Mrs. Chas. Green and Mrs. Fred Eardley made a trip by auto from Aurora, Ill. to Gobles, picking up their father, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Lunt; then on to Port Huron, where they all enjoyed a short visit with the oldest brother, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lunt. The trip back to Aurora was made in six hours Thursday.

Willing Workers Club

Friday evening 35 Willing Workers gathered at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. Orley Ayers. They found the rooms beautifully decorated with corn, pumpkins and autumn branches. A short time was spent in greetings, after which all gathered around a huge fire on the front lawn to enjoy a marshmallow and weenie roast with buns and hot coffee. Mark Kesler headed the weenie contest, with Jake Ringel a close second and Clara Towne led in the marshmallow race, after which all returned to the house where all were royally entertained by the hostess with music and games. Rolla Eastman received first prize in hand shakes and Rhoda Thayer won an appropriate gift in a narrative hunt. At a late hour all agreed they had been royally entertained and thank Mr. and Mrs. Ayers for their kind hospitality.

Woman's Fortnightly Club

Thursday the Woman's Fortnightly Club met at the home of Mrs. L. O. Graham for the first meeting of the calendar year.

Meeting called to order by Pres. Stratton. 25 members responded to roll call.

President's greeting by Mrs. Stratton in which she stressed we should be "Makers of Roads," not "Builders of Walls."

Mrs. Ola Curtiss, chairman of the calendar committee, very cleverly gave an outline of the year's work in rhyme.

The Ladies Quartet, Mrs. Gilchrist, Mrs. McElheny, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Styles sang two very pleasing numbers, "Water Lilies" and "Alpine Horn."

Light refreshments were served and a social hour followed.

Club adjourned to meet Oct. 18 with Mrs. Harrelson.

Card of Thanks

I am most grateful to the Eastern Stars, the Sunny Day Club and the Willing Workers as well as my neighbors for their kind remembrances and aid during my recent illness.

Mrs. Mary E. Barker.

School Notes

Mrs. Niles' room banked 100 per cent last week.

The fence is being removed from in back of the schoolhouse and the new play ground will soon be put in use. The swings are being moved to the new grounds.

See the advertisement of the School Fair in this issue.

Rev. Hayes talked at chapel last Friday. Luther Howard played his sax for us.

More violins are needed for the orchestra. Anyone interested in taking violin lessons see Mr. Wauchek.

P. T. A. next Monday night. Orchestra will make its first appearance. A song or two by the grade children, and a good speaker from Western State Teachers College. We expect Dr. Ernest Burnham. Plan to come.

Don't forget that the School Fair starts Friday noon, October 19. See the advertisement for prizes.

The annual Freshman Reception last Friday night at the Opera House was a big success. The Freshmen appeared at about 8:00, the boys, dressed as girls and the girls as boys. The Freshmen were asked to do various stunts for the amusement of the upper classmen, and the new teachers were not slighted.

Many of the stunts were very clever and everyone entered into them wholeheartedly. The Freshmen were welcomed into Gobles High by Chester Ray. The response for the Freshmen was given by Gerald Rendel. Lulu Shryock was chairman of the entertainment and Lillian Gault of the eats committee. Much credit and thanks is due them for the successful affair.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks and most sincere appreciation for the beautiful flowers and kind expressions of sympathy during the illness and at the death of our loved one. Especially do we wish to thank Gobles High School, the Junior Class, the Eastern Stars, the Hudson Lodge, the neighbors, the many friends, the Reverend Hayes, and Mr. Wickett.

New Submarine Rescue Craft Interests Navy

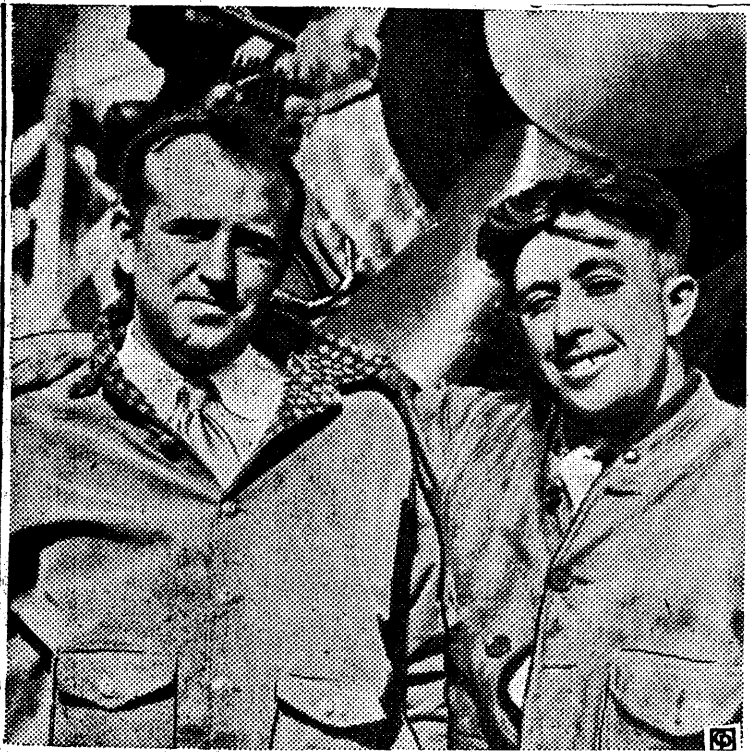

This radically different salvage craft for submarines has been devised by Simon Lake, submarine engineer at Bridgeport, Conn. A diving compartment is built in the forward under side which permits divers to do rescue or salvage work with their base of operation right alongside the sunken vessel. Air pressure is maintained in the chamber at the same density as the water in which the operations are taking place. Divers may enter or leave it at will. The navy department is co-operating in the construction of the craft which is only 97 feet long and 11 feet wide. It is capable of submerging to a depth of 250 feet. Above, a general view of the submersible in dry-dock.

Pyramid Containing Modern "Relics" Being Built

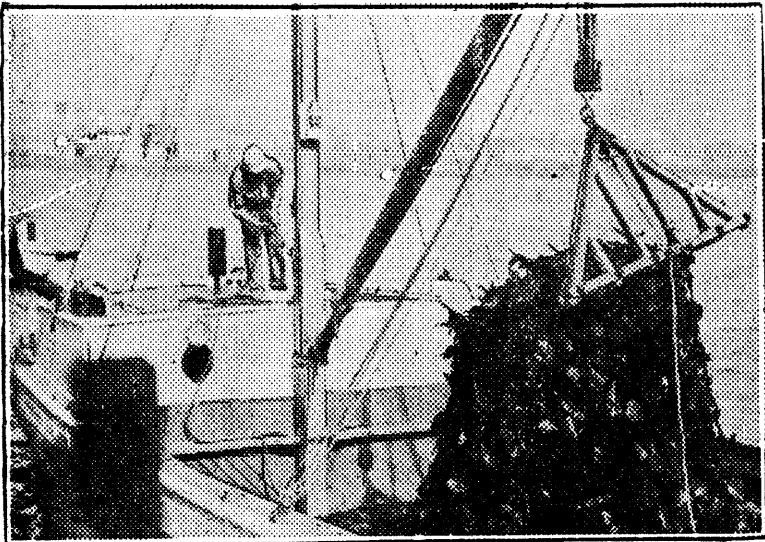

The massive pyramid at Monte Ne, Ark., which is to contain modern mechanical contrivances and a book describing each to be sealed up and stored for some remote generation of the future to discover, is now being built by W. H. "Coin" Harvey, author and father of the plan. Harvey, who expects the pyramid to be ready in two or three years, is shown at the left, and the partially completed structure is at the right.

Sets New Altitude Record

Despite the fact that he set a new altitude record for commercial cabin planes by ascending to 24,100 feet when he was forced down by lack of oxygen at San Diego, Cal., Pilot Bill Monday, shown here, plans to make another attempt, taking along a barograph and oxygen tanks and rising as high as the plane will go.

Ocean Hay for Bovine Goiter

A million animal lives may be saved each year by a marine chemical company of San Diego, Cal., which has begun the production of ocean "hay" to mix with normal feedings for the prevention of bovine goiter or "big neck." About 72,000,000 tons of this seafood, or kelp, is available annually in a 90-mile field along the San Diego coastline. Above, a quantity of the kelp being raised from the ocean bottom.

Newaygo Has New Trout Rearing Pond

Newaygo county has another interesting spot, the new trout rearing pond on White river, near M-37, about three miles north of White Cloud. Although this pond merely is an experiment on a small scale compared to what is planned to be done later, still it is quite an institution which requires the attention of a caretaker five months during the year. William Schillaneck of Hart is employed as caretaker, but as soon as C. E. Sarles, on whose farm the pond is situated, learns the work he will take charge. A short time ago 55,000 speckled trout about an inch to an inch and a half long were placed in this pond, and they already have made a remarkable growth due to the feed and care given them. They were taken from the Hart hatchery with which Mr. Schillaneck is connected. They will be turned loose in White river in October when they will have developed into legal size for catching, whereas it takes about two years for this same development in a natural state.

It was a simple matter to create this rearing pond, as it was only necessary to cut a channel across a V-shaped bend in the river bed, which diverts the courses of the river through the new channel while the old river bed is used for the rearing pond. The channel is about 175 feet long and 15 feet wide.

To furnish water in proper amounts to the pond it was necessary to build a head gate or a small dam at the head of the new channel. At the foot of the pond is another dam or gate by which the water is raised about six inches above the level of the river itself. If the work this season is successful it is planned to cut a new and longer channel which will provide a rearing pond about 1,000 yards long. The capacity of the present 400-foot pond is 250,000 fish. The larger pond would have a capacity of seven or eight times as many. When the new pond is built it is planned to build gates of concrete.

Use of Machinery Is Making Less Use For "Hired Man"

The average wage paid "hired men" on the farms of the United States is $2.36 per day, without board, according to the latest report of the department of labor. In France the average daily wage is $1.05; in Germany, 56c; and in Great Britain, $1.27. In the United States the average wage ranges from $1.25 per day in South Carolina to $3.80 in Connecticut and Rhode Island.

Higher wages in industry are yearly attracting more and more laborers from the farms of the United States, observed the research department of the National Association of Farm Equipment Manufacturers, but in spite of this drift to the cities, agricultural production is as high or higher than ever. Better farming methods, improved varieties of grain and better type livestock coupled with improved farm machinery is enabling the American farmer to become more and more independent of the "hired man."

Discount Mangy Hogs

That the control of parasites often pays the hog raiser in dollars and cents can be seen by the fact that in the Central West, where the mange mite is very prevalent on hogs, a number of packers and commission firms now purchase mangy hogs at a discount of from 50 cents to $1.50 per hundredweight. In view of the better prices paid for the mange-free hogs, averaging, for mature animals, about $2.50 a head over those affected by the parasite, the slight cost in labor and materials for dipping a herd is fully repaid.

Proper care and feeding of swine after inoculation for hog cholera is an important factor in the successful treatment of a herd. When pigs are treated after they are weaned it is best not to make any decided change in the ration, but the quantity should be reduced at least one-half, allowing the treated pigs to graze and exercise in a clean pasture, where there are no running streams or mud wallows. At the end of two weeks, if the hogs are doing well, the feed may be gradually increased for about a week, when they may get all they will eat. In the case of the inoculation of pigs while they are sucking their dams, no change of feed or management is necessary.

Fremont May Have Another Dairy Company

The Arties Dairy Products Co. of Grand Ledge is considering locating a milk condensery in Fremont. R. VanAllsburg has been in communication with the chamber of commerce relative to such procedure. At present this community is served in a dairy way by the Fremont Co-operative Creamery Co.

The chamber of commerce is planning on a survey of 10 sections in this immediate vicinity. The committee appointed consists of Frank Gerber, Milo White and George Howarth.

At the meeting of the local commercial organization Congressman James C. McLaughlin was a guest and gave a talk. George Fry, 85, Newaygo business man, spoke of the early days of Newaygo county. Mr. Fry is a member of the Newaygo county poor commission and continues very active in its work.

Report Shows Superiority of Purebreds; State Has Most Herds Giving Over 500 Lbs.

Dairy production records from 1,829 Michigan herds show that purebreds produce more milk and butterfat than grades and that the season in which a cow freshens has a marked influence on the yearly production of milk and butterfat.

Purebred cows had an average annual production of 5,650 pounds of milk and 334 pounds of fat, according to the latest records, while the grades average 7,713 pounds of milk and 315 pounds of fat. The value of the milk would be $20 more for the purebreds over the year.

Cows which freshen in the fall produced more than 500 pounds more milk than those which freshen in the summer. The seasons in the order of best production are fall, winter, spring and summer.

It has been known for some time that cows which produce their largest milk flow during the spring and summer months yield a smaller total money return over the year, due to lower prices in the months of high production. Now it is found that a lower price is received for the milk and a smaller volume of the product is obtained.

Michigan ranks first among the states in the number of herds which produced an average of 500 pounds or more of butterfat per cow last year. Eight herds produced more than 500 pounds and 159 herds in this state produced more than 400 pounds of butterfat per cow for the year.

Method for Planting and Handling Grape Vines

Late fall or early spring is the best time to plant grape vines. A place should be selected that is protected as much as possible from the north winds. A gentle slope to the south is preferable, and on high and dry land. If the planting is to be done in the spring, the ground should be prepared the previous fall. It should be plowed deep and well fertilized, old and well rotted manure from the stable is the best, but a commercial fertilizer prepared for this purpose will give excellent results. Make holes two feet across and eighteen inches deep, place good surface soil in the bottom to the depth of six inches and finish the top in the shape of an inverted saucer, placing the vine in the center and carefully spreading the roots to their natural position. The stem should be set on an incline to the north, so it can be laid down to cover in the fall without cracking the cells of the stems.

The plants may be set seven to eight feet apart each way. It is better to run the rows north and south, then they will get the sun on both sides. Grape vines require thorough cultivation and the vines should be allowed to take their own course the first year. When they are raised on a commercial scale, a hoed crop may be planted between the rows, but as the feeding roots of the vines spread in every direction, cultivation should reach only a few inches below the surface.

Before the sap begins to move at the end of the first year the vines should be cut back to one strong cane of three buds. Allow two of the best canes to grow the second year. When five to six years old from three to five canes may be left. At the end of the first season the vines are no taller than when planted, but the roots have grown and become established in the soil and the second year growth should be strong enough to form the basis for the permanent trunk. When the leaves drop in the fall cut the old wood back to one foot and all laterals to two to three buds. It is the new wood that bears fruit. Close pruning will prevent overbearing. Usually too much wood is left and the vines set more fruit than they can bring to perfection.

In the fall the vines should be laid on the ground and covered with five to six inches of soil. Early in the spring uncover the vines and after they have become thoroughly dry tie to some support. To make the trellis use common fence posts and three smooth wires; the first two and a half feet, the second three and a half and the third five feet from the ground.

New Corn Binder Takes Backbone Out Of Silo Filling

The corn binder is one of the most important farm machines used for harvesting the great American corn crop, according to the research department of the National Association of Farm Equipment Manufacturers, though the corn picker has been more in the limelight of public interest in recent years. Corn binder manufacturers have not been idle, however, and new attachments and better binders have been made to keep pace with the development of newer farm machines.

A bundle elevator for elevating the corn directly from binder bundle wagon has been developed especially for the corn grower who puts his corn in the silo. This attachment eliminates the back-breaking work of picking up and loading heavy green bundles by hand.

For the corn borer territory, low cutting attachments cut the corn within an inch or two of the ground, and prevent high stubble being left in the field to harbor the European invader during the winter. Better steel and other materials in the frame and mechanism of the new binders is lowering breakage.

Fruit enough to make all the vinegar for a year's supply is often wasted in farm homes. Surplus or inferior grades of apples, grapes, peaches, oranges, persimmons, pineapples and some berries may be used to make vinegar of the ordinary commercial strength (4 per cent acetic acid). The best method, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, is to make a yeast inoculation into a mash of the fruit.

THE HEN LEADS THEM ALL

When the white folks first came to America they brought with them the domestic animals and poultry of the homeland, the horse, cow, sheep, hog and hen.

From each of these friends of mankind there has developed a vast industry. But the hen leads them all in numbers and in value of production. The value of her products, poultry and eggs, reaches the immense sum of more than a billion dollars per year, equal to if not larger than the production of all cattle, and far above the value of hogs or sheep.

This billion-dollar industry is made up of millions of units, varying in size from the small backyard flock of the village and suburban resident and the larger farm flock to the immense commercial poultry plants where thousands of hens are kept for egg production.

Incidental to the production of poultry and eggs are great industrial plants engaged in the manufacture of ready-built poultry houses, incubators and brooders and other poultry-plant equipment; immense mills and factories for the grinding and preparation of poultry feeds, extensive commercial hatcheries producing in the aggregate 500,000,000 chicks annually, and a poultry press, which includes more ably conducted, better patronized periodicals than represent any other livestock industry.

In the Middle West entire farms are covered over with poultry houses. In Texas there have been developed poultry ranches covering many acres, and doing a business comparable with the cattle ranches. In several states whole towns and communities are engaged in the production of poultry and eggs.

Chicken Hatcheries

The hatching of chicks in recent years has become a commercial industry big enough to satisfy the ambitions of the most ardent devotee of big business. A Kentucky man has a million-egg capacity hatchery. And there are many others reaching up nearly to this mark. In hundreds of villages and on thousands of farms the day-old chick business is an industry of no mean importance.

The production of poultry and eggs is an industry which is now firmly established on a solid business basis. In no other farm industry is production so well and readily adjusted to demand. It may be remembered that the poultry keepers started the season of 1927 with an increase in the number of laying hens which led close observers to market conditions to predict that there would be an overproduction of eggs and a consequent fall in prices that would prove disastrous to the producers.

The overproduction came and the price of eggs began to tumble. This situation did not last long, however, for the poultry keepers immediately reduced their flocks, the flow of eggs diminished and the price started again on an upward trend.

The demand for poultry and eggs of quality is increasing more rapidly than that of most other farm products. This is indicated by the improved condition of the poultry and egg market the present season.

Poultry Income Now $1,200,000,000

Hens have a claim to aristocracy, for the value of poultry products in this country is close to the top rung. The estimated value is close to $1,200,000,000.

Ionia Looks for Good Yield in Apple Crop

These early fall days are bringing visions of the apple harvest and the recent cool nights and bright days, together with a plentiful supply of moisture in the summer months, are producing the finest quality apples Ionia county has had in many years.

Oscar W. Braman of Grand Rapids, who has a 35-acre orchard in North Plains township and 30 acres near Belding, estimated there will be between 20,000 and 25,000 barrels of Northern Spies in his North Plains orchard. All of Braman's crop will go into Detroit. Picking will begin early in October.

FOR $10,000,000 DRAIN
WAYNE MAKES PLANS

Major projects involving the expenditure of $10,000,000 are scheduled for building in 1929 by the Wayne county drain commission's office, according to engineering surveys and petitions now on file. The seven largest projects and their estimated costs are: The Council Point Disposal plant, $1,497,650; the Wayne County Drainage District No. 2, $6,560,561; the Wane County Drainage District No. 3, $861,000; the Wayne County Drainage District No. 5, $3,220,151; the LeBlanc Drain Extension, $1,250,000; the Wayne County Drainage District No. 6, $4,425,478; and the Wayne County Drainage District No. 7, $2,000,000. While all these projects are not contemplated in the next year's program, they are being planned for construction as soon as the circumstances permit. George A. Dingman, Wayne drain commissioner, is directing the huge program of drain developments.

Straits Figures

Automobiles to the number of 76,000 crossed the straits of Mackinac on the state ferries up to and including September 6 this year, as against 72,250 in the like period of 1927. Ferry officials report that with three boats operating congestion on docks has been kept at a minimum. The peak was reached August 22nd, when at certain hours during the day two hundred cars were awaiting their turn on the St. Ignace dock. Delays were negligible, however, as compared with last year.

Mother!
Clean Child's Bowels with
"California Fig Syrup"

Hurry Mother! Even constipated, bilious, feverish, or sick, colic Babies and Children love to take genuine "California Fig Syrup." No other laxative regulates the tender little bowels so nicely. It sweetens the stomach and starts the liver and bowels without griping. Contains no narcotics or soothing drugs. Say "California" to your druggist and avoid counterfeits. Insist upon genuine "California Fig Syrup" which contains directions.

Acidity

The common cause of digestive difficulties is excess acid. Soda cannot alter this condition, and it burns the stomach. Something that will neutralize the acidity is the sensible thing to take. That is why physicians tell the public to use Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

Where Gene and His Bride Will Exchange Vows

In this romantic spot, Sorrento, Italy, James Joseph Tunney, ex-heavyweight champion of the world, and Miss Polly Lauder, his fiancée, will plight their troth in a tiny chapel on Oct. 6. Miss Lauder has sailed from New York to meet her fiance, who is on a walking tour of Europe with Thornton Wilder, the novelist, who probably will act as his best man. Photo shows a view of the harbor and town of Sorrento. Insets are of Miss Lauder and Tunney.

WILL IMPROVE
CHARLOTTE ARMORY

Major B. G. Cameron of Charlotte, of the 119th Field artillery; Capt. George B. Fly of Olivet, of Battery F of Charlotte, and Clifford C. Ward, Charlotte editor, appeared before the state administrative board in Lansing recently and were successful in getting action on the grading of the grounds at the Charlotte Armory. The board passed a resolution appropriating $2,000 for the grading and landscaping of the grounds and the erection of a wire fence around the pasture land for the horses. Bids for this will be obtained immediately.

Pentwater C. of C.
Opens Social Series

The first of a series of social meetings to be given by the Chamber of Commerce was held recently at Commercial hotel. About 100 members and guests from Grand Rapids, Shelby and Ludington sat down to dinner. G. E. VanNortwick, secretary of the chamber, had charge of the program. Mrs. Elizabeth S. Verbeck acted as toastmaster, calling upon E. F. Kent, president of the village; Dr. C. W. Moore, Jacob Lunde, president of the Board of Trade of Ludington; G. H. D. Sutherland of the Ludington News and Rex Royal of Shelby for remarks. Frank V. Blakely, field representative of the Western Michigan Tourist and Resort association, was the principal speaker. W. J. Fitt of Grand Rapids sang several selections, Mrs. S. K. Ruick of Indianapolis, Ind., gave a piano monolog and Mrs. G. E. VanNortwick of Pentwater played two violin numbers. Dancing completed the entertainment.

Late Shipments of Iron Ore This Year

Railroad employees are interested in the announcement made recently that all regular lake carriers will operate this year until late in November and that late fall tonnages will be considerably increased.

Ore cargoes will be plentiful this month, and in the event that more orders are received shippers may have to call on outside boats to handle the tonnage. It has been announced that all regular boats will be kept in operation until the last of October or early in November. The fleets are getting prompt dispatch at ports but a period of unfavorable weather would throw the movement behind.

Despite the fact that the furnaces are not taking ore as freely as they did early in the season, stocks are small and a consistent movement will be necessary to transport enough ore down the lakes to keep the furnaces active during the winter months.

Steam shovels are still being used to load ore for shipment from the stock piles at Ishpeming properties and in not a few instances more ore has been moved from stock this summer than in several seasons.

Kroger Co. Buys Thomas
And K. B. Chain Stores

The Kroger Grocery and Baking Co. announce the purchase of the C. Thomas and the K. & B. chains of stores, thereby adding 167 shops in the Grand Rapids district of the Kroger concern. The acquisition of these chain stores runs the total Kroger stores to 4,600, covering Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Missouri, Kentucky and West Virginia. Included in the deal is the Thomas store in Charlotte which for the present will be operated as in the past, but under Kroger management.

Newaygo Plant Has Lowered Safety Banner

The Newaygo Portland Cement Co. was forced to take down its safety flag in the "no accident" campaign being conducted throughout the country by the Portland Cement Co.

One of the employees of the plant suffered a minor injury to the hand recently. It was the first "lost time" accident in the plant since the flag was raised 118 days ago. A "lost time" accident is one in which a worker is absent the day following an accident suffered in the plant.

Holland Legion Places
Sign for Plane Pilots

Holland now has its first sign for the guidance of air pilots. It has been placed on the roof of the new Lievens battery shop. The name "Holland" has been painted in aluminum letters, about 12 feet high, on a black background, and a large arrow with the letter "N" pointing north and another arrow pointing to the municipal airport.

The work was done by members of Willard G. Leenhouts post, American Legion.

Orders 10 Ford Planes

An order for ten all-metal trimotored Ford ships, powered with Wasp motors and having a capacity of 14 passengers each, has been given to the Ford Motor Company by C. M. Keys, president of the Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc. The ships are valued at $650,000 and will be delivered in December. Ford planes were recommended following a conference in Detroit between Maj. Thos. G. Lanphier, director of operations for the air line, and officials of the Ford company.

CHARLOTTE AND BATTLE CREEK TO HAVE PAVEMENT

Completion of the pavement of M78 between Charlotte and Battle Creek has been promised by Frank F. Rogers, state highway commissioner. Another announcement of his plans was made at a conference with members of the Battle Creek Chamber of Commerce highway committee.

This stretch of highway is paved about six miles out of Battle Creek to Burleigh corners and about five miles out of Charlotte to Kent corners. A survey of the unpaved portion will be made this fall so that grading and paving may be done as soon as possible next spring. About three and a half miles of this road, east and west of Bellevue, already is under contract.

Included in the state's operations on this highway are two bridges over Battle Creek, one east of Bellevue and the other west. The west bridge now is nearing completion and will be opened to traffic this fall.

A new right-of-way is being developed east from Bellevue to Hall corner, parallel with the Grand Trunk tracks. This is west of the tracks and will eliminate the crossing necessary on the old road to the east. Workmen now are grading the east end of the new route, which will shorten the road considerably.

With the completion of the M78 paving there will be the first continuous pavement from Lansing to Battle Creek.

Nash Spends Millions

Manufacturing facilities in the four Wisconsin plants of the Nash Motors Company will be increased by $2,000,000 in new buildings and equipment. This program, which will be pushed through the fall and winter, is designed not only to increase production but also to more nearly balance output in the four manufacturing divisions. The improvements are equally divided between the Special Six and Seaman Body Corporation plants in Milwaukee, the Standard Six plant in Racine, and the Advanced Six plant in Kenosha.

Since the introduction of the Nash "400" Series models in June, all four divisions have been operating at capacity. Night shifts have been employed, and maximum production has been achieved from the production lines, which were augmented last spring by an investment of approximately $2,500,000 in new machinery, jigs and dies.

Packard Develops New Diesel Aircraft Motor

The first successful diesel type aircraft engine ever built has been produced by the Packard Motor Car Company. The motor, which promises to revolutionize aircraft engine design and construction, was given its initial test flights in a Stinson-Detroiter plane recently at the Packard proving grounds, near Utica, and proved highly successful. Heretofore, the lightest successful Diesel power plant ever built weighed 100 pounds per horsepower. The new Packard motor weighs less than three pounds per horsepower.

The motor is of the radial, air-cooled type and develops 200 horsepower. By use of the Diesel principle, with oil for fuel, the engine does away with gasoline, ignition system, spark plugs, and carburetors. These are considered the main trouble makers in the modern airplane engine. Elimination of these parts results from the firing from compression in the cylinders.

Simplicity is a feature of the new motor, it having fewer parts than even the lightest gasoline motor. Ruggedness is a second feature.

Three outstanding advantages are claimed for the motor. First, the danger of fire from gasoline is entirely removed. Second, both fuel consumption and fuel cost are considerably reduced, it being claimed that the motor will carry a plane 25 per cent further with the same weight in oil fuel as compared with gasoline. Third, radio communication to aircraft on a large scale will be made possible by cutting out the interference due to present electrical ignition systems on gasoline engines.

German engineers, who invented and developed the oil burning Diesel engine, have been working for several years to reduce the weight of the motor so that it could be adapted to aircraft use. Recently the experiments were abandoned with the announcement that it was an impossible task. The achievement of Packard engineers is considered the more remarkable for that fact. The Packard development is the latest of a 15-year experimental program in which the company's engineers have brought out many of the feature contributions to the field from America.

Would Sell Sugar Plant

Power to dispose of the abandoned plant of the Independent Sugar Company, at Marine City, has been delegated to Mayor Andrew Fredericks and alderman William Crowley by the city council. Taxes on the buildings and land have been delinquent for eight years. A number of industrial representatives have made inquiries concerning the purchase of the property and the prospects of selling it are good if the city can obtain a clear title to it. An investigation has been started to determine whether the city has power to sell the property.

LARGE INCREASE IN DETROIT
CONSTRUCTION

New construction in Detroit and the metropolitan area for August involved construction costs aggregating $12,489,388, according to John M. Bischoff, commissioner. A total of 2,579 permits were issued in Detroit alone, costing $10,889,394, an increase over August, 1927, of $2,170,129. Permits in the metropolitan area alone numbered 435 for $1,599,994.

Permits were issued last month for 666 single residences in Detroit, costing $3,431,936; 156 two-family apartments, costing $1,067,000, and 23 apartment houses, costing $899,700. A total of 1,357 families will be accommodated upon completion of residential buildings started last month, compared with accommodations for 1,195 families in August, 1927, and 1,198 families in July, 1928.

Other construction included: Thirty-four stores, $367,000; eight factories and shops, $393,300; one school, $140,000; one club house, $850,000; five churches, $364,600; six major garages, $1,650,600; 12 gas stations, $35,700; five warehouses, $331,500, and 964 minor garages and sheds, $251,532.

Fordson led the cities and villages in the metropolitan area with 66 permits for $606,767. Highland Park ranked second with 27 permits for $146,575 and Grosse Pointe Park third with 12 permits for $145,000. Construction costs in Dearborn totaled $109,875; Royal Oak, $107,160; Birmingham, $103,350; Ferndale, $79,490; Lincoln Park, $75,725; Melvindale, $60,760; Wyandotte, $58,401; Clawson, $43,950; River Rouge, $32,905, and Halfway, $29,986.

OLD FOLKS SAY
WAS RIGHT

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice.

He treated constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a combination of senna and other mild herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle will last several months, and all can use it. It is pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. Elderly people find it ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

NEWTON B. FOSTER

Democratic Nominee for

SHERIFF

Van Buren County

VAN BUREN COUNTY VOTERS:

In announcing myself as Democratic candidate for the office of Sheriff of Van Buren county, I do so with a clear idea of the responsibilities that election will bring me.

All of us are familiar with the duties involved and of the obligations incurred. Michigan laws plainly state the duties of sheriffs, which in brief are the enforcement of national, state and local laws.

experience is an asset when fairly employed, but is likely to bring "connections" and "promises" which in turn bring partiality which always brings contempt rather than respect for the law. Experience (so called) does not necessarily work for the county's best interest. You may have occasion to check up on this before the November election.

In soliciting your support at the coming election I want it known that I have no individual or clique to serve—that if the election is favorable to me it is my intention to give Van Buren county as clean and impartial law enforcement administration as is possible for me to give.

I trust I may have an opportunity of seeing each voter personally, but the time is short and I may not be able to do so. However, I respectfully ask that you consider my qualifications for this office as they appear to you, and I will be extremely grateful for any support you may be able to give.

Truly yours,

NEWTON B. FOSTER,

R 2, Harford, Michigan.

WHITE CLOUD
"SAN" DEDICATED

The Raonize sanitarium has been dedicated. Music was furnished by the White Cloud band and the new fife and drum corps.

Alfred Gustafson, president of the village, gave an address of welcome. Dr. Calvin R. Rutledge, superintendent of the institution, gave the response in which he stated the purpose of the institution was for the treatment of diabetes and its kindred complications. Emergencies will be cared for should any arise, but the sanitarium was not conceived as a surgical hospital. One dozen different products will be manufactured and shipped from the institution when it gets under operation.

A large X-ray room is on the third floor. It is equipped with modern machines.

The building consists of 46 rooms, besides 7 large closets and 3 bathrooms, the X-ray room and a large surgery room that was designed in the original structure. A new steam heating system was installed and every part of the building was re-decorated and made modern.

In his dedication address Prof. Gerrit Masselink, president of Ferris institute, stressed the correlation of body, mind and spirit. "The strong mind, healthy body and clean spirit are combined and ideals and ideas rule the world," he declared.

Boy Wins State Fair
Awards; Buys Stock

Herbert E. Ames, 18, of Chester township, is the highest individual winner of Eaton county in boys and girls club work exhibits at the state fair. He won $127 at the Detroit state fair and $130 at the West Michigan fair at Grand Rapids.

With part of his winnings he bought a registered Hampshire ram from Michigan State college and he believes the animal will add to the prize winning ability of his flock another year. His next display will be at the Charlotte fair next week and he probably will show at Marshall the week following.

White Cloud Citizens
Organize Drum Corps

John Collier, veteran drummer, has organized a drum corps for the village. The new unit has a bass drum, four snares and three fifes. New instruments have been purchased and although the organization is only six weeks old it appears in public Saturday evenings and plays at the principal business places. There are only three adults in the corps, Frederick Gallup, Jack Cooper, Rollo Dawson and Ferrand LeMire are the boy drummers. J. M. Gibbs and his father play the fife.

The drum corps will make its first out-of-town appearance at Wooster fair next Wednesday.

Howard City Woman
Open Club Year

The first meeting of the twenty-fourth club season of the Howard City Ladies Literary club was held at the home of Mrs. J. B. Haskins, hostesses being Mrs. Haskins, Mrs. J. H. Prout, Mrs. Bertha Perkins and Mrs. C. M. Gates. District and county federation officers were guests of the local club, including Mrs. E. Phil Bradstrum of Sparta, Mrs. Sears R. McLean of Holland, Mrs. H. E. Felton of Grand Rapids, Mrs. Bluemly of Butternut, Miss Flora White of Carson City, Mrs. Hewitt of Greenville, Mrs. D. H. Brake of Stanton and Mrs. T. W. Musson of Six Lakes. Mrs. Felton and Mrs. Bradstrum gave talks. Following the meeting the women enjoyed dinner.

Poems That Live

"Beggars," by Ella Higginson

Mrs. Higginson is a writer of both short stories and verse and resides on the Pacific Coast. A volume containing the best of her poetic product is "When the Birds Go North Again." These stanzas have a way of remaining in one's memory—a swift, sharp, penetrating revelation of a spiritual need. It is as though the poet prayed aloud, within the hearing of us all; and the lines meet with that quick response which is proof of their authenticity.

Child with the hungry eyes,
The pallid mouth and brow,
And the lifted, asking hands,
I am more starved than thou.

I beg not on the street;
But where the sinner stands,
In secret place, I beg
Of God, with outstretched hands.

As thou hast asked me,
Raising thy downcast head,
So have I asked of Him,
So, trembling, have I plead.

Take this and go thy way;
Thy hunger shall soon cease.
Thou prayest but for bread,
And I, alas! for peace.

A Scotchman was given a pair of spats for his birthday. The next day he was seen in a shot repair shop having them heeled and soled.

"Hoot mon," said Sandy. "Another guid pair of shoes."

Outline Plans For
1929 National Orchestra

Walter Damrosch is expected to head the list of guest conductors at the National High School Orchestra camp's Sunday concerts at the Interlochen bowl next summer. Another almost certain of attending is Frederick Stock, conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Both Howard Hanson and Leo Sowerby are writing symphonic works to be given their first performances at the bowl next summer under their personal direction, Joseph E. Madry, organizer and director of the camp, revealed before returning to Ann Arbor recently.

Maddy has been at the camp since it closed Aug. 19, preparing the way for the camp's second season. He has resumed his work as head of the public school music department of the University School of Music.

The camp will center around three major activities next summer, orchestra, band and choir. The plan is to enroll 150 players for orchestra, 90 for band and 60 for choir. Players will be permitted to enroll for one or two of these major activities but not for all three. By "doubling," the orchestra will number 220 players, the band 150 and the choir 100. The orchestra, band and choir will each rehearse for two hours a day. Other courses which will be taught are harmony composition, orchestration, conducting, music literature, harp, piano and all other instruments, public school methods, voice, opera and dramatics.

Radio Queen's Robe

Queens set fashions, so the gown the radio queen wore at her coronation is of greatest interest to all women. It is of taffeta in the bouffant manner and is worn by Miss Lita Korbe, recently crowned radio queen of America at the Radio World's Fair at New York.

Safety Chief Warns of "Moving Day" Hazards

"Moving Day" is one of the most hazardous of the year, warns W. H. Cameron, Managing Director of the National Safety Council, who has just issued ten suggestions for folks going to new homes this Fall. Around the first of October, people are so concerned with packing they forget about the dangers attendant thereon, says the national accident preventionist, whose timely tips follow:

1. Smokers should be careful of matches, cigars, cigarettes and pipes when working around the house full of newspapers, excelsior, etc.
2. If you're taking pictures down or hanging them, be sure to use a good substantial stepladder and not a broken down affair, a rocking chair or a frail straight backed chair.
3. Remember that your children may get into peril unless you watch them while engaged in packing. Keep them out of the way of the moving men. Be sure the youngsters aren't playing around the moving vans. Beware lest they pick up something that may result in their death or serious injury. Keep poisons, medicines, pills, sharp knives, razor blades, matches, etc., out of their reach.
4. Make sure that your new home has the gas and electric lights connected so you won't have to use candles as substitutes. Notify the telephone company, too, well in advance so your means of communication will be established as soon as possible. Learn the location of the nearest fire alarm box.
5. Coax your wife not to cart all of her old belongings, such as broken furniture, old newspapers, discarded clothing, etc., to your new home.
6. If you start a stove fire in your new residence, to get rid of the coverings that protected your possessions, don't pour gasoline or kerosene upon the blaze.
7. If you suspect that gas is escaping in your new home, don't look for it with a match. You may find it. Use a flashlight.
8. Have your rugs, carpets, draperies and curtains cleaned before you move.
9. If you park your car in front of your new home, be sure the rear light is burning and that the machine isn't too close to a fire hydrant.
10. When, finally after having struggled with furniture all day long, you decide to take a refreshing bath, don't slip on the soap in the tub.

Ionia Club Women to Asks Funds for Office

The Ionia County Federation of Women's Clubs already is lining up for its annual activity at the October session of the county board of supervisors.

The health unit of the federation, especially, is busy. This division will ask for an appropriation of $5,000 from the county solons. If granted, the amount will be duplicated by the state and the unit office will be established within the county with an office force of one physician, two nurses and an office girl. Mrs. J. R. Spurrer, Ronald township, is president of the county federation; Mrs. Joer Palmer, Orleans, and Mrs. C. O. Shaver, Saranac, are vice presidents; Mrs. Guy Connor, Palo, is recording secretary; Mrs. R. Sykes, Muir, is corresponding secretary, and Mrs. R. W. Dawdy, Portland, is treasurer.

One honestly wonders what the effect on the world would be if all the reform organizations—the societies for minding other people's business—suddenly became extinct. A good guess is that the world would either be absolutely unchanged or a bit improved.

Allegan Saves By Doing Own Work

City Clerk Harold Bostwick received a check for $3,360 from the state for reward work done by the city on streets designated as trunklines. Chairman C. Clay Benson of the council street committee states the city will receive $4,000 from the state next year for similar work.

The city has just completed placing sewers on Cutler and Cedar streets, the work, Benson states, having been done for $800 less than the lowest bidder's offer. Three years ago what was said to be an old and worn out cement mixer was purchased by the city, repaired and placed in commission and is still doing excellent work.

Belding Feels Need
For Bigger Schools

The school situation in Belding is getting critical. The enrollment this year is the largest in the history of the schools. Every school is crowded way beyond capacity and extra pupils are distributed around in recitation rooms with no desks. Need for a new school building is reported urgent.

Handicraft Winners

County Farm Agent William F. Johnston is in receipt of a letter from the boys' and girls' club department of Michigan State college to the effect that Ernest and William Wang of Alma township took first place in the second year's handicraft demonstration work at the Michigan state fair and are therefore entitled to represent Michigan at the national club congress this fall.

The luncheon menu is especially good for a guest luncheon. You could serve a fruit cup for a first course, with the lovely fresh pears, peaches, melons and grapes combined.

Today's Recipes

Chop Suey—One pound pork, cut fine. Cook in covered frying pan in butter until tender. Cut up bunch of celery in fine pieces, using entire stalks. Cut four medium-sized onions in small cubes. Put meat, celery, onions in stew pan, cover with from six to eight tablespoons Oriental sauce, one level tablespoon molasses, salt to taste. Let cook 30 minutes, then thicken with cornstarch. Serve with rice cooked until quite dry.

Beet Salad—Cook four beets until tender, slip the skins off and cut in small cubes. Chop fine one-half head cabbage and one onion. Mix all with mayonnaise. Serve on lettuce leaf, topped with slices of hard-cooked egg.

Salmon Loaf—One can red salmon, one small onion chopped fine, small piece green pepper, chopped fine; one egg, one slice stale bread, soaked and crumbled; mix, form loaf, bake one hour. Serve with slices of lemon.

Suggestion

When cake is scorched on top or bottom, grate it lightly with nutmeg grater instead of using a knife. This leaves a smooth surface for frosting.

Beauty to Wed

How to Achieve Beauty

DRY SHAMPOOS

I am going to give you a few dry shampoos that I want you to remember for emergencies, but I do not thoroughly approve of them as a usual thing. In almost every instance which has come under my observation, I find that hair suffers from the drying effects of dry shampoos. The most popular one is orris root. Orris powder is either tied in a cheesecloth bag or put into a salt shaker. Shake it over the head, being careful to see that it reaches the entire surface of the scalp. This will take quite some time, but remember that you must do it thoroughly, or there is no use in your doing it at all.

Take a good even-bristled hair brush, cover it with cheesecloth, separate the hair into parts, and brush thoroughly. Change the cheesecloth frequently, and when, after brushing, it is thoroughly clean, with no trace of powder or the graininess which indicates that no dust in the scalp remains, you may consider your shampoo finished.

Follow with a hair tonic specifically prepared for dry hair. Apply on cotton. Be sure to use such an individualized tonic, for, as I have already told you, the orris root dries the hair, and you must counteract the tendency or you will find it the cause of falling or brittle hair and a lifeless scalp.

Gasoline is sometimes used for these dry shampoos, but I certainly do not advise it, and, in fact, am cautioning you against it. I explain its use to you merely as a matter of interest. A quart of gasoline is used for the shampoo. It is rubbed well into the hair until experience tells you it is clean, and then it is dried by the use of towels. The gasoline evaporates very quickly, but there is much against it. Not only for the bad devitalizing and drying effect it has upon the growth and texture of your hair and the health of your scalp, but as it has a very strong and disagreeable odor, it requires a great deal of perfume to counteract it.

LIVING AND LOVING
By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

How can I win his love? What do men like best in girls? These appear to be the burning questions of the hour among my girl correspondents. Almost as easily could I tell which presidential candidate will be elected next November! Far be it for me to set myself up as an authority on the subject. I should say, however, that some men prefer the cuddly type, and I would say offhand that she appeals to most men—and women, too. Some like the pal kind who, as one of the boys put it one day, "doesn't expect to be carried over all the rough spots when out on a hike."

The kind of girl women like, is, with few exceptions, the kind that men like. A girl who is sunny tempered, does not easily get "mad," is a good talker and a sympathetic friend, is bound to have friends of both sexes be she pretty or plain. That, I think, should answer my girl friends, two of whom, "Bubs and Babs," sent me a "flock" of queries. They want to know (1) How should one introduce a boy and girl? What should the girl say when introduced to the boy? Is it proper to shake hands? The boy is always introduced to the girl, and she says, "How do you do," and does not shake hands.

(2) What is the correct answer when a boy asks for a date? So much depends on circumstances, girls. If you accept, put some enthusiasm into your voice and say, "Yes, I can go. That will be fun," or something similar. If you cannot accept, give a reason for your refusal, as "Sorry, but I have another date," etc. Question (3), What does a boy like most in a girl, I have answered, also, (4) what is the best way to win a boy's affection? (5) Do boys prefer girls that use cosmetics to those that do not? Few boys like to see their girl friends made up so as to be conspicuous, but all like a girl who looks nice, and many do not seem to notice make-up. There are men, however, who hate the least bit of paint or lipstick. Know your man, if you want to please him. (6) Is it proper for a boy to put his arm around a girl when out riding? Not if he is doing the driving. (7) Is it necessary for a girl to know how to dance to be popular? No. You repeat yourself in (8) and it has been answered. (9) How can one overcome self-consciousness? Do boys like girls that blush? Answer, think of others instead of yourselves and boys like girls who are self-composed. (10) When returning home should the girl ask the boy in? Not if it is late.

The foregoing answers your flip-pant little letter in part, "Nuts." If your boy friend doesn't write, forget him, and any boy in college would love home-made candy and it is perfectly proper to send it. Ask him if you doubt it.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I have been going with a very nice young man (or so he seemed to be) for two and one-half years. We have been engaged nearly a year. Two weeks ago he gave me a diamond ring. Just five days after this I saw in the paper where he was held in jail on account of a girl and was forced to marry her. Do you think he has disgraced himself? Is he fit for a nice girl to continue to love? When he gave me the ring he asked me would I always love him, and said we would have to postpone the wedding, not saying why. He has a good reputation here and a very good mother. I am afraid I won't find another one like him. What must I do? Try to forget him, or wait for him to get out of this trouble?"

"Undecided Brunette."

Whether he was greatly to blame or not, he is married to this girl now and owes his allegiance to her and their child. Therefore, it is best that you try to forget him. Too bad that loving you, he could not have shown the necessary self-control to have enabled him to keep clean for you.

The World and All

BRIDGES

Bridges are among the most powerful and picturesque gestures of man. When semi-civilized man learned to bridge the rivers that had stopped the onward marching of his ancestors, he achieved a victory that made him proud.

Every community is proud of its bridges. I remember that, as a child, I shared the pride of the Kansas farming community in which I was reared in the Hydraulic avenue bridge. It was just a wooden wagon bridge across the Arkansas river. I suppose it was half a mile long, and there was a tradition in the neighborhood that it was the longest wooden wagon bridge in the world. Every little community has these traditions about something that is the greatest in the world.

personal proprietorship in High Bridge.

The bridge was built about the time of the Civil War to carry New York's water supply across the Harlem river. It was a narrow roadway, and has not been used for traffic for generations, because there are no streets leading to or from it. It doesn't even figure as a water carried any longer, as much larger tunnels than the one under the roadway of High Bridge, are now required for the city's water supply.

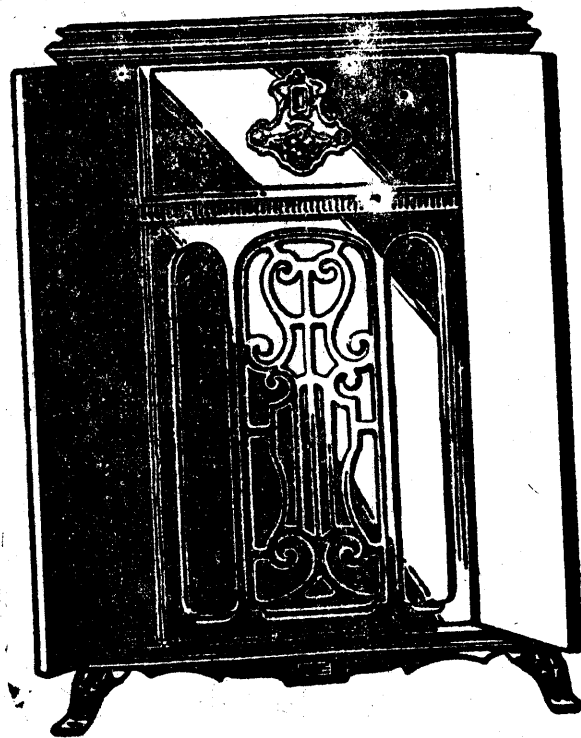

But the people of New York are so proud of the beautiful old stone arch bridge that, when it was found necessary to take the piers out of the river to make room for increasing water-borne traffic, the public would not stand for destruction of High Bridge. Two million dollars have been spent in removing the piers from the main waterway and substituting a beautiful steel span. Now the bridge is again complete, but useless. The old stone arches on both sides of the stream are preserved, and the steel arch over the water doesn't damage the beauty of the old bridge very much.

I have watched for a year and a half, the rebuilding of a portion of High Bridge, in New York City. Every night and morning, on my way to and from my office in downtown Manhattan, I transfer from one train to another at High Bridge station. I feel a

WEEK OF OCTOBER 14

GENERAL FARM OUTLOOK.

Farmers of Michigan will do well to take advantage of the fair weather that occurs during the week of October 14th as not all the week will be satisfactory for farm work. Averaging the week as a whole we do not believe temperatures will range much if any above the seasonal normal. Freezing weather may be expected on several mornings of the week, more especially during the last half. Meadows and fall sown grains will fair well during most of this week and make a good growth for the winter. The harvesting of potatoes, beans and sugar beets will be somewhat hindered by the rainy weather unless the farmer hurries and makes use of the sunshine periods.

DETAILED WEATHER FORECAST.

Strong winds and probably some rather heavy precipitation periods may be expected at the very beginning of the week of October 14th.

As the week advances and reaches towards the middle the temperatures may be expected to drop much lower. Readings of the thermometer will be somewhat below the seasonal normal, which at this time is about 50 to 52 degrees over the southern half of the lower peninsula and a little cooler farther north. Lowest temperatures for this month in Michigan during previous years have been 9 to 22 degrees, but these marks will hardly be reached at this time although low marks are expected. Cold weather will remain in the state until about Friday or Saturday at which time readings will be advancing somewhat although not much above the seasonal normal. The general cool spell which we believe will settle upon this part of the country beginning about the last of last week will continue more or less prominently until about the middle of next week.

There will be rain and wind storms during the middle of this week and again at the very close.

READ THIS FIRST:

Ackland Center, a little old town in New England, is proud of its beauty and traditions. But the modern world is fast crowding in on its peace. Finally a notorious roadhouse, Jazzland, is opened by a gang of bootleggers. Liquor flows. Girls of the town are lured there. Editor Hamilton Pew of "The Weekly Age" fights Jazzland, and is shot to death, the identity of his assailants never being ascertained. Homer Pew, his brother, takes up the fight in the newspaper. Stella Bagot, a home-town girl who has made good in New York as a magazine writer, comes home to write about the fight against the gang. She is driven to Ackland by Ernie Hallam, a married man, much in love with her. He wants her to meet him in Boston. Homer tells Stella how his brother was shot down at Jazzland.

Joe Harmer, Ackland's political boss, calls on Homer to find out if he is going to keep on with the paper, now that his brother is gone. Homer is called to the phone and hears the same mysterious voice that warned his brother to give up the fight against Jazzland. He endeavors to trace the call. Homer is beat up that night when he puts his car in the garage at home. Stella races to his side.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

A number of cars were parked in front of the Pew place. The house was lighted up. A group of men, some in bath gowns over pajamas, stood in hushed manner on the shadowy lawn. There was a policeman in the street, and another on the porch. This latter wasn't inclined to let them in at first; then he recognized the asthmatic one, and said: "All right, Mr. Ashbury." So that was his name.

The little gray woman, standing within the screen door, twisting her hands, Stella recognized as Mrs. Carver, the Aunt Emma of the Pew household. She seemed littler, and graver. She looked at them, as they entered, but didn't speak.

They had laid Homer on the couch in the library. Dr. Bilford, who lived just across the street, appeared to be bandaging his head. Stella's quickened senses became aware of a basin on a chair and bandage rolls and scissors. The doctor's Boston bag stood open on the floor. Bits of blood-stained gauze lay about.

It was a spacious, peaceful room. At the mahogany desk old Ham Pew had worked for half a century. There was a dictionary on a wire stand, and a huge globe. You seldom saw globes like that nowadays. The bookcases reached from floor to ceiling. Books, books, books . . . rows in shabby calf that suggested the law; histories (Gibbon, Hume, Macaulay); the Victorian masters in sets, Tennyson, Wordsworth, Dickens, Thackeray. Old-fashioned steel engravings in heavy frames . . . Daniel Webster, Henry Clay, Lincoln, General Grant, Emerson, Carlyle. A bell-pull of brocade silk hanging from a coiled wire near the ceiling, old panelling about the fireplace. . . . A hushed pervasive sense of the past.

Stella felt another living presence. It was Kitty Pew, standing rigidly in a window alcove. She wore a blue and white kimono. She'd been crying.

CHAPTER XVI

The doctor looked up. Then bent a questioning gaze on the newcomers. Stella, overcoming a shortness of breath, explained: "We've come from the Age office."

"Oh, it's Stella Bagot. I didn't place you at first." He smiled. That was reassuring. But Homer lay inert. "Is it" . . . Stella's voice . . . "Is he . . ."

"He'll come round all right. They beat him up pretty badly." He picked up the Boston bag and put away the bandages and scissors.

"Who did, doctor?"
"Three or four men. I didn't get much of a look at them. They ran out through the Swan place to the back street. By a coincidence I had just come in from a call. I'd put up my car and was coming around the house. I heard Homer shutting the door of his garage. Then a scream." He glanced toward Kitty; but the girl neither moved nor spoke. "I gather, that she heard the men and got up and went to a window. She saw them jump on him."

Homer stirred. Mumbled. The doctor and Stella moved to his side. His eyes slowly opened, and looked, with a puzzled expression, from one to the other. Then he groaned softly.

"Headache?" asked the doctor.
"Splitting. . . . What happened?"
"You took something of a beating, Homer. But there's no bones broken."

"Hm! How's my skull?"
"Intact, thank God! You'll be all right in a day or so." Homer made an effort to lift his bandaged head. "No, my boy, you just lie still. I'm going to telephone over to the hospital for a nurse. When she gets here we'll put you to bed."

"But good Lord! I don't need a nurse!"
"Just a couple of days. I'm going to keep you under observation. There may be a little concussion. Best thing for you right now is to obey orders."

Without a word Mrs. Carver slipped into the room and carried the basin out to the kitchen.

Homer's eyes closed again. But he was conscious. His hands moved, and he frowned rather painfully.

Kitty sobbed. Stella, her nerves on edge, started. The girl rushed out and ran upstairs.

"I'll go telephone," said the doctor. "Don't let him try to get up."

Stella sank into the chair where the basin had been. Asbury moved nearer. "My head isn't any too clear," began Homer, apologetically.

"Don't try to think," said Stella. She couldn't move her eyes from that touseled, bandaged head. A warm, excited impulse came to take it into her arms. But that wouldn't do. "I'm not normal," she thought.

He was speaking again. "The thing to do is to get this right into the paper. We can't let it drift for a week. Not in this kind of a fight. Better telephone Ben to stop the press, Asbury."

"As soon as the doctor is through," replied that person wheezily, and stepped out into the hall.

"We'll have to do something quick. It needn't be long."

"I'll attend to it," said Stella.

"Oh, will you? That's good of you."

She laid a trembling hand on his arm. "Please leave everything to us." She wusn't cry. "I'm working for the Age now, you know." If she sat here much longer she'd be stroking that bruised head. So she got up. "We'll put it in a box on the front page."

"Will you? That's the stuff. It's wonderful of you, Stella, to . . ."

countings. But when that's done, I rather think I'll just devote myself to trying to make the old paper snappy and interesting again. See if there's still a place for a little country weekly that happens to have a pretty fine tradition. There's something nice and American in the picture. I've been thinking I may even try to interest one or two keen modern writers, if I can find 'em, in pitching in with me. Young ones. It's funny, I suppose, but lying there on that couch with my brain going every which way, I've been full of schemes."

"You'd better go back, Homer."

"Stella, I'm not like Ham. He was a crusader. I'm not."

The doctor reappeared. "It will be an hour of two before we can have the nurse here. Will you watch him, Stella?"

"I'm afraid I must go back to the office, doctor."

"Well, I'll speak to Mrs. Carver. Poor woman." This in a low tone. Then, to Homer: "Remember, no nonsense from you, young man. I want you to lie here till I get back."

Asbury reappeared. "Ben's holding everything until we get down there. The compositors have gone, but he says he can set the stuff up himself. Is there anything particular you want us to say?"

"I've got it pretty clear in my mind," said Stella.

"Just be sure you hit hard," said Homer. "No weakening now."

Stella could wait. And on this occasion the subject matter blazed in her brain. Within an hour the proof was corrected (this over the imposing stone in the press room), the make-up completed, and the run of the paper under way again. Miss Curry proved to be so shaken that Asbury took her home. Left alone in the office, Stella dropped for a moment into one of the swivel chairs and pressed her hands against her hot cheeks.

A strong light was thrown suddenly in through the front window. She lowered her hands and sat motionless. Then she saw that there were two lights. It was an automobile heading in to the curb. She heard a door slam. A figure appeared at the screen.

"Oh, Homer!" she cried, rather weakly. "You shouldn't have come!" He was hatless and still bandaged. As he stepped under the light she saw how battered his face was. But he smiled. "I'm perfectly all right, Stella. Thought I'd better have a look at what you've done."

"I'll get the proof."

"No, I'll go out there."

"Please sit down!" She was too quick for him. He dropped down at his desk, painfully. Returning with the proof, she stood by while he read it, and felt relief when he nodded approvingly.

"That's fine, Stella. Bully. Hitting straight out. Maybe it'll make them think. I hope so."

"It ought to. But really, Homer, you shouldn't have . . ."

"Oh, Lord! I couldn't just lie there. How about you? Aren't you all in? It's well on in the morning. And you've had a day of it."

She sank into the chair at the other desk. "I'll admit I'm limp. But I'm too excited to go home."

"It is exciting. I've been thinking pretty deeply, stretched out there. You do at a time like this. Thinking over what it seems to be all about. . . . H'm! Poor old Ham!"

He spread a firm hand on the desk, pressing it down. Stella, regarding him, found her eyes filling. "Do you know, Stella, I realize that I'm not like Ham. He was a crusader. I'm not."

CHAPTER XVII

"Ham was pretty right about this business," said Stella.

"Yes. He was right. And we're going through with his fight of course," replied Homer. "We're going to run that damn roadhouse out of town, and while we're about it we're going to have one or two other ac-ish, sinewy of figure, with a squarely blocked-in face. A quiet man, with observant blue eyes.

"I saw your lights, Mr. Pew," he said, "and wondered who was here. How are you feeling?"

"Oh, I'll be all right, soon as I've put away a night's sleep."

Stella, struggling to control news that had suddenly gone edgy, said: "Homer, will you please go straight home and get it?"

"Yes. Honest, Stella, I will. . . . Oh, this is Mr. Wilbraham, Miss Bagot. Miss Bagot is here to do an article on the case. And incidentally she's helping us a lot."

Very quietly Wilbraham took her hand. For a moment she felt the blue eyes fixed on her. Then he turned to Homer. "They got away," he said. "There were three men. They had a car parked under the trees near the Swan house. The town police went out on the Corners road in their car, but found nothing. They're in Worcester by now. Or Providence. Or Lawrence."

"Get the license number?" asked Homer.

The detective moved his head in the negative. "Did you see them at all, Mr. Pew?"

"No." Homer was holding his head again. With an effort he looked up. "No, they were behind me. I seem to remember hearing voices."

Stella glanced quickly at him. "Did you recognize any of the voices?"

"Why . . . yes. Yes . . . that's odd, come to think of it. . . ."

"The husky, high voice? Thick speech?"

"Yes. Absolutely!"

Stella turned, with a momentary uprush of the earlier excitement, to Wilbraham. "It was the man who telephoned the warning just before. We both heard it then."

"And," put in Homer, "it's the man who telephoned the other warning." His head sagged forward on his hands.

Stella got up, quickly. Her nerves were on edge again. "Homer," she cried, impatiently, "you simply must get home. You're breaking the doctor's orders as it is."

"I'll drive him over in my car," said Wilbraham, taking command.

Stella had Homer's arm and was helping him to his feet. Wilbraham took the other arm.

"But how about you, Stella?" asked Homer, gently. "You're all in yourself."

"I'm all right. I'm going now." She almost snapped that out.

The two of them put him in the detective's car. Stella stood there, steadying herself with a hand on the Ford, as they drove off. She felt childishly angry at that man for breaking in on them. She'd wanted to drive him home herself. A nervous sob had to be choked down. This wouldn't do. She WAS all in. Wearily she got into the Ford and drove out the state road.

That nervous edginess possessed her more strongly. And her thoughts, commonly direct and sensible, were rather wildly out of hand. Gripping the shaky wheel and peering out at the dim highway, in her mind's eye she saw Homer lying on the couch in that haunted library. Extraordinary, the pull of that room. They'd kept all the old things, of course, as a matter of dominant family tradition. And Homer . . . that pitifully beaten-up face and the tousled hair. Queer how she'd itched to get her hands on him, mother him. Queer, and unsettling.

"Emotionally he doesn't know I'm alive," she thought. Then started, and glanced off at the roadside. Had she spoken aloud. "You're a wreck, Stella Bagot." This frankly aloud.

"And a good deal of a mess, I'm afraid. You've got to call Ernest up before eleven tomorrow—today. How about that? What are you going to say to him? It's pretty pressing. It's a situation. He's got to be considered."

Even a man who has no head for business ought to have some kind of a budget for his personal expenditures. You will be more comfortable if you know where the money goes. In fact you are likely to find it more or less entertaining to keep books on yourself, at least long enough to make a test.

I like to drive with Champion Spark Plugs because I know I'll not be annoyed with engine trouble due to faulty spark plugs.

Champion is the better spark plug because it has an exclusive sillimanite insulator specially treated to withstand the much higher temperatures of the modern high-compression engine. Also a new patented solid copper gasket-seal that remains absolutely gas-tight under high compression. Special analysis electrodes which assure a fixed spark-gap under all driving conditions.

Beginning October 4th and every Thursday thereafter the Champion Sparkers will broadcast over the Blue Network of the National Broadcasting Company from 8:30 to 9:00 p. m. Eastern Standard Time.

This Modern External Treatment is best

Mothers prefer the external treatment, Vicks VapoRub, for children's colds, because it avoids the constant "dosing" so disturbing to delicate little stomachs. You just rub it on throat and chest.

Other members of the family prefer Vicks for their own colds, because it is convenient, and quick in bringing relief. Colds usually yield overnight.
