Monster Cake Baked to Order of Polish King

Advertisers

A remarkable performance by a bakery in 1730 is exhibited by an old drawing of that time. It was the baking, for the king of Poland, of an immense cake or loaf, by the master baker Zacharius of Dresden, in an oven at Zeithain. It required 1,800 quarts of wheat flour, one and a half barrels of yeast, 326 quarts of milk, 3,-600 eggs and three pounds of nutniegs, The cake, which was about 36 feet long and 16 feet wide, was kneaded on a huge sliding draw plate, which was rolled into the oven by chains. The oven, which was of tremendous size for those times, was heated from underneath and had 12 chimneys.

When the cake was baked it was olled out of the oven, loaded onto a long wagon and hauled by eight horses from the bakery at Zeithain to the headquarters of the review at Radewitz. The special knife used for cutting it was 20 feet long.

Cow's Ability to Jump

Heralded as Discovery A discovery was recently made by a regular contributor to a famous London daily paper. A discovery that is really old news to every farmer. He has found out that "cows can jump. "I wonder how many people realize," he writes, "that cows, in spite of their ungainly shape, ean jump almost as well as horses? I had evidence of this the other afternoon, when I saw a herd of ten or fifteen cows, evidently just escaped from their pastures, come stampeding across a field of young corn. A heated and furious cowhere shouting and waving of arms turned them toward the hedge that bordered the field. As the cows reached it they rose in turn and jumped, taking it as neatly as a hunter. Everyone landed safely, and trotted away to finish her neglected meal." How wonderful!-Exchange.

"Waste o' Siller!"

A heavy gale was blowing and the steamer was making very heavy weather of it. After a huge sea had swept the deck, a Scottish passenge went up to one of the officers and asked him if he really thought the ship was going to sink.

"I hope not!" said the officer, "but surely an old man like you is not afraid to die?"

"It's no that exactly," said the pas senger, "but ye see I just purchased a plot o' ground in ma local cemetery an' it seems to me as if it's going to be a terrible waste o' siller!"-Detroit

Dog's Double Life

An interesting trait is the Jekyll and Hyde existence led by many sheepdogs, always regarded by us as gentle, man-serving creatures, when they take to sheep killing, develop a cunning so extraordinary that they remain by day the perfectly faithful servants of their masters, carefulshepherding his flocks? yet, at nightfall, they transform themselves into villains and steal forth to murder their victims, returning before dawń. Strange to say, a "killer" dog, never slaughters sheep of his own flock. He always ravages the neighbors'.

Ingenious Romans

When Rome was besieged in 536 A. D. by the Goths, the fourteen viaducts which supplied the city with wa ter were cut off. Because of the proximity of the river Tiber the danger of a water famine was not so perilous as that of food, since the mills that ground grain were operated by water wheels. To overcome this danger mills were placed between two rafts se curely fastened in the river. The wa ter flowing in the space between the two rafts operated the mill grinding

First Movies

It is said that the first motion pic tures were received in New York with very little enthusiasm. They were presented in 1896 at Koster and Bial's Music hall on Sixth avenue. The audience was apparently under the impression that they were a trick advance of some kind in shadowgraphy. which was then very popular. The first movie audience was even more critical than a modern first night crowd and did not even deign to applaud.

Chicago Stock Show

When the International Live Stock Exposition opens at Chicago the last of this month, a new high mark for the number of animals on exhibit will be established, announces B. H. Heide, secretary of this world's largest agricultural show.

Over 12,000 head of the choicest live stock-horses, cattle, sheep and swinewhich the world produces, will be on view. Opening at the Chicago Stock Yard on November 30, the first Saturday following Thanksgiving, the exposition will be in progress until December 7

Entries were received in the cattle department in such number and representative of such quality that the management predicts with surety the largest and most impressive exhibit of cattle ever seen at the International. Sheep, swine and horses maintain their high totals estab ished at the 1928 exposition. An astounding growth, practically 100 per cent, in the number of farm boys and girls showing livestock, will be witnessed in the coming event.

Some idea of the truly international scope of this exposition and the far distances from which contestants travel to participate is obtained upon glancing at preliminary exhibitor list, Shorthorn breed as an example. Nominations from Massachusetts will meet those from California, and several of Ontario's oremost "red, white and roan" heads will be matched with those of Texas. Similar. y with the Herefords, herds will assemble at Chicago on this occasion from such separate points of the compass as Alberta Oklahoma. West Virginia and California as well as many other states.

FAME OF NEW VEGETABLE IS WORLD-WIDE

The fame of Dr. William Hansen's Swedish peas has spread around the world, judging by the correspondence of protein which it contains. Samples he has received during the last six examined at the college show that the Discoverey of the new pea was announced last May simultaneous with the distribution of nine bushels of seed are the maturity of the plant when among Western Michigan farmers for cut and the number of leaves remainincrease. The exceptional merits of the variety were explained in the original announcement and almost immediately a world-wide demand for the seed developed.

The agricultural departments of governments in South America, Europe and Asia have written Dr. Hansen offering to pay "any reasonable price" for a few of the peas for experimental purposes under their soil and climatic conditions. The California agricultural experiment station begged Hansen to let it have just 12 peas.

The United States Department of Agriculture was among the long list of correspondents seeking a few peas for experimental purposes.

Dr. Hansen first discovered the peas in two quarts of Swedish vetch seed which he purchased six years ago.

His attention was attracted to the pecular shape and color of the peas. Out of curiosity he planted the three peas just to see what they would develop into. The peas grew as no other peas have been known to grow. The vines run for six to 12 feet on the ground. Each vine was heavily loaded with seed pods yielding seed at the rate of 10 to 30 bushels per acre.

Examination of the roots disclosed nitrogen bearing nodules. At maturity it was observed that the vines seemed to rot off at the surface making it possible to harvest the peas with a hayrake without cutting, thus leaving the roots and their loads of nodules in the ground to enrich the humus. W. C. Cribbs, of Stanton, regional extension specialist of Michigan State College, recognized the merits of the pea and sent a sample to Michigan State experiment station for testing.

In the announcement last May it was stated that the nodules on the roots grew to the size of a 10-cent piece. One correspondent questioned the accuracy of this and other statements about the pea. He wrote Mr. Cribbs for confirmation of the report. Cribbs replied that everything in the first announcement was substantially correct with one exception. Instead of the nitrogen nodules being as large as a 10-cent piece, Cribbs informed him they were about the size of a hazel nut.

Most Michigan farmers are well pleased when they are able to market 20 good pigs a year but Karl Smith, Cassopolis plans to increase the numcan beat his record for this year when he sold 297 pigs which weighed 172 pounds at six month of age and retained 60 good gilts.

Mr. Smith raised these pigs from 44 brood sows so the average litter size was 8.1. The pigs were farrowed in late February and early March, and they were sold September 13.

The pigs were started on midlings and corn, which was fed in a creep feeder, when they were from two to three weeks old, and they were immunized against hog cholera when four and five weeks old.

At'10 weeks, the pigs were weaned and were fed a ration of corn, middlings, and tankage. Clean alfalfa pasture was used after the pigs were two months old. Salt was kept before the pigs at all times but no other mineral was fed.

Forests Planted

Seven thousand acres of state forests are being planted this fall with about 4,000,000 White, Norway and Jack Pines, by the department of conservation.

Planting, now in progress, will continue as long as the weather permits. The 4,000,000 trees are being planted in eight state forests: Fife Lake, and Presque Isle. Some of the plantings are "clear," that is, all of one species in a particubinations of two species, depending upon the growth already on the plot, and soil conditions.

During the spring planting period of this year, the forestry division planted 5,157,600 trees on 8,596 acres of state forests.

When the year 1929 closes the department will have a record of having planted in state forests, 71,555,100 trees. These trees were planted on 69,851 acres, of which 15,596 acres were planted within the last year.

"Which breed for ontinues to be asked

Now laying contests have esta ed it as a fact that no one breed can ay claim to the title of best. More White Leghorns have made high records in contests than any other one breed, but more of them have been entered in contests, than of any other breed. They have one thing in their favor over other breeds in that way; they have been persistently bred for egg production longer than any other breed. Now the heavy breeds are showing that with such selective breeding, they can lay as many eggs in a year as Leghorns. So there just isn't any such thing as a universally best breed. One breed may be better adapted to a certain set of conditions than another, and that should influence one's choosing; otherwise the breed that appeals most to you is the best breed for you.

M. S. C. FINDS WHY HENS WASTE AWAY

Another agricultural mystery has been solved by Michigan State colleges. Its bacteriologists have determined what causes hundreds and thousands of chickens and hens annually

These fowls are victim of Bang's disease, it has been determined in experiments at the college. This malady progresses in poultry much the same ber of brood sows on his farm so he hens ever recover after becoming as it does in cattle and swine. Few infected.

Poultrymen and scientists long have been puzzled over the cause of hens wasting away. Post-mortem examinations failed to disclose the slighest trace of avain tuberculosis. In many cases no worms were found in the intestines. Other internal symptoms pointing to the cause of death were lacking.

These mysterious circumstances aused Dr. H. H. Stafseth, poultry disease specialists and M. W. Emmel, bacteriologist, to make a thorough study of infected birds. Their observations resulted in determining the cause of death.

The course of Bang's disease among owls was found to be variable. Death usually followed within 18 to 96 days. Diarrhea, paling of the comb and head, and gradual loss of weight were among the first symptoms in infected birds. Many birds were paralyzed before death. Egg production ceased soon after the hens became infected.

Birds experimentally infected soon went off egg production," Emmel reported. "Although death did not folow in all cases, recovery was very slow and as long as six months elapsed before the birds returned to production."

Most fowls in the experiment were artificially infected with the disease, but the bacteriologists found four flocks were natural carriers.

Scientists at the college are hopeful that a new virulent vaccine prepared by the bacteriology department will effectively control the disease in cattle and swine, and perhaps poultry, too. Tests have shown the vaccine tends to give treated animals a remarkable degree of immunity. Herds known to be infected will be used in testing the effectiveness of the vac-

Jackson Gets Highest Tax Rate in History

A tentative budget prepared by City Manager Walton B. Hodges, presented to the Jackson city commission, calls for a levy of approximately $900,000, which would mean a tax rate of $10, the city's limit. The 1929 tax rate was $9.48. The total appropriation for the 1930 budget is $1,003,176, of which $103,000 is to be raised from revenue sources.

New expense items include $32,000 for a new fire alarm headquarters station. $9.428 for new street lights in the downtown area, and $6,000 for a forestry department. Salaries of Chief of Police Charles Phelps and Fire Chief Clyde Pritchard are each increased $500 to $3,500.

The city commission will report on the completed budget before Dec. 15.

$300,000 TO STATE

Collections from the malt tax during the first two months it has been in force approximates $300,000, Sidney E. Schulte, deputy secretary of state, announced recently. Michigan passed a malt levy at the 1929 session of its legislature, the law becoming effective Sept. 1.

The tax is on malt syrup or extract and on the solid malt solid content in wort, and varies according to the size of the container and weight. The tax is approximately 5 cents per pound, so that some 6,000,000 pounds of malt were produced and taxed.

Malt used by bakeries and certain other commercial purposes is exempt from the tax. The state collects its revenue from the sale of tax stamps, which are applied to all containers.

An Ailing CHILD

Are you prepared to render first aid and quick comfort the moment your youngster has an upset of any sort? Could you do the right thing—immediately though the emergency came without warning-perhaps tonight? Castoria is a mother's standby at such times. There is nothing like it in emergencies, and nothing better for everyday use. For a sudden attack of colic, or the gentle relief of constipation; to allay a feverish condition, or to soothe a fretful baby that can't sleep. This pure vegetable preparation is always ready to ease an ailing youngster. It is just as harmless as the recipe on the wrapper reads. If you see Chas. Fletcher's signature, it is genuine Castoria. It is harmless to the smallest infant; doctors will tell you so.

You can tell from the recipe on the wrapper how mild it is, and how good for little systems. But continue with Castoria until a child is grown.

Michigan Auditor to List Lands Taken By State for Taxes

A. description of lands which have reverted to the state due to tax delinquency, is being prepared by Auditor General O. B. Fuller at the request of the state conservation commission.

Authority to dispose of all lands which come to the state after being tax delinquent for a period of five years or more is claimed by the conservation commission.

In cases where lands have been sold by the auditor general the title to such lands is clouded, Wilbur M. Brucker, attorney general, recently ruled in an informal opinion. Members of the commission said that Mr. Fuller had sold lands which the commission later bought back to fill out a game preserve, a state forest or for use for other purposes.

Although Mr. Fuller is reluctant to turn all lands over to the conservation commission, he said that he would abide by the decision of the attorney general, although he considers the law C. of C. at Albion a bad one. He points out that thousands of acres of land have already been turned over to the commission which have not been set aside for any purpose. He believes that as much of counties, he points out, are poor be-The commission recently rescinded its action of last month by withdrawing from exchange state lands located in the Turtle Lake region lying in the counties of Montmorency, Alpena, Alcona and Oscoda.

Large private hunting clubs own thousands of acres of land in this region, including the Turtle Lake club with more than 26,000 acres of hunting land. Fifty or more small pieces of state land are mixed with the privately owned properties, which the private land owners seek to gather in.

The commission decided that the small tracts should be held as public hunting grounds, although it admits game wardens experience great difficulty enforcing the game laws on these lands, some of which are entirely surrounded by privately owned prop-

Three Deer First Animals For New Greenville Park

A first step in the establishing of a city park and game preserve in Greenville was made when three deer were brought to Greenville and placed in winter quarters at the water works plant. They will be cared for in the winter by employes at the water works and in the spring a permanent park will be located somewhere in the city, where the deer as well as other wild animals, which shall be added from time to time, may be kept.

St. Clair Would Bar Hunting on Sundays

An ordinance to prevent Sunday hunting in St. Clair county is to be drawn up by Jesse P. Wolcott, prosecuting attorney, and will be submitted to Governor Green, according to instruction of the board of supervisors. If the governor vetoes the measure the board of supervisors can pass it by a two-thirds vote.

STATE PRODUCTS TO EXCEED 5 BILLIONS

Manufactured products of Michigan during 1929 will aggregate $5,000,-000,000 in value, according to a Detroit board of commerce estimate. The state will purchase raw materials and semi-finished products from other states to the value of $3,000,000,000.

The state's industrial pay roll is expected to exceed $810,000,000 with Detroit workers drawing a total of $560,000,000.

Postal Workers Required To Pay Fee Promptly

Postal employes are required by law of premiums on surety bonds, and cor- | way. respondence of postmasters on such matters may be carried on in official Glider Club Formed penalty envelopes, according to a memorandum signed by the First Assistant Postmaster General Arch Coleman, and just made public by the postoffice department. The memorandum in full text follows:

It is the duty of every postmaster to see that all employes are properly bonded in accordance with their financial responsibility and that they pay their annual premiums when due. Postmasters must also answer promptly inquiries addressed to them from oonding companies in regard to their liability. A penalty envelope should be used by the postmaster in writing an official letter of this kind.

Would Rename Camp In Memory of Leader

Suggestion that the name of the Community Camp association, owners of the property occupied by the Boy Scout camp, be changed to honor the memory of the late Clarence L. Greilick, has been made to the association by the Traverse City Rotary Club.

The name suggested is Camp Greilick, or Greilick Wood.

Mr. Greilick was one of the founders of the Traverse City Rotary. He was one of the first presidents in Traverse City and served several terms as a director. The Boy Scout group was organized largely through the efforts of Mr. Greilick. It was his enthusiasm that resulted in construction of permanent buildings at the camp site, and acquisition of a large tract of land for that purpose. Reforestation of that area was carried on and directed by him.

The Rotary club has decided to erect a memorial, in the form of a tablet, a monument, or a suitable marker, probably at the entrance to the park property.

"Mechanical Pilot" ORE SHIPMENTS

The U.S. War Department has pronounced as successful the automatic pilot for airplanes, an ingenious device which provides untiring metallic arms at the controls. This device was developed by Elmer Sperry of the Sperry Company, and William B. Mayo, chief engineer of the Ford Motor Company. Recent tests of the device were conducted in an army Ford transport plane. On one flight from Dayton to Detroit, the mechanical pilot required only two adjustments in course direction and these were made necessary by changing wind condi-

The new model actuates the three major controls of an airplane, the rudder for direction, the elevator for upward and downward movement, and the aileron for keeping the airplane on an even keel. One vertically mounted gyroscope and one horizontally mounted gyroscope, the armatures of which are electrically driven at 15,000 R. P. M., are used. The power is provided by wind driven generators. The gyroscopes maintain certain definite positions, regardless of the motion of the airplane itself.

The purpose of the automatic pilot is merely to control an airplane in straight and level flight, and to hold it on a given course. The take-offs and landings in the present stage of development must be by a trained pilot. As changes in the direction of the wind are encountered the compass course must be changed accordingly, in order to maintain a true course between two given points.

Stage Workers' Union Bans City Auditorium

Employment of non-union stage workers at the Prudden auditorium, operated by the city of Lansing, has aroused the ire of the Lansing unit of the International Alliance of Theatri-cal Stage Employes and Moving Pic ture Operators.

Another auditorium placed in the unfair list by the stage union is the Eastern high school, which employs high school students to shift its scenery, contrary to the rules of the theatrical alliance.

No effort will be made, it is said, to remove the ban at the Eastern high, but negotiations are under way for a new contract between municipal authorities and the stage union which will erase the name of Prudden auditorium from the alliance blacklist.

Shipments of iron ore through the locks at Sault Ste. Marie reached 70,-000,000 tons in 1929, the greatest tonnage in history, it was announced recently by the U.S. engineering office The total iron ore shipments to November 1 were 70,457,113 tons. The best previous season was in 1916, when 63,370,264 tons were carried for a season's record. In 1928 the total ore movement was 53,321,452 tons and in 1927 the ore movement totaled 50,098,068 tons. With another month or more to go the 1929 season will see two or three million more tons of ore added to the year's total.

Last month 11,213,495 tons of freight passed through the locks. Of this 8,061,625 tons were iron ore. Freight shipments through the locks to November 1 total 85,188,109 tons, as compared with 75,273,228 for the corresponding month last year. The total freight last year was 86,992,997 tons. Wheat movement remained in slump, only 35,254,461 bushels passing the locks, as compared with 79,-677,338 bushels in October last year.

why smokers graduate to

CAMELS-

The phrase "I've Graduated to Camels" originated with a Camel smoker. It expresses the experience of millions who through Camels have learned to know real smoking pleasure.

As taste in smoking develops, it naturally leads toward better quality. New smokers may not be critical but when they once experience the true mildness and surpassing fragrance of the Camel blend, they realize that here is a real superiority. It is for smokers of such discernment that Camels are made . . . for them the choicest tobaccos are selected . . . and this quality is maintained for the millions who know genuine smoking pleasure.

Let Us Install a Telephone

ALBERT J. FOELSCH, M.D. Rickshaw Drawing Not

Hanvy Physical Labor Adolph Paster, director of the physiological institute of the Sun Yat Sen university in Canton, China, recently made some interacting observations on the rate of work performed by a coolie drawing a rickshaw. This form of running is seculiar in that the force exerted is practically all forward. The arms are held by the shafts of the vehicle, and since the vehicle's center of gravity is over the axle, the coolie does not have to exert any upward force. The work he does is consequently the same as if he were pulling a weight by a cord running over a pulley.

It was found that the rickshaw coolie ran from four to six miles an hour, consuming during fast locomotion about one-tenth of a horse power—the same, that is, as if he were drawing five and a half pounds one foot in each second. This is over and above the amount of work the coolie would do while running at the same pace without pulling the loaded vehicle. The expenditure of energy is much less than that of the oarsmen in a university boat race.

Italians Lay Claim to

First Spectacle Maker It is a little over three hundred years ago since the Worshipful Company of Speciacle Makers received its charter from Charles I and the tercentenary is soon to be commemorated. But is it quite correct to speak of it as being the tercentenary of spectacles? Among the lesser sights of Florence is a house which bears a tablet affixed "to honor the memory of Salvino Degli Armati, inventor of spectacles in the Thirteenth century.' Strangely enough, although our own spectacle makers' guild had its charter in 1629, we find Pepys, nearly forty years afterward, complaining of his eyesight. He adds: "I am mighty hot upon trying the late experiment of paper tubes." If the Italian claim is authentic, it seems inconceivable that the boon of spectacles should have taken another three centuries to reach us.-Montreal Family Her-

The Parent Problem By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D. "My doctor told me to give my baby od liver oil once a day."

"Yes, my doctor gave the same advice to me about my girl of two, but she just won't take it."

And so one constantly hears similar accounts of mothers. How absurd! I know of two boys, eight and ten, who quarrel over who is to get the largest spoonful of cod liver oil. My own lad of seven often smacks his lips with "Good" after he has had his daily portion of this precious food.

Parents who begin early with the infant meet no difficulty, except when they or some other member of the family offer bad suggestions.

First we need to learn self-control so as to avoid being such a nuisance. We, therefore, will not let ourselves do these foolish things. If necessary we shall learn to take cod liver oil without ado ourselves. We can learn to do almost anything we must do for the sake of the child whose destiny is almost wholly in our hands.

Although it may seem more economical to buy cod liver oil by the gallon or the guart, to do so is not practical. It may deteriorate and grow rancid. Better get it in small bottles and keep it fresh and cool. Any oil seems to you and me more distasteful when it is warm than when it is cool.

Over-eager mothers who do not keep in close touch with their physician may give the child much more cod liver oil at a time than necessary, and too often.

liver oil, and who seriously objects to taking it. How shall you proceed? If you disguise it in orange juice or other necessary food you may succeed temporarily, only to make matters worse, to teach the child forever to dislike the food in which the cod liver oil has been disguised.

A better way may be to persuade the child to take it from a spoon, offering him as the first morsel but a few drops to be increased gradually in amount at later times. It ought to be cool and fresh for such attempts. An effectual word of praise, a star, a more substantial reward, may bring success.

First offer it to the child under he most favorable conditions. If your inducement does not work and he refuses, cease your efforts then. move it out of sight and say nothing. At a later time in the day have a good assistant available. Pour a small portion in the spoon, out of the child's sight; then as the assistant, gently, but firmly, seizes the child and prevents his struggles, put it into him as skillfully and quickly as possible.

Incidentally, attract the child's attention to something he will respond to, but be sure not to give him a lecture on the value of cod liver oil or how he should do what you want him to do. Say nothing. Do nothing. WEEK OF DECEMBER 1

High west to northwest winds will blow away the storm area forecast for the tail end of last week so that the opening days of the week of December 1st will be mostly fair and cold.

About Monday or Tuesday, however, there will be a more or less sharp reaction to warmer with temperatures reaching slightly above the 50-degree mark. With this change there will come increasing cloudiness and some moderate precipitation.

By the middle of the week tempera-tures will be falling to readings slightly below the seasonal average and by Thursday the skies will again be clearing. This will mean that the last days of the week will be generally fair, sunshiny and the temperatures quite normal.

Tropical Hurricane in Michigan the carferry Milwaukee and the heavy rains that damaged fruit trees and rains that damaged fruit trees and other crops in Michigan during the first week of October 20th was correctly forecast in this column. It was written nearly two months in advance of the actual happening. The weather bureau failed to put up storm warnings along the Great Lakes until late Monday.

From our chart system of forecasting weather we can plainly see this particular storm appearing over the north Pacific coast on October 17th and moving slowly eastward.

There were hurricane characteristics in this storm center as it was coming northwest from Georgia made possible, we believe, by the transfusion of the tropical storm which met the northern storm off the Florida coast.

The storm center remained in Michigan nearly 48 hours at hurricane barometric intensity, the longest period for any one state during its nine days travel in the United States.

Now Millions More Stop "Dosing" Colds

Better External Treatment Wins New Users All Over the World

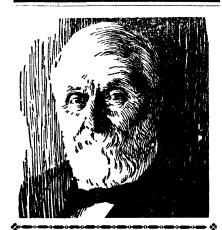

Every year since the introduction of Vicks VapoRub, more and more people have given up the old-fash-ioned way of "dosing" colds and turned to this modern external method. Today, the whole trend of medical practice is away from need-less "dosing"

less "dosing."

Mothers of young children especially appreciate Vicks because there's nothing to swallow, and, of course, nothing to upset delicate stomachs. Just rubbed on, its medicated vapors are released by the heat of the body and inhaled direct to the inflamed air-passages. At the same time Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice or plaster, "drawing out" tightness and soreness.
Year by year, the fame of Vicks has spread from neighbor to neighbor and from state to state, until now it is used for the colds of adults as well as children in over 60 coun-

The ever-growing demand for this modern method of treating colds is shown in the familiar Vick slogan. Made famous when Vicks reached "17 Million Jars Used Yearly," later raised to "21 Million," these figures are again being changed, as there are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly"-in the United States alone.

DR. CALDWELL'S THREE RULES

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not habit forming.

The Doctor never did approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe were good for human beings to put into their system. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. she had been all sweetness and brightness and goodness. . . . For it is so easy to be good when you are happy! But now, as she sat at her table in the "Brown Betty" tearoom, with her

It dripped into her mind and heart like poison into a shining white cup.
"The nasty vamp!" she said to herself, watching Agnes lean across the little table where she sat with Dave, and smile up at him. "I'll bet she asked him to take her to lunch! I'll

"No—I guess I dont want any lunch after all!" Chatty told her, pushing her chair back from the table. "I thought I did—but I'm not hungry. I don't feel well—"

That was the truth. She was sick all at once—actually sick with jeal-ousy. Her head had begun to ache, and she felt as if she would burst if she couldn't have a good long cry all by herself, somewhere.

She went upstairs and spent the rest of her lunch hour sitting idly at her typewriter, staring at the opposite wall and feeling unhappy and bad tem-

'Last night I let him kiss me!" she scolded herself for her weakness.
"And today he gives me the go-by to take that dumb cluck of an Agnes out to lunch. What CAN he see in her?"
When Winnie Talcott came along on her way to the record room a few minutes later she greeted her with the question:

"Win," she said, "come here and tell me what all the men see in Agnes Herford. You know her a lot better than I do. . . . What's so fascinating about her?" Winnie, all black taffeta, flounces and jasmine perfume and frizzled hair, shrugged her pretty shoulders.

"I dont know. Maybe some men like 'em that way—refined!" She pronounced it RE-fined. "Why? Who's fallen for her now?"

"Dave Jordan's taken her to lunch," said Chatty, trying to keep her misery out of her voice.

But there was no use in trying to keep anything from Winnie Talcott!
She was one of those naturally sharp-eyed people who miss nothing.

"Well, dearie, if that's the way you feel about Davy, you'd better snap out of the dumps and work on him a little yourself!" she answered smartly. "And listen—any girl can get any man she wants if she only goes about it in the right way. If Davy likes the Poifick Lady type like Agnes, be that type for him! That's my Beatrice Fairfac answer to you!"

Chatty nodded. That sounded like pretty good advice, she thought.

"I've always hated that moon-faced Agnes from the moment I first set eyes on her!" she said, hotly, her eyes narrowing and her lips tightening into a thin, straight line. "And last night she saw what a fuss he made over me, so now she's trying to get him away from me! Well, all I have to say is that she'd better watch her step when she starts anything with me! My she starts anything with me! My mother and Mr. Van's wife are the greatest friends in the world. And I think Mrs. Van would thank me for telling her what I COULD tell her about Mr. Van and Agnes Herford!"

Her face glowed with a white-hot flame of anger.

She was still boiling with fury an hour later, when the door of the files room was pushed open, and Dave Jordan, himself, stood in the opening. She saw him from the corner of her eye, but sne und Billie spoke to him.

"No, thanks," and he shook his red head. "I just came in to speak to— to Miss Chatterton." He came into the room and slung one of his long legs over the corner of Chatty's desk.
"I wanted to take you to lunch today—but I couldn't make it," he said to her, in a low tone. "And I'm going to be tied up evenings all this week with one bother and another-but on Sunday couldn't we go out and spend the day in the country with George and Billie? Take our bathing suits along in case we found a place to swim? And broil steaks or something? Wouldn't you like that?" Chatty shook her head. "I'm not going to be anybody's 'side sweetie'," she told him, bluntly, giving him one straight look. "If you and I were just friends, I would. But you've made me like you a lot better than I should like you. And I'd rather not see you at all than be with you once or twice a week and know you were out with other girls the rest of the time.... No THANK you!"

He got off the desk and stood up, looking down at her. "I'll be back at half-past five. I'm going to drive you home," he said, "and talk you out of this! What makes you think I spend all my spare time running after girls? Where did you get such an idea?"

"Oh, that's just some more of my own business," Chatty told him calm-ly. "And there's no use in trying to talk me into going with you on Sunday, because I'm NOT going!"

But towards the middle of the afternoon she asked Billie if she could have a half hour to herself.

At six o'clock Chatty was awake. She lay in bed for a minute or two, blinking at the sunshine that came pouring in through the open windows the bedroom and smiling at the dark blue Swiss dress, crisp and fresh on its hanger just inside the closet

By eight o'clock she had finished packing the lunch of fried chicken and packing the lunch of fried chicken and deviled eggs and chocolate layer cake that she had made the night before inner ne gave her a quick smile. Chatty stopped short in the middle of what she was telling him about Billie Langenau's marriage. She could not even be sure that he had heard her.

For he was passing a gasoline truck on the left side of the road with great style and speed, and he did not even turn to look at her until they were ahead of it.

And she touched Chatty's chin with the glass stopper of her perfume bottle, and fastened her own string of little pearls around her smooth young neck.

"Now you're a dream!" she declared. "And if Sara would only say that she'd go along with us I wouldn't have a worry in the world.

But Sara shook her rather plain-looking head with great firmness. "No, indeedy!" she said. "I'm not going along as the spare tire on any-body's picnic. You all pile into George's car. It'll be crowded as it is—and I'll be perfectly at home with my magaziens, all day.' But they did not crowd into George's small closed car.

For Dave Jordan came in his own open-faced, snub-nosed" one that he called The Pride of America, and he had it all planned that he and Chatty should ride in it alone.

"George and Billie will have a much better time by themselves," he said cheerfully to Sara, who did not like to have Billie and George left to them-selves very often. "And we can all meet out on the Old Mill road where the Turnpike crosses it."

"I don't believe they're so crazy to be just by themselves," Chatty said to him when they had started away from the Lipton street apartment house, and were running smoothly along through the sunny, clean streets towards the outskirts of the town. "Billie and George are just awfully good friends."

Dave Jordan laughed. "Old George is off his balance about her and don't —that if a man is very nice, and lots you ever let anybody tell you anything of fun to be with—well, do you think different," he said, rounding a corner with great speed and expertness. "Didn't I do that neatly, for a wonder? No, nobody can tell me anything about the way Old George feels about Billie. You see, we have a flat with two other fellows, and we room to-gether—George and I. And two fel-lows get to know all about each other, living in close quarters like that... He'd marry her tomorrow if he could! But she keeps him at arm's length—"

"Well, of course, she does. But she has to, doesn't she?" asked Chatty. "When she's still married—"

She stopped abruptly, and clapped a hand over her mouth. . . What on earth was she doing? Telling the one "I want to do some shopping," she earth was she doing? Telling the one said. "Dave Jordan has an idea that thing that Billie had begged her never bonds, I'm going to surprise myself and buy a new car."

Chatty nodded, smoothing down the dark blue folds of her dress, as they billowed in the wind. "Billie told me that you boys who sell bonds can't afford many care and each bonds that ford many cars and such luxuries the For Billie had the gift of "style."

She could pull a dress about until it had just the right lines. She could push in a hairpin there and tuck in a stray lock there with the expert of people who buy bonds from you and the subject so easily. > "Billie says that if-well, if George Mayhew wanted to get married, for instance, he'd have to marry a girl with lots of money or else his wife would have to work to keep up their home,' she said firmly.

> But just as firmly Dave Jordan said: "No, that's not true."

"Billie's mistaken about that," went on, shaking his red head that seemed redder than usual in the brilliant sunshine. "George is making plenty of money right now to keep up a home. It wouldn't be exactly a palace, of course, any more than any parace, or course, any more than any Oakland, Calif.

"Any girl would be glad to marry YOU, I should think—even if she had to live in one room in a basement!" Chatty could have bitten off her tongue the instant the words were out of her mouth.

She blushed deeply, and hurried to say something more: "What I mean is all girls are crazy about money? Do you think girls ever really marry for money?"

He nodded. "Sure—I know they do," he said gravely. "I've known a certain girl for a long time, and she told me the other day that she wouldn't think of getting married unless the man in the case was making ten thousand dollars a year. And she

"O—o—"Chatty's voice was very small and soft.

Something told her that the girl who wouldn't think of marrying a man unless he was making ten thousand a year was the girl she had seen with Dave Jordan on Easter Saturday morning going into Tallman's flower you and George and I ought to go on to mention to a living soul! STOP PLAYING NURSE TO A SICKLY FIRE

Kentucky Blue Bell Coal

A simple test will convince you of its superior burning quality. Take a lump in your hand, notice its glass like texture. Now hold a match to it, soon you will see it burning easily-ignited from a single match. Heat-its intense heat will begin to come from this famous Blue Belle Kentucky Coal and will continue to come for hours until nothing is left but a few fluffy ashes. A sure sign of good burn-

Either take home a load or let us send you out a load of this Kentucky Blue Bell coal. Then your fuel troubles will be all over and you will be "sitting on top of the world" this winter on heat.

"But Some Are Insulted"

"It is an honor to receive a bill. Instead of getting riled up when the mai brings you a statement of account, you should be genuinely pleased For a bill is an indication that someone has faith in your honesty. A bill indicates that some one who knows you depends upon your honor to keep the word you pledged when you received the services or the goods which he furnished.

"If you never receive a bill, it would indicate that your credit was worthless, that no person trusted you, that you were held in such poor esteem by those who knew you, that none had ever been willing to take your word that you will pay. "Credit is the most precious thing you have. Money can be had by various means, but credit comes only from years of honesty and prompt meeting of bills when they are due. "When you pay a bill you are merely being honest, Indeed you are doing yourself a good turn.

"When you receive a bill, then meet it as you agreed if you possibly can. If you can't, frankly tell your creditor why you cannot. You'll find him more than ready to meet you half way. "Cherish your credit as you do your health, happiness and other priceless
