Bradstreet's annual trade review is a fine New Year's card for Uncle Sam.

Secretary Ross's report has completely silenced the 13-inch Gathmann gun.

Paris, Mo., ran out of whisky and water the other day. The water was mined.

Uncle Sam employs 400 pedagogues to teach the young Filipino idea how not to shoot.

Nature seems to have decided upon Wyoming as the site of its principal factory this year.

Mr. Marconi has gone into the predicting business. This is bad. He should keep on inventing.

The Chicago judge who has decided that $25 is enough to marry on can't have any daughters of his own.

Owing to the high price of paper the men who devour books are the most extravagant livers in the country.

The whole country will be glad to join in the celebration of Edward Everett Hale's eightieth birthday, April 3.

The case of the defendant Los Angeles bank cashier is said to be "unusual," and this is said at least in the papers.

In after years some Washington natives will be able to say that they were punished by a son of President Roosevelt.

There is still room for the fool-killer to get busy with the fellow who yells "fire" in a crowded hall every time he hears an unusual noise.

A New York dog has $250 worth of dental work in its mouth, being done by a dentist in the city, has a very hasty road for instant action.

The announcement of the death of a button collector serves to remind us of the rapid multiplication of occupations in these days of diversified effort.

Mr. Constant, the French minister to Turkey, is said to be quite angry with the autarky agents. They have quit playing in each others' back yard.

Mr. Fitzhugh Carr Stanton has diverted the feminine mind from the popular subject of cook books by concocting a recipe for growing old gracefully.

Complaints are made of an inadequate supply of seats at the White House. 1200 of the politicians are compelled to go away back and take a camp stool.

If the story is true that a certain congressman has been heard from relatives in Europe who wanted him, the matter should be referred to the committee on foreign relations.

Victories and defeats alternate with considerable regularity for each side in the war in South Africa. This does not satisfy the British, who wish to see the Boers allowed to gain any victory at all. The activity display in the war is adding how it happens that the Boers are allowed to gain any victory at all.

The properties of evil who have been indulging so freely in mournful professions in recent years that the coalitions in the world are the world will be exhausted in a few centuries more or less, should it.

Grasshoppers died long ago. When there is no more coal to be mined, and when no more wood can be spared for fuel, the world will be supplied the scarcity of both. With coal and for other uses, will there be any lack of fuel for gas, for electricity and the sources of motive power?

Louisville Courier-Journal: The legislation that is needed to suppress anarchy must be directed at anarchy irrespective of its origin. It is all both to say that the difficulty is of now who is anarchistic. No law can reach the man who believes in anarchy, yet it is cowardly enough to keep his belief to himself, just as a man can reach the man who would steal or murder, if he had the courage. But the man who openly advocates the principles of anarchy is as easily distinguishable as the pirate who hoists the black flag, and he should be treated as summarily as the pirate.

If the testimony elicited by the lock-law inquiry commission in St. Louis is true, the history of the city should be prosecuted for murder and manslaughter. Thirteen deaths from disease caused by St. Louis by antiseptics used by physicians by the city, of course, it was denied in St. Louis, Philadelphia that the terms were introduced with the intent to kill, but not only the presence of the crime has been proved, but the source of the infection has been discovered.

With nearly $100,000,000 worth of property destroyed by fire in the United States during the last quarter of a century, the need of a better supply of fireproof building material and more stringent laws enforcing its use would appear to be in order.

Pope Leo is a grand old man from whichever side of the religious fence you look at him. The venerable pontiff works hard six or eight hours every day and smiles tranquilly at the reminder of the fall of the shades so near at hand.

Old Friend of Lincoln

By J. G. STEWART

The men who personally knew Abraham Lincoln become fewer and fewer as the years pass.

But there is one who during the time in which the martyred president rose to prominence was more than a mere acquaintance. He was a friend.

J. G. Stewart, a veteran photographer of Bloomington, Ill., in 1857 Mr. Stewart was in business in Springfield, Ill., and was a friend of Lincoln.

He was a friend of Lincoln in the sense that he was a friend of the "rail splitter" who was to become the greatest of presidents.

The future president usually dealt with the one who was his friend. The future president usually dealt with the one who was his friend.

Mr. Stewart belonged to the Free Press party in Springfield. Among the names signed were those of A. Lincoln and Shelby M. Cullom. The first meeting was held in Mr. Stewart's gallery. The organization was called the Lincoln club.

The Lincoln club was the first of its kind in the country. It was the first of its kind in the country. It was the first of its kind in the country.

WITH THE HUMORISTS

By J. G. STEWART

"Ah," sighed the would-be wit, "here is where all my troubles come to an end," and he sprang into the deep waters of the bay.

For the life preserver hit him in the neck and he saw a million eyes staring at him. He was a man of letters, a man of letters, a man of letters.

"What did he say when they arrested him?" "He said the accident wouldn't have occurred if they had kept a beautiful piece of a pig."

"How did you like that play of rural life?" "It's a fraud," answered Mr. C. "I don't like it. I don't like it. I don't like it."
