Bronson's platform for the 1960 can paign is that he is "the judge who keeps his promises." In support of this position

He promised to end long delays in court occedings at the expense of defendants

After taking the Fourteenth District bench in 1974, Judge Bronson increased tape and speeded hearings so that the list of criminal jury cases awaiting trial was reduced from 114 to fewer than ten. All cases are now brought to trial in less than 60 days unless additional preparation time is requested and justified.

By eliminating unnessary delays and preventing wasted court appearances, Judge Bronson is now saving litigants. defendants and witnesses from fruitless trips to court. Time saved for police officers has reduced overtime expense and released police man hours for more onduty protection of the public. The judge also pressed successfully for improvement of Few would deny that. On November 4, Michigan voters seem to have three choices to "reform" the system. Proposals A, C and D all would cut the property taxes we pay on our homes and farms.

But let's take a close look. Manchester residents are smart enough to know there's no such thing as a free lunch. And that's what Bob Tisch, the author of Proposal D, the Tisch tax cut amendment, is trying to sell - a free lunch.

And he's dead wrong. There's a price tag on the 50 per cent to serve our needs, and largely does a property tax break that looks so appeal- pretty good job of it. Nevertheless I hope ing. I'm not willing to pay it and I don't think my neighbors will either, once they Proposal D would destroy too much and see for themselves what's at stake.

Our schools are in jeopardy, for one thing. They would soon suffer needlessly from the Proposal D clamp on tax growth. We may get a break from the rollback of residential and agricultural assessments to 1978 levels, with increases thereafter limited to 2 per cent a year... But what happens to the schools we support with our taxes? Does 2 per cent a year sound like enough to keep up with inflation? How much will a half-pint of milk cost a year or two from now? Or a social studies textbook? THE POWER TO TAX IS THE POW-ER TO DESTROY.

This is written for the purpose of having you decide the afore-mentioned questions and have you decide for yourself how you want the government to service

Do we want the tail wagging the dog? I ask you to think about the closing words of former United States Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simons, in his excellent book, A Time for Truth:

"So here we are. We have become nation of abdicators - abdicating the education of our children to any army of social reformers; abdicating the incredible productivity of the free market to redistributionist zealots; abdicating our hopes for old age to a computer that spits out government checks worth less in real dollars with each passing month. And thus we leave a terrible vacuum in which government grows. Unless we reverse ourselves - unless we eliminate that vacuum - we will lose everything. Do we have the guts to put our own government in its place?"

The designations you read about for the 3 proposed amendments: Smith-Bullard School financing tax shift

(A on ballot) Executive legislative tax shift plan (C

TISCH tax proposal (D on the ballot) All such wording has been removed from the ballot and it will be proposals A, C and D. The politicians have re-written and shortened the proposals for the ballot. They have decided the order in which

by Jon Hardenbergh It was windy and wet but not too cold as the Dutch were introduced with their parents just prior to the game. Soon after the opening kick we were moving well and closing in on Morenci's goal. We did fumble but fortunately covered them except that at the 10 yd. line the pigskin squirted free and an alert Bulldog pounced on it in the end-zone for a touchback. They soon punted but got possession back by intercepting our pass. They then put on a long sustained drive with ended with a touchdown. A good P.A.T. made it 7-0 early in the second quarter. As it turned out the Dutch just couldn't do a thing offensively after that early fumble but were lucky halftime came with it still 7-0. As hope opened the door by our recovering a Morenci miscue, fate appeared as they intercepted again. This led to 6 more points and eventually they snatched another Dutch aerial to go up 19-0. We finally got it going with passes from Nick Krzyzaniak to Doug Van Deven and with the ball on the 8, Nick, quarterback snuck for the TD. Nick's toss to Paul Sroufe supplied us with 2 more making it 19-8, but it was too late really as only 3:30 remained. Unfortunately tempers ignited and fights materialized so the zebras not getting a prescription refilled when we're feeling better.

An example would be the woman with high blood pressure, who takes her medication, reduces the salt in her diet, loses a few pounds, and even tries to relax more. She follows all of her doctor's advice for a person with high blood pressure, and the blood pressure goes down. Then the prescription runs out. She has taken it all, and doesn't get the

She accepts at face value that because her blood pressure was down at her last visit to the doctor and she feels well there is no need to continue the medication; but nothing could be more wrong. Generally speaking, once you have high blood pressure, you always have high blood pressure and must take medication every day of your life. Of course, there are exceptions.

However, this woman has become one of the 250,000 people in Michigan who have high blood pressure and are not controlling it. Control is the magic word. High blood pressure can't be cured, but it can be controlled.

In Michigan, there are about a half-million people who don't know they have the disease. Not knowing is as dangerous as knowing and not controlling it.

If you have high blood pressure, keep those prescriptions filled. Only when you control the disease can you relax and accept your sense of well being at face

"HIT OR MISS" by farley

A good friend of mine who has developed what might be called a phobia about taxes, recently wrote a rather cute dissertation about them and it came out

One day recently after lying in bed for some time cogitating about man's inhumanity to man in the area of taxes he dashed off the following:

I rose and found no shaving cream and so I dashed out and bought some and the state taxed me. This is the beard tax.

Then I got a haircut and the city taxed me. Then I went to lunch and they taxed my meal. By then they had taxed my head and my jaw and my stomach. So then I bought two pair of socks which were also taxed-the day wasn't half over but I had been taxed from head to toe.

So then to be a good fellow I bought some tooth paste and let 'em tax my teeth and after lunch I did some work for the boss and the Federal Government and the state and the city, all of whom taxed my pay. My car was in the shop so I called them to see if it was done and they taxed my phone, so I went home and found that they had taxed my house.

Soon afterwards I went to the garage to pick up my car and pay for the work and found they had taxed it although it had not been done correctly so that gave me a headache and I went to the drug store and found my aspirin was taxed. This was a separate tax not connected with the hair tax and the dandruff tax collected at the barber shop that sells the dandruff shampoo that doesn't remove the dandruff.

So now I had had my jaw, hair, stomach, feet, teeth, salary, voice, headache, house, and incompetent car repair taxed, drove to a filling station and carelessly said "Fill 'er up" and they soaked me for my gasoline and its tax. So I parked my car in the garage and they taxed me for that.

When I arrived home the new chair we had ordered had arrived and I innocently asked "Was that taxed?" I was told yes sir, four per cent so I sat down and they had taxed my seat. I picked up a book and

The Temperatures Is Rising

With the 1980 United Way Campaign now in full swing, the wick on the chick is steadily rising! General Chairman, James W. England, has announced that as of Saturday's report 25% of the $25,412 projected goal has been reached.

All divisions are busy soliciting - Outside Business has reached 65% of its goal, while Organizations and Schools are at 59% and 58% respectively. And this week is just the beginning of the annual UNITED WAY bake sale at Klager Elementary. Will they surpass last year's record of 2,439 cupcakes and push the
