Casing the Capital

W ASHINGTON has been overrun with tourists this summer, the greatest influx of visitors in history of flux of visitors in history of the capital. Main points of in-terest in the metropolitan area, of course, are the capitol building, the white House and the Washington monument. The Smithscalan insti-tute, the Lincoln memorial, the scores of other points of historical interest and the beautiful govern-ment buildings keep the sightseeing busses filled to cancelty.

Most impressive things about Washington to the average townis, aside from the points of historical interest, are the cleanliness of the city, the wide tree-lined streets and avenues, the beauty of the numberless parks, the magnificence of the government buildings, the various ambassies on Mastachusetts arems and 16th street and the "circles" scattered throughout the city, from which as many as in streets emanate in all directions.

difficult to understand. But there are some things our totalitarian neighbors would never be able to understand about us. They just would not get it. The way we are Barry FITZGERALD guid and fasted over the labor to Congress just passed, for examp Then when the bill became la-we all settled down to see if ARTHUR P. HOLSTEIN

In our kind of set-up, people at given credit for being able to thin. r themselves. Facts are easy for themselves. Facts are easy get hold of. Viewpoints may be freely expressed. We make u-our minds, and our representative at the seat of government try tearry out our wishes. Things d carry out our wishes. Ithings do not go like this in the totalitarian countries. Such questions would never be placed before the people in the first place. Regardless of everything else, the will of the dictator would prevail.

Labor Shows Spirit

Laber Shows Spirit
Organized labor, in its attitude toward the Taft-Hartley Bill. has demonstrated the manner in which the "people's mandate" is accepted in a land where laws are determined by the will of the majority, but where all minerities are respected. The bill was the most contraversial legislation to came up in troversial legislation to come up years. Much feeling was developed. Lobbying was everywhere. Yet, when the labor bill became law over the President's veto, and of labor affirmed there would be no general protest strikes. Rightly, they declared they would test it in the courts, where laws should be they declared they would test it in the courts, where laws should be tested. It the tegislation is in error, time will tell. In the true American tradition of fairness and justice, we are awaiting the proving and testing of the new law.

The Way It Works

Now, I would like to say that the whole nation's economy is the direct result of this sort of thing. We may not like the decision of the majority, but we go along and make it work. We hank on the majority being right. We are willing to let the majority, through our elected representatives, write the laws.

Economics used to be a big word. Now, nearly everybedy understands it to mean the way we use our resources and consume our wealth. This includes production, buying, and selling. It includes the activities of labor and of management. Traditionally, in this country, we have allowed our economy to remain free of artificial barriers which would hamper its natural laws, like that of supply and demand, for instance. iaws, like that of supply and de-mand, for instance.

The important thing is: free trad-ing and buying and selling (that is, is an economy which freely belongs to the people), works best when we have a truly representative govern-ment. They go hand in hand. Ty-rants and dictators never let these things go free. A restricted econ-omy and a non-representative gov-omy and a non-representative government, you'll find, are always part and parcel of the totalitarian method. This method never pays high wages. In America we have a great land. We pay the highest wager men ever earned. Let's keep the that want and food.

TAKE NOTICE. That this suit, in which the foregoing Order was duly made, involved and is brought to quiet title to the following described piece or partial of land stimate and being in dividend income.

The 4.5 billion dollars earned a cel of land situate and being in the County of Washtenaw and State of Michigan, described as economic life. For the most part this is the source of the laboring man's income. This 28 per cen follows, to-wit:

"Beginning at the north west corner of section number seven in town number four south, range number four east, Town ship of Bridgewater and running thence east, eleven chains and the sevent links, thence south paragraph links, the south links are south links and the south links are south l corporations receive a minority share.

Despite these sobering statistics, there are many who would call for a change. There are those who would take the responsibility away seventy links; thence south par-allel with the west line of said section, twenty six chains and sixty two links to the center of sixty two links to the center of the Saline Road; thence west the saline Road; thence west the saline from the individual and vest it in a central authority. It is paradoxical that these interests would "give Road to the township line; thence north along said township the wealth to the people" in a na tion where the majority of the peo line, twenty four chains and six-ty six links to the place of begintion where the majority of the peo-ple now receive the majority of the income. They would junk our successful economy to institute an unproved one—all to achieve an ideal which we have achieved al-icady in greater measure than hening. You may make your own mattress pads out of bleached or unbleached muslin with a soft material inside for the padding. The important thing about them is the sleeping comfort they yield, as well as the soiling the night — washable silk, cotton, challis, rayon, crepe, sheer or muslin.

Blanket covers do not take the place of a daytime spread, although some are lace trimmed or elaborately monogrammed, but they are nice when the room is used in the way around. This works out all right, provided the pad does not shink too much in the washing.
