Gazebo concerts return after hiatus

The gazebo concert series took a break last week for the Chicken Broil but is back tonight with Big Foot Bob and the Toe Tappers taking the stage at 7:30 p.m.

Bring your blanket, your lawn chair and some refreshment and enjoy the concerts while they last. Like the summer days, the series is passing by all too quickly.

St. Mary's holds ice cream social tonight

Spend your evening on the village green by enjoying dinner at the St. Mary's Ice Cream Social before heading to the gazebo concert. Serving will begin at 5 p.m.

Teen group to hold "barbecue for life"

The youth group, "Teens Making a Difference" will hold a barbecue dinner from 6 to 8 p.m. on Saturday, to raise money for AIDS research. The meal will be held at the Manchester United Methodist Church on Ann Arbor Hill.

The menu will include hot dogs, hamburgers, chips, pop and a dessert.

Band camp set for next week

The Manchester High School Marching Band will prepare for the 2001 fall season at band camp next week, starting Monday at 9 a.m.

The band will showcase the week's work at a performance next Thursdayat 5 p.m. at Alumni Memorial Field.

Social season winds down

On Wednesday, the Manchester United Methodist Church will hold its annual ice cream social.

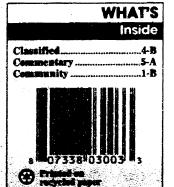

Serving begins at 5 p.m. with salads, sandwiches, and cakes and ice cream for dessert.

The church is located at 501 Ann Arbor Street. Don't miss out on this traditional summer picnic with family and friends. If nothing else, it's one night that you don't have to cook dinner.

Bible school begins Monday at Iron Creek Church

Iron Creek Community Church, located at the corner of English and Sharon Hollow Roads, will have vacation bible school for kindergarten through eighth-graders from 9:30 a.m. to noon, July 30 to Aug. 3

School board approves $1.33 million purchase

■ Building project falling into place; bond election set for Sept. 7.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand

"We can finally answer the number one from the community," anestion Superintendent David Oegema said. That question has been the location for the proposed new high school.

The school board approved the purchase at Monday's meeting of a 70-acre parcel on Gieske Road just north of the current high school in Manchester and Sharon townships. The property has about 200 feet of frontage on M-52

The announced purchase price is $19,000 per acre for a total price of $1,330,000, contingent upon the successful passage of a $35 million bond proposal scheduled for Sept. 7.

"The purchase also is contingent on soil surveys, finalizing an eight-acre tract owned by Manchester Gravel and annexation to the village.

quite a few contingen-"There are cies, but we think all of them will work out," Oegema said. "We would actually close on the property just after the first of the year if all the contingencies are met."

The school board has spent many months exploring several options both north and south of the village. A minimum of 40 acres was sought with 70 being desirable to provide sufficient acreage for both current and future needs.

The board also sought a parcel that was either located within the village limits or able to be annexed to the village to provide access to sewer and water services.

"One of the issues is that it is near the existing complex, to maintain a campus approach," Oegema said. "We also will be able to continue to use our athletic facilities for competition.'

Another feature that adds value to this location is the availability of Gieske Road, which will allow bus traffic to bypass the four-way intersection in the village.

"The village likes the fact that we will be able to keep the bus traffic localized." finance director Theresa Schenk said.

Since the Klager property has access to Gieske Road and the current high school property also extends back to the road, the new property would be ideally situated for bus traffic between buildings.

"This will pull a lot of the traffic off the major roads and bypass the four corners,' Schenk added that the district has been working with State Rep. Gene DeRossett to get state grants to pave Gieske Road for most efficient transportation.

One question remaining is that the architectural firm has not conceptualized a design for the new high school yet.

"We want to get staff and community input on the process," Schenk said, "Many people have some very good ideas.'

We don't know if it will be one-story or two-story academic," Oegema said. "We do know that the gym will have two levels; a concourse level and a floor level. There will be a 600-seat auditorium and that will be two stories.

"There also will be a 5,000 square foot media center. We just don't know all the positions yet.

The current high school occupies 68,800 square feet plus the four portable classrooms. The proposal is for a 131,500square foot facility with many features that the current high school lacks. An 11,000 square-foot auditorium with seating for 600 is just one of the attributes that will be part of the new building. A kitchen to serve the entire district is another. Increasing the size of the media center by 150 percent is a third big change for the

"We'll also have larger science classrooms, a bigger band room and a cafeteria that can seat 300 students at a time.' Oegema said.

Substantial growth in the community means that the space at the high school will not fit the population currently at middle school level. And with teaching methods and technology advancing rapid-

"Obviously, people are having difficulty meeting the new county requirements for septic systems," she added. "Some people may not be able to sell their homes, while others have been experiencing severe backup problems in their basements."

A group of concerned citizens has petitioned the county drain commissioner to have a county drain extended to that area. But Peacock said her understanding is that the petition will remain on hold until something is done about solving the communitywide problem.

"The county drain commission office doesn't want to be channeling contaminated water into the Saline River," she said. There needs to be a clean up. We've documented a definite health problem with contamination in the area.

"It's something that needs to be addressed and we now have an opportunity to do it at a substantially lower cost than we were originally looking at.

How many men does it take to make dinner?

But with 12,000 hungry mouths to feed, anyone would have to call in the reserves.

The Chicken Broil menu may not come with a wide selection, but it draws crowds from all over hoping to feed a large gathering of friends and family or even just to have an intimate dinner for two.

Local man spins the story of Freedom

■ Township records give fascinating glimpse into the past.

By Angela Cooper Staff Writer

The project began as a mission to collect the existing records and history of Freedom Township for future reference.

It's become a search to gather information on the property, churches, schools, and families that make up the township or have ever been a part of it.

Bob Miller presented his idea for the history to the Freedom Township board in April. requesting the board's authorization "to compile the existing records and history of Freedom Township and to store that history with the Township," according to his proposal.

In his proposal, he also asked for authorization to submit bills to the township for purchase of documents and other expenses. if necessary.

Since getting permission to complete the project, Miller has gathered masses of information from his own research and withthe help of township residents.

He started off the project with a short history of St. John's United Church of Christ, old Freedom Township maps, the dedication speech for the Freedom Town Hall by Nellie and biographical Dettling, sketches from Washtenaw County by Samuel Deakes.

Miller had also found informa-

"Significant help has come from Karlfred Schillack, a member of Zion Lutheran Church at Roger's Corners," says Miller. "In recent years, Mr. Schillack has taken church records and other sources of information and entered the data in a computer program, Family Tree Maker for Windows.

"I provided names of longtime families of the township and Fred has provided the township with genealogies of most of those families. Many of the genealogies have complete information of the families since coming to America.

Miller now has 21 family genealogies including the Alber. Buss. Eschelbach. Feldkamp, Girbach, Hieber, Kuebler, Loeffler, Mann. Schenk, and Weidmayer families.

Miller received the Friedrch Schmid letters that were printed for Bethel Evangelical and Reformed Church's 150th anniversary in 1990 from Fred Mildred Huehl, who used to teach in Freedom Township country schools, provided him with information about the schools, the Emmanuel Church of the Evangelical Association (the Freedom Church), and the Huehl farm.

Freedom Township clerk Theresa Schenk gathered information on the Waters Road, St. Francis, and St. Thomas Lutheran cemeteries as well as the Wacker family history.

Miller continues to hunt down any information on Freedom Township's history he can find through research on pieces of land, churches, old one-room schools and the Pleasant Lake School, and family histories and genealogies.

The plan is to retain one copy of each genealogy for the Township and provide a copy to a member of the family with the

At this point several phone calls have been made and a few genealogies provided. The interest is building!"

Miller has relied on information from property abstracts, secondary research such as newspaper articles, and township records.

Country home invaders aren't always criminals

Horrendous visions of violence and crackling police radios accost the minds of city residents at the sound of the words, "home invasion." Out Out here in the country, the topic is fuel for humor. Not immediately, perhaps, but give a tale a month to age and it seems, if never fun, then at least funny.

Owners of rural residences know the wisdom of devoting critical time to the yearly task of reinforcing weak spots that tempt invasions. No matter how much caulk, flashing, screen or boards are employed, people seldom find all the chinks in their home's armor. Thus, those whose response is to climb up on a chair at the sight of a mouse don't do well in the country.

Not to imply that mice are limited to rural areas. My suburban father waged a long-term battle with them. Taking a gunslinger's attitude, he actually carved a notch in the conventional snap traps for each mouse caught. If I did that, the traps would be whittled down to nothing. Our supply of vermin is just so much preferably before an untimely demise scents your home.

Chimneys are a problem, of course. A good damper prevents full entry to the house, but bodies in the chimney-whether buzzing or chirping- are nuisances nonetheless. When something weighing more than a pound comes down the flue, you have to do something about it.

One couple, convinced by prior experience that a raccoon would fall at their feet if they opened their damper, built an elaborate cardboard tunnel from the chimney opening, across the house, to a door. It took hours to make it secure and sturdy. Extra labor beats a coon redecorating your home.

When they opened the damper, out plopped a duck. The misdirected mallard was a relief, but after all that engineering it seemed a bit anticlimactic. A year later, it happened again. I think the same drake returned for an encore. Either that, or there's something on their chimney that attracts waterfowl. They swear theirs is just a normal house.

The foulest foe, of course, is genus mephitis. Called skunk in everyday conversation, when it's under your porch or wanders names unutterable in polite society. I've heard some ingenious variations. Skunk doesn't actually have to enter your home to do damage.

Even from a second-floor bedroom, you know when he's in the neighborhood. He meanders ever so slowly around open windows, permeating your oxygen supply. Poor, unwise pets are snookered into close encounters, bounding back to us to do her own head and exited the polecat's will.

was his last day on their farm. A recent unlawful entry might need to season awhile before the comedic flavor comes through. Unable to sleep next to her snoring husband, a woman retreated with a blanket to own reflection, didn't matter. It into an attached garage it earns another part of the house to weather an Edgar Poe night of wind and rain, restlessness and intermittent slumber.

In the wee hours, she realized she wasn't alone. Someone was swooping down on her.

The eerie silence of the attack identified the intruder. Exhibiting the better part of valor usually shown by women in this situation, she threw the blanket not over the bat but over premises post haste.

Out in the yard in her PJs, with the blanket over her head, she felt somewhat safer—safe enough to look around and notice that her husband's briefcase, apparently forgotten on the hood of the car, had blown off in the storm.

Important papers were spread around the yard like wet leaves. So, in the pre-dawn gloom, she did her darnedest to retrieve them. (This valiant effort, undertaken even as she battled the endocrinology of fear, fades to a minor background point when her husband tells the story.)

Clutching wet documents, hooded by her blanket, she stood below the bedroom window and called, increasingly loudly, to her still sound-asleep soul mate. People on the next farm probably heard her before he did. Her "Honeyyy!" eventually woke him. One word explained the situation: "Bat!"

No longer alone in her ordeal, she allowed herself to be coaxed inside. They dried the papers in the microwave. She accepted his offer to make coffee.

Unfortunately, the coffeemak er backed up, sending a flood of water and grounds over the counter, onto the floor, into the silverware drawer and the cupboard below. No, it wasn't the bat's fault, but the timing was rotten.

The husband never did find the bat. The wife doesn't believe people when they say that it probably left the same way it got in. And although he maintained a brave face for her sake, he admitted to me that he slept rather uneasily for quite a while after that.

About the time the bat's forgotten, some other example of rural fauna is bound to come calling. That's just the way things are, isn't it?

Learning, Education, Schools, Future

By Nondus Buss

If there is anything education does not lack today, it is critics. Nathan M. Pusey

Yes, it was time to start building again.

Time to add on to the elementary school that was opened in Jan. 1950, when the students who had been attending school in Emanuel Church moved into the new one.

Time to build an addition to the Nellie Ackerson Elementary School, named after the teacher who began teaching in the old Union School and stayed for over fifty years to become the most respected and loved teacher in Manchester.

New sections of first and fourth grades were opened due to oversized classes. Third graders were housed in the remodeled Rowes Corners and Spaford country schools with a third section at the Pleasant Lake School.

A new L-shaped wing facing Beaufort Street and City Road was added and is part of the current middle school.

The Beaufort Street side has custodial and supply storage rooms, plus five classrooms. Across from these were the multi-purpose room, which provided space for a broad variety of projects and activities including rainy day recess space, until it became the lunch room; a small kitchen, administrative offices for the school system, a restroom and storage/cleaning supply closets.

The corner of the hallway looked straight out at City Road.

Turning to the left one passed the boys' restroom, and windows looking out on an open area, with two classrooms across the hall providing a total of seven new classrooms. At the end of the hall is an exit that led to the main building.

A plaque in the hall tells of the 1959 dedication, with Luther C. Klager, president of the Manchester Board of Education; Laurin F. Leeson, secretary; Dan J. Boutell, treasurer; and Loren Trolz and Laurel P. Breitenwischer, trustees, Robert R. Masten was superintendent of schools and Nellie Ackerson served as elementary principal. The architects were Louis C. Kinscott and Associates.

It shouldn't come as a surprise that a school system with a growing elementary population also would be gaining more high school students.

1965 the On Dec. Public School Manchester District approved a $520,000 addition to Manchester High School.

Construction on the project began in Aug. 1966 and was completed in June 1967. This building expansion provided a new high school library, a new music room, five additional classrooms, a large study-auditorium, two new science laboratories, enlarged shower and locker facilities, ample corridor space with 600 lockers and new administrative offices.

The dedication and open house on Sept. 24, 1967 was held from 2 to 5 p.m.

The Boy Scouts opened the program with the Pledge of Allegiance. Reverend Charles Fox provided the invocation and benediction, the Manchester High School band played a selection under the direction of Robert Sortor, and Roger Marrison led the Varsity Choir in a selection. Superintendent Robert Swartz introduced guests and high school principal Chester Koceski introduced high school faculty. The architect, Edward Jennings, presented the building to Luther Klager.

After Klager accepted the building. he introduced the prethe dedication address, Dr. Durward Varner, chancellor Oakland University. The Parent Teachers Association served refreshments.

It seems that the elementary school population just kept growing and June 1967 saw the approval of a $650,000 bond issue to finance construction of a new elementary building to accommodate 350 students.

Construction on Klager Elementary School, named after Luther C. Klager, who had served the community continuously since 1945 and had been board president since 1953, was started in May 1968 and completes in June 1969.

By this time, first graders had been going to school at Emanuel Church for three years. The Rev. Ralph Kuether gave the invocation and benediction, Marrison directed the Manchester High School Vocal Chorus, Swartz introduced the guests and Birdella Flood, elementary principal, introduced the elementary faculty.

Architect Louis C. Kingscott, Jr. presented the building to Klager. Swartz introduced the dedication speaker, Dr. Harold Sponberg, president of Eastern Michigan University.

But the growth goes on.

Five years ago, students moved into the classrooms of a brand new addition.

As we prepare for the next school year, 2001-2002, all classrooms in the building are again filled to capacity.

It's time to start building again! Time to meet the needs of today with facilities appropriate to meet the needs of tomorrow.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Fair volunteers are special people.

To the editor:

This was the fourth year for the Fair Time reading program jointly sponsored by the Manchester District Library the Manchester Community Fair.

Thank you to the following sponsors for their donations of prizes to the program: Pugh Shows, Manchester Kiwanis, and the Snack Shack. Hope to see you next year at the fair!

The second annual herdsmanship awards were given to the livestock clubs for best kept pen and best overall club: Swine Club, Heidi Ernst; Steer Club, Evan Wahl: Lamb Club, Lesley Jacob; best overall club, Manchester Lamb Club; and most improved livestock club, Steer Club.

These awards are given by Erik Jensen of Jensen Builders and consist of $20 per youth winner and $50 to the club treasury and a traveling plaque to hang in the winning tent each year. Thank you, Mr. Jensen. A special thank you to the youth of the community that worked hard at set-up on Saturday and early each morning of fair week. They cleaned up the grounds, hung signs, watered plants, wiped tables an benches, and did a multi-tude of odd jobs for any fair board member that asked. This year we were pleased to have as many as 30 kids over the course of the week that helped.

They were Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, livestock club members, and neighborhood friends. They did a great job and we hope they will want to return next year!

The following poem is dedicated to the many, many volunteers and workers who help us manage to put together a safe and fun fair each year.

It takes more hands than you can count and there are too many names to list here without running the risk of forgetting someone. So to all of you who helped in any large or small way this year-thank you. And please enjoy this poem, which was published by the International Association of Fairs and Expos and is intended for re-publication.

The Knights of Columbus have hosted the monthly Boy Scout breakfast for the last four years, held every third Sunday from September to May. Their generous help in this project has repaired old tents, purchased new ones and provided new propane equipment and an 8-by-16-foot tandem axle trailer.

The Men's Club recently has helped the troop obtain materials for finishing the interior of the trailer and other much-needed camping equipment. The adult leaders and scouts appreciate this support and pledge to

This summer, the troop spent a week in the Laurel Highlands of Pennsylvania. They went whitewater rafting, cave exploring and enjoyed camping beside a 400acre mountain lake. Day camp to begin August 6

■ Carr Park chosen as day camp site.

By Angela Cooper Staff Writer

Looking for a fun activity for your kids this summer?

Camp Fire Boys and Girls has your answer: a day camp at Carr Park running from Aug. 6 to 9.

The camp will feature classes in arts and crafts, self-reliance, peer pressure resistance, volunteerism, and sports and games.

"We'll take the children on a field trip on Thursday to Bohn pool in Adrian," says Amanda Sandifer, program administrator.

"We also incorporate a service learning project to teach children how to be volunteers," she adds. "The self-reliance courses help them learn about weather, fire, and bicycle safety.

"For the older kids, we have Peer Proof, which helps them learn to protect themselves against peer pressure by talking about their feelings and about pre-adolescence."

throughout the day to play on the park equipment, eat snacks provided by the camp, and to listen to speakers. According to Sandifer, just less than 20 children attended the camp here last year. She expects the number to be about the same this year, but hopes for more. "The camp will be staffed by Camp Fire staff," she says. "We try to find local people to help out, but a couple of Monroe teachers will run it this year."

Students ranging from beginning kindergarten to just completed sixth grade are eligible.

"The children are broken down into age groups," explains Sandifer. "It'll probably be kindergarten through second or third grade and then third through sixth."

Camp Fire Boys and Girls is a non-profit organization that holds day camps in different communities through the summer. It began as the Camp Fire Girls in 1910 and later changed to allow boys.

The Camp Fire Boys and Girls Wathana Council serves the southeastern Michigan and area is organizing Manchester's camp again this year.

The Manchester day camp will begin each day at 8 a.m. and end at 4 p.m. The cost is $40 per camper for about 32 hours of care. Scholarships are available.

Registration is open until Aug. 6. For more information, call (734) 240-2840.

ly, the upgraded curriculum that is needed for high school students will not be available in the current facility.

"This 68,000-square foot building doesn't really work well for the population we already have," Schenk said. "This may seem like a huge increase, but we need more space now and the proposal should accommodate future growth.'

The timeline for completion if the bond issue passes this fall, will get the job done just in time for the projected 29 percent growth anticipated within the next five years.

"There will be a seven to ninemonth planning period for design, and next summer would begin land excavation," Oegema said.

The district would put bids out next May, and it would take two years to actually construct the new high school, putting occupation in the fall of 2004.

Oegema said that work on Klager and the existing high school cost factors will determine if the project will be phased in or done all at the same time get a better deal," he said.

The district has hired TMP Associates and Hobbs and Black to work in partnership on the project. The board will interview six candidates for construction manager, making its selection at the Aug. 20 meeting.

Schenk added that the timing for the Sept. 7 bond proposal is optimal.

"Through the school bond loan program, we are able to get the most for our money," she said. One of the issues we are trying to stress is that for the cost of building the high school, it's the same millage and we are getting the middle school and Klager remodeled too.

"The high school alone wouldn't qualify us. It's a package deal, and gives us a lot more for the same millage."

Schenk added that the remodeling efforts at Klager and at the current high school will make the buildings more energy efficient, more productive and will also resolve some safety issues.

"This really takes care of most of our to-do list district wide.' she said. "We shouldn't have to go back to the voters for other

"We are spending a lot on maintenance right now because these are old facilities. And with utility costs climbing, making them more energy efficient will save the district a lot of money."

Oegema added, "It's nice to get the pieces in place, finally.

"It is a pretty exciting time."

people who came to donate, the Manchester blood bank was able to collect 78 pints of blood. From this one-day effort, 234 persons will be helped.

The whole day was busy, but especially right at the start, when six 'walk-ins' came.

As always, we are grateful to the American Legion for the use of their building and to the ladies' auxiliary for supplying volunteers. Joyce Scott and Marge Scully were co-chairs for the day.

Certified volunteers do the pre-checks and number the blood pack bags. All the jobs are necessary for the drive to work. Manchester was sent enough nurses to keep things rolling. Between 3:30 and 4:30 is called 'slow down' time, and equates to lunchtime for the nurses. So, donors at that time may have had to wait a little longer for the history to be taken. But all in all, every thing was

As normally happens, people may be just beginning their donating journey or have reached a milestone. There was one first timer, Lori Selover. Milestone makers included Kathy Hichcock and Bernadine Woods, one gallon; Sandra Bozelak, two gallons; John Muskiewicz, three gallons; Alan Staffeld and Robert Gold, four gallons each; and Ronald Tindall, eight gallons. Congratulations to all of these people.

"Baby's First Chicken Broil."

Unfortunately, Larissa will have to wait till another year to eat the chicken.

After hearing about the Chicken Broil for years, Rose Seleska of Dexter decided she'd come see what it's all about.

"I work with Bob Mottice, who works on the broil," she says. He's always talking about it and I figured I should try it out some-

Paul Schwab of Manchester and Jesse Lopez of Warren came to pick up 23 dinners for a family gathering at Schwab's house next-door to the Broil.

Schwab has been coming since it started, but the traditional family dinner began about 10 years

Reuben Green, who also lives near the Chicken Broil, brought his father, Harold, of Florida to pick up eight dinners to take back up the street to their family.

Jim and Janice Hauenstein of Sand Creek brought their cousins, Ted and Bev Magee of "We'd always heard about it, but things would come up and we were never able to come," Jim explains.

Chuck and Sue Gross of Tecumseh came with their son Kevin of Novi to buy nine dinners for the rest of the family.

"We didn't raise our kids right," Chuck says. "We're standing out in the heat and they're at home.'

He adds, "We've always been close to this area. I used to terrorize this town with my driver's ed classes. We'd change drivers at the bakery."

They have come with their family on and off for about 25 years.

"Last year we ate inside, but we thought it would be better to have it at our house so the kids can play in our yard," says Sue. "We really enjoy this area. Small town stuff's awesome!"

Theresa Schenk, who lives in Freedom Township, had never really come into Manchester before she started working at the high school, so this was her first Chicken Broil.

Manchester Dairy Queen owner Jeff Fahey carried back dinners for his staff at the Dairy Queen. He and his mother brought back 15 dinners for the girls to eat in shifts.

To calm and direct the steamed and starving masses, hosts like Mark Ball, a teacher at Manchester High School, man the gates.

Manchester's Countryfest

Second annual event deemed a success despite inclement weather.

By Angela Cooper Staff Writer

The rain that dampened Countryfest brought welcome relief from the muggy heat and also some refreshment for the plants strewn across Adrian Street at the farmer's market.

Manchester Floors and Interiors drew a large crowd of children with Colors the Clown and a moonwalk set up in their parking lot.

Manchester The Boosters had a dunk tank on Adrian Street next to the farmer's market.

Cheer Boosters president Diana Clark and her husband, Keith, sold the balls for the dunk tank and t-shirts to support the cheerleaders.

Several of the high school cheerleaders took turns getting dunked. Also, Deputy Marcus Kirby went in the dunk tank for a half hour.

The cake walk in the morning and the rubber duck race in the afternoon each drew a large number of spectators and participants. "I thought it went very well," says Village Gifts owner Peg Chizmar. "We sold all the ducks. but most merchants said sales were down.

"I want to say thanks to all the people that helped make it happen. It takes a lot of people to make it work

According Chizmar, the festival takes about three to four months to plan. The merchants get funding for the event from the duck race and the year before

She credits Jamie Sloat and his cousins for helping set up the cage for the duck race.

"It must weigh 500 pounds!" she laughs. "I tried to lift it once and it wouldn't even budge.

Gage Smith enjoys one of the pony rides given by Countryside Landscaping in Chi-Bro Park. Sheryl and Steve Knight of Countryside brought in the popular attraction from their business in Bridgewater Township.

Out of 24 winners in Saturday's Rubber Duckie race, 23 were Manchester residents.

First place winner was Jessica Bondy who took home $200 on Saturday afternoon as her winning duck was the first captured along the River Raisin. The second-place prize of $100 was awarded to Christine Jensen.

A very lucky young lady indeed, Morgan Dresch not only chose one of the third-place ducks, netting herself a $50 prize, but she won a cake in the cake walk as well. Brian Baker was the other third-place winner. All top winners were from Drize

Drawing on inspiration, artist sets a path for future

■ Artist will make local debut in Bridgewater this weekend.

Stacey Burmeister always has enjoyed art.

And she has always ridden and loved horses.

"I grew up on a farm and so I love animals," she says.

Now that Burmeister has graduated from Albion College, she has discovered a way to merge these two interests and launch a career for the future.

Graduating in May with a bachelor's degree in visual arts, the 1997 Manchester High School graduate started out primarily working in detailed, photographic-quality pencil

At Albion, she was exposed to a variety of different media. including pastels and oil paint-

"At school, I did some of everything." Burmeister says.
"I discovered that I really liked doing sculpture, ceramics and lithography, too.

"But for those you have to have an entire studio, and I really prefer using my hands."

So pencil drawing, using her hands to create works of art. remains her favorite medium and the one that is gaining her a wide reputation as an equine and wildlife artist.

"I kept doing it and people kept saying that I should go on and get my degree in art, so that's what I decided to do."

Getting a liberal arts degree and doing what she loves were her major goals at Albion and she accomplished that in the requisite four years. During the past four years, she has sold several of her works and also exhibited at galleries and art fairs, including the Ann Arbor

The Great Go-Liar

A Newaygo correspondent wrote this to a Grand Rapids paper: "The heat here is something remarkable. Our inhabitants had the pleasure of going down to Hess Lake and having a fish dinner. All the fish in the pond were boiled by the fierce heat, and all that was necessary in order to secure a square meal was to reach into the pond and haul out a fish by the tail and knock the scales off, when the flesh underneath was found to be nicely cooked. One sad accident has to be recorded in this connection. Little Willie Geezer, in his excitement, rushed into the pond, and before he could be rescued one of his heels and three toes on the other foot were done to a turn. Willie was finally dragged out, and after medical treatment will be able to play around again."

Shot His Friend

Morton Starr Cressey. Harvard law school student, who is spending the summer in Brattleboro, Vt., awoke early Friday morning in the grasp of a man, and struggled until free. when, snatching a revolver from the bureau, he fired four shots at his assailant.

On lighting his lamp he was horrified to find that he had shot his friend and classmate. Sidney Bristol, of Battle Creek, Mich., who came Thursday as a canvasser, and was invited by Cressey to stay over night at the house of his grandmother, Mrs. P. Starr.

It is believed that Bristol. while in a nightmare, took hold of Cressey.

Cressey said that he thought he was being attacked by a burglar. and fired as soon as he was free.

The young men were each about 24 years of age. They were graduated from Yale in 1900, and entered the Harvard law school

Disaster in Grand Rapids

A four-story block in Grand Rapids, occupied by Friedman & Co., wholesale and retail dry goods, collapsed Thursday morning and tumbled into the street. An hour later the most disastrous fire ever known in the city began. and threatened the whole business center. The flames spread rapidly from the loose dry goods stock to the crockery store of Blickley & Co., and the furnishing goods house of Wurzburg & Co., where the flames were checked after a hard fight. The whole Blodgett furniture block was ablaze, when Lieutenant of Firemen Connor fell from the top of a 55-foot ladder into the street and will die from his injuries.

The cause of the building's collapse was the remodeling inside, where workmen cut away some main pillars. Friedman & Co. employ 200 clerks, and terrible results can be imagined had the crash came a few hours later. The estimated loss to Friedman & Co. is $150,000, total; Luce building, $80,000, total.

Wurzburg, $40,000, partial; Blickley & Co., $30,000, partial; Blodgett building, $100,000, partial: a dozen furniture exhibitors in the Blodgett building, sample furniture, $5.000 each: White building, $1,000, partial.

A number of other stores were flooded with water, and this loss is not estimated.

Don't Say Don't

Mr. William Shaw of Boston Christian said to the Endeavorers at Cincinnati in discussing "How to Hold the Boy":

"Don't be forever saying 'don't'. Remember that boys are hero worshipers and that they admire masterful men and women.'

That is pretty good advice for fathers and mothers of boys.

Napoleon Bonaparte said that Man is the born enemy of doubt." To this we beg that the boy is a born hater of uncertainty, of the unexplained. He is also the especial enemy of "Don't." No camel in the desert with all of his stomachs empty ever yearned for water as a boy yearns for a reason. He is a living question mark, and mere affirmation withexplanation produces absolutely no effect upon him.

Give your boy reasons and above all give him examples and an incentive. This writer is acquainted with a boy three years of age. He declined positively and finally to eat soup.

Lottery Fortunes Unclaimed

A man in rough clothes went into a quayside barber's shop at Cherbourg for a shave. He said that he was going to America, as fortune was dead against him in France. As he sought for the pence he came across a crumpled morsel of paper, which he glanced at and handed to the barber, with the remark. "You can take that rubbish

It was a ticket for the "Loterie des Artistes Dramatiques." The Figaro crumpled it still further and threw it on to the floor. His wife found it and ironed it out. The emigrant had forgotten it, the barber had forgotten it, but when the lottery machine wheels told their tale on May 31 at the Tenth Mairie of the Arrondissement that rejected piece of paper was worth 100,000 francs, and the smile was on the prudent wife's face.

What fortunes are going a-begging over French lotteries is incredible. The banks ask for the owners of tickets that in regard to Panama represent such prizes as 500,000 francs.

Stretching an Injunction

"Your honor," said the lawyer, my client has reason to believe that the police are about to interfere arbitrarily with his business, and he would like to have an injunction restraining them from looking at him while he is at work or touching the tools of his profession."

"I do not see," said the learned judge, "why we should go so far as to restrain the police from looking at your client.'

'He is of a very nervous temperament, your honor, and to be watched while at work seriously disturbs him." "In that case," the judge admit-

A Lawn Mower's Use

"I have invented a lawn mower that won't make any noise," said the earnest young man.

"To whom do you expect to sell it?" inquired the hardware merchant, coldly. "You don't suppose people will get up at 5 o'clock in the morning for the sake of shoving one of these machines around in dead silence, do you? Lawn mowers are not made merely to cut grass. Their principal purpose is to have fun with the neighbors."

W. W. Chamberlain, died in New Orleans Tuesday of sunstroke, under circumstances indicating criminal negligence or ignorance on the part of the authorities of that city.

Chamberlain had recently returned from Bluefields Nicaragua, and it transpired that he was about to take the train for home Monday evening, when Patrolman Deverlay saw him fall unconscious on the walk in front of the station. Thinking him drunk, the officer summoned the patrol wagon, which took him up to the station, where he was locked up in a cell. Chamberlain's condition was discovered in the morning, and he was sent to the Charity hospital, but it was too late to save his life.

Chamberlain was about 40 years old and by trade a blacksmith and painter. He went south for his health, and arrived in New Orleans penniless about July 1. His wife had sent him money to come home with, and he had purchased a ticket, which was found in his pocket.

Picketing Unlawful

Judge Clark, of the United States District Court, during the hearing of the motion to dissolve the temporary injunction issued against the striking machinists of Cincinnati, said:

"I have arrived at the conclusion that picketing is beyond shadow of doubt unlawful; that it is immoral and wrong. Counsel for the defense must understand plainly that I am opposed to picketing in any form whatever and that I will promptly make the power of this court felt against it. But violence," he added, "is not to be remedied by injunction in this court. It is subject to criminal jurisdiction of the state

Look Out for Them

Chief Wilkie, of the secret service, has received a number of bank notes printed from the original plates used by the State Bank of New Brunswick, N. J., over 50 years ago. The bank went out of existence some time in the 1850s, and it was supposed the steel plates were destroyed. It seems that the plates have fallen into the hands of parties who have printed from them large quantities of notes which have been put into circulation from New York to San Francisco. A very large percentage of the notes so far discovered are twos. although some ones and fives are being sent in. It is said possibly $2.000.000 of these notes are in circulation.

This year's Summer Fest bigger, better

By Corey Roepken Staff Writer

The 28th annual Summer Fest promises to be bigger and better than ever, with new attractions, a variety of exhibitors, several fine arts booths and a full slate of entertainment.

The festival is from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and 5,000 to 10,000 people from Michigan and Ohio are expected to attend.

New attractions and events include a community-wide garage sale with maps provided that list the locations of participating homes, and a Friday night chicken broil at the First Congregational Church on West Middle Street.

A steak cookout will be held downtown Saturday night, and Preservation Chelsea will offer guided tours of historical homes and landmark residences in the downtown area.

A full compliment of food vendors and children's activities will surround the entertainment area in the parking lot behind the Common Grill restaurant. In addition to the many food wagons, the Common Grill will be serving special festival dishes in a terrace-like seating.

The social tent will be serving cold beer and wine from a larger designated area 3 to 11 p.m. both days.

"The planning committee and area merchants are really, really excited about this year's festival," said Ric Sauer, festival director and president of the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce. "We have a great entertainment lineup, with an unbelievable stage and sound system coming in. People will think they're at Pine Knob (DTE Energy Music Theatre) when they see this set up. We've also added many exciting new attractions this year and expanded others."

The new entertainment acts and attractions will join those that have made Summer Fest a summer highlight. Friday night will feature a combination of Rattlebox and Kung Fubiesel. The Sea Cruisers and Bobby Lewis and The Cracker Jack Band will perform Saturday night.

"This is a very diverse lineup of entertainment," entertainment coordinator Steve Daut said. "We have everything from rock 'n' roll to folk, reggae to blues, classic rock to rockabilly and then some. It's going to be a fun two days."

The classic car show is back Friday night and will feature hundreds of automobiles from across Michigan. The Red Garter Band will provide entertainment at the show.

There also will be sidewalk sales both days in downtown, and there will be in-store specials.

There are several parking lots in the downtown area to accommodate the influx of visitors. In addition, a shuttle bus will run on half-hour shifts, leaving from the south-end mall with vari-

Colors the Clown is among the Summer Fest's entertainment from 10 a.m. to noon Friday and Saturday. She will perform in the parking lot behind the Common Grill restaurant. The loveable character uses a pot-bellied pig, rabbits and ducks during her show. Other family entertainment on Saturday includes Yo-Master Zeemo from noon to 2 p.m., and gymnastics and tae kwon do from 1 to 2 p.m.

Festival has grown over years

By Corey Roepken Staff Writer

The Chelsea Summer Fest has grown considerably in the past four years, but when its original look is compared to what is now, the atmosphere would seem almost surreal.

It was called the Chelsea Sidewalk Sales in the early 1970s, and it was a two-day event that gave merchants a chance to have a joint sale to attract customers to downtown. Most businesses setup displays on the sidewalks in front of their stores.

The event grew, and food vendors, entertainment and craft booths were added. The Downtown Merchants Association did the planning and organizing, as it does today.

Today, it has evolved into the Summer Fest and draws close to 5,000 visitors from the Midwest and Canada. It is still overseen by the merchants group, but now is planned by a group of volunteers and committee heads.

"As the event continues to grow, we urge everyone in and around the community to come down and experience the event," said Ric Sauer, committee director. "We have come a long way from the old Sidewalk Sale days from years ago."

Giddy Up!

Uncle Bill's Pony Rides is always popular with the children. The activity returns to this year's Summer Fest with a riding area set up near the McKune House, the former Chelsea library building, on Main Street. Children will be able to ride from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday and Saturday.
