HOTEL IS CLEARED OF FURNITURE

Auction Sale at Manchester House
Makes Lively Afternoon and Everything Is Sold.

The Manchester hotel was seemingly the objective point of everyone in town Saturday afternoon, to take part in the auction sale of furniture and fittings of the building, which is closed as a hotel and will be occupied by the Michigan Seating Co. Auctioneer Col. F. D. Merithew had not been well during the week and felt unable to cry the sale, so procured Ira Pittman of Norwell, who conducted a good sale and kept the goods moving away at a lively pace. Probably there was not much left in the house that could be called a souvenir of the early history of the hotel except the office safe which was of the pattern manufactured before the modern combinations came into use. One might say the owner carried a combination in his pocket, for there was a small block contrivance to be inserted in a hole in the door and when the knob was turned the block was thrown out and the safe was locked. Various landlords used to refer to the strong box as the "spit" safe. One of the neighboring farmers bought it and will undoubtedly find it valuable in carrying for valuable papers, etc. There were also commodes and dressers of every color, and so on, except the latest; chairs with high backs and low backs, with rockers and without and tables large and small, square and round and one fitted with a "kitty." All were eagerly sought and it looked as though no city sale of antiques had anything on the sale at the Manchester hotel. One old souvenir has been lost track of.

the old hand bell with which in the old days the landlord called his guests to meals and the sight of "mine host" standing on the front veranda artistically swinging the old bell will linger long in the memory of many citizens. What has become of the old bell we do not know.

The bar, which was located in the basement, and over which many a guest and local citizen "wet his whistle," was sold previous to the auction to Will Kerr of Bridgewater Station and will continue to serve thirsty ones though the drink in these days is exceedingly soft. And now everything went and is even yet being carried away. And now the lights are dimmed on the old house that so long served as a refuge for the traveler, so that the weary wayfarer, the tourist, the occasional passenger from the village must find accommodation somehow somewhere else.

EXCITEMENT OVER POP CORN CASE

Creditors Had a Receiver Appointed For the International Company at Brooklyn.

The American Loan and Trust Co. has been appointed receiver for the International Corn Products company of Brooklyn as a result of failure of the coopers to settle with farmers of Jackson county and six other surrounding counties for popcorn valued at $300,000, for which the firm contracted. Growers state that the firm has recently made a new offer to them of 50 cents on the dollar.

The popcorn fight has been hanging fire since 1921. At that time the growers started action to collect, after alleging that the International Corn Products company had entered into a contract for the whole output from Jackson county growers, and from growers in adjoining counties, and then had refused to take the output with the result that many farmers had lost heavily.

In the spring of 1922 an attempt was made to settle the controversy and growers agreed to settle for 3 cents instead of 5 cents per pound as per contract. When settlement was not made, the growers organized for the purpose of taking legal action. Suit was started and after hearings, judgments were granted growers. Feeling ran high over the state of affairs, as many growers in the vicinity of Brooklyn, who had all they could spare into popcorn, found themselves practically without funds.

The offices of the International Corn Products company are in Detroit and the factory is in Brooklyn.

WELL KNOWN RESIDENT PASSES

Harvey Anthony, Always a Resident Here, Was Known As Man With Many Friends.

Our Townsman G. H. Anthony, who passed away at his home early Monday morning, was born in 1858 and had lived in Manchester practically all his life and reckoned his acquaintances as friends. Never of strong physique he had for some years been in failing strength, his burden being added to by a stroke some months ago. Harvey was well known through this section as an expert blacksmith and skillful mechanic in iron working. Years ago he worked with the late Joe C. Gordan, afterwards giving up the horseshoeing and devoting himself to lighter work. In those days fish spearing was an unrestricted sport and the market for spears was large. Harvey was an expert in their manufacture and men came here from all parts of this section to purchase one of Harvey Anthony's hand-made spears. As a locksmith and worker in light metal parts he was equally skillful and exact. He was also an expert painter and paperhanger and his skill was constantly in demand in the village and surrounding country. He is survived by his wife, and three sons: Harold and Gordon of this village and Donald of Detroit; one daughter passed away in 1912. He is also survived by three sisters: Mrs. J. C. Gordan of this village, Mrs. Conlisk of Chicago, and Mrs. Rosamond Beebe of Bay View.

MEN IN PREHISTORIC TIMES

No Proof That There Was Gradual Rise From Savagery to Practice of Human Virtues.

It is proved that men—true men—existed on this earth many thousand years ago. How many no one can certainly say, but certainly longer than the period accepted as a strict dogma by Bible Christians within living memory (and still affirmed by some of them). It is not proved, but it is highly probable that there is genetic connection between man as we know him and the earlier inferior types of which evidence remains.

If a critic were to maintain that man as we know him was a vile thing for countless generations and gradually—very gradually—rose to practice the human virtues and intelligence is not proved at all. Even the vague analogy from existing savages fails. Some savages are of one character, some of another; all as old in descent as ourselves. The excessive evil affirmed of true man when first he could be so called is sheer unsupported affirmation proceeding not from evidence for we have none—but from a mood, a desire that things should be so—Yale Review.

REFUSE TO REVEAL NAMES

Odd Superstition That Prevails Among Certain Island Tribes of America and Indians.

Eight grade pupils of the county will be given 20 per cent credit in history, geography, penmanship and grammar, provided that they must exhibit specified maps and descriptions of their towns and write an historical essay. These will be placed on exhibition.

This work will be completed by a parent showing the development of the township or community and Commissioner Essery suggests Friday night, April 20th as the time for the pageant.

There is not snow enough on the ground to interfere with wheeling and wagons, buggies, sleighs, cutters and automobiles are seen coming down the pike.

The Aranacans will hardly ever tell a stranger their names, because they fear that he would thereby acquire some supernatural power over themselves. Asked his name by a stranger who is ignorant of their superstitions, an Aranacan will answer, "I have none."

When an Ojibway is asked his name he will look at some bystander and ask him to answer.

Sure! Even the apaches of the rogue's gallery know the evil omens of the real name. Hence the origin and would-be might of the "alias."

To Stop Bleeding From Nose.

When we remember that not very long ago venesection, or bleeding by the physician, was a favorite method of treatment and that leeches were used for local bleeding, we can the more readily understand that a simple attack of nosebleed is nothing to be afraid of. At the same time, however, it may be well to commit to memory a few simple precautions. The patient should always sit upright and strain hold the chin down to enable the blood to flow forward through the nose and not backward into the throat. Tight collars and bands round the neck should be loosened, and cold should be applied to the wrists or to the back of the neck. It often helps to snuff cold water up the nose. If the bleeding comes from a small spot inside the nose, the spot should be treated with an astringent or with nitrate of silver. Youth's Companion.

In Snake Charmed by Music?

There is no foundation in fact for the common belief that a snake can be "charmed" with music, according to

Allen S. Williams, director of the Republic Study Society of America. Mr. Williams bases his opinion on a series of experiments extending over a period of nearly twenty-five years.

"I have tried every sort of music," says Mr. Williams, as quoted in the Scientific American, "from a tin whistle with note holes in it to a symphony orchestra, and have used as subjects nearly every variety of snakes, but have yet to note any response on the part of the reptile."

Not All Americanisms.

"Guess," as used by the Yankee, is always chosen by the English as a typical Americanism, when, in fact, it was used by Shakespeare and Chaucer. "Allow" was formerly used in England in the same sense as in America. Special Americanisms are "sun-up," "sun-down," "completed," "ever," "hayng," "right off," or "right away," "shindig," a dance or party, usually a noisy, rough one; "shindy," a fight or row; "bark up the wrong tree," "little end of the horn," "ket up," "kibosh."

Full houses last Thursday and Friday evenings greeted presentation of "Along the Missouri" by local talent under auspices of the Young Men's club and witnessed an unusually good home talent play. Not only were the characters well impersonated but the parts were well committed to memory and more in the way of costuming and make-up added to the presentation.

G. W. Kramer, who is the moving spirit in these home theatricals, also stage manager and all round hustler, took the "heavy" as William Watson, known as kind old Bill, and added to his good reputation for portrayal of such parts. Adolf Schaeiba, as a budding politician, took the part well and without the aid of make-up represented well an upright rising young man. The part of Norwood Crane, a scheming financier, was admirably taken by Herbert Widmayer, who rose to every situation.

"Whit" Riedel departed somewhat from characters taken before, appearing as Dustin Barnes, a down-and-outer who "came back," and in both situations did splendidly. Geo. Schaeiba died with all for admiration in his portrayal of Manders Maffit, a tankard and his work was good. Rip Stoker, the hired boy, was impersonated by Rudolph Mahrl in a way that brought a laugh from all. His fall into the well and rescue by way of the windlass was especially well done and he continued to make life miserable for his employer. How much his nose helped him everybody knows.

The village school teacher was admirably impersonated by Minnie Faubauer, and she gracefully won her way to the heart of her recreant husband. Lena Haarer as the charming daughter of Manders Maffit, proved well chosen for the part and did splendidly. Pauline Binkorn was Bill's old maid sister, and though her friends might not think of her in such a character, she well proved her versatility and did exceedingly well.

Adding much to the evening's enjoyment were two duets by Maeje Jaeger and Harold Dresselhouse, who are showing improvement in their vocal work, and were roundly applauded. Music for the evening was furnished by Smith's orchestra Mahlon Smith playing drums and xylophone and Jackson musicians playing piano and saxophone.

The Friday evening program was concluded with a dance which was enjoyed by 26 couples. The young men of the club are well pleased, as receipts for the two nights ran close to $200. They now talk of another play for St. Patrick's day.

The best beaver, the choice dark prime for beavers, are raised in northern Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota. At present there is no open season for killing or trapping beaver but many states have laws which farmers may obtain permits for breeding the animals. The best skins sell for about $35 apiece. Mr. Bailey says that by breeding the best varieties and carefully selected, very beautiful, almost black furs could be raised and sold for $75 apiece.
