Even Satan, in Medieval Paintings, Wears a Halo

Saints, in pictures, are usually represented with halos. Angels likewise. Why? Ask the next man you meet, and you will find him guessing at the reason.

Most people supposed that halos were not worn until within the 1900 year or so. But that isn't true.

Roman emperors and even consuls were pictured with halos long before the birth of Christ. And, if history tells of them truly, they were neither saints nor angels.

The halo was originally a pagan symbol of power. Thus it is not very surprising to find Satan represented, in medieval paintings, with a halo.

In that period it was customary to depict living personages of great authority with square halos.

It began to rain Wednesday morning. The ground was quite dry and farmers say the rain was needed.

The Pope's Triple Crown.

Originally the tiara, or triple crown, of the pope was a plain high cap, much like those in which doves of Venice are so often represented in old pictures. It was first introduced by Pope Nicholas I in 800.

Just when the first coronet was added is a matter of uncertainty, but the second was placed by Pope Boniface VIII in 1295 and the third by Pope Urban V about 1395.

It has been held that the three crowns refer to the Holy Trinity, though that evidently could not have been the original idea, for they would certainly have not been added one after the other with an intervening period in each case of many years.

Some authorities contend that they denote the three-fold royalty of the bishop of Rome, one being the symbol of temporal power over the Roman States, another the spiritual power exercised over the souls of men, and the third the authority over all the kings and pontifices of Christendom.

THE STAR SPANGLED BANNER

Oh, say, can you see by the dawn's early light, What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming, Whose broad stripes and bright stars through the perilous fight, O'er the ramparts we watched were so gallantly streaming?

And the rockets' red glare, the bombs bursting in air, Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there.
Oh, say, does that Star Spangled Banner yet wave O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

On the shore dimly seen through the mists of the deep Where the foe's haughty host in dread silence reposes, What is that which the breeze o'er the towering steep As it fitfully blows, half conceals, half discloses?

Now it catches the gleam of the morning's first beam, In full glory reflected, now shines on the stream:
'Tis the Star Spangled banner; oh, long may it wave O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

And where is that band who so vauntingly swore That the havoc of war and the battle's confusion A home and a country should leave us no more?
Their blood has washed out their foul footsteps' pollution.

No refuge could save the hireling and slave

From the star-spangled banner in triumph shall wave O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

Oh, thus be it ever when freemen shall stand Between their loved homes and wild war's desolation; Blessed with victory and peace, may the heav'n-rescued land

Praise the power that has made and preserved us a nation!

Then conquer we must, when our cause it is just,
And this be our motto: "In God is our trust!"

And the Star Spangled Banner in triumph shall wave O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

Nation, Like an Individual, Should Be Punished for Its Misdeeds

By REV. ROBERT A. ASHWORTH, Pastor First Baptist Church, Milwaukee, Wisc.

In all private and personal relations it is a Christian duty to exercise self-control and live in charity with all men. Forbearance, however, is not merely a duty, it is reprehensible when exhibited toward those who deliberately inflict injury upon the race. Hatred is ruled out, to be sure, with vindictiveness, rancor and blood-for-blood fury.

The monstrous and hideous character of this temper is demonstrated in the propaganda of hate deliberately encouraged and diffused in Germany today. "People think us phlegmatic," said Treitschke, "but we are the greatest haters in the world." But while hatred is to be deplored, so also is any sickly and sentimental pacifism.

At the present hour Germany stands indicted as a criminal nation. It alone is responsible for the war and for the frightfulness of its character. It is guilty of deliberate crimes against humanity, premeditated outrages against civilization. When an individual runs amuck, stabbing and slashing at the passersby indiscriminately, we call the police and put him in an insane asylum or prison, and if he is responsible for his misdeeds society puts him to death. Shall men scruple to take action as drastic when it is a nation, a tremendously powerful nation, and not a weak individual? The safety of the world demands it. Peace, civilization demand it.

Keep Lower Ribs Expanded If You Would Gain Maximum Efficiency, Warns Doctor

Square your shoulders.
Make yourself as tall as you can and keep slightly sway-backed.

Keep the lower ribs expanded at the sides.

This, writes Dr. Silas Wright Goss of New York, in the Medical Record, gives you the attitude of maximum vital efficiency.

Elaborating the three rules, he says only one impulse is needed, for the mind forms a picture of the attitude in its entirety and each movement cooperates with the others. The effort is to be made by sheer will-power, without consciously using any local muscular force.

Expanding the lowest ribs at the sides expands the lungs; they should be kept expanded except insofar as may be necessary to let them fall slightly inward during each expiration.

The effect of this is that in breathing the lungs will expand and contract from maximum to medium instead of from medium to slight expansion as is usual.

"The results of this are soon realized in the shape of better physical welfare and endurance along with their spiritual counterparts of greater buoyancy and will power," says the physician.

It is proper to open all entertainments by the audience arising and singing. The Star Spangled Banner.
Everybody should be familiar with the words and tune.

The farmers are making good in getting the crops under cover.

Feast or Fast?

By DR. SAMUEL G. DIXON
Commissioner of Health of Pennsylvania

In civilized life men find it impossible to pay proper attention to their meals. They cannot eat regularly and have no time to eat slowly, and they apparently will not eat what they have learned by precept and experience is fitting

for those who do work indoors that requires intense application. Falling to follow the laws of health over a period of time, they begin to feel inert mentally and physically; their work becomes a burden; eyesight loses its acuteness, while the natural white of the eye is lost and it becomes congested, showing sometimes yellow tinge; the appetite begins to fail; natural sleep is broken up and interrupted, and when awakening comes, the mind is puzzled by confused ideas.

When these symptoms are recognized, men of experience know it is because the food taken has been in excess of the demands of the body.

Such a man was a laboratory associate of mine years ago. Occasionally he would salute me in the morning and say:

"What do you prescribe, doctor, a feast or a fast?" He meant that he felt he had been neglecting all outdoor exercise for a long time and had not at all neglected taking heavy and frequent meals, until now his system was out of balance and something had to be done to restore balance.

Query, should he fast himself back to health, or should he emulate the old

Romans and start with a feast?

Most people are familiar with the ancient Roman feast, whose features we would describe nowadays more accurately with the name of orgy or debauch. These feasts always made them sick and the physical reaction would be such that no food was taken into the system for some time afterward.

So that the same result of a fast was arrived at by a different route. My associate, being a man of humorous viewpoint, was just accenting this condition.

When I asked him why he thought it was so hard to get some hilarity with it. "You get more out of treating yourself by debauch than drugs," he said, and that is the way good many people look at it, unfortunately.

The Roman custom is recognized historically as having continued long afterward. In other races, and perhaps it is still surviving today, in principle at least, among individuals here and there.

Still, the mass of our people have a more sensible view. It is known that a fast will relieve nature while she is coping with the task of overcoming extra burdens that have been laid upon the system. The debauch which is generally what high living makes of their "feast," on the contrary is seen generally as something that overloads the system and adds to nature's burden, even though it mentally stimu-lates the subject, sometimes to the point where he

WHEN ISMAIL AND THE OTHERS COMPOSING KING'S GUARD DISCOVER THE CLEVERNESS OF HIS DISGUISE, THEY ARE FIRST PUZZLED, THEN DELIGHTED.

Synopsis.—At the beginning of the world war Capt. Athelstan King of the British Indian army and of its secret service, is ordered to Delhi to meet Yasmin, a dancer, and go with her to Kinjan to meet the outlaws there who are sent by spies to be preparing for a raid on the British. Yasmin is to be his guide and to assist him and his evidence that Yasmin is after him. He meets Reva Gunga, Yasmin's man, who says she has already gone north, and at her town house witnesses queer dances. Ismail, an Afriti, the man who had sent the lookout in the desert, had been to see the beast like a British soldier would have liked.

One after another the native men picked him up and the native men who had been sent to him behind him. So, by rapid stages he developed into a native hukum, and Ismail stood with perfect understanding. The principal agent of a band of spies had been sent to him in the fifth guard, and he had to because he proceeded to bind into a turban on his head, his brother leading him a gulling, understanding finger at even his feet. When that was done, the man who had sent the lookout in the desert like a British soldier would have liked.

BRIDGEWATER

About 100 friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Frank Tirk Tuesday evening in recognition of his departure for Camp Custer. A pleasant evening was spent playing cards, visiting, and several musical selections were rendered. Gerald Walter, in behalf of the friends, presented Frank with a safety razor.

Frank thanked all for their kindness and requested all to write to him. He then displayed his outfit presented to him by the Manchester Red Cross, with which he was delighted. A potluck supper was served after which all wished Frank the best of success. He leaves for Camp Custer today.

Autos for Pigeons.

Human activities appear to move largely in a circle, despite the strides of science and thought. Before the present war, for instance, who would have thought that the carrier pigeon could be an important military factor?

But such the humble pigeon has proved to be. The French depend very largely upon them for carrying messages under extreme difficulties. It would seem that by means of the telegraph, wireless and airplane the pigeon would be useless. This conflict has proved the opposite to be true.
