Man reaches 16-gallon donation mark

■ Local retiree has given blood for over 60 years.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Staff Writer

"It's just something I do," Bob Punches says. But it's not everyone who can do what Punches does.

According to Marja Warner, who has coordinated Red Cross blood drives in Manchester for the past several years, Punches is Manchester's all-time big donor, recently earning a 16-gallon pin for his donation efforts.

"He's exceptional," said Pam Reading-Smith of the American Red Cross. "This is extremely generous and no small accomplishment." Punches' first time to give blood was back in 1940, shortly after he graduated from high school. At that time, he says, it was done on a one-to-one basis instead of donating to a blood bank. He gave his own blood to a Manchester woman at Tecumseh Hospital.

"Things were different then," he recalls. "They didn't have plasma until sometime after World War Two. But it's always been a matter of having the same blood type as the patient."

Punches' O-negative blood has made him a universal donor and he says he gets calls quite often from the Red Cross in Ann Arbor, asking him to donate the precious life substance that is often in such short supply.

"When I miss here, I go over to Ann Arbor to donate," he says.

And because donors can give blood every 59 days, he often times two or three strategic trips to Ann Arbor to give in between Manchester's blood drives.

"But I'd rather give here in Manchester, so they get the credit for it," he says.

"It helps someone else get well, and that's really all I care about."

Punches says he just gets a good feeling after giving blood. He figures it might be because he regularly gets a "new" blood supply from donating blood so often.

"I don't know if it helps you any or not, but I think it makes me feel better," he says.

He is also quick to remember that there are other remarkable blood donors in and around Manchester, many of whom started on regular Red Cross blood drives in the same way that he did. He names Jim Kensler and Buck Kirk and the late Rollee Grossman and Herb Bersuder as fellow routine donors from those days.

"When I got back to work at Ford's after I came home from the service in 1946, I started giving more regularly," he says.

"When I went to Saline, they had scheduled regular drives and of course you didn't lose any time for giving blood back then.

"They had it set up so you would get paid while you were gone from your station."

So although he concludes that he

If there is such a thing as a 16-gallon hat, Bob Punches ought to be wearing it. Instead, he's wearing a 16-gallon pin these days in tribute to his remarkable blood donation record.

Klager Elementary School's celebration of March is Reading Month culminated in an extra measure of fun for the pupils who worked hard to meet their reading goals. With a theme of the "great lakes" in mind, three brave teachers, Amie Clark, Kathy Rose and Ron Tindall volunteered to be splashed with water. What the Klager kids did not anticipate, however, was an opportunity to slime the teachers once they were nice and wet. Above, Rose cringes as the students gleefully pour slime over her head.

Council opposes planning decision

■ Wexford Homes' proposal back on the table.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Heritage Newspapers

A large crowd, with mixed attendance from Manchester Township and village residents, was on hand for Monday night's meeting of the Manchester Village Council, where the issue of Wexford Homes' rezoning request was on the agenda.

Setting time limits for public participation, village president Jeff Schaffer began with the Wexford agenda early under new business.

"I ask the seven people sitting on council," he said. "Do we accept the planning commission's recommendation to deny rezoning to the applicant, or do we think something can be worked out?"

He reminded trustees that when Wexford originally approached council the company had worked out a preliminary site plan with the village planners, and the council had unanimously agreed with the concept of the development.

"We forwarded the application by due process to planning commission," Schaffer said. "Have you changed your mind since then or do you think the application by Wexford is workable?"

Each council member, asked individually, said that they agreed in principle with the concept of the proposed development. Schaffer then asked trustees to direct their personal questions to Carlisle/Wortman's representatives, John Enos and Jennifer Coe, so the planners and the developers would have a direction to take. He said that this was strictly question-and-answer and no decision would be made that evening.

Council trustee Pat Vaillencourt spoke first, presenting a sheaf of papers on which she had outlined questions gleaned from letters, minutes of planning meetings and public comments.

Vaillencourt expressed concerns on the exit road at Sandborn, the transition zone between village and township, and paving Sandborn Road. She questioned whether the project should be phased and how it might eventually affect schools, traffic patterns and municipal infrastructure.

She addressed public concerns on property valuation, density and lot sizes. She compared Wexford's proposal with the General Development Plan of the village, and noted areas where the proposal met or exceeded the guidelines of the GDP.

Vaillencourt asked Coe and Enos directly whether they believed the development was appropriate for the location.

"Based on the difficulty of developing this site while retaining natural features, I think the applicant has done an outstanding job," Coe said. "They are maintaining a fairly unique and desirable site."

"The proposal fits within the village."

Finally, Vaillencourt asked Enos and Coe their opinion on legal issues.

"If council determined to go along with the planning commission and deny rezoning, would we perhaps struggle in your opinion to find that a legally defensible position?"

Coe responded, "Because the rezoning is consistent with GDP,

Bridgewater kicks off barn census

■ Part of Bridgewater Township's master plan update.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Staff Writer

Bridgewater Township residents are an integral part of the update of the township's master plan.

And an excellent turnout for the Planning Commission's special meeting on March 22 was testament to the involvement of citizens in the future planning for the township. Supervisor Carol Peacock reported that close to 30 people attended the most recent meeting.

One aspect of the master plan that has generated a great deal of interest is a survey of Bridgewater's barns. A training session for barn survey volunteers was held last weekend at High/Scope retreat center in southern Bridgewater Township.

Resident Janet Cowling has volunteered to head up the survey. In preparation for beginning the census, she has been working with Eastern Michigan University student Renee Benn, on a preliminary reconnaissance to get an idea of how many barns and outbuildings are in the township that were built prior to 1950.

"This will provide a rough map of where we should begin," Cowling said. "It's kind of a drum roll for the barn survey."

Peacock said that the barn survey is part of a larger effort to preserve the rural character of the township.

"We see it as being part of the master planning process," she said.

The master plan is a process that guides future zoning, rezoning and development in the township.

Planning Commission chair Jim Fish said, "The more (the commission) concentrated on the fact that we are a rural, agricultural community and that our top priority is to retain that character, the more we realized how integral our barns are."

"When Janet Cowling stepped forward to lead the effort, we were delighted."

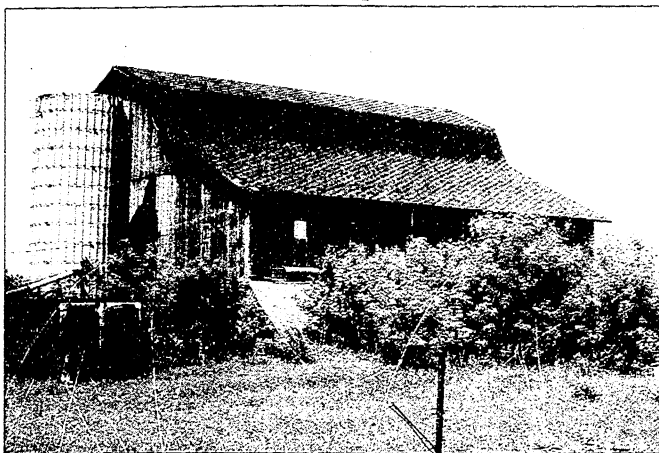

Cowling herself got involved at the first public meeting regarding the master plan updates last September.

"I attended the township's visioning session, and Bill Swaney was in my small group," she explained. "Bill is on the planning commission and he asked if I'd be interested in helping to coordinate the barn survey."

"It kind of made sense, in updating the plan, that one of the main things that the residents and planning commission want to do is preserve the rural character of the township."

So she decided to say yes to the project and looked to Michigan State University and Barns like this one dot the rural landscape surrounding Manchester. A barn survey will soon determine how many farmsteads and barns prior to 1950 are located in Bridgewater Township.

Back to mind comes the hummingbird issue while reading Birds and Blooms' Daily Planner 2001.

On page 61 it states under It's a Fact, "During migration, some hummingbirds (one is a black-chinned type) fly nonstop over the Gulf of Mexico - about 600 miles. What's one thing that helps them accomplish this? Answer: Their relatively large flight muscles, which account for 22 to 34 percent of their body weight."

They really put jumbo jets to shame ... isn't nature wonderful? And, they don't use gasoline!

Blessings of palms set

■ Annual ecumenical event planned this week-end.

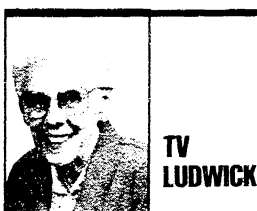

Each year on Palm Sunday, Christians in Manchester and throughout the world remember Jesus' triumphant entrance into Jerusalem just a few short days before he would be hung on the cross, and then was resurrected in glory.

The people of St. Mary's Catholic Church and Emanuel United Church of Christ in Manchester will once again this year join together on Palm Sunday at 10:15 a.m.

Putting aside their denominational differences and joining in Christian unity, the two churches will hold an outdoor blessing of the palms on the village green across from Emanuel parsonage and in front of St. Mary's.

The Rev. Fr. Charles Irvin of St. Mary's and the Rev. Jeff Davis of Emanuel will lead the ceremony. All in the community are invited and welcome to attend. Those gathered will join in prayer and then carry the palms back in procession to their respective churches to welcome the Messiah in their Palm Sunday liturgies.

Lent is nearly over. Spring renewal and resurrection are nearly at hand. Come share in the blessing.

all ladies in our area. Reservations are necessary, call them in to your church office. Thursday: Senior Council meeting begins at 9:30 a.m. at the center. Come with your ideas to help our board members. Pork roast will be on the table at noon via Tod who made those great salmon patties and is a terrific cook ... thanks so much! We love all the extras that are there for our pleasure. Won't you come and try these meals for just $3.25? Continue the fun at the center with bingo and cards.

 This is for those of you who love the game of golf, called "Golf Truisms."

Never try to keep more than 300 separate thoughts in your mind during your swing. You can hit a two-acre fairway 10 percent of the time and a two-inch branch 90 percent of the time. If it ain't broke, try changing your grip. Golfers who claim they don't cheat, also lie. Everyone replaces his divot after a perfect approach shot. A golf match is a test of your skill against your opponent's luck. It's surprisingly easy to hole a 50-foot putt when you lie 10. There are two kinds of bounces: unfair bounces and bounces just the way you meant to play it.

which is what your intentions are for this site and others within the village. I can't give a definitive answer but for that very fact, you could run a risk."

Enos added, "Remember that a judge would not be from Manchester, and will not necessarily listen to the residents' emotions, as the council and planning commission has done. A judge will listen to the facts of the case and base a decision on that."

Village manager Jeff Wallace interjected that there has been no threat of litigation at this point.

"We simply want a legal and defensible position," he said.

The remaining trustees agreed with the questions and concerns that Vaillencourt expressed. Enos and Coe will return to the council's April 16 meeting with a lengthy list of adaptations, corrections, clarifications and conditions to work on with Wexford.

"I don't think we're that far apart," Schaffer concluded.

Library and village meet on building

■ Both sides still working on renovations and costs.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand

The Manchester District Library's building committee met in conjunction with the village building committee on Saturday. "This meeting provides some positive action," said public relations chair Diane Horning, representative from Freedom Township. Village Manager Jeff Wallace updated the participants on the steps taken to date by the committees, in preparation for the library's move to the village building on City Road. Volunteers John Hinkley and John Newman have worked together to design the space for a new library in the village building. Kriehoff-Lenawee has been chosen as the contractor for the building renovations because of the previous work the company did with Johnson Controls on the original building renovations and restoration. The prices from Kriehoff-Lenawee have been submitted and now the process can begin. The library will submit a grant application to the Herrick Foundation to assist with the price of renovation of the space, for library layout, furnishings and a separate entrance. An elevator is a necessary addition to the building under the Americans with Disabilities Act, as the library intends to use the mezzanine floor. Once the renovation replies to the library and depending upon the outcome, the library board can discuss with the village its various financing options. Some of the expenses will be borne by the village and apportioned to the library on the basis of use. A preliminary lease contract was presented to the committee to be reviewed by the library board. The village has expressed a desire to settle the lease details within the next 60 days. If the grant application is successful, the contractors could have the space ready in four months, Wallace said. Board members Richard Spring and Jane Thornton drafted a letter to the Herrick Foundation that was presented at the meetings of the library board and the village council on Monday. Wallace and library board member Don Limpert will serve as liaisons with the construction company throughout the project. The next joint meeting of the library and village building committees is set for 7 p.m. on April 18 at the village building.

Kiwanis 'audits' community needs

The Kiwanis Club of Manchester is planning an IRS celebration for April 19. Albert Einstein once said, "The hardest thing in the world to understand is income tax."

Free classes offered

A free class in natural systems thinking. Reconnecting with Nature, will be held from 7 to 8:30 p.m. on four consecutive Monday evenings beginning April 9. The class will be held at the blacksmith shop, 324 East Main St. and is led by Peggy Garrigues-Cortelyou. Natural ecosystems keep in balance through a web of nonverbal sensory connections and attractions. In this class, students will become more aware of these nonverbal senses and connections through enjoyable outdoor activities. The blacksmith shop has indoor meeting space and hilly access to woods and pond behind Chi-Bro Park. Dress according to the weather to enjoy being outdoors part of the time.

Garrigues-Cortelyou is certified in natural systems thinking (applied ecopsychology) through Project NatureConnect in Washington state. Reserve a space by contacting Garrigues-Cortelyou at pgarrigues@voyager.net, or by phone, 428-8430.

ducted an audit in our community to identify the community service needs. It has been determined that new members with new ideas and a fresh approach will strengthen the club, increase community service and enable greater fellowship. On the basis of the data obtained, this special celebration is scheduled to further discuss actions to meet the need. For the Kiwanis, IRS does not mean Internal Revenue Service. Instead, it means, "I Respect Someone." That "someone" can be a resident or residents of the Manchester area; someone who is looking for an avenue that provides the opportunity to improve the community's quality of life, especially for young people.

For more information about the Kiwanis Club and celebration, please contact Kiwanis IRS Committee Administrator Dianne Schwab at 428-8976 by April 12. In tax terms, there is a saying, "Where there's a will there is a tax shelter."

The Kiwanis' IRS saying is, "Where there is a will, there is a Kiwanis Club."

Track captain on a run toward success

■ Medal-winning indoor star preps for the spring track season.

By Colleen O'Neill

Special Writer

Eric Walter is a runner. He has the tall, lanky look of a runner. He eats a lot of pasta, like a runner. And his letter jacket is adorned with more hardware than aisle nine at Home Depot.

The pinnacle of his hardware collection came in a small town in Indiana the weekend of Feb. 23.

At an Amateur Athletic Union National Track Meet in Merrillville, Ind., Walter won two gold medals and a bronze. That made him a national champion in those events.

"I took first in the 800-meter dash and the 400-meter dash and third in the high jump," Walter said.

Walter cleared 5'10" in the high jump for the bronze. He ran a 53:34 in the 400-meter dash and he ran a 2:04.61 in the 800-meter dash for gold. None of these were his personal bests.

"He's a pretty phenomenal runner," said Craig Vitale, who was the varsity track coach last year. "I will miss not having the opportunity to coach a guy that is going to do very well if he stays on the right path."

Walter's path is getting increasingly dedicated to running.

He played baseball as a child and has seen time on the golf, football and basketball teams at Manchester. But his junior and senior winters have been spent running indoor track in preparation of the outdoor season.

Last year when Vitale organized The Outsiders, an indoor track team made up of students from Manchester and Columbia Central high schools, Walter was on the team. This year he ran again for the Outsiders but also joined another indoor track club called Athenian Athletics.

Rik Richardson founded Athenian Athletics in 2000 with a two-fold purpose. First to give post-collegiate athletes a training vehicle to develop world class and Olympic potential, and second to provide grass roots opportunities for youth.

Walter joined the 8-18 youth group that runs every Monday and Wednesday. But he impressed Richardson enough that he spends most of his training time running with the older members.

"I realized right off the bat Eric was talented," Richardson said. "I put him in the Olympic development program. This kid is real talented and strong as a horse."

As for Walter, he thinks it is "pretty cool" to be running for Richardson. He is even considering spending next year attending Washtenaw Community College so he can continue to train with Richardson.

However, if he can earn a track scholarship, and he certainly has the potential to, he would definitely like to run in college.

"He is a very tough competitor," Richardson said. "For him to win the 400 and 800...I cannot remember anyone in the last 20 years doing that."

Although he went to the state championship in outdoor track last year in four events, Walter had never competed in an indoor national meet.

"It was really exciting, I was really happy about it," Walter said. "There were tons of people."

Practice has now begun for the outdoor track season with the first meet scheduled for April 12. Walter and the rest of the Dutch will host Blissfield.

Walter has specific goals as he approaches his senior season. First he hopes to win the state championship in the 800-meter. And he hopes to run a 1:54 in that event, which would be a personal best.

"Last year I did a 1:59 for a personal record," Walter said.

He is also hoping to earn a trip back to the state meet in that and the mile-relay.

He hopes to bounce between the 400-meter and the 800-meter race, improving his time in both events. For the 400, that would mean running a 50 flat.

The Outsiders ended their indoor track season at the state championship meet, held at the University of Michigan on March 14.

"I didn't run too good," Walter said. "I got sixth in the mile relay and seventh in the two-mile relay. But in the open 800, I ran a bad time and I ended up missing a medal by one place."

What went wrong in that race is a mystery to Walter. He may have been more fatigued than normal or may have run two races a little too close together. But one thing he knows.

"The second place guy I beat all year," Walter said.

Without a doubt, according to Walter, Vitale and first year varsity coach Cory Cox, Eric has a solid head start on the outdoor season.

"I would have liked to win state but that didn't happen," Walter said of the indoor season. "My personal goal was mainly to get in shape for outdoor (track season)."

Getting in shape and doing what he needs to do could pay off for him during his senior season.

"I wouldn't be surprised if a division II (school) offers him a scholarship," Richardson said. "I see a great future for him. He's got the potential to be world class. He has the potential to go to the Olympics. He could be a youth phenom."

As for his running style, Richardson's main complaint is that Walter is too nice. Running in a pack last year Walter got pinned in, feet tangled and he took a fall.

"He could have won that race," Richardson said. "We've changed that. I have him out fast, get away and stay out of trouble."

"I tell him, 'I want you to dictate the race.'"

And Walter likes it that way.

"I like to lead," Walter said. "I don't think I run as good behind because I'm trying to go at their pace and I need to go at my own pace."

At least in the 800-meter race. In the 400-meter race, he prefers to be behind.

"I like to see everyone so I know what I need to do to get by them," Walter said.

Like many athletes, Walter has taken a holistic approach to his running. He is careful about what he eats, doesn't drink any pop, gets lots of carbohydrates and consistently gets eight hours of sleep every night. And when he goes to practice, he practices hard.

"I try my hardest in practice," Walter said.

At the track he has established a quiet routine to prepare himself for each race. Although he will listen to music before a race, as the start time draws near he likes to sit by himself and visualize the race.

And when he does listen to music, he chooses mostly punk alternative music with inspirational messages.

Sounds like a winning strategy.

New varsity track coach looks forward to exciting season

■ Cory Cox in his first year as head coach.

By Colleen O'Neill

Special Writer

After four years as assistant track coach, Cory Cox will begin his first season as Manchester's head varsity coach on April 12 when the Flying Dutchmen host Blissfield.

Cox came to Manchester after earning his bachelor's degree in sports medicine, with an emphasis in exercise science at Central Michigan University. He is a certified athletic trainer and holds a minor in coaching.

Coaching is his life. Cox works a day job at CVS pharmacy in Tecumseh but spends his nights coaching.

"I enjoy it," Cox said.

He coaches junior high football at Sand Creek in the fall, junior varsity basketball at Sand Creek in the winter and has now taken over the varsity reins of the Manchester men's track team.

A four-year varsity letter winner at Sand Creek, Cox grew up running.

"I was a freak of nature when it came to running," Cox said. "I raced things - growing up in my family, my cousins were fast."

And so was his older brother Lee.

"I always wanted to catch up and beat him," Cox said. "He is only one year ahead of me in school."

Cox began running organized track in junior high. Although he earned a varsity letter all four years of his high school career, his junior year was the best.

"I had faster seniors when I was a junior," Cox said. "I did everything individually when I was a senior."

A sprinter by trade, Cox usually ran the 100-meter dash, the 200-meter dash or the 400. During his junior year, Sand Creek placed at the state championship in the mile relay, the 800 relay and the 400 relay.

While a student at CMU, Cox worked as a student trainer with the track team where he picked up a lot of coaching advice and strategy.

His older brother, the faster one, ran collegiate track at Northwood. He believes that watching his brother also provided him experiences in track coaching fundamentals.

Cox brings a great deal of enthusiasm to the team.

"I am excited for this year," Cox said. "We have so many people, it makes the track team so complete. You can have three individual outstanding athletes but if you only have a base of 15 runners you will not be as successful as a team."

Cox admits that although some view track and field as an individual sport he emphasizes that it is still a team sport.

"Everyone is contributing to the success, to the outcome of the meet," he said.

Because of his expanded roster, Cox has seen the team go from barely 20 athletes to 30 this year, he believes that is where the Dutch will show the greatest improvement.

"The team will achieve more," Cox said. "I'm just excited for the opportunity and the position."

He has a basic philosophy about coaching at the high school level.

"Kids compete in sports for two reasons," Cox said. "One to be competitive and two because they want to have fun."

"I take nothing away from the kids who want to have fun."

Cox believes being together as a team and having fun as a team will bring success.

"And that's what I want to bring," Cox said.

Junior varsity softball team has good prospects

■ Coach has new talent along with returning players.

By Colleen O'Neill

Like a utility player, Nikole Reinhart, coach of the Manchester junior varsity softball team, knows what her job is.

"I always stress fundamentals so they can compete when they get to varsity," Reinhart said.

Which doesn't mean she doesn't want the team to be successful.

"I certainly want to be over 500 and as successful as we were last year," Reinhart said.

To help her do both, Reinhart has seven returning sophomore players.

Julia Steinaway will probably play at first base and should provide some offense.

"She has a lot of speed and can do a lot at the bat, either bunting or hitting," Reinhart said.

Rebecca Alber is a great hitter who will play outfield. Heather Popkey is another strong bat and plays in the outfield. Jessica Boehmer plays second base and in the outfield, and brings speed.

"She is quick on base," Reinhart said.

Michelle Dicks plays third base and some outfield.

"She has a great arm and is a great hitter," Reinhart said.

Emily Copeland is another outfielder with a lot of speed. And Daisha Delawter will pitch and play third base if she can overcome an injury.

"She is currently hurt and working at rehab," Reinhart said. "Hopefully she'll be back

Group sets book talk for April 1

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Heritage Newspapers

The reading group for the District of the Manchester District Library met March 21 to discuss Anne Tyler's book, "Celestial Navigation."

The discussion was held at Frank's Place and the group aired their opinions over a cup of coffee.

"We decided it is probably a good thing that a majority of people do not use celestial navigation as a guide to living," said participant Carol Driessche.

Jeremy, the book's main character, did just that. He was an unusual artist who spent his time and energy conceiving symbolic creations. He was so focused on his work that his world fell apart without him noticing, until his creature comforts were no longer met.

The entire group expressed feelings of sadness and confusion at the book's ending. It was not a favorite Anne Tyler novel, as it did not have the lightness and fun usually portrayed by the characters in her books.

Next month's selection is "One True Thing" by Anna Quindlen. This book captures an experience seldom dealt with in popular culture.

It is the story of a young woman who takes time off from college to nurse her dying mother.

Copies of "One True Thing" will be available at the library. Join the group on April 18 at the new village hall. The discussion will be thought-provoking.

SOFTBALL

in time to play." New to the team is Katie Ray, another sophomore who will probably play in the outfield and maybe a little second base.

Seven freshmen have joined the team. Megan Eisenhauer will pitch and maybe help out at third base and Kristen Guenther will probably play shortstop. Sydni Johnson is quick, making Reinhart think she will make a good second baseman or shortstop.

Abby LaRock brings a good bat and will play in the outfield along with Abbey Preuninger. In addition, Preuninger is tall and can hit the ball, according to Reinhart.

Kim Roberts will catch for the junior Dutch and will help in the infield if needed. Cori Steele will probably take center field and catch.

"We have a lot of good athletes," Reinhart said. "Not a ton of softball experience. But they are coachable kids, who are listening and already improving."

The Dutch open their season on April 9 on the road at Leslie. They then have back-to-back home games. They host Concord on April 10 and Whitmore Lake on April 11. All games will start at 4:30 p.m.

ENGAGEMENTS

Paul and Debbie Reinhart of Brooklyn and Phil and Chris Madden of Wilton, Iowa, announce the engagement of their daughter, Nikole Reinhart, to Corey Fether, son of Phil and Sandee Fether of Osseo.

Nikole is employed as a social worker with Boysville in Clinton and Corey is teacher in the Manchester school district. They both coach in Manchester. A June 23 wedding is planned at the Manchester United Methodist Church.

FREEDOM TOWNSHIP

SYNOPSIS OF BUDGET HEARING
MARCH 13, 2001, 7:30 P.M.
FREEDOM TOWN HALL

Supervisor Little called the Budget Hearing to order at 7:38 P.M. with Clerk Schenk, Treasurer, Anthony, and Trustees Horning & Weidmayer present as well as several residents.

Clerk Schenk reviewed the proposed 2001-02 budget. A question and answer period ensued. No action was taken. The Budget Hearing was adjourned at 8:25 P.M.

FREEDOM TOWNSHIP

SYNOPSIS OF SPECIAL BOARD MEETING
MARCH 22, 2001, 7:00 P.M. AT FREEDOM TOWN HALL

The Special Board Meeting of Freedom Township was called to order by Supervisor Little with Clerk Schenk, Treasurer Anthony, and Trustee Weidmayer present as well as six representatives from the Washtenaw County Road Commission and approximately 50 audience members at 7:00 P.M. Trustee Horning arrived at 7:25 P.M.

The Road Commission members were introduced, Robert Polens, Ken Nixon, Norm Kennedy, Larry Luckhardt, Fred Viegler, and Roy Townsend.

Director Polens reviewed the report he had given the Board. An overhead projector was used to display the material for the audience. The Road Commission proposed an increase for township matching funds of $3,345.00. Three proposed projects were discussed: Township wide gravel, work on Waters from Heab to Parker Blvd including limited ditching and application of Limestone, and work on Lindemann Rd. at Pleasant Lake to construct a 100 foot long approach. Dust control costs were reviewed. Traffic counts were reviewed.

Audience participation: Members of the audience asked questions of the Road Commission, many questions were about the proposed upgrade of Pleasant Lake Road to a Class A road from Fletcher to M-52. The Road Commission agreed more discussion needed to take place. There will be another public hearing in April (date to be determined). Supervisor Little noted that Washington should dictate the type of local road (i.e. Class A or Class B) simply because there were federal funds involved.

The Road Commission agreed to participate in South West Washtenaw Council of Government meetings.

The Road Commission will need to know the Township's choices for dust control and projects by June 15, 2001.

There being no further business, Supervisor Little adjourned the meeting at 9:04 P.M.

Respectfully Submitted,
Theresa Schenk,
Township Clerk

Reading month eventful

The students at Nellie Ackerson Middle School had an eventful "March is Reading Month" filled with special activities.

The month began with a celebration of Dr. Seuss' birthday on March 2. Spontaneous "drop-everything-and-read" announcements were made and students and staff caught reading were treated to Jolly Ranchers by find-a-reader elves.

Each morning of the month, students listened to the daily trivia question and randomly drawn winners were awarded a goodie bag.

During the week of March 19, the PTA offered to double accelerated reader points for use at the AR store for any test passed during that week. The computers hummed with AR stars!

On Thursday, winners were announced in the Whaddayah Know About Books? Contest. Students entered the contest by answering 50 questions about books and the middle school library. Heather Black was the first place winner and received an official Dr. Seuss hat for her efforts. The Gregerson family donated four more hats for the runners-up.

Students were busy reading in individual classrooms, too. In Irene Ysassi's fifth-grade class, students tracked their reading time in a log and after three hours the names were entered in a drawing for $10 gift certificates to Barnes and Noble.

Bryan Barnard's sixth-graders listened to Newberry Honor books including Onion John, Joey Pigza Swallows the Key and Joey Pigza Loses Control.

Heidi Huber read her fifth-grade class the Newberry Award winner Holes, and her students made a book bingo game.

Curt Fielder's sixth-graders join an AR point club once they have earned at least five AR points.

Almost all of the students in the middle school spend some minutes of their day in quiet reading time.
