Almena will build its exhibit upon the poultry industry. It is also anticipated that the state game preserve, locate north of Almena, will make an centennial exhibit.

Mortgage Sale

Whereas default has been made in the payment of the money secured by a mortgage dated July 22, 1927, executed by Philip Di Gaetano and Carmella Di Gaetano, husband and wife, of Gary, Lake County, Indiana, to Harrigan-Prihoda Realty Company, Inc., Trustee, whose corporate name has been duly changed to Prihoda Realty Co., John Tetak, successor in trust, which mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Van Buren County, on July 28, 1927, in Liber 134 of Mortgages at page 258.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of certain installments due July 22, 1928 in the sum of $735.00 and due July 22, 1929 in the sum of $600.00, and interest upon the whole amount, and the mortgagee has elected to declare the whole debt secured thereby, to be now due and payable, because of said default.

Whereas the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the day of this notice, is the sum of $3040.55 as principal and interest, plus an attorney fee, as is provided by statute, and such other sum or sums as the mortgagee may be obliged to pay for costs of this proceeding and taxes, and no suit or proceeding at law having been instituted to recover the debt now remaining, secured by said mortgages and notes running therewith or any part thereof whereby the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale contained in said mortgage and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgages will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein described, at public auction to the highest bidder, at the north front door of the Court House in the Village of Paw Paw in said County of Van Buren, that being the place for holding the Circuit Court therein, on Saturday the 21st day of December, A. D. 1929, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, of that day, which said premises are described in said mortgage as follows, to-wit:

The West one-half (1-2) of the South-east one-fourth (1-4) of Section eighteen (18), Town one (1), Range fourteen (14) West, containing eighty (80) acres more or less, situate in Bloomingdale Township, Van Buren County, Michigan.

Dated: Sept. 23, A. D. 1929.

Card of Thanks

We take this opportunity, through our home paper, of thanking the citizens, the Masonic Lodge, the Odd Fellow Lodge, the Knights of Columbus, the Mother Superior, Sisters and nurses and Rev. James Mohm, Chaplain, all of St. Francis Hospital; Rev. Hill and Rev. Davis and congregations of the Baptist and Methodist churches; Charles Miller and James Bronson, the Wilkins County Fair Board of Breckenridge and Wapeton, Minnesota; for their many kindnesses, beautiful flowers and presents to Delores Marriott during her stay at St. Francis Hospital following her serious accident.

We are also grateful to Dr. D. J. Mc Mahon and Dr. Leo H. Mc Mahon and for their wonderful work and to Henry Chesterfield, N. V. A. Club, of New York, Drs. Cole, Williams and Ducalou, specialists at Miller Hospital at St. Paul; to the Great Northern Railroad, J. M. Rogers of the Chicago and Burlington Railroad, the Michigan Central Railroad, and to Charles A. Browning, Secretary of the Masonic Lodge of St Paul for their many kindnesses, beautiful flowers and services rendered.

Mr. and Mrs. Al G. Marriott

Large-Brained Ancients

Scientists believe they have found the remains of a finely developed large brained race of men who lived in Africa in prehistoric times. One is never quite sure whether the human race has been going forward all these years or backwards. Perhaps it's a matter for the individual to decide for himself. Do you think you are improving? Do we think better and believe better than we used to? Deep questions, these.—Capper's Weekly

School Notes

The Primary department is planning a Halloween party to be given for their mothers.

The primary department is furnishing a doll house. Mr. Cummins is the builder of the house and has done an artistic bit of work.

The first and second graders show splendid artistic ability in their school work.

Mrs. Albright visited in the Primary room last Friday.

In the third and fourth grades the first spelling contest is over. Jean Ruell won in the third grade. Robert Howard and Floyd Langdon were tied in the fourth grade so each was awarded a prize. We have finished our health posters and the county nutritionist remarked they were the best she had seen.

This week the sixth grade is commencing a project on "The Great Waterways." The fifth and sixth grades are doing projects which correspond to the various phases of autumnal weather. The dying fields with their golden corn shocks and the beautiful sunsets which make even the best of paintings pale into insignificance.

Junior high music is progressing better this year due to the good work the sixth grade did last year. Their musical history lessons start this week. We have the best music instruction possible.

Friday afternoon any and all boys and girls 9 years old or older who are interested in violin are asked to report at 3:30. Mr. Ben Greene, one of the finest violin artists in southwestern Michigan will be at our school to enroll students in his class. We are very anxious for the younger boys and girls to come in. The fees for the lessons will be very moderate. Another valuable addition to our school curriculum. We invite you to compare Gobles high school with other Class D schools in the state. Visit your school and become acquainted with the work being done here.

A carnival poster contest is under way. Prizes will be awarded.

Save your choice products for the school exhibits: grain, vegetables, drawings, etc. are eligible for the exhibit. We also invite an exhibit of rabbits, kittens and other pets. Rules will be announced later. The biggest carnival ever held in Gobles.

Friday morning at 8:30 Mr. Petty will speak to our assembly on fire prevention. It will be well worth your while to hear this talk. Mr. Petty is a well qualified authority on fire prevention. We urge each of you to be present.

Card of Thanks

I wish in this way to express my thanks to the Rebecca and Royal neighbor lodges and the M. E. Aid Society for flowers and fruit also my friends for the many acts of kindness, flowers, fruit, letters and cards sent me during my recent illness in the hospital and also since my return home.

Mrs. Mabel Churchill

Churches Plan Memorials

The Rev. John Broxholm, Hartford, Secretary of the Van Buren Ministerial association, is sending out letters to pastor in the county relative to Memorial Observance day, Sunday, October 27.

Churches are being asked to hold memorial services for the pioneers who were active in the economic and sacred life of the community. Each church may hold services commemorating its own early history and struggles. The development of the church history runs parallel with the community's development and the two are closely interwoven. Many dignified and impressive services are certain to be worked out for Memorial Sunday.

KENDALL

Mrs. Jessie Parker spent Thursday in Kalamazoo.

Eva Waite's room at school is closed as she is entertaining the mumps.

From Leeds Healy

Canton, Miss.
10-5-1929

Dear Friends:

Perhaps you do not know that F. G. Dokkenwadel has developed and patented a Plant Food that is far superior to any other fertilizer that has been used. He has made a study of it for 25 years. About five years ago he discovered that cotton seed hulls make a fine base for the chemicals and after five years experimenting on it, obtained a patent Dec. 1928. He has written 21 reasons why it is better than other fertilizers.

It has been thoroughly tried around Canton this summer and a company has been formed of the 14 southern states. I and my sons are bringing it to Michigan and want Van Buren county to be one of the first to try it. Somehow it seems to me my old home county will be first to accept my offer as you know me there, and it is necessary to get at it right away in order to have it ready before spring planting.

We will sell shares of $100 each and guarantee 10% on money invested, and will either have a plant at Gobles or Kalamazoo that will depend on how many shares are sold and how much fertilizer is ordered in the county.

If you are using fertilizer or have not and are not getting good crops, you cannot make a mistake by buying this.

The following are extracts from some of the letters written to Dr. F. G. Dokkenwadel, Agricultural Chemist and Patentee of the Plant Food Formula.

"I trust that plans can be developed which will insure our active cooperation, as your plant food dovetails into my field demonstration work and encourages my hope for the rebuilding of our soils and increasing acre yields of staple crops."—Harvey Jordon, Managing Director and Treasurer of the American Cotton Association and Better Farming Campaign Field Schools of Economic Production.

"I unhesitatingly assert that this preparation has given me from (20) twenty to (30) thirty per cent more results than the same money value of the commercial mixtures used this year, and which I have been using for thirty years"—H. H. Casteel, Mississippi State Senator.
He has dozens of these coming in. Pd Adv Leeds Healy.

President Hoover is preparing to make a four-day trip to Detroit, Cincinnati and Louisville, starting from Washington Oct. 20. In Detroit he will attend the dedication of the original Edison laboratory at Henry Ford's museum; in Cincinnati he will participate in ceremonies attendant with completion of the Ohio river canalization project, then taking a river boat to Louisville.

Envied by Women

John Larson, ship's storekeeper, of Gothenburg, Sweden, is believed to be the envy of every housewife in his country. After 30 years on the job he can keep milk fresh for 40 days at a time, can keep meat edible for 10 years, if he has to, and can buy the supplies for his ship, vast quantities, in half the morning. His ship kitchen is said to be immaculate.

WARN FARMERS ON SOWING OF WINTER WHEAT

If farmers carry out their expressed intentions to seed this fall an acreage of winter wheat 1.2 per cent greater than was seeded last fall, production will, with average abandonment and average yield, continue to be well above domestic requirements and the 1930 winter wheat crop will have to be marketed on an export basis, says the bureau of agricultural economics, U. S. department of agriculture, in its outlook report on winter wheat.

"The world market for wheat of the 1930 crop," says the bureau, "probably will be no better than, and may not be as good as, that for the present season. Yields of spring wheat in the United States and Canada this year have been very low and prospects now are that yields in Argentina and Australia will also be lower than usual. Farmers should not depend upon low yields next year keeping down the world wheat crop.

"Looking further ahead, United States farmers must expect to meet continued keen competition in export market from Canada, Australia and Argentina. Further more there is a possibility that Russia may again be a factor in the world market in a few years. In view of the general tendency for expansion of acreage in the principal exporting countries, it seems very doubtful whether prices of wheat in world markets in the next few years will average much above the level of the last six years, unless unfavorable conditions result in a series of unusually low yields."

Club Members Going To Represent State

Thirty boy and girl club members from Michigan will compete against youngsters from many other states in the contests to be conducted at the National Dairy Show at St. Louis, Oct. 12 to 19, and at the Boys' and Girls' Club Congress, Chicago, Nov. 29 to Dec. 6, according to A. G. Kettunen, state club leader.

The dairy cattle judging team which will go to St. Louis will be Vedo Heric, Delta county; Wilbur Steinacker, Livingston county, and Maxwell Kempf, Newago county. Hilding Williamson, Delta, is alternate to fill any vacancy on this team.

Ferris Church and Harold Woven, both from Kent county, will go to St. Louis as a dairy demonstration team.

Members winning trips to Chicago include Junior Mitchell and Orlin Johnson, Midland county, handicraft demonstration; Lewis Drake, Antrim, Ralph Brown, Ottawa, and Jack Gilbert, Washtenaw, crops judging; Robert Heflin and Carl Peterson, Antrim, crops demonstration, and Carl Schultz, Washtenaw, poultry judging.

Other Chicago contestants will be Ronald Hawley and Clayton Stevens, Alger, poultry demonstration; Jim Milligan, Harold McGrath and Clarence Bullock, Tuscola, livestock judging, and Victor Weller, Kent, and Helen Norberg, Oceana, health.

The girl team members are Mary Hass, Muskegon, and Mamie Bernhardt, Iron, canning judging; Carnet Sturdevant, Newago, and Marie Postema, Oceana, clothing judging; Lowain Churchill, Oceana, style show; Catherine Hakes and Louise Hakes, Calhoun, and Lydia Altman and Margaret Knauf, Chippewa, home economics demonstration.

Feed Grinding an Important Farm Job

Increased use and need for ground feed among dairymen and poultrymen have led to many developments in feed grinding equipment. An increase in the amount of available power on farms in the form of tractors, electric motors and gasoline engines has made farm grinding an easier and simpler matter while improvements in the construction of the grinders themselves have made them more efficient and cheaper to operate.

Observations indicate that both home grinding and custom grinding is on the increase. Under average conditions, custom grinding is generally considered cheaper for the farmer who needs less than 200 bushels of ground feed per year. On farms using more than 400 bushels of ground feed in the course of a year, grinding can be done at home with individual equipment at a considerable saving. If as much as 700 bushels of grain are to be ground annually, an individual grinder on the farm will do the job at about half the cost of the custom grinder.

Farm Agents Note Corn Pest Injury

Michigan country agents, who recently held a conference here, inspected a field of corn near Monroe which had 99 per cent corn borer infestation with an average of 11 borers per stalk. Other fields showed a severe breakage and loss of 25 per cent or more.

Plant breeders at the Monroe experiment station have been working for some time in an attempt to cross a Mexican variety of corn which is distasteful to corn borers with a high yielding Michigan variety such as Golden Glow.

State Suffers Loss On Late Potato Crop

With the harvest season of the late potato crop at hand, both growers and consumers are interested in the production and price outlook.

From an acreage 12 per cent smaller than last year, the farmers of the United States on July 1 looked for a crop of 379 million bushels. Since that time drought conditions have developed in nearly all of the late-producing states east of the Rocky Mountains except Maine. On September 1, reports from the thousand of government crop reporters indicated that a loss of 30 million bushels had been sustained since July 1, which reduced the estimate to 349,000,000 bushels. The decline during August alone was 24 millions of which Michigan suffered to the extent of five and one-half millions; Wisconsin, one-half millions; New York, three millions; Pennsylvania, three and one-half millions; and Minnesota, two and one-half millions. The only state with an appreciable gain was Maine, the estimate being increased by two and one-half millions.

Commenting upon this situation, Verris H. Church, agricultural statistician of the Michigan co-operative crop reporting service, says that quite general rains have occurred in some of these states since September 1 and the late crop should show some increase when the final estimates for these areas are made. In other districts, which include portions of Michigan and other states, there has not been sufficient rain to break the droughty conditions to date and it is doubtful if any improvement in the crop can be expected.

If the final estimate should not change materially from that of September 1, the crops will compare closely with that of 1926 in volume and be around 115 million bushels smaller than the 1928 crop which was the largest production on record. This indicates far better prices than have prevailed in either of the last two years and unless the outlook changes materially before the end of the season, the crop will be somewhat below the normal requirement which should be favorable for prices above the average paid to growers during the last ten years.

However, it is too early to draw definite conclusions as to either the size of the crop or the prices that will prevail. If the opening markets should be considerably higher than in the last two years, as may be expected, farmers should not market faster than in other years. Orderly marketing will tend to stabilize the price, give dealers a better opportunity for systematically distributing the crop, and aid in maintaining a satisfactory price throughout the season. Such a course on the part of growers should result in a gradually rising market through the winter and spring months with an advance sufficient at least to cover carrying charges. With crops in excess of 400 millions, such as those of 1927 and 1928, spring marketing has usually meant a loss to the grower. Whereas crops of less than 360 millions, which the 1929 may or may not be, have usually brought a profit to those who stored their holdings until spring.

Such comments as are available from statisticians in other leading states as to the situation in their respective jurisdictions and the September 1 condition and production estimates for leading late crop states are appended.

Lawton Growers Prefer To Ship By Truck

Vinyardists have weaned their business from railroads and turned to truckers, because of high freight rates during the past few years.

Although a recent reduction of 20 per cent in freight rates may bring some of the business back to railroads there is every indication that all the business cannot be brought back, and according to the growers the railroads are about five years tardy in their attempt to patch up commercial relations with grape freight business.

A total of 4,680 cars of grapes was shipped from Michigan in 1924. This movement developed from a 51,000 ton crop.

A 61,000 ton crop was produced in 1926, yet car lot shipments dropped to 3,081 cars. The crop in 1927 was approximately the same as in 1924, totaling 51,700 tons, but the car lot shipments by rail dropped to 2,123.

The production in 1928 was estimated at 72,800 tons—21,000 tons more than in 1924, yet the total car shipments by rail fell to 1,575 cars. This year's railroad shipment is expected to sink to around the 1,000 car mark.

With good weather at harvest time, the grape belt has prospects of marketing a good crop, probably around a 72,000 ton crop. The price outlook for the growers is also more encouraging, since they contract most of the fruit, it provides for a minimum of $40 per ton and a maximum of $60.

Wexford Forms Herd Improvement Group

The Wexford County Dairy Herd Improvement association was organized at Cadillac recently. Monday afternoon, with Ray Light of Sherman as president, A. E. Shirley, of Manton, vice president, and Mrs. George Taylor, secretary. The officers together with Albert Bugtam of Buckley and Welford Simons of Selma, constitute the board of directors. Gaylord Grouse was chosen as tester.

Poultry

THE POULTRY SANITATION STORY RETOLD

Disease control and flock sanitation are of prime importance in the poultry management program. Lack of knowledge, both in regard to the presence of disease and in regard to the method of combating it, or failure to apply this knowledge, has caused the total destruction of many flocks in a short time.

There are no absolute rules for disease control except that prevention should be first, last and always the aim in flocks sanitation.

It must be remembered, too, that a "cured" bird is ordinarily a menace to the poultry breeding flock. Birds that are cured of any of the major poultry diseases and are then put back into the breeding flock are given an opportunity to transmit to a large number of offspring the constitutional weakness that made them more susceptible to the disease than their fellow flock members. Practically all measures, then, are preventive rather than curative; that is, they are designed to prevent the spread of disease to the healthy flock or healthy members of the flock rather than to cure these birds that are afflicted.

For the above reason it is sometimes better to kill a sick fowl than to try to cure it. Then, too, a sick chicken is often a very difficult thing for some people to handle and treat successfully. Chickens, like all animals, are naturally healthy and will remain so unless neglected or given careless treatment. Once a chicken becomes seriously ill, especially if the disease is contagious; it should be killed, where healthy birds cannot get at the blood or excrement and then burned.

The poultry house is a powerful force for good or evil in the poultry flock. Most farm poultry houses are forces for evil, though, because they lack effective means of removing moisture and are poorly ventilated. Accumulated moisture in the poultry house and overcrowding are largely responsible for colds and roup. These two conditions weaken the vitality of the birds and make them subject to not only these two diseases, but to others as well. To remedy this, put in a straw loft with circulation of air above it whenever possible. Special ventilating systems or properly arranged windows may also be used to provide ventilation. At least three square feet of floor space, and preferably four, should be allowed for each bird that is to be housed.

Cleanliness is one of the best guarantees of success with the poultry flock. At least once during the year the poultry house and yard should be given a thorough cleaning and disinfecting. A bettch practice is to give the premises this thorough cleaning and disinfecting before the flock is put in the laying house in the fall and again in the spring just after it has come out of the laying house. If a dirt floor is used, dig down six or eight inches, haul to some field that will not be frequented by the flock, and then replace it with clean gravel.

If a cement, cement covered hollow tile, or wooden floor is used, remove the litter and loose dirt and sweep the house to remove all dust, dirt and cobwebs. Scrub the entire house and especially the roosts, floor, dropping boards, water vessels and feed hoppers with lye water. Lye is used to remove the dirt and the hot water kills the disease germs. Then treat the roosts, dropping boards, and back and sides of the house near the roosts with a mixture of equal parts of a good creosote wood preservative and used kerosene oil to prevent mites from multiplying.

Clean litter should cover the floor to a depth of six or eight inches. This should be changed often enough to insure absolute cleanliness. Nests should be kept clean and fresh. Red top, blue grass or prairie grass makes the best nest material, but clean, fresh straw will serve the purpose if these are not to be had. Straw is not so durable as the other three materials, however. The nests should always have a top, preferably sloping, since this sort of top will prevent the accumulation of droppings.

An application of air-slaked lime once a week will prove helpful in keeping down contagion in the grounds and runs. The ground in the yards and runs should be plowed and seeded in the spring. There is nothing that will take the place of sun and the drying action of warm, fresh air for killing disease germs in poultry runs.

Poultry diseases are spread principally in three ways: By allowing the flock to eat diseased, dead birds; through drinking water; and through the droppings of diseased birds. All dead birds should be burned. Clean drinking water and watering vessels should be provided. To aid in preventing the spread of such diseases as fowl cholera, tuberculosis and roup, use potassium permanganate in the drinking water, in nonmetal drinking vessels, in sufficient quantities to make the water wine colored.

As a help in the control of diseases that are spread through the droppings, use dropping boards underneath the roosts. Place the dropping boards 30 inches from the floor, on a level, with the roosts 10 inches above them. If disease is present, millions of germs are removed with the droppings.

There is no "best" formula for a mash for laying hens, but it should contain about 20 per cent of a high-protein feed, such as meat scraps or fish meal, and about 40 per cent yellow corn meal. In addition, the ration should contain bran and middlings and perhaps other products for variety.

MR. FORD ABANDONS MUSCLE SHOALS BID

Henry Ford has abandoned any plans for the development of power at Muscle Shoals and will not make another offer for the Government plans there, Senator Heflin (Dem.) of Alabama, has been advised in a letter from E. G. Liebold, general secretary to Mr. Ford.

Mr. Liebold's communication answered a letter from Senator Heflin urging that Mr. Ford renew his offers for the Muscle Shoals properties.

The text of Mr. Liebold's letter follows in full:

Honorable sir:
Your letter of Sept. 9 received.
In reply the writer has been instructed to advise you that we have no plans at this time where the power at Muscle Shoals could be utilized and that it would be beyond the question for Mr. Ford to again make an offer.
He has also suggested that in his opinion other interests are in a better position to develop and utilize the power as it might be more practical to solicit an offer from them.

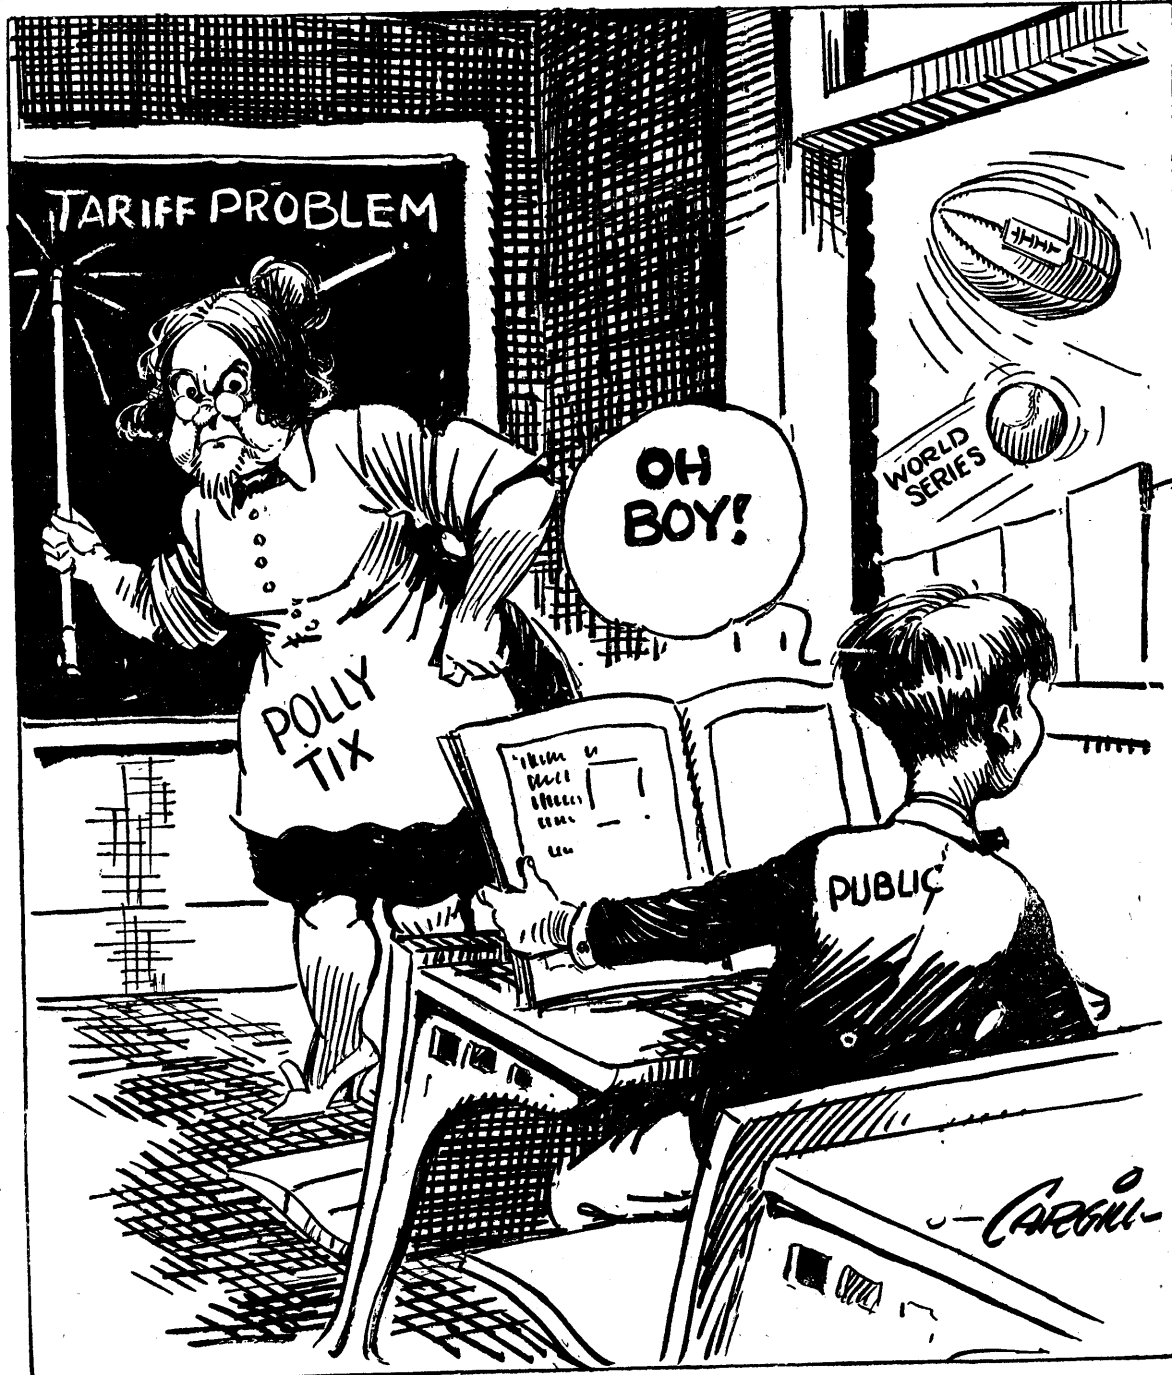

Passes Bar Examination But Must Wait One Year

Although he passed the bar examinations with credit, Donald B. Severance will be forced to wait until next year before he can qualify as a lawyer. Severance is only 20 years old, and the legal age limit is 21. Severance, meanwhile, will be associated with a Holland law office and obtain additional training. He spent three summers at the Detroit law school and devoted his other time in the law office of Circuit Judge-Elect Fred T. Miles.

Ottawa Oil Well Down More Than 4,500 Feet

One of the deepest wells ever drilled in Michigan for oil and gas is the No. 1. Joseph Kluting at Reno operated by the Wright Oil company. At 4,400 feet the well went into the lime after having had 25 feet of red shale. It is now more than 4,500 feet and on the way to the Trenton limestone.

Another Tough Problem in Interest

FORD RETAKES FORMER RANK

With substantially one car in every three registered this year a Ford, the automobile market has been undergoing an upheaval as Ford registrations last year averaged only one in 12. A comparison of registration figures made by Automobile Topics this week shows the Ford Motor company to be back where it was in 1926 when it sold 36 per cent of all the cars, as registrations in the first seven months this year show a total of 835,607 or 32 per cent of the aggregate of all makes. July was the biggest month in Ford sales, judging by total of 151,942 registrations recorded throughout the United States. Michigan leads all states in Ford registrations with over 66,000. Ohio with about 55,000 is second and Texas with 52,000 is third. New York, which leads in registrations of all makes, is fourth on the Ford record and registered a little over 50,000 in the seven months. California, Pennsylvania and Illinois were not far behind.

State to Erect Fire Tower at St. James

A boatload of fire tower steel was taken to Beaver Island recently by County Fire Warden Carson of Boyne City, who will superintend the erection of a fire tower in the vicinity of St. James. There is still a heavy stand of timber on the island and through efforts of the Beaver Island Protective Association, deer, raccoon, pheasants and all forms of game life are abundant there.

Big Rapids Plans Diamond Jubilee

Big Rapids will celebrate its seventy-fifth anniversary next July 2 to 6, according to plans under way by the Chamber of Commerce.

The diamond jubilee will set forth three-quarters of a century of progress since the first frame dwelling was erected in what then was a wilderness.

The exposition will cover the pioneer days, the lumbering and river-driving period, the educational history, industrial progress, and the newer resort and tourist period.

The program is to consist of registration of former residents who are expected here in hundreds for a week's visit in the old home town, reunions, gatherings of returning lodge members, former Ferris institute students, a dramatic pageant depicting the founding and history of Big Rapids, unveiling of a memorial to Dr. Anna Shaw, conducted tours through the scenic parts of the surrounding country and lake regions, local manufacturers' exhibits of products made in Big Rapids, log rolling contests, parade with floats showing features and historical highlights, fireworks, exhibits of old photographs, old furniture, lumbering equipment and stage coaches, thus giving the younger generation a graphic picture of what this region used to be.

The Chamber of Commerce now is appointing committees to gather a mailing list of persons who used to live here. At present the program is being developed by President Frank E. Hardy and Secretary W. W. Knisley of the Chamber of Commerce.

Cadillac to Manufacture 16-Cylinder Motor Car

Cadillac Motor Car Company will in all probability place on the market during the coming year a 16-cylinder motor car, L. P. Fisher, president of the company, has announced.

This new car will be developed and designed by the same engineers who are responsible for the Cadillac and LaSalle lines for 1930, which are announced simultaneously with the possibility of the giant-motored car.

The car will be designed, according to Mr. Fisher's statement, for those few motorists willing to pay for the "ultra" regardless of price, who desire very expensive cars for their appointments and unusual performance. Cadillac, Fisher and Fleetwood engineers have been permitted to "go the limit," the announcement declares, in making plans for the new V-type car.

Finance Mail Order Car

Final details of a $45,000,000 deal for the manufacture and sale, through the Sears-Roebuck mail order house, of a small automobile to be shipped in a packing case which can later be used as a garage, were to be arranged at a conference in Washington this week.

The car is the invention of James V. Martin of the Martin Aeroplane factory, Garden City, L. I. He is reported to have obtained the support of a syndicate headed by William B. Leeds, the DuPont interests and Sears-Roebuck. It is expected the baby automobile, which will seat two, will sell for under $200.

P. M. WILL EXPEND $400,000 ON YARDS

Ludington has been definitely picked by the Pere Marquette Railway Co. for its $400,000 slip and yard extensions, it has been learned. Following a visit President Frank H. Alfred and five aides of Detroit made a visit in a special train.

A communication, outlining the improvements and requesting purchase of 1,000 feet of city-owned frontage on Pere Marquette lake, will be presented to the city commission Monday night. The city set a price of $25,000 on the property last May. If favorable action is given, it has been learned, railway engineers have been ordered to ask for bids at once.

Owing to the lateness of the season the building program will be restricted to one slip and five slip tracks. The new slip, it is said, will be built near Muskrat point, south of the existing south slip.

The improvements are needed for the growing fleet of Pere Marquette carferries operating out of Ludington. Two new vessels, City of Saginaw and City of Flint, are under construction at Manitowoc. The present fleet of seven carferries taxes the capacities of Ludington's two slips.

A complete reconstruction of existing freight sheds and dock buildings which have stood for nearly 50 years will be necessary under the yard rearrangements, it is said. This, however, will not be undertaken this year. If the commission favors the company's plans steps will be taken to place the proposed sale and other details before the voters for decision.

Lands which probably will be needed for improvement this year include the city property, Muskrat point, owned by H. V. Huston and an adjacent strip owned by Albert E. Johnson.

Use Bottle of Milk To Extinguish Fire In Charlotte Auto

Milk is the latest fire extinguisher to be used in Charlotte. Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Cronk drove down to the Colizzi Brothers store late at night to get a pint of milk, leaving the dog in their sedan.

Soon they heard the dog bark and it was found a fire had started in the car. The fire department was called, but in the meantime the blaze, which had been caused by a short circuit, was quenched by the bottle of milk.

St. Louis Man Elected Head of TBC Group

The annual Mississippi Valley conference on tuberculosis held at Grand Rapids elected Joseph W. Becker, of St. Louis, as president, and selection of Rockford, Ill., as the 1930 meeting place. Becker is secretary of the Missouri Tuberculosis association.

Mrs. Blanch H. Rose, secretary of the Grand Rapids Anti-Tuberculosis society, was made vice-president and Dr. Robinson Bosworth, superintendent of the Municipal sanatorium at Rockford, Ill., was elected secretary and treasurer.

Oil Regions Must Be Protected Against Danger of Fires

Recent fires in the Mt. Pleasant oil fields have caused H. J. Andrews chief fire warden, and C. V. Lane, assistant state fire marshal, department of insurance, to again call attention of the gas and oil operators of Michigan to a bulletin they issued several months ago, reviewing the 1915 oil fire prevention statute.

This statute lists means of eliminating fire hazards in the oil fields, and these were included in the bulletins sent all operators.

All slash and debris created by the erection or construction of derricks, storage tanks, nitro-glycerine magazines; store-houses, dykes and retaining walls, and in the construction of roads to them, must be disposed of in a manner and place satisfactory to representatives of the Department of Conservation, the bulletin says. If after the slash has been picked up and put on wagons or trucks, the operator can find some other means of disposal satisfactory to the representatives of the Department of Conservation, such means of disposal can be used.

A space at least 50 feet wide shall be completely cleaned around every drill rig, well, storage tank (whether permanent or temporary) and nitro-glycerine. All inflammable material resulting from such clearing shall be removed and disposed of.

On the outside edge of each of these cleared strips, a strip of oil at least four feet wide shall be either plowed or shoveled so that the mineral is exposed.

A fence shall be strung around each drill rig, oil well, storage tank and nitro-glycerine magazine.

No smoking and no trespassing signs are furnished by the Department of Conservation. They shall be posted by the operator around each drilling operation, producing well storage tank and nitro-glycerine magazine.

12 Michigan Cities Get Aerial Express Service

Air express service for every city in Michigan now receiving air mail service is to start immediately, according to Charles A. Rheinstrom, general traffic manager of the Thompson Aeronautical Corporation, air mail operators in Michigan. Arrangement has been made with the Railway Express Agency, Inc., for handling all air express parcels on the mail and passenger planes of the Thompson lines, Mr. Rheinstrom announced.

The new service means that the same delivery now received by letters sent air mail will be given packages shipped by air express. Also, any article sent by this service will be carried by air to practically any city in the country. The express company has like arrangements with other large air transport operators similar to that just made with TAC and all parcels sent from Michigan cities by this means will connect at Cleveland and Chicago with the transcontinental air mail and express lines, and lines going south.

The cities in Michigan to be directly served by air express are Kalamazoo, Muskegon, Grand Rapids, Battle Creek, Jackson, Lansing, Ann Arbor, Detroit, Pontiac, Flint, Saginaw and Bay City. South Bend and Toledo will also receive this service.

Detroit has had air express service for several months through the Thompson translake Detroit-Cleveland passenger, mail and express line. This new service offered by TAC will permit merchants and manufacturers, as well as private individuals, to enjoy the reliability and speed of air express.

Damaged Port Huron Plant to Be Rebuilt

A fire of undetermined origin in the plant of the United Brass and Aluminum Manufacturing Co., South Park, caused damage estimated at $30,000, covered by insurance. Jacob Goldman, president, said that rebuilding will be started at once. Had it not been for the heavy downpour of rain, it is probable that the entire factory would have been destroyed.

TRUCK DRIVERS EVADE POLICE

State police arrested Sylvester Rossow of Melville and Fred Buttelman of Muskegon, truck drivers, and when weighed their trucks were found to have a larger load than the law allows. Rossow's truck had 2,300 pounds too much on the rear axle and Buttelman's trailer attached to his truck showed an overload of 1,900 pounds on the front axle.

It is reported that at one place in the state truck drivers had "got wise" to the fact that officers weighing trucks stopped work at a certain time. The drivers would park their trucks on a side road near the intersection and wait until the officers went off duty. There weren't many trucks going through this intersection until after dark; then a long line would go through at the same time.

An investigation was made and the trucks, a long line of them, were found parked on a side street. The weighing scales were moved over to the trucks, and all weighed. Every truck in the line was found to have an overload, and each driver was summoned to appear in court.

President's Coach On Pere Marquette Renovated at Ionia

Finishers at the Ionia Pere Marquette car shops have been working overtime recently on Pere Marquette car No. 1, the presidents' private coach. The car, a fine job of workmanship, is a rearranged and refurbished palace on wheels. Its first trip will be a complete tour of inspection of the system.

The right way to redye Finest Silks

TEXTILE manufacturers always use special dyes for silk or wool. They know that is the only way to secure the most perfect results. The makers of Diamond Dyes are the first to enable home users to follow this plan.

Next time you want to dye some of your more valuable articles of pure silk or wool, try the special Diamond Dyes in the blue package. They will give these materials clearer, more brilliant colors, with greater depth and permanence than any "all purpose" dye.

These special Diamond Dyes are just as easy to use as ordinary dyes. Like the white package Diamond Dyes, they contain the highest quality anilines money can buy. That's what makes them go on so smoothly and evenly, without spotting or streaking. That's the secret of their brilliance; their resistance to sunlight, wear, and washing.

The white package of Diamond Dyes is the highest quality dye prepared for general use. It will dye, or tint, silk, wool, cotton, linen, rayon (artificial silk), or any mixture of materials. The blue package is a special dye for silk or wool only—with it you can dye your valuable articles of pure silk or wool with results equal to the finest professional work. When you buy—remember this. The blue package dyes silk or wool only. The white package will dye every kind of goods, including silk or wool. Your dealer has both packages.

Diamond Dyes contain the highest quality anilines money can buy. And it is the anilines that count. They are the life of the dye; the source of their rich colors; brilliance and permanence.

Obituary

Julia Hannah Holly was born in New York state December 30, 1850 and passed away at her home in Pine Grove township September 30, 1929, aged 78 years and 9 months.

As a child she came to Michigan with her parents locating in Texas township, soon moving with them to the northern part of the state, where she lived until December 23, 1875 when she was united in marriage with George Merrell. To this union three children were born: Frank Merrell of Kalamazoo, George Merrell who resides with his parents and Cora Austin who passed away May 4, 1928.

Besides the husband and two sons, she leaves an adopted son, Lyman Davis; two brothers, George Holly of Breedsville and Charles Holly of Pine Grove township, 12 grand children, 2 great grand children, a number of nephews and nieces and a host of friends.

About 24 years ago they moved onto the place which has since been their home. The last four years she has been crippled and confined to her bed the greater part of the time.

"Alas! Too well we know our loss, Nor hope again our joy to touch until

The stream of death we cross' He smiled: "There is no such." "Yet our beloved seem so far, The while we yearn to feel them near, Albeit with Thee we trust they are. He smiled: "And I am here!" Dear Lord, how shall we know that they Still walk unseen with us and Thee, Nor sleep, nor wander far away? He smiled: "Abide in me." Funeral was held at the home, Rev. S. W. Hayes officiating. Burial in Robinson cemetery.

Card of Thanks

We hereby express our thanks to Rev. Hayes for his kind words of solace and comfort and to the singers. We are also deeply grateful for the many beautiful floral pieces and greatly appreciate the liberal contributions of time and efforts by our neighbors during the long illness of our loved one.

Strangled From Space

Scientific interest is being directed to a 35-ton formation recently discovered in southwest Africa which has all the appearances of being a meteor. It was discovered on a farm near Grootfontein and is quite different in every way from any of the rocks to be found in that part of the country. This is almost as large as the meteorite which was brought from Greenland in 1907 by Commodore Peary, and if the African find proves to be a meteor by answering certain scientific tests, it will be regarded as a very valuable find.

The Penalty

Five-year-old Freda had taken her watch to be repaired over a week ago, and was now seeing what had happened to it.

"Ready on Tuesday, miss," declared the man behind the counter.

"You promise" asked the little maiden seriously.

"I promise," replied the other, with a smile.

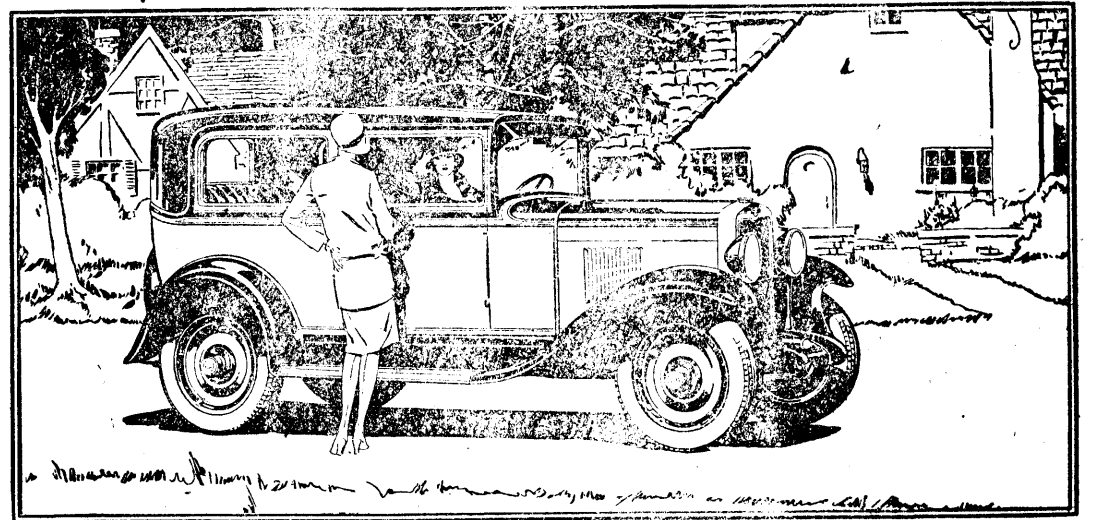

But on reaching the door the little girl turned round again.

"Mind you," she said gravely, "if it isn't ready by Tuesday I shall sue you for breach of promise."

STRICTER AUTO BAN PLANNED AT UNIVERSITY

A return to the more severe discipline this year to curb violators of the rule against students driving automobiles is being considered by officers in charge of enforcement at the University of Michigan. Twelve students were suspended and one was expelled when the rule was put into force two years ago.

It is said that placing students on probation has not solved the problem, although no second offenders were discovered last year. Knowledge that they will be suspended will curb their activities this year, it is believed.

The question has not yet been decided definitely, according to J. A. Bursley, dean of students, but inasmuch as drastic action has been so effective at Illinois and Purdue, it is probable that a like plan will be followed at University of Michigan, he states.

The regulation will provide that no students except those having permits be allowed to drive.

New Cure for Anemia Is Found

A discovery that may replace the present treatment for pernicious anemia of a diet of liver was announced by Dr. Cyrus C. Sturgis, director of the Thomas Henry Simpson Memorial Institute of the University of Michigan. The announcement was made jointly by Dr. Sturgis, Dr. Raphael Isaacs, associate director of the institute, and Dr. Elwood A. Sharp, all of whom collaborated in developing the treatment.

An extract, made from dried hog stomach, is the substance discovered by the university scientists. After a careful study of patients' reactions to the new treatment over a period of months it was learned that its blood building capacity was considerably greater than liver extract.

While the treatment is not a cure for the disease, it does provide the sufferer with relief, Dr. Sturgis pointed out. It is not available in quantities sufficient to meet the demand of the country's medical centers, according to the director, but general distribution may be expected in the near future. Its cost is appreciably less than liver, and one ounce doses are declared to be as effective as a pound of fresh liver.

Rural Health Work Urged at Conference

Full time health service in rural communities, similar to that afforded in the cities, was urged before the Mississippi Valley conference on tuberculosis, held at Grand Rapids recently, by Joe Becker, secretary of the Missouri Tuberculosis Association.

Becker said farm relief measures, provided by congress, will have a constructive bearing on rural health activities. Work in the country, he explained, has necessarily been slow because of inability to organize widely scattered communities.

M. G. Davis, superintendent of the Ames, Ia., schools, received the national school health cup for the second successive year.

Injunction Dissolved; Begin to Build School

Dissolution of a temporary injunction left the Kalamazoo school board free to proceed with its original plan for constructing the new $250,000 Woodward avenue school building without the services of a general contractor. The building work will be supervised by Billingham and Cobb, architects. The contractors attacked the agreement on the ground that it placed Billingham and Cobb "in the position of passing as building contractors on the sufficiency of their work as architects."

Poems That Live

THE HOUSEKEEPER

The frugal snail, with forecast of repose,
Carries his house with him where'er he goes;
Peeps out—and if there comes a shower of rain,
Retreats to his small domicile again.
Touch but a tip of him, a horn—'tis well—
He curls up in his sanctuary shell.
He's his own landlord, his own tenant;
stay
Long as he will, he dreads no Quarter Day.
Himself he boards and lodges; both invites
And feasts himself; sleeps with himself o' nights.
He spares the upholsterer trouble to procure
Chattels; himself is his own furniture,
And his sole riches. Whereso'er he roam—
Knock when you will—he's sure to be at home.
—From the Latin of Vincent Bourne.

Sports Clothes Remain Mannish

By MME. LISBETH

Women's clothes generally are going feminine—or rather, they have gone. Longer skirts, draperies, flounces, etc., proclaim this loudly. But for active sports they still maintain a little mannish swagger, especially costumes designed for flying, riding, skiing, skating and yachting. Whatever one's favorite sport, one must be smartly clothed; that is almost as important as your deftness at the game.

Advance notes on winter sports are to the effect that for skating, breeches, jacket and beret are chic. As worn by Miss Peggy Fish, left, red is a good color to contrast to winter snows, and her beret and jacket are of brilliantly colored rayon and wool mixture, with breeches and trimmings of red leather. To fly or not to fly is the question of the hour. Most women say fly, and Miss Elinor Smith, aviatrix, shows just how stunning you may look in flying duds. Her suit is also made of a rayon and wool mixture, specially designed under her supervision.

It seems that Raquel Torres, screen actress, prefers skiing to all other winter sports, and has chosen this suit in light beige with a diagonal design in blue pattern with matching tam.

STATE COLLEGE APPROVES NEW FACULTY HEADS

Changes in the faculty of Michigan State College approved by the state board of agriculture at its last meeting, are appointment of Mrs. Merle D. Byers as associate professor of education in home economics, to succeed Miss Minnie Irons, appointment of Mable Rogers to Mrs. Byers' former position as instructor in home economics education and the appointment of Garrick E. Wilden as assistant professor of horticulture to succeed Alexa Laurie.

Leave of absence for an indefinite period, was granted to G. W. Bissel, dean of engineering. Other major appointments in the college staff are those of Professor E. L. Austin to the head of the education department, succeeding B. E. Walpole, Colonel Edward Davis replacing Lieutenant Colonel T. L. Sherburne, in command of the college R. O. T. C.; Alexander Schuster, professor of cello instruction; and Zinovy Krogan, formerly of the Imperial Conservatory at Moscow, who will assist Michael Press, professor of violin.

Peterkin—You seem to have grown shorter since I last saw you.
Gargoyle—Yes; I got married and settled down.

W. S. T. C. to Open Research Clinic

Under the direction of the bureau of educational research of Western State Teachers college a psycho-educational clinic is to be inaugurated at the college the present year.

This will be an innovation for teachers colleges, although there are a few such clinics at a few leading universities.

The purpose of the proposed clinic is to make a particular study of the disabilities of pupils in the grades, with the end in view of determining the outstanding abilities which may be trained. The clinic will also be available for the study of so-called "problem" cases, and there will be some time devoted to the development of a clinic for the child of pre-school age.

The clinic will be directed by Dr. Paul V. Sangren, director of the department of educational research, and Prof. Homer L. J. Carter, associated director.

Baked Fish, Italian Style
Sliced Cucumbers French Dressing
Apple Sauce Cookies Coffee
Baked fish, Italian style, is a new recipe to this column and is well worth a trial. The amount of fish you get must depend, of course, on the number you wish to feed. Allow two pounds of fish to four individuals.

Recipes

Baked Fish, Italian Style—Place alternate layers of potatoes cut one-fourth inch thick, and layers of thin sliced onions in a baking dish. Wash and clean a large fish, such as haddock, and place it on the onion and potato layers. Cover the fish with alternate layers of potatoes and onions and season each layer with salt and pepper. Add one cup olive oil, two to three cups of canned tomatoes, to which you have added one tablespoon sugar and a clove of garlic, cut fine. Bake until the potatoes are soft.

SUGGESTIONS

Easy Peeling

In peeling peaches, stick a peach on a fork, hold it over the gas flame till the skin is well heated, and the skin slips off as easily as the skin from a tomato when it is heated till it pops.

Use a Fork

If you have difficulty in completely dissolving baby's S. M. A., try whipping it with a fork. A few whisks give a smooth liquid without lumps. Use the same method in dissolving cocoa.

Marmalades

A marmalade may be made by combining one quart of peeled diced yellow tomatoes with two pounds sugar. Add the grated rind of two lemons and two oranges. Simmer until thick. If the mixture seems too sweet, lemon juice may be added. Bits of orange pulp may also be put in at the time the grated orange rind is added. Green tomato marmalade or conserve may be made by using same recipe but adding a half cup of raisins, and just before taking from the fire putting in one-half cup broken walnut meats. A tomato butter calls for four pounds of red tomatoes, four pounds apples or plums, combined with one teaspoon ground cloves and one-half teaspoon ground cinnamon. For these ingredients measure three and one-half pounds sugar and two quarts sweet cider. Cook apples and tomatoes in cider until mushy. Rub through sieve, add remaining ingredients and cook in a slow oven until mixture is thick. Put in jars and cover with paraffin.

Finnegan—Do you know how the Grand Canyon of Colorado was made?
MacNamara—No, how was it?

Finnegan—Well, a great many years ago a Scotchman was crossing Colorado and he dropped a nickel in a prairie dog's hole.

Laziness Is Not Cause Of Youthful Failures, As Some Parents Think

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

To many a backward child going to school has very little lure. He rarely has successes at his lessons. Now everyone enjoys most what he does best and enjoys least what he does worst. What discouragements must be met by the child who every day and every hour at school finds himself a failure! Just imagine yourself trudging off to school, knowing you are not going to be able to answer the questions which will be asked you in the recitation, not going to be able to do the problems set for you to do while other children are going to do them easily and quickly and are going to have to wait while you work and worry in confusion, trying to think all the while what a "dumbbell" you are.

We are not born equal in ability to learn. Even within the same family one child may learn with great speed and ease while another may learn with slowness and great difficulty. But people do not fall into two great classes, genius and dullards. There are all degrees of brightness, which is to say that there are all degrees of dullness. We parents generally call a child backward who cannot keep up in his work at school, who lags one or several grades behind.

He may be brighter than we think he is; he may be duller. We parents rarely are good judges of his degree of native intelligence. The school psychologist where there is one, should be able to give us pretty accurate information. In many of the best school systems there are special classes for those children who are two or three years behind their grade.

If your school has no psychologist, get in touch with the nearest university or college and call upon a psychologist there. Sometimes such services are given free. Never is the fee very large. Don't waste your time and money on a quack. Usually your teacher can tell you a good deal about the child's learning troubles. It is well to keep in very close touch with her. Teachers, and even psychologists can, of course, make mistakes labelling the child duller than he really is. But if they both find the child low in ability to learn you will be pretty safe in accepting their advice.

Of course, it is not easy for a parent of average or superior intelligence to believe his child is by nature dull. He is more likely to accuse the child of laziness and the teacher of incompetence. Some such parents forever torment the slow child, making life miserable for him, and eternally hound the teacher, imposing on her time and patience.

No parent or teacher can put new cells into the child's head, nor create a new brain for him. All anyone can do is to help the child develop what he has.

Most teachers, indeed, expect slow children to do more than they are able to do. Only very gradually is the school making the work easy enough for the backward child. An occasional skillful teacher with one or several very dull children in her class sets them at work simple enough for them to enjoy success. To such a child of the fourth grade, for example, may be given second grade spelling, reading or arithmetic if that child can do well at things no more difficult. She encourages the child, helps him to succeed and helps him to celebrate successes.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

LESS WORK—MORE BEAUTY

By Madame Rubinstein

Modern times have made it a necessity for all women to be beautiful if they would be happy and get the most out of life. Formerly our grandmothers had so much physical work to do, in order to keep their homes in order, that they had no time for other interests.

Today science has stepped in to create a veritable Paradise for the housewife. Electrical appliances of every kind help to make existence simple for her—washing machines, vacuum cleaners, automatic refrigeration—all make housekeeping almost like child's play in many homes. As far as cooking is concerned, science has changed that, too. Baking the family bread is becoming more and more rare. Canned goods are available when necessary. Electric grills make the preparation of a meal a pleasure. Drudgery has been practically banished forever.

The average woman is virtually finished with her routine work at noon. It is then that she tries to decide what to do with the rest of her day. She looks about her and sees that many of her friends are out in the business world, or doing interesting social work. She finds these women young and attractive looking, and wonders why they have left her behind. When she talks to them they tell her that they have to be attractive in their appearance, that every woman today who wants to be a success in whatever she undertakes must look her best. Beauty has now become obligatory.

You surely have had the experience of finding women older than yourself who have somehow managed to preserve their youth better, who make it a point of looking chic at all times of the day. They have realized, and you must, too, that standards of beauty have changed. In the first place, beauty no longer means regularity of features. It means chic, charm, personality. These come with care. This care is available to every woman. Formerly only the rich could afford to take beauty treatments to preserve their youth and beauty. Today these treatments are available to everyone.

The World and All

By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

IN IRELAND

The beauty and quaintness of Ireland have not been exaggerated. It seems preposterous that jaunting cars should really run and constitute the chief means of passenger transportation in Cork, which is really just the other side of Sandy Hook, in a manner of speaking.

Of course, there are tram cars (which Americans call trolleys) in Cork. The hotels run horse-drawn busses to the railway stations and ship piers. But the jaunting cars, with their sturdy horses and their jolly drivers, dominate the transit situation. I ride about the town on one of these interesting carts. My jarvey, as the drivers are generally called, tells me all about everything we see, and asks concerning his relatives and friends in America. He is a bit puzzled when I confess that I have not met any of his people in New York.

Public notices are posted on large announcement boards fastened to the facades of the churches. Notices of elections, health regulations and quarantine rules for cattle are pasted upon these boards, rather detracting from the appearance of the churches, it seems to me.

All public notices, street signs and directional signs in public buildings are printed or painted in two languages, Irish and English. This is a part of the Irish nationalistic movement, and is similar to such manifestations of nationalism in every newly liberated country.

St. Patrick street, the principal business thoroughfare of Cork, is a noble avenue. One side of this street was wiped out during the burning of Cork by the black-and-tans a few years ago, and has been entirely rebuilt with modern, handsome business buildings of white stone and plate glass.

I visit the Ford tractor plant, on the River Lee, in Cork. Here the American manufacturer is making all the tractors he sells throughout the world. He has moved his tractor plant here from Dearborn, and has added much to it. At the present time he is employing 5,000 men here, and when the installation of machinery is completed he will employ nearly twice that many. The factory is a great thing for Cork and for Ireland. It introduces manufacturing on a large, American scale for the first time, and it employs many Irishmen at good wages.

The new Ireland is forging ahead.

Rarely Find Poison In Canned Products

The widely heralded organism which causes botulism poisoning is much more rare in canned fruits and vegetables than the publicity given such cases of poisoning would indicate, according to nutrition specialists at Michigan State college.

From 1900 to 1923, only 101 cases of this poisoning have been reported in the United States, so the danger from this poison is one of the least of the hazards of present-day life. If the organism which causes this poison has attained any considerable growth in canned goods, it can be detected by a characteristic odor resembling that of rancid butter.

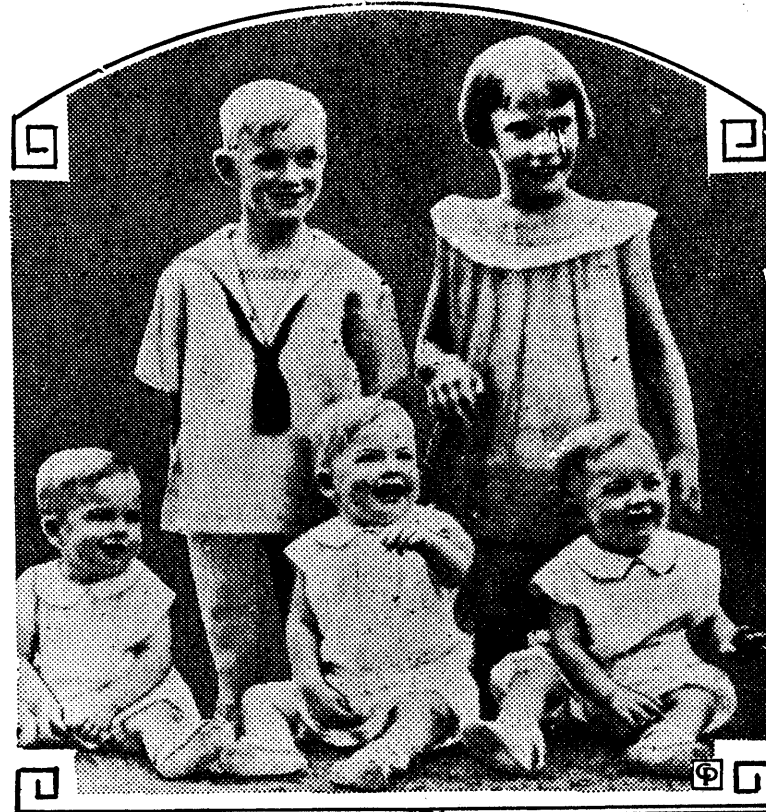

Another organism which spoils canned goods but does not cause poisoning can usually be controlled by complete sterilization of the can and its contents, complete sealing of the cans, and rapid cooling of the cans after their contents have been placed in them.

Corn, asparagus, spinach, pumpkin and sweet potatoes are most liable to be affected by the latter type of organism which causes what is called flat sours. High temperatures do not always destroy the spores of this organism, and care should be taken to seal the cans perfectly and to separate the cans so cooling will be as rapid as possible.

Bulged and swollen canned products are usually unfit for food. Gases formed by decomposition of the can's contents causes the distortion.

Missouri Triplets Win Prize

The triplet sons of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Stevens, farmers living near Sedalia, Mo., won the blue ribbon in statewide contest for the healthiest and prettiest triplets at the Missouri state fair. The babies are Harold, Howard and Herbert Hoover, and are 15 months old, having been born just after President Hoover received the Republican nomination in Kansas City. The Stevens have seven other children, including a pair of twins, George Ernest and Esther, five years old.

WEEK OF OCTOBER 13
Seasonal readings of the thermometer throughout the state of Michigan during the opening days of the week beginning October 13 will soon give way to much colder degrees.

For the first two or three days of this week the sky will be cloudy, the winds moderately strong and precipitation not overly heavy in any one large area.

During the last half of this week the weather will become more settled and clear with the temperatures low for the season, especially during the longer nights.

A sharp change to warmer will occur about Friday or Saturday ushering in summer rains and probable thunder storms.

Crop rotation is a very good plan by which the planted seed will gain the most nourishment from the chemical put or left in the soil by the last crop. At the same time no amount of nourishment will make a successful crop if the deather is against proper growth.

The best schedule to follow would make the big crop that which will best survive the weather of the coming growing season, planted and grown on land best suited to its needs in relation to the seasonal demands. Put in the balance of the land to other crops that might make a fair success with the proper attention that could be given the smaller acreage. This would also prepare land for the next year's main crop that would again be chosen from seasonal weather predictions, never losing sight of existing market conditions, of course.

Besides working with mother nature, this diversification of crops would be a method of getting rid of noxious insects, according to Prof. Charles T. Bruce of Harvard. This would be accomplished through not growing the same crop the second year, thus hindering insect enemies of the first crop from a chance to strengthen their hold on the farm and eventually threatening entire districts.

Vicks Now Passes 26 Million Yearly

More and More Millions Follow Trend of Modern Medicine and Treat Colds Externally

To keep pace with the ever-growing demand for Vicks VapoRub, the external treatment for colds, another increase is being made in the figure of the Vicks slogan, made famous when Vicks reached "17 Million Jars Used Yearly."

Only a short time ago, the well known "17 million" was raised to "21 Million." Again this figure has been outgrown, as more and more people turn to this better way of treating colds. There are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly" — a jar for every family in the United States.

A generation ago, when Vicks was originated, the idea of treating colds without "dosing" was almost unheard of. Today, the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

Mothers especially have appreciated this modern vaporizing ointment, because it checks colds without risk of upsetting children's delicate stomachs.

And so Vicks spread, until today it has become the family standby for colds—adults' as well as children's—in more than 60 countries.

OLD FOLKS SAY
WAS RIGHT

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice.

He treated constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a combination of senna and other mild herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle will last several months, and all can use it. It is pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. Elderly people find it ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

CHATTY CODDESS OF GAB

BEATRICE BURTON, Author of "HER MAN," "HONEY LOU," "SALLY'S SHOULDERS," "MONEY LOVE," "LOVE BOUND," ETC.

COPYRIGHT 1929, CENTRAL PRESS ASSN. INC., CLEVELAND, OHIO.

"Yes, and you have a busy tongue, too!" Mrs. Chatterton came back at her firmly. "You haven't forgotten the time at high school when the girls put you out of their secret society because you told everybody the secrets, have you? Now, Chatty, be sensible, and take this advice in the right spirit."

"Oh, to the dickens with the right spirit!" cried Chatty, and went out, slamming the door behind her.

On Easter Sunday morning the Chattertons had late breakfast in the Front Room.

The dresses that Mrs. Chatterton had been working on were hidden away in the closet, and Chatty put the cover on the sewing machine and pushed it into the corner.

The day was sunshiny and the table was pushed up beside the windows. The geraniums on the sills were in bloom, and the little room took on a gay holiday look.

Just as Chatty was bringing in the platter of omelet and the fat silver coffee pot that was a left-over from better days, the doorbell rang in the vestibule downstairs.

"It's the Van Nuys' big town car," Mrs. Chatterton said, leaning over in her chair to look down into Lipton street.

"Oh! Do you suppose they've come to tell me about the job?" Chatty's eyes were starry with excitement as she flew to let them in.

"No, we can't sit down," Mrs. Van Nuys said, when Pud brought two chairs for them into the middle of the room. "We're on our way to church—we just stopped in for a minute. This is for you, Harriett. Just a little remembrance for Easter."

She put a large square box into Mrs. Chatterton's lap, and then turned to Chatty.

"And Mr. Van Nuys says he has a place for you," she went on, her pink, good-natured face covered with the good and happy look of a person who is doing a kind deed and knows it.

"It's in our filing department," Mr. Van Nuys explained, heavily, looking very handsome and very grand, with a gardenia in his buttonhole and a silk hat in one hand. "Just the other day Miss Langenau, who looks after the files, asked me if she could have some one to help her out. I think you can do the work. You don't need any special training for it—just a few brains. And you'll soon learn to typewrite."

Chatty beamed her thanks at him. If he had given her a corner lot in the moon she couldn't have been much happier than she was about the wonderful position.

"It doesn't pay much, you understand," he told her, holding the door open for his wife, as he was leaving.

"That's all right—and I'll be down early tomorrow morning!" breathed Chatty, watching them do down the stairs to the car that was to take them to church. "And thank you—thank you—thank you—"

Long afterward she was to remember how kind they had been to her, and how much she had learned from them that morning. Long afterward, when she had repaid them for their kindness with unkindness and sorrow and disgrace.

The next morning at eight o'clock Chatty pushed open the doors of "The Van Nuys Company, Bonds and Investments," on the third floor of the slammed his door shut in Chatty's face.

and left her standing there helplessly. Once more she went into the main office and looked at all the words that were printed on the doors that opened from it—Client's Room—Manager's Room—Cloak Room—

"Cloak room, that's it!" And Chatty crossed the office and went in. Kinney building, and stepped inside.

There was no one in sight in the big bright offices, with their shining mahogany desks and their thick, brown velvet carpets.

She backed quickly out again, and rang the bell for the elevator. When it came up she asked the man who ran it where she would find a dressing room where she could leave her coat and hat.

"Van Nuys Company got one o' its own, somewhere in there," and the man waved a gloved hand in the general direction. There was no doubt that it was the

CHAPTER IV

The big, luxurious office was as thrilling as a three-ring circus to Chatty that morning.

She sat there in her corner, near the filing cabinets, and watched it fill up with the people who worked there.

They came in, one by one—smart girls in tiny hats and short skirts and silk stockings—good-looking young men in well-brushed suits and the stiffest of white collars.

"There's not a man in the place, though, who is half so good looking as the red-headed man!" Chatty decided, looking them all over with her quick, busy eyes.

His dark blue suit was no neater than any other suit in the office. His white collar was no whiter than the rest of the men's collars. But, somehow, he had a certain grace and a girls' dressing room.

"You understand that you're never to mention these names outside this office?" he asked her sharply.

For the long marble shelf that ran along above the six washbowls was covered with boxes of powder, with invisible hairpins and lipsticks—all the little things that girls use when they want to make themselves attractive.

Above the long marble shelf was a huge shining mirror. Ninety-nine girls out of a hundred would have stopped to look themselves over carefully in it.

But not Chatty! She passed a quick hand over her smooth hair, straightened the collar of her dress, and went back into the main office.

On the side of it that was nearest the front windows were three rows of steel files, painted olive green, and looking very businesslike.

"That's where I'll work, I suppose," said Chatty to herself, and crossed over to them. Most of them were locked... but as she tried them one after the other, she found one that was not. She pulled it open and looked to see what was inside.

"Why, how funny! Nothing but names and names of men!" she thought, running through the cards that were neatly stacked within the top drawer.

And then suddenly she gave a jump, and her heart seemed to stop beating. For someone had laid his hand on her shoulder, and was holding it tight in his fingers!

She swung around and looked at the red-headed man of the open roadster!

"Hey! What do you think you're doing here?" he asked gruffly. "Going through our files? How did you get in here, anyway? And who are you?"

"I walked in—and I'm going to work here!" Chatty told him, pulling herself away from him. "And what difference does it make if I look at a few old names, anyway. You'd think I was robbing a cash register or something—the way you spoke to me!"

"Those names are just as important to us as money, young lady!" he said. "They're the names of the people who buy bonds from us—and we never let anybody know who they are, or else we might lose their trade to some other company, see?"

He closed the file.

"Better leave it alone until Miss Langenau gets here," he added, sharply. "And you're never to mention those names outside this office. Just remember that, in case she forgets to tell you herself!"

"I will remember!" Chatty promised.

certain I-should-worry air that the others did not have.

"He's a regular headliner!" thought Chatty, who picked up Pud's slang every now and then, and used it.

At nine o'clock a pretty, brown-eyed girl came out of the cloakroom and walked straight up to Chatty. She was holding out her hand, and a smile of welcome shone in her eyes and lifted the corners of her lips.

"Good morning!" she said. "I just saw Mr. Van Nuys in the elevator, and he tells me I'm to have a new assistant. Are you Miss Chatterton?"

Chatty said she was.

"I'm Billie Langenau," the girl introduced herself. "Our job here is to keep the cards in the files in order—and all the letters and other papers, too. It's not hard work. I like it—I like it—and I know you will, too. Let's see, have you any paper cuffs to wear over your sleeves?"

Chatty did not have any. So Billie Langenau made her a pair out of some heavy brown paper and pinned them around Chatty's wrists.

"They'll save your dress," she said. "And I usually pin a piece of paper on the front of my blouse where it rubs the desk. You'll find that if you do it you'll be fresh and clean at the end of the day—just in case you're staying down town for dinner with the boy friend."

"With the boy friend?" Chatty repeated the words to herself. "I wonder what she'd say if she knew that I've never had a boy friend in all my life? She'd never believe it, of course."

Needless Pain!

Some folks take pain for granted.

They let a cold "run its course."

They wait for their headaches to "wear off."

If suffering from neuralgia or from neuritis, they rely on feeling better in the morning.

Meantime, they suffer unnecessary pain. Unnecessary, because there is an antidote. Bayer Aspirin always offers immediate relief from various aches and pains we once had to endure. If pain persists, consult your doctor as to its cause.

Save yourself a lot of pain and discomfort through the many uses of Bayer Aspirin. Protect yourself by buying the genuine. Bayer is safe. Always the same. All drugstores.

PUT ON YOUR LIME THIS FALL

It is too late to sow alfalfa and many have failed to get their seed in the ground. Sow your lime NOW and work it in and let the winter rain and snow mix it with the soil. Then you are ready to plant the alfalfa seed in June. TWO CARS JUST RECEIVED.

The late Jason Woodman of Paw Paw, than whom there was no better alfalfa grower, recommended that all alfalfa be planted in June as he said that if the ground was ready and clean, there was always at least one rain in June when planting could be done.

Why not try it?

Special fall price on 166 test Hydrated Lime is $11 per ton.

We have bought heavily of Kendall, Mich.

This is the Time of year when you like to think of a nice warm fire when you get up in the morning. Are you ready for the cold weather that will soon be here? Get your old stove repaired or a new one in its place. A good stove saves fuel and doctor's bills.

We can get repairs for any make of stove--order them now as the foundries are busy and it takes a few days to fill an order.

We have in stock circulating heaters that are a beautiful piece of furniture and have no equal for service; the name "Round Oak" insures you of quality merchandise. We are showing them to you at a price that will compare favorably with many heaters of an inferior make. Look them over before buying.

Have You Looked Over That Roof This Fall?

Get ready for the rainy weather that is bound to come and come in and get our prices on a real roof-material. We'll quote you a cash sale price that is a money saver to you. Don't neglect it.
