Homecoming Exhibits

The exhibit in the J. V. Wise building was sure up to the standard and one any small town could be justly proud of. If time and space would permit we would like to ment on all of our exhibits and exhibitors who were so kind to bring things to make it a success. One things there are around the country Leroy Hayden and family drove and how many quaint relics and through from Detroit to Gobles Fri keepsakes which were sure worth ones time to see.

The judges for the Art Department were: Mrs. Anderson, Mill Peska, Grand Junction, and they felt it was no easy task to decide who should be given the prizes. The following were given special prizes: Mrs. Hodgman, F. VanVoorhees, Van Ryno, Will Pullin, J. O. Shryock, Clayton Newcomb, Mrs. Lester Clark, as well as many other smaller prizes.

Shoe Peddlers Enroute

Within the next few weeks Mich igan is likely to be invaded by a small army of shoe peddlers who make a house-to-house canvass for what is claimed special bargains in both men's and women's shoes. In one community they solicit for ladies' slippers, while in others it is for a new style of men's oxfords. A special outdoor shoe for men is also one of their leaders. It will be well for you to scrutinize their wares very closely in case they should invade this community. Other places report a lot of dissatisfied people who were led into purphasing through their specious arguments.

Obituary

Clarence Herbert Clark was born in New York state February 2 1849 and departed this life August 23, 1925, aged 76 years, 7 months and 21 days.

In 1876 he was united in marriage to Hannah Almira Wilson who passed away in 1915. To this union 7 children were born: four girls, Maud Hayes, Celia Coffinger, Alma Carpenter and Bessie Siver; and three boys, Nelson and Lester who survive and Jay who passed away three years ago. In the immediate family there are a number of grandchildren and greatgrandchildren and one sister, Mrs. Flora Jennison of New York State.

Having been a highly respected member of this community for about fifty years, Mr. Clark has made a host of friends, who with several step-children and a number of other relatives will unite in extending sympathy to the bereaved family, to whom he was always a kind and affectionate father.

Evidently Had Not Absorbed "Business"

A story is being told of the engagement of an additional chorus man for the musical production, "Rose Marie," at Drury Lane theater.

The male chorus in the show are mainly mounted police, and frontiersmen, for the action of "Rose Marie" takes place in northwest Canada.

Out of the two hundred applicants for the position one was selected because of his excellent voice. He was duly brought before the "powers that be," and promptly turned down as looking "nothing like the part."

The producer was keen to have him and made inquiries as to his previous stage experience. Imagine his surprise when the man replied, "I haven't done much acting lately-I've spent my last five years in the Canadian Northwest Mounted police!"-Vancouver Prov-

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

OPTIMISM

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK

THINGS are seldom as bad as we think they will be. I read, some years ago, Miss Mildred

Aldrich's "On the Edge of the Zone." Miss Aldrich was living in a little hous on the bank of the Marne at the beginning of the late war. She was an eyewitness to the heroic struggles of the French army when the Germans were driven back from their vantage ground in that vicinity. She went through all sorts of discomforts in a climate that at its best in winter is disagreeable. She was without coal when snow was on the ground and the temperature was bitterly low. She was shut in, restricted in her food supplies, and often in actual danger; vet she never complained. She says she really never suffered, and that she was never so well in her life. Even when she was without fuel she didn't catch cold, and she objected very strenuously to being pitied by her friends. She was sure that things are never so bad as we fear they may be. She tells of many of the soldiers who came back from the front for "repos," some of whom were quartered with her. They had been in the trenches, surrounded by all the wretched conditions of which we have read, more wretched, perhaps, than we dream of. They had slept out in the snow and cold, or, what is even worse, in the mud and rain, yet they were rosy, healthy, thoroughly fit, and cheerful as school boys. They had not found the conditions of living in active war service nearly as unbearable as they had supposed they would be.

The crape hanger and the prophet of evil almost always make things worse than they are.

The case of a neighbor of mine when I was a boy in the country comes to my mind as I write. He was constantly obsessed with the thought of drought and flood, of pestilence and famine, of cyclones and devouring insects. He invariably took the gloomy view. He constantly courted disaster and predicted calamity, and he looked forward with melancholy resignation to the time when he would be quartered on the county, his home and his friends gone. Yet he regularly prospered, his crops always matured, prices were much higher than he had anticipated, the yield of grain was satisfactory and he got on well. He extended his possessions regularly, until he is now one of the solid, substantial farmers in the community in which he lives. But he is not happy. Today he is looking for trouble, though most of the things which have made his life miserable during his sixty years have never happened.

I know a young mother who lives in hourly terror that something will happen to her baby. She sees germs on everything that he touches and on everything that touches him. She looks forward to the time when he will have broken bones and a fractured skull. It is true that he has fallen out of bed and tumbled downstairs, but his little soft body has been scarcely the worse for its contact with the floor. He had a few bruises and a little discoloration, but he was gurgling in complete happiness fifteen minutes afterward. He was not hurt half as badly as she had supposed. She is constantly dreading measles and mumps, chickenpox and whooping cough. She cannot be made to see that nature is training his body to resist the inroads of disease. She weighs him every Sunday, anxious for fear he may have lost weight or may not he quite up to Doctor Holt's standard of perfection. All the time he is healthy and happy and hilariously unconscious of these dreaded horrors which practically never come to him, or if they do come prove to be insignificant.

Yesterday morning I woke with the thought that I had two extremely disagreeable tasks to perform during the day that involved the saying of things that would not be pleasant to me nor to the person who had to listen. I felt like running, I shrank back from the disagreeable duty. I wished that I might shunt it upon some one else. But I found when I faced it courageously, when I went to it straightforwardly and kindly, that most of the disagreeable part disappeared. I got through rather easily.

And so I have found that most of the objectionable and disagreeable and trying experiences of life are worse on anticipation than on realization. The trouble and privation and the sacrifices that we look forward to with dread either never come to us or prove far less trying than we anticipate. Even the dreaded specter of death I have no doubt, when we come to meet him face to face, will have lost his terrors. Most people whom I have seen go have done so courageously, fearlessly, painlessly and often without regret. Who knows but that the hereafter, which we sometimes shrink from, may not hold for each of us more joy and greater opportunities than does the present? It may not be so dull and monotonous in heaven as we fear, even if we are given a harp

Cows Fond of Garlic

American dairy interests recently appealed to the Department of Agriculture for a solution of the problem of preventing the garlicky taste in milk from cows that have eaten garlic, says Popular Science Monthly. Experts of the department determined that the only way is to keep the cows from the weed, in which they revel.

Flint—Three persons were injured, Make Your Swamp Land Raise Crops

Vast Area of Idle Soil That Could Be Made Productive for Owner.

There is a vast area of swamp land in this country that could be made into fertile, productive fields through the use of proper drainage methods. Recent statistics published by the United States Chamber of Commerce estimate that the total swamp lands now unimproved and awaiting the magic touch of drainage amount to almost 80,000.-000 acres. The greater portion of these lands lie in the Southwestern states, yet in the rich Central West there are millions of unclaimed acres in Minnesota, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin. Missouri and Arkansas, which might be made at relatively small expense into productive soil.

It has been shown that such land if susceptible to drainage more than pays the cost of drainage. The soil is generally of unusual fertility, rich in humus because of centuries of decaying vegetable matter.

Two Viewpoints.

From the standpoint of land drainage, water in the soil is considered from two viewpoints. Water which is drained away is known as gravity or hydrostatic water. It retards plant growth. It is the excess water which tends to flow downward under the action of gravity. Capillary water in the soil keeps it moist and supports plant rises in a lamp wick. Land drainage removes water which is injurious to plant growth, but none of the water that is necessary and beneficial.

Soil that has been systematically drained is in condition to cultivate 10 to 20 days earlier in the spring than undrained land, because surface and excess water will disappear as soon as frost leaves the ground. The soil will also be warmer because air will enter it and warm it up after the water has been removed. Seeds will therefore germinate sooner and young plants will grow more rapidly. On undrained land the farmer must wait for excess water to evaporate. This process takes heat from the soil which should be retained to give young plants an early start. This accounts for the slow-growing, sickly looking plants that are seen on waterlogged soils during early spring. Getting an early start gives corn more time to mature before fall frost. Small grains also have time to fill and ripen before the hottest weather sets in.

Liberates Plant Food.

When surplus water clogging soil pores is removed, air enters the soil. This is necessary to help liberate plant food and to stimulate plant growth. Deeper root penetration is made possible in a drained soil. Plants thus have a larger supply of food to draw from. Deep-rooted plants will not be affected by drought so much as shallow-rooted ones. For this reason drained land is more drought-resistant than undrained areas.

The volume of water which will flow through a tile line is limited to the capacity of the smallest tile, therefore all tile in a particular line should be the same size. To secure a steady flow of water, all tile should have the same diameter so there will be no effects between adjacent tile. The diameter and length of concrete tile are accurately the tile are molded. Twelve-inch tile are twelve inches long.

Circular tile give greater capacity than oval tile. Concrete tile are always cylindrical, and this offers a continuous channel for the free and rapid movement of water. Because they are of a uniform mixture, molded by machine, and cured under uniform conditions, there is little variation in strength in concrete tile. There are no rough places on the inside to retard the flow of water.

Hubam Plowed Under in

Fall Is Good Practice Hubam is an annual sweet clover. That is, it matures seed the same year it is seeded. It is also a very rapid grower and will produce a large amount of forage after the nurse crop has been harvested. This can be and the ground be made ready for the particular purpose it is liked better than biennial sweet clover by those who insist upon having their ground fall plowed for corn. When springseeded biennial sweet clover is plowed under in the fall, the clover comes up in the cornfield the following spring and acts more or less as a weed in the cornfield. This, of course, can be avoided by deferring the plowing till spring after the clover has started growth the second year, but under some conditions it is not a good plan to postpone plowing till spring. For situations of this sort hubam is an unusually valuable legume.

Loss From Shattering

From one-fifth to three-fourths of the total seed yield of sweet clover is lost from shattering. It is possible to equip the grain binder with pans and extensions to the rear elevator plate and binder deck so that at least 95 per cent of the seed which shatters when the crop is cut may be saved. These pans and extensions may be made out of ordinary galvanized metal and strap iron.

The plan and direction for making the pan and extension may be secured by writing the Kansas State Agriculture college, Manhattan.

Troubles of Binder Can Be Prevented

Secure Better Operation by Observing Few Rules.

According to farm machinery experts at the Nebraska Agricultural college, a careful, observation of the following ifs will secure better operation and less trouble: 1. If the machine travels with a jerky motion, main drive drain is too loose or it may be dry. Try a little oil on it.

2. If the slats rip off the canvas, the elevators are not square.

3. If the knotter hook is rusty and rough, it will not work properly. Polish it with a fine emery paper.

4. If the binder attachment is not timed properly, it certainly will not work. Some binders are timed in as many as five places. 5. If the knotter hook does not turn far enough to close the fingers on the twine, no knot will be tied. Look at the knotter pinion. It should not be 6. If the twine slips through the cord holder, the twine will be pulled out before the knot is tied. Adjust the cord holder spring. It should take 40 pounds to pull the twine from the

7. If the disk does not move far enough, the knotter hook grasps only one cord, hence a loose end band. 8. If the needle is bent or out of shape, there will be a loose end band. The needle is malleable iron and may be hammered back to shape.

9. If the twine is pulled from the hook before the knot is tied, try the knife, it may be dull.

10. If you wish to change the size of bundles, do it with the bundle sizer spring, not the tension or compress spring.

'Hand-Made" Chicks Top Market Prices for Meat

Close confinement and a soft palatable fattening ration convert the hard, lean cockerels into the soft, tender two-pound broilers which command a good market price, reports O. N. Johnson, poultryman at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture.

The market is now demanding a two-pound cockerel, therefore, those cockerels, which already weigh two pounds may be sent to market directly while those which weigh under two pounds are confined in small crates or pens and fed a fattening Dairy Calves Need Right ration for ten to fourteen days. The birds gain rapidly and their flash takes on a superior texture because of the nature of the feed used during this fattening period.

A good fattening ration suggested by Johnson is composed of 60 pounds of ground corn, 40 pounds flour middlings or Red Dog and one pound of salt. This mixture is mixed with buttermilk or skim milk to a pancake batter consistency and fed twice each day. Only enough is given to the chicks at each feeding to partially satisfy their hunger. After they have eaten fifteen to twenty minutes the remaining feed should be removed.

After the birds have been fed this ration for a two weeks' period the bones become quite soft and are easily broken. They cannot be shipped any distance alive Johnson points out.

Treat Seed to Prevent Large Loss From Smut

each year in Kansas, can be effectively controlled by treating the seed before it is planted. The damage is brought about by reduction in yield and by dockage assessed when smutted wheat is sold, according to L. E. Molchers, plant pathologist, Kansas State Agricultural college.

The standard wet formaldehyde treatment has been most commonly used in Kansas. Prepare a solution of full strength formaldehyde by mixing one pint with 40 to 45 gallons of is not badly cracked. Before treating the seed, it is absolutely necessary that it be run through a fanning mill to get rid of the chaff, smut balls, and shriveled kernels.

formaldehyde method is carried out by spreading the fanned grain not more than four inches deep on a floor, canvas, or wagon box. The formaldehyde solution can be applied with a garden sprinkling can.

Destruction of volunteer wheat means less injury from Hessian fly.

After the pigs are weaned it takes only sow sense to keep them growing.

Check the cutworms by scattering bran mixed with paris green around the roots of plants.

Profitable farming depends upon the season and the system. No, the season can't be controlled.

The men who get the lower costs of production and usually the better men. That's why they get the lower costs.

Twenty years ago there was scarcely a farmer anywhere who kept production records of dairy cows; there are comparatively few who do so today; yet some of the men who do have set some most valuable examples for others to follow.

FEEDING GRAIN TO COWS ON PASTURE

Does it pay to feed grain to cows on pasture? The answer is that it depends largely upon how much milk the cow gives and how good the pasture is.

If a cow is producing less than a pound of butterfat each day, the necessalv food can be obtained from a good pasture. If she produces more than this, some grain can be fed with profit. This means that a Holstein should be able to get food enough from grass alone to make 25 to 30 pounds of milk daily, and a Guernsey or Jersey about 20 pounds. It will pay to feed grain to all giving above this amount as it is impossible for the animal to gather sufficient feed in the form of grass.

To produce a pound of butterfat daily requires at least 25 pounds of dry material. Fresh pasture grass contains only ten to twelve pounds of dry matter in a hundred pounds, making it necessary for a cow to gather and digest from 200 to 250 pounds of grass to produce from 20 to 30 pounds of milk. It is clear from this that it is impossible for a really high-producing cow giving 40 to 50 pounds daily to do so long on grass alone.

A cow yielding a pound and a haif of fat daily should receive about five pounds of grain, and about seven or eight pounds of grain for two pounds of fat. When not more than five pounds of grain is needed, it may be corn, barley, oats, or any combination of grain that is cheapest. The grass supplies a good amount of protein so the danger of a shortage of this necessary material is not serious. With a high-producing cow requiring more than five pounds of grain daily, a small amount of bran, linseed meal, or other high protein feed should be added.

These recommendations hold good only when pastures are good. In midsummer it will often be necessary to feed more grain to high-producing cows or to give some silage or green feeds to help out the pastures .-- C. H. Eckles, chief of the division of dairy husbandry, University Farm, St. Paul.

Feed to Make Best Growth Dairy calves should be taken from their mothers when twenty-four hours old. They must have their dam's first milk in order to get started off right. Place them in a clean stall or pen and teach them to drink by letting them suck your finger until they get a taste of the milk. Feed two or three pounds of whole milk morning, noon, and night. Do not neglect the noon feed. If you do they will gulp down the night ration. and the result is scours and other intestinal trouble.

When a month old drop the noon feed and begin to add separated milk, about four pounds at a feed. After feeding the milk, put some bran and corn chops before them in a pan. This will keep them from sucking each other to some extent though when several calves are being fed it is better to tie them separately or put them in stanchions.

Keep plenty of pure water before the calves and nice bright hay or pas-Stinking smut in wheat, which ture grass. It is surprising how much causes approximately $1,000,000 loss water they will drink. Provide shade in summer, be kind and gentle in handling them, and if you have any foundation at all you will raise a real dairy

Why Fifty-Dollar Scrub

Is Most Expensive Bull

Usually they figure "What is a pure-bred sire worth?" That is fine, but just for variety let us figure what a scrub bull costs his owner. United States dairy bureau figures show that water. Use only good seed which scrub bulls cost 13 dairymen a decrease of 56,848 pounds of butterfat, and $29,762.42 in decrease in sales. This is a cost to each owner of the scrub bull of $2,289.47. Wouldn't that money buy a dandy bull? The cost of these scrub bulls to the 13 dairymen, when computed on a cow's basis, was $56.15 per cow. Is a $200 pure-bred bull an expensive bull in a herd? Absolutely not. The expensive bull is the $50 scrub sire that we pick up because he is cheap.—B. W. Fairbanks, Extension Service, Colorado Agricultural College.

Threat Was Too Much

Publick Occurrences, which appeared in Boston, Mass., September 25, 1690 was the first newspaper in America. It started out well by promising to print all the news without fear or favor, and to promote the interests of Boston. It also promised that in its next issue it would publish the names of all the liars in Boston. The authorities, taking notice of the threat, forbade publication, so Publick Occurrences gave up in disgust and died.

Ancient English Guild

In the isle of Purbeck, from which came the stone for Westminster abbey and many other ancient structures, the quarries belong to an old and exclusive guild. A candidate for admission to it must be the son of a freeman, though a freeman's wife is made a freewoman on paying one shilling-the "marriage shilling." In the event of his death she can carry on his business.-London

Highly Imaginary

The "Land of Cockaigne" was an imaginary land of idleness and plenty in which the houses were roofed with cake, the rivers ran with wine and roasted fowl offered themselves to be rision to both London and Paris following the writing of a satirical poem entitled "The Land of Cockaigne" about 1300.

First Presidential Salary

George Washington, the first President, refused a salary, saying that he would accept expenses only. President Washington kept a minute account the Erst year and found that he had spent 5,000 English pounds, about $25,000. For this reason the salary of the Presdent was fixed at $25,000.

"Burnt War Department"

The War department was housed in building on the south side of Pennsylvania avenue between Twenty-first and Twenty-second streets, and this was destroyed by fire in 1801. The blackened walls stood for many years and the ruin was known as the "Burnt War Department."

Keeping Down Pests

If it were not for the natural enemies of every insect, many that are not especially obnoxious now would soon become universal pests. Government, experiments a few years ago showed that about 95 per cent of native caterpillars are killed by parasites.

Harsh Punishments

Sometimes in the ancient days of Milan a fine was imposed for larceny: at other times the foot of the criminal was amputated. In cases of forgery the right hand was amputated, as a rule. Burial alive was the fate met by some forgers.

STATE OF MICHIGAN—The Probate Court Franklin Ranks High for the County of Van Buren, as Apostle of Thrift

He had few books but was determined to have an education. Many a time he would sit up nearly all night reading by candlelight. To buy more books, Franklin made a bargain with his brother, to whom he was apprenticed, by which he would board himself on half the money it had been costing. Then he did without fish and meat, lived on a cheap vegetable diet and invested his savings in worthwhile books.

He never attended a college or even a high school. Hé went to a primitive grammar school but two years and yet he was one of the best educated men of his day. He found time to write books, to study science, to invent. No one ever exemplified the value of thrift in time more than did Franklin. His "wise saws" on timesaving, such as "Since thou art not sure of a minute, throw not away an hour," are known to all.

If you say a man tells the truth you have said it all. There is no neat and forceful way of emphasizing and enlarging upon that. But if you say he lies you will find a hundred subterfuging ways to say it. From the "short and ugly" to "equivocate," "quibble," "prevaricate" and the like, the list is long, says the Montreal

One politician made himself famous by saying of another that he "was economical in the use of the truth to the verge of parsimoniousness." Such a statement draws a smile. It is bland, it is suave, it has the mild sting of vinegar, not the burning erosion of vitriol.

Even better than such elaborate circumlocutions to express a thing which at best we should have left unsaid is to forego for the moment being clever, and keep our peace. The world will think more highly of us for it.

When Pedagogues Kicked

Scotland's army of schoolmasters in the year 1782 sent a memorial to parliament pointing out that while their average income was £13 a year that of a plowman was £14 to £16. No relief was granted until 1802, when the Schoolmasters' act was passed, and their income was legally fixed at "not under 300 merks (£16 13s. 4d) nor over 400 merks (£22 4s. 6d)." The heritors had also to provide a house, which need not contain more than two rooms, including the kitchen, and with ground for a garden or not more than a quarter of a Scots acre, or two bolls of meal as its equivalent," They were highly indignant at being obliged to "erect palaces for dominies," but legal compulsion could no longer be ignored. Thereafter, conditions were at least good enough to prevent schoolmasters from resigning their office to become beadles-as had actually happened during the darkest days!

Marvels of Jelly-Fish

The jelly-fish has a truly wonderful way of reproducing its species. In most cases the beginning is an egg, which, lying on the bottom, produces a beautiful tree-like growth. The "tree" fastens itself to the bottom and brings forth buds which, when ripe, drop off and develop into jelly-fish. The latter in turn lay eggs and the process is repeated. Most of the very large species have a different way of reproducing themselves. The egg is set free in the water and develops into a pear-shaped larva, which for a while swims about rapidly, being provided with hair-like appendages that serve the purpose of ears. Then the larva settles down, anchors itself to the bottom, increases in size rapidly, and finally splits up into thin, flat discs which swim off and grow up into large jelly-fishes.

Origin of Gloves

Gloves trace their origin back for centuries, the first mention of them in literature is to be found in the Bible, but scientists believe we should go back still farther, for among preglacial relics an unmistakable drawing of a glove, rudely etched upon a stone, was discovered.

It is said that the first skilled glovemakers were the monks of the early Middle ages. In 790 Charlemagne granted to the abbots and monks of Sithin, in ancient France, unlimited right of hunting the deer for skins of which to make gloves. Glovemaking was established in France as an industry in the Twelfth century.

Economical Wooing

"There are men, I suppose," she remarked pensively, "who get engaged to more than one girl at a time."
"Yes," he answered, "but I am not one of them."

"I'm glad to hear you say that. It is so frivolous and insincere."

"Of course. And there is no reason why a man shouldn't make one engagement ring go all the way around. if he only takes his time."

Phelan Takes a Chance

By BAYARD SHARPE

(© by Western Newspaper Union.) BOB PHELAN eased up on the accellerator and applied the brakesomething about the license number on the rear of the car ahead of him holding his eyes. The number read: 986809.

As state motor vehicle inspector, Bob knew exactly what was wrong with the license number. So far the state had not issued number plates over seven hundred thousand. A close scrutiny showed that the number should have read; six hundred and eight thousand, nine hundred and eighty-six. The number plate was upside down.

"Must think we're all dum'belis!" Bob grinned, pressing the throttle and bringing the radiator of his car parallel with that of the other.

"Class to that baby-believes grabbin' good ones while he's at it! Dalpin-Six!"

He granced casually at the driver of the Dalpin, and unconsciously his hands tightened on the steering wheel. Bob cussed emphatically under his breath. "Fenny Thomasshoot his grandmother an' steal her false teeth-an' me steppin' out tonight? Fat chance of gittin' him!" Fenny Thomas had long been suspected as the leader of an organized band of automobile thieves; so far authorities had failed to get the goods on him.

"Lordy," Bob breathed. "Send me a motor cop or something!" The driver of the Dalpin eased up on the throttle; Bob did likewise, fol. the commerce of the northern seas lowing and keeping his front wheels just to the rear of the Dalpin's big nickled bumper.

Bob's position as motor vehicle inspector called for the wearing of no uniform; he was an officer of the state, sworn to make arrests wherever he found infractions against the state motor vehicle laws.

As they sped along he began to wonder if the showdown, or whatever it was was going to be, would make him miss his date with the girl-but, if he could only get the Daipin into a traffic jam, any way to get his hands on Thomas-he'd show 'em that Steve Brodle wasn't the only bird that could take a chance. Suddenly, the driver of the Dalpin signaled for a left turn-Bob's lips became a straight line; he gripped the steering wheel—deliberately driving his car into the Dalpin.

"Crash—Bang!"

The right front wheel of Bob's car, hooked in the bumper of the Dalpin, struck the button in the center of the street and collapsed. The tire blew out with a roar. The Dalpin came to a skidding stop, its driver snorting:

"What the--"My fault, Old Man." Smiling, Bob shouted to make himself heard above the noise of the traffic. "Sleep at the switch; didn't get your signal till too late-no brakes! Didn't hurt you none."

The scowl on Fenny's face, just relaxed. "Back up so's I can get on my way !"

"Cramp your wheels, an' back close to the curb!" Bob shouted toward the driver of the Dalpin. Tugging at the steering wheel, Thomas dropped into reverse gear; as he did so Bob climbed on the running board. Thomas brought the gear shift into neutral.

"Sorry it happened, Old Man." Bob smiled apologetically. "Here's a tenspot to fix your bumper!" He extended the bill.

Grinning, Thomas took the money.

'Hard luck for you!" "Yeah!" Bob sobered. "Gotta date, too-three-block walk is gonna make me late--could--I ride a couple of blocks down the street with you?" Thomas peered into Bob's lean face. He saw nothing to excite his suspicion. "Get in!" Smiling, Bob opened the door and climbed into the seat beside him.

"Grr-reeck!" The gear lever went into second and with the click, as it snapped back into high, Thomas brought his hand back to the steering wheel. Then-Thomas felt something jab him in the ribs and he heard Bob's voice rasping in his

"Keep your hands on the wheel an' your eyes on the road an' drive for Central station-an' hit the bumps easy if you don't want this gat to do some evacuatin'!"

Cursing and trembling, Thomas obeyed, not even trusting a glance at the something, covered by Bob's coat tail, that dug into his ribs; in fact he did not even remonstrate when Bob relieved him of his own shining weapon, and he was still trembling as he led the way into the station; but as he stepped to the desk, he faced

Bob, sneering: "Y're a wise Dick awright, but if you'd 'a' took that gat outa my ribs, and give me a chance-I'd 'a' sure give you the gaft!"

"Yeah!" Bob grinned, thrusting out his fist and almost touching the nose of the sneering crook with the stubbed end of a crippled index finger, "Maybe you think I didn't take a chance, this little old stub, with your imagination-did the trick-my gat was home

English Town Makes Specialty of Blankets

There ought to be a game-perhaps there is-in which a town's name is answered by its industry, an exchange observes. "Sheffield." cries one. "Knives." says the other; "Cheddar" cries another, "Cheese," replies one, To Witney, the answer, without any quibbling, is "Blankets." Witney is pervaded, you may say, with blankets. wrapped up in them, indeed, devoted to them, and proud of them, as well it may be. For are not they the best in Britain? And this is no new industry, but a 500-year-old one, and it has ever brought prosperity to the little town and work for its people. Still older than its blankets is the town, the Witaneye of the Saxons, and a thank-offering of Queen Emma, wife of that Canute who sat beside the sea. It has its market place, where the Butter Cross of 1683 made shelter for the farmers' wives who came to sell their eggs and butter. But food is secondary to blankets in this little place. Behind the one long street of houses runs the Windrush, that serves the blanket makers with its clear waters. In the town stands the guild hall of the Blanket-Makers' company, with their arms and motto-a motto that gives good reason for the continuous prosperity of the blanket makers and their industry:

"Weave truth with trust."

Sweden Great Power During Middle Ages

Cities of southern Sweden were among the greatest commercial centers of the civilized world during the Middle ages. Stockholm and Lund ranked with London and Paris, says the Family Herald. They absorbed and were the admiration of thousands of travelers and merchants who passed through them and trafficked with them. Later Sweden was the great military power of northern Europe. The ambassadors of the Swedish kings were received with the utmost deference in every court. Her soldiers won great battles and ended mighty wars. The England of Cromwell and Charles II was unimportant and isolated in comparison with this northern kingdom, which could pour forth armies of gigantic blond warriors headed by brave and astute generals. Sweden is today a peaceful kingdom. Even the secession of Norway was accomplished without bloodshed. Denmark once domineered and tyrannized over both kingdoms.

Keen Shot Kills Tiger

With his long tail erect over his back and his head held high, came the monarch of the forest straight for us. His strength, grace and speed are impossible to describe. As he rounded a turn about 60 yards away I let him have it with my right barrel. The bullet went true to its mark. When it hit him, full in the right eye, he was in the act of making a spring. The leap, for a good 20 feet beyond, came, but when he touched the earth he was stone dead. The bullet had entered his brain, and not a mark was visible on his beautiful coat, nor was there the least twitching of his muscles after the fatal shot. No one there had ever seen or heard of a tiger being shot without having a mark of any kind made on his skin .--Brig. Gen. William Mitchell in National Geographic Magazine.

Sea and Land in Battle

The washing away by the sea of and worth millions of dollars on the coast of New Jersey, pointed to in the annual report of the United States coast and geodetic survey, draws attention to the battle waged year in and year out between the sea and land all over the world. The sea and land have been foes since the beginning of time and, according to some physiographers, these old enemies will remain such until the last mountain pinnacle has been washed down and ground to sand, and the victorious ocean rolls unbroken around the world. But whatever may be the outcome millions of years hence, we are still in the give-and-take era. Many miles of land are washed away annually; but compensating areas are built up in other places.-Pathfinder Magazine.

Not to Be Caught Twice

There was a queer old custom in England that compelled a person when making a certain kind of statement to add: "Except the mayor." Foote, the comedian, having remarked at an inn: "I have dined as well as anyone in England," the landlord prompted him: "Except the mayor." "I except nobody," said Foote boldly. For this the landlord had him haled before a magistrace, who fined him a shilling for not conforming to the ancient custom. Foote paid the shilling, at the same time observing that he thought his accuser "the greatest fool in Christendom-except the mayor."

PLANES CRASH IN AIR; TWO KILLED

Army Flyers Crushed to Death When Machines Collide Near Chicago.

Chicago.-Two United States army airplanes, piloted by officers who had won prizes at Camp Grant earlier in the day for superb handling of their machines, crashed 500 feet above the government flying field at Maywood.

Lieut. T. P. Smith, pilot of one, and his passenger, William L. Heptig, a wealthy Board of Trade member, were killed when their plane became unmanageable and plunged, burning, to the ground. Both leafed, striving to open their parachutes, but the distance was too short to allow of the parachutes opening.

The two men's bodies struck the earth and were crushed a few hundred feet from Edward Hines Memorial hospital, filled with war veteran patients.

Heptig was president of the Illinois chapter of the National Aeronautical society, captain in the reserve corps, and head of the grain brokerage firm of William L. Heptig & Co. Lieutenant Smith was attached to the United States flying corps of Chanute field, Rantoul, Ill.

Lieut. Robert W. Douglas of Selfridge field, Mount Clemens, Mich., pilot of the other machine, managed to keep control of it and to coast in safety to the landing field, although the propeller had been broken off in the collision.

U. S. Charges Five With Huge Florida Land Fraud

Chicago.—Federal officials in Chicago obtained warrants for principals In what they declare is a $1,600,000 Florida land fraud which has been cleaning up in this region at the expense of legitimate transactions in the southern real estate boom.

The alleged wildcat promotional company to be hit is the Florida Land company, whose offices in the Burnham building are said to surpass the late Leo Koretz' taste for readymoney backgrounds.

Those named in warrants issued by U. S. Commissioner H. C. Beitler are Jacob Factor, Henry Heinsius, Maurice E. Drucker, H. J. Hummelstein, Newton Feldman and Nathan Factor The specific charge against the mem bers of the Florida Land company, according to First Assistant District Attorney William F. Waugh, is violation of article 215 of the criminal code which has to do with using the mail in furtherance of a scheme to defraud.

Col. Mitchell Says U. S. Holds Up Superplane

Chicago.—Col. William Mitchell, former head of the army air service, asserted that although there has been perfected an American super-airplane capable of making a nonstop flight from the United States to Paris with a ton of explosive aboard, he has been unable to obtain government permission to make tests with the craft.

"Old fogey ideas," he asserted, "are holding back the inevitable. The producers of this plane believe, and I believe, that the huge biplanes they have built are capable of flying to Peking with a single stop at Nome, Alaska. And this, mind you, with a ton of explosive. The planes are ready. They will make 113 miles an hour for 60 hours. But we can't prove it unless the army and navy heads see fit to grant us permission."

Ambassador Bancroft Laid to Rest Beside His Wife

Galesburg, Ill.—Simplicity marked the ceremonies with which the body of Edgar A. Bancroft, late United States ambassador to Japan, was laid to rest with his wife and his parents in the family burial plot in Galesburg. Business houses were closed at the hour of the funeral by proclamation of Mayor Mureen, flags throughout the city were flown at half staff, and the bells of Knox callege tolled through the service at the church and as the procession wound past the elm-shaded campus to Hope cemetery. Mr. Bancroft was a member of the Knox class of '78 and one of the most distinguished alumni of the college.

Two Bootleggers Slain in Plot to Steal U. S. Plane

Chicago.—Theft of an army air plane, involving the preliminary disposition, perhaps by murder, of two rifle-armed guards, was prevented by the killing of Irving Schlig, aerial bootlegger, and his associate, Harry Berman, West side gangster.

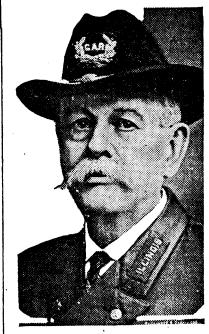

Such is the hypothesis worked out by police and officers of the Aero Club of Illinois in connection with the finding of the bodies of the slain pair at the edge of the Aero club's Ashburn flying field, Eighty-third street and Cicero avenue.

FRANCE TO ASK U. S. 62 YEARS TO PAY DEBT

Minister Caillaux Will Offer $70,000,000 Annually.

Washington.—Finance Minister Caillaux will offer Secretary of the Treasury Mellon $70,000,000 a year in settlement of France's $4,211,000,000 debt to the United States, it was learned from an official source.

Coming in advance of the French debt commission, M. Caillaux expects to conduct the real negotiations in person and practically alone.

Flushed by his triumph in London, he is understood to be ready to submit his proposals as France's ultimate concession to the American demand.

Actually, the Caillaux plan will give the United States only $50,000,000 annually on the war debt, as the French finance minister would include in the $70,000,000 total the $20,000,000 which France now pays each year on the $407,000,000 owed for surplus war

The French proposal contemplates payments approximately half the annual amount involved in the American idea of funding the $4,211,000,000 obligation on the basis of the Anglo-American settlement made two years ago.

M. Caillaux will determine whether an agreement can be reached between France and the United States. If he adheres to his original offer of $70,-000,000, it is practically certain that the French debt commission itself will never cross the Atlantic.

HARD COAL STRIKE ORDERED BY LEWIS

158,000 Anthracite Workers to Quit-828 Mines Affected.

Philadelphia.-A suspension of minng in the hard-coal fields on September 1 was called by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America.

The suspension was called because the union was unable to obtain from the operators a 10 per cent wage increase, adoption of the check off, equalization of wages for day workers and various other demands which they made conditional to renewal of the wage contract expiring August 31. The order involves a walkout of 158,000 men, of whom about 10,000 will probably be left in the mines for maintenance work, such as the prevention of flooding and cave-ins. On the basis of state figures for 1924 the suspension would affect 828 mines, operated by 135 companies, con trolling, altogether, 272 collieries.

Lawson, Publisher, Leaves $2,505,000 to Charities

Chicago.-Under the will of the late Victor F. Lawson, which was filed for probate Tuesday, the Chicago Daily News, principal asset of the Lawson estate, passes to the control of the Illinois Merchants' Trust company, which is given full power of management, including power to sell the newspaper.

Specific bequests of $4,775,000 are made under the terms of the will, and of this sum $2,505,000 is apportioned for benevolent purposes. The biggest bequests are left to the Chicago Congregational Mission and Extension 80ciety, the Theological Seminary at 1 the Young Men's Christian association. These total practically three-quarters of the entire estate. The other onequarter of the residuary estate is left to Iver N. Lawson, a brother of the late publisher, who also was left $200,-000 and the income from a trust fund of $300,000. Relatives, friends and employees also share in the estate.

French Advance After Fierce Fight With Riffs

Paris.-Some of the fiercest fighting of the whole campaign marked the attack by the French Nineteenth army corps on the Branes tribe north of Taza. The rebels, strongly backed by small groups of Riffian regulars, occupied an extremely well organized system of trenches and, despite the terrific aviation and artillary bombardment they have sustained for the last week, they were determined not to cede an inch. Largely through the aid of tanks, for the Sirocco handicapped the aviation except in the early morning hours, the infantry gained the first day's objectives, advancing three miles over a front 15

SAYS UNIFORM LAWS ARE NATIONAL NEED

MacChesney Warns Against Violating States' Rights.

Detroit, Mich.—Col. Nathan William MacChesney of Chicago warned a convention of national commissioners on uniform state laws, holding their convention here, that unless the various states voluntarily make their own laws uniform along progressive lines there will be a constantly increasing and determined effort to have congress enact general laws on subjects of the country's general concern, thus periling the nation's fundamental democracy.

Colonel MacChesney, who is president of the national conference of commissioners, warned against the growing encroachment of the federal government on states' rights and quoted President Coolidge to the effect that this encroachment is due to the fact that the states have not discharged their full duties. Mr. Mac-Chesney declared that unless the states meet their responsibilities through uniform state laws they must lose still further their prestige and

Britain Gives France

62 Years to Pay Debt London.—Tentative agreements for settling the French debt to Great Brit ain in 62 annual payments of 12,500,000 oounds ($60,625,000) each was reached by Winston Churchill, British chancellor of the exchequer, and M. Indianapolis.—The closing date for making cattle entries for the 1925 national dairy exposition, to be held at Indianapolis, October 10 to 17, is September 19, it is announced by W. E. Skinner, secretary and general manager. Indications are that over 1,500 prize-winning dairy cattle of the Ayrshire, Brown Swiss, Guernsey, Holstein-Friesian and Jersey breeds from the best herds in the United States and Canada will compete for international honors at this year's exposition.

Farm Products Worth 97 Per Cent When Exchanged for Other Articles.

Chicago.—Real prosperity for the armers of the Middle West coming out of better and bigger crops in all grain-growing sections was indicated by reports made public by state and federal bureaus in four states.

The National Bank of Commerce of St. Louis issued statistics to show that three years ago farm products in given quantities when exchanged for other goods were worth only 68 per cent of their 1913 exchange value and that now the same quantities are 97 per cent.

The Illinois corn crop is in excelent condition and unless unforeseen conditions arise, the state will have the best crop since 1920, according to a joint statement of the federal and state departments of agriculture at Springfield.

The corn yield in Iowa is expected to average 40 bushels an acre, according to Charles D. Reed, director of the state weather and crop reporting service. Mr. Reed's estimates indicate production will show an increase of about 145,000,000 over last year, with a total of about 450,000,000 bushels.

An excess over last year's corn crop of 203,000,000 bushels is predicted by A. E. nderson, state and federal statistician for Nebraska. Corn in Kansas is expected to run about 100,000,000 bushels, offsetting in a great degree one of the state's smallest wheat crops. BLACKS AND REDS

SYNOPSIS .- To a gathering of anarchists in Barking, London suburb, Zaboleff, foreign agita-tor, tells of the operations of a body of men who have become a menace to their activities. He says they are masked and wear long black cloaks and are acting without the law.

In the doorway stood a huge man covered from head to foot in black. In each hand he held a revolver, with which he covered the eight occupants during the second or two which it took for half a dozen similarly disguised men to file past him, and take up their positions round the walls. And Waldock, a little more educated than the remainder of his friends, found himself thinking of old tales of the Spanish inquisition and the doges of Venice even as he huddled a little nearer to the table.

"Stand by the table, all of you." It was the man at the door who spoke in a curiously deep voice, and, like sheep they obeyed him-all save Flash Jim. For that worthy, crook though he was, was not without physical courage. The police he knew better than to play the fool with, but these were not the police.

"Wot the-" he snarled, and got no farther. Something hit him behind the head, a thousand stars danced before his eyes, and with a strangled grunt he crashed forward on his face. For a moment or two there was silence, and then once again the man at the door spoke.

"Arrange the specimens in a row." In a second the seven remaining men were marshaled in a line, while behind them stood six motionless black figures. And then the big man walked slowly down in front of them, peering into each man's face. spoke no word until he reached the end of the line, and then, his inspection concluded, he stepped back and leaned against the wall faging them. "A nauseating collection," he remarked thoughtfully. "A loathsome What are the three undersized and shivering insects on the

"Those are three of my clerks," said Waldock with an assumption of angry bravado. "And I would like

"In good time you will," answered the deep voice. "Three of your clerks, are they; imbued with your rotten ideas, I suppose, and yearning to follow in father's footsteps? Have we anything particular against them?" There was no answer from the masked men, and the leader made a sign. Instantly the three terrified clerks were seized from behind and brought up to him, where they stood trembling and shaking in every limb.

"Listen to me, you three little worms." With an effort they pulled themselves together; a ray of hope was dawning in their minds-perhaps they were going to be let off easy. "My friends and I do not like you or your type. You meet in secret places and in your slimy minds you concoct foul schemes which, incredible though it may seem, have so far had more than a fair measure of success in this country. But your main idea is not the schemes, but the money you are paid to carry them out. This is your first and last warning. Another time you will be treated differently. Get out of here. And see you don't stop."

The door closed behind them and two of the masked men; there was the sound as of a boot being used with skill and strength, and cries of pain; then the door reopened and the masked men returned.

"They have gone," announced one of them. "We helped them on their wav." "Good," said the leader. "Let us continue the inspection. What are these two?" A man from behind stepped forward and examined them slowly; then he came up to the leader and whispered in his ear. "Is that so?" A new and terrible note had crept into the deep voice. "My friends and I do not like your trade, you swine. It is well that we have come provided with the necessary implement for such a case. Fetch the cat.'

In silence one of the men left the room, and as his full meaning came home to the two Jews they flung themselves groveling on the floor, screaming for mercy.

"Gag them." The order came out sharp and clear, and in an instant the two writhing men were seized and gagged. Only their rolling eyes and trembling hands showed the terror they felt as they

"You needn't; it is obvious. And now that you are caught—he will come himself. Perhaps not at once -but he will come. And then . . . But we waste time. The money, Zaboleff.

"I have no money," he snarled. "You lie. Zaboleff. You lie clumsily. You have quite a lot of money brought over for Waldock so that he might carry on the good work after you had sailed tomorrow. Quick, please; time passes.'

With a curse Zaboleff produced a small canvas bag and held it out. The other took it and glanced inside.

"I see," he said gravely. "Pearls and precious stones. Belonging once, I suppose, to a murdered gentlewoman whose only crime was that she, through no action of her own, was born in a different sphere to you. And, you rentile"—his voice rose a little-"you would do that here." Zaboleff shrank back, and the other laughed contemptuously. "Search him-and Waldock too."

Two men stepped forward quickly. "Nothing more," they said after a while. "Except this piece of paper." There was a sudden movement on Zaboleff's part-instantly suppressed but not quite soon enough.

"Injudicious," said the leader quiet-"Memory is better. An address, see-No. 5 Green street, Hoxton. A salubrious neighborhood, with which l am but indifferently acquainted. Ah! I see my violent friend has recovered." He glanced at Flash Jim, who was sitting up dazedly, rubbing the back of his head. "Number 4-the usual."

There was a slight struggle, and Flash Jim lay back peacefully unconscious, while a faint smell of chloroform filled the room.

"And now I think we will go. A most successful evening."

"What are you going to do with me, you scoundrel?" spluttered Waldock "I warn you that I have influential friends, who-who will ask questions in-in parliament if you do anything to me; who will go to Scotland Yard." "I can assure you, Mr. Waldock, that I will make it my personal business to see that their natural curiosity is gratified," answered the leader suavely. "But for the present I fear the three filthy rags you edit will have to be content with the office boy as their guiding light. And I venture to think they will not suffer."

He made a sudden sign, and before they realized what was happening the two men were caught from behind and gagged. The next instant they were rushed through the door, followed by Flash Jim. For a moment or two the eyes of the leader wandered round the now empty room taking in every detail; then he stepped forward and blew out the two candles. The door closed gently behind him, and a couple of minutes later two cars stole quietly away from the broken-down gate along the cart track. It was not until the leading car turned carefully into the main road that anyone spoke.

"Deuced awkward, the police being there."

The big man who was driving grunted thoughtfully.

"Perhaps," he returned. "Perhaps not. Anyway, the more the merrier. Flash Jim all right?"

"Sleeping like a child," answered the other, peering into the body of the

For about ten miles they drove on In the Doorway Stood a Huge Man in silence: then at a main cross-roads Covered From Head to Foot in the car pulled up and the big man got out. The second car was just behind, and for a few moments there was a whispered conversation between couldn't let them have you; you're him and the other driver. He glanced at Zaboleff and Waldock, who appeared to be peacefully sleeping on the back seat, and smiled grimly.

> "Good night, old man. Report as usual."

"Right," answered the driver. "So "What do you mean?" demanded the long.'

The second car swung right-handed and started northwards, while the leader stood watching the vanishing tail lamp. Then he returned to his own seat, and soon the first beginnings of outer London were reached. And it was as they reached Whitechapel that the leader spoke again with a note of suppressed excitement completely surrounded the house, and in his voice.

> "We're worrying 'em; we're worrying 'em badly. Otherwise they'd never have sent Zaboleff. He was too big a man to risk, considering the police.'

"It's the police that I am consider-

POULTRY SHIPPERS SAVE MUCH MONEY

A report prepared by V. W. Lewis, live stock marketing specialist for the North Carolina state division of markets, shows that those poultry growers of North Carolina who took advantage of the co-operative carlot shipments of poultry and eggs this spring saved a total of $28.578.48.

The shipments began on March 26 and closed on June 20. During that time, through the efforts of the home and farm demonstration agents of State college, the teachers of agriculture in the high schools and the marketing specialists, 464,285 pounds of poultry and 3,151 cases of eggs were shipped. In addition to the eggs shipped a total of 3,530 cases were stored in a cold storage plant in Wilmington to await the higher prices of the winter months.

Mr. Lewis says: "When we began this work, live hens were selling in the territory indicated at from 17 to 20 cents per pound and only in a few instances did the producers get as much as 20 cents. All but six cars of this poultry brought a price of from 22 to 25 cents per pound at the car door.'

Farmers taking part in this movement saved at least 4 cents per pound by selling co-operatively in addition to the fact of having a market brought to their home towns. The movement spread and some counties made shipments not included in the amount given. Vance county, for instance, made two shipments in co-operation with the marketing agents of a railroad; Rutherford county shipped 43,-741 pounds and the Farmers' federation of Asheville shipped 190,000

Indications are that this movement will grow in volume and importance in 1926 and Mr. Lewis states that there is now no longer any excuse for growers not making money with poultry. All that is needed, he says, is for the producers to get behind some organized movement to help themselves.

Prevention of Disease

Most Profitable Plan When one goes into a chicken house and hears the birds singing, it is a pleasant contrast to the appearance of a flock that is droopy, with pale combs and indicating a general unhealthy condition. The difference in the majority of cases is not due to one producer curing the disease and the other not curing it, but rather to the fact that one breeder prevents the trouble that is affecting the other person's flock.

Most cases of roup and similar contagious diseases are the result of the disease being brought to the farm with new fowls which were not isolated until they had been proved to be healthy. Sometimes the disease comes from an outbreak of a previous attack after which the premises were

Lice and mites can do a great amount of harm if they have their own way. The good poultryman does not wait until they get a strong foothold in the flock, but carries on a preventive war on such pests. Under such conditions pests never cause a serious loss.

Most of the trouble from worms and a good deal of the trouble from coccidosis can be eliminated by raising the flock on fresh ground each year. If it is not possible to have fresh ground the next test thing is to clean up frequently and use lime freely in keeping the ground sweet and free as possible from germ life.

Oatmeal and all that sort of food is no good for ducks or geese. Keep all this sticky stuff away from them.

Because chickens seem to drink only an occasional teaspoonful of water is no reason for thinking that they don't need any water.

If broody hens are shut up the first night they are discovered they can be broken up easier than if left on the nest for several days.

Keeping the house free of mites by use of a good coal-tar disinfectant in a strong mixture and the pullets free from lice by sodium fluoride will be a big help.

Laying hens need green food in sum mer as well as winter. If you neglect ed this when you planted your garden why not try a row or two of swiss chard and maybe a little rape.

One of the best ways of destroying the bacteria that bother poultry is to put the yards under cultivation. In addition, the seeding of the yards is very important from the standpoint of furnishing green stuff for the fowls. * * *

When hens are well fed, but extreme ly fat and do not lay, either the feed is not of a balanced character or the hens are natural beefers-meaning that their disposition is to acquire fat rather than to convert what they com sume into eggs.

In Honor of the Workers

LABOR DAY each year brings anew to the Nation the great part that the mechanics, the farmers, the craftsmen, the tradesmen and the millions of other workers play in keeping America in the position of leadership in the world.

Labor Day is a day of tribute to the men and women who do things right and on time! It is not a day for those who dilly-dally, or put off, or give less than their best to the work at hand.

This Institution will not be open LABOR DAY Monday, Sept. 7

On this Labor Day, we suggest that you give thought to the results of labor and to the proper safeguarding of a part of what you earn. The complete banking service we offer is already helping many workers to realize their ambitions.
