PUREBRED DAIRY STOCK MAKE PROFITS

A dairy cow for every man, woman and child and an acre of alfalfa for every cow is the worthy ambition of gan State College officials. bankers and leading dairymen in northwestern Michigan, who hope some day to convert this once famous lumbering district into a land of flowing milk and honey.

As a special inducement to farmers to raise pure bred dairy cattle the banks in this section plan to make loans, which will be repaid as the profits from the milk flow come in. According to present plans the banks will supervise the purchasing of the cattle, either holding a large sale or sending an expert with the farmer to select the right type of animal. Loans would be made only to prospective dairymen who can satisfy the banks of their ability to provide proper feed and shelter for the cattle and whose credit is good.

This method of financing dairy enterprises was suggested by Norman E. Glasser, cashier of the Gaylord behalf of Japan. This is a specially State bank. Glasser declared his bank posed picture of the count, who had been advancing money to farmers stopped at Washington, D. Geese Believed Weather Oracles

When geese fly north in early autumn before they begin the journey south for the winter it means that the coming of cold weather will be late, according to weather prophets along the coast of New Jersey. The geese have been moving northward this fall and so the prophets are prelicting a belated winter.

Ornithologists give little support to this weather legend, however. Many their nesting season and the time for their fall flight south, bird men say, and they are as likely to go east on these journeys as north. Herons, egrets and other marsh birds especially are given to this habit, which probably also accounts for the early northward flight of the New Jersey

Thief Slaughters Heifer in Woods

John Buwaldo, who runs a meat market and does string butchering in Jamestown, sold a fat heifer to a customer who knew just the condition of the heifer a few days ago. Buwaldo and his customer went down to the woods pasture where the heifer was supposed to be feeding and found that some person had caught the animal, tied her to a tree and killed her. The thief had taken all but the head, skin and lower legs. It was a job indicating the perpetrator was a skilled butcher.

WORMING THE FLOCK

reat deal of space is devoted, each fall, to telling poultrymen about the most recent findings in winter feeding and management to secure the maximum egg production through the winter months when egg prices are relatively high. Few flock owners realize, however, that the health of the birds at the time that they go into the laying houses is of great importance if they are to bring the greatest returns to their owners.

The presence of intestinal worms is one of the greatest handicaps against which a laying flock must work. The strain on a heavy producing fowl is very great, since she is fed to bring about maximum production, in most cases and if her vitality is sapped by the presence of internal parasites, she is likely to break down before the year is over. The first step is to determine the presence of worms.

A bird may be badly infested with intestinal worms and yet not appear, at casual glance, to be ailing or even unthrifty. This is especially so in summer when the chicks are running on wide range. For this reason many poultry owners do not think of worm-

Later on diseases develop, as diseases are certain to develop with birds whose strength and vitality are constantly being sapped by the parasite worms. Egg production drops. Some of the birds die. The owner may then think of worms and post and examine a bird or two. Finding worms, he decides to worm the flock. However, he may have waited too long. The sick fowls may be in no shape to be wormed. The disease or diseases present should be corrected first; then the birds wormed.

Intestinal worms are living things within a living thing. It takes strong medicines to get the worms. Nicotine, from tobacco, is known to be the very best medicine to rid fowls of roundworms. If given on an empty crop, nicotine or tobacco medicine strong cigar acts on a youth in his strong smoke will affect a confirmed tobacco user when taken early of a One result of liming soil is the morning before breakfast.

Most poultry is infested with -85 per cent of the poultry population, according to many investigators. These worm infested fowls off diseases as they should; they canbirds and the layers cannot be so industrious. Every poultry raiser whose flock is infested with worms should worm the flock regularly, and do it before the birds get sick or begin to show the bad effects of the worms.

FEWER GROWING CHICKS ON FARMS THIS YEAR The number of chickens being raised on farms in 1928 is about 10 large percentage of Michigan soils per cent less than in 1927, according are acid and will require from one to returns received by the United and one-half to three tons of lime- States Department of Agriculture covering approximately 22,000 flocks, representing all states. The returns showed the number of chicks and young chickens of this year's hatch in these farm flocks on July 1st to be 9 per cent less than on July 1st last The 150 farms in the state upon year. Returns for June 1st showed which Michigan State college con-ducts lime and fertilizer tests have cent less and for April 1st, 16 per

The same report shows that the reduction in the north central states. which have more than half of the chickens in the United States, is about 7 per cent. The southern states show about a 14 per cent reduction, the northeast, 12 per cent and the west about 5 per cent. Nebraska and Kansas are the only states of large production that do not show a decrease. the number of young birds in these states on July 1st being about the same as a year ago.

There are two reasons for the decline in the number of chicks being raised this year and in the amount of poultry on the farms of the country. The first of these reasons is that feed costs were rather high during most of 1927 and the first part of 1928, in relation to egg prices. This has had a tendency to discourage overproduction and has even brought about a slight decrease in the number of chicks being raised.

Another reason for the decrease is that producers have found that by rigid culling and by following better feeding and management methods approximately the same number of eggs can be produced at less cost for feed and flock upkeep. Careful culling has eliminated the non-producers and the low producers, thereby cutting down on the total cost of feed for the flock without materially reducing the number of eggs produced through the year. Eliminating birds that will not pay for their feed, without, at the same time, reducing the number of eggs produced, paves the way for the better feeding of those birds that will respond to such care, which is in turn helping to keep up production in spite of a decrease in the number of poultry on farms in the United States as a whole.

All of this information points to one fact; namely, that competition has become so keen in the poultry and egg business that efficiency in production must be practiced at all times if success and profit are to be enjoyed by the poultry flock owner. Better feeding and better housing must be provided for the good producers that remain on the farm after the and hens have been removed.

LENAWEE SEEKS "EYE DOCTORS"

Sheriff Arch Wilson is reported seeking two itinerant "doctors" who are alleged to have swindled three elderly persons out of $4,285. Two men posing as eye experts visited the first victim and after an examination told him an operation costing $2,500 at a hospital to remove a film over the eye could he done by them for $1,500. What was apparently a paraffin fluid was poured into the patient's eye and then after it hardened was removed.

The victim was told then in two or three days he would be able to see. They collected $1,500 in bank certificates of deposit and left promising to return in 30 days.

The second patient was a rheumatic and bought a belt that was guaranteed as a sure cure. The patient paid $1,500 for the belt but still has the rheumatism.

The third victim paid $600 and later $635 for eye treatments. The men are said to have been operating extensively in rural communities in Illinois and Indiana.

North Adams Farmer Starts Miniature Zoo

C. W. Bleech of North Adams, who owns and operates a large farm north of that place, has a miniature zoo. part of his collection of birds and animals being on the farm and part at his home in town, the latter being those that he is especially interested

Four varieties of pheasants, Golden, Silver, Lady Amherst and Ringneck, 25 varieties of pigeons, 300 cavies of all colors, and raccoons are to be found at the home in town. The raccoons are black, gray and silver and the different varieties make an interesting contrast. Then there are rabbits, including Champaign, D'Argent (French silver fur), white fur and Flemish giants.

At the farm are found wild geese and ducks and several raccoons.

Mr. Bleech entered an exhibit of his pets at the Hillsdale fair and was awarded a number of premiums. Visitors are always welcome at the farm

But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe bowel stimulant.

This prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid and is now the largest selling liquid laxative. New Reflector Signals Installed On U.S. 31

Approximately 175 reflecting signals have recently been installed by the state highway department on the 100-mile stretch of U.S. 31 from St. Joseph to Muskegon.

ones were erected just before a curve in the road, as an advance danger sign. Red ones were placed on points of danger, and signals which were half red and half yellow were used ficers. to mark right angle turns and cross roads. Illuminous letters, R. R., were placed at three dangerous railroad crossings, which had neither watch- history of the manufacture of gearman nor wig wags. All the signals were put up as a trial proposition. If they are generally liked they will probably be used on all trunk lines in the state.

Similar signals are in use on trunk line systems in Pennsylvania, Ohio, New York, Maryland, Maine, Georgia, Virginia, Minnesota, Missouri, and other states.

Holland Merchant Produces Coxcomb With 15-inch Bloom

William Venhuizen has on display in his store at Holland the largest coxcomb ever grown in this vicinity. The plant is of the bushy variety, about two feet high, the leaves starting with the smallest on top and gradually becoming larger toward the bottom. The flower on the plant is dark red in color and measures 15 inches long and about 3 or 4 inches across. Venhuizen raised the plant from ordinary seed along the highway past his home in Holland township. He also takes pride in a large bed of various flowers.

ONE MILLION CARS SINCE JANUARY 1

Yellow hands of owners since the introduction of the popular "Bigger and Better" model last January first, it has been announced by the company's of-

This sensational achievement of delivering one million cars in nine months is without a parallel in the shift cars and is seen as a tribute to the manufacturing ability and farsightedness of the company. It is regarded as a further indication of Chevrolet's leadership as the world's largest automobile producer.

How Chevrolet marched to this height of popular acclaim may be noted in the fact that within ninety days after the introduction of the new car more than a quarter million new Chevrolets were on the highways in the service of their owners. Two months later, or on June first, a half million cars were in use from Maine to California. Another two months saw 75,000 Chevrolets providing dependable transportation in every city, town and hamlet in the Union. And then came October when the full million mark was achieved.

In order to accommodate the demand, new plants and additions to present ones were made necessary in the many cities across the country where Chevrolet now maintains manufacturing or assembly operations. Foremost among these was the opening in the spring of a mammoth assembly plant in Atlanta, now the largest automobile establishment in the South.

Despite new plants and factory addition, Chevrolet has been working on a night and day basis since the first of the year in an effort to keep pace with orders. More than 40,000 men, the greatest number ever on the Chevrolet's payroll, were employed to assist in the production of the million "Bigger and Better" models now on the road.

"Yeah," said the flapper tourist after being shown through the king's palace. "It's a nifty joint. What picture they got here this week."

Sick Boy Sends His Bit to Byrd

Days don't seem so long to 12-year-old Charlie Manning, as he lies in his hospital bed at Baltimore, Md., recovering from a tubercular infected leg, for he spends his hours reading a letter from Commander Richard E. Byrd, looking at an autographed photo of his hero and recalling a very pleasant visit from Byrd's grandmother, Mrs. William Byrd. When Charlie heard Byrd needed funds for his expedition he ordered his nurse to send his fortune—three dollars—to the commander. Charlie is shown above with Mrs. Byrd.

A list of 20 birds common in Michigan will be suggested by the society. A preliminary vote will be held next spring or late winter to select the three most popular birds of the list. Shortly before the close of the school year, one bird will be chosen.

The society plans to ask the 1930 legislature to adopt the bird so chosen as the official one of Michigan. Thirteen other states and the District of Columbia have taken similar steps.

QUITE A WILD ONE

Some people have all the luck. They going to the sun, since it wouldn't cost any more for the extra distance, and nobody would notice him except the keeper.

I read a whole column in a New York paper the other day about a 'great" Italian sculptor who is going to throw his "greatest" Venus off the top of a high Himalya. It's a wild story, and the only light in it is the statement that this master artist was once, a long time ago, afflicted as to bring slowly to boiling point. Remove his meritality. But the correspondent takes the statue-flinging tale quite seriously. He says maybe Mussolini will not permit the great sculptor to throw away his deathless works of art.

The sculptor explains that something ought to be preserved for future | boiled with the meat. ages. He has a hunch that existing civilization will disappear, and that a the mountains will be laid low and all the valleys exalted.

Come to think of it, he has two incomparable statues of Versus, both of which he has recently finished. He announces that he will get some enterprising contractor to haul these marble masterpieces up to the very summit of the very highest mountain in the wildest part of Thibet. Then he will push them off and let them fall into the deepest and most abandoned of all valleys.

Well, it's quite simple. When the valleys are exalted, this deepest and wildest valley will become the highest and most frequented mountain-top, and everybody will flock there to see the two great Venuses.

Let me hasten to remark, by way of partial explanation, that the sculp-tor is past eighty. He may be forgiven for saying odd things and dreaming absurd dreams. But it is not of record that the correspondent who wrote the article was very old. I'll wager he's not more than thirty.

The old gentleman, finding himself taken seriously, goes on to say that he has some more good statues to throw away. One he is going to toss into the crater of Vesuvius, for future ages, and the other he wishes to throw into the ocean. Probably to cultivate the artistic taste of the whales.

Now, a man of eighty who hasn't made any statues for twenty years, because he flew into a huff when one of his great works was criticized (that's all part of the story) really loesn't need all this spectacular publicity. That's why I'm not mentioning his name, which I don't remember anyway. The correspondent who wrote that tale ought to devote his mar-Is it a coat or a gown? "Resolved, that the present jury system is inadequate and should be abolished," is the question which both men students and co-eds, members of Pi Kappa Delta, honorary forensic fraternity, will debate at Michigan State College during the coming season, it was announced here recently.

Coach Joseph Menchofer, who will direct the men's debate team, and H. W. Blake, co-ed debate coach, plan to make an early start this year. A new system will be inaugurated for the men, that of having two members on a team, rather than three. Coach Menchofer expects to keep five or six teams in the field during the entire

How to Achieve Beauty

DEVELOP A BEAUTIFUL COMPLEXION IN CHILDHOOD A daily dusting with good body taic constitutes the proverbial "ounce of prevention" against chafing and other skin irritations

I have been mostly confining myties. But this chapteer, in particular,

Every child is born with a lovely skin. What happens to that skin between infancy and maturity is something that mothers are partly responthat soap and water is the beginning complexion. In many cases that is perfectly true. The child with a thorcughly normal, properly-functioning skin, needs nothing but cleanliness to insure a good complexion. However, there are just as many cases of an extremely sensitive skin in little gir's as there are in their older sisters. When you are dealing with a fragilaskinned little girl, and mind you, this all, but very much good, in supplementing your washing with a little delicate cleansing cream, patted well into the skin, and then gently removed with tissues.

If you don't forget that you won't neglect to prevent a condition which in a few years may result in large pores and coarsened texture.

We all know how very terribly dirty a child can get. Don't worry about it. The more dirty the child, the more heartily she is playing, and the better it is for her. However, don't force a child to undergo a wild session with is not at all unusual, I see no harm at the scrubbing brush, four or five times a day. Be kind to those sensitive tissues, and once in a while treat the baby to a good clearsing with a soft and penetrating cream. While we are on the subject of hands, let me suggest, too, that a very worthwhile expenditure would be to keep a can of the grainy beauty soap on your bath-room shelf. Beautiful hands may be easily cultivated in childhood, and they will be, if just two or three times

WEEK OF OCTOBER 28

General Farm Outlook: Apparently there will be a continuation of the unsettled and changeable weather from last week into this. We believe that weather conditions will show many extremes and sudden changes. We look for strong winds, some rather heavy rains or snows as well as some sharp changes in temperature. On the whole we are of the opinion temperatures will range normal or below for the week. Any late corn or truck is very apt to be damaged at some time during the week from freezing temperatures. Fall plowing will be more or Jess hindered throughout the state because of the surplus moisture, but from the same cause we believe the pastures and meadows, also the fall grains will do well There is every reason to believe that forest fires in most parts of the state will be at a minimum during this part of the month.

Detailed Weather Forecast: The week of October 28th will open with temperatures considerably below the seasonal normal. This will mean freezing conditions with frosts in many sections.

About Tuesday there will be a change to warmer in most counties of the state. This will cause increasing cloudiness, strong winds, heavy rains, probably changing to snow in some sections, and it would not be a bit surpr.sing to see the lightning queer birds, doesn't it?" flash and hear the thunder brought about by the contrasting air temperatures of this period.

These storm conditions will last over until Friday, by which time a high barometric pressure will be covering the state from the northwest. Under the influence of this "high" temperatures will drop suddenly to low readings. The week ends with cold, fair weather.

November Weather: Averaging the weather conditions for Michigan for the coming month of November, we believe temperatures below the seathe normal will predominate.

"Exactly." The detective flashed a keen glance at her. "Let me try and picture his situation as I see it. In the first place, he is a very strong figure, not only in the town here, but in the county. Even, modestly, in the state. People respect his character and his judgment, and they think a lot of his family background. He is quite a force politically. He has been a member of the state committee of his party, a delegate to national conventions, all that sort of thing. And it means a lot. More, perhaps, than you realize. Most of the men who hold high political office in the state are old friends of his. If we were to attack him, even on the basis of a little real evidence, we'd the detective rose. "I must be going along. There are a good many to the case. Some of them rather more important than this.

Before he could break out again, Stella sprang up and laid an impulsive hand on his arm. "Homer," she said, gently, you musn't think I don't understand what you're going through. You wouldn't be human if you didn't be human if you be patient and cautious. When your Children Cry for It

Castoria is a comfort when Baby is fretful. No sooner taken than the little one is at ease. If restless, a few drops soon bring contentment. No harm done, for Castoria is a baby remedy, meant for Castoria is a baby remedy, meant for babies. Perfectly safe to give the youngest infant; you have the doctors' word for that! It is a vegetable product and you could use it every day. But it's in an emergency that Castoria means most. Some night when constipation must be relieved—or colic pains—or other suffering. Never be without it; some mothers keep an extra bottle, unspened, to make sure there will always be Castoria in the house. It is effective for older children, too; read the book for older children, too; read the book that comes with it.

Its the Use of an Implement That Counts

If you bought an implement to keep in a shed all the time you wouldn't care how it was made or who made it.

But you buy it for what it will do for you—for what its use will pay you in return for your money invested. Its prospective earning power in actual use on your farm is the main thing to consider.

Just as quality is profitable to you in what you raise to sell it is also profitable to you in what you buy to use.

That's why it always pays to buy the John Deere Line of Farm Implements and Machinery. We already have several orders for John Deere Implements to be delivered next spring. Come in and let us explain the many superior features of the John Deere Line.
