WASHTENAW COUNTY. ONE SESSION A DAY.

BURGLARS BLOW A SAFE IN REMUS AND GET SOME BOOTY.

SENATOR ALGER WILL NOT RE-SIGN BEFORE THE COMPLETION OF HIS TERM.

Benton Harbor Woman Horribly Burned by Fall on Stove—Kalamazoo Molder Murdered in Oakland, California.

On account of the large enrollment in the primary department of the Michigan schools, it has been found necessary to adopt the one-session-a-day plan. Part of the children come in the morning and the others in the afternoon. It is found that much more can be done for each child in a half day with fewer in the room than could be done in all day with the room overcrowded.

Funny Yarn.

The peaceful slumbers of Remus, Newaygo county, were startled at break of dawn Tuesday by a terrific report coming from the direction of the general store. A clatter of hoofs followed, and investigation showed the store to be wrecked and pieces of the dynamited safe scattered for many feet about. Five hundred dollars done up in packages of bills were missing, about $50 in small change, from $270 to $300 worth of rings and watches and other jewelry were taken.

The job is laid to the same gang that blew the Pere Marquette safe at Mears last Thursday and visited Fremont, which is en route to Muskegon.

Gov. Warner has issued a requisition for Lucius Sink, of Port Huron, who is charged with having abandoned his wife and children. Sink is under arrest in Toledo.

Flora V., the gasoline fishing boat, missing from South Haven for 36 hours, reported at St. Joe, having broken down and then making port under a small sail.

The offer of the Pere Marquette to furnish a train to carry farmers' institute workers along its line this winter has been accepted by the state board of agriculture.

Lansing artillerymen of the First battery, M. N. G., will establish a school for the study of military subjects and the scientific handling of the long range guns.

Wm. Blackford, of Yale, the other day read an item that application had been made to send him to the Eastern Michigan asylum, and he has been missing ever since.

The boy was found in a cavern for a cellar at St. Helens. Apparently the body had been buried for years, but the golden curls, the face and form were well-nigh perfect.

The large beet sugar factory in Bissell is about completed, everything being finished except the pump house. The plant has cost nearly $600,000, and has a capacity for 500 tons of beets per day.

Rev. F. M. Coddington, of Quincy, Mich., has been called to the Presbyterian church of Plainwell, Rev. F. Z. Rosister, the oldest minister in the state in point of service, having recently resigned.

Unable to find food or work, Mrs. Anna Hanes, who says she lived at Bay Falls up to the death of her husband, dropped in a faint on the streets in Grand Rapids and was cared for at the hospital.

A special election will be held November 14, to submit the question of bonding the village of Athens for a water works system. At the present time the village is practically without any fire protection.

Peddlers, or transient merchants, do not have to take out a state license under the law of 1905, according to Atty. Gen. Bird, who holds that the 1902 law was repealed and that only local license is now necessary.

Miss Bertha Boyles, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Boyles, of Charlotte, goes to Butte, Mont., to be married to Fred A. Clark, a Lansing man who went west two years ago to look after mining interests.

It has developed that the Jackson city council has the right to bond the city for paving to the amount of $15,000 and the people can do nothing to prevent it. The bonds issued have been bought by a Chicago firm.

Prisoners had planned a jail break at the 800, but Sheriff Lipsett discovered the hole they had made.

It is known that Fred C. Turner, a factory hand, went west about eight years ago, but his present whereabouts are not known.

Killed With An Ax.

Fred C. Turner, an iron molder of Kalamazoo, was found murdered a few miles south of Oakland, Cal. The discovery of the body was made by Hugh Macman, of Fruitville. Turner had been assailed by an unknown assassin, armed with an ax, and the victim was frightfully mangled. No clue to the murderer has been found.

Efforts to definitely locate Turner in Kalamazoo have been without results, except it is known that Fred C. Turner, a factory hand, went west about eight years ago, but his present whereabouts are not known.

Strange Case.

A strange case of dental surgery took place in Coldwater. Dr. Howard, a veterinary surgeon, "extracted" three teeth from the ear of a horse belonging to P. J. Phenecell. The teeth were large and well formed. The animal had shown signs of much distress for two or three years, but until brought to Howard, no one had been able to tell what was the matter.

It is known that Fred C. Turner, a factory hand, went west about eight years ago, but his present whereabouts are not known.

Fatally Shot.

It is believed that Roy Evans, a 10-year-old lad of Horton township, cannot survive the injuries to his face and head caused by the accidental discharge of his brother's shotgun. His right ear was torn off, the whole side of his face was lacerated, and it is believed some shot penetrated his skull. John Evans, an older brother, had left the gun standing where his younger brother could reach it.

The total valuation as fixed by the board of supervisors for Arenac county is $1,850,000.

The St. Joseph county clerk has issued 1,200 marriage licenses this year, a gain of 10 over the whole of last year.

While playing at the M. C. stock yards in Lapeer, Jake Slattery, 8 years old, went to the rescue of a hog that a dog was biting. The hog was released, but turned upon Slattery, and impaled his arm and hand seriously. His condition this morning is alarming. Blood poisoning is feared, and the arm may have to be amputated.

Putting strychnine in his beer, Wm. Wells raised his glass to several men in a Muskegon saloon and said, "Well, good-bye, boys." Then he drank the liquor to the dregs. The bystanders seeing the label "poison" on the bottle he dropped, rushed him to the hospital. It was the outcome of a gambling order imposing a tariff on cattle brought into the country from neighboring states.

MICHIGAN ITEMS.

George Davis, aged 27, of Lansing, although ill with tuberculosis, worked until within two hours of his death.

Charles Gaige, once a wealthy man of Hillsdale, but of late an inmate of the county house, committed suicide.

Gas was found on the farm of George Fox, near Warren. A stream 50 feet high is blazing as it flows from a four-inch pipe.

Mrs. Abbie Baylis, aged 70, walked directly in front of a Lake Shore passenger train at Tecumseh, and was probably fatally injured.

Eugene Clark, of Standish, lost his left hand as the result of a premature explosion of his gun. Mrs. Clark is not expected to live from the shock.

Mrs. Eva Marsh, of Three Oaks, committed suicide at Frankfort, Ind., by drinking chloroform. She had been deserted by her husband.

The Pere Marquette depot in Mears was blown to pieces and the robbers got about $200.

Mr. Harvey Bailey, aged 70, a prominent farmer living near Hillsdale, was found dead in his corral. Apoplexy was the cause.

An epidemic of diphtheria has caused four deaths and there are numerous cases in the St. Mary's lake community, eight miles east of Pentwater.

Clara, 4-year-old daughter of Edward Schuransky, was burned to death in her parents' home in Oshkosh. The child's dress caught from a spark from the stove.

The autocracy of the Romanoffs and the old order of things ceased to exist in Russia Monday night. Emperor Nicholas has surrendered and Count Witte comes into power as minister president with an imperial mandate which will enable him to convert the farcical national assembly into a real legislative body elected by greatly extended suffrage and to confer upon the people fundamental civil liberties, including free speech.

These welcome tidings reached St. Petersburg shortly before 6 o'clock.

Count Witte, the new minister, has been freed from his confinement.

This will be the first time the emperor has been accepted by the people.

The emperor has issued a decree that the emperor's manifesto was issued during the evening.

Business is war," says a magazine writer, and Gen. Sherman had us what war is.

"Can a husband sing to his wife so much kindness?" Well, few husbands are.

The principal thing noticeable about women's attire this fall is its multifariousness.

A Chicago woman's wardrobe is a treasury of choice garments.

We know it would come to grief.

Somewhat more thoughtful, though, in the public school.

Sergeants over, soldiers over, New York City declared a "cleaning hour" of undress uniforms.

Miss Susan P. Foster of Winona, Minn., has worn trousers for 10 years, and expects to do with them on.

As Rockefellers say, money is not the only thing in the world. There are mumps, measles and banana skins.

People say they might as well be hunting for a sheep as a lamb, but that only shows lack of discrimination in attire.

Kinship may be dangerous, as that doctor says, but you may have noticed that more people have died from it than have.

Courts upheld a Buffalo man who put a rat in his grocer's pocket and caught his wife. Divorce opinion.

Diamonds have gone up again, but this is a hardship that's likely to befall us all, as coal and coal will be still more expensive.

No one need have any difficulty in identifying New England as the place that holds the world's baseball championship.

The state of the world is the same, therefore, but frequently the sun never has to wait a long time to get what is coming to him.

An old man used a "saw" at his work, and when he had finished he was rid of her. She will testify that "ant-arts" bring results.

The latest report of the commanding general of King Alfonso is definitely denied. When you get your invitation to the wedding you'll know.

Harry Libby is in jail at Durhams, Vt., charged with swindling a horse. Somehow the price was right by his name-dean's own right.

A woman is quite a divorcee from her husband in the amount that he hasn't taken a bath for twenty years. Naturally, she wants to duck him.

Now that they have had up a repudiation between them, and will make the edition of "I do" as well as the "I won't," we are to the fact that the drinks are off.

A cosmetic man went to have his hibbitch removed, and came back with a live deer. Here he is. Stop that. It's this time we are going to have the deer house.

A picturesquely dressed man who is the father of fourteen boys has a hopped a little bird. This bird seemed to spread its wings, and those wings were flying.

It is hard and courageous on the part of Mr. Edison, but the obtrusive people of this country will go on pounding their ears and clogging their intakes as heretofore.

TO pay a visit to Lucerne is to discover—or perhaps it would be better to say rediscover—the story of Tell. One of the most interesting sights in the city is the Land of Tell, a matter of course, but it is also a matter of interest to the tourist.

It was not at a season of the year when the evening comes early to the Swiss that Tell's name is most familiar. It is in the morning, when the sun is high in the sky, that Tell's name is most familiar.

It is in the afternoon, when the sun is low in the sky, that Tell's name is most familiar.

The county school commissioner will hereafter draw a salary of $1,500 a year, $60 more than heretofore.

So they are talking of establishing a course in theology at the U. of M. A few preachers would be no detriment to the place.

President Roosevelt made a great hit in his trip south and southwest. The people liked him so well that there is now talk of nominating him for president on the democratic ticket.

November was ushered in yesterday morning in the midst of the first snow storm of the season to visit us. It wasn't much, to be sure, but enough to remind us of what is in store for us later on. We have the satisfaction of knowing that we have passed a pleasant summer and fall and with all a prosperous one.

The boys engaged in the usual pranks on Hallowe'en, such as marking with soap on the store windows, changing signs, putting old cutters, buggies, etc. on top of awnings, sheds and in front of stores. All this makes a little trouble for the owners and people who have to remove them, but then, boys will be boys, you know and we were all boys once.

The farmers' clubs are exerting such influence in state affairs that Gov. Warner will be asked by Grand Rapids city officials to attend the meeting of the state municipal league and discuss the subject. We wonder if the farmer is likely to be recognized as an influential man. Most city folks have looked upon him as not knowing enough to say his soul is his own.

Lake Shore officials are still of the opinion that the Mentor disaster was occasioned by someone maliciously opening the switch. This they believe to have been done by someone not an employee of the company who had a key to the switch. To avoid a recurrence of this accident or to prevent any such use of the switch keys all locks have been changed and records carefully made showing to whom the keys had been issued.

Napoleon would seem to be a pretty good place to live but it appears that two men at least have mysteriously disappeared from their homes there within the past year. Our readers will remember how Edward Growell, the carpenter, stepped out into the darkness, as it were, and has not returned. Last July Wm. Smith rode to Jackson with a farmer acquaintance but not a trace has been found of him since he left the wagon. Both men left families and no one seems to know why they left or whether foul play was the cause of their continued absence.

State Treasurer Frank P. Glazier says: Before my incumbency, banks holding state money gave only personal bonds as security, but now every bank that has Michigan money must furnish good security bonds, on which the state may recover in case the bank breaks. Had this rule been in force when the City Savings bank of Detroit failed, the state would not have lost a dollar. The state's money is deposited in 72 state and national banks, 80 more than a year ago. This, too, is in spite of the fact that the balance in the state treasury on September 30, this year, was $500,000 less than on the same date last year. He says that more than half the counties get more from the state in primary school money than they return to the commonwealth in the shape of taxes.

Norwell Farmers' Club.

The meeting of Oct. 28 at Pioneer Home with C. P. and Miss Elma Holmes was attended by about 30 persons. A number of the members were kept at home by the feeling that winter is here and there is still much work to be done and few hands to do it.

A suggestion from President Snyder of the Agricultural college that attendants at the various short courses of the winter should prepare themselves to give to the local club a synopsis of the instruction received, in a series of papers, each to be discussed by the club, was very favorably received.

Mr. & Mrs. L. D. Watkins were elected delegates to the annual meeting of the state association of farmers' clubs and Mr. & Mrs. J. G. Palmer were named as alternates.

Miss Edie Hay read a selection entitled "Our Saturday Night" which was a strong presentation of the cast and the substance of worry.

W. W. Holmes spoke of current events mentioning President Roosevelt's trip through the south and Congressmen.

Townsend's recent visit to Washington. Wm. Mount added the plight of Russia and Baron Witte's position, also the storm on the lakes. T. B. Halladay spoke of the life insurance developments and business.

Wm. Mount added the plight of Russia and Baron Witte's position, also the storm on the lakes. T. B. Halladay spoke of the life insurance developments and business.

Mrs. Palmer and W. W. Holmes defended the principle and thought life insurance almost a necessity for a large part of our people.

Mrs. James Pierce recited "Poor House Man" and the topic of Special Sales and Bargain Days was taken up by Mrs. J. Green who has had no experience, endeavors to supply wants as they occur.

Mrs. J. G. Palmer thought that many people in the cities watch for them. Mrs. R. D. Palmer buys as needs occur and wants the merchant to make a reasonable profit. Mrs. Jewett thought it reasonable that merchants should sell left overs and things out of season for a less price.

T. B. Halladay defended the principle, thought such sales on the increase. The merchant had better sell goods at a low price than keep them a year and then find them unsaleable because out of style and the customer may often find it profitable to buy goods for a year ahead.

Jas. Hay said that in cities goods were often advertised at nearly half price and gave an amusing experience of finding recently a new pair of pants purchased at trade nearly 20 years ago which were then too small for him but are now a good fit.

A. R. Palmer questioned whether such sales are a good thing for the merchants and the community or not. People are often tempted to buy things they do not want or need because cheap and it is doubtful if the habit of looking for bargains tends to develop the best moral character.

Questions were collected and the first one read: "How shall we harvest the corn crop?" created much interest. C. P. Holmes would feed a part without husking. There is a loss in fodder but a saving in labor. J. G. Palmer would cut with a binder, draw and stack and feed all you can without husking, not much loss in fodder by so doing. W. B. Lowery would harvest by hand if possible, not using machinery if he could get the work done without it. Wm. Mount has never tried any but the old way. Jas. Hay would cut with a binder, feed from the shock and husk what is left in the spring. John Green believes in the old way. Much better results are obtained from feeding the crop than by feeding it unhusked.

A. R. Palmer thought that corn binders are less in favor than formerly.

Some who own them are not using them.

T. B. Halladay tried the corn binder this year, having planted the corn in drills. Has made a careful estimate and is sure that the labor used in setting up the corn and picking the scattered ears would have cut the corn, if in hills, and put in shock. Ears left upon the ground sprout and mold. His man says the corn does not husk as well as that cut by hand.

The drilled corn is not so good as that planted in hills. If a corn binder must be used Fred Spafard is on the right road in growing a small kind of flint corn that can be cut near the ground.

To the question, What are we to use in place of worry? Mrs. Bancroft said work is a good cure, get to doing something.

What breed of cattle is best? C. P. Holmes said the shorthorn is as good as any.

Which is most profitable, beans or cucumbers for seed? A. R. Palmer would say cucumber seed at the present price if thorough work is done. M. W. Hess has nearly 5,000 pounds of seed from 15 acres which will bring him $750.

What does the club think of the prepared stock and poultry food? Wm. Mount and W. B. Lowery have thought they saw good results from their use while others thought them a means to get some of the farmer's money.

The number of exhibits was not large but some fine samples of corn and squash were shown.

LESSON SIX—NOVEMBER 5.

GOLDEN TEXT.—The Lord preserve all these that love him.—Psa. 145:20.

The Book of Esther.—The author is unknown, but must have been some one living in the heart of Persia, a man who was intimately acquainted with the scenery he describes.—Professor Adeney.

The date of writing is also unknown. Professor Sayce places it at B. C. 425. He says that the minuteness of detail shows that the author lived before the overthrow of the Persian power. B. C. 331. Some place the date still later.

Scene I. The Great Feast at Shushan.—False Patriotism.—The Ahasuerus of Esther has been identified almost beyond doubt, with Xerxes the famous son and successor of Darius Hystaspes of our last lesson. Xerxes is a shortened form of Ahasuerus, as York (in New York, for instance), is a shortened form of the Latin Eboracum. He reigned over nearly all Asia, and in his first years, 485, 484, he conquered Egypt. But Greece was still unconquered. A few years before, his father Darius and the Persian army were defeated by the Greeks at Marathon in September, B. C. 490, a world-renowned battle and one of the turning-points of the world's history.

Xerxes, therefore, determined "to lay a bridge over the Hellespont, and to transport an army into Greece to punish the Athenians" for their defeat of his father Darius at Marathon. Then he added, "I intend to march through all the parts of Europe, and to reduce the whole earth into one empire, being assured that no city or nation will dare to resist my arms."—Thus we shall extend the Persian territory as far as God's heaven reaches.—Herodotus, Bk. 7. For this purpose Xerxes, according to Herodotus, held a great assembly of the noblest Persians, to arrange for the expedition against Greece. It is probable that this was the feast described in the first chapter of Esther as taking place in Susa.

Scene II. The Expedition against Greece, with an Instance of Patriotic Heroism.—The next four years were occupied with one of the most famous invasions in history. Herodotus estimated that Xerxes' total military force when it reached Thermopylae numbered 2,641,610, with an equal number of attendants, making 5,283,220 persons in all. The sea-force is represented as consisting of 3,000 vessels, of all kinds. These numbers are regarded by modern historians as greatly exaggerated. Xerxes' army was checked at the pass of Thermopylae by the heroism of Leonidas and his immortal 300. August, 480 B. C. Themistocles, the Greek commander, with 310 sail, defeated Xerxes' fleet at Salamis, near Athens, October 20, 480 B. C. and the Persian fleet was destroyed at Mycale, Sept. 22, 479. These and other disasters compelled Xerxes to abandon his expedition and return home with scarcely 5,000 soldiers left of all the multitude with which he set out.

Scene III. The Marriage of Esther, the beautiful Jewess, to Xerxes, after his return to Shushan.—In the seventh year of his reign, Esther means a star. Prof. Adeney says Esther is Ishtar, the Babylonian goddess equivalent to Venus. She was a daughter of one of the exiles, her grandfather being among those carried captive to Babylon by Nebuchadnezzar in 598 (Esther 2:5, 6). Her Hebrew name was Hadassah, the myrtle, a beautiful and favorite shrub in the East. She was the cousin of Mordecai, who was much older, and had adopted her as his daughter on the death of her father, Abihail, an uncle of Mordecai.

Scene IV. The Plot of Haman.—The Opposite of Patriotism.—Five or five years pass, and then begins the tragic story of Haman. His rise as a king's favorite, his pride incensed at the conduct of Esther's cousin, Mordecai, his attempt to bring vengeance upon the whole Jewish race on Mordecai's account, his success in obtaining a decree from the king, throughout his empire, "to destroy, to kill, and to cause to perish all Jews, both young and old, little children, and women, in one day." The tragic end of Haman is intermingled with the story of the deliverance, but we may well look forward and see him planning to ruin Mordecai, but compelled to honor him; to perish himself, hung thereon. Such men as Haman are beacons of warning from rocks in the sea of life.

Scene V. Queen Esther Coming to the Rescue.—An Instance of Heroic Patriotism.—Esth. 4:7. Great mourning and terrible distress came upon the Jews all over the empire as they learned of this decree. Mordecai sent word to Esther, asking her to go to the king and request the deliverance of her people. Esther replied (Esth. 4:11), "Whosoever . . . shall come unto the king into the inner court, who is not called, there is one law of his to put him to death." Rather, "there is one law for him." Whoever he be, there is one and the same law regarding him—he must suffer death. "Except such to whom the king shall hold out the golden sceptre." There was, therefore, a possibility of Esther's reaching the cause of the king, but to the greatest uncertainty as to how such a capricious king would act, especially as his love for her had cooled. The mission Mordecai committed to Esther was one of great danger.

Purity is Strength.—Always in His Care.—The purest soul this world has known, or can know, was the soul of Christ. But He was more than a child, though He had passed through childhood. He was the Son of Man, therefore He knew temptation. The spotless purity of the Lord was unsurpassable. It was the strength of His nobleness, not weakness. The more a person is like Christ, the nobler and better he or she must be. To be pure is to be strong.

TO MAKE IT DEMOCRATIC.

The supervisors had a warm discussion over the matter of redistricting the county. Sylvan was taken out of the first district, and the townships of Scio and Superior were taken out of the first district and put into the second. As arranged the districts are: No. 1—Lyndon, Dexter, Webster, Northfield, Salem, Lima, Ann Arbor town, Sylvan, Ann Arbor city. The 1900 census gives this section 23,250 inhabitants. No. 2—Sharon, Bridgewater, Freedom, Lodi, Scio, Superior, Pittsfield, Ypsilanti town, Manchester, Saline, York, Augusta, Ypsilanti city. By the last census this section had 23,520 inhabitants. Rumor says that this change was made by the democrats to give Supervisor Landwehr of Manchester a chance to step into the shoes of Representative Waters.

So far the board of supervisors, in equalizing the assessments of Washtenaw county, have changed the apportionment to a total of $40,000, says the Press. The members of the board claim that this was due to the rulings of the state tax commission last year, which were not carried out in Ypsilanti and Sylvan township. The ruling has been ordered again this year, although the old assessments will stand at this time. The following shows the equalized valuation of the 23 assessment districts of the county with the state and county taxes each will have to pay this year. It is an interesting study to note as compared with last year how much state taxes have crept up as compared with the county. State taxes for Washtenaw county exhibit an increase of more than $20,000:

SWORE AT SECRETARY STANTON

About every one in Portland—in fact, all over the state of Maine—knew "Long John" Holmes, sometimes called "Swearing John Holmes," for he was also one of the largest hearted men, and was not awed by wealth or position.

This story about him was related by the Hon. William Pitt Fessenden. He said during the first year of the civil war Holmes was in Washington looking for something to do, while he was in the United States Senate. He was in Secretary Stanton's office one day, and Stanton said: "I am looking for a good man to buy horses in New England for the army; can you recommend any one for the position?" Fessenden said he could, as one of his townsmen was in Washington looking for employment, and a better judge of horses was not to be found in the country. Stanton's reply was: "Send him in to see me and I will give him a place."

Fessenden sent for Holmes and gave him a note to Stanton. The next day Secretary Stanton sent to the Senate for Fessenden to come to his office at once. On his arrival Stanton turned to him and said: "Fessenden, for heaven's sake what did you mean by sending that man Holmes to me? I must tell you of the interview. I heard a commotion in the outer office, and in came this giant with these words, 'Where in hell is this old Stanton?' I turned and said, 'I am Secretary Stanton.' Well here is a letter from Pitt Fessenden: 'What in hell do you want of me?' and the man a string of oaths such as I never heard from any one before. I could not stop him, and could only say, 'I will see Mr. Fessenden,' and now I want to know why you sent him here."

Fessenden's reply was: "You wanted a man to buy horses, and he is your man."

Holmes got the job, and continued as the government agent during the war, with credit to himself and the office.

NATIVE RELIGION OF SIAM

The Rev. W. C. Dodd, who is stationed as a missionary in the Laos country, north of Siam, under the Presbyterian Foreign Board, has sent to friends in this country a report of an interview he recently had with Kun Tum, native chief at the head of eight villages. Kun Tum talks of the native religion, and says that his people do not worship ghosts and spirits, as do many of the Siamese, but that they believe in one God, who inhabits the ethereal expanse. He is creator of all, including the human race. According to this religion, the original man and woman had three sons. The oldest was ancestor of the Asiatic people. The second took to wife a monkey and was ancestor of the white race, which is consequently active, energetic and cunning, too much for their other brethren. The youngest son was ancestor of the black race.

All the brothers originally worshipped God and had a book from him, but the field of heresies is everywhere, in every home, in every town. There are great enemies to overcome in our own hearts; there are powers and principalities of evil on every hand.

Christian Patriotism is to give for God and Christ our King, and for the sake of the kingdom of God, the same devotion, self-denial that patriotism requires for our country. In reality it is one and the same spirit. An the best thing we can do patriotically for our country is to be true to the principles which Christ taught us, and live a perfect Christian life. Heresies, courage, patriotism, are as real, and living and growing amid the temptations of civil life as on the field of war. So in the church, the true preparation for bearing bravely the cross of Christ in times of persecution is to bear the cross Christ gives us day by day. They will do great things for Christ who serve him best in daily life. They will be martyrs, if called to the test, who deny themselves and serve Christ most faithfully in ordinary times.

BOY'S IDEAS OF "CHEATING"

Judge Henry A. Shute has a characteristic boy story in the October American Magazine. Plucky read a paper on "Cheating," in which the following occurs:

"I guess most everybody cheats some, sometimes somebody comes to the house which nobody wants to see and Aunt Sarah will say, for mercy sakes Joanna there comes that dreadful woman but when she comes in they say they are awful glad to see her and make her take of her things and stop to super and then put on the best china and have gelly and hot biscuit so one day I asked Aunt Sarah if that wasen't cheating and Aunt Sarah said perhaps it was, but if we didn't do easy wizze cheating than make people feel pretty good she gessed it wasen't very bad cheating.

"They is other kinds of cheating two, once me and Beany was fitting the belief is that the white brother and his family were bad, and were sent away from the others, taking the book with them. Other writings were revealed to those who remained but most of the revelations have been destroyed. To the people of Kun Tum was given two great pillars of stone. These they were instructed to protect and preserve. They were also instructed to keep alien people out of their country, but were told in a revelation to submit to the British. The stone pillars are to be guarded until God appears in human form. This they expect soon to occur. The ancient legend, told thus briefly, fits well with the return of the white race with a book, the Bible, and this native chief says that he and many others wait to see how it shall fare with those who have become Christians, in order that they may judge whether the religion with book was really their primeval religion and the book the one taken from them so long ago.

and all of a sudden Beany began to hold on to his stomach as if he was suffering fearful and when a faller is fitting and holds on to his stomach, it aint fair to hit emny more than it is to hit him when he is down, and so I stopped and leaned over to see if he was hurt and Beany strated up and hit me a fearful pain in the eye and blackened it and so I got licked that time.

"Beany he thought it was a pretty good trick to play on me and I thought so after I got over my mad and the next time I had a fit with Pewt I pretended I was awful hurt and held on to my stomach and bent up double and wached my chance to straten up like Beany did and black Pewt's eye but Pewt didnt give emny chance and gumped on me when I was all bent double and lammed me. I think that was pretty meen cheating for Pewt."

If it is to be tacit business, women are asked and the affair has apparently the brilliant irresponsibility of any other social event; for open discussion, only men are assembled. Champagne is inevitably the ether through which all business projects flow. The role of Mr. Sprague's new partner was largely that of hostess. Every one who could be service, direct or indirect, to the Multiple Unit Control was given his chance and his dinner, and Miss Rawls presided with a calm grace and never deserted her, even when, as often happened, she had to take the table a lone woman with ten or a dozen men. Asking brilliant companies to meet an inventor is not always a simple matter; genius is as likely as not to arrive an hour or so late, with a mind above apology and the traces of too
