did the balloon act as a recreation. Fleming claims to have made five ascensions and is anxious to make one at the Wampler's lake picnic in August to show the people that he can make a good ascension and parachute drop under favorable circumstances.

The hearts of many of our citizens are saddened, indeed, a gloom is cast over the entire community on account of the sudden and unexpected death of Mrs. W. H. Henion, which occurred yesterday morning. She was a woman of excellent attainments, possessing a lovable disposition. She was a member of the Methodist church and a lover of good society. As an entertainer she could not be excelled. She leaves a large circle of friends to sympathize with the sorrowing husband and children. Her sister and husband, Dr. Potts of Lima, Ohio, arrived here last night. Her father, Henry Martin of Jackson, is at the world's fair, but is expected here tomorrow morning. The funeral will be from the house, four miles west of the village Friday afternoon.

Rev. Eichbaum, rector of the episcopal church at Brooklyn, has made the hearts of the episcopals of this village glad by offering to come here and hold services and preach on Sunday evening July 16th and 31st. The universalists have very kindly offered the use of their church at any convenient time and it is confidently expected that episcopal services can be held quite regularly. The ENTERPRISE is requested to state that an invitation is extended to all classes to come and take part in the services. Books will be furnished in abundance. Mrs. Cook and the Brooklyn church choir will be here on Sunday evening. Services will begin at 7 o'clock Amsten's time.

The postage stamp conundrum is going the rounds. A young lady entered the post-office, handed in the dollar bill and said she wanted twice as many twos as ones and the balance in threes. The clerk smilingly started in off hand to count out the stamps, grew perplexed, commenced figuring, and figured until he got red in the face, when then the young lady politely informed him she was in no hurry, that he could figure it out and she would return the next day for the stamps. Now who can figure out the problem how many stamps were given the young lady by the clerk when she called the next day? Send answers to the ENTERPRISE before next Wednesday noon.

Some Fine Dentistry Performed by Dr. E. Hunter.

Citizen: "Do dentists ever take their own medicine?" was asked of Dr. E. Hunter, the dentist, who was engaged in working upon his own teeth, in his office over Glasgow Bros. & Dack's.

"Do they? Just let me show you something in the way of dentistry."

The doctor turned himself around in his chair and, leaning back, showed the Citizen the root of his mouth. At first it looked as though the doctor had been more fortunate than common folks, and had been born with a complete set of gold teeth. Upon close inspection it could be seen that the doctor's upper set of teeth was an expert piece of crown and bridge work. He then exhibited the plate showing the condition of his teeth before he commenced. He had but four teeth—mere roots—and from these he had made himself a perfect set of upper teeth. The old ones were crowned and when the teeth had been extracted porcelain teeth were put in their place. The doctor stated that he had done every bit of the work himself. It is a wonderful piece of workmanship, and if the doctor can do such expert work in his own mouth he surely can in others, where he can work to better advantage.

Lenawee County

Laboring men claim it costs more to live in Adrian than it does in other places.

The state teachers institute for Lenawee county will be held at Adrian Monday Aug. 4th at 10 o'clock a. m.

Adrian commandery K. T. with the first infantry band, will go to Sand Lake August 23, for a four days' encampment.

Frank Stackpole was wealthy once but was induced to sign away his property to relatives who afterwards refused to support him and he was sent to the Lenawee county house where he died, aged 73 years.

If Adrian had more men like ex-alderman Lawrence, it might grow. His latest move is to secure the Ohio university polytechnic, now located at Tiffin. They want more room and Lawrence park has been offered. The institution gives employment to 100 hands.

As John Orr of Tecumseh was struggling through the dense crowd on west Main-street, Adrian, circus day, he suddenly felt a hand placed on his vest pocket. He looked down and saw his job dangling out of his pocket and his watch was gone. Mr. Orr had no idea who snatched his watch. It was worth $40.

Workmen digging a cistern on the lot of John Somerville, at the corner of Main and Sarah streets, made a rather unique discovery Friday. They evidently struck the roadbed of the old Erie & Kalamazoo track. Mudslits with stringers, to which were fastened the old-fashioned strap rails, were found about five feet below the surface.—Adrian Times.

W. A. Stevens, the Chicago traveling man who got drunk and fell down stairs at Adrian a few weeks ago and then claimed to have been robbed by two young toughs, has gone home to recruit. The mother of one of the boys brought suit against him for selling liquor to a minor and he gave bonds for his appearance in August.

William H. Waldbey, wife and daughter of Adrian were thrown from a carriage by the team becoming frightened at bicyclists. Mr. Waldbey had an arm broken, his wrist dislocated and his left leg severely injured. Mrs. Waldbey suffered a broken leg, dislocated ankle, sprained back, and is considered very badly injured. Their daughter escaped unhurt.

One of the heavily loaded pole wagons of the Forepaugh show broke through the ground over a water main on Dennis St., while on its way to the freight house, and nearly two hours were consumed in extricating it, and this was only accomplished after it had been jacked up and 20 horses strained themselves to pull the ponderous wagon out of the slump. At one time two elephants were brought into requisition in an effort to assist the horses by pushing the wagon from the rear.—Adrian Times.
