Confusion Prevails On Hospital Issue

PRESIDENT TRUMAN, in making his second appeal to this congress for a nationwide medical aid program, included the controversial health insurance question as well as establishment of more hospitals and securing of more doctors in areas where they are needed. And these issues are in rural districts.

Under the act then, there should have been available 10 million dollars for the 1947 fiscal year, instead of the 10 million dollars for the 1946 fiscal year. As a matter of fact, however, no appropriation was made.

To complete the confusion along comes this congress and in the labor-federal security appropriation bill again failed to appropriate any money, instead authorizing "the amount of contract authorization" in other words, under this ambiguous language, a state that had set up a hospital program under the national hospital act for any four million dollars, approved by the public health service, would be deemed to have "contractual relationship with the federal government for that amount."

The senate, taking note of the loose language, amended the bill by limiting the "contractual obligation" agreement to 40 million dollars. So it turns out as a result of this involved legislative maneuvering that, although under the law there is supposed to be 100 million dollars now available for hospital construction, actually no money will be available after contracts totaling 40 million dollars have been approved.

Sen. Claude Pepper of Florida is considered one of the most able debaters on the floor of the senate and many senators taking issue with him have found they come out second best in the encounter. But recently after the Florida had completed a particularly impassioned speech, San. Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin said in his feet and droily remarks:

"Mr. President, I never rise in the senate after listening to my distinguished friend from Florida, but I wish that his great abilities and great fervor of expression were devoted to what I call a little more to be libeled."

Education Suffers

THE story behind the scenes is that despite weeks of hearings, listening to scores of witnesses, teachers, educators, farm and business leaders who came here from all sections of the country, there likely will be no federal aid for either teachers or schools at this session of congress although a dozen individual bills on the subject have been introduced.

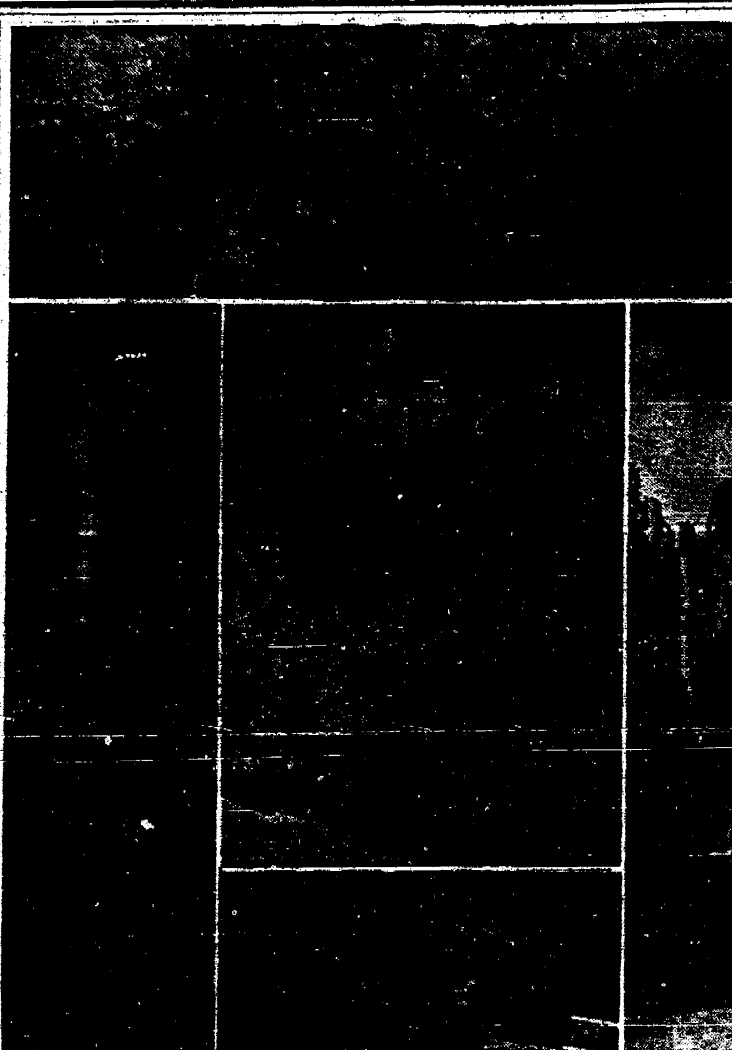

Mrs. R. C. P. Weagy, representing more than a million rural women and president of the American Farm Bureau Associated Women's organization, told the house education-committee that neglect of the education of rural children will result in weakness in efficiency of both urban and rural people.

"For, within three generations," Mrs. Weagy said, "90 per cent of the people of America will have come from a farm, home and rural school."

The irony of all these hearings is that when the bill comes up next session the committee will do the whole thing over, probably calling the same witnesses. The obsolete, expensive way house and senate committees do business indicates they do not trust each other. A house committee will hold an executive hearing and when the bill gets to the senate, the senate committee holds the same kind of a hearing, calling the same witnesses instead of doing the obvious and taking a transcript of the house hearings.

Senator Taft of Ohio was in a state of pique when vote came for final passage of the national science foundation bill in the senate. After debating in support of the bill, which provides for a 20 million dollar annual appropriation for training young scientists in basic scientific research, he lost out on an amendment which gave the President the power to appoint the director of the foundation. The amendment was adopted 41 to 41 and so respectful was Taft that he voted against the whole bill as final passage.

Kathleen Norris Says:

The Old Lady of the Family
Bell Syndicate—WNU Feature

"There are old ladies who are unmitigated pests, and there are old ladies who are angels, filling in all the gaps in the younger household."

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

IF YOU are the old lady of the family, stop now and then and take stock of yourself.

Ask yourself what you are doing that annoys the family, or any member of it, and helps make trouble. The position of an old lady who is dependent upon her family, and living with son or daughter, is an extremely hard one. It is bound to be full of small vexations, humiliations, limitations of which the younger crowd doesn't dream. They try to be considerate and generous, but most of the time it just isn't possible; life swells on at 60 days rapid pace, and Mama just has to take it, and make the best of it.

So Mama has real reason to feel aggrieved, and the nurses her troubles and exaggerates them until they break out on the surface. They break out in sharp and bitter jabs at the younger people, in complaints, in comparisons, in spite and periods of depression, and all these lower the home average of content and serenity, and give everyone a chance to mutter impatiently. "Oh, it's just Mama again!"

Now, since George and Marjorie are so much together, it is wonderful as they are, are not going to change, and the children can't be expected to grasp the situation. It isn't fair, of course, for Mama to be the one to make the concessions. But if Mama is to be the one to make the concessions, she must be able to do so without a word, realizing the past and the future, and the children can't be expected to grasp the situation. It isn't fair, of course, for Mama to be the one to make the concessions.

Another existing adventure also awaits the tourist in the Pacific Northwest, there are endless miles of forest sanctuary, quiet canyon retreats and legends of wildlife in their native habitat. There are long, sunny days for hiking, horseback riding or casting for the elusive brook, locket or rainbow trout. There are cool, moonlit evenings for sitting around a campfire or before the fireplace in a secluded cabin.

There are rugged roads through the Black Hills and Harvey National forests that open new vistas of breath-taking scenery at every turn as the vacationist gets deeper into the mountains. Instead of through the forest, there is a customary on-main-traveled thoroughfare. Wild life abounds. Reindeer, the furry inhabitants of the lakes and streams, there are wild deer, elk and antelope and around them, as is customary on main-traveled thoroughfares.

Announce New Award Schedule In 4-H Program

Here's good news for 4-H Club members in Michigan.

An all-expense trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago is now provided for the state winner of the 1947 4-H Farm Safety Program.

Formerly only sectional winners received trip awards. There will be no sectional recognition this year. This change increases the probable number of Chicago trip winners in 4-H safety from 16 to 46.

Last year's state winner in Michigan was John Miller, Jr., of Filer City, who received a $25 U. S. Savings Bond.

Medals of honor for a maximum of five members in each participating county, and a special plaque also provided by General Motors to the county reporting the most outstanding 4-H safety program in the state this year, will be awarded as in the past.

In 1946, county winners were named in Allegan, Antrim, Baraga, Benzie, Branch, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Chippewa, Emmet, Genesee, Grand Haven, Grand Rapids, Ingham, Isabella, Leelanau, Lehigh, Mackinac, Manistee, Marquette, Mecum, Montcalm, Muskegon, Ogemaw, Ontonagon, Oshtemo, Oscoda, Otsego, Owasco, Oyster Bay, Presque Isle, Roscommon, Saginaw, Sanilac, Shiawassee, St. Ignace, St. Joseph, Tawas, Tuscola, Van Buren, Washtenaw, and Winnebago.

This is the fifth consecutive year that the award is being given to a county reporting a steadily increasing number of rural people in becoming safety-minded.

The program is conducted under the direction of the State Agricultural College Extension Service.
