Water Power of World Wide Effects

SECTION OF DOWNSTREAM SIDE

IN THE heart of the United States, but at a point which is one of the nearest by transportation routes to the countries of Central and South America, is being built a great water power plant which must greatly affect for good not only its immediate environment, the Mississippi valley, but the whole nation and all the nations in Pan America. The colossal size of the water power there would cause appreciable effects anywhere in the world, and it is located almost exactly at the point where its commercial influence may be exerted most easily and effectively upon world commerce.

The achievement nearing completion is the damming of the mighty Mississippi river, harnessing it to turn large wheels and electric generators and distributing its tremendous power over one hundred miles and more of the most efficient portion of the United States on a direct traffic line to the rest of the western hemisphere. It is not only an unparalleled engineering achievement, but also perhaps the greatest single economic force sprung into the world by the hand of man, excepting only the Panama canal.

Nearly Mile Long.

The basis of the water power development at Keokuk, in the southeastern corner of the state of Iowa, is a great dam extending for nine-tenths of a mile from the Illinois bluff to its junction with the titanic power house near the Iowa shore. This dam is a composite structure of 119 arched spans, all alike, with piers six feet thick thirty feet apart, and spillways in the spans, all alike, over which the water will flow. This dam is a monolith of massive concrete set down several feet into the hard rock bottom of the Mississippi, but impounding the water by its immense weight. The structure, with the exterior appearance of a bridge, is 53 feet high, 42 feet wide at the bottom, and 29 feet wide on top; the spillways between the piers are 32 feet high, fill the width of the dam at the bottom, have vertical upstream faces, and their downstream face is an ogee curve which delivers the water at the bottom horizontally to the river current. On top of each spillway will be a steel gate 11 feet high. By varying the number of these gates, which are open and closed, the amount of water flowing over the dam will be regulated, with the result that at varying stages of the river the pool above the dam will have always an unvarying depth and its surface will always remain at the same place.

The water wheel itself is another example of overcoming the impossible, for experts said that it was impossible to build a turbine which would meet the unusual conditions there. But Chief Engineer Cooper called a council of war and a little hair rose from the head of that table with a new design of turbine which tests show has 86 per cent of efficiency as compared with the next best result ever attained of 80 per cent and a textbook figure of 75 per cent of efficiency as the norm to be used in engineering calculations. The 30 turbine wheels in the Keokuk power house are several times as large in dimensions as any ever made before. Each is at the lower end of a shaft 25 inches in diameter, on the upper end of which is the revolving part of the electric generator standing on the power-house floor. The revolving shaft, with its machines at each end, weighs about 552,000 pounds, and it is supported on one bearing which is lubricated by forcing oil between its surfaces at a pressure of 250 pounds to the square inch. From this bearing a steel cone carries the weight to

It is intended to start the turbines and generators in the mammoth power house early next summer, with the president of the United States pulling the lever to start the turbines, while he stands surrounded by the governors of all the states in the Mississippi valley.

Many Abandon Religious Faith. Germany, according to the religious statistics of the empire, has an increasing number of persons without any religious profession. At least they are so registered. The number has grown from 17,000 in 1907 to nearly 206,000.

UNCOVER AN ANCIENT CITY

Ostia Centuries Ago Was One of the Most Important of Rome's Centers of Population.

Pompeii has a rival in Ostia. The third international archaeological congress met in Rome recently and took a day's excursion to vanished Ostia. But few even of those learned men realized the importance of the excavations there going on.

Ostia was founded in the third century B. C., and was about 15 miles from Rome, on an island at the mouth of the Tiber. It was from this port that the naval expeditions set out that made Rome the mistress of the Mediterranean.

When wars of conquest gave way to commerce Ostia was the seaport of the capital of the world, and at the height of its prosperity had 80,000 inhabitants. Besides being a business center it was a favorite summer resort for Romans.

But with the fall of the empire Ostia declined. The raids of the barbarians and of the Saracens ruined the city.

HOW TO FRY DOUGHNUT

SIMPLE METHOD TO RELIEVE TASK OF DRUDGERY.

Cutting and Extra Steps One Way to Lighten the Housewife's Labors—Potatoes Should Be Cooked in Their Skins.

Frying doughnuts is a task that is apt to make a great deal of extra work. The woman brings the doughnuts from the pantry on the cake board and holds it in her left hand while she drops the doughnuts in the kettle of fat. The cake board is heavy, the strain is severe and the woman is apt to make many trips between the pantry and the kitchen range.

All this unnecessary work could be done away with by the very simple method of placing the cake board of unfried doughnuts on the shelf above the range which is generally at just the right height to enable her to take them from the board and drop them in the kettle, thereby saving many trips to and from the pantry and also the strength that is used up in holding a heavy board.

In washing potatoes most women scrub and rub and whirl them about with their hands, taking perhaps about 10 to 15 minutes to get them thoroughly clean, when a little 10 cent scrubbing brush would clean them in 3 or 4 minutes, the scrubbing brush to be used only for this purpose.

In this enlightened age it is to be hoped that no housewife peels potatoes before cooking them, as it is well known that all the valuable food salts are just under the skin in peeling them before cooking this valuable nutrition is wasted.

In blacking stoves canvas gloves slipped over the hands will save ten minutes or more in scrubbing at the sink to get the blacking from the hands.

The ashes from the kitchen range should always be removed just before washing the kitchen floor, otherwise the housewife is very apt to wash her floor and find she has to remove the ashes and this will generally result in two or three nasty smoothes on the floor, as it is practically impossible, even with the greatest of care, to remove ashes without spilling at least a few grains.

Stuffed Onions.

Cook 10 or 12 onions in salted water, changing the water twice, about an hour, or until nearly tender; drain and cool. Take out the center of each onion without disturbing the outside layer. To this add six mushrooms, sauted five minutes in butter. Chop fine, add half a cup of bread crumbs and white sauce or cream to mix. Season with salt, pepper and butter, and fill the open space in the onions with the mixture. Put in a buttered baking dish, sprinkle the top with three-fourths of a cup of cracker crumbs, stirred into a fourth of a cup of melted butter, and bake about 20 minutes, basting carefully with a little butter and hot water. The onions may also be stuffed with pork sausages.

Rice Bavarian Cream.

Put little lemon jelly into a wet ring mold and allow it to set. Wash one cupful rice in several waters and boil it in boiling water quickly for 5 minutes. Drain, add two cupfuls milk, cook slowly until rice is tender and milk absorbed. Dissolve one level tablespoonful powdered gelatin with one-half cupful boiling water, add it to rice and sugar with one-half cupful vanilla extract and one-half cupful whipped cream. When cool pour into prepared mold and leave in cool place until set. Turn out and serve with stewed fruit in the center.

Apple Tapioca.

Pour over three-fourth cup of pearl tapioca, which has been well washed, about a quart of warm water and cook in a double boiler until transparent. Stir often. Add one-half teaspoon of salt. Peel and core six apples, put in a round baking dish and fill holes where the cores came out with sugar. Pour the tapioca over and bake till apples are soft. If you want to prepare this in a hurry steam the apples while the tapioca is cooking and then it bakes very quickly. Eat with sugar and cream.

Cleaning Coarse Furs.

Water will not harm the coarser furs, such as are used for carriage robes. In fact, they may be scrubbed with hot soapsuds, using a pure white soap, afterward using a comb with strong teeth through the fur.

Paint on fur can be removed by using turpentine.

Small, dark fur can be cleaned by sponging with alcohol. Hot cornmeal rubbed into fur will help to restore any lost luster.

Spoon Bread.

Into a pint of nice sour milk break one egg. Sift together into the sour milk one heaping teaspoonful of white corn meal, half a teaspoonful of salt and a half teaspoonful of soda and beat thoroughly together. Have a well-greased pan, holding a quart, on the stove heating, and when very hot pour the batter into it and put into very hot oven. It should be done a delicate brown in 15 minutes, and must be served at once—Commoner.

A Turkish Dish.

Stew one cup of cold lamb with one teaspoon of minced onion in one cup of water until very tender. Skim out the meat and add to the water enough strained tomato to make one pint, or use more water if you have not enough of the tomato. Season highly with salt and pepper and a little curry or chutney sauce.

Veal Scallop.

Chop cold roast veal very fine, put a layer in the bottom of a pudding dish, season with salt and pepper cover with a layer of rolled crackers and bits of butter; wet well with milk and continue until dish is full. Wert the whole with broth and milk; invert a pan over it so as to retain steam and bake one-half hour.

Never! "Poets," bubbled the dreamy eyed young versemonger, "are born, sir, and not made." "Great Jehosaphat" exclaimed the long suffering editor in amazement, "and did you suppose any one would want the credit of making 'em?"

WIFE IN NAME ONLY

Marriage for Money and Title Turns Out to Be a Real Love Affair.

By GEORGE MUNSON.

All London society was whispering and questioning, for Lord Rensley, was on his way home to England after an absence of a year. He had shot tigers in India, had speared salmon in Alaska, and hunted grizzlies in the wilds of western Canada. And all the while Lady Rensley had kept open house at the Abbey. Now he was expected home; he would arrive in two weeks. Actually he arrived a week earlier and unexpectedly.

They had been married nearly three years before. Lady Rensley had been Miss Edith Kane, of Cleveland, and her father was one of the twelve richest men in America. The marriage had been considered singularly fortunate, for the Rensley family dated back five hundred years—though not the title, and his lands were extensive, although unprofitable. Miss Kane's dowry would restore the old abbey and enable her husband and herself to assume their rightful place in the social hierarchy. And so Rensley had won the beauty of Cleveland.

This is what happened three hours after the marriage: He and his bride were face to face in their apartments at the Eversley hotel. The bride drew off her engagement ring meditatively and handed it to him and said without a trace of passion:

"I shall wear my marriage ring, but not this. The bargain is an equal one and I am satisfied. You will never have cause to be ashamed of me in the eyes of the world. Goodnight, Lord Rensley."

"You mean," he asked, "that our marriage is to be one in name only?"

"Why, what else did you expect?" she answered mockingly, though her lip was quivering. "You sought me for my fortune, as I you for your title." And so she turned away and they said no more.

That he had sincerely loved her she did not know, nor he that she could have kept my vow."

Lord Rensley took her hands in his. "But I have not kept mine," he said. "Edith, let my faith in you be the proof of my love. Will you give me a chance to show its reality?"

That broke her pride; she cried then, in his arms.

"I've been a fool," he said; but she laughed through her tears when he put back the engagement ring upon her finger.

BALKED AT THE WOMAN JURY

Ship's Captain Denied Federal Prosecution, but Dire Threat Brought Him to Trial.

The prospect of facing a woman jury in municipal court was more of a trial in imaging Capt. Brown of the American steamer Leelenaw, comply with port regulations than was the threat of Federal prosecution when Harbor Patrolman Bakesy went to the ship to him to display port lights and rig a proper gangway. From his berth, whether he had retired early, Capt. Brown commanded the patrolman to a "warm climate."

Bakesy replied that there was a federal fine of $200 for the offenses: the captain grunted from his berth, Bakesy threatened arrest, the captain snored.

"They have a woman jury in municipal court," suggested Bakesy, "and you will have to face that." Instantly the captain raised his hand to his whiskers and the watchman came running. Gay parties assembled there. If the relationship between the two was strained, that was known only by their discreet servants and guessed at by their intimates.

Then Rensley sailed for India to shoot tigers, and the parties continued. They were as gay as ever, but different people came. There was Rizzi, for instance, that Italian nobleman who had acquired a sinister reputation in several capitals of Europe and was not diminishing it in London. He brought his attendant crowd: flashy women and sporting men and tawdry actors and actresses. And of the character of these people Lady Rensley knew nothing, for she never stooped to gossip, and she only knew that she liked Rizzi and that he alone of all of them seemed to understand her situation and to have sympathy for her.

So she moved among them, innocently, the lonely mistress of the Abbey, while people shrugged their shoulders and smiled. And then they heard that Rensley was coming home.

Rizzi, too, heard it, and he put his fate to the touch. In his way he liked this unapproachable American lady as much as he was capable of liking, and as constantly. They were alone for a few minutes in the conservatory. From the ballroom came the sound of music and the chatter of the guests.

"I hear Lord Rensley is coming back next week," he said.

"Yes," she answered. "He expects to sail from New York tomorrow."

"It will be different when he returns," Rizzi said.

"Oh, no," she answered, with a shrug of her beautiful shoulders. "That will not make any difference. We shall still have our own friends, each of us."

"It will be terrible for you," he said, studying her with his cat-like eyes.

"Why?" asked Lady Rensley, facing him squarely.

"Because you do not love him," he answered boldly.

For an instant the balance trembled. Then she flashed out an angry retort, asking him how he dared criticize her husband or their relationship. That outburst might have quelled one less experienced than Rizzi. He fell upon his knees and seized her hand and pressed it to his lips.

"Forgive me, Lady Rensley," he implored. "It was unpardonable in me, yet you say nothing is unpardonable in one who loves. No, do not start away. Hear me and then dismiss me for ever. I have ever loved you, you beauty with your secret sorrow, and I have always known that he did not go with her."

Before Varnishing.

Before varnishing furniture rub the wood with fine sand-paper to give it a smooth surface. See that brushes used are soft and of a good quality, or varnish will dry streaky.

Hardly Likely.

"The train struck a man and injured him severely."

"Was the man on the track?"

"He was. No engineer, I trust, would run the train into the woods for ever. I have ever loved you, you beauty with your secret sorrow, and I have always known that he did not

GRIZZLY BEAR MAULS HELPLESS SURVEYOR

Man Feigns Death, and Escapes With Severe Shaking by a Female Bruin.

Vanvouver, B. C.—Left for dead by an infuriated grizzly bear which had mauled him almost to unconsciousness is the nerve-racking and thrilling experience of K. C. Chipman, chief of a Dominion geological survey party, while camping on Mineral creek near Wilmer.

Mr. Chipman had gone out from camp alone with his rifle to examine the mountain side behind the camp, which is very steep, as to the best place to scale it for triangulation purposes on the morrow. Presently he sat down on a log to rest; a bear charged at him from some bushes without the slightest warning.

As he struggled to free himself, he saw a pair of cubs to one side and behind him. Unknowingly he sat down to rest between a female grizzly and her young. Firing one shot, he rushed down the steep mountain side, the bear following with such determination and force that it rushed clean past him. Instantly Mr. Chipman turned and went back up the hill. A bear, however, can run faster up hill than down, he was quickly caught by the huge beast and shaken as easily as a terrier shakes a rat. Luckily the fierce shaking caused the bear to lose her footing on the steep hillside and both rolled together some distance down before bringing up.

It was now that Mr. Chipman displayed the courage and presence of mind that saved his life, for bringing up among some bushes he lay perfectly quiet, feigning death. Satified, after sniffing him all over, that he really was so, the bear ambled away to her cubs.

On his men getting to him he was carried into camp, where it was found that the leather leggings worn by Mr. Chipman had saved his right leg, but not so with the left, which was badly torn.

Orient, Wash.—With fifteen passengers aboard a bobbed coasting down Main street, and directed so as to cross the Kettle river bridge, struck a rock, missed the bridge and plunged down thirty feet over large stones and stumps to the river. A merry party had been coasting for two hours, and the ride, which ended in the accident, was characterized as the "good night" ride.

All the passengers received cuts and bruises, but three were painfully hurt.

Mrs. W. C. Montgomery suffered two broken ribs and several sprains and bruises. Miss Clara A. Hoosley, principal of the school, sustained injuries in the back. Miss Glyn Ledgerwood received injuries in the back, but is recovering.

Montgomery's drug store was transformed into an emergency hospital, and Drs. Bailey and Calder engaged themselves in stitching and bandaging far into the night.
