Making of moving pictures is rather a novelty in Arizona, and Bisbee residents have difficulty in getting used to seeing gaudily dressed western "bad men" rushing around with artillery strapped on their belts.

Some of the real old-time westerners are apt to jump to the wrong conclusion when a "movie westerner" goes on the warpath. For this reason a moving picture company, planning to stage a holdup scene at the depot at Osborn, eight miles south of here, had the train crew warn passengers no less than ten times before reaching the station that a "movie train robbery" would be staged. In spite of this several old-timers on the train reached for their hips when the "bandits" appeared and had to be convinced by fellow passengers that the holdup was not the real thing. — Los Angeles Times.

MAY COOL HOMES IN SUMMER

Hungarian Engineer Has Designed
Evaporation Scheme to Regulate Temperature.

Americans may soon be living in "ice houses."

The houses will not be the kind in which ice is stored, but a new type of dwelling designed by Leopold Pollak, an engineer and constructor, of Budapest, Hungary. He is contemplating building a house manufacturing plant in Philadelphia so that the public will have a place to escape the sweltering heat without trekking shoreward or northward.

Mr. Pollak said that the houses will be made of insulor earth and covered with porous bricks. In appearance they will be similar to those used by the natives of South America, who use "monkey jugs," or water bottles made of pottery, to cool their homes.

The South American natives place in each corner of a room a water jug, and in a few moments the room is cooled by evaporation. Mr. Pollak does not go into detail about his new plan, but states that he can regulate the cooling of a house in summer in a similar manner as that of heating the same building in winter. He said he can make a home as cool as an ice cellar on the hottest day in the year at a cost of approximately 10 cents a day. — Philadelphia Public Ledger.
