AUSTRIA GIVES WAY BEFORE RUSS ADVANCE

Troops of Francis Joseph Unable to Resist Impetuous Rush of Invaders.

CLAIM VICTORY FOR ALLIES

French War Office Maintains That Enemy is Being Steadily Pushed Back From Paris—Belgians Lost Heavily at Liege—High Death Rate of German Officers Officially Announced—Berlin Admits Retreat.

The British government on September 14 was momentarily expecting news of the surrender of the remains of two great Austrian armies. These, commanded by Generals von Auffenberg and Dankl, had been shattered by the Russians in Galicia. The Austrians made desperate endeavors to concentrate in the vicinity of Rawarska, but have been completely surrounded.

Caught between rivers, unable to protect wagon trains or transport artillery in a marshy country, the Austrians have been cut off from food supplies and ammunition and are at the mercy of the Russian horsemen and guns.

It is estimated that the Austrian generals were unable to withdraw 180,000 men after disastrous defeats at Knasnik and Tomasow, which succeeded overwhelming reverses at Lublin and Lemberg, and that this vast force, the flower of Francis Joseph's army, will be made prisoners.

Germans Driven From Brussels. Passengers arriving at Folkestone from Flushing brought the rumor that the Anglo-Belgian army had reoccupied Brussels, the Germans having previously evacuated the city.

The precipitate flight of the German right wing is being continued, said a report sent on the 14th, and their left, while giving more resistance to the constant attacks of the allies, is slowly retreating.

The latest official announcement, made, says that the forward march of the allies is being kept up along the whole front and that the armies are in constant contact with the enemy. The allies' left has crossed the River Celine.

The evacuation of Amiens by the Germans, previously reported in news dispatches, was officially announced. Lille also has been evacuated by the enemy.

An official statement says:

"1. On our left wing the enemy continues his retreating movement. He has evacuated Amiens, falling back to the eastward between Soissons and Reims. The Germans have retired northward from the Vesle. They have not defended the Marne to the southeast of Reims.

"2. At the center the enemy, though it has lost Rixen and Brabant-le-Roi, still holds the south end of the Forest of Argonne.

"On our right the hostile forces which were along the Meuse are beating a retreat beyond St. Die and Luneville. We have reoccupied Dron, Le Tape, Baccarat, Remiremont, Nomay and Pontamousson.

"In the Belgian field of operation the Belgian army has vigorously taken the offensive to the south of Lire."

Mourning German Regiment.
There have been many pitiful scenes enacted at the headquarters of the One Hundred and Fourteenth German infantry, says a dispatch from Constantine, Italy. The regiment is reported to have been practically destroyed.

Thousands of Belgians Slain.
A telegram to the London Observer from a correspondent at Antwerp from a correspondent at Antwerp last Thursday says:

"The authorities are preparing an official casualty list of the operations at Liege and I am informed it will show that no fewer than 27,000 Belgian soldiers were killed in that heroic defense."

German Death List 6,535.

There is a high death rate among the German officers. The ratio of wounded to dead is about two to one. The total casualties, as given out in Berlin, are 6,535 killed, 8,391 seriously and 42,242 slightly wounded.

News of the German retreat, despite every precaution, has passed through Switzerland to the north and caused profound depression in Germany, after so many announced victories.

According to advices received at Geneva, Switzerland, people have gathered in the streets in various German towns, shouting: "Tell us the truth! Give us the news!"

The newspaper offices at Munich have been closed, as disorders break out. It is reported that the news of the steady retirement of the Germans in France has trickled into Berlin and humiliated the people.

Along the Swiss-German frontier the full extent of the German retreat is known. People are crying: "If the French have beaten us, what will the Russians do?"

Belgian Admits Retreat.
The retreat of the Germans who attacked the allied forces between Meaux and Montmirail in France was officially admitted by Berlin. The retreat was attributed to the numerical superiority of the allies.

On Monday it was asserted in dispatches from London that Thermonde, Belgium, a town of 150,000 inhabitants, was almost destroyed by German troops. Only the town hall and one church are intact.

According to a Munich report received at Paris the Berlin garrison alone has lost 42,000 men killed or wounded in the war thus far. The Munich report evidently refers to men of the Berlin garrison who went to the front at the outbreak of the war.

French Minister of War Millerand ordered prefects throughout France to arrest all men liable to military duty not already in service. By this means the government expects to get at least 200,000 more troops.

There was no confirmation of the news published in the German newspapers of the fall of Maubeuge.

A Reuter dispatch from Petrograd received at London stated that the Austrians had evacuated Cracow, their strongest post in Galicia. This clears the way to the Russian march on Berlin.

Britain Adds to Army.
Premier Asquith asked parliament to add another half-million men of all ranks to the regular army. After a short debate the motion was unanimously adopted.

A correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph company sent the following from Rome: A Vienna message states that Archduke Frederick lost 120,000 men in the recent Galician battles, or one-fourth of his entire command.

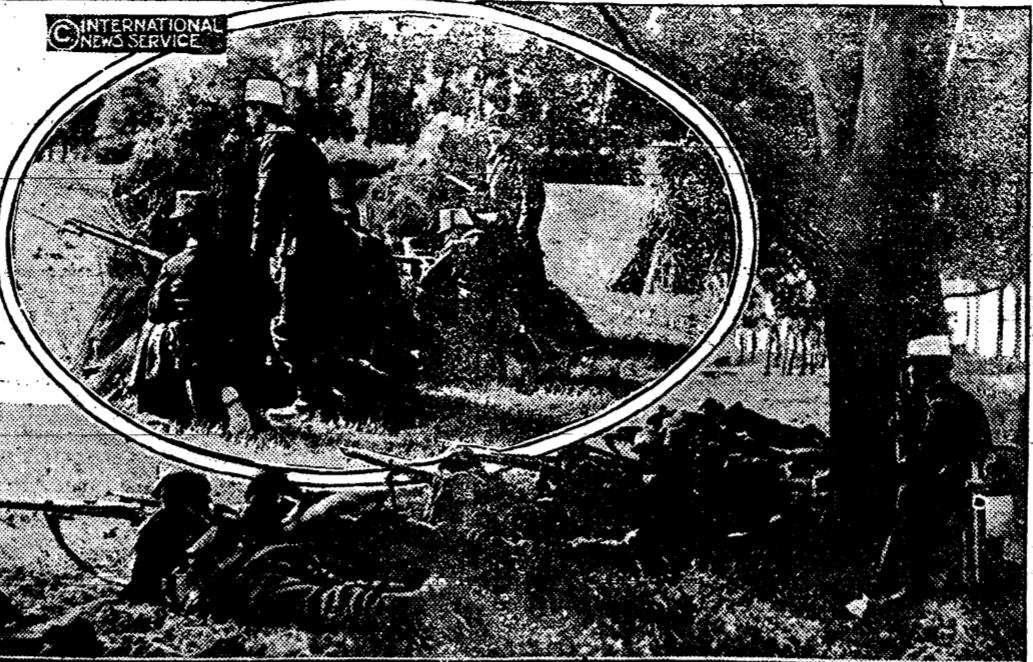

Belgian Commission Arrives.

The King of Belgium's commission, which was sent to place before President Wilson accounts of alleged German atrocities in Belgium and of Germany's violation of Belgium's neutrality arrived at New York Friday.

In the midst of the European war Great Britain, France, Spain and China have agreed to sign peace commission treaties with the United States. One effect of the new conventions is to bring the United States from being drawn suddenly into the conflict.

PLUCKY BELGIANS DEFENDING THEIR COUNTRY

RESULT OF VOTE FINALLY KNOWN

SECOND PLACE ON REPUBLICAN TICKET IN DOUBT SINCE PRIMARY.

DICKINSON IS THE WINNER

Meeting of State Board of Canvassers Brings Out Fact That Charlotte Man Has Plurality of 503.

Lansing—Luren D. Dickinson of Charlotte was nominated as the Republican candidate for lieutenant governor on the Republican ticket was 202,175.

The Republican vote was divided as follows: Chase S. Osborn, 58,405; Frederick C. Martindale, 47,942; Alex. Groesbeck, 43,937; William S. Linton, 30,443; George E. Ellis, 22,348.

FOUR DROWNED IN ELK LAKE

Boat Capsizes and All Occupants Are Lost in High Sea.

Traverse City—Alex. Y. Sharpe, proprietor of the Lakeview house at Elk Rapids, his 7-year-old daughter, Miss Marie Drew, of Provenmont, and Miss May Hickey, of Elk Rapids, were drowned at the outlet of the river into Elk lake Sunday afternoon.

The party started out for a row, but found the sea too high on the lake and in making a turn the boat capsized and all were drowned. Chas. Beebe was the only one who witnessed the accident and although he hurried to the rescue he was unable to reach them in time to be of assistance. Miss Drew was visiting Mrs. Sharpe at the hotel.

Special Elections Are Required.

Lansing—With vacancies in the probate judgeship in three counties—Benzine, Baraga and Clinton—Gov.

The position of the troops, as stated in the French reports, is that the German right army is retreating beyond the River Vesle, which runs between the towns of Soissons and Reims. The Germans forces in the center, which had penetrated farthest south, are falling back north of Vitry-le-Francois and Seizaine and have crossed the River Marne, and in the hilly wooded country between Vitry and Verdun the Germans have lost Revin and Brant-le-Rol.

Driven Half Way to Frontier.

Broadly speaking, the German lines to the northeast of Paris have been driven back by the allies about half way to the Belgian frontier. They now extend from a point north of Aisne to the Argonne region and are open the way again for their advance on Paris, or be their last stand in France, for the present, at least.

Decisive Battle Now On.

German reports have for several days said the "great, decisive battle" was yet to come. Evidently it has come.

Official statements from the Paris and London war offices said the allies were still driving the Germans back toward the frontiers of Belgium, Luxembourg and Germany, and that on the extreme east of the fighting line the French had driven the invaders across the Lorraine border.

A dispatch from Bordeaux said desperate fighting was in progress in the passes of the Vosges mountains, with the Germans retreating.

In the general retreat the German center, which the Kaiser had ordered to pierce the French front, was reported to be far north of Vitry-le-Francois, where the supreme attack was made and failed.

French Military Writers. While they do not go so far as to say that the Germans are incapable of pulling themselves together and making an other stand, they say it is unlikely that General von Kluck will be able to form his forces and give battle in France, unless the allies, breathless from their prolonged struggle, are compelled to halt.

Judge Clarence W. Sessions, in federal court, has appointed George B. Puffer, of Kalamazoo, and Max Berg, of New York City, city receivers for the Kalamazoo Corset company, operating principally in Kalamazoo and conducting a large branch in Davenport, Iowa. The action leading to the appointment of the receiver was voluntary on the part of the creditors and the defendant company.

MAINZ, CENTER OF GERMAN OPERATIONS

This armed sky-cruiser is the best equipped of England's fighters of the air. The pilot is above and the gunner below, with his gun so mounted that it can be pointed in any direction.

The army of General von Kluck, which so long battled to turn the allies' western flank, was itself slowly and steadily outflanked. Its retreat before the small but hardy British army turned the tide of battle. A week ago it was a few miles to the southeast of Paris, and now it has retaken more than sixty miles to the northeast.

On the extreme right of the army of the Bavarian crown prince, which was attacking the French eastern line from Nancy to Epinal, has fallen back to the frontiers of Lorraine, permitting the French to reoccupy Lunéville and several other towns.

Last Sunday Darkest Day.

Last Sunday was the darkest day of the war for the allies. The French government emigrated from Paris to Bordeaux in a long, sad procession of motor cars. An attack upon the capital appeared imminent, and the main German force had hammered a huge wedge into France between Paris and Verdun.

London—Germany's armies have turned in their retreat in France and are making a stand north of the Aisne river and about Reims for decisive battle with the allies.

Berlin dispatches, which announce a new plan of campaign on the part of the Germans, say the "new engagement is now in progress with results, so far, favorable to the invaders." The Paris war office, in announcing the new phase of the situation, merely said the enemy was offering resistance on the line of the Aisne and to the north and northwest of Reims.

That such a stand was about to be made by the Germans was indicated in various reports received early Monday morning and throughout the day.

These reports stated that the Germans, while retreating all along the line from a few miles east of Amiens to Verdun, seemed to be concentrating in great numbers on the Aisne river. Troops from the right and center of the Germans have evidently joined in the conflict now on, which must either open the way again for their advance on Paris, or be their last stand in France, for the present, at least.

HAPPENINGS in the BIG CITIES

Tall Man From Inkster Suffers Geometric Jag

DETROIT, MICH.—A tall man from Inkster came into the city the other night and got all mixed up with the traffic here. When he stopped at an interurban car, he found the street marked off in squares, oblongs, semi-circles, rectangles, parallelograms, obtuse and acute triangles and right angle triangles.

He was so mystified on the hypotenuse of one of the latter, he spoke to a policeman as follows:

"Mister, I don't get into the city very often and what you'll find is my ignorance. What I want to know is this: Why has Detroit become so subdivided to its main thoroughfares? Is it here to be a paradise or just a game of tennis?"

The policeman said it was nothing to get facts about.

"Formerly," the policeman continued, "you could cross Woodward avenue and not know at just what point of the road you were going to be. Now that you hit the pedestrian right of way, you can't get across Woodward avenue. It's sort of concentrates our accidents. Now, the pedestrian can get hit harder and with a more reasonable degree of certainty."

Police officers explained that by walking within the limits of an elongated pedestrian, you can't get across Woodward avenue. The lines do not entirely remove the certainty of being struck by any one of the following: Automobiles, street cars, motorcycles, trucks, horses, circus parades, elephants, ponies and other night-blooming insects. They are supposed merely to provide the limits.

Cops are gradually becoming reconciled to walking by rule. Lots of people come downtown at night think it's a game. The other night a man tried to walk one of the lines on the campus to prove he still possessed manly powers.

An ambulance later collected him and carried him away.

Dog Was Unable to Pick His Master in Court

NEW YORK.—Besides reviving empty pocketbooks, broken umbrellas and other property that had been left by the property clerk at police stations awaiting claimants the office has one of the unclaimed "articles" a nice white bull terrier.

The dog was claimed by two men, Frank W. Quade, sitting in police court, with Solomonides widow determined to let the dog decide for himself. But there was a hitch in the dog's mind. He was so fond of the dog that a dog that could not pick his own master was not worth much, so he sent the terrier to the property clerk.

Henry R. Stevens, piano dealer, was walking in Broadway at Forty-fourth street with a white bull terrier on a leash when Frank Mauras, automobile salesman, seized the animal and said:

"Mr. Stevens, your arrest, and both men and the dog and Mrs. Mauras went to the police court.

When the dog was released from a pen Mr. Mauras called him: "Here, Henry!" cried Mr. Stevens, and the sickle animal instantly changed his affections and licked the face of the man who had called him.

When Mrs. Mauras called him the dog bounded gaily to her.

"I am unable to decide his ownership, and will dismiss the complaint against Mauras and send the dog to the property clerk to be held for an owner."

Mrs. Schaeuener Has the Habit of Sleep-Walking

ST. LOUIS, MO.—Mrs. Julie Schaeuener of No. 115 Channing avenue is a confirmed somnambulist. Her nocturnal strolls have been interrupted by the police more than a dozen times in the last few months. The last occurrence was when she narrowly escaped walking into an automobile on Channing and Bell avenues at two o'clock in the morning. She was returning to her home after a walk with her husband, Cummings, who turned her back to avoid a collision.

Frank Cummings, chauffeur for Fred Warner, was driving his employer home and about one-half mile from Channing avenue on Bell avenue when Mrs. Schaeuener, clad in a nightgown and carrying in her outstretched hand a small dog, walked across the street.

Channing avenue in the path of Mrs. Schaeuener's sleep-walking machine. Cummings turned his car suddenly to the south to avoid striking the woman and hit the temporary tracks of the Hodamont line with such force that the machine threw over on its side. Warner and Cummings both got out and were helped with horses.

Mrs. Schaeuener, still asleep and unconscious of the accident she had caused, was turned over to a patrolman, who disarmed her, awakened her and took her home.

Two weeks ago Mrs. Schaeuener walked in her sleep ten blocks from her home. On that occasion her relatives told the policeman who accompanied her home that they believed the only way they could stop her from leaving home in her sleep was to put extra-locks on her bedroom door.

She had been picked up by patrolmen on the Dayton street district on previous occasions while walking about in her sleep.

Barnyard Opera Is O. K. Vender's Shouts? No

CHICAGO.—They may have to put up with barnyard grand opera in Evansville, Ind., but they draw the line at the peddlers' grand up roar. The campaign against this crowing of roosters, mooting of cows and barking of dogs at night has fallen down hard, but the inhabitants of the peaceful and temperate Indiana suburb reach their limit.

"I can't put the lid on the dogs and the chickens and the cows," said Sergeant Dennis McHenry, who is to give a speech to the public to nominate campaign. "They call me up to kick night and day until they are a worse nuisance than the noises."

With his buntions, bumblebees and displaced vertebrates, Bull Zeider need not fear the kaiser will call him back to Germany for duty.

Wingo and Lee Magee, the only globe trotters on Miller Huggins' team, are likewise the only 300 hitters in the Cardinal team.

"With his buntions, bumblebees and displaced vertebrates, Bull Zeider need not fear the kaiser will call him back to Germany for duty."

Lajoie, of the Naps, hopes that if he is traded he won't have to go to Zinnstadt. Lajoie's French and Zinnstadt is well, know Zinnstadt.

Bill McKechnie, formerly with the New York ranks, is now up-keeping in the Federal league. Hay Myers of the Brooklands ranks next to McKechnie.

The Denver club is trying to strengthen its playing staff and has signed up a boy from the Cleveland American association club who was released recently.

"They blow whistles and ring bells and whistle and shout, and it's all got to stop," he declared. "Arrest every peddler in town caught burglarizing the sun-dodgers who sleep in the daytime. We are receiving many complaints and the nuisance must stop."

Natural Question.

"Our small daughter is very fond of her bath, writes a contributor to Harper's Magazine, but she objects vigorously to the bathing process. One day she said to me, 'I want to bathe, but I don't like the water to go with her, she said, 'Why, what would happen, mamma, if you didn't wipe me dry? I would get rusty!'

But Think of His Friends. Our ideal of a really democratic man is one who sticks to five-cent cigars no matter how much money he may make.—Atlanta Journal.

The Ambition of Mark Truitt

By HENRY RUSSELL MILLER

Author of
"THE MAN HIGHER UP," "HIS RISE TO POWER," Etc.

(Copyright, 1913, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company)

SYNOPSIS.

Mark Truitt, encouraged by his sweet native town, set out to make his fortune. His dreams are still steel plants at Bethel, but he is not yet rich. Mark applied to the "Man Higher Up" for a job. The "Man" works for a job and is sent to the company. He is given a place as helper to Roman, a man who has become a boor. Roman becomes a boor in Roman's home and becomes a boor in the home of Mrs. Kasia, an adopted daughter, shows her Mark's interest in her. Her work is to make up the dress of Mrs. Kasia, care for Mark to collapse and Kasia cares for Mark. Later Roman goes to Boston to find a job, and tells Mark to find a place during which Mark has advanced his fortune. In the meantime, Mark has been adopted by Jim Whiting, Mark meets with an accident, and Jim Whiting goes to Boston to find a place. He returns to Bethel intending to stay there, but he is not yet rich. He wants to win another man and win her back. Gatsby offers him to return to his work in the city.

CHAPTER XII.—Continued.

There had been a snow, hard packed by trams, and the blacked caught the sight swiftly along through the dusk. When the crowded business section lay behind them, Henry remarked: "I saw your little charity back there."

"He was a scamp."

"Henry nodded. "That's your greatest asset."

"Your health."

"I'll show you men," Mark answered grimly. "But I don't quite get your point of view."

"It's for you," he said. "There's a lot of you men. They're here, and they're there, and they're always nagging him, and they're always breathing in the keen frosty air."

When he resumed, no one could have guessed from his tone that he was toward a given point. "Right-behind-the-ear" words. One woman "has" him.

"Exactly my point." For a few blocks Henry apparently gave himself a few moments to think. "I'll show you men that he's a scamp, and he's a scamp, and he's a scamp."

"Then she came up with the plans and specifications."

"I mean," she said, "that he's a scamp, and he's a scamp, and he's a scamp."

"Then he smoked, slowly and very appreciably, a mild cigar, which lasted until Higbee had consumed the second."

"Higbee," Higbee asked once, shiffling his chair. "Did you get Henley to mind today?"

"Mrs. Henley called?"

"Yes?" Mark's voice did not reveal the secret so much as it revealed the secret of his own interest.

"Yes?" mimicked Unity. "Is that all you can say? But I suppose, if you don't mind, though you know what it is, it's all right."

"Just what does it mean to you, Unity?"

"It means," he somewhat dithyrambically, "that I have won the heart of my shipmate. I've tried so hard for three years to win."

"I can't see, and men have not been known to do, and leave him to his own devices, but I can't see with an evident effort. 'We've gone over all this a hundred times. I'll see.'"

"Vesting was in his voice. "I can't see, and men have not been known to do, and leave him to his own devices, but I can't see with an evident effort. 'We've gone over all this a hundred times. I'll see.'"

He had need to be introduced to the atmosphere as he and Unity faced that round of people who—well, were in their drawing room. He limped with something less than his limp, across the room to meet his hostess, who murmured graciously something quite familiar.
