REVIVAL THAT COUNTS

By REV. A. C. BRECK, D. B.
Pastor of the Clinton Ave. Methodist Church, Clinton.

"My soul cleaveth unto the dust."

"I am smitten very much. QUICKEN O' MY SOUL."

"Read my cause and deliver me."

"Yea, I will."

"These words of Scripture define a true revival.

The words are spiritual.

They are social.

They are diseases of the mind, but they are epidemic.

They are contagious, and they are evangelistic.

They may sweep down upon a community and make a stir.

They are striking.

They draw large crowds.

They are sudden.

They are violent.

They are sudden.

ASLEEP IN THE LORD

By REV. A. C. NIXON, D. D.
Pastor of the Christ Church, Chicago.

Michigan War on Saloons.

The biggest fight against the saloons that Michigan has ever seen is to be made in Lansing December 17, when arrangements were made for the event by the committee recently organized by Frank C. Flanagan, of Detroit, chairman; H. M. Campbell, Detroit; Lawton T. Remans, Mason; F. J. Barnett, Grand Rapids, and Victor Hawkins, of Paul M. Kline, secretary of the convention, was made secretary of the convention, and H. J. F. Barnett, treasurer. Victor Hawkins will be toastmaster.

It was decided in a formal session of the state delegates and principal officials will be held on the forenoon of the day fixed for the reunion, and that a social meeting will be held in the evening. Hotel DeMolay in the evening. Besides the members of the convention, the secretary and his assistant, the convention committee, and the association, the secretaries of the convention and representatives of the press will be invited to attend.

THE MARRY-GO-ROUND.

The Diary of an Explorer.

THE MARCH 1-GO ROUND.

By C. B. QUINCY.

AFRICA is a bigger place than I thought, and singularly lacking in accommodations. Ground is about the only thing that's plentiful, and that's not much joy to a tired and hungry man. By the way, never noticed much ground in New York—this is a novel sight. Will write a monograph on it for the Royal Geographical Society. Curious how different a lion looks when he's out of a cage. Never experienced any peculiar emotions when looking at lions in a menagerie, but to-day I can live or die miles on seeing 'em at a distance. They looked positively forbidding.

Lions came during the night and took away three natives from the camp. I was going to give the night watchman a talking to, but it appears the lion got him while he was asleep. Think of returning to the railroad; there is a sense of security in a train, for one can always leave the lions far behind, and besides it is much easier to explore from the observation windows.

Discovered a large lake to-day with several steamboats on it, one of them the boat of the government survey. Told them I should call the lake Smyth, after myself, and they rudely replied that the lake had been known as something else for the past seventy years. I said that made no difference, and I have put the lake in as Lake Smyth (also Nyanga).

Shot a large bird to-day and will send the skin to Washington. I don't know what sort of bird it is, but I have seen similar ones in New York and London. Native gesticulated wildly and motioned me to run.

If the bird was a Plymouth Rock, belonging to an American planter, who had imported it at some trouble, I expressed my regret but pointed out that an explorer could take no chances of losing a new species to science and President Roosevelt. The planter didn't understand, and refused me to explore the interior of the country. The country was more settled then, and the farmers had more beans.

Shot a fine specimen of deer to-day. Deer turns out to have been a young Jersey cow. The owner unleashed several dogs on me and my natives un gallantly deserted me.

Am now up a tree meditating upon the hardships of the pioneer adventurer.

Delicate Appetite.

"The awful trying to be interesting to a teacher was asking the children what their girl," Mrs. Douglas confided to the tradesmen whose fathers followed, but one friendly visitor who had failed to inquire little girl at first refused to tell. "Come, for Amy."

"I believe this consciousness business," "Well, ma'am, he's a worm-eater," said come harder on me than her real sick-kid.

"I believe," continued Mrs. Douglas, with a "A worm-eater?" come, "the awful trying to be interesting to a teacher was asking the children what their girl," Mrs. Douglas confided to the tradesmen whose fathers followed, but one friendly visitor who had failed to inquire little girl at first refused to tell. "Come, for Amy."

THAT KISS MICROBE.

Dick—if you are afraid of microbes why don't you kiss your girl over the phone? You can't catch anything by kissing a girl over the phone.

Tom—Oh, yes, you can. I kissed mine over the phone the other day.

JUST FOR A CHANGE.

Londiady (reading)—I see that Skinner the grocer is advertising something new in soap bars.

Old Boarder—What is it—good coffee?
